Selling Stakes.—Gulnara, 1. Birague, 2.
Stand Cup.—Lady Bohun, 1. Countersign, 2. Elpha, 3.
Nursery Handicap.—Miss Harriette, 1. Qui va là, 2. Alberta, 3.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

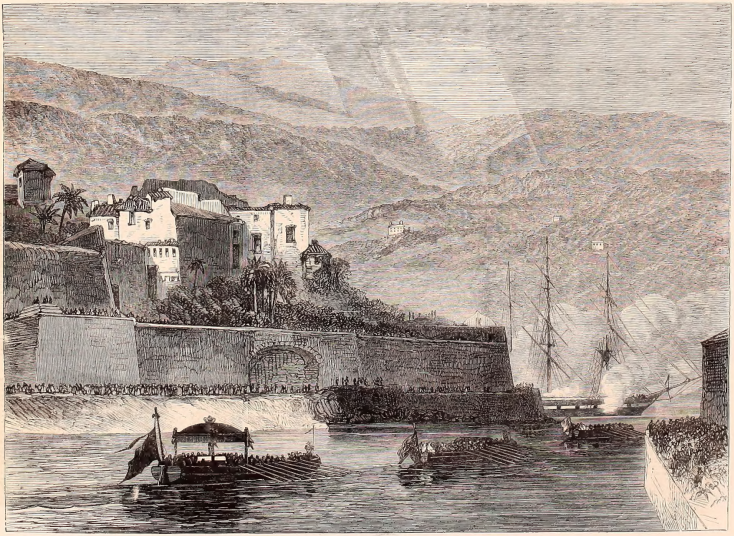
FRIDAY, MAY 5.

BANKRUPTS.

S. WARREN, Limehouse, bootmaker.—D. SHARP, Limehouse, cabinetmaker.—R. I. BEARD, Farringdon-street, printer.—J. LOWE, Southampton, lieutenant in the Stafford militia.—U. CARAPATA, Stoke Newington.—G. FORD, Islington, fatmelter.—G. SMITH, Westbourne-grove, builder.—T. STICKELLS, Ashford, tailor.—E. GOULD, Old Kent-road, grocer.—J. H. LANCE, Stratford, builder.—T. WILLIAMSON, Peterborough, tailor.—J. HICKS, Shadwell, horsedealer.—M. OTTY, Clerkenwell, cabinetmaker.—J. HOLMAN, Salisbury, linendraper.—J. MEESON and J. MORRIS, Wolverhampton, drapers.—W. HAYWOOD, Mavesyn Ridware, farmer.—H. HARRISON, Cheltenham, grocer.—M. BATH, Melksham, draper.—J. RICH, Leighton, merchant.—T. HUTTON, Liverpool, commission merchant.—M. Y. COLQUHOUN, Liverpool, printer.—G. WILLIAMS, Bryngwran, farmer.—W. HILTON, Manchester, yarn agent.—A. FIELDEN, Todmorden, cotton-spinner.—E. MANN, Manchester, money scrivener.—R. POTTER, Rusholme, commission agent.—W. LANE and W. G. STEPHEN, Manchester, oil merchants.—J. SMURTHWAITE, Sunderland, wharfinger.—W. BOWERBANK, Penrith, builder.—M. WINCHURST, Birmingham, sempstress.—B. SMITH, Birmingham, iron-tube manufacturer.—J. SANDS, Kingston-on-Hull, chairmaker.—M. F. FRAGNUL, Kingston-on-Hull, shipbroker.—W. GOOCH, North Lopham, tailor.—H. HUNT, Derby, commission agent.—T. CARTWRIGHT, Derby, ginger-beer manufacturer.—R. HALL, Derby, fitter.—J. IRVIN, Whitehaven, joiner.—J. TOMLINSON, Erkington, innkeeper.—W. WHITEHEAD, Sheffield, grocer.—G. JENKINS, West Dean, contractor.—W. STANWAY, Mucclestone, farmer.—W. HILL, Devonport, master armourer.—J. STANDEN, Guestling, potato-dealer.—G. COOPER, Pontypool, china-dealer.—T. DOBSON, Middleton, grocer.—J. PIERCE, Holywell, shopkeeper.—J. CLYNE, Bristol, schoolmaster.—L. WALKER, Whitwell, baker.—T. H. J. WIDOWSON, Liverpool, butcher.—F. H. WILSON, Liverpool, bootmaker.—E. HARNDEN, Canterbury.—R. WADDINGTON, Wellingborough, shoemaker.—D. H. HEWSON, Great Grimsby, bootmaker.—J. KING, Bideford, china-dealer.—J. S. TURNER, Mattishall, farmer.—H. BENNETT, Lower Trelaswell, wheelwright.—J. H. FRUBING, Middlesborough, tailor.—J. MINCHER, Dudley, licensed victualler.

TUESDAY, MAY 9.

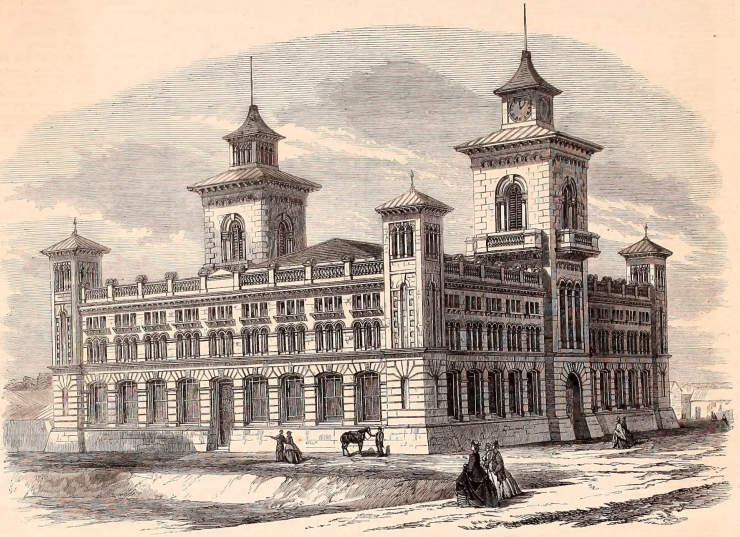
BANKRUPTS.



R. M. SEYER, Pimlico, journalist.—C. F. KIRKMAN, Clapham-road, manure manufacturer.—D. COLGROVE, De Beauvoir Town, tailor.—W. D. WINTER, Esmond-road, grocer.—E. MILLER, Bognor, clerk in holy orders.—C. F. W. SEMON, Vauxhall, furniture-dealer.—H. PAINE, Walworth, tailor.—D. THOMAS, Greenfield-street, general commission agent.—W. GILMOUR, Aylesbury, surgeon.—R. W. HORE, Littlehampton, Sussex, sailmaker.—B. W. SAUNDERS, Clapham-road, brewer.—J. N. CHAMPION, New North-road, house decorator.—E. STONE, Oxford-market, builder.—R. HARRIS, Islington, tailor.—W. SMITH, Richmond, Surrey, bricklayer.—H. BROWNRIGG, City, merchant.—J. MAY, Bayswater, builder.—J. T. STANLEY, Brighton, major of militia.—J. S. CLAY, Kentish Town, lithographic artist.—F. HITCHING, Great Saffron-hill, marble paper-hanging manufacturer.—J. R. LACEY, Hoddesdon, grocer.—J. WHATTAM, Boston, gardener.—J. FISHER, Walsall, brewery agent.—N. WALSH, Birmingham, grocer.—W. L. TIZARD, Birmingham, engineer.—W. BEAK, Axbridge, wine merchant.—A. WILLIAMS, jun., Gloucester, tailor.—J. ALLAN, Scarborough, chemist.—C. PAINE, Llandudno, confectioner.—A. KELLY, Liverpool, cotton-dealer.—R. TURNER, Newtown, grocer.—R. T. MARTIN, near Liverpool, hotel-keeper.—J. SIMPSON, Liverpool, contractor.—S. LEES, Blackpool.—R. CHORLEY, Warrington, coal merchant.—J. SHARPLES, Blackburn, commission agent.—H. BURTON, Aston Juxta, retail brewer.—A. HOPE, York, draper.—T. SAVAGE, Birmingham, brasscaster.—F. TWIGG, Sheffield, table-knife manufacturer.—W. SELSBY, St. Leonards-on-Sea, photographic artist.—D. DAVIES, Abelside, butcher.—D. E. HOWELLS, Hereford, mason.—A. TEW, Admaston, Shropshire, innkeeper.—C. I. PINKSTONE, Tiverton, watchmaker.—A. HEAP, Habergham Eaves, stonemason.—J. PITT, Worcester, cooper.—A. BROWNING, Powick, horse-fly proprietor.—J. STATHAM, Alrewas, journeyman butcher.—O. EVANS, Penycharllan.—D. KIRBY, Northampton, clicker.—D. GILBY, Bures, coachbuilder.—C. T. BAKER, Trentham, potters'-painter.—S. COMBER, Brighton, riding-master.—W. ARMITAGE, Kilburn, coachmaker.

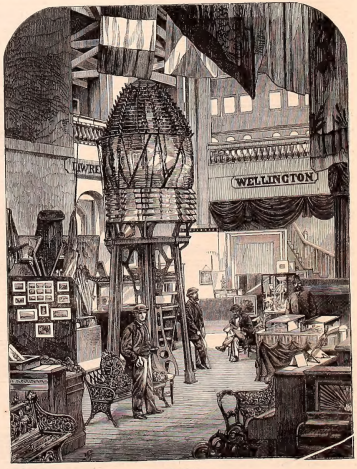
SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

J. CREE, Glasgow, power-loom cloth manufacturer.—J. BLAIR, Glasgow, smith.—W. BINNIE, Channelkirk, Berwickshire, farm-tenant.—A. GOW, Glasgow, merchant.—A. ROY, Partick, carrier.—A. EATON, Perth, commission agent.



THE NATIONAL MOURNING IN BROADWAY, NEW YORK, FOR THE DEATH OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN.—SEE PAGE 462.

EMBARKATION OF THE BODY OF THE CZAREWITCH AT VILLAFRANCA, FOR CONVEYANCE TO RUSSIA.—SEE PAGE 462.



THE NEW ZEALAND INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

THE EXHIBITION BUILDING AT DUNEDIN, PROVINCE OF OTAGO.—SEE PAGE 462.

MAIN AVENUE.

MAIN AVENUE.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

NEARLY all National Stocks have been in a very inactive state during the week; nevertheless, no change of importance has taken place in the quotations. The late advance in the Bank rate for money, and the increased demand for gold for export purposes, have induced most of the large dealers to pause in their operations; whilst the purchases of Stock on account of the public have been much restricted. The supply in the hands of the jobbers, however, is by no means extensive. Much support will possibly be given to the market when the Government broker resumes his purchases for the reduction of the National Debt.

There is a fair supply of money on offer in the discount market. The demand for accommodation is somewhat active, at the annexed rates for the best bills:—

Thirty days' bills	4⅞ per cent.
Sixty days' bills	4⅞ "
Three months' bills	4⅞ "
Four months' bills	5 "
Six months' bills	5½ "

The value of money in the Stock Exchange varies from 4 to 4½ per cent. The Indian Council will continue their present loans at 3 per cent until the end of June.

A few parcels of gold have been sent into the Bank of England; but over £200,000 has been withdrawn for the Brazils. The silver market is heavy, and the quotations rule almost nominal.

On the Continent scarcely any change has taken place in the value of money.

On Monday Consols, for Money, left off at 90⅝ ¾; Ditto, for Account, 90⅞ 91; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅞ ⅞; Annuities, 1885, 14 1-16; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem.; India Stock, Five per Cents, 106⅞ ⅞; Ditto, Five per Cent Rupee Paper, 101⅞. The dealings on Tuesday were limited:—Consols, for Transfer, marked 90⅞ ⅞; Ditto, for June, 90⅞ 91; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅞ ⅞; Long Annuities, 13 15-16; Exchequer Bills, 6s. prem.; Bank Stock, 242 to 241½; India Stock, 215. Wednesday's market was very flat, and Consols, for Delivery, sold as low as 90⅞. The closing price, for Money, was 90⅞ ⅞; for Account, 98⅞ ⅞ ex div.; Reduced and New Three per Cents left off at 88⅞ ⅞; India Stock, 218 to 218; Ditto Five per Cents, 106 to 106½; India Bonds, 14s. to 18s. prem.; and Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem. On Thursday, Consols, for Money marked 90½ ⅞; for Account, 89⅞ ⅞ ex div.; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅞ ⅞; India Five per Cents, 106½ ⅞; and Exchequer Bills, 3s. prem.

American Securities have ruled firm, and prices have had an upward tendency.

The market for Foreign Securities has continued dull. Turkish, Spanish, and Greek Securities have given way in price, and in several other instances the quotations have had a drooping tendency. Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents have realised 83; Buenos Ayres, Deferred, 37; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 93⅞; Ditto, 1864, 92½; Greek, 20½ to 21; Ditto, Coupons, 8; Mexican Three per Cents, 26½; Ditto, 1851, 25½; Peruvian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 81; Portuguese Three per Cents, 48½; Russian Five per Cents, 1862, 90 ex div.; Ditto, 1864, 92½; Sardinian Five per Cents, 79; Spanish Deferred, 39½; Ditto, Passive, 29½; Ditto, Certificates, 15; Turkish Old Six per Cents, 90; Ditto, 1858, 70; Ditto, 1862, 72⅞; Ditto Four per Cents, 101; and Dutch Four per Cents, 96½.

In the market for Joint-stock Bank Shares a very moderate business has been transacted. Alliance have sold at 32½; Anglo-Austrian, 7⅞; Australasia, 69; Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China, 50½; European, 12½; Imperial Ottoman, 16; Land Mortgage of India, 4½ ex div.; London Chartered of Australia, 24; London Joint-stock, 50⅞; London and Westminster, 95½; Metropolitan and Provincial, 16½; Provincial of Ireland, 87; Scinde Punjaub, and Delhi, 8½; South-Eastern, 13½; Union of Australia, 55½; and Union of London, 51.

Colonial Government Securities have been in limited request. Canada Six per Cents have realised 95½; New South Wales Five per Cents, 92⅞; Queensland Six per Cents, 101; and Victoria Six per Cents, 108½.

The Miscellaneous Market has ruled quiet. Anglo-Mexican Mint, 17⅞; Ceylon Company, 10; Consolidated Discount, 4½; Contract Corporation, 1⅞; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 8½; Crystal Palace, 37⅞; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 3; Fairbairn Engineering, 6½; Financial Discount, 4½; General Credit, 5⅞; Humber Ironworks, 4; Joint-stock Discount, 8⅞; London Financial, 21⅞; London General Omnibus, 3½; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 85½; Ditto, New, 58½; Royal Mail Steam, 101 ex div.; Scottish Australian Investment, 125; Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance, 7; West India and Pacific Steam, 14.

With the exception of a decidedly improved feeling as regards some of the American railways, the market for Railway Shares has ruled heavy, and prices have had a drooping tendency. The following are Thursday's latest official transactions:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Edinburgh and Glasgow, 91; Caledonian, 129½; Great Eastern, 46½; Great Northern, 131; Ditto, A Stock, 144½; Great Western, 73½; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 129⅞; London and Blackwall, 89½; London, Chatham, and Dover, 40; London and North-Western, 121⅞; London and South-Western, 97⅞; Metropolitan, 135; Metropolitan District, 100; Midland, 133½; North British, 54½; Ditto, Edinburgh, Perth, and Dundee, 24½; North Eastern—Berwick, 109⅞; Ditto, Leeds, 68; Ditto, York, 101½; North London, 117; North Staffordshire, 78½; South Devon, 57; South-Eastern, 85; West Cornwall, 47½.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 102⅞; Calcutta and South-Eastern, 100; East Indian, 103½; Grand Trunk of Canada, 19; Great Indian Peninsula, 103⅞; Great Western of Canada, 10½; Scinde, 101; Punjaub, 101½.

Foreign.—Bahia and San Francisco, 14⅞; Great Luxembourg, 10⅞; San Paulo, 17⅞; South Austrian and Lombardo-Venetian, 21⅞.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, May 8.—There was only a moderate supply of English wheat on sale in to-day's market. Most kinds were in fair request, at full quotations. The show of foreign wheat was by no means extensive. Selected qualities commanded fully previous rates. Otherwise the trade was inactive. Higher quotations were demanded for floating cargoes. There was a fair inquiry for most descriptions of barley, at last week's prices. Malt, however, was a slow inquiry, at late rates. Oats sold on former terms; whilst both beans and peas were quite as dear as on Monday last, owing to the unusually small quantities brought forward. Both English and foreign flour was steady in price.

May 10.—Most kinds of produce were in moderate request to-day. Compared with Monday, no change took place in prices.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 38s. to 43s.; ditto, white, 43s. to 48s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 38s. to 42s.; rye, 25s. to 27s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 24s.; distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 27s. to 34s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 54s. to 61s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 51s.; Kingston and Ware, 54s. to 61s.; chevalier, 58s. to 62s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 19s. to 23s.; potato ditto, 23s. to 27s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 18s. to 23s.; ditto, white, 19s. to 24s.; tick beans, 33s. to 35s.; grey peas, 34s. to 35s.; maple, 36s. to 39s.; white, 31s. to 36s.; boilers, 37s. to 38s. per quarter.

Seeds.—Agricultural seeds are dull, and almost nominal in price. Linseed, rapeseed, and cakes command very little attention.

Linseed, English, crushing, 56s. to 62s.; Calcutta, 57s. to 58s.; hempseed, 42s. to 43s. per quarter; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt; brown mustard seed, 10s. to 12s.; white ditto, 8s. 0d. to 10s. 0d.; tares, 9s. to 10s. per bushel; English rapeseed, 61s. to 72s. per quarter; linseed cakes, English, £10 15s. to £11 0s.; ditto, foreign, £11 0s. to £11 5s.; rape cakes, £6 0s. to £6 10s. per ton; red clover seed, 66s. to 110s.; white ditto, 66s. to 88s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 39s. 10d.; barley, 29s. 9d.; oats, 23s. 5d.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 81,806; barley, 11,968; oats, 4078 quarters.

Tea.—Very little business is doing in any kind; nevertheless, prices are well supported.

Sugar.—We have scarcely any change to notice in the value of any kind of raw sugar; but the market may be considered firm. Refined goods are steady, at 43s. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—Sales, generally, have fallen off; yet holders are very firm in their demands.

Rice.—There is a good business doing in this article, at extreme quotations.

Provisions.—Most kinds of butter are a slow inquiry, at the late decline in the quotaions. The supplies have rather increased. Bacon is firm, at 74s. per cwt. for Waterford on board. Hams are rather dearer; and most other provisions rule steady.

Tallow.—P.Y.C., on the spot, is very inactive, at 39s. 9d. per cwt, net cash. Stock, 34,454 casks, against 50,050 casks last year. Rough fat, 2s. 1d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Generally speaking, the transactions are on a moderate scale, at about stationary prices. French turpentine is selling at 50s. per cwt.

Spirits.—Rum is steady, at full quotations. Fine marks are worth 4s. to 4s. 6d. per gallon; malt spirit, duty paid, 12s. 6d. to 13s. 6d.; geneva, 2s. to 2s. 5d.; corn spirits, for export, 1s. 5d. to 2s.; and English gin, for ditto, 2s. 3d. to 2s. 9d. per gallon. Brandy is firm.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 10s. to £5 10s.; clover, £5 10s. to £6 10s.; and straw, £1 7s. to £1 16s. per load.

Coals.—Walker Primrose, 13s. 3d.; Gosforth, 15s.; Eden Main, 15s. 9d.; Braddyl's Hetton, 16s.; Heugh Hall, 16s. 0d.; Kelloe, 15s. 9d. per ton.

Hops.—English hops move off steadily, at full quotations. In foreign parcels very little is doing. Prices range from 50s. to 200s. per cwt.

Wool.—The public sales of Colonial wool have been commenced, with a fair attendance of buyers, both English and foreign. Privately, the market is heavy.

Potatoes.—The supplies are seasonably good, and the demand is steady, at from 60s. to 150s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, May 11).—To-day's market was well supplied with beasts, and the condition of the stock was, on the whole, good. The beef trade ruled quiet, at about Monday's currency. Prime Scots and crosses realised 4s. 8d. to 4s. 10d. per 8 lb. Sheep—the supply of which on sale was moderate—moved off slowly, at late rates. The top figure was 6s. per 8 lb. The market was but moderately supplied with lambs. Good and prime qualities sold readily, at full prices; otherwise, the lamb trade was quiet. There was a fair demand for calves, at late rates. The pork trade was quiet, on former terms.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 8d.; second quality ditto, 3s. 10d. to 4s. 2d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 6d.; prime Scots, &c., 4s. 8d. to 4s. 10d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 3s. 10d. to 4s. 6d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 8d. to 5s.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. 2d. to 5s. 6d.; prime southdown ditto, 5s. 8d. to 6s. 0d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; prime small ditto, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 2d.; large hogs, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 4d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 10d.; lambs, 6s. 8d. to 8s.; suckling calves, 16s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 21s. to 25s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1230; cows, 130; sheep and lambs, 8370; calves, 440; pigs, 310. Foreign: Beasts, 670; sheep, 3300; calves, 260.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—Beef, from 3s. 0d. to 4s. 6d.; mutton, 4s. 0d. to 5s. 8d.; lamb, 6s. 4d. to 7s. 8d.; veal, 3s. 10d. to 4s. 10d.; and pork, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 10d., per 8 lb., by the carcass.

ROBERT HERBERT.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE. Managers, Messrs. E. FALCONER and F. B. CHATTERTON. Last Six Nights of the Season. On MONDAY, MAY 15, for the last time this Season, the new and successful Play, by Edmund Falconer, entitled LOVE'S ORDEAL; or, The Old and New Régime.—Principal Characters by Messrs. Walter Lacy, E. Phelps, Edmund Falconer, J. Neville, A. Rayner, G. Belmore, H. Sinclair, Mrs. Hermann Vezin, Miss R. Leclercq, Miss C. Weston, Mrs. H. Vandenhoff, &c. On Tuesday, May 16, for the last time this season, Shakespere's Tragedy of KING LEAR—Lear, Mr. Phelps. To conclude with, on Monday and Tuesday, Milton's Mask of COMUS. On Wednesday, May 17, for the Benefit of MISS LYDIA THOMPSON, the Comedietta of DELICATE GROUND—Messrs. Walter Lacy, R. Roxby, Miss Lydia Thompson. After which, the Comic Drama of GOOD FOR NOTHING—Tom Dibbles, Mr. J. L. Toole (by kind permission of Benjamin Webster, Esq.); Nan (for the first time in London), Miss Lydia Thompson; followed by Milton's Mask of COMUS. In the course of the evening, Miss Lydia Thompson will introduce her celebrated grand Pas de Nation. To conclude with a popular Comedietta, in which Mr. Sothern will sustain the principal character (by kind permission of J. B. Buckstone, Esq.). On Thursday, May 18, for the Benefit of Mr. PHELPS, Shakespere's Tragedy of HAMLET—Hamlet (first time at this Theatre in that character), Mr. Phelps; to conclude with Milton's Mask of COMUS. On Friday, May 19, for the Benefit of Mr. WALTER LACY, Shakespere's Tragedy of ROMEO AND JULIET; Milton's Mask of COMUS. On Saturday, May 20, Last Night of the Season, COMUS and other Entertainments, for the Benefit of Mr. EDMUND FALCONER. Doors open at Half-past Six; performances to commence at Seven. Box Office open from Ten till Five daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET. Mr. Sothern as the original Lord Dundreary. MONDAY NEXT, MAY 15, and during the Week, to commence at Seven, with, first time, a new operetta, THE MILLER'S DAUGHTER. The music by Langton Williams. After which, for a few nights only, OUR AMERICAN COUSIN. Lord Dundreary, Mr. Sothern; Asa Trenchard, Mr. Buckstone; Miss Snowdon, Miss C. Hill, Miss M. Harris, &c. Concluding with FISH OUT OF WATER. Mr. Compton.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER.—REAPPEARANCE of MISS BATEMAN.—MONDAY, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday, FAZIO; or, the Italian Wife—Bianca, Miss Bateman. Tuesday and Thursday, THE WILLOW COPSE—Mr. Benjamin Webster. Commencing each night with THE IRISH TIGER, and concluding with THE STEEPLECHASE. Commence at Seven.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE. Mr. FECHTER will perform DON CÆSAR for six nights, commencing MONDAY, MAY 15. Box-office open daily from Eleven till Five.

NOW IS THE TIME TO VISIT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.—Wet or Dry.—Delightful Spring appearance of Gardens and Park. Nature in fullest beauty. Refreshed by the recent rain, the Park and Gardens truly delightful. The shrubs and plants in flower around the lakes have never been so charmingly fresh; alone worth a special visit.
Performances by the Company's celebrated Orchestral Band at 12.30 and 4.30, and on the Great Organ. Shakspeare House, Fine-Arts Courts, Picture Gallery, Chinese Collection, Skating Hall, Chimpanzee, Archery, Bowls, Cricket, Boats, &c.
Admission by New Guinea Season Ticket, or One Shilling, from Monday to Friday; Saturday (Great Flower Show), Seven Shillings and Sixpence, or, by tickets had before the day, Five Shillings.

EVERYONE SHOULD HAVE THE CRYSTAL PALACE NEW SEASON TICKET. Unparalleled attractions for One Guinea only. See Programme.

THE GREAT FLOWER SHOW of the SEASON on SATURDAY NEXT, MAY 20. Five Shilling Tickets now issued: purchase them or Season Tickets at once at the usual Agents, at the Palace, or at No. 2, Exeter Hall.
NOTE.—The unusually fine season and other causes already give promise that, high as the Crystal Palace Flower Shows have hitherto stood in public estimation, the coming Exhibition will be one of the very finest on record.

ROYAL POLYTECHNIC.—Patron, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.—PROTEUS, and Professor Pepper, with Burton's Mecca and Medina, at 2.30 and 7.30.—George Buckland's Mont Blanc, at Four and Nine.—King's Lecture, and Railway Models.—Matthew's Prestidigitation, with all the other Scientific Entertainments.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, with Mr. JOHN PARRY, will appear in their NEW ENTERTAINMENT Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight. Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. A New Opera di Camera every Tuesday and Thursday at Three. Saturday at Eight.

STODARE'S THEATRE OF MYSTERY, EGYPTIAN HALL.—EVERY NIGHT at Eight and Saturday Afternoon at Three.—The New and Startling Illusions, as performed by Colonel Stodare, continue to create the greatest success and astonishment.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL EXHIBITION IS NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 53, PALL-MALL (near St. James's Palace). Daily from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d. JAMES FAHEY, Sec.

FRENCH GALLERY, 120, PALL-MALL. THE TWELFTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF PICTURES—the Contributions of Artists of the French and Flemish Schools, to which has been added ROSA BONHEUR'S NEW PICTURE of "A Family of Deer Crossing the Summit of the Long Rocks" (Forest of Fontainebleau)—IS NOW OPEN. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d.

THE LARGE PICTURE—A DRAWING-ROOM at ST. JAMES'S PALACE, in the reign of Queen Victoria—painted by JERRY BARRETT, and containing nearly 60 Portraits—is now ON VIEW at Mr. HOGARTH'S, 5, Haymarket. Invitation cards issued before the Picture's removal are available. Hours Eleven till Six. Admission, One Shilling.

HYDE PARK in 1864, by HENRY BARRAUD, Esq., containing 220 Portraits of the Frequenters of Rotten-row, NOW ON VIEW, at 230, Regent-street (opposite Hanover-street). Admission 1s. Open from Ten till Dusk.

MR. J. BALSIR CHATTERTON'S (Harpist to her Majesty the Queen and Professor of the Harp at the Royal Academy of Music) GRAND MORNING CONCERT, WEDNESDAY, MAY 17, 1865, at Two o'Clock, at Drury-lane Theatre:—Miss Louisa Pyne, Miss Poole, Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Mdme. Weiss, Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Marian Moss, Miss Rose Hersee, Mr. W. H. Cummings, Mr. Henri Drayton, Mr. Wilbye Cooper, Mr. W. H. Weiss, Mr. Lewis Thomas, and W. H. Harrison. Chorus and band of harps, including Mr. John Thomas (Pencerdd Gwalia), Mr. T. H. Wright, Mr. Trust, Mr. W. Layland, Mr. J. Cheshire, Mr. Lockwood, Mr. George, Mr. Weippert, and Mr. J. Balsir Chatterton; Miss Trust, Miss Poncioni, Miss Weippert, Miss Holcombe, Mrs. Cooper. Solo on the trumpet, Mr. T. Harper. Pianoforte, Mr. W. H. Holmes, Mr. Hammond, Miss Merriman, Miss Kate Chatterton (niece to Mr. J. B. Chatterton). Conductors, Mr. Benedict, Mr. E. Berger, Mr. H. V. Lewis, Mr. G. B. Allen. Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Dress Circle, 5s.; First Circle, 4s.; Private Boxes, one, two, three, four, and five guineas. To be had of Mr. J. B. Chatterton, 32, Manchester-street, Manchester-square; of Addison and Lucas, 210, Regent-street; Lamborn Cock and Co., No. 63, New Bond-street; Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co., 201, Regent-street; and at the Box-office of the Theatre.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY. Conductor, Professor Sterndale Bennett.—FOURTH CONCERT, MAY 15.—The Programme will include Spohr's Symphony in D minor (composed expressly for the society); Beethoven's Symphony, No. 8; Mendelssohn's Overture in C (composed expressly for the society); and the Overture to Mozart's "Zauberflöte." Solo Violinist, Herr Lauterbach. Vocalist, Mdme. Joachim. Single Tickets, 15s. each, to be obtained of Messrs. Addison and Lucas, 210, Regent-street. CAMPBELL CLARKE, Sec.
21, Lincoln's-inn-fields, W.C.

MUSICAL UNION.—JAELL, Pianist to the King of Hanover, WILL PLAY, TUESDAY, MAY 23, with Joachim, Piatti, &c. J. ELLA, Director.

MR. BENEDICT'S ANNUAL CONCERT, JUNE 21, under the immediate patronage of H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES and H.R.H. the PRINCESS of WALES.—Mr. BENEDICT'S THIRTIETH ANNUAL GRAND MORNING CONCERT, at the ST. JAMES'S HALL, on WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21. Early application is solicited for the few remaining Sofa and Balcony stalls. The full programme will be published on Thursday, June 1.

MR. W. H. HOLMES and Mr. G. W. HAMMOND'S PIANOFORTE and MISCELLANEOUS CONCERT (by kind permission), at the residence of Mrs. Hoare, 7A, ST. JAMES'S-SQUARE, MONDAY, MAY 29, at Three o'Clock. Tickets (One Guinea each) and programmes to be had only of Mr. W. H. Holmes, 36, Beaumont-street, Marylebone; and Mr. G. W. Hammond, 33, Beaumont-street.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.—The last opportunity to see GENERAL TOM THUMB and his LITTLE PARTY. They positively close June 10. We advise our friends not to delay coming, as their last few levées are always crowded. Three Grand Entertainments daily, at Eleven, Three, and Half-past Seven. Admission, Day Entertainments, 1s., 2s., and 3s.; Evening, 1s.; Children under Ten half price to all parts of the house; a few Reserved Seats, 2s.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—SCHUMANN NIGHT, on MONDAY EVENING NEXT, MAY 15. The programme will include the pianoforte quartet in E flat, Op. 47; the string quartet in A minor (repeated by desire); "Etudes en forme de Variations," for pianoforte alone, &c. Pianoforte, Mdme. Schumann (her first appearance at these concerts); Violin, Herr Joachim; Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Vocalist, Mr. Cummings. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s; Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s; and at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

MAY 15, 1865.—MDME. SAINTON-DOLBY and Mons. SAINTON have the honour to announce that their ANNUAL GRAND MORNING CONCERT will take place at ST. JAMES'S HALL, on MONDAY NEXT, at Three o'Clock. Vocalists—Mdlle. Carlotta Patti, Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mdme. Parepa, Miss Marian Moss, Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, and Miss Louisa Pyne; Herr Wachtel, Mr. Wilbye Cooper, Mr. W. H. Cummings, Mr. J. G. Patey, and Mr. W. H. Weiss. Pianoforte—Mdme. Arabella Goddard. Violin—M. Sainton. Violoncello—M. Paque. Conductors—Mr. Benedict, M. Tours, Mr. Deacon, and Herr Meyer Lutz.—Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Reserved Area, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; admission, 1s. Tickets may be obtained of Mdme. Sainton-Dolby and Mons. Sainton, at their residence, 5, Upper Wimpole-street, W.; the principal Libraries and Musicsellers; and at Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's Hall, Piccadilly.

MR. HENRY LAHEE'S MORNING CONCERT, HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, MAY 17, at Three o'Clock. Miss Banks, Mr. Lazarus, Herr Deichmann, Herr Daubert, Mr. B. Blagrove, and Mr. H. Lahee. Conductor, Mr. H. R. Bird. Reserved Seats, 10s. 6d.; to admit Three, 21s.; Unreserved Seats, 7s. 6d.; to admit Four, 21s.; may be had of the principal Musicsellers, and of Mr. H. Lahee, 20, Alexander-square, Brompton.

INTERNATIONAL REFORMATORY EXHIBITION of the Products of Industrial Institutions in all parts of the World, to be held at the AGRICULTURAL HALL, Islington, from FRIDAY, the 19th, to THURSDAY, the 25th of MAY.

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES will OPEN the EXHIBITION at the AGRICULTURAL HALL, at a Public Ceremonial, on FRIDAY NEXT, MAY 19, at Three o'Clock.

A CHOIR of One Thousand Children will Sing at the OPENING of the EXHIBITION at the AGRICULTURAL HALL, on FRIDAY NEXT.

THE BAND of the Corps of Commissionnaires will perform at the OPENING of the EXHIBITION at the AGRICULTURAL HALL on FRIDAY NEXT.

PERFORMANCE on Willis' Great Exhibition Organ at the OPENING of the EXHIBITION at the ARICULTURAL HALL on FRIDAY NEXT.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, Regent's Park. FIRST EXHIBITION of PLANTS and FLOWERS, WEDNESDAY, MAY 24. Tickets to be obtained at the Gardens, and of the Society's Clerk, Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's Hall, on vouchers from Fellows of the Society, price 5s.; or, on the Exhibition-day, 7s. 6d. each.

THURTON'S "ODD FOLKS," with a New Piece of Extravagance, termed "GOING TO COURT," and Portraits of the Japanese Dandy, the Model Policeman, and other Novelties, at WELCHPOOL, MONDAY, MAY 15; Llanidloes, 16; Montgomery, 17; Newtown, 18; Oswestry, 19 (return visit). Manager, Mr. J. MORFEY.

MAY 18.—GRAND BAZAAR, FLORAL, and MUSICAL PROMENADE, at WILLIS'S ROOMS, under Royal Patronage, for the ROYAL ST. ANNE'S SOCIETY.

MAY 19.—GRAND BAZAAR, FLORAL and MUSICAL PROMENADE, at WILLIS'S ROOMS.

MAY 20.—GRAND BAZAAR, at WILLIS'S ROOMS, for the ROYAL ST. ANNE'S SOCIETY.

HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W.—Supported by Voluntary Contributions.—Two Hundred and Ten Beds are now occupied. Liberal and Continuous SUPPORT IS REQUIRED to meet the current expenses of this Charity. PHILIP ROSE, Hon. Sec.; HENRY DOBBIN, Sec.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London. J. W. ORAM, Secretary.

LIMPLEY STOKE, NEAR BATH.
HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT. Physician, D. B. Dalzell, Esq., M.D. Manager, Mr. T. Preston. Terms, £2 2s. per week. CHARLES JUPE and SON, Proprietors.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate Rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

PICTURE FRAMES for "HAPPINESS," given with this Paper. Handsome gilt frame, glass and back, 1s. 6d.; maple and gilt, 3s.; ornamented, gold oval frame, 4s.—At GEO. REES, 57, Drury-lane; and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

PERMANENT PHOTOGRAPHS are obtained by the new patent process of WOTHLYTYPE on Ivory. Those interested in the advance of the art are invited to view the specimens. Full information and card of prices by post. "The pictures are printed with wonderful delicacy."—Times. The UNITED ASSOCIATION of PHOTOGRAPHY (Limited), 213, Regent-street, W.

BRILLIANT CHEMICAL EXPERIMENTS performed with ease, and entirely free from danger. Statham's Chemical Amusement Chests, from 5s. 6d. Catalogue, three stamps.—W. STATHAM, 111½, Strand, W.C.

CRAYON-PAINTING ON PORCELAIN. EMERY'S PATENT. "Better, prettier, and more artistic than potichomanie or decalcomanie."—The Flaneur—Morning Star. The materials and full instructions will be obtainable of the patentee's agents on the 1st of June.
Application may be made to
Mr. Murray Marks, 395, Oxford-street;
M. I. H. Wood, 58, 59, Baker-street, Portman-square; or to
F. J. Emery, Cobridge, Staffordshire.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

BRIDAL PARASOLS.—W. & J. SANGSTER have now ready at their Establishment, 140, Regent-street, a large assortment of the most elegant Parasols and Sunshades in Brussels, Honiton, and Maltese Lace; also, of their much-admired Florentine and Zephyr Parasols, introduced by them this season.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Sole Proprietors, Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

RIMMEL'S NEW PERFUMES.—The Titiens Bouquet, Indian Bouquet, and Chinese Bouquet, 2s. 6d. each; three in a box, 7s. The Jockey Fan, for the Races, 10s. 6d.; by post for 11s.—Rimmel, Perfumer, 96, Strand, 24, Cornhill; and 128, Regent-street, London.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN and SIMEON MOSELY and SONS, 30, Berners-st., Oxford-st., and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross-Railway Station). These teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet."—No connection with anyone of the same name.

PEPSINE.—MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE, Morson's Pepsine Lozenges, are perfectly palatable forms for administering this popular remedy for weak digestion. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 31, 33, and 124, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C. Pepsine Wine, in bottles, at 3s., 5s., and 10s. each; lozenges, in boxes, at 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each.

NEW BOOKS.

Just published, price 3s. 6d. cloth,
HUNTING SKETCHES. By ANTHONY TROLLOPE. (Reprinted from the "Pall Mall Gazette.")
Contents.
The Man who Hunts and Doesn't Like it. | The Man who Hunts and Does Like it. | The Lady who Rides to Hounds. | The Hunting Farmer. | The Man who Hunts and never Jumps. | The Hunting Parson. | The Master of Hounds. | How to Ride to Hounds.
CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly.

NEW BOOKS, THIS DAY, AT ALL THE LIBRARIES.
1. THE LIFE OF DR. BEECHER. Second and concluding Volume, with Illustrations and Portrait, 10s. 6d.
2. HELEN FELTON'S QUESTION: a Novel. One vol, post 8vo, 8s.
3. SIR FELIX FOY, BART.: A Novel. By DUTTON COOK. 3 vols., 24s.
SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Milton House, Ludgate-hill.

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK. Price 7s. 6d. Seventy-sixth Thousand, revised and enlarged, and fully illustrated. "The best book of its class yet produced."—Illustrated London News.—London: LONGMAN and Co.

PHOTO-CHROMOGRAPHY.—An easy method of Colouring Photographs (without a knowledge of painting). Instructions post-free, seven stamps. Boxes of Materials complete, 10s. 6d.
WILLIAM BARNARD, 59, Connaught-terrace, London, W.

FOR FAMILY ARMS.—CULLETON'S Heraldic Office, the established authority for furnishing Family Arms, Crest, and Pedigrees. Send name and county. Arms quartered and impaled, plain sketch, 3s. 6d.; in heraldic colours, 6s. Arms, Crest, and Motto, with heraldic description, beautifully painted in rich colours, 12s. Family pedigrees traced from authentic records, by T. Culleton, Genealogist, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S HERALDIC OFFICE for engraving Arms on Stone, Steel, and Silver, according to the laws of Garter and Ulster King-at-Arms, by Authority. Crest on Seals or Rings, 7s. 6d.; Book-plate engraved with Arms and Crest, 15s.; Crest-plate, 5s.—T. Culleton, Engraver to the Queen, by Authority, April 30, 1852; and Diesinker to the Board of Trade, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane, W.C.)

CULLETON'S SOLID GOLD SIGNET RINGS, 18-carat, Hall-marked, engraved with any Crest, 42s.; ditto, very massive, for Arms, Crest, and Motto, £3 15s. The Hall mark is the only guarantee for pure gold.—T. Culleton, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S PATENT LEVER EMBOSSING PRESSES, 21s., for stamping paper with crest, arms, or address. Any person can use them. Carriage-paid.—T. Culleton, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S VISITING CARDS.—Fifty, best quality, 1s. post-free. Engraving a Copperplate in any style, 1s. Wedding cards, 50 each for lady and gentleman, 50 Embossed Envelopes, with maiden name printed inside, all complete, 13s. 6d., carriage-paid.—T. Culleton, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane.)

NO CHARGE FOR ENGRAVING DIE with MONOGRAM, CREST and MOTTO, or ADDRESS if an order be given for a Ream of extra thick Paper and 500 Envelopes, at 17s.; or a Ream of the very best, and 500 Envelopes, 21s.; all stamped free of charge, and carriage-paid. Paper and Envelopes stamped in Six different Colours.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S PLATES FOR MARKING LINEN prevent the ink spreading and never washes out. Initials, 1s.; name, 2s. 6d.; set of numbers, 2s. 6d.; crest, 5s.; with directions, post-free for stamps.—T. Culleton, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane). W.C.

120 SHEETS OF NOTE-PAPER for 6d.; 120 thick ditto for 1s.; 120 sheets ditto, black-bordered, for 1s.; 250 useful Envelopes for 9d.; 1000 extra large ditto for 4s. 6d.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Pleasanter to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, well adapted for the steel pen, and cheaper than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 25, Oxford-street.

DANCE PROGRAMMES (Perfumed); Invitation and At-Home Note-paper; Return Thanks; Bordered Note-papers; Dinner Lists; Dish and Dessert Papers; Household Papers.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street.

MONOGRAM, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES cut at half price, and remain the property of the customer. No charge for plain stamping; coloured stamping reduced to 1s. per 100. Writing-paper and Envelopes supplied to the public at wholesale prices.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street, W.

BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, WEDDING PRESENTS, CHRISTENING PRESENTS.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PURSES, pocket-books, cigar-cases, card-cases, wallets, opera-glasses, scent-bottles (double and single); pencil-cases; fans, note-cases, &c., the largest Stock in London. N.B. Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon prepayment.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-st.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for presents.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.

500 DRESSING-CASES and DRESSING-BAGS, of the best manufacture, and fitted in the most complete manner for ladies or gentlemen. DESPATCH-BOXES, INKSTANDS, ENVELOPE-CASES, BOOK-SLIDES, RETICULES, PURSES, BLOTTING-BOOKS, &c. The public supplied at TRADE PRICES.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-st., London.

2S. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pen-case, &c., can be sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom upon receipt of 28 stamps to PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

THE NEW CROQUET DEPARTMENT PARKINS and GOTTO'S. Prices 15s., 18s., 21s., 25s., 30s., 35s., 40s., and upwards, including Book of Rules. Warranted of seasoned woods, and sent carriage-paid to any railway station upon prepayment.—Parkins and Gotto, 25, Oxford-street, W.

THE FAVOURITE SET of CROQUET, Full Size, for 30s., including Book of Rules, in strong box. Sent carriage-paid to any railway station in England, upon receipt of P. O. order.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 24, Oxford-street, W.

CROQUET.—Nice Present to Children. PARKINS and GOTTO'S 15s. set of Croquet, the cheapest in London, sent into the country, carriage-paid, on receipt of P. O. order.—Parkins and Gotto, 25, Oxford-street, London, W.

CROQUET and SUMMER GAMES. An Illustrated Catalogue post-free. ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

CROQUET, 15s., 18s., 21s., 25s., 30s., 40s., 60s., 80s., complete. ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

CROQUET.—An elegantly-bound illustrated Treatise on the Game presented with every set by ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

WEDDING PRESENTS.—A Variety of Useful Elegances, at prices from 5s. to £50. ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

A FACT.—An elegant POCKET DIAL, with Gold Appendages, warranted to denote correct time, in handsome gilt case, 1s.; by post, 14 stamps.—PAUL RANSOM, 94, Brunswick-street, Haggerstone, London, N.E.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Six. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

NEW MUSIC.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR. Ballad. By S. GLOVER. Sent for 18 stamps. This truly beautiful Song, now established as one of the leading favourites of the season, may be had in the key of C for mezzo-soprano, and in E flat for tenor.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales. This celebrated Romance has already run through fourteen editions. Sent for 15 stamps.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S ROSE LEAVES. Ballad without words. Will rival the successful Romance, "Parfait Amour." Master Willie Pape will play "Rose Leaves" at his Concert. Sent for 15 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, Oxford-st.

E. L. HIME'S BROOK, for Piano (suggested by Tennyson's poem), sent for 18 stamps. E. L. Hime's Transcription of "The Bailiff's Daughter of Islington" sent for 15 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S NEW MUSIC:—
Shortly will be ready. JENNY OF THE MILL. For Piano. By Brinley Richards.
O YE TEARS! For two voices. 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps.
KATHLEEN AROON. For two voices. 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps.
O ROSY MORN! Song. By F. Abt. 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps.
THEE ONLY I LOVE. Song. By F. Abt. Free for 16 stamps.
SNOW FLAKES. For Piano. By Brinley Richards. 3s.; free for 19 stamps.
SUMMER CLOUDS. For Piano. By Brinley Richards. 3s.; free for 19 stamps.
BEATRICE. For Piano. By G. F. West. 4s.; free for 25 stamps.
THE PILGRIM'S PATH. Sacred Song. By Brinley Richards. 3s.; free for 19 stamps.
THE DAY ITS LAST GOOD-NIGHT HATH SAID. Song. By Miss M. Lindsay (Mrs. J. W. Bliss). 3s.; free for 19 stamps.
THE WREATH (Mazinghi). For Piano. By G. F. West. 3s.; free for 19 stamps.
6, New Burlington-street, London, W. Agents for India—Messrs. Burkinyoung and Co., Calcutta.

Now ready. OLLIVIER and Co., 19, Old Bond-street.
BY THE WATERS OF BABYLON. Duet for equal voices. By F. F. COURTENAY. Also, by the same author, "Una lucerna non può far dur lumi," canto popolare Romano; "Chi vive amante," arietta; "Le songe de Petrarque," Scene et Romance for Mezzo-soprano or Baritone.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. The High Price of Music. All full-price Music of every publisher forwarded immediately on publication to any part of the kingdom on receipt of stamps to half the price. Catalogues gratis. OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, London.

BUTLER'S BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS.—CORNETS, Saxhorns, Circular Vibrating Horns, Drums, Flutes, Clarinets, &c., are now in general use in Military and Amateur Bands in all parts of the Kingdom and the Colonies, and are giving universal satisfaction. Every instrument made on the premises, and guaranteed first class. Prices much below those usually charged. Cornets from £2.—Manufactory, Haymarket, London. Prices, with drawings, post-free.

BOUDOIR PIANOFORTES, Seven Octaves, Grand Action, Paris Model.—Four to be SOLD immediately, net cash, £25 10s. each.—Apply to Messrs. KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside.

MUSICAL BOXES by NICOLE FRÈRES. A Selection of Two Hundred lists of the newest descriptions. Æolian Harps, vibrating with the slightest breeze, 12s. to 26s. KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside.

TO LOVERS OF MUSIC.—The choicest Stock of Musical Boxes in London, by Stauffer, at £1 per air; Snuffboxes, 7s. per tune.—At T. W. NEILSON'S, 232, Strand (four doors west of Temple Bar).

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

MUSICAL-BOX DÉPOTS, 22, Ludgate-hill, and 56, Cheapside.—Nicole's Largest Musical Boxes, at £1 per air; Snuff-boxes, 14s. 6d. to 40s. each. Catalogues gratis and post-free on application to WALES and CO., as above.

ARCHERY.—20 per cent allowed on all orders of 20s.—C. ARMSTRONG Selling Off his large and valuable STOCK of BOWS, &c., at a great reduction for cash. Lists gratis.—174, Oxford-street, W.

ARCHERY.—The Guinea Set: A good Bow, Six Arrows, green Leather Pouch-belt, Arm-guard, Finger-tips, Tassel, Grease-cup, Bow-case, and spare string (usual prices, 35s.)—C. ARMSTRONG, 174, Oxford-street, W.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE.
Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK,
31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street).
Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

BURROWS' ALUMINIUM BINOCULARS, 10 to 18 guineas. The lightest and best Field, Race, and Yachting Glasses. Special mounts for India. Catalogues gratis. Apply to W. and J. BURROW, Malvern. London agents—Arnold, 72, Baker-street; Wales and Co., 56, Cheapside, and 22, Ludgate-hill.

NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and the RECONNOITERER GLASS, 10s. 10d., sent free.—This "Tourist's Favourite" distinctly shows small windows ten miles off, landscape at thirty miles, Jupiter's moons, &c.—The Marquis of Carmarthen: "The reconnoiterer is very good." Earl of Breadalbane: "I find it all you say, and wonderfully powerful for so very small a glass." Lord Garvagh: "Remarkably good." Rev. Lord Scarsdale "approves of it." Lord Gifford, of Ampney: "Most useful." Sir Digby Cayley: "It gives me complete satisfaction, and is wonderfully good." Major Starkey, of Wrenbury Hall: "Quite as powerful as that for which I gave £5 5s." Captain Sendey, Royal Small-arms Factory, Enfield: "I have found it effective at the 1000 yards' range." F. H. Fawkes, Esq., of Farnley: "I never before, although I have tried many, met a glass combining so much power for its size with so much clearness." The Field: "We have found it fully equal to others which had cost more than four times its price." Notes and Queries: "What tourist will now start without such an indispensable companion?" The celebrated "Hythe" Glass shows bullet-marks at 1200 yards, and men at 3½ miles. Price 31s. 6d. All the above, respectively bearing the registered trade marks, "Salom," "Reconnoiterer," and "Hythe," are only to be had direct from SALOM and CO., 98, Prince's-street, Edinburgh.
No agents of any kind anywhere.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.—OPERA-GLASSES in every variety of form and mounting, matchless for their great magnifying power and sharpness of definition, at CALLAGHAN'S, 23A, New Bond-street (corner of Conduit-street), W. Sole Agent for the celebrated Field and Opera Glasses made by Voigtländer, Vienna.

THE DERBY.—"The best and cheapest Race-Glass is the newly-constructed one manufactured by Callaghan." Price, including sling case, 50s. Post-office orders have immediate attention.—WM. CALLAGHAN, Optician, 23A, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Conduit-street).

THE £5 DAY and ASTRONOMICAL TELESCOPE.—From F. Dundas, Esq., M.P., 21, Brunswick-square, Brighton, Oct. 13, 1864:—"Gentlemen,—Since my interview with you on the subject of the telescope I have heard from Lord Rosse, and will thank you to send one similar to that supplied to his Lordship."—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians to the Government, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by post. High-power pocket telescopes, opera and field glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Weighs three ounces, and occupies less room than a card-case. Price 21s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the combined purposes of the opera, race, and general outdoor use.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

SPECTACLES.—TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including Viscount Palmerston. They give extraordinary relief to weak, dim, and defective vision. The adaptation of spectacles to imperfect vision by experienced persons is, indeed, of vital importance. One of the Firm, who has had great experience and practice, attends to this branch only.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, opposite the Bank. The best wrought SILVER SPOONS and FORKS, fiddle pattern, 7s. 4d. per ounce. Queen's pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Many other patterns recently finished, plain or highly ornamented.

Fiddle Pattern.	Oz.	£ s. d.	Queen's Pattern.	Oz.	£ s. d.
12 Table Spoons	30	11 0 0	12 Table Spoons	40	15 0 0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	9 7 6
12 Table Forks	30	11 0 0	12 Table Forks	40	15 0 0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	9 7 6
2 Gravy Spoons	10	3 13 4	2 Gravy Spoons	12	4 0 0
1 Soup Ladle	10	3 13 4	1 Soup Ladle	11	4 2 6
4 Sauce Ditto	10	3 18 4	4 Sauce Ditto	12	4 16 0
4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		1 0 0	4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		2 2 0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)		2 10 0	1 Fish Slice (pierced)		3 5 0
12 Tea Spoons	10	3 18 4	12 Tea Spoons	14	5 12 0
1 Pair Sugar Tongs		0 15 0	1 Pair Sugar Tongs		1 5 0

A pamphlet is published, with 300 Engravings, as a guide to the stock in the Show-rooms. It contains the weights and prices of silver spoons, forks, tea and coffee services and table plate, with particulars of ornamental plate for private use or presentation; also, of the best silver-plated manufactures, gold and silver watches, clocks, and jewellery. Gratis on application, and post-free to any part of the British dominions.
For the use of committees, a work is printed with large lithographic drawings of plate kept ready for presentation.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, DINING-ROOM, consisting of vases, figures, groups, candlesticks, inkstands, obelisks, inlaid tables, &c., in Alabaster, Marble, Bronze, Derbyshire Spar, &c. Imported and Manufactured by J. TENNANT (late Mawe), 149, Strand, W.C.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures. D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C.

FURNITURE, Carpets, and Bedding. See our Illustrated Furniture Catalogue, 380 engravings, with prices 30 per cent less than any other house. The most unique and complete guide ever published. Gratis, from LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO., 73 and 75, Brompton-road, Knightsbridge. Country orders carriage-free.

OAK FURNITURE, at the BELGRAVE FURNISHING COMPANY, 12, Sloane-street, Belgrave-square.—To Clergymen and Gentlemen furnishing.—A very superior Suite of Dark Oak Dining-room Furniture for sale, at the remarkably low sum of 36 guineas. The above is in admirable condition, and such a bargain as is seldom offered. Also, a very large and costly Suite, adapted for a mansion, equally cheap.

SILVER FIR BED-ROOM FURNITURE, beautifully inlaid in imitation marqueterie, 25 guineas the full suite.—The BELGRAVE FURNISHING COMPANY, 12, Sloane-street, Belgrave-square, are manufacturing, and have on view, suites of this elegant and unique furniture, at the above truly economical price. Illustrations forwarded on application.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, solicit the gentry to inspect their new Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all reception-rooms. An indispensable luxury to every lady's boudoir.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requring no calendering, is peculiarly adapted for curtains or furniture-coverings, being durable, elegant, and inexpensive. HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, have all the new patterns.

BEDSTEADS, BEDDING, and BED-ROOM FURNITURE.—An ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, with Prices, of 1000 articles, sent (free by post) on application to T. H. FILMER and SON, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, London, W.

THE NEW SHUTTER WARDROBES. Ladies should see these before deciding, at A. SEDLEY and CO.'S, Patentee of the Equilibrium Chairs so celebrated for comfort and economy, of which more than 3000 have been sold.—The Burlington Furniture Galleries, 38, Conduit-street, Bond-street, W.

GOOD TASTE NOT INCOMPATIBLE WITH ECONOMY.
UNIQUE and ELEGANT CABINET FURNITURE for Dining-room, Drawing-room, Bed-room, and Library.
CARPETS—FELT, KIDDER, BRUSSELS, VELVET, and TURKEY—adapted for cottage and mansion.
For nearly half a century the house has been famous for BLANKETS, SHEETINGS, and HOUSEHOLD LINENS.
BEDS and MATTRESSES of the best materials, manufactured on the premises, and under special supervision.
CURTAINS of every description in DAMASK, REP, and PEKIN CLOTHS.
LACE, and MUSLIN LENO CURTAINS for the Season.
SILKS, SHAWLS, MANTLES, and every variety of GENERAL and FANCY DRAPERY.
Estimates given. Contracts taken. Illustrated Catalogues free.
ATKINSON and CO., WESTMINSTER-BRIDGE-ROAD, Nos. 198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, and 210.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE. WAUGH and SON, Carpet Manufacturers, beg respectfully to acquaint the nobility, clergy, and gentry that their Show-rooms contain a choice assortment of Axminster, Velvet-pile, Brussels, and other CARPETS, in designs of Alhambra, Greek, Mediæval, and other styles, for reception-rooms, dining-rooms, halls, staircases, &c., and of superior fabrics, by which their reputation has been established. Tasteful designs for Bed-room Carpets of a cheaper description, Silk Damasks, Reps, Cretonne Chintzes, and other materials for window curtains and portières. Gilt Cornices, Looking-glasses, and other gilt decorations of elegant designs.—3 and 4, Goodge-street, and 65 and 66, Tottenham-court-road. Entrance in Goodge-street.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-paid. It contains upwards of 600 Illustrations of his illimited Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia-metal Goods, Dish Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimneypieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gaseliers; Tea Trays, Urns, and Kettles; Clocks, Table Cutlery, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-room Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices, and plans of the twenty large Show-rooms, at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard.

HORTICULTURAL TOOL WAREHOUSE, DEANE and CO., 46, King William-street, London-bridge. Deane and Co.'s NEW ILLUSTRATED PRICED CATALOGUE, gratis and post-free, of Lawn-mowers, from 50s. each; Garden Rollers, Garden Engines, Barrows, Garden Tools, Wire Netting, Garden Seats, Ornamental Wirework, Vases, &c. Estab. A.D. 1700.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The People's Printing Press, price from 25s. to £4 4s., for Letter-press, Copperplate, and Lithographic Printing. "Art of Printing," "Art of Lithography," 1s., or 13 stamps each.—D. G. BERRI, Engraver and Stampmaker to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

PATENT LOCOMOTIVE for Common Roads. Runs Eight Miles for One Penny. Orders to J. PARKER, 6, Lilford-road, Camberwell. No loss by latent heat, &c., which in railway engines is half the fuel. Partner wanted with small capital.

WENHAM LAKE ICE for Town or Country. Refrigerators, Ice-cream Machines, Saltzogenes, Freezing Powders, and everything connected with freezing, of the most reliable character. Illustrated Price-lists. Order direct from THE WENHAM LAKE ICE COMPANY, 140, STRAND, W.C.

PORT and SHERRY, 12s. per Dozen; Claret and Sauterne, 10s. per Dozen.—VICTORIA WINE COMPANY, 63, Lower Thames-street, E.C. Two samples sent for 12 stamps.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

DR. DE JONGH'S
(Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium)
LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed by the most eminent medical men throughout the world as the safest, speediest, and most effectual remedy for CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, RICKETS, INFANTILE WASTING, AND ALL SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS, is incomparably superior to every other variety.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.
DR. LETHEBY,
Medical Officer of Health to the City of London.
"It is, I believe, universally acknowledged that Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil has great therapeutic power; and, from my investigations, I have no doubt of its being a pure and unadulterated article."
DR. LAWRANCE.
Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
"I invariably prescribe Dr. de Jongh's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, feeling assured that I am recommending a genuine article, and not a manufactured compound in which the efficacy of this invaluable medicine is destroyed."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s.; labelled with his stamp and signature, WITHOUT WHICH NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE, by respectable Chemists and Druggists.
Sole Consignees,
ANSAR, HARFORD and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

KING and CO., SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, have the Largest and Cheapest Stock of the NEW SPRING SILKS, NEW SPRING and SUMMER FABRICS, SHAWLS, MANTLES, &c., all bought previous to the late advance. Patterns sent post-free to all parts of the World. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

MADE-UP DEPARTMENT. An elegant variety of Trimmed Dresses in all the latest designs, commencing at 16s. 9d., with materials and trimming for bodice.

MANTLE DEPARTMENT. Silk Mantles, Jackets, and Paletots in great variety, commencing at 1 guinea.
Light and fancy Summer Cloth Jackets and Paletots, in the newest shapes, commencing at 15s. 9d.
Opera Mantles in all the new summer fabrics.
Address to KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£35,763 BLACK SILKS, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.
Black Glacé Silks, £1 5s. 6d. the Full Dress of 14 yards.

Black Ducapes	£1 7s. 6d.	the Full Dress.
Black Gros Grains	1 10s. 6d.	"
Black Corded Silks	1 15s. 6d.	"
Black Reversible Broché Silks	1 17s. 6d.	"
Black Drap de France	2 2s. 6d.	"
Black Drap de Lyon	2 5s. 6d.	"
Widows' Silks	2 10s. 6d.	"
Richest Black Moire Antiques	£3 3s. 6d.	"

Patterns sent post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
NEW SPRING and SUMMER DRESSES at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

Spring Cashmeres	8s. 9d.	the Full Dress.
Marie Glacés	10s. 6d.	"
French Glacé Lawns	12s. 6d.	"
New French Camlets	12s. 9d.	"
Wool Grenadines	13s. 9d.	"
Marie Poplinettes	16s. 6d.	"
Broché Silk Grenadines	17s. 6d.	"
The New Cameleon Cloth	£1 5s. 6d.	"
Real Irish Poplins	£1 15s. 6d.	"
N.B.—A large Lot of Last Year's Muslins	5s. 0d.	"
The New Organdie Muslins	10s. 6d.	"

Patterns sent post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
NEW SPRING SILKS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.
First Delivery.
Striped Silks, £1 1s. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Checked Silks, £1 5s. 6d.
Tartan Silks, £1 7s. 6d.
Corded Silks, £1 10s. 6d.
Gros Grains, £1 15s. 6d.
Broché Reversible Silks, £1 17s. 6d.
New Crossbar Silks, £2 2s. 0d.
Corded Drap de France, £2 10s. 6d.
Richest Moire Antiques, £3 13s. 6d.
Patterns sent post-free.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

MILLINERY for MOURNING.—PARIS FASHIONS.—The novelties from Paris are now ready for inspection, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

PARIS FASHIONS.
MANTLES and JACKETS for MOURNING and otherwise.—The New Shapes, in elegant and graceful novelties, are now ready for inspection, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

NEW SPRING DRESSES.—PARIS FASHIONS.
The New and Beautiful Novelties are now ready for inspection at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

JUST RECEIVED FROM FRANCE,
HALF-MOURNING SILKS of New and very recherché character, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS.—Patterns free. Good useful Black Silks, from 35s. to 50s. the Dress. Superior and most enduring qualities, from 3 to 6 guineas. At PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

A NEW FABRIC.—The ROYAL BLACK SUMMER CASHMERE.—Ladies requiring a new and useful Black Dress are invited to write for patterns of this excellent material, which is exactly alike on both sides, to PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street.

UNTEARABLE
WIRE-GROUND BLACK GRENADINES and BAREGES. The improved makes introduced by PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street, excel all others for strength and beauty of finish. May be obtained by the yard, or made up into Skirts. Patterns free.
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 256 to 262, Regent-street.

FOR FAMILY MOURNING, PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street, sends free of charge to all parts of England every description of Mourning Goods for selection (with a Dressmaker, if necessary). Skirts, Mantles, Bonnets, and goods of the newest and most suitable description, ready made for instant wear, and trimmed in the most correct taste.
The best style of costume and fit is secured and the greatest saving in price, together with expedition and punctuality, by sending orders direct to
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 256 to 262, Regent-street, London. Peter Robinson's.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.
The New Spring Dresses at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
The New Spring Cambrics at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
The New Norwich Poplinettes at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
Extraordinarily good and cheap Black Silks at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
The New Arabian Glacé, all Colours, at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
The New Petticoatings at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
Black Lace Shawls, 15s. 6d., worth 25s. Baker and Crisp's.
Sample free.
Last Year's Muslins, Barèges, Grenadines, &c., Half price.
Baker and Crisp's, 198, Regent-street (nearly opposite Conduit-street), London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.

Last year's Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks at	£1 5s. 6d.	Full Dress.
The New Spring Silks	£1 13s. 6d.	"
The New Rich Fancy French Silks	£2 2s. 0d.	"

Neat, useful, and recherché Silks for Young Ladies, from £1 7s. 6d. Full Dress.
198, Regent-street, London.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE, London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

THE "ARIEL" MANTLE, SHAWL, and SWISS MANTILLA.—These elegant Novelties for the present Season can be purchased only of FARMER and ROGERS, 171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street. India, China, French, Paisley, Norwich, and Fancy Shawls, from 1 guinea to 200 guineas.

BONNETS, ONE GUINEA, at Mrs. AXFORD'S, 51, Maddox-street, Bond-street, Milliner and Dressmaker. Wedding orders, outfits, and country orders punctually attended to.

FORD'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LIST, post-free.—Intending purchasers, who cannot favour us with a call, will find it of great assistance. It contains over forty drawings of shirts, shirt-collars, &c. All the new fashions are to be found in it.—R. Ford and Co., 38, Poultry, E.C.

FORD'S EUREKA COLOURED SHIRTS reduced to Six for 31s. 6d. Superior quality, and made expressly to measure; the new patterns to select from sent post-free.—R. Ford and Co., 38, Poultry, E.C.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, at moderate prices. Flannel Shirts and Dressing-gowns.
CAPPER and WATERS, 26, Regent-street, London, S.W.

LYONS LEVANTINE, a perfectly new Twilled Silk, made expressly to our order, and very suitable for Ladies' Morning Costumes, in most brilliant colours, £2 6s. 6d. the Full Dress, 14 yards, 25 in. wide; or any length cut.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS FOULARDS of the most improved manufacture, the wear of which cannot be surpassed. The most fashionable article for the present season for ladies' morning suits, including great variety of style.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

CHÉNÉ SILKS.
Now selling, 100 Pieces of rich French Chénés, £2 19s. 6d., or any length cut.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH FIGURED MOIRE ANTIQUES, 3½ and 4½ guineas the Full Dress of 14 yards. 27 inches wide. Real Indian Tussores for Seaside Wear.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR SPRING.
New Colours in Rich Plain Silks, including our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, from £2 19s. 6d. to 5 guineas extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Just Imported,
5000 SILK DRESSES, made expressly to our order for this season, including every style for present fashion, from £1 15s. 6d. to 10 guineas extra Full Dress. Many of the above have been produced in new designs expressly for young ladies' wear.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Just purchased from France,
45 PS. MOZAMBIQUE
(otherwise Wool Grenadines, Silk Broché),
the whole of which are now being sold at 12s. 6d. the Full Dress, in every variety of style.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Also on Sale a very large Purchase of
MEXICAN CLOTH DRESSES, consisting of Chenie grounds with Silk embroidery. In all colours, 21s. the extra Full Dress, being one half their value.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE
RICH SILK GRENADINES, adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses, 18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALL THE CHOICE DESIGNS IN
NEW ORGANDIE MUSLINS, British, French, and Swiss Printing, 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d., 12s. 6d. to 35s. the extra Full Dress.
An immense variety of patterns post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF
LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS. Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new.
An endless variety of patterns (at the reduced price) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Now ready, all the New Patterns in
PRINTS, BRILLIANTS, and PIQUES, for Ladies' Morning Dresses.
An endless variety of patterns post-free.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

EVERY NEW COLOUR IN THE
ARABIAN GLACÉS, for Ladies' Dresses and Jackets complete.
A most useful and desirable fabric either for Walking or Travelling Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A Choice Assortment of the
NEW PRINTED ARABIAN GLACÉS, in every variety of style, either in white or coloured grounds from 14s. 6d. to 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

GINGHAMS and COLOURED LAWNS, for Ladies' travelling, morning, and seaside Dresses, 12s. 6d. the Dress, in plain colours, checks or stripes. A large collection of Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE MOST DECIDED NOVELTY FOR THIS SPRING IS THE
SILK CRÊPE MEXICAN, a most elegant and useful fabric. In all the new colours, 28s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A CAREFULLY SELECTED VARIETY OF
CHEAP SPRING DRESSES, A new series of colours in the Plain Mexican Cloth, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Also Striped, Checked, and Chéné ditto, 12s. 6d. to 18s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NEW SPRING PETTICOATS. A choice assortment made, unmade, and by the yard. New French and Sicilian Lawns, for Morning Dresses, in Plain, Striped, and Checked, all colours, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THIS SEASON'S FASHIONS IN DRESS. LADIES and the PUBLIC visiting London are respectfully invited to inspect our STOCK of SPRING PURCHASES, consisting of all the LATEST NOVELTIES IN DRESS, of British and Foreign Manufacture.
RICH BLACK GLACES, GRO GRAINS, and DUCAPES, of the Best Manufactures.
FANCY SILKS in all the new Styles and Colours.
BONNET GLACES, SATINS, and TERRYS, in the newest Shades.
All the LATEST FASHIONS in JACKETS and MANTLES for Spring Wear.
Paisley, Cashmere, and Lace SHAWLS in all the latest Designs.
NEW POPELINES, Plain and Checked, 10s. 9d. and 12s. 9d. (much under the usual price).
Ribbons, Gloves, Hosiery, Trimmings, Haberdashery, Parasols, Ties, &c.
FAMILY AND COMPLIMENTARY MOURNING.
Drapers, Milliners, and Dressmakers supplied with cut lengths at Trade Price.
Matching Orders carefully and promptly attended to.
Patterns post-free.
Close on Saturdays at Five o'Clock.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., Wholesale and Retail Silkmercers, Drapers, &c., 77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard.

SILKS.—Paris taste and fashion have declared Black and White, and White and Black, to be the reigning colours in dress for the present season.
Messrs. Jay have, in consequence, imported the most elegant patterns in these varieties; and they can now supply their patrons and the public with the finest materials for such Dresses.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

By Appointment to the Queen, her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, and H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge.
MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY would respectfully announce that great saving may be made by purchasing Mourning at their Establishment, the Stock of Family Mourning being the largest in Europe. Mourning Costume, of every description, is kept ready made, and can be forwarded—town or country—at a moment's notice. The most reasonable prices are charged, and the wear of every article guaranteed.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, Regent-street, near the Circus.
JAYS'.

MILLINERY FASHIONS.—Paris taste has not yet decided on the particular Bonnet Shape of the season. A new style, with very high crown, named the Empire, is much in vogue; whilst the more quiet and smaller shapes are worn by many ladies of distinction. The Manager of the Millinery Department at Messrs. JAYS' has just returned, after her second visit to Paris this season, with the latest Novelties in French Millinery.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

TO MOTHERS AND INVALIDS. ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, of superior make and construction, for debility, corpulency, pregnancy, &c. Directions for self-measurement and prices sent free.—ELAM, 196, Oxford-street.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. G. HYAM, 10, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash instantly remitted. Established 1820.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE. Produced at the Grand Opera of Paris, with the greatest possible success. Already published, the whole of the vocal music, with French words.
The Overture for Pianoforte, Solo, or Duet .. 4s.
Grand Indian March .. .. 4s.
Religious March .. .. 3s.
Bouquet de Melodies. By Cramer .. .. .. 5s.
The Italian and English versions are in the press, together with Pianoforte arrangements by Kuhe, Osborne, Richards, &c.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by E. F. RIMBAULT. Price 1s. each.
No. 1. The Guards' Waltz. | No. 4. The Hunt Quadrille.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz. | No. 5. The Jockey Galop.
No. 3. The Orpheus Galop. | No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS.

The Lost Star	Wallace	3s. 0d.
The Sails are Spread	Brinley Richards	2s. 6d.
The Cottage Window	G. Russell	2s. 6d.
Syr Tankarde	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
White-Wings	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
Again I wander	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
I will not wander	Schumann	2s. 6d.
My lost youth	Walter Maynard	2s. 6d.
Part with forgiveness	Florence	2s. 6d.
The Cloister'd Nun	Louis Emanuel	2s. 6d.
Cantilène (for two voices)	Gounod	2s. 6d.
In Youth's Season	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Versar nel mio cor	Gounod	2s. 0d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new Edition of this justly celebrated work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," including the Soldiers' Chorus, Valse, &c.; "The Guards' Waltz," and numerous other airs, arranged as progressive exercises, thus rendering it the cheapest and best Tutor extant. Price 4s., post-free.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S BROOKLET. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S GRAZIELLA. Romance Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "TWO BUDS." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S "ROLAND." A celebrated French War Song. Transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S TWO HUNGARIAN MELODIES for the Pianoforte.
No. 1. ELEGY. Price 2s. 6d.
No. 2. THE GIPSIES' MARCH. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SERA. Venetian Gondola Song, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

J. F. BARNETT'S PASTORAL SCENE. A characteristic Piece for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 6 are now ready, price 3s. each; or the six numbers in one volume, bound in cloth, 12s. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, played by the Composer with immense success. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Stabat Mater"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50 New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY—Handel's celebrated Song, sung by Santley—transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE VALSE. On Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE QUADRILLE. A new and charming Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE POLKA. On Airs from Offenbach's Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. A new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will eventually become as popular as the celebrated "Guards' Waltz," by the same Composer. Price 4s., Solo or Duet. Illustrated by Lynch. Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. A new Quadrille on favourite Nautical Melodies. Arranged by D. GODFREY, Composer of the "Guards'" and "Mabel" Waltzes. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MILL-GROVE WALTZ. A new Waltz by GERALD STANLEY (Composer of the "Woodland Whispers Waltz"). Illustrated. Price 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARGUERITE WALTZ. On favourite Airs from Gounod's "Faust." By A. F. GODFREY, B. M. Coldstream Guards. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's popular Opera, "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. GODFREY, Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 4s. Illustrated.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop, from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s. Illustrated. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' QUADRILLE. By the Composer of The Guards' Waltz. Just published, a new Quadrille on Popular Marches of the Brigade of Guards. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played everywhere with the greatest success. Price (Solo or Duet) 4s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Military Band, 15s.; Brass Band, 7s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—Now ready, the whole of the Music from Meyerbeer's last great work, with French words. Italian and English Editions are in the press. The Opera complete, in French, price 20s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MELVIL CASTLE. Old Scotch Ballad. Newly arranged by Mrs. CAMPBELL, of Drimnamuchloch. "Willie's gane to Melvil Castle, boots and spurs, an a',
To bid farewell to the leddies fair, afore he gaed awa."
Price 2s. 6d. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

New Edition of

MARION'S SONG by CLARIBEL. This highly-popular Song will in future be published exclusively by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

FOR OPEN AIR SINGING.

MENDELSSOHN'S 26 FOUR-PART SONGS (Op. 41, 48, 49, 50), with English words complete, price 1s., cloth gilt. Also, for Choral Societies, in 12 Numbers, One Penny each.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW SONG.

THE MESSAGE OF LOVE. Valse Ariette. 3s. Also, with Italian words, "La Messaggier a d'Amore." 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S SCOTCH PIECES.
Souvenirs d'Edinburgh, 6th Edition. 4s.
Souvenirs d'Ecosse. 12th Edition. 4s.
Auld Robin Gray and Bonnie Dundee. 4th Edition. 4s.
Annie Laurie. 2nd Edition. 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE AUTHOR OF "SALOPIA."

HIBERNIA. By Miss HAWLEY. A new, fanciful, and elegant transcription of "The Last Rose of Summer," for the Pianoforte. Published this day. Price 3s. Also, by the same Author,
SALOPIA. "Home, Sweet Home." (20th Edition.) 2s. 6d.
IVANHOE. "Auld Robin Grey." (3rd Edition.) 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MOZART'S SONATAS, 10s. 6d. BOOSEY and CO.'S new and complete Edition, printed from newly-engraved plates, and edited by W. Dorrell, Esq., of the Royal Academy of Music. In one vol., paper cover, price 10s. 6d. Also, with Memoir and Portrait of Mozart, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt, price 16s.; or, half morocco, gilt edges, price 18s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEYS' NATIONAL GLEE-BOOK contains Sixty of the most celebrated Glees, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, price 2s. 6d.; or, in crimson cloth, gilt edges, 4s. 6d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

HENRY SMART'S IMPERIAL MASS of HAYDN (No. 3, in D), arranged in a complete form for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. Published this day.
Also, uniform with the above,
HENRY SMART'S STABAT MATER (of Rossini). 3s.
HENRY SMART'S TWELFTH MASS (of Mozart). 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MUSICAL PRESENTATION LIBRARY, Holles-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bound works excepted).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

A GEM FOR THE PIANO.

FLEETING THOUGHTS, by IUCHO, price 3s., is charming, and daily acquiring popularity.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW CHRISTY SONG.

THE BEAUTIFUL DAISY, by SHIRLEY, price 2s. 6d. "This song is full of melody, and has the most charming chorus we have ever listened to."—Review.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG.

THE WEEPIN' WILLER; or, The Miller's Daughter, price 2s. 6d., is the best comic song published.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A MOST AMUSING COMIC SONG.

HAVE YOU SEEN HER LATELY. Price 2s. 6d. Sung by Albert Steele.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT THE ADELPHI.

J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS.
Bob Simmons's Courtship .. .. .. 3s.
He, She, and the Postman .. .. .. 3s.
A Norrible Tale .. .. 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A COMIC VERSION OF

THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by BALFE, price 3s., causes shouts of laughter.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "The Pilgrim of Love," "My Pretty Page," "So Early in de Morning," "The Cure," and other popular Airs. A real merry set. No dance programme complete without them. Always redemanded.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE RAGE OF THE SEASON.

COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER WALTZ. 4s. With a superb Illustration in Colours.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. Price 3s. This celebrated Galop eclipses all the others, and is the reigning favourite.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE.

COOTE'S ORPHÉE VALSE, price 4s., on Airs from Offenbach's beautiful Opera.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Watercresses," "Have you seen the Ghost?" "Polly Perkins," &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S NEW CALEDONIANS, with the Figures. Price 4s. One of the best quadrilles ever published by this popular dance composer, and will be sure to take its place with the celebrated Cure Lancers by the same Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

PLAYED AT MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE on the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Bedford, comprising "He, She, and the Postman," "Jolly Nose," "The Whistling Song," "Married on Wed-nes-day," and "A Norrible Tale." Price 4s.
"Enthusiastically received at Alfred Mellon's Concerts, and proved a most brilliant success."—Vide Times.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE QUADRILLE OF THE SEASON.

COOTE'S LARA QUADRILLE. Illustrated. Solo, 4s.; Duet, 4s. Post-free at half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE VALSE OF THE SEASON.

COOTE'S LARA VALSE. Illustrated. Solo, 4s.; Duet, 4s. Post-free at half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE ARAB SONG from LARA. "The gem of the opera." Sung by Miss Louisa Pyne. BRINLEY RICHARDS'S Transcription of "The Arab Song" for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. each. Half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

SENSATION MAD.—Mr. Sothern's Comic Song in "The Woman in Mauve." Written by H. J. Byron. Illustrated. Price 3s. Post-free for 19 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

BEN È RIDICOLO.—The favourite Italian Canzone, by RANDEGGER. Sung by the principal Vocalists and invariably encored. In E for Contralto; in G for Soprano. Price 3s.; post-free for 19 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MISS C. M. E. OLIVER'S NEW SONG, LADYBIRD, LADYBIRD, FLY UPON ME! Price 2s. 6d.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

NEW PIANOFORTE MUSIC. The following are some of the most popular Pianoforte Pieces lately published by EWER and CO.

BLUMNER, S.—Am Meer. Fantasiestück (dedicated to her Royal Highness the Princess Mary of Cambridge)	4s. 0d.
COENEN, W.—Chant du Barde. Morceau de Concert	4s. 0d.
Le Papillon au reveil. Fantasie	4s. 0d.
HARDISTY, J. E.—Abendroth. 3s.; Sonnenaufgang	3s. 0d.
KORNATZKY, F.—Le reveil des oiseaux. Improvisation brillante	4s. 0d.
LEUPOLD, F.—Soleil couchant. Nocturne	3s. 0d.
LISZT, F.—Ave Maria (d'Arcadelt)	3s. 0d.
Hallelujah (d'Arcadelt)	4s. 0d.
O'LEARY, ARTHUR.—L'Adieu. Chanson allemande	3s. 0d.
" Mendelssohn's "Hear my Prayer," transcribed	3s. 0d.
" Schumann's "Fröhlicher Landmann," transcribed	3s. 0d.
SCHULTHES, W.—La Regata, 4s.; Esmeralda	4s. 0d.

SPINDLER, F.—Chanson populaire, 4s.; Le Carillon, 3s.; Une feuille de rose, 3s.; Un conte de fées, 3s.; Valse aerienne, 3s.; Une rose sans épines, 4s.
WOLLENHAUPT, H. A.—Marche hongroise, 3s.; Valse héroique, 4s.; Caprice aérien, 4s.; Un fil de perles, 4s.; Valse gracieuse, 4s.
Sold by all Musicsellers in town or country.
London: EWER and Co., Musical Library, 87, Regent-street.

HATTON'S MOST SUCCESSFUL NEW SONG.

FAIR AND FALSE. 2s. 6d. Post-free for sixteen stamps.
EWER and Co.'s Musical Library, 87, Regent-street, London.

R. COOTE'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.
Jolly Dogs Quadrilles.
Flower of the Vale Waltzes.
Orpheus Galop.
Golden Waves Waltz.
All beautifully illustrated. Solos, Duets, or Septets, 24 stamps, post-free. D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place, W.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S NEWEST SONGS.
I vow'd that I never would leave her.
Ye Blyghted Barber.
Young Widow Brown.
It's a sort of thing we read about.
The German Band.
Each 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place, W.

JOLLY DOGS.—"We are all Jolly Dogs; Such Jolly Dogs are we." The great convivial Song, sung by the great Vance at the Crystal Palace. Free for 15 stamps.
D'ALCORN, 8, Rathbone-place, W.

THEY LAID MY LITTLE DARLING DOWN. Written by G. D. Phillips. Composed by R. COOTE. Sung by the Christy Minstrels. Free for 15 stamps. A beautiful plaintive ballad.—D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place, W.

THE STREETS OF LONDON QUADRILLES. By C. HALL. Played at the Princess's Theatre. Solo or Duet, 24 stamps. Illustrated with a view of the Charing-cross Scene by Moonlight.—D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place, W.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted for hot climates, and to keep well in tune, from Two guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S HARMONIUMS with DAWES'S PATENT MELODY ATTACHMENT.
By the addition of this ingenious but simple piece of mechanism placed in the interior of a Harmonium, and attached by means of an ordinary stop, and for which Letters Patent have been taken out by Mr. Dawes, the highest note of any chord played on the keyboard is made to predominate with greater power than the harmony, and thus a pure and distinct melody stands out prominently, as if produced by another instrument, without any extra effort on the part of the performer, giving a life and brilliancy to the Harmonium that has never before been realised.
For leading public worship especially the value of this stop cannot be over-estimated.
Boosey and Co., foreseeing that it is likely to produce a complete revolution in the Harmonium, have obtained a license from the patentee to attach this stop to any of their Instruments at a small extra cost, commencing with the School or ten-guinea Harmonium. They can also apply it to almost any Instrument already in use.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, London.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANO, price 17 guineas, in a walnut case, full compass. This instrument is confidently recommended as the best cheap piano before the public. The touch and tone are alike excellent, and the workmanship is of the best description.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO has the Check Action, and is in a highly-finished elegant walnut case, with every modern improvement. The touch is elastic, and the tone of that pure rich quality that especially distinguishes first-class English pianos.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage English Piano, and no better can be desired. It is in a richly ornamented case, has the registered keyboard, as well as the new grand compass of seven octaves.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MUSICAL BOXES.—BOOSEY and CO. beg to announce the arrival of a large supply of MUSICAL BOXES from the celebrated Nicole, of Geneva, made expressly to their order, and containing all the newest and most popular music of the day, including selections from "Faust," "Mirella," &c. Lists upon application.—24, Holles-street, W.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded).—A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Yachts, Boudoirs, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 26 guineas. A great variety may be seen at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the pure English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as the above makers', and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in every respect to other instruments at 50 guineas, price 35 guineas; in walnut, 40 guineas.
Chappell and Co. 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side (and hired with option of purchase) at the new Show-rooms of
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. Messrs. Chappell strongly recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte at or about the same price, whether new or secondhand.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 60 guineas; other varieties at 25 and 35 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues and Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and in oak case. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak case, 32 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

A BAZAAR, in Aid of the Funds for REBUILDING WESTMINSTER CHAPEL (Rev. Samuel Martin, Pastor), will be held in WILLIS'S ROOMS, King-street, St. James's, on SATURDAY, MONDAY, and TUESDAY, MAY 13, 15, and 16. Saturday, Two Shillings; after Five o'Clock, One Shilling. Monday and Tuesday, One Shilling; after Six o'Clock, Sixpence. Juvenile Tickets, half price. Doors open, on Saturday, at One o'Clock, and on Monday and Tuesday, at Twelve o'Clock.

PARIS.—GALLERY of the DUC DE MORNY.
The SALE of the COLLECTION of
ANCIENT AND MODERN PAINTINGS,
the property of the late Duc De Morny,
consisting of the masterpieces of the first painters of the Flemish, Dutch, French, and Spanish schools, will take place in PARIS, at the Palace of the Presidency of the Legislative Body, on WEDNESDAY, the 31st of MAY; Thursday, the 1st, Friday, the 2nd; and Saturday, the 3rd, of June, 1865.
The Sale of the important
COLLECTION OF OBJECTS OF ART AND CURIOSITIES,
consisting of porcelain, bronze ornaments, enamels in frames, jade, rock crystal, and other valuable objects from China and Japan, several ancient snuffboxes of the reigns of Louis XV. and Louis XVI., porphyry vases, marble sculpture, furniture, &c., will also take place at said Palace of the Presidency, on TUESDAY, the 6th, Wednesday, the 7th, Thursday, the 8th, Friday, the 9th, Saturday, the 10th, and Monday, the 12th, of JUNE, at Two o'Clock precisely.
General Exhibition:—
Private, on Thursday, the 25th, Friday, the 26th, and Saturday, the 27th, of May.
Public, on Sunday, the 28th, and Monday, the 29th, of May, from One to Five o'Clock.
Catalogues may be obtained, from the 4th of May inst., in Paris, of—
M. Charles Pillet, the Auctioneer, 11, Rue de Choiseul;
M. Eugène Escribe, Auctioneer, 217, Rue St. Honoré;
M. Ferdinand Laneuville, Appraiser, 73, Rue Neuve des Mathurins;
M. Horsin Déon, Appraiser, 1, Rue Chabanais;
M. Francis Petit, Appraiser, 43, Rue de Provence;
M. Mannheim, Appraiser, 10, Rue de la Paix;
M. Roussel, 20, Rue de Victoire;
M. Malinet, Dealer in Curiosities, 25, Quai Voltaire
and in London of
Mr. Colnaghi, 14, Pall-mall East;
Mr. Webb, 22, Cork-street, Burlington-gardens;
Mr. Durlacher, 113, New Bond-street;
Mr. Annoot, 16, Old Bond-street;
Mr. Davis, 101, New Bond-street; or of
Mr. Gambart, 120, Pall-mall.

ARCHERY PRIZES, Fancy-Fair and Bazaar Novelties.—EDWARDS and JONES beg to call the attention of the Nobility, Clergy, and Gentry to their extensive and varied Stock of Attractive Novelties suitable for the above purposes, and to which fresh novelties are being daily added.
161, Regent-street, W., London.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., Silversmiths, Cutlers, &c., pre-eminent for their
Electro-Silver Plate, for Dinner à la Russe,
Electro-Silver Plate suitable for Presentation,
Electro-Silver Christening, Wedding, and Birthday Presents,
Sterling Silver ditto ditto,
Sterling Silver Volunteer and Rifle Prizes,
Electro-Silver ditto ditto,
Electro-Silver Cups and Tankards,
Sterling Silver Cups and Tankards,
Electro-Silver Tea and Coffee Services,
Electro-Silver Side Dishes and Dish Covers,
Electro-Silver Breakfast, Luncheon, and Dinner Cruets,
Electro-Silver Egg Frames,
Electro-Silver Fish-eating Knives and Forks,
Electro-Silver Fish Carvers, in case,
Electro-Silver Dessert Knives and Forks, in cases,
Table Knives of unsurpassed excellence,
Canteen-Cases completely fitted for Officers,
Plate Chests for partial or entire Outfits.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory—The Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.
Illustrated Catalogues and priced list free on application.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Celebrated DRESSING CASES } completely fitted with every article DRESSING BAGS } of convenience and luxury.
DESPATCH BOXES, fitted with Cutlery and Stationery.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and at 71 and 72, Cornhill.

DINNER, DESSERT, BREAKFAST, TEA, and TOILET SERVICES.—A large assortment of new and good patterns. Also a beautiful variety of every description of Cut Table Glass. The stock is well selected, and admirably suited for parties furnishing to choose from.
First-class quality, superior taste, low prices.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

GARDNERS' LAMPS ARE THE BEST.—MODERATOR and PARAFFIN TABLE LAMPS, from 5s. 6d. each. Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality. Illustrated Catalogues post-free.—Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (4 doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

OSLER'S Crystal Glass CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c.
Glass Dinner Services, for 12 persons, from £7 15s.
Glass Dessert Services, for 12 persons, from £2.
All articles marked in plain figures.
Ornamental Glass, English and Foreign, suitable for presents.
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
London—Show-rooms, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Show-rooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Moderator Lamps, in Bronze, Ormolu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Vases, and other ornaments.—OSLER, 45, Oxford-street, W.

J. MAPLE and CO.'s CHIMNEY-GLASSES, in best French Plates and double gilt. The following is a list of prices:—

Size of Plate.	Outside Measure of Frame.	Price.
40 by 30 inches	50 inches wide by 39 inches high	£2 12s.
40 by 36 inches	50 inches high by 45 inches wide	3 15s.
50 by 40 inches	63 inches high by 52 inches wide	4 15s.
60 by 50 inches	74 inches high by 66 inches wide	8 8s.

Larger sizes in proportion. Among which are several handsome pairs, 7 ft. 6 in. by 6 ft., price 15 guineas each; girandoles, from 14s. 9d. An Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
Entrance, 145, Tottenham-court-road.

J. MAPLE and CO.'S FIRST-CLASS FURNITURE. Families who study economy with durability and elegance should visit this establishment before giving their orders; it will save them much time, trouble, and expense. A ten-roomed house furnished complete in twenty-four hours. An illustrated priced catalogue sent post-free on application.
Entrance, 145, Tottenham-court-road.

J. MAPLE and CO. for CARPETS! CARPETS!!
Stout Brussels for Bed-rooms, 2s. 4½d. per yard.
Good Handsome Brussels, 3s. 6d. per yard.
Very choice ditto, new in design, 4s. to 4s. 9d. per yard.
500 pieces of Old Patterns, 2s. 11d. per yard.
Velvet, Axminster, and Turkey Carpets.
145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road;
and 1 to 12, Tottenham-place, London.

CRETONNE, the French Chintz, requires no calendering, is both elegant and serviceable.—J. MAPLE and CO. have an immense stock of this fashionable material, suitable for Curtains or Covering for Sofas, Chairs, &c., at moderate prices.

DRAWING and DINING ROOM FURNITURE.—A walnut suite in velvet, 13 guineas; a walnut suite in rich figured silk satin, 20 guineas; a Spanish mahogany suite, 28 guineas; a suite in solid oak, 33 to 37 guineas; bedroom suite in polished white deal, for £8 14s. 6d.—N.B. Chimney-glasses, plate 50 by 40 inches, 4 guineas to 5 guineas.—ROBERT FISHER and CO., Wholesale and Retail Cabinetmakers, 32, Finsbury-place North, two doors from Finsbury-square.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE IVY LEAVES, for ornamenting Chimney-glasses. 18 stamps per set of 72 slips. Tissue for Stove Aprons, 8 stamps per packet; 6 for 40 stamps.—R. PETERS, Tovil, Maidstone.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING MACHINES.—Prize Medal 1862.—These machines, made by the original Patentees and Introducers of the Invention, stand foremost and unrivalled for all practical purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with exceeding rapidity, regularity, and durability, and give no trouble. The stitching (alike on both sides of the material) is without cord or ridge, and the thread cannot be pulled out.—66, Newgate-street, and Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. One hundred thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

LORD WODEHOUSE, THE LORD LIEUTENANT OF IRELAND.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE LORD LIEUTENANT OF IRELAND.

The Right Hon. John, third Baron Wodehouse, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, was born in 1826, and succeeded his grandfather, the second Baron Wodehouse, in 1846. He was educated at Eton and at Christ Church, Oxford, where he took honours of the first class in classics. At the formation of the Aberdeen Government, in 1852, Lord Wodehouse was appointed Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and served in that office, under the Earl of Clarendon, until April, 1856, when he accepted the post of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of Russia at the conclusion of the Crimean War. In this Embassy he continued until March, 1858. During the interval which occurred between Lord Palmerston's first and second Administration, while Lord Derby's Government was in power, he remained unemployed; but in June, 1859, he returned to his former office of Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and held it until July, 1861; when, Lord John Russell, the Foreign Secretary, having been raised to the Peerage, it was considered desirable that the Foreign Department should be represented in the House of Commons; and Lord Wodehouse therefore vacated his place, which was filled up by the appointment of Mr. Layard. In 1863 he undertook the duty of Envoy to the Court of Denmark, having the conduct of a special mission which was sent to negotiate, or to advise, or to give a pledge of support to King Christian in his contest with the allied powers of Austria and Prussia on the Schleswig-Holstein question.

Soon after his return the death of Sir George Lewis caused a reconstruction of the War Department. Earl De Grey and Ripon, who then held the under secretaryship for India, was appointed Secretary for War, and Lord Wodehouse, accepting the place which thus became vacant, represented the Indian Department in the House of Peers. He had already given proofs, not only of much administrative ability, but of high and statesmanlike qualities, though, from his readiness to postpone his own personal claims to the convenience of those with whom he was politically associated, he had as yet held only subordinate offices in the Home Government. On the death of the Earl of Carlisle he was generally designated as the most fitting person to succeed to the lord lieutenancy of Ireland. In this opinion it seems the Prime Minister concurred, for, in October, 1864, Lord Wodehouse was appointed to the Irish viceroyalty. It is generally agreed that he has shown no small aptitude for the difficult and delicate position which he now occupies. It may be remarked that Lord Wodehouse married, in 1847, a lady of Irish birth and extraction—the eldest daughter and coheiress of the third Earl of Clare.

The Portrait of his Excellency is engraved, in this number of our Journal, from a photograph taken expressly for the Illustrated London News.

GLADIATEUR, THE WINNER OF THE TWO THOUSAND STAKES AT NEWMARKET.

There was a time when the "French invasion" was only to be feared at Goodwood. When Beggarman had defeated Lanercost, our neighbours yearned for more victories over the Cup course, where the English Fleur de Lis had won twice in succession, even in her "aged" days; and Jouvence, Baroncino, Monarque, and Dollar, all rewarded them for their spirit. "The Confederacy" became a "great fact." Fille de l'Air carried their colours in most redoubtable style for the Oaks, at Epsom; and now Gladiateur has enrolled them in that Two Thousand list which, in Smolensko's, Cadland's, Bay Middleton's, Cotherstone's, Sir Tatton Sykes's, Stockwell's, The Marquis's, West Australian's, and Macaroni's case, was the forerunner of a Derby or a St. Leger, or both. Gladiateur, by Monarque out of Miss Gladiator, came out last year on the Cesarewitch day and won the Clearwell Stakes of £980 easily by a length, Joker and Pantaloon and Reginella running him home, in a field of thirteen. In the Prendergast Stakes, at the same meeting, he confirmed his running with Pantaloon, and finished a dead heat for third [at equal weights with Longdown, Bedminster, who received 6 lb., and Siberia 5 lb., from him, finishing first and second. He then carried a 6 lb. penalty in the Criterion Stakes; and was nowhere to Chattanooga, in a field of fifteen. Despite of these defeats and the veiled tactics of the stable, he was very much fancied by a few, and took his place among the eighteen at the Rowley milepost, with only 7 to 1 against him. Still, the stable were not great winners, although the stakes are a £5100 consoler; and Lord Stamford, Mr. Naylor, and most of the Newmarket stables are said to have done best. It was a great race between five at The Bushes; but he headed Zambesi in the bottom; then Liddington's windpipe felt its wonted roar; Breadalbane was too full of flesh to face that hill, which so many have shirked; and Harry Grimshaw, after pulling his colt well together and steadying him, stalled off Aldcroft's rush on Archimedes cleverly, in the last stride, by a neck. "The Frenchman" is a hunter-looking horse, of sixteen one, with great depth of girth, and splendid shoulders, and a very nice head set on a strong neck, slack behind the saddle, very wide in the hips, and rather long from the hock to the ground. He has two suspicious fetlock joints, which arose from blows when a foal, but the stable say they are no detriment to him in his work. He is entered in the Derby, St. Leger, Newmarket Derby, Drawing-room Stakes, Bentinck Memorial, Great Yorkshire Stakes, Doncaster Stakes, and the Grand Prize of Paris.

EMBARKATION OF THE BODY OF THE CZAREWITCH AT VILLAFRANCA.

The ceremonies which attended the removal of the body of the Russian Crown Prince from Nice, where he died, and its embarkation, at Villafranca, on board the Russian frigate which was to convey it to St. Petersburg, were described in our last Number. The Illustration we now give of the scene of the embarkation at Villafranca, on Saturday, the 29th ult., is supplied by Messrs. Ghémar and Ferret, photographers, of Nice. The coffin of the Czarewitch is borne along in a state barge furnished with a catafalque and other funereal trappings; it is preceded by another barge, in which are the Russian clergy, employed in chanting the service for the dead; while the Emperor Alexander, with some members of the Imperial family and Court, has gone before, and is approaching the side of the ship, where the Empress is already waiting the arrival of this mournful cortége. At the same time, the other ships of war lying in the roads of Villafranca, and the batteries of the fortress shown in this view, saluted with all their guns. The Russian frigate sailed from Villafranca that day on her voyage to the Baltic, while the Emperor and Empress proceeded to Darmstadt, where they will remain in seclusion for a month, returning to St. Petersburg in time for the final ceremony of the interment, which will take place in the cathedral of that city.

THE MOURNING FOR PRESIDENT LINCOLN IN BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

The aspect of the principal streets in the city of New York for two or three days after the news of the death of President Lincoln was full of signs of public grief and consternation. Our New York correspondent sends a sketch of the appearance of Broadway on the 18th ult., which is reproduced in our Engraving. He observes that this sad scene afforded a striking contrast to that which had been displayed in the same city immediately before. "For several days previously," he says, "New York had presented quite a carnival appearance; for the surrender of Lee with his army was hailed as the harbinger of peace, which has so long been earnestly desired by the mass of the people. The great thoroughfares of the city were all a-flutter with flags, and one or two days of this week were to have been devoted to the celebration of the recent successes with which the Federal arms had been crowned. But Easter Sunday dawned upon a city dark and sepulchral as a city of the dead. Scarce a house in it but has been draped in the deepest mourning since three days ago, when the news of the great national calamity fell like a thunderbolt upon the whole American community. Long festoons of black and white muslin are drooping sadly everywhere, and even the gay show-cases that stand outside the shop doors are dressed with funereal rosettes. Street boys are selling little mourning badges, consisting of ambrotype likenesses of the murdered chief magistrate, tied up with knots of crape." Another correspondent says "there still seems no desire to resume business until after the funeral of the lamented President. Each hour increases the gloomy appearance of the city. In every street the houses are decked with crape, with portraits of Mr. Lincoln hung about with garlands entwined with black, while in many places huge black crosses are in the windows of houses which remain closed all day, seemingly deserted. It is inexpressibly sad, this outward show of grief; while that it is sincere is proved by the gloomy looks, the tearful eyes, of those who are to be met in the streets. In many places the decorations, though sombre, are exceedingly picturesque, the dark tones being relieved by the bright red and blue of the national colours entwined with crape. The public buildings are many of them hung from dome to basement with long folds of black cloth disposed most artistically; and, as these buildings are of white marble, the effect may be imagined. On Broadway some of the stores are thus decorated, while others have huge palls hanging from the roof to the street. All is dark, gloomy, grand. The expression of grief is, I dare assert, the most universal, most sincere, most impressive ever witnessed."

THE NEW ZEALAND INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

The New Zealand Industrial Exhibition at Dunedin, the capital city of the province of Otago, was opened on the 12th of January, by Mr. Hyde Harris, the Superintendent of that province. Sir George Grey, the Governor of New Zealand, was not able to be present on this occasion; but he will probably visit Otago before the Exhibition is closed. This province, of all the settlements in New Zealand, has made the most rapid progress in wealth and population. Dunedin was little more than a village in 1861, when the discovery of the Otago gold-fields brought into the province a sudden immigration of gold-diggers, chiefly from the other Australian colonies, with a great importation of merchandise to supply the anticipated wants of the new population. In the course of a few months, all sorts of shops, stores, warehouses, dwellings, offices, and other buildings, public or private, were run up with that marvellous promptitude which is witnessed only in gold countries. By the close of 1864 there were more than 3000 rateable buildings, besides several hundred tents, with a population of 20,000 persons, in the town of Dunedin, and the population of the whole province, which, in 1851, was under 2000, had risen to 61,000. Dunedin has two theatres, large public gardens, two concert-halls, four or five large assembly-rooms attached to the leading hotels, seven insurance offices, and three banks; the Bank of New Zealand and the Bank of New South Wales being two of the most elegant buildings in the city. There are forty-two hotels and restaurants, a Mechanics' Institution, a Chamber of Commerce, and other institutions. There are three daily and several weekly newspapers. The gas is laid on in all the principal streets, which are spacious and well paved. Dunedin also possesses a large hospital, capable of receiving about 160 patients, a large and elegant church for the Church of England congregation, a very handsome Roman Catholic church, a Wesleyan chapel, two Presbyterian churches, two synagogues, and several other places of worship. A panoramic View of the city of Dunedin will be engraved for an early Number of the Illustrated London News.

The New Zealand International Exhibition in this thriving new city has been undertaken and carried out with a great measure of success, in a province which has only been settled sixteen years, and in a colony the oldest of whose settlements is only of twenty-five years standing. The population of New Zealand altogether, be it observed, is only about 160,000 persons of European origin, and that population is erroneously supposed in England to be wholly occupied in the Maori war, though in reality the southern islands are quite free from any native difficulties, inasmuch as they contain but a few hundred Maoris, who are peaceable enough. The only share the southern islands have in the native question is in finding some of the money to pay for the war. New Zealand, therefore, as a whole is not disturbed or occupied by the war, and the best proof of it is this Exhibition, which shows that the colonists are working hard to acquire a knowledge of the material resources of their country, and of such machinery and other appliances as may serve to turn those resources to the most profitable account. The advantages which industrial exhibitions have conferred upon the commerce of the world and upon the industry of each particular country are now universally acknowledged. In Great Britain, France, the United States, and other countries, whatever their respective conditions, so highly have these advantages been esteemed that all governments, however widely differing from each other, or even hostile to each other in their political relations, have agreed in encouraging and supporting these industrial exhibitions. It is not to be supposed that in a new country their positive results can be so great, but relatively to the actual condition of such a country the result should be greater. If the colonists of New Zealand have fewer wants than the inhabitants of older and more luxurious countries, and can supply them in many instances better from abroad than on the spot, it is equally true that they know very little of the resources the colony affords, and that they do not even yet make use of many with which they are acquainted. They have splendid coal-fields, yet are dependent for coals on other countries; with the best limestone, they import almost all their lime; they even get building-stone from Tasmania and Sydney, and bricks from England and Victoria; with immense forests of splendid timber, they import most of their woods of construction—whether for building or furniture—and with the strongest known vegetable fibre in their flax they have not yet turned it to valuable account. Doubtless the youth of the colony and the consequent dearness of labour occasion much of this; but in order to obviate that difficulty, it is necessary that they should avail themselves of all those aids which machinery would give them to economise labour in the production and conversion of raw material. To these ends the New Zealand Exhibition was projected. It is distinguished by not only including every indigenous product and manufacture, but all those obtainable from other countries calculated to aid in the development of the colony. All the provinces of this colony, besides Tasmania, Queensland, Victoria, South Australia, and New South Wales, are more or less extensively represented; and the contributions from Great Britain, India, and Europe, occupy about 10,000 superficial feet of space. One quarter of the building (an exterior view of which appears in our Engraving) is allotted to the province of Otago. The visitor, on entering the doors in Great King-street, is encountered by a gold obelisk, representing 103 cubic feet of solid gold, being the amount of gold exported from New Zealand up to Dec. 31 last, comprising 1,814,026 oz. troy, of the value of £6,250,000; of which Auckland produced 10,000, Nelson 80,000, Marlborough 30,000, Canterbury 2500, Otago no less than 1,691,526. The annual produce of the Otago gold-fields is more than half a million ounces. It is usually mixed up with the returns from Victoria in the published statistics of Australian gold. We are in possession of some sketches of the scenery of the Otago gold-fields, which will be engraved for a future publication. Amongst the most conspicuous objects in the central avenue of the Exhibition are a cast-iron fountain, with swans and herons at its base; and the beautifully finished apparatus for the Cape Saunders lighthouse, which is shown in one of our lesser Illustrations. It may also be mentioned that the Exhibition contains many interesting contributions to the geology, botany, and fauna of New Zealand, including a unique specimen of the egg of the extinct moa, and the leg-bone of that gigantic bird. The show of New Zealand wool, flax, timber, and other staple produce, is most important. Among the novelties here on view is a clock which keeps itself wound up by an apparatus devised to be acted on by the changes in the atmosphere, and which has been already going some eighteen months without being meddled with. In the fine-arts department there are more than 400 objects—oil paintings, drawings, photographs, engravings, and other specimens of art. All the leading colonists and public men of New Zealand, Messrs. Stafford, Fox, Featherstone, Crosbie Ward, and Butler, Dr. Haast, Bishop Harper, Archdeacon Maunsell, and others, who have visited this exhibition at Dunedin, speak very highly in its praise. The commissioners propose, at its close, to purchase the best colonial objects to send home to form the nucleus of a permanent Colonial Museum in London.

The Royal medals for the encouragement of geographical science and discovery, intrusted to the Royal Geographical Society, have this year been awarded to Captain Montgomerie, for his extensive and elaborate survey of North-Western India and the Karakoram range; and to Mr. Samuel Baker, for his explorations in Inner Africa, in which he is still engaged. A testimonial, value £40, has also been awarded to Dr. Vámbéry for his adventurous travels in Turkistan. The medals will be delivered, on the 22nd inst., at the anniversary meeting of the society, at Burlington House.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

William Shakespeare. By his Eminence Cardinal Wiseman. (Hurst and Blackett.) When great men have passed away from us we thankfully accept and gratefully treasure up whatever, bearing their impress, has been preserved by affection or reverence. The eighty short pages, therefore, containing a fragment of a lecture which would have been delivered by the late Cardinal Wiseman before the Royal Institution, will, no doubt, find hearty welcome. Death put a veto upon the delivery, but some idea may be formed of what has been lost or gained by those whose lot it would have been to listen to the proposed oration of the late Archbishop of Westminster. Of him it may be said, as was said of a former English cardinal:—"He was a scholar, and a ripe and good one;" and the fragmentary discourse which is left to us will not tend to disprove the truth of the saying. There are certain errors which would, probably, have been corrected; there are no flashes of originality and no splendid bursts of eloquence; but there are unmistakable signs of appreciative intellect, refined thought, and graceful diction. His notions of a fitting monument to Shakspeare are such as one would have expected from an elegant mind, and are conceived in a spirit of magnificence worthy of the genius he delighted to honour.

A Winter in Algeria. By Mrs. G. Albert Rogers. Illustrated. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) Dr. Bertherand says "L'hiver n'existe pas en Algérie, et particulièrement sur tout ce littoral délicieux, où elle développe plaines, et côteaux entre l'Atlas et la Méditerranée." The learned doctor's language reminds one of the remark, "Cæsar and Pompey bery much alike, specially Pompey;" for if there be no winter at all in Algeria, it seems strange to assert that there is none particularly in certain districts of Algeria. However, what the doctor means is plain enough; and it is clear, therefore, that whoever manages to spend a winter in Algeria performs a wonderful feat. Mrs. Rogers has achieved that triumph, and she offers the world the results of her experience in a sufficiently readable form. She dwells principally upon Algiers. Nevertheless, she made visits to the interior, and has information derived therefrom of an interesting character to give, and she mingles with her information all manner of anecdotes and Arab legends. She appears to have visited Algeria not only in the character of a traveller but also in that of a proselytiser. She distributed tracts freely, which the French, with true national politeness, accepted easily; indeed, a Zouave went so far as to pronounce the tract which was presented to him "très joli"—thus taking a naïve view of the object with which it was offered to him and causing doubts of his sincerity to those who are acquainted with the English form of the article. A friend of Mrs. Rogers also boldly attempted the conversion of a whole monastery by means of two tracts, but we are not informed that the attempt was successful. From what has been said, the reader will be prepared to find theological discussion and religious discourse in abundance; and our author's habit of thought will be readily surmised from the tone of surprise with which she announces that "M. Mercier is a most liberally-minded man, although a Roman Catholic." The book is garnished with several effective illustrations, and with a very useful appendix relating to the climate, meteorological phenomena, and botanical peculiarities of Algeria.

Lectures on Practical Geology. By Professor D. T. Ansted. (Robert Hardwicke.) A reprint of six discourses delivered before the Society of Arts. They form a part of what are known as the "Cantor" series of lectures for 1865. The geological student would probably require either something more elementary and precise, or something more philosophical and abstruse, according to his proficiency in science; but for general readers, who wish for only an acquaintance with facts, without the drudgery of learning rudiments, Professor Ansted's little book seems likely to be particularly useful. His aim has been to give a "popular sketch," and there appears to be every chance that the use of the adjective will be justified. For "geology, applied to the arts, is a subject of real and vital interest to all of us." In fact, "all that is useful and beautiful, and all that is intrinsically valuable and employed in the arts, and, indeed, all that conduces to life itself, is derived from the earth. To seek for it economically you must study the structure of the earth; to obtain it without loss, or at as little cost as possible, you must learn the condition of its existences—you must, in a word, study geology."

Iron Manufacture. By William Fairbairn, C.E., &c. (Adam and Charles Black.) An epic poem might be written upon the subject of iron. It may be said to be the life-restorer as well as the life-destroyer, for from the same ore come the medicine which invigorates the human frame and the sword which deals out cruel death. To the same ore we are indebted for "the ploughshare, the scythe, the pruning-hook, the needle, the graver, the spring of a watch or of a carriage, the chisel, the chain, the anchor, the compass, the cannon, and the bomb." He who has ever travelled by railway must be thankful for the gracious gift; and it is difficult to mention any one of the bountiful earth's productions which is more worthy of a history. The name of Fairbairn is enough testimony to the competence of the historian, and all that remains for us to do is to spread as widely as possible a knowledge of the fact that he has published a "new edition, revised and enlarged," of his useful, instructive, and entertaining work, called "Iron; its History, Properties, and Processes of Manufacture."

Captain Masters's Children. By Thomas Hood. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) A reprint, in three volumes, of a story from the Englishwoman's Domestic Magazine. Some of the characters are well conceived and well drawn; some of the scenes, especially in Paris, are well depicted; and some of the descriptions of nature would be very good were it not for a tendency towards the grandiose. The fun is of a very mild character, and the philosophy is of the kind which might be expected from one whose favourite philosopher appears to be the popular Lord Dundreary. What the object of a "domestic" magazine may be, it is not easy to declare positively; but if it be to entertain the domestic Englishwoman with a tale in which the chief incidents are connected with seduction, unlegalised cohabitation, utter heartlessness, and wife-desertion, our author has been so far very successful. Of course it is possible to conceive that a "domestic" magazine would aim at something quite different, in which case our author cannot be complimented upon the course he has adopted. If there were any intention of teaching a lesson, it must have been this: you should never rescue a child from drowning, or, if you do, you should never adopt the child into your family; for, in that case, you will surely find that you have been warming a viper in your bosom. Captain Masters's children are two daughters, one of whom marries a Methodistical tallow-chandler, by which arrangement our author gets an opportunity of writing some semi-profane drollery of the tea-table order, such as the domestic Englishwoman would probably relish; and the other goes upon the stage, so that hints of improper overtures to actresses and other theatrical matters appropriate to a "domestic" magazine are necessarily introduced. On the whole, it seems not unlikely that those who essay to drink the amusing draught composed for them by our author will pronounce the potation thin.

The Lawyer's Purpose. By James Leitch. (John Maxwell and Co.) The lawyer's purpose, which it requires only two volumes of by no means close type to develop, is, it may be superfluous to remark, diabolical. We are first introduced to the gentleman, who has a habit of talking to himself and of muttering the monosyllable "chah!" in a churchyard. He is engaged in some fell work upon a tombstone, and is unconscious of a flittering phantom clad in woman's "habiliments," gliding about and watching his labours. But that phantom turns out to be a live woman, with a woman's tongue as well as a woman's "habiliments," and in course of time she works him woe. More than twice we are taken to the graveyard, where the work upon the tombstone is proceeded with, and where "the mysterious Presence" ever hovers; and once the proceedings are fitly accompanied by thunder and lightning, smothered laughter, yells, shrieks, and "the anger of Heaven." The story, then, is of the melodramatic sort; and that the language is in accordance therewith may be gathered from a few expressions of the soliloquent lawyer—e.g., "'Brewer, thou art a coward!' said a hoarse voice, with a horrid oath. 'Not yet fit to be a colleague of Satan! Cheer up, old fellow! Thou art under capital training.

Better to reign in hell than serve in heaven!'"

It is satisfactory to be able to relate that the lawyer does not effect his purpose; that the charming Lucy, having indignantly rejected a once-loved, handsome, heartless Captain, marries the proper person; and that many parts of the story are pleasantly and even humorously written.

OPENING OF THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

THE International Exhibition at Dublin was opened, on Tuesday, by her Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, with an imposing ceremony and various attendant festivities, witnessed by a company of at least thirty thousand visitors, who enjoyed a day of the finest possible weather and a thoroughly successful performance of the whole programme. Before we relate these proceedings, however, we must invite our readers' notice to the large Engraving which occupies the two middle pages of this Number, giving a view of the eastern front of the Exhibition Palace, in Earlsfort-terrace, Dublin; a View of the Crystal Palace, or Winter Garden, which forms part of this block of building on the other side of Hatch-street; and a short description of the whole, in our Journal of March 18. The Winter Garden, as it is to be called, corresponds in architecture to the Crystal Palace at Sydenham, but is about one fourth its size, will be used as a vast conservatory, with the adjacent pleasure-grounds, affording in all seasons a most delightful promenade. But for the present it is the great grand passage-way, from north to south, in length, is occupied by the Exhibition of Arts and Industry, opened on Tuesday; while the substantial building of brick and stone, which forms the centre of the whole front, contains—the principal entrance-hall, a large concert-hall, to accommodate 3000 persons; a smaller concert-hall, for half that number; the refreshment-room for the public, the directors', and the saloons and dining-rooms; with a large annexe for machinery in motion, a second annexe for other machinery, the entrance for carriages, and a fourth annexe for refreshment-rooms, kitchens, lavatories, and other accessory offices. The principal entrance is from Earlsfort-terrace, there being six pairs of gateways, for entrance, exit, and foot-passengers; the general public drive in from being inclosed with a handsome chain railing and rock-face wall. There is also an entrance through the pleasure-grounds from Racecourse-terrace.

The architect is Mr. A. G. Jones, of Dublin; the engineers are Messrs. Ordish and Le Feavre, of Westminster; the general contractors, Messrs. Beardwood and Sons, of Dublin; and the contractors for the ironwork, Messrs. Rankin, of Belfast. The decoration of the buildings has been intrusted to Mr. Doyle; the prevailing colours are green and pink on the columns and ribs.

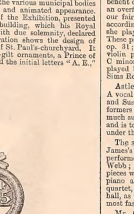
The pleasure-grounds, laid out by Mr. Niven, were partly shown in our former Illustrations. They are approached from the existing transept in the centre of the Winter Garden, whence a colonnade leads out upon the terrace in the open air, with a flight of steps to the ground. A very effective cascade, which forms one of the most picturesque features of these pleasure-grounds, is seen from the entrance of the Exhibition building, looking along the transept; in the centre of which is a bronze fountain of ornamental design. The extent of the outdoor pleasure-ground is about thirteen acres, containing lawns, avenues, shrubberies, slopes, and terraces, with fountains, flower-beds, conservatories and rockwork. Here the geologist will find massed together, in and around the basin of the cascade, specimens of some of the most beautiful Irish rocks. Here are quartz, with mica running through it like veins of silver; greenstone, with quartz veins; grey granite, gleaming with mica; dark basalt, and various other rocks of formation, with many valuable metallic ores, marbles, and other specimens of the wealth of the country. In the rockwork are forms and primroses, great roots of ancient oak from the bogs, and a variety of plants to fill up some of the interstices and enliven the whole. Feathery trees droop over the basin from which the water descends; and when the lapse of time has worn away the new look of the arrangement, the rockery, which is very beautiful now, will be the most attractive portion of these grounds. Adjoining the grounds is a tower which is being fitted up for Mr. Guinness, who has built at the end of his private garden a very elegant little pavilion, overlooking the garden of the Exhibition on one side and a small piece of artificial water on the other. We give a View of this pavilion on another page; the house of Mr. Guinness is shown to the right. This is the same Mr. Benjamin Lee Guinness whose portrait we lately engraved, on the occasion of the reopening of St. Patrick's Cathedral, which had been restored in a handsome style by him, at the head of the Exhibition.

The arrival of Prince of Wales and his suite on Tuesday was not marked by any great public demonstration in the city of Dublin. His Royal Highness, Prince Arthur from Holyhead to Kingstown, with the Duke of Cambridge, Earl Spencer, Lord Dufferin, and Sir Robert Peel, in Her Majesty's yacht, the Victoria and Albert, was met on his landing by Lord Wodehouse, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, with some of his suite. The Prince was thereupon received by a crowd of people on the platform. He came to Dublin with the Lord Lieutenant by a special train, in which a state carriage had been prepared for his use. At the Westland-row station the Lord Lieutenant's carriages were in attendance with an escort of cavalry, and the whole party went at once to the Viceregal Lodge in the Phœnix Park. The streets of Dublin were illuminated at night, looking very gay and splendid, and were filled by a greater crowd than has been seen there since the night following the Queen's public entry into Dublin a few years ago. America were let off from most of the houses, flags and banners hung from the windows, and nothing was left undone to make Dublin wear its habitual appearance of a scene of excitement or unusual complement of a Royal visit.

On Tuesday morning the weather was beautiful, and the streets were alive from an early hour with holiday folks of every class. The neighbourhood of the Exhibition building was soon thronged with vehicles of every description; and when eleven o'clock struck, the hour for opening the doors, arrived, the rush of well-dressed company was greater than had probably ever before been seen in Dublin. The lawns, galleries, and halls were all soon filled to overflowing, so that long before the Prince arrived there must have been 20,000 persons present.

His Royal Highness arrived at about half-past two o'clock, and was received at the principal entrance by the following noblemen and gentlemen:—Lord Mayor, the Lord Chancellor, the Duke of Leinster, the Earl of Meath, Lord Powerscourt, Lord Southwell, Mr. Sandford (chairman of the executive committee), and Mr. R. D. Guinness. His Royal Highness, who was attended by the Duke of Cambridge and attended by the Lord Lieutenant and Lady Wodehouse, and other members of the vice-regal household, and by the gentlemen named above to the dais which had been prepared for the occasion; and then, after a few words of welcome from the Duke, during which his Royal Highness uncovered the splendid cup-dull before him and bowed in acknowledgment of the cheers which greeted him on every side. The orchestra, conducted by Mr. Levy, of the Theatre Royal, performed the National Anthem.

The Duke of Leinster, accompanied by Mr. Sanders, then advanced to the foot of the dais and, on behalf of the Exhibition Guarantee Committee, read an address thanking his Royal Highness for having come, in the name of her Majesty, to inaugurate this Exhibition. They recognised in this Royal act a high appreciation of the interests of the country at large, a gracious wish to advance the welfare of the Irish people, and a continuance of the enlightened course of the Queen's gracious and lamented Prince Consort, who bestowed so much encouragement upon works like these. They concluded with an expression of their heartfelt wishes for the health and happiness of the Princess of Wales, whom the Irish people earnestly desired to welcome among them. "Whenever circumstances may permit her Royal Highness to visit our shores, which we hope will be at no distant period, we have no promise such an enthusiastic welcome as will convey to her Majesty and your Royal Highness the fullest assurance of our loyalty and devotion."



To this address his Royal Highness was pleased to return the following reply:—

"My Lords and Gentlemen,—I thank you for your address. It is a source of sincere pleasure to me to discharge the duty which has been confided to me by her Majesty the Queen in thus inaugurating your Exhibition. It is not less in accordance with my own feelings than with those of her Majesty to assist in every measure which is calculated for the happiness and welfare of the Irish people. The example of my lamented and beloved parent will, I trust, be ever present to my mind as a stimulus to the encouragement of every work which is calculated to advance international prosperity and to develop the resources of my country. The cultivation of the fine arts, in itself so powerful an auxiliary in civilising and refining the human race, has been an important object in this Exhibition, and, indeed, is known already to have produced most satisfactory results. Believe me to be very sensible of your kind wishes on behalf of the Princess of Wales. Her regret at not being able to accompany me only equals my own, and you may rely on her anxiety to come among you and herself to ask the welcome which she is sure to receive."

An address was then presented by the Lord Mayor of Dublin, after which a procession was formed, at the head of which his Royal Highness made the tour of the building, receiving fresh demonstrations of loyal welcome as each department was entered. His Royal Highness took much notice of the sculpture, and stopped before several pieces to examine them.

A good deal of time was spent before the "Marriage of the Princess Royal," containing portraits of the whole family, and his Royal Highness and Royal Highness of Denmark. This picture, evidently much affected, before the picture of the first Exhibition, the central figure of which is the late Prince Consort, "The Presentation of the Crimean Medals" also attracted much attention from the Royal party, as did also a bust of Sir David Dundas.

The Prince and his companions, having made the complete tour of the building, received the most enthusiastic acclamations from the vast assemblage, returned to the dais, which then, with the two Royal Princes, the Lord Lieutenant, the Irish Court in full uniform, the numerous naval and military officers, and the various municipal bodies in their robes, presented a most brilliant and animated appearance. Mr. Parkinson, the principal comptroller of the Exhibition, presented his Royal Highness with the key of the building, which his Royal Highness graciously accepted, and, with due solemnity, declared the Exhibition to be opened. Our Illustration shows the design of this key, which was made by the Goldsmiths of St. Paul's churchyard. It was inclosed in a velvet case, with silver-gilt ornaments, a Prince of Wales's feather, a coronet, a shamrock, and the initial letters "A. E.," the work of Mr. C. J. Allen.

KEY OF THE DUBLIN EXHIBITION BUILDING PRESENTED TO THE PRINCE OF WALES BY THE OPENING DAY.

A rocket was shot into the air, the artillery thundered in response from a hundred guns, and the inaugural ceremonial of the Exhibition terminated.

The police arrangements were admirable. Mr. Charles Walker, principal inspector of the police, attended specially upon the Royal visitors; and the general arrangements, which were most admirable, were superintended by Colonel Lake, chief commissioner in Dublin. The vocal and instrumental music was all very well performed. Mr. Robinson conducted the choral singers.

The Prince of Wales returned to the Viceregal Lodge at five o'clock. In the evening he was entertained by the Lord Mayor with a splendid ball, at the Mansion House, to which a large number of the nobility and gentry were invited to meet his Royal Highness. The scene was again illuminated in Dublin.

The task of unpacking and arranging the contents of the Exhibition is now going on up to the hour of opening on Tuesday, especially in the fine-arts department. Mr. Henry Doyle was busy, hanging his pictures and arranging his screens, receiving able assistance with the former from Mr. Mulvany, and with the latter from Lord Southwell. The employment to which these materials have been set off by the artistic painting of the gallery, executed, under Mr. Doyle's directions, by Mr. Silsbourne, of Cork-hill, will have an attraction in Dublin which has never been purchased in any previous exhibition—namely, that of being shown by gas as well as by daylight. A white statue in a green gallery looks best under artificial light, and the contents of the Dublin gallery will have this advantage every evening.

MUSIC.

TITIENS, the brightest star in the musical firmament, has risen and gone down on the horizon of the Haymarket. She appeared at Her Majesty's Theatre, on Thursday week, in the character of Leonora Borgia, and again, on the following Saturday, in Norma. It would be vain to describe her appearance after all that has been written. It would only be repeating what has been said a thousand times. It is sufficient to say that her performance has certainly not been less than greater than ever, and has begun this season to excite even more enthusiasm than she has ever done before. She is the queen of dramatic song, alone and unapproachable in her regal grandeur.

At the Royal Italian Opera, Meyerbeer's gorgeous work, "L'Etoile du Nord" ("La Stella del Nord"), was produced on Saturday last, with all the splendour and magnificence for which this theatre is so justly famed. The cast of the characters, however, was not so strong as that of last season. Signor Attri is a weak substitute for Faure in the part of the Czar; and Mdme. vander Heuvel (late Mdlle. Caroline Duprez), though a very accomplished artist, lacks the vocal power required for so vast a theatre as Covent Garden. The new tenor, morreover, M. Hilaire, proved quite incompetent to fill the part sustained last year by Naudin. The most successful performance was that of Mdme. Rudersdorff in the little part of the Fisherman, Nathalie. The spectacle and scenic effects, however, were grand and beautiful almost beyond example, even in Covent Garden.

The opera concerts at the Crystal Palace, which have for several years proved so attractive, have been resumed this season. The first was given on Saturday last. The performers were chiefly members of the company of the Royal Italian Opera; but it is intended that, during the season, Mdme. Arabella Goddard shall be drawn equally from this and the other house. Among the vocal pieces were an aria from "Guillaume Tell," sung by Mdme. Edelsberger; the famous trio from "Don Giovanni," sung by Wachtel, Rouconi, and Belletti; "Non mi dir," from "Don Giovanni," sung by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington; "Casta Diva," from "Norma," sung by Mdme. Carlotta Patti; and a duet from "Lucrezia Borgia," sung by Mdme. Rudersdorff and Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, and by Wachtel and Rouconi, sung by the Crystal Palace Choir. The favourite young pianist, Mdlle. Krebs, played a fantasia by Liszt, and Mendelssohn's overture to "Ruy Blas" was played by the excellent orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Manns. Upwards of four thousand visitors were present.

The Monday Popular Concert of the 8th instant was for the benefit of Mdme. Arabella Goddard, and, as was to be expected, drew an overflowing audience, eager to pay due homage to the talents of our fair and favourite pianist. Nor was her appearing in the concert, accordingly, she was greeted with acclamations, and every piece that she played was encored with unmistakable signs of delight and approval. These pieces were Beethoven's sonata, for the piano alone, in G major, Op. 31, No. 1; Mendelssohn's trio, for piano and violin, in B flat, (the violin played by Joachim); and Mendelssohn's pianoforte trio in C minor. Harper, Pratten, and Lazarus, also, were heard, the last played by Joachim, &c.; and two favourite airs were sung by Mr. Sims Reeves.

Astley's has become, for the time, an English Opera-house. A vocal company of considerable strength—including Misses Louisa and Susan Pyne, Mr. Harrison, Mr. Aynsley Cook, and Mdme. Weiss, and performers of acknowledged ability—are giving English operas with much success. "Fra Diavolo" was the first work performed here, and is to be followed, we understand, by "Don Roy." The music is under the direction of Mr. Alfred Mellon, who performed Mr. Fitz's.

The second matinée of the Musical Union was given at St. James's Hall, on Tuesday last, under the direction of Mr. Ella. The performers were Madame Arabella Goddard, Joachim and Ries, Messrs. Dr. Webb; violoncello, Signor Piatti; and pianoforte, Mr. Hallé. The pieces were Mozart's quartet in B flat, No. 7; Beethoven's sonata for piano and violin in A minor, op. 23; Mendelssohn's posthumous quartet, op. 81; and Beethoven's pianoforte trio in B, op. 97. The ball, as usual at these matinées, was crowded to the doors with the most fashionable company in London.

Mr. Charles Hallé has begun, at St. James's Hall, a new series of the "Pianoforte Recitals," which, for several seasons, have been so favourably received by the amateurs of that instrument. They deserve their success, for they are not only elegant entertainments for the fashionable world, but to the students of the pianoforte. The first of these performances took place on Friday morning, the 5th inst. The programme consisted of the following pieces, all played by Mr. Hallé himself:—Two sonatas of Beethoven, the first in F, op. 7, and the "Sonata Appassionata" in F minor; partita in B flat, by Sebastian Bach; Weber's rondo brillante in E flat; Mendelssohn's solos by Schubert, Stephen Heller, and Chopin. The programmes of these recitals are always so elegant and analytical remarks are generally performed, which the students of the piano will find interesting and useful.

At the concert of the Musical Society of London, on Wednesday last, the twenty-ninth of the evening, a symphony by Ferdinand Hill, failed to produce much effect. The first movement of the concert were more successful. Mdme Schumann played Beethoven's concerto in E flat with great power and effect; the overtures to "Ruy Blas" and "Oberon" were magnificently performed; and Miss Louisa Pyne sang the last scene from "Der Freischütz" and Balfe's "Lurline," and a bravura air by Auber, with the warmest applause.

Mr. Walter Macfarren's pianoforte performance at the Hanover-square Rooms, on Saturday evening last, was unanimously and fashionably attended. Mr. Macfarren being known as a performer of distinguished merit, the programme included Sebastian Bach's Suite de Pieces in D minor, Beethoven's "Sonata quasi Fantasia" in E major, Op. 27, Mendelssohn's trio in C minor, for piano in D major, played by Messrs. Macfarren and Bembridge; Schubert's sonata in A, and several elegant smaller pieces by Mr. Macfarren's composition. The anatine was eminently successful.

Mr. Deacon has announced three matinées of classical music at the Hanover-square Rooms, the first of which was given on Thursday morning, the 4th inst., and the second and third will take place on the 1st and 22nd of May and 5th of June. The programme is made a successful teacher of that instrument, and his audience at his first matinée included a large number of his pupils, who came to receive instruction as well as pleasure from the performances. Mr. Deacon was assisted by Mr. Blagrove (violin), Mr. Paliser (violin), Mr. Carrodus (viola), and Signor Pezze (violoncello). The programme included Beethoven's quartet in D minor, Haydn's quartet in D major, Haydn's pianoforte sonata in E flat, op. 93, Beethoven's sonata in C minor for piano and violin, op. 30, Mendelssohn's trio in C minor, for the piano violin, and violoncello; and pianoforte solos of Chopin and Arbet, all of which were admirably played and much applauded. Several vocal pieces were sung by Mdlle. Bonquet, the favourite Swedish singer.

THE THEATRES.

A new tragedian, by name Mr. Neil Warner, made his appearance, on Saturday, at Sadler's Wells, in the character of Othello. A more hopeless failure has been seldom seen. Of a good person, with a pleasing voice and unassuming manner, Mr. Warner impresses us with the idea that he is an intelligent and well-practised actor. He has been studying his art, we are informed, in Australia and America, and has taken a line of the profession which we have noted that such practice invariably produces in the attainment of a style of declamation which the most passionate passages is not exceeded. As a judicious performer, it is probable that Mr. Warner will find his place on the boards.

Miss Batemen appeared at the New Adelphi on Monday, and selected the part of Bianca, in the tragedy of "Fazio," for her renewed appeal to the metropolitan public. We may congratulate her on the result. It would answer no good purpose to conceal the fact that, by the performance of Bianca, in "The Honeymoon," Miss Bateman somewhat disappointed her admirers. Her Bianca is a great improvement on that which we saw her perform, and the applause with which it was received. In the first act, indeed, she was deficient in play of power and the wife's incipient jealousy was very slightly indicated; neither, in the second, was there sufficient variety of force, but the character was more distinctly pronounced. In the third, the difficult scene was rendered, in of her husband's infidelity, and we have to record that Miss Bateman's acting was frequently fine, particularly when Fazio is about to leave her, and when she is parting with Aldabella, in the prison scene, and in her final appeal to the Duke. The performance, however, is, after all, more remarkable for delicacy than power. Miss Bateman seldom thrills, but she frequently pleases, evidently possessing a pronounced amount of appreciation which nuns too often her best elocutionary efforts. In the more rapid passages, a certain want of intelligibility ensues, and we are dependent on our knowledge of the text for the meaning. The total effect of the performance of this tragedy depends much on the adequate impersonation of Aldabella, and we have to congratulate Mrs. Billington on her perfect success in the part. Traits of a grand style of acting were frequent in it, and occasionally the process of great power was manifested, contrasting rather prominently with the more retiured characteristics of the manner of her rival. Mr. Jordan, as Fazio, presented us with an artistic portrait which will dure remembrance. Mr. Stuart acted the Duke with his usual breadth, and in his final rebuke of Aldabella strongly impressed the house with his emphasis and vigour. Altogether, this is the most performance of Milman's tragedy that we have lately witnessed.

THE NEW COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE INDIAN ARMY.

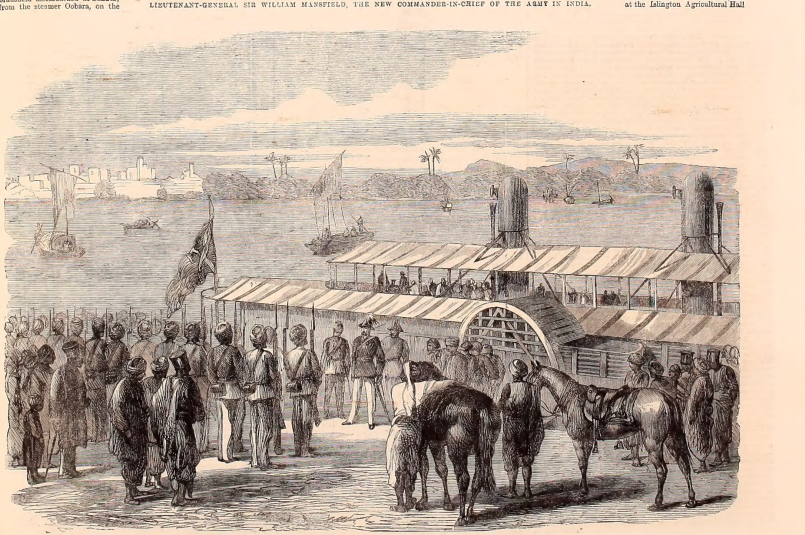
GENERAL Sir William Rose Mansfield, K.C.B., the new Indian Commander-in-Chief, was educated at Sandhurst, and entered the Army at a very early age, since the Army List allows him thirty years' service, and he is now but forty-five years of age. Eighteen of those years have been passed in India, and the greater part of the time on active service. He was present at Buddiwal and Aliwal as a Captain with his regiment. At Sobraon he was Aide-de-Camp to the Commander-in-Chief. He commanded his regiment at Gorjerat, in 1849; and in 1851-2 took part in the harassing operations on the Peshawur frontier. He was, indeed, constantly employed—at times in command of his old corps, the 53rd, and, when they were not out, attached to Sir Colin Campbell. When the Crimean War broke out Colonel Mansfield was selected for the delicate position of responsible advisor of her Majesty's Ambassador at Constantinople—a proof that his abilities were already known beyond military circles. This appointment resulted, on the conclusion of the war, in his being sent to Warsaw as Consul-General; but on the outbreak of the Indian mutiny, he accompanied Sir Colin Campbell to India, and held the position of Chief of the Staff. When peace was restored he was nominated to the command of the Bombay army. The recent testimonies of the Indian press, and the speeches made at a dinner at Bombay on the occasion of his leaving that presidency, show that, both as a soldier and in his civil capacity as a member of Council, he has fulfilled all the expectations which had been formed of him.

The likeness we have engraved is from a photograph by Mr. Hering, of Regent-street, taken about six months ago.

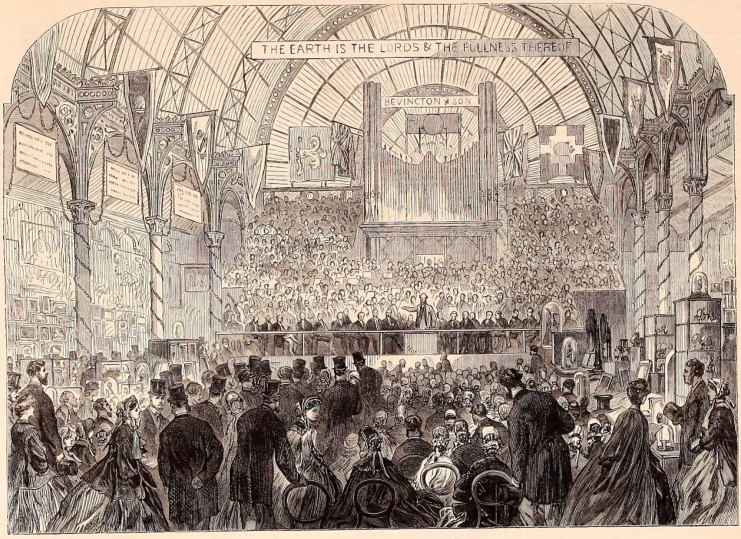
VISIT OF GENERAL SIR W. MANSFIELD TO UPPER SCINDE.

THE town of Sukkur, on the Indus, one of the most thriving towns in the province of Scinde, has lately been enlivened by the presence of the Commander-in-Chief of the Army in India, General Sir W. Mansfield, who, being on his way to take up his new command, landed there and proceeded on a tour of inspection to Jacobabad, and thence along the Scinde frontier outposts. Sir W. Mansfield disembarked at Sukkur, from the steamer Oshara, on the 20th of February. He was received by a guard of honour from the regiment of Jacob's Rifles—a regiment named after that able soldier and administrator, Major-General John Jacob, and armed with probably the most effective weapon that has ever been placed in the hands of an infantry soldier—viz., the double-barrelled rifle invented by him. Sir William Mansfield, after remaining a couple of days at Sukkur and enjoying some sport with Meer Ali Moràd, a native Prince renowned in Sir C. Napier's conquest of Scinde, marched to the frontier town of Jacobabad, which is also named after the late General Jacob. The site of this now flourishing town was, when first occupied by the camp of the Scinde Horse, in the year 1847, a barren waste, and the tribes around lived in a continual state of anarchy and strife; but the energy and determination of General Jacob soon began to tell. Before his death, which happened in 1859, a well-to-do town had sprung up, and peace and security prevailed in the district. This state of affairs has been maintained by the lieutenants whom Jacob had himself trained, and to whom he left as a legacy his splendid house and library, and a system of administration which, it is to be hoped, will be long upheld.

Sir W. Mansfield, on his arrival at Jacobabad, was received by the present Commandant, Colonel Green, C.B., with a guard of honour composed of a squadron of the Scinde Horse. Sir William, after reviewing the frontier field-force and expressing his entire satisfaction with its efficiency and discipline, proceeded along the line of outposts, which are placed at intervals of about twenty miles along the border of the Scinde desert, and protect the inhabitants of the interior of the province from the raids of the mountain robbers. On the 13th of March he proceeded to Moultan. Sir W. Mansfield is the first Commander-in-Chief who has ever visited his frontier line of outposts.



Our two Illustrations, representing the landing of Sir William Mansfield at Sukkur, and his entry into Jacobabad, are from sketches taken on the spot by Mr. W. F. Partridge, whom we have to thank for this communication.



LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR WILLIAM MANSFIELD, THE NEW COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE ARMY IN INDIA.

THE WEST LONDON INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

THE success of the district Industrial Exhibitions, held at the Lambeth Baths for South London, and at the Islington Agricultural Hall for Forth London, has encouraged the working men of West London to get up an Exhibition of their own at the Floral Hall, adjoining the Royal Italian Opera House, Covent-garden. It was inaugurated on Monday week, by the Chief Commissioner of Public Works, the Right Hon. W. F. Cowper, M.P., who was assisted by the Archbishop of York, Sir J. S. Shelley, M.P., Sir J. Hamilton, the Hon. F. Byng, Mr. H. Lewis, M.P., Sir J. Hassler, Sir J. W. Mason, and many of the leading manufacturers and tradesmen of the West End. The programme of the ceremony included music supplied by a band and chorus consisting of 600 performers, and by the organ of the Exhibition of 1862, which Messrs. Bevington have erected for this Exhibition, and which will be performed on daily. The ceremony was to the chair by Mr. J. A. Nicholay (the chairman of the committee), Mr. Cowper-per here at few introductory remarks, and a prayer for the occasion having been pronounced by the Archbishop of York, the musical entertainment, which included the performance of the Hallelujah Chorus, Haydn's grand chorus, "The heavens are telling," Handel's Coronation Anthem, and an inaugural march composed for the occasion by Mr. C. J. Hargitt, was performed, as well as ode, written by Mr. G. Linnæus Banks, entitled "Labour's Festival," was spoken by Mr. Edmund Yates. The chairman declared the Exhibition open, and announced that it would continue open until the 31st of July.

LANDING OF SIR WILLIAM MANSFIELD AT SUKKUR, ON THE INDUS.

OPENING OF THE WEST LONDON INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION AT THE FLORAL HALL, COVENT GARDEN.

ENTRANCE OF SIR WILLIAM MANSFIELD INTO JACOBABAD, SCINDE.

A certificate has been obtained from the Privy Council entitling persons to the privileges conferred by the Copyright (Musical Compositions) Act, passed this Session. The collection is well worthy of a visit. Its most striking features are, the paintings which illustrate the history of the professional artist, and some the productions of the artisan's leisure; cabinet-work, in which there are some beautiful and highly-finished designs; mechanical models, and musical work. Prizes have been granted for 1687 exhibitors, representing almost every branch of industry. Even the profession of sculptor and statuary has its humble calling of the costermonger; but by far the larger portion of the Exhibition consists of amateur productions.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

THERE is a time and a season for everything; and, of course, the very time and season for the little Fenian insect to become very lively is just when the Prince of Wales goes to open the Dublin Exhibition. That is the moment for the Head Centre, or Guy Fawkes, or Jack Cade, or Brian Boroihme—whose name is corrupted by us Saxons into Boru—or defender of the Faith Daniel O'Connell, or Lord Edward Fitzgerald, or nearly all his nobility, and his son Macdaid, also in doing it—upon these plains of Senlac, Fenianbury, to be more exact, or three or thirty, met to protest against the cruel wrong the Prince was doing them by opening their Exhibition. Some of them were for not so far as to aim to it; and everybody was for a row with everybody else: and they were to empty the Lord Lieutenants of Ireland into smashing of the windies,' until the Fenian army, led by General Thomas Francis Meagher (of the Sword) and heralded by certain Kashoot looking warriors of the Green, should drive the Saxon out from the field, and place, for ever and ever, the 'green above the red." Such would be the result of it all. But the British Government deal with it with a trenchant satire and deep ridicule, and all Dublin marches out to the fight in a mass, and, of course, returns from it a marriage bell. In this column, long ago, a more frequent visit and a more extended residence in Ireland on the part of the Prince was strongly were urged. Should such a plan be entered upon, even this ghost of Fenianism will not exist. All claim to keep up the fight will die. Charles Gavan Duffy—once a very pretty poet, but now late Minister of Public Works of our most promising colony, Victoria, who will be present—tells us that his influence became less with the Irish day by day and that day whereon he left Ireland. And the reverend author of "Who Fools to Speak of Noney-night" is not forgotten. "Ah, Tim, it will be not rejoice over 1865." All Irishmen should do so. The Exhibition at Dublin is a success, and it will be a far greater one than exhibitions mentioned in our last Impression turn out half as well.

And Mr. Wilkes Booth, the U.S. Fenian, has been arrested as a defiance, and a shed, and there is an end of him. It is well that it is so, save that he has spoiled from his life one chance of being a distinct denial of any complicity of the South with the act of one whose parentage can be read in wild madness. More than 200 addresses of condolence, or utterances of horror at the deed, have gone forth from England to America, and Mr. Tennie's cartoon, which unhappily we have not room to engrave, is very powerful in explaining with Columbia is true to the letter. By-the-way, Americans have perpetual have been charged with the habit of using the word damned Punch's woodcut, and many have said that the manly reasoning action therein will do more harm than good to the cause of love of England than anything which has been written—yes, even than the Queen's action. But the well-informed know that the word is borrowed out the States. President Lincoln's death—let us have the courage to say it—was a most terrible evil, or at least not an evil out of which good will not spring. It has brought, at once, the people of France and England to the side of America; it has severed the last tie which the South President Lincoln and his Southern policy; it has given the Americans the image of a good, earnest, duty-loving man to set before them as an ideal correct to which they should be craving and a purposeless, noisy ambition.

Mr. John Stuart Mill's supporters have hooked Lord Amberley, who thinks that Westminster will honour itself in electing Mr. Mill, who has—though he always was one of the most illustrious Englishmen in the world—had a distinct effect in directing European thought. Mr. Mill, as everyone knows, is totally exempt from the representation of minorities, a suggestion entirely rejected by Mr. Cobden, and which would have women as electors or electresses. Here is ideal freedom for the sum of Westminster. Robert Browning, John Villiers Shelley, and company may find some nice pickings in Mr. Mill's work on "Liberty," and in Mr. Fawcett, if matters progress well, and we shall not have had such an election for Westminster since the days in which George Fox found the Duke of Bolgelleuchfynn, Bolgelleuchfynn, Duchess of Devonshire, bought the votes of butchers with a kiss. Mr. Tom Hughes—a friend of "Tom Brown's Schooldays"—has been elected with the Rambler, had been solicited to stand for Lambeth, but wisely declined to go against Mr. Tennyson, saving his strength, as it is understood, for the general election.

A long article on Mr. Stuart Mill, showing the very palpable infidels (J. S. M.) of that philosopher, lately enlightened the columns of a contemporary, and, in expectation of a great sale, the machines were kept standing, and the publishers were not disappointed in length and urbanity. But, alas! Wisdom crieth out in the columns of a review, and no one heeds it. A little bit of scandal about Mr. Mill's dear nephew sent down the paper by fifty copies. Although it is but just to say that the numerous reprints of his philosophical works are sold and are selling very largely. But who can be wise at all times? Did not Coleridge write many years ago a political pamphlet, and did not a popular novelist utterly fail in his editorship or management of another? The very fact of bringing in heavy cavalry to do the work of the light cavalry appears to be a mistake. Magazine writing and newspaper conducting are each gifts which the possessor has not, and which he cannot lack. So painting on canvas and drawing on wood are distinct arts, for to which there is a different training. Nobody will fail that the Christmas number of Punch was improved when Mr. Millais, R.A., gave one of the cartoons. The new Reader is under a new editorship, and the gentleman at present in power seems to understand his work, which, if success is to be taken as an affirmative, his predecessors did not. The rumour that the Athenæum, a very fine value which was very well conducted, has made its appearance in print, is contradicted; but a new weekly review is spoken of. In the Particularly Review (our English Revue des Deux Mondes) Mr. M. D. Conway will give some remarkable recollections of Mr. Abraham Lincoln; and very shortly the Messrs. Strahan will put forward a new venture, particularly toward the Argosy, to be freighted with the golden produce of the brains of Mr. Charles Read, Miss Dinah Mulock, and others. Mr. Robert Buchanan will be the Orpheus of this bold band.

The new fire brigade, to which we referred last week, is, it appears, to be maintained by a halfpenny rate, producing £30,000, to which will be added £10,000 from the Government on behalf of public buildings, and £10,000 from the insurance offices as a contribution in lieu of their present expenses (now above £25,000); this will prove, therefore, both a relief to the "offices" and, we hope, an extension of protection from the dangers of fire to the public; but why the fire-escapes are omitted from the programme, and left to the voluntary contributions of the few we are at a loss to know. Add another building to the list, for Sir Geo. Grey, by no means a complete, a comprehensive measure by uniting the 100 men and eighty-five fire-escape stations of the fire-escape society to the 120 men of the fire-engine establishment; put the whole on one footing of efficiency for the protection of life and property, and Sir George Grey, by no means a bungler; all will then pay alike for that which benefits every man, woman, and little child in London always.

Now that M. Ste. Beuve is a Senator the seal of silence will be taken from his lips, and we shall, we hope, hold, some few of his Causeries du Lundi will be devoted to the review and analysis of the new Senator. Life of Lucien Bonaparte.

Of the banquet of the Artists' Benevolent Fund, of Miss Bateman's Bianca; and the appearance of Mdme. Judith at Manchester, another French-English and French-English play by Mr. Tom Taylor, I cannot here speak; I am but an echo, and I dare not trench on the province of my brother critics.

THE FARM.

THE rain has descended at last, with the most marked effect on the grass, plants, and vegetables generally; and if it continues only long enough to soften the stiff clay, which has been excited in Lincolnshire to the consistency of cast-iron, it will then, with Ipswich may feel that the traffic manager of the company told the chairman that "the number of the railway communicates to Bury presented difficulties on an occasion like this, which, he believed, would not be to be met with elsewhere." In fact, as his words are reported by a strong partisan, Mr. Hermann Biddell, who generally speaks with his pen, "the line had been stirring delivery chestnut' occasions. The latter also adds that the population of Bury is 25,000 souls, and that the town is the centre of a district of which Bury have to fall back on those accomplished plodders, the lodging-house keepers, &c., of Newmarket, and the hotels and inns of the pilgrims ever get there at all. Still, much as Ipswich may feel it, it is idle to call the decision "a gratuitous insult to the district." It was a double surprise, as Bury could hardly expect to get good luck, and Ipswich in its lad, which cannot now be repaired under twenty years. As to the Derby, it is a matter of indifference to the mere shadows of six each; the Mayor and no M.P. in one, and two M.P.'s, a Baronet and a Knight, in the other. Nobody can say which they know it was 66 to 1 (no takers) against them; Perhaps they trusted to the chance of Lincolnshire, and the fact of Bury not from laying "10 to 1 (taken freely)" on itself. Sir Massy Lopes, Bart., has been chosen to succeed Lord Eversley in the seat for the late Mr. Buller, on the nomination of Mr. Trower, the Mr. Turner; and fifty-nine new members were elected,—Derbyshire, Leicestershire, Lincolnshire, Notts, and Rutland, having "a the district for 1867, in which neither Leicester nor Nottingham has been visited as yet; and, which, without the addition of Derby, will not be visited at all. I hope, on the strength of its Burley bulocks and Barleythorpe ewes, that Rutland will be the Mayor's next visitation. Mr. Jas. Mr. Webb's "Derby ram," which was modelled for his Babraham residence, is, I am told, the finest ram that has been exhibited anywhere in all their bloom and beauty.

Mr. Kuvelaar has bought "Bonny Belle" from Mr. Eastwood, to go to Queensland, and Viscount Bosch, as her companion, from Mr. Richardson to be reaping the crops and steady fealty to Booth. Among the slaughterers at a last of Mr. Beesley's high-priced "Lots" is big, staring, and most unlucky cow, for which he gave 220 gs. at Mr. Overby's. But the cow is dead, and Mr. Beesley's "Lots" is announced, apparently on authority, that the Dawpool bed is to be sold in London. Mr. Mayoh's Mayoh's, and Mr. Mr. Beesley's Lots are nineteen in the herd, which passed from Mr. Bolden to the late Mr. Hegan in the year 1850, and from Mr. Hegan to Mr. Beesley's son Sir Grand Duke, and Imperial Oxford. If the offer which Captain Inane received for Mr. Beesley's Lots of Mr. Beesley's son could be any criterion, they ought to be worth a very large sum.

The sale of Mr. Beesley's Lots of Mr. Beesley's will be sold on June 7. A friend from the Cotswold and Oxford Down country writes thus:—"Sheep salesmen generally advise their customers not to send up anything to meet the market after Whitsuntide, but I know many those who ventured had 8d. per stone extra returned with their ticket, and many few pence more than they had in the previous week.

The Hereford people are bestirring themselves manfully, and have issued a grand list of prizes for their forthcoming show on the Three Bath and West of England show. It is as smooth as a bowling-green, without a fence for fifty miles round. It is a most convenient water for the working of machinery, and only a quarter of a mile from the Hereford railway station, and the show is to be held. The trial-field for the implements and steam-ploughs is on a slightly elevated ground contiguous to the showyard, so that persons from the latter will have a good view of the work. There are no less than forty entries for machinery in motion. Batchelor's Patent Reaping Machine, Bolgelleuchfynn from Mr. Lean; Mr. Rolling's Chieftain 2nd; Mr. Stallard's Chieftain 3rd; Commodore, from Mr. Lean to be sent to Queensland. Mr. Lean has all expected to be in the old Hereford bull ranks. Still the entries would have been much larger if the Corporation had made provisions for the stock master. The Corporation intend to register lodgings, and register a number of lodging-houses for the accommodation. Mr. Bowen's Herefords were sold at Mawley Town Farm, Chobury Mortimer, a short time since, but the prices were not high. The Hereford Times says that the sale was a failure, and that one of the several commissions have been executed, in which pedigree has always had its due weight.

The "pig-racing" has hardly begun yet in earnest, but Mr. Findlay has brought his Yorkshire Improved Large White Pigs to the front once more, and was first prizes in each of the large and middle classes. The Cardwell pigs will be found to be very good pigs for the Royal. They have increased and multiplied this month, as Northern Garland, Mr. Mallet, Mr. Mallet, Mr. Mallet, Mr. Mallet, Mr. Mallet, Mr. Mallet, and Battersea Lady, those twelve-month-old own sisters (of the large breed), from Battersea Princess, by "Wonder," Princess 2nd; and Queen Cockle Shell (of the small breed) a litter of seven King Cubes.

Mr. Beresford Hope has been elected president of the Institute of British Architects.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has consented to become the president of the Shakspeare Society.

There are in the Sandwich Islands about one hundred thousand souls, and there are no paupers in the country.

The Federal Diet at Frankfort has resolved to convoke a commission during this month with the object of inquiring into the means of introducing a uniform system of weights and measures in Germany.

The foundation of the new Surrey Theatre was laid last Saturday morning by Mr. Sothern, in the presence of a numerous assemblage, inasmuch as it will occupy a far greater space of ground. What was contemplated when the theatre was first built, in 1865, was that the pit, boxes, and the boxes, pit, and gallery will be constructed on a novel and, it is believed, improved plan.

The Queen has appointed Sir Rutherford Alcock, K.C.B., her Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Tycoon Consul in Japan, to be her Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Emperor of Japan; Sir Henry Smith Parker, K.C.B., her Majesty's Consul at Shanghai, to be her Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary and Consul-General in Japan; and Charles Alexander Winchester, Esq., now her Majesty's Consul at Kanagawa, to be her Majesty's Consul at Shanghai. The Queen has also appointed Sir Edmund Hornby, Knt., to be Judge of the Supreme Consular Court at Constantinople; to be Judge of the Supreme Court for China and Japan; Charles Wycliffe Goodwin, Esq., to be Assistant Judge of the Supreme Court for China and Japan; and John Fraser, Esq., to be Law Secretary and Registrar of the Supreme Court for China and Japan. The Queen has also appointed Frank Bingier Drummond Hay, now her Majesty's Consul in the Island of Crete, to be her Majesty's Consul-General at Tripoli; Charles Hanmer Dickson, Esq., now her Majesty's Consul at the ports of Soukhoum Kalé and Redout Kalé, to be her Majesty's Consul in the Island of Crete; and Frederick Roberts, Esq., now British Vice-Consul at Moscow, to be her Majesty's Consul at Moscow.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

LADY CLANMORRIS.

The Right Hon. Anne Maria, Dowager Baroness Clanmorris, who died on the 21th ult., in her eight-eighth year, was the only daughter and last surviving child of the eminent lawyer and judge, the Right Hon. Barry Yelverton, Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer in Ireland, and first Viscount Avonmore, member of the present Viscount Avonmore and of the Hon. Major William Charles Yelverton. Lady Clanmorris was married, seventy-three years ago, in 1792, to Stephen Clanmorris, who was born in 1762 and died in 1829, leaving her, with three sons, Barry Yelverton, Charles Bevan Clanmorris, and Stephen Bevan Clanmorris, father of John Charles Robert, the fourth and present Baron.

THE QUEEN'S CHAMPION.

The Hon. Sir Henry Dymoke, Bart., of Scrivelsby Court, in the county of Lincoln, Champion of England, who died on the 25th ult., after an illness of only two days, from diphtheria, was the elder son of the Rev. John Dymoke, Rector of Scrivelsby and Hagworthingham, by Amelia Anne, daughter of Alan Adair, Esquire, of Clapham Elphinstone, of the family of Admiral of the Realm. He was born on the 5th of March, 1801, and was the seventeenth in descent from Sir John Dymoke, who was Champion to Richard II. His grandfather, John Dymoke, was Champion at the coronation of George IV., as deputy for Lord Willoughby de Eresby, and he himself was called upon to officiate at the coronation of George IV. as deputy for Lord Carrington. He was appointed Champion on account of his clerical character. The plumed helmet, gauntlet, defender of loyalty, as he appeared revested on his war-horse, superbly caparisoned, and mounted on a charger of milk-white hue, was a splendid memorial of George IV.'s coronation; and many of our elder readers may still remember how the same was the pageant in the days of the Hon. Champion. Dymoke was his glittering suit, retiring, still mounted, from the Royal presence with the gold cup the King had graciously given him. He was succeeded by the somewhat cathartic coronalties of William IV. and Queen Victoria; so Henry Dymoke, though then already a man of mark (his father having died in 1826) never acted again. He was, however, created a Baronet in 1841, and was a magistrate for the county. He was married, in 1829, to Harriet, daughter of the late Sir Thomas de Ludlow Kut., by his wife, Anna, daughter and coheiress of Sir Marmion, The Marmions, and not, were Hereditary Champions to the Dukes of Normandy prior to the Conquest of England. Sir John Dymoke, the eldest son and heir of Sir Henry, succeeds to the Champion, acted as such at the coronation of Richard II. Among his descendants is Sir Edward Dymoke, who, as already explained, acted at the present coronation, as the occasion occurred. From the Sir Edward Dymoke who was Champion to Edward VI. descended Sir Henry Dymoke, who died on the 25th ult., and is now represented by Edmund Lionel Wailes, Esq., of The Grange, West Mosley, Lancashire, who, by inheritance, very few offshoots of this peculiarly old and knightly house of Dymoke survive.

THE DUKE DE COIGNY.

Augustine Louis Joseph, Duke de Coigny, Marquis de Franquetot, second Duke de Coigny, who died on the 2nd inst., at Paris, was the head and representative of the very ancient family of Franquetot, which has been long extinct. Here he have given two marshals to France. He was the son of the youngest of the two sons of Marshal Duke de Coigny, who was killed in 1759 at Minden, and Marshal Franquetot, Duke de Coigny, who was killed in the French army during the First Empire, and became Marshal of France in 1809, was a Peer of France, and died in 1821. He was born in 1788, and his late Duchess of Orleans. He married, in 1822, Henrietta Dundas, daughter of Sir John Dalrymple Hamilton, Bart., by his wife, Jane, eldest daughter of the illustrious seaman, Adam Duncan, first Viscount Duncan of Camperdown, by whom, who survives him, he had a son, Augustine, Count de Coigny, Esq., secondly, in 1854, Maria Isabella, daughter of Sir Thomas de Ludlow Kut., by his wife, Anna, daughter and coheiress of Sir Marmion, The Marmions, and not, were Hereditary Champions to the Dukes of Normandy prior to the Conquest of England. Sir John Dymoke, the eldest son and heir of Sir Henry, succeeds to the Champion, acted as such at the coronation of Richard II. Among his descendants is Sir Edward Dymoke, who, as already explained, acted at the present coronation, as the occasion occurred. From the Sir Edward Dymoke who was Champion to Edward VI. descended Sir Henry Dymoke, who died on the 25th ult., and is now represented by Edmund Lionel Wailes, Esq., of The Grange, West Mosley, Lancashire, who, by inheritance, very few offshoots of this peculiarly old and knightly house of Dymoke survive.

THE DUKE DE COIGNY.

Augustine Louis Joseph, Duke de Coigny, Marquis de Franquetot, second Duke de Coigny, who died on the 2nd inst., at Paris, was the head and representative of the very ancient family of Franquetot, which has been long extinct. Here he have given two marshals to France. He was the son of the youngest of the two sons of Marshal Duke de Coigny, who was killed in 1759 at Minden, and Marshal Franquetot, Duke de Coigny, who was killed in the French army during the First Empire, and became Marshal of France in 1809, was a Peer of France, and died in 1821. He was born in 1788, and his late Duchess of Orleans. He married, in 1822, Henrietta Dundas, daughter of Sir John Dalrymple Hamilton, Bart., by his wife, Jane, eldest daughter of the illustrious seaman, Adam Duncan, first Viscount Duncan of Camperdown, by whom, who survives him, he had a son, Augustine, Count de Coigny, Esq., secondly, in 1854, Maria Isabella, daughter of Sir Thomas de Ludlow Kut., by his wife, Anna, daughter and coheiress of Sir Marmion, The Marmions, and not, were Hereditary Champions to the Dukes of Normandy prior to the Conquest of England. Sir John Dymoke, the eldest son and heir of Sir Henry, succeeds to the Champion, acted as such at the coronation of Richard II. Among his descendants is Sir Edward Dymoke, who, as already explained, acted at the present coronation, as the occasion occurred. From the Sir Edward Dymoke who was Champion to Edward VI. descended Sir Henry Dymoke, who died on the 25th ult., and is now represented by Edmund Lionel Wailes, Esq., of The Grange, West Mosley, Lancashire, who, by inheritance, very few offshoots of this peculiarly old and knightly house of Dymoke survive.

THE DUKE DE COIGNY.

Augustine Louis Joseph, Duke de Coigny, Marquis de Franquetot, second Duke de Coigny, who died on the 2nd inst., at Paris, was the head and representative of the very ancient family of Franquetot, which has been long extinct. Here he have given two marshals to France. He was the son of the youngest of the two sons of Marshal Duke de Coigny, who was killed in 1759 at Minden, and Marshal Franquetot, Duke de Coigny, who was killed in the French army during the First Empire, and became Marshal of France in 1809, was a Peer of France, and died in 1821. He was born in 1788, and his late Duchess of Orleans. He married, in 1822, Henrietta Dundas, daughter of Sir John Dalrymple Hamilton, Bart., by his wife, Jane, eldest daughter of the illustrious seaman, Adam Duncan, first Viscount Duncan of Camperdown, by whom, who survives him, he had a son, Augustine, Count de Coigny, Esq., secondly, in 1854, Maria Isabella, daughter of Sir Thomas de Ludlow Kut., by his wife, Anna, daughter and coheiress of Sir Marmion, The Marmions, and not, were Hereditary Champions to the Dukes of Normandy prior to the Conquest of England. Sir John Dymoke, the eldest son and heir of Sir Henry, succeeds to the Champion, acted as such at the coronation of Richard II. Among his descendants is Sir Edward Dymoke, who, as already explained, acted at the present coronation, as the occasion occurred. From the Sir Edward Dymoke who was Champion to Edward VI. descended Sir Henry Dymoke, who died on the 25th ult., and is now represented by Edmund Lionel Wailes, Esq., of The Grange, West Mosley, Lancashire, who, by inheritance, very few offshoots of this peculiarly old and knightly house of Dymoke survive.

VICE-ADMIRAL SIR EDWARD HAWLEY, K.C.B.

Sir Edward Hawley, K.C.B., who died, as we stated in our last, at Walmer, Kent, was the scion of a distinguished naval family. He was thy his wife, Judith, daughter of Sir Edward Pellew, Bart., Viscount Exmouth, and last surviving son of the gallant Captain John Hawley, R.N., who was mortally wounded in command of the Ramillies, on the glorious 1st of June, 1794, and whose monument is in Westminster Abbey. Sir Edward was also brother of the late Admiral Sir Henry Hawley, G.C.B., who died in 1858. He was born, 81 years old, entered the Royal Navy aboard the Brunswick, 74, commanded by his father. He afterwards was midshipman in the Prince of Wales, 98, the flag-ship of Sir Alex. Hood, Rear-Admiral of the Blue Squadron, and was present at the capture of Trinidad and the destruction of the Spanish squadron in Bisgnarota Bay, in 1797. In the Canopus, 80, in the Battle of Camperdown. He obtained his commission as Lieutenant in July, 1805, and was then appointed to the Endymion 40, and employed off the Danish and Swedish West Indian Islands, in that year. As Lieutenant of the Intrepid, he commanded the boats which cut out a Spanish corvette from her ship at the capture of Cape, and he also served at the defence of Gosta. As Commander of the Bermuda, 18, he was actively employed in the Gulf of Gaeta, captured four French privateers; and, while employed on the defence of Corfu, he commanded the boats which cut out a French brig. He was appointed, in February, 1815, to command the Impregnable, 74, in the Mediterranean, where his command services, in 1840, on the coast of Syria, and also in the bombardment of Acre, procured for him official thanks; and from the Sultan, a gold medal, sabre, and decoration. He became a Rear-Admiral in 1847, and was next in command to Sir Baldwin Walker, Surveyor and Superintendent of Malta Dockyard from 1848 to 1853. He was made a Vice-Admiral in 1858, a Knight Commander in 1860; and was Superintendent-Chief at the Nore from 1857 to 1860. He enjoyed an admiral's good-service pension. He was made a C.B. in 1815, and a Knight Commander in 1860. He married, in 1814, Eliza Ann, daughter of John Cannon, Esq., of Middle Hill, Worcester, by his wife, Anne, daughter of Sir Edward Pellew, Bart., Viscount Exmouth, by whom, who survives him, he had a son, Edward Augustus, R.N., who married Miss Anne, relic of R. Jervoise Clarke Jervoise, Esq., of Sandwich, and Mary, wife of Robert Ogle, Esq., J.P., of Eglingham Hall, Northumberland, and died in 1862; and a daughter, Sophia Jane, Harvey, 9th Regiment, died, leaving an only son, Lieutenant John William Francis Harvey, R.N.

VICE-ADMIRAL ROBERT FITZROY.

Vice-Admiral Robert Fitzroy, chief of the meteorological division of the Board of Trade, who died suddenly, from meteorological knowledge or by his system of forewarning stormy weather, was the youngest son of General Lord Charles Fitzroy, by his wife, Lady Augusta Boyle, eldest surviving daughter of Robert, first Marquis of Londonderry, and was the grandson of Augustus Henry, third Duke of Grafton, K.G. He was born in 1805, entered the Royal Navy in October, 1819, and became a Lieutenant in 1824. He afterwards served on the Mediterranean and Home Stations, and was made, in 1828, Flag-Lieutenant to Rear-Admiral Robert Gray at Rio Janeiro; and, in 1829, Commander of the Beagle, employed on the coast of South America from 1829 to 1830, on important hydrographical operations. He was made Captain in 1831, and in 1835 was elected a chair of meritorious conduct for the survey of the Straits of Magellan. From 1841 to 1844 he was made Governor of New Zealand, which appointment he held until 1846. He was Rear-Admiral in 1857, and Vice-Admiral Sept. 12, 1863. Admiral Fitzroy's scientific researches in meteorology have procured for him the honour of knighthood, and the Society of Arts was a Fellow of the Royal Society, and of many other learned bodies. The deceased married, in 1828, Miss Henrietta Jenkins, second daughter of Major-General Edward James O'Brien, by whom, who died in 1863, he leaves a son, Lieutenant Robert Charles Fitzroy, R.N., who married, in 1862, Sarah Ann, second daughter of Mr. Thomas Hall, of Bagshot, Surrey, Esq., secondly, in 1854, Maria Isabella, by whom, who survives him, he has had a daughter, Laura Maria Elizabeth. Admiral Fitzroy died on the 30th ult., at his residence, Lyndhurst House, Norwood, from an act of suicide committed while in a state of mental derangement. His demise has been much regretted by the public and by all who knew him. His system of storm warnings, though but a few years old, will soon be universally employed throughout Europe, owing not a little to the able co-operation of the savants, Le Verrier and Buys Ballot. The result of the first year's use of these signals commended the appreciation of both scientific and practical men, and they are now looked upon as essential as a life-boat or a light-house. Admiral Fitzroy, the originator of the system, was the son of Admiral Fitzroy's death would have been a public calamity, but that his system had survived him, and that his other friendly warnings, the decrease of deadly war of our sailors and fishermen in the last monument to the gallant Admiral's memory.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

Probate of the will of Field Marshal Viscount Combermere, G.C.B., G.C.H., P.C., D.C.L., K.T.S., Portugal; K.C.F., Spain; of Combermere Abbey, Chester, and Belgrave-square, London, was granted by her Majesty's Court of Probate on the 25th ult. to his son, Colonel the Right Hon. Wellington Henry Stapleton, Stapleton-Cotton, Viscount Combermere, the sole executor. The personalty was sworn under £16,000. This highly distinguished military officer, who died at the age of ninety-two, was thrice married. His will bears date July 8, 1862. To his wife, Lady Combermere, he has left all paintings, drawings, and other works of art which were executed by her Ladyship or otherwise procured by her; who may also make selection from amongst his jewellery of a ring or other ornament of the value of £100; and he leaves to her Ladyship the use of all the furniture at his residence, Belgrave-square. To his daughters he has left tokens of affectionate remembrance. To his son, the present Viscount, he bequeaths all the stars, orders, swords, trophies, military accoutrements, presentation plate, together with all other plate, books, maps, &c., to be held as heirlooms; also, by virtue of a power of appointments, leaves to his said son a sum of £12,800, being part of a sum under marriage settlement, and appoints him residuary legatee. There is a legacy of £300 bequeathed to his Lordship's butler.

The will of Sir William Berkeley Call, Bart., late of Whiteford House, near Callington, Cornwall, and of Old Bond-street, was proved in the London Court, on the 10th ult., and the personal property sworn under £30,000; the executors nominated being Charles Edward Rashleigh, of Farningham Hall, Kent, and the Rev. Henry Burvill Rashleigh, B.A., of Horton Kirby. The testator was the eldest son of the late Sir William Pratt Call, Bart., and Louisa, daughter of the fifth Earl of Granard. He was a partner in the banking-house of Call, Marten, and Co., London; was High Sheriff for Cornwall in 1856; and special Deputy Warden of the Stannaries. He succeeded to the baronetcy in 1851, and died in his fiftieth year, having executed his will three days before his death. He leaves the whole of his property to be divided in the same manner as is pointed out in the statute of distribution of intestates' personal estate.

The will of the Ven. Charles James Hoare, M.A., late Archdeacon of Surrey, Canon of Winchester, and Vicar of Godstone, was proved in the London Court under £30,000 personalty, the executors being his sons, Charles Richard Hoare, Esq.; the Rev. George Tooker Hoare, M.A.; and Henry Gerard Hoare, Esq. The will is dated 1852, with two codicils, 1857 and 1860. The testator had held the living of Godstone since 1821, of which he was patron; Canon of Winchester, 1831; Archdeacon of Surrey, 1847. The estates devised to him under the will of the late Samuel Tooker he leaves to his eldest son, Charles, subject to his wife's life interest therein; confirms the settlement made on his marriage, in 1811; and leaves to his wife an immediate legacy of £200 and all his English and French books. His works on theological subjects—in Hebrew, Greek, Latin, or polyglot—to be divided between his three sons in orders, each work to be selected by them alternately; all his other books to be divided amongst his wife and children. To his said son the Rev. George Tooker Hoare he gives the right of presentation to the living of Godstone. He leaves to each of his six sons and one daughter that which will realise from his estates to each the sum of £8000, and bequeaths the residue of his property equally amongst them.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Professor Frankland's fourth lecture on organic chemistry, given on Thursday, the 4th inst., was devoted to the experimental illustration of the structure and properties of the organic hydrogens (methyl, ethyl, amyl, and cyanogen) and their hydrides being taken as examples. The hydride of ethyl (marsh gas, firedamp, or light carburetted hydrogen) was first examined; and its flame acquired brilliancy when it was burnt in chlorine. Ethyl (a hydro-carbon), the compound radical of ether and of alcohol, was produced, and shown to be an inflammable gas, liquefiable by the pressure of two and a half atmospheres. Methyl (a hydro-carbon) is a gaseous body, burning with a feeble, bluish flame. The discovery of cyanogen (composed of carbon and nitrogen) by Gay Lussac, in 1814, was an important chemical event. It is a colourless, poisonous gas, soluble in water. It is an element in the pigment prussian blue. Cyanogen is liquefied by a pressure of four atmospheres. It combines with potassium, forming the cyanide of potassium, so much employed in photography. Hydrocyanic or prussic acid (a colourless, transparent, volatile liquid) is made by distilling cyanide of potassium with sulphuric acid. It is formed when bitter almonds or the kernels of plums, peaches, &c., are moistened with water, and is found in the water distilled from laurel leaves. Its elements are perfectly harmless, yet it is one of the most deadly poisons known. The vapours of cyanogen compounds are very dangerous, and loss of life has ensued through accidentally inhaling them. A compound of cyanogen and potassium is formed when nitrogen is passed over an ignited mixture of potash and charcoal, and also when horn, leather, and other nitrogenous organic substances are heated with potash.

Mr. Henry Fawcett, Professor of Political Economy in the University of Cambridge, gave the Friday evening discourse on the 5th inst., "On Wealth, and those who produce it." We can give only the leading points. There are three classes engaged in the production of wealth—the landowner, the capitalist, and the labourer. The two former have shared in the great prosperity of the country; but the last has not made a corresponding advance in his position, but rather the contrary. The yeomen and small freeholders of former times have passed away, and the land has merged into the hands of large proprietors. The reports of Dr. Hunter and others show that hundreds of thousands of our useful classes in cities and in the country live in a most uncivilised condition, tending to the destruction of all feelings of delicacy and self-respect; and the wages of agricultural labourers, about 9s. a week, are barely sufficient to supply even necessaries. At the beginning of the century there was a surplus population; but emigration had created colonies which may eventually become great empires. In Australia the labourer can earn five times as much wages, save money, and become a landowner, while his prospect here, when his strength is exhausted by work in our rigorous climate, is the position of a mendicant soliciting relief from the parish. If this goes on increasing, our criminal and pauper population will be greatly increased. Philanthropy cannot affect wages; they must be regulated by the law of demand and supply. Still utter neglect is a short-sighted and suicidal policy. Land and capital will become of little value if labour be wanting; and the whole world is now asking for English labour. The value of labour may be raised by education, and the interest of the employer and employed may be made one. The Messrs. Crossley, of Halifax, give their workmen shares in the business on the limited liability principle, with great advantage to both parties. This might be done by landowners. The use of machinery will call for more skilled labour, and wages will thus rise. Professor Fawcett expressed his hope that a change for the better had begun; but, in conclusion, reiterated his conviction that the amelioration of the condition of the labouring classes was a subject of great national importance. Sir Henry Holland, Bart., president, was in the chair.

Professor Bain's second lecture on the physical accompaniments of mind was devoted to the intellect. This, in the final analysis, contains discrimination, or consciousness of difference; similarity, or consciousness of agreement; and retentiveness, or memory. After a brief discussion of discrimination and similarity, he proceeded to inquire into the physical basis of retentiveness, or memory. He first considered the physical seat of ideas, or remembered impressions, and held it as proved, almost beyond a doubt, that "the renewed feeling or impression occupies the very same parts, and in the same manner, as the originals, and no other parts, nor in any other manner that can be assigned." The comparative feebleness of ideas, or remembered states, had for its counterpart the diminished force of the revived currents corresponding to them. The general statement of the cerebral mechanism of retention was 'For every act of memory, every exercise of bodily aptitude, every habit, recollection, or train of ideas there is a specific grouping, or co-ordination of sensations and movements, by virtue of specific growths in the cell junctions." This was supported by a variety of considerations; and the Professor dwelt particularly on the limit to our acquisitions, as attested by many facts. What we call an acquirement, or an established connection between one sense impression and another, one movement and another, or one or more sense-impressions and movements, may be very simple or very complicated; but taking, as a typical instance, the learning the name of an object, as the sun, we might form some sort of numerical estimate of the human acquisitions as a whole. It would not be difficult to show that an ordinary person would not have fewer than 10,000 connections of that degree of complication, and that the most extraordinary person could not have more than 50,000. We can compare these numbers with the rough estimate of the number of fibres and cells in the brain, so as to show the possibility of there being many thousands of cells and fibres allotted to every separate acquisition. It is necessary, however, for the same sense-fibre to actuate different motor fibres according (1) as it is differently grouped, and (2) as it is unequally stimulated. This implies a vast system of cross connections between the nerve cells. The final circumstance in the physical bond of memory is a process of growth in the cell-junctions whereby a strengthened connection or diminished obstruction takes place after a time between two or more special nerve-circuits among those that come together in the same cell, so that one of these shall actuate the others by special preference over the rest.

Professor Frankland's fifth lecture on organic chemistry, delivered on Tuesday last, was devoted to the consideration of the structure and properties of organic waters, comprising alcohols, ethers, and ethereal salts. The alcohols (a numerous class) consist of water (hydrogen, 2; and oxygen, 1), in which one of the atoms of hydrogen is replaced by a compound basylous, organic radical, like ethyl. Wood spirit (or methylic alcohol) was the alcohol first examined. It is usually obtained by the distillation of wood, but has been artificially produced by Berthelot from marsh gas, through the agency of chlorine, as was shown by experiment. Much advantage has been obtained in the arts by spirits of wine being made duty free when mixed with a certain quantity of methylic alcohol. Common or vinic alcohol, produced by the fermentation of saccharine matter, is the intoxicating principle of all beers, wines, and spirits. When pure it is very mobile (and hence is used in spirit-levels), never solidifies, and is therefore used in thermometers for low temperatures; it is very inflammable, and boils at 78·4 centigrade. The gunpowder test for proof was shown. Powder wetted with under-proof spirit will not explode on ignition; it does so with proof spirit. The qualities and peculiarities of various spirits and wines were described, and the results of the researches of Dr. Bence Jones's researches exhibited in diagrams. In brandy the quantity of alcohol is about 53 per cent; in rum, 72; in whisky, 59·4; in port and sherry, about 21; in strong ale, 10·5; in cider 6·8. The cost of a gallon of pure alcohol, as contained in the following spirits and wines, was stated to be—in brandy, 49s.; rum, 28s.; sherry, 85s.; port, 119s.; claret, 142s.; champagne, 172s.; in ale and stout, only 15s.

The evening discourse on Friday, May 19, will be given by William Huggins, Esq., F.R.A.S., "On the Physical and Chemical Constitution of the Fixed Stars and Nebulæ."

On Saturday, the 20th inst., Mr. Alexander Herschel will commence a course of three lectures on Meteorology, with more especial reference to the laws of storms and the system of coast warning for the prevention of shipwrecks.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

HERR K.—Are you sure of its accuracy? We fear there is a second mate.

A BEWILDERED TRIO.—The first move in the solution of Mr. Healey's Problem, No. 1105, is Kt to K B 6th; not, as printed in some copies, 1. Kt to K B 4th. You will find the problem perfectly correct.

C. T. G., M.P.—The publishers of the volume of "I. B. of Bridport's" beautiful problems, Messrs. Trübner, of Paternoster-row, will supply you.

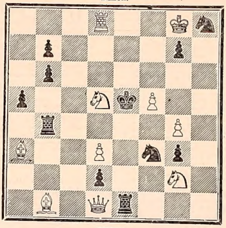
G. A. L. G.—They shall have due attention.

X.—There is no utility and no beauty in the "Symmetrical Problem" by "X." He had much better try his hand at an ordinary mate, as near as may be resembling the actual termination of a game.

JULIO, A.M.—It is very easy, but not without ingenuity. You want only experience in composition.

E. B. SMART.—We have not room; but in the May number of the Chess World you will find the subject treated with great ability and pungency.

 Want of space this week compels the postponement of many answers to correspondents.



SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1106.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. P takes P (ch)	K to K R 2nd (best)
2. Q to K Kt 7th (ch)	R takes Q
3. Kt from Q 7th to K B 6th (ch)	P takes Kt
4. Kt takes P. Mate.

PROBLEM NO. 1107.

By Mr. W. H. TAYLOR.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

CHESS IN YORKSHIRE.

A smart Skirmish between Messrs. WATKINSON and TEGELER, two prominent Yorkshire chess amateurs.—(Petroff's Defence.)

BLACK (Mr. G. T.)	WHITE (Mr. J. W.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd
3. Kt takes P	P to Q 3rd
4. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt takes P
5. P to Q 4th	P to Q 4th
6. B to Q 3rd	B to Q 3rd
7. Castles	Castles
8. P to Q B 4th	P to Q B 3rd
9. Q to Q B 2nd	B to K B 4th
10. P to Q B 5th	B to Q B 2nd
11. Kt to Q B 3rd	R to K sq
12. R to K sq	B to Q R 4th
13. B to K B 4th	Kt to Q 2nd
14. R to K 3rd	B takes Kt
15. P takes B	Q Kt to K B 3rd
16. Kt to K 5th	Kt to K R 4th
17. P to K Kt 3rd	Kt takes B
18. P takes Kt	Q to K R 5th
19. Q R to K sq	P to K B 3rd
20. P to K B 3rd	P takes Kt
21. P takes Kt	P takes K B P
22. K R to K 2nd	P to K B 6th
23. R to K 3rd	R to K 3rd
24. K to R sq	Q R to K sq
25. P to K 5th	B takes B
26. Q takes B	R to K R 3rd, and wins.

CHESS IN LONDON.

A brilliant little Game between Mr. P. T. DUFFY, one of the most promising players of the day, and Mr. JANSENS.—(French Opening.)

BLACK (Mr. D.)	WHITE (Mr. J.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 3rd
2. P to Q 4th	P to Q 4th
3. P takes P	P takes P
4. Kt to K B 3rd	P to Q B 4th
5. B to Q 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd
6. Castles	P to K R 3rd
7. R to K sq (ch)	B to K 3rd
8. B to K B 5th	Q to Q Kt 3rd
9. Kt to K 5th	B to K 2nd

(It is hardly necessary to show, even to the youngest player, that if White had captured the Bishop he would have lost his Queen for a Rook and Bishop by a discovered check.)

10. Kt to K Kt 6th

(The beginning of a very pretty chain of moves.)

BLACK (Mr. D.)	WHITE (Mr. J.)
10.	P takes Kt
11. R takes B	Kt to Q B 3rd
12. B takes P (ch)	K to Q sq
13. Kt to Q B 3rd	P takes Q P
14. B to K B 4th

(All this is extremely clever on Mr. Duffy's part, and leads to a beautiful termination.)

14. — P takes Kt

(A grave error; but it is hard to see how White could have avoided loss of some kind. The natural move of Queen taking the Q Kt Pawn would have been followed by R to Q Kt sq, and then R takes Q Kt P. After which White's position must have been indefensible.)

15. R takes K Kt — Q to Q 5th

(If he had captured the Rook he would have been mated offhand.)

16. B to Q B 7th (ch)

(Highly ingenious. Winning the Queen by force.)

BLACK (Mr. D.)	WHITE (Mr. J.)
16.	K to Q 2nd
17. B to K B 5th (ch)	K takes B

(Compulsory, unless he prefer being mated in two moves.)

18. R takes Kt (ch) — P takes R

19. Q takes Q, and wins easily.

CHESS IN PARIS.

A tourney which has been carried on for some months among the habitués of the Café de la Régence has just terminated in a pool between the three surviving combatants, Messrs. Rosenthal and Mortimer of the first class, and Mr. Duclos, of the second; and the first-named gentleman, having successively defeated his adversaries in this pool, has been proclaimed the conqueror of the tournament.

The moves of the decisive Game, in which Mr. ROSENTHAL gave the Pawn and move to Mr. DUCLOS, are as follow:—

(Remove White's K B Pawn from the Board.)

BLACK (Mr. D.)	WHITE (Mr. R.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 3rd
2. P to Q 4th	P to Q B 4th
3. P to Q B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
4. P to K B 4th	P takes Q P
5. P takes P	P to Q 4th
6. P to K 5th	B to Q Kt 5th (ch)
7. B to Q 2nd	B to K 2nd
8. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to K R 3rd
9. B to Q 3rd	Castles
10. Castles	Q to Q Kt 3rd
11. Q to Q B 2nd	Kt to K B 4th

(Taking the Q Pawn with Kt would not have bettered White's game.)

12. B to Q B 3rd — B to Q 2nd

(Mr. Journoud suggests the following variation as consequent on White playing—

12.	Kt to K 6th
13. B takes P (ch)	K to R sq
14. Q to K Kt 6th	Kt takes R
15. Q to K R 5th, &c.

13. Q Kt to Q 2nd — Q R to Q B sq

(The full force of this move Black failed to comprehend, and suffered accordingly.)

BLACK (Mr. D.)	WHITE (Mr. R.)
14. Kt to Q Kt 3rd	Kt to Q Kt 5th
15. Q to Q 2nd	Kt takes B
16. Q takes Kt	B to Q Kt 4th
17. Q to Q 2nd	B takes R
18. R takes B	Q to Q Kt 4th
19. Kt to Q B sq

(If Mr. Duclos had played K Kt to Kt 5th, the following pretty variation, Mr. Journoud shows us, would have followed:—

19. Kt to K Kt 5th	B takes Kt
20. P takes B	Q takes R (ch)
21. K takes Q	Kt to Kt 6th (double ch)
22. K moves	R mates

We now see, what to many was inexplicable at the moment of play, the cause of Mr. Rosenthal's previous move of Q to Q Kt 4th.)

BLACK (Mr. D.)	WHITE (Mr. R.)
19.	R to K B 2nd
20. Kt to K 2nd	P to K Kt 3rd
21. P to K Kt 4th	Kt to Kt 2nd
22. P to K R 3rd

(He should rather have played 22. P to K R 4th.)

BLACK (Mr. D.)	WHITE (Mr. R.)
22.	Q R to K B sq
23. Kt to K R 2nd	P to K Kt 4th
24. P takes P	R takes R (ch)
25. Kt takes R	B takes P
26. Q takes B	Q takes Kt
27. Kt to K 3rd	Q to K B 7th (ch)
28. K to R sq	Q to K B 6th (ch)
29. K to Kt sq	Q to Kt 6th (ch)
30. Kt to Kt 2nd	R to K B 7th and Black abandoned the game.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

6th Dragoon Guards: Cornet G. Pritchard to be Lieutenant. 7th: Lieut. E. Molyneux to be Captain; Cornets M. R. C. Yescombe and R. D'Oller George to be Lieutenants; Ensign J. P. D. Vanrenen and Cornet H. A. Cherry to be Cornets.

13th Hussars: W. G. Middleton to be Cornet. 15th: Lieut. H. Humphrys to be Captain; Cornet R. M. Briscoe to be Lieutenant; Vet. Surg. J. Burr to be Veterinary Surgeon.

16th Lancers; W. N. Hill to be Cornet.

Royal Artillery: Second Capt. C. D. Gilmour to be Adjutant; Quartermaster Serg. W. Graham and Serg.-Major R. M'Callum to be Quartermasters.

Royal Engineers: Capt. and Brevet Col. J. F. M. Browne to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Capt. J. H. Smith to be Captain; Cadet P. J. D. Lindoe to be Lieutenant.

Military Train: Capt. G. Horner to be Captain; Lieut. G. V. Lambe to be Lieutenant.

2nd Foot: Surg. F. Cogan to be Surgeon Major. 3rd: Capt. F. K. Pearson to be Major; Lieut. T. Jones to be Captain; Ensign C. E. Reeves to be Lieutenant; A. A. Barnard to be Ensign. 5th: Lieut. W. Enderby to be Captain; Ensign E. Drew to be Lieutenant. 6th: Ensign S. G. Granville to be Lieutenant; R. Meredith to be Ensign. 9th: Ensign J. A. Ind to be Lieutenant; C. H. Shepherd to be Ensign. 10th: Lieut. M. Coke to be Captain; Ensign H. C. Huntley to be Lieutenant. 11th: Ensigns F. H. Vaughton and E. R. M. Baskerville to be Lieutenants; Cadet D. T. Kinder to be Ensign. 13th: Lieut. St. J. Green to be Lieutenant; C. Hollingworth to be Ensign. 19th: Capt. A. Seagrim to be Captain. 20th: Capt. J. M'Nameo to be Captain. 23rd: Lieut. A. R. Winstanley to be Captain; Ensign J. C. Bradshaw to be Lieutenant; F. L. Mordaunt to be Ensign. 32nd: J. J. Glascott to be Ensign. 36th: Capt. J. J. Oemer to be Captain. 40th: Ensign E. Stack to be Lieutenant; Cadet A. Wilkinson to be Ensign. 47th: Lieut. W. S. Dent to be Adjutant. 48th: Lieut. T. C. Hincks to be Adjutant; Lieut. R. O. Aldworth to be Instructor of Musketry. 60th: Ensign E. W. H. Crofton to be Lieutenant; W. Mitchell-Innes to be Ensign. 62nd: Major and Brevet Col. R. G. A. Luard to be Major; Lieut. G. F. Grant to be Captain; Ensign R. N. Gream to be Lieutenant; J. Bennett to be Ensign. 63rd: Capt. A. M. Armstrong to be Captain. 64th: Ensign W. F. Tryon to be Lieutenant; J. T. Boileau to be Ensign. 69th: Capt. the Hon. C. J. F. Powys to be Captain; Ensign J. C. H. Mansfield to be Lieutenant; A. Kerr to be Ensign. 73rd: Ensign J. W. Boddam to be Lieutenant; H. J. Harrison to be Ensign. 75th: R. Wilson to be Ensign. 79th: Capt. and Brevet Major G. M. Miller to be Major; Lieut. E. Everett to be Captain. 81st: Lieut. H. B. Pedder to be Lieutenant. 83rd: Capt. and Brevet Major E. W. Bray to be Major; Lieut. T. G. Coote to be Captain; Ensign H. G. Wilson to be Lieutenant; Cadet C. J. Wyndham to be Ensign. 89th: Major J. B. Kirk to be Major. 99th: Capt. R. H. Hackett to be Captain. 98th: Major J. M. Cuppage to be Major. 101st: Lieut. W. D. Sladen to be Lieutenant. 102nd: Lieut. J. M'Mullin to be Lieutenant. 103rd: Lieut. W. S. Nugent to be Instructor of Musketry.

Royal Canadian Rifle Regiment: Capt. J. P. Boyd to be Captain.

2nd West India Regiment: Capt. J. M. Toppin to be Captain. 4th: Capt. J. H. Lawrence-Archer to be Captain; Lieut. F. C. Gavegan to be Lieutenant; Ensign R. K. Barrow to be Ensign.

Rifle Brigade: Ensign A. Cope to be Lieutenant; Ensign R. A. Walpole to be Ensign.

STAFF.—Major and Brevet Col. J. E. Thackwell to be Deputy Adjutant-General to the Forces serving in British North America.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.—Staff Surg.-Major T. W. Barrow to be Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals.

CHAPLAIN'S DEPARTMENT.—The Revs. J. Virtue and S. B. Windsor, Chaplains of the fourth class, to be Chaplains of the third class.

HALF PAY.—Major and Brevet Lieut.-Col. E. G. Buller to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Lieut. R. J. Stewart to be Captain.

BREVET.—Lieut.-Cols. C. N. North, H. A. White, and G. B. Milman to be Colonels. Major R. Bates to be Lieutenant-Colonel. Quartermasters T. Hendley, W. Hoge, and W. Stewart to have the honorary rank of Captain. Deputy-Commissaries E. Reke, A. O'Berne, H. Wheldon, and J. W. W. Ord to have the honorary rank of Lieutenant.

ADMIRALTY.

The following flag promotions will be made in consequence of the death of Admiral Sir Edward Harvey, on the 4th inst.:—Vice-Admiral Sir R. L. Baynes, K.C.B., to be Admiral; Vice-Admiral Sir J. B. Dundas, Bart., on the reserved list, to be Admiral on the same list; Rear-Admiral R. L. Warren, to be Vice-Admiral; Capt. W. Houstoun, a recipient of the good-service pension, to be Rear-Admiral.

The examination of candidates for direct commissions began on Monday at the Royal Hospital, Chelsea, before the vice-president and other members of the Council of Military Education. There are above 150 candidates on this occasion. The examination extends over the entire week.

General Sir John Fox Burgoyne, G.C.B., upon whom the Queen recently conferred the ancient military dignity of Constable and Governor of the Tower of London, which had become vacant by the death of the veteran Lord Combermere, was on Tuesday publicly invested with the office with much military pomp and circumstance.

The General Cauldfield, sailing-transport, arrived at Spithead, yesterday week, from India, with military invalids and time-expired men. The former were transferred to Netley Hospital and the latter sent to their several dépôts.——The chartered troop-ship Agamemnon arrived at Gravesend, from Bombay, on Thursday week, having on board the head-quarters of the 17th Lancers, on the completion of their term of service in India. The strength of the regiment consists of 390 men of all ranks, twenty-six women, and fifty-one children, five officers' wives and seven children, together with the following officers—viz., Lieutenant-Colonel L. E. Knight; Captains J. Duncan, C. Waymouth, J. Goldie, W. Balfe, and B. Chamley; Lieutenants A. J. Billing, R. T. Goldsworthy, H. R. Abadie, G. Rosser, and J. D. Jackson; Cornets E. H. Maunsell, S. Y. Clark, and W. A. Ellis; Adjutant G. Pumfrett, Riding-master T. Martin, Quartermaster J. Berryman, and Surgeon J. Kellie, M.D. In addition to the 17th Lancers, the Agamemnon also brought home a number of time-expired men and other troops belonging to the first battalion of the 1st Royals. On the troops being landed, they were conveyed to Colchester, where they will be quartered.

The Lords of the Admiralty have decided on adopting the turret in connection with the broadside principle in the iron-plated frigate Hercules, the order for the commencement of which has been received at Chatham. The vessel is to be built from the designs of Mr. E. J. Reed. The plan decided upon is a central armour-plated battery for the broadside 300-pounder and other guns, as in the Bellerophon, just completed at Chatham; the Pallas, at Woolwich; and others of Mr. Reed's ships, together with two turrets carried one aft and the other forward.

The half-yearly inspection of the first battalion Coldstream Guards, commanded by Colonel Airey, C.B., now quartered at Windsor, took place, on Tuesday, in the Home Park, near the London and South-Western Railway terminus. After a minute inspection of the arms and accoutrements, the troops were put through a variety of company and battalion movements. At the close they were complimented by Lord Frederick Paulet.

THE MILITIA.

The militia establishment in the United Kingdom last year amounted to 4686 officers, 5027 non-commissioned officers, and 124,622 privates. There were present at training on the day of inspection 2494 officers, 4491 non-commissioned officers, and 96,036 privates. There were absent from training 475 officers with leave, forty-three officers without leave, fifty non-commissioned officers with leave, and twenty-two without leave, 2115 privates with leave, and 8227 without leave. There were wanting to complete last year, 1674 officers, 474 non-commissioned officers, and 18,319 privates. A note which is given in explanation of the large number of officers wanting to complete states that "the full establishment of officers has been given, whereas all appointments of ensigns (second lieutenants in artillery corps) have been suspended since July, 1860: two supernumerary lieutenants in lieu thereof being allowed to each regiment."

There will be a review of the following militia regiments by the Duke of Cambridge, in Hyde Park, on the 23rd inst., at twelve o'clock:—1st Royal East Middlesex Militia, 2nd Royal Edmonton Rifle Militia, 5th Royal Elthorne Militia, 3rd Royal Westminster Militia, 1st Tower Hamlets Militia, and Royal London Militia. The regiments will arrive on the ground at half-past eleven o'clock, and the total force will amount to about 3000 men.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The third stage of the simultaneous rifle-match, between riflemen in all parts of Britain, was finished last week, when thirty-two squads fired at 800, 900, and 1000 yards, ten shots at each range. The weather was fine, and the shooting was better than has ever been known before, nearly all the best shots in the country having entered. Forty-six men made at least ninety marks, an average of "centres," or, in other words, a score which would be made if every shot fired at these long ranges were to hit an object six feet square. The following were the scores of one hundred and upwards:—Captain Suter, Hereford, and Mr. Kemp, Manchester, 106; Mr. Lane, Bristol, 105; Mr. Holt, Liverpool, and Mr. Pell, Ely, 103; Mr. Fenton, Manchester, and Mr. Gibbs, Bristol, 102; Mr. Bingham, Bristol, and Mr. Halsall, Manchester, 101; Mr. Rawson and Mr. Wright, Liverpool, and Mr. J. Rigby and Mr. Colvert, Dublin, 100. No competitor has yet made the score of one hundred twice, but twenty have each performed the feat once, besides what may have been scored in India.

The return match between the 1st Surrey v. second battalion of the Queen's took place, on Saturday last, at Wimbledon, and again terminated in favour of the Queen's. The aggregate score was—The Queen's, 824; 1st Surrey, 814.

A fire occurred recently at Admont (Styria), which burned down twenty-one houses and the celebrated Benedictine Abbey, with the exception of the library. Nine persons perished in the flames.

The twelfth report of the Science and Art Department of the Committee of Council on Education has been issued, and reports favourably of the matters coming under its notice. The numbers of those who have passed examination in branches of science directly bearing on their occupation have increased. Of the ninety-six successful candidates, thirty-eight came up to improve the grade of the certificate they held; the remainder were new candidates. Equally favourable reports are made in reference to art-studies. In reference to the catalogue of the art-library the report states that, instead of republishing the catalogue in its present state, the committee contemplate the compilation of a universal catalogue of art-literature. Application has accordingly been made, through the Foreign Office, to the English diplomatic residents at all European Courts, asking them to obtain all the information they can upon the subject, so that the work may be one of European interest. The preliminary work of the catalogue is now in progress.——The estimates this year for education, science, and art amount for all heads to £1,362,821, which, compared with the amounts voted for last year, present an augmentation of £51,201. The principal heads for which there is an increase on the sum required are Irish education, the Royal Irish Academy, and the National Gallery of Ireland, the Science and Art Department, University of London, British Museum, National Gallery, British Historical Portrait Gallery, and a new charge of £5000 for expenses of the British department in the Universal Exhibition at Paris.

NEW BOOKS.

NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "LADY AUDLEY'S SECRET."
This day, at all Libraries, in 3 vols.,
ONYLOD.
JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

CHEAP EDITION OF "HENRY DUNBAR."
This day, in one vol., with Frontispiece and Vignette Portrait, 6s. bound and lettered,
HENRY DUNBAR.
By the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," &c.
"Mr. Braddon has never written with more power."—Athenæum.
JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

BROOKS TO HARNESS. By EDMUND YATES.
SACKVILLE CHASE. By C. J. COLLINS.
SIR VICTOR'S CHOICE. By ANNIE THOMAS.
JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

Ready shortly, 8vo, cloth, with numerous Illustrations from Original Sketches, engraved on Wood by R. T. Landells, and tinted; by J. D. Cooper and W. J. Linton, price 10s.
THE NORTHWEST PASSAGE BY LAND:
Being the History of an Expedition from the Atlantic to the Pacific, undertaken by the Overland Route in the Autumn of 1862 in the Rocky Mountains. By VISCOUNT MILTON, F.R.G.S., P.G.S., &c., and W. B. CHEADLE, M.A., late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge.
CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN.

Ninth Edition, with 38 Plates, price 1s., postage-free,
STAINED GLASS, by the Improved Transfer Process of Decalcomanie; easily performed by any person, in small rooms.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

New Edition, with Drawings in Colour, price 2s. 6d.; post-free, 2s. 10d.,
A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON DECALCOMANIE, as Applied to Glass and Porcelain. By a LADY PUPIL of MRS. MARIE. W.C.I. Sold by J. BARNARD, 339, Oxford-street, and MARIE, M.A.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st.

Price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,
MONOGRAMS and CYPHERS, Modern and Gothic (Hand-book of), by VICTOR TOURLIÈRE.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Third Edition, price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,
ALPHABETS and DESIGNS of DIFFERENT PERIODS, from the Twelfth to the Eighteenth Century, collected by F. C. WOOD.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 6d., postage-free, 8d.,
PHOTO-CHROMOGRAPHY: an Easy Method of Managing Photographic Impressions, by Chemically Enamelled appearance, which may be practised by any person unacquainted in drawing and ignorant of art. By H. T. ANTHONY.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Fifth Edition, with 12 Illustrations printed in colours, price 1s.,
PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, Draperies, and Backgrounds, a guide to Painting in Distemper, Oil, or Water Colours, with a short Introduction for Painting by Oil Colours. By J. R. MICHAUD, Artist-Painter.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st.

HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT of RHEUMATISM, EPILEPSY, ASTHMA, and FEVER. By J. RUTHERFORD RUSSELL, M.R.C.P. Edin. Second Edition, price 5s. 6d. LEATH and RODD, 3, St. Paul's-yard, and 18, Vere-st., Oxford-st.

Price 5s. 6d., bound in cloth,
HOMŒOPATHY: TEXT-BOOK of PRACTICE; embracing the Treatment of the Sick Room, Dog, Cow, Sheep, and Pig. By HARRY GOODAT, M.D.Edin. LEATH and RODD, 3, St. Paul's-yard, and 18, Vere-st., Oxford-st.

Price 1s., Second Edition, bound in cloth,
HOMŒOPATHY. Parents' Guide to Treatment of Diseased Children. By J. LAURIE, M.D. LEATH and RODD, 3, St. Paul's-yard, and 18, Vere-st., Oxford-st.

Sixty-third Edition, price 1s.,
HOMŒOPATHIC FAMILY GUIDE: a Plain and Concise Directions for the Domestic Treatment of Ordinary Ailments. A Chest of Medicines for this Work, price 10s. LEATH and RODD, 3, St. Paul's-yard, and 18, Vere-st., Oxford-st.

Nineteenth Edition, 8vo, cloth, 18s.,
HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By DR. DRYSDALE, M.R.C.P. Lond. Containing the Symptoms, Causes, Diagnosis, Pathology, Treatment, and Hygienic Management of Diseases, with Directions for the Selection, Preservation, and Administration of Medicines, price 9s. The Case of Medicines, adapted to the former work, 18s., and by the latter, 30s. LEATH and RODD, 3, Vere-st., Oxford-st., and 3, St. Paul's-yard.

CHEAP BOOKS.—Superior Secondhand Books, all warranted in good condition, at very low prices. Catalogues sent free by post for one stamp.
BERNARD QUARITCH, Oriental Book Warehouse, 15, Castle-street, Leicester-square.

Price 5s. 6d.,
ON THE TREATMENT OF ENLARGED TONSILS, at any Period of Life, without the Operation of Excision. By HENRY J. PETTIT, M.R.C.S., Surgeon to the Islington Dispensary, &c.—S. HARWICKE, Piccadilly.

Second Edition, now ready, post-free for 14 stamps,
BARE MEADOWS ON ERUPTIONS: Their Successful Treatment, without Arsenic or Sublimate.
By MORGAN, 10, Micro-street, Aldersgate-street.

Just published, post-free,
TEETH.—GABRIEL'S Pamphlet explains the only effectual mode of supplying Teeth, without pain, at half the usual charges. Harley-street, W.

POSTAGE-STAMPS.—A priced Catalogue of FOREIGN POSTAGE-STAMPS sent post-free for two stamps by W. LINCOLN, 2, New Oxford-street, London. Wholesale Catalogue, for Dealers only, post-free, 1s.

MONOGRAM, Crest, or Address stamped in colour on paper and envelopes, without any change for the die, at one visit only. Every monogram and crest elegantly stamped in four different colours, for 10s. Arabic designs in illuminated style. Initials and Address Dies, with Crest, Monogram, or Address, beautifully engraved.—HENRY REED, Stationer and Heraldic Engraver, 57, Oxford-street.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, richly bound MORROCCO, in Fancy Colours, with Gilt Edges and Clasps, Cards for the Boudoir, Tablets, and Writing-table; and a variety of useful and elegant articles suitable for presents.—Address, Mr. ROBINSON, 2, Bedford-row, Holborn.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING-BAGS, with silver or gilded fittings, of the best quality and workmanship, at moderate prices. Cape Cases, with Patent Lamps. 42, Piccadilly, Corner of Sackville-street.

NO CHARGE MADE for STAMPING PAPER and ENVELOPES with Arms, Crest, or Monogram. Dies Engraved. Creamy-laid Note, 5s. per ream; Thick Cream Wove, Post-office, 3s.—Observe the 84, A.M. BODDINGTON, 91, Fleet-st.

IF YOU TRAVEL—send for BRADSHAW'S GUIDE and CO.'S Illustrated Catalogue of PORTMANTEAUS, Travelling Bags, Dressing-cases, Also Field, Reading, and Writing-tables, suitable for exhibition, champagne, and chokes, 489, New Oxford-street, W.C.

THE FIVE-SHILLING ILLUMINATING COMPANY sell exhibit twelve splendid Colours, bright, white, gold, chameleon, and bronze.—J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

THE PHOTOCHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to produce, in a few minutes, beautiful coloured photographic impressions, with entire accuracy, all materials, pictures, and full directions, price 20s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

MR. SAMPER, Jeweller, of the Rue de la Paix, Paris, will remain in London the whole of the month of May, at his Establishment, 14, Cockspur-street, Haymarket, for JEWELLERY. To be seen at Henry Rogers', London bridge, 1, Nelson-square, and 12, Clifford-street.

MONSIEUR SAMPER, Bijoutier, de la rue de la Paix, Paris, prie à Londres tout le reste de Mai. Il sera au grand assortiment de BIJOUX nouveau, qui pourra être vu chez Monsieur HENRY ROGERS, 14, New Bond-street.

SPECIAL NOTICE.
CLERICAL, MEDICAL, and GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.
Established 1824.
The Eighth Bonus will be declared in January, 1867, and all Whole-Profit Policies effected before the 31st December next will participate in Assurances effected after the 31st December next will participate in the Profits for three years; a whole year's additional share of Profits over later Policies.
Tables of Rates and Forms of Proposal can be obtained from any of the Society's 30 Agencies throughout the Kingdom.
15, St. James's-square, London, S.W.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY, Established A.D. 1837, under Royal Patronage.
No. 10, Regent-street, Waterloo-place, London, S.W. (adjoining the Athenæum Club).
Agents wanted in unrepresented districts.
ARTHUR B. HAMILTON, Secretary.

LADIES' SCHOOL, 40 and 50 Guineas Year for Board and Education—Lansdowne, Sent in Church, Music Lessons, Drawing, Dancing, and all the Accomplishments. Address Principal, Miss Lilly. References, H. S., Mrs. LIMBERT'S, 21, Strand, W.C.

NOTICE.—THOMAS TAPLING, BELL, Bell-hanger, Gasfitter, Locksmith, and Ironmonger, &c., has REMOVED from 44a, Gresham-street, and 73, Aldersgate-street, to 17, Aldersgate-street, E.C., and 3, BERNARD-STREET, Russell-square.

PALE SHERRY at 36s. per Dozen, fit for a gentleman's table. Bottles and Hampers included. Terms Cash. Post Orders payable at Chancery-lane.
Sample sent free of charge.
GEORGE VALLANCE, Wine Merchant, City
(Established upwards of a century), 1, Chapel-street West, Mayfair, W., London.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest importation, free from acidity, and made expressly for wine-growers. Our guinea per dozen. Sherries, 18s., 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 54s., 60s., 66s., 72s., 78s., 84s., 90s., 96s., 102s., 108s., 114s., 120s. WAGSTON, 76, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, (corner of Bloomsbury-sq.). London, W.C.—Established 1801.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY. COGNAC BRANDY. Pure Malt Whisky, 1865. Vintage Port, 1847. Sherry, 1848. Liqueurs, Cordials, Ginger Wine, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 6d., at the retail houses in London; and wholesale, at the Distillery, Longford, in England; or wholesale at 9, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink cork, and name on bottle and label. Trade supplied.

TONIC BITTERS,
the most palatable and wholesome Bitter in existence;
an unequalled stomachic, and a gentle laxative.
Sold by Chemists, Wine Merchants, Grocers, Italian Warehousemen, Confectioners, Refreshment Contractors, &c., and Manufactured by Waters and Williams,
Aromatic Distillers, Bow, London, E.
Sole Agents for South Australia, Messrs. Thomas and Co., Adelaide.

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The MARCH BREWINGS of the above Ale are now being SHIPPED to the Continent in hogsheads, barrels, and kilderkins.
ALLSOPP and CO., 79, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

FISONS PEARL SEMOULE
Is delicious, Wholesome Nourishment.
For the Dinner Table it gives a variety of choice dishes,
For Invalids it is most valuable, being easily digested.
For Children, prepared with milk, it is a perfect diet.
Sold in packets, 6d., 1s., and 2s. each, by all Grocers upon it.
Sole Agents, Fisons and Sons, Norwich.

CHOCOLAT-DE-MENIER.
Ten last almost for Breakfast for 6d.
Yellow wrapper ... ... 1s. per lb.
Gold label ... ... 2s. per lb.
Blue do. ... ... 3s. 6d. ,,
Red do. ... ... 4s. 6d. ,,
Flavoured with Vanilla.
Pink wrapper ... ... 1s. 6d. per lb.
Gold label ... ... 2s. 6d. ,,
Blue do. ... ... 4s. 6d. ,,
White ditto ... ... 4s. 6d. ,,
Sold by all respectable Grocers in the Kingdom.
Wholesale, 19, Hamilton-street, Covent-garden.

MENIER'S FRENCH CHOCOLATE defies Competition, and is recommended by the Faculty as a delicious aliment for breakfast. Unadulterated, highly nutritious. Annual consumption, 4,000,000 lbs. Sold in packets, tins, and boxes, by Grocers and Chemists.

BORWICK'S BAKING POWDER.
Recommended by the Analyst in the "Lancet" for making Bread without Yeast, and Cakes, Puddings, &c.

GWYDDO
PREPARED CORN,
for
Publisher, Cutlets, Entremets, &c.
Manufactured and Patented by
T. KINGSFORD and SON,
Oswego, Albany, and New York.
It is the original Corn Flour, from the finest of maize, established 1848, unsurpassed in purity and delicacy of flavour, and for its value to the economist.
The Patent Gwyddo, of the imitations, has a fine grain, and is more delicate.
The Oswego has the natural golden tinge, and for that white preparation is unrivalled.
KERN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

KEEN'S IMPROVED FLAVOURED MUSTARD
FOR BOILING AND TWENTY YEARS.
This well-known Mustard, prepared by one of the heads of the family who for more than a century have been actively in the attention for the purity and pungency of flavour, the qualities which have obtained for it the Prize Medal at the London and the Dublin Exhibitions, 1862, and the Universal Prize Medal at the Paris Exhibition 1855, is manufactured from the best Durham Mustard Seed, and is sold in packets, tins, and jars.
KEEN, ROBINSON, and CO., London.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.
COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD
Is more than ever worthy the Public Trust, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1851.
For the deepest selling Mustard in the Kingdom. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom,
And wholesale by the Proprietors, Norwich and London.

COLMANS' No. 1 INDIGO BLUE is the best article Colmans have ever produced.
85, Cannon-street, London.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
and awarded the Prize Medal.

SPRING.—WATTS'S ALKALINE SOLUTION of CHLORIDE of LIME, a Disinfectant and Deodorizer. Its contagious affections, chronic rheumatism, indigestion, and all diseases arising from impure blood, speedily yield to the wholesome influence of Moxon Sarsaparilla. Sold by all Chemists, and wholesale of Moxon, Barclay and Sons, Farringdon-street, and Moxon and Co., Limited, 18, Soho-square. Sole Agents for Australia, Messrs. Elliott Brothers, Adelaide.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion, resulting from a disordered state of the stomach, or too free indulgence in wine or other fermented liquors. It is universally admitted to be the safest aperient for delicate constitutions.—176, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER; it strengthens the weakest eyes in a few days, and restores the sight to extreme old age. Sold in bottles, 2s., 4s., 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-street; Fenn, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

IMMEDIATE RELIEF of the most Violent COUGHS in a few hours.
DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.
Price 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per Box; of all Druggists.

NICHOLSON and CO., Silkmercers, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, beg to announce that their stock is now replete with new Summer Silks. Messrs. N. and Co. have also bought a large invoice lots of last year's patterns at about half their original prices. 200 Patterns post-free. Established 20 years. No connection with any other firm.

OWING to the facilities now afforded by the Parcels Delivery Company, NICHOLSON and CO. are able to state that they have greatly improved their system of sending patterns of Silks &c., by post. Instead of the small pieces and necessarily limited variety which, from the expense of postage, would formerly alone be sent, they will now send, post-free, 300 Patterns, 30s. 2d. value, of SILKS, each piece 24 inches by 18 inches.
These patterns comprise every colour and design now fashionable in London and Paris, and are marked at £2 per cent. in value.
NICHOLSON and CO.,
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS.
Coloured Checks, Striped Checks, from 1s. 4½d. per yard. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS.
Checks and Stripes, from 1 guinea to 2 guineas. Patterns free. Address post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

FRENCH WASHING SILKS.
A large parcel of these fashionable Silks, 300 Patterns, post-free, for 21s. 6d.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS,
Satin Antiques, Quadrilles, Checks, and Striped Silks, from 1 guinea. Patterns free. Address post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S BLACK SILKS.
Black Glacés, Gros Grains, Drap de Lyons, Checks, and Striped Silks, from 1 guinea. Patterns free. Address post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN WELL DRESSED?—Buy Knickerbocker Suits in Cloth, from 10s. 6d.; Velveteen, from 12s. 6d.; Fancy Tweed, from 15s. 6d. Patterns for measurement, and Illustrations of the Newest Dresses, post-free.—NICHOLSON'S, 86 to 18, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE, 60 Pages, Coloured Fashions, Illustrations of New Mantles, Dresses, and Juvenile Attire for the Month, Descriptions of Novelties, Useful Information, and Hints to Ladies, to any part of the world on application.—Nicholson and Co., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Silks, 11 yards, 21s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Silks, 11 yards, 21s.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
A large assortment of New Silks, £3 the set, for 14 yards.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

SUMMER CHALLIS.—Patterns free.
Lowest prices. Patterns free. A large variety of useful Dresses cut by the yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

LENO and MUSLIN CURTAINS.—Double Borders, 1 yard wide. A large stock of New Patterns, 9d., 6d., 10 yards long.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Damask Table Cloths, Napkins, Doyleys, Tray Cloths, Huck and Damask Towels, Sheets, Quilts, Blankets, Counterpanes, Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Factory Prices.
JAMES LINDSAY and CO.
will forward, carriage-paid, Patterns of Cambrics, Sewings, Sheets and Shirtings, Linen Diapers, Damasks, Quilts, Towels, Glass Cloths, Huckabacks, Linen Tickings, Flannels, Dress Linens, &c., Linens and Cottons, Furnishing Goods, and Specialities.
Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., Belfast.

SMYTH'S MILLINERY ROOMS
Modes de Premier Ordre,
Mantles, Bonnets, Dresses, &c.
109, Oxford-street, and 27, Sloane-street.

FORD'S NEW LACES FOR LADIES, at 21, Oxford-street, opposite the Pantheon, Lewis, Lewis, and Allenby's Patent Point Lace Collars, Sleeves, Flounces, Trimmings, Cloth, and Velvet, at various prices, all of which are arranged in a first-class style of fashion.

FORD'S MARGUERITE JACKET, in Cloth and Velvet, is the most elegant Jacket of the season; the charming Jacket are prepared to send post-free. In general it is made in Cloth, Velvet, and Silk, richly braided, and is elegantly lined and lay in tasteful and ornamental, for Morning Wear, Dinner Dress, Evening Dress, and Ball Dress. Price 2 guineas. Also a full assortment of Jackets, Mantles, Shawls, Dresses, Skirts, Hats, Silk, Satin, &c., to Ages; Cashmere or Cloth, 3s. to 8gs.; Velvet, 5s. to 10gs. 6d. FORD, 21, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RICH SILK MANTLES display the best taste and newest designs of the Season, in Glacé and Gros Grain Silks, at 2 to 5 guineas. The New Gossamer, Sorrentine, Lace, and other thin textures, from 6s. 6d. to 3 guineas. Patterns of the Silks, and Illustrations of the Mantles, post-free. FORD, 21, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S GUINEA JACKETS, to wear open or closed, in Cloth, Velvet, Silk, Cashmere, &c., for girls and ladies, are especially recommended for Spring Wear. Patterns of the Cloth, and Illustrations of the Jackets, post-free. FORD, 21, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S HALF-GUINEA JACKETS, in cloth and cashmere, in tight-fitting, Sussex, and loose shape. Illustrations of the Jackets, and Patterns of the Cloth, post-free. Any size and any colour to be had. Also Cashmere Jackets, in tight, Sussex, and loose shape, 10s. 6d. to 21s. FORD and CO., 21, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas. Quality and fit guaranteed. Riding-trousers, 1s. per pair. Illustrations of the Habits, and Patterns of the Cloth, post-free. FORD and CO., 21, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

SEWELL and CO.
ROME DEPARTMENT is now replete with all the Novelties for the coming Season,
THE NEW SILK AND WORSTED CORAIL CLOTH
for Costumes and Mantles.
"Mexicaine" Lustre, and Glacé Cloths in great variety.
SEWELL and CO., 29, Rue de la Paix, Paris.

MOIRES ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of Spitalfields Moires Antiques in White and Coloured Grounds, at 2 guineas the Dress. Patterns free.—Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square, W.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
by appointment to her Majesty the Queen, and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales,
117, 118, and 119, Regent-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Travelling Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, Hosiery, Gloves, &c. Patterns and Prices free. Goods sent to Foreign and Country Residences.
Patterns forwarded free.

HAND-EMBROIDERED COURT TRAINS.
GRANT and GASK are now exhibiting a splendid Collection of Hand-embroidered Court Trains, also Veils and Dresses, in the Model Costume Department, Exhibition of Needle-work Court, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

MOIRE ANTIQUES.—GRANT and GASK invite special notice to a large purchase of most beautiful Moire Antiques, in White and Colours, bought at the Paris Fall Sales, at One-third quality. Patterns free.
59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FOULARD SILKS.—A Great Variety of New Designs, in Checks and Stripes, at 9s. 6d. the Full Dress. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK,
59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FANCY SILKS.—Patterns forwarded of new and beautiful Fancy Silks, from 1½ guinea the Dress.
GRANT and GASK,
59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FRENCH SILK and WOOL GRENADINES. Patterns forwarded of a very large purchase at 1s. 11½d. per yard, worth 2s. 6d. GRANT and GASK,
59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

MADE-UP DRESSES and COSTUMES for MORNING and SEASIDE wear, in a variety of new and useful Materials, from 1 guinea. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK,
59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

NEW MANTLES and SHAWLS.—The Model and Short Dressmaking are fully supplied with an unusually large and varied Stock of Mantles, Shawls, Scarves, Fichus, and Bonnets, in the newest fashion of LACE GRENADINES, BOURNOUS, generally under value. Illustrated Fashion-book forwarded free. GRANT and GASK,
59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FRENCH KID GLOVES.—250 Dozens of Cahart's best Paris Kid Gloves, at 3s. 6d. per pair, usual price 5s. GRANT and GASK,
59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

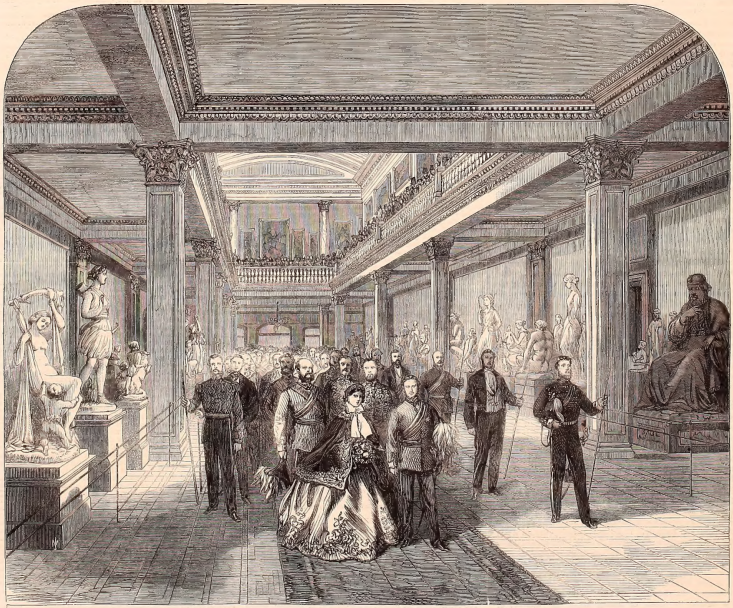
LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING of best make at 45, Oxford-street, W. A stock always on hand. Chemises, Nightdresses, Petticoats, Morning Robes, &c. Price-books by post. Patterns, Directions, and Measures forwarded.—45, Oxford-street, W.

MANTLE and JACKET CLOTHS of all kinds. Alpine from 1s. 11½d. per yard. Also a large assortment of Fancy Cloths, Velvets, Velveteens, &c., at the lowest prices consistent with good quality. Patterns sent free.
CHARLES MERKING and CO., 111, Hatton-garden, London.

MUSLIN, LACE, and LENO CURTAINS. Beautiful Designs in Muslin and Lace Curtains, in great variety. COMPLETED THIRD ANNUAL STOCK.
Lace Curtains, 1 yard wide, per pair, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 9s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 14s. 6d., 16s. 6d., 18s. 6d., 21s., 25s., 30s., 35s., 40s., 45s., 50s., 60s., 70s., 80s., 90s., 100s., 120s., 140s., 160s., 180s., 200s., 220s., 240s., 260s., 280s., 300s., 320s., 340s., 360s., 380s., 400s., 420s., 440s., 460s., 480s., 500s., 520s., 540s., 560s., 580s., 600s., 620s., 640s., 660s., 680s., 700s., 720s., 740s., 760s., 780s., 800s., 820s., 840s., 860s., 880s., 900s., 920s., 940s., 960s., 980s., 1000s., 1020s., 1040s., 1060s., 1080s., 1100s., 1120s., 1140s., 1160s., 1180s., 1200s., 1220s., 1240s., 1260s., 1280s., 1300s., 1320s., 1340s., 1360s., 1380s., 1400s., 1420s., 1440s., 1460s., 1480s., 1500s., 1520s., 1540s., 1560s., 1580s., 1600s., 1620s., 1640s., 1660s., 1680s., 1700s., 1720s., 1740s., 1760s., 1780s., 1800s., 1820s., 1840s., 1860s., 1880s., 1900s., 1920s., 1940s., 1960s., 1980s., 2000s., 2020s., 2040s., 2060s., 2080s., 2100s., 2120s., 2140s., 2160s., 2180s., 2200s., 2220s., 2240s., 2260s., 2280s., 2300s., 2320s., 2340s., 2360s., 2380s., 2400s., 2420s., 2440s., 2460s., 2480s., 2500s., 2520s., 2540s., 2560s., 2580s., 2600s., 2620s., 2640s., 2660s., 2680s., 2700s., 2720s., 2740s., 2760s., 2780s., 2800s., 2820s., 2840s., 2860s., 2880s., 2900s., 2920s., 2940s., 2960s., 2980s., 3000s., 3020s., 3040s., 3060s., 3080s., 3100s., 3120s., 3140s., 3160s., 3180s., 3200s., 3220s., 3240s., 3260s., 3280s., 3300s., 3320s., 3340s., 3360s., 3380s., 3400s., 3420s., 3440s., 3460s., 3480s., 3500s., 3520s., 3540s., 3560s., 3580s., 3600s., 3620s., 3640s., 3660s., 3680s., 3700s., 3720s., 3740s., 3760s., 3780s., 3800s., 3820s., 3840s., 3860s., 3880s., 3900s., 3920s., 3940s., 3960s., 3980s., 4000s., 4020s., 4040s., 4060s., 4080s., 4100s., 4120s., 4140s., 4160s., 4180s., 4200s., 4220s., 4240s., 4260s., 4280s., 4300s., 4320s., 4340s., 4360s., 4380s., 4400s., 4420s., 4440s., 4460s., 4480s., 4500s., 4520s., 4540s., 4560s., 4580s., 4600s., 4620s., 4640s., 4660s., 4680s., 4700s., 4720s., 4740s., 4760s., 4780s., 4800s., 4820s., 4840s., 4860s., 4880s., 4900s., 4920s., 4940s., 4960s., 4980s., 5000s., 5020s., 5040s., 5060s., 5080s., 5100s., 5120s., 5140s., 5160s., 5180s., 5200s., 5220s., 5240s., 5260s., 5280s., 5300s., 5320s., 5340s., 5360s., 5380s., 5400s., 5420s., 5440s., 5460s., 5480s., 5500s., 5520s., 5540s., 5560s., 5580s., 5600s., 5620s., 5640s., 5660s., 5680s., 5700s., 5720s., 5740s., 5760s., 5780s., 5800s., 5820s., 5840s., 5860s., 5880s., 5900s., 5920s., 5940s., 5960s., 5980s., 6000s., 6020s., 6040s., 6060s., 6080s., 6100s., 6120s., 6140s., 6160s., 6180s., 6200s., 6220s., 6240s., 6260s., 6280s., 6300s., 6320s., 6340s., 6360s., 6380s., 6400s., 6420s., 6440s., 6460s., 6480s., 6500s., 6520s., 6540s., 6560s., 6580s., 6600s., 6620s., 6640s., 6660s., 6680s., 6700s., 6720s., 6740s., 6760s., 6780s., 6800s., 6820s., 6840s., 6860s., 6880s., 6900s., 6920s., 6940s., 6960s., 6980s., 7000s., 7020s., 7040s., 7060s., 7080s., 7100s., 7120s., 7140s., 7160s., 7180s., 7200s., 7220s., 7240s., 7260s., 7280s., 7300s., 7320s., 7340s., 7360s., 7380s., 7400s., 7420s., 7440s., 7460s., 7480s., 7500s., 7520s., 7540s., 7560s., 7580s., 7600s., 7620s., 7640s., 7660s., 7680s., 7700s., 7720s., 7740s., 7760s., 7780s., 7800s., 7820s., 7840s., 7860s., 7880s., 7900s., 7920s., 7940s., 7960s., 7980s., 8000s., 8020s., 8040s., 8060s., 8080s., 8100s., 8120s., 8140s., 8160s., 8180s., 8200s., 8220s., 8240s., 8260s., 8280s., 8300s., 8320s., 8340s., 8360s., 8380s., 8400s., 8420s., 8440s., 8460s., 8480s., 8500s., 8520s., 8540s., 8560s., 8580s., 8600s., 8620s., 8640s., 8660s., 8680s., 8700s., 8720s., 8740s., 8760s., 8780s., 8800s., 8820s., 8840s., 8860s., 8880s., 8900s., 8920s., 8940s., 8960s., 8980s., 9000s., 9020s., 9040s., 9060s., 9080s., 9100s., 9120s., 9140s., 9160s., 9180s., 9200s., 9220s., 9240s., 9260s., 9280s., 9300s., 9320s., 9340s., 9360s., 9380s., 9400s., 9420s., 9440s., 9460s., 9480s., 9500s., 9520s., 9540s., 9560s., 9580s., 9600s., 9620s., 9640s., 9660s., 9680s., 9700s., 9720s., 9740s., 9760s., 9780s., 9800s., 9820s., 9840s., 9860s., 9880s., 9900s., 9920s., 9940s., 9960s., 9980s., 10000s.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by EDMUND C. LESSETER, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY MAY 13, 1865.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.



No. 1316.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, MAY 20, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

AUSTRIA AND HUNGARY.

NECESSITY, after all, is the most potent of rulers—itself blind, it is true, but under the wisest guidance. There are certain fundamental laws which claim universal recognition; and wherever or by whomsoever they are violated, inconveniences are predestined to ensue therefrom, which, growing more and more serious in proportion as wrong is persisted in, exert at last a pressure capable of breaking or bowing the proudest and stubbornest of human wills. The present relations between Austria and Hungary may be referred to in illustration of the remark. What, for the most part, they have been since 1848 every reader knows full well. There has been no moment since the intervention of Russia in support of Francis Joseph, when that Emperor might not have described the essential weakness of his favourite system of centralisation by confessing "Hungary is my chief difficulty." There can be no safety for Austria so long as the German element of the empire is at feud with the Hungarian. In every crisis of affairs at Vienna—and they are many—the statesmen and diplomatists who are trying to steer the gallant vessel yclept "The Eastern Empire" out of the breakers which roar around her a prophecy of doom, bewail, as they well may do, the fatal policy which has converted Hungary into a sunken rock ahead.

Austria has lost caste, and is, besides, frightfully near insolvency. Prussia has got the start of her, and is by no means nice about pushing her advantage. Herr von Bismarck's audacity grows out of his knowledge of Austrian weakness. He used that knowledge to drag Austria into the Dano-German war; he is availing himself of it to appropriate to Prussia the solid fruits of victory. What can Austria do? She has a large empire, but her policy has wofully divided it. She has a powerful army, but it rapidly eats away her financial strength. If she could make up her mind to abandon Venetia and reconcile Hungary she could command her own future. Disaffected subjects on both her flanks enhance the misery and danger of an exhausted exchequer and of forfeited credit. Who can be bold when steeped to the ears in debt? Who can take up a position of independence towards strangers when his bitterest foes are those of his own household? Austria has tried hard to surmount the double difficulty, but to little purpose. Her temporary shifts have but postponed and aggravated the inevitable reckoning which her wretched policy has run up against her. Her urgent necessities seem at last to be touching her wisdom. Thanks mainly to the moderation and practical wisdom of the leaders of the national party in Hungary, a plan of reconciliation between her and the disaffected kingdom has been submitted to her, of which she appears disposed to avail herself; and, if the house of Hapsburg can but act for once in good faith, it has now the opportunity of winning back the long lost loyalty of the Hungarian nation. We are told that the Emperor and the statesmen who surround his throne profess an eager desire to seize the opportunity thus unexpectedly placed within their reach. They have only to be true to their profession in restoring the empire to a position of comparative safety, ease, and strength.

THE PRINCE OF WALES OPENING THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION: THE PROCESSION THROUGH THE SCULPTURE HALL.—SEE PAGE 493.

The task to which we allude is, we believe, the production of M. Deák's sagacious patriotism, but it seems to have been heartily adopted by the old Conservative party, and thus to unite the sufferings of the whole Magyar race. It is based upon the Fragmentary Diploma, that venerated instrument which, inasmuch as it guarantees the independence of the kingdom, in its internal as cherished by all classes of the people as their Magna Charta. In effect, it amounts to this, Hungary will receive Francis Joseph as King, content to be represented abroad by Imperial diplomatists, and to confide to him the supreme command in the united army; but the right of raising recruits, fixing the duration of military service, and quartering the army, which was exercised by the Hungarian Diet before injury to the efficiency of the troops, and without inconvenience to the empire, during a period of 120 years, will be strictly reserved to that Parliamentary body. The taxes required to efficient common to both the empire and the kingdom, are to freely paid by Hungary; but the mode of raising them is to be determined in like manner by the Diet exclusively. The commercial policy and legislation of the empire will be the same in its spirit as the fundamental principles of that of the kingdom, while each is to retain the right of adapting them to its own peculiar circumstances and wants. It is considered that Hungary will thus retain her historic independence as a kingdom, and yet contribute her part to the unity and strength of Austria; will effect a reconciliation which, in the words of M. Deák, will subordinate the existence of the monarchy to no other considerations, and offer a thorough guarantee for the integrity of the empire. The whole scheme is not impracticable to the realisation of the project thus roughly sketched—as the Emperor must appoint a Hungarian Ministry, and must respect in his arrangements the integrity of the Hungarian Diet. Any attempt, in unison with the Diet, to modify or repeal the Diets of Transylvania and Croatia to send deputies to the Hungarian Legislature, it is thought not unlikely that a common understanding might be arrived at; while, even in case of failure, the earnest wish of the Hungarian nation would still have been consulted and gratified by their Sovereign. The correspondent of the morning paper to whose interesting letter we are indebted for the information we have summarised above, gives us reason to believe that the more current among Hungarian Liberals as to the mode in which the scheme should be worked out, and states his conclusion that it would, resting on principles as high authority, that it will be carried into effect. The Diet is to be opened in accordance with the laws of 1848; the speech from the throne to recommend proposals in regard to the future regulation of the monarchy; the Diet to answer the speech in an address; the interchange of rescripts and representations, by which the Hungarian people will constitutionally declare the conditions on which they are prepared to establish relations with the other parts of the empire, "a corresponding act conforming to these conditions to be drawn up, and Francis Joseph to be crowned King of Hungary; and, lastly, the reduction of the whole to the final shape of law and the affixing the sanction of the Crown to the formal result.

Should this moderate, feasible, and statesman-like project be translated from the realm of imagination into that of fact, Austria may be congratulated on her singular good fortune. Her young and gallant Emperor would firmly thrust upon the throne of his uncle, the influences which sweep an empire virtually severed from the rest of his empire that portion of his hereditary dominions which lies beyond the Leitha. The connection, almost nominally preserved by the personal existence of Russia, has never been re-vitalised. Accordingly, Hungary, which was once the right arm of Austria's strength, had become by political mismanagement—the fruitful autocratic ambition—a source of weakness to her oppressor, a thorn in her side, an ever-present Nemesis. That she is capable of being won back to loyalty whilst a Hapsburg fills the Imperial throne is proof of her true nobility of nature; that she can forgive Francis Joseph, and cordially suggest the conditions on which she can once again render him willing homage, transcends all that he could with reason have expected. "Lost and won" is the motto he may inscribe on the armorial bearings of his kingdom; and history may truly record that, in his case, magnanimity and folly was restored by practical sagacity not to have been anticipated, and by national magnanimity not by any means observed.

Should Mr. Déak's programme be substantially adopted Hungary, too, will have solid ground for satisfaction. No nation in Europe, not even England, can be said to have the sources of its patriotism more entirely in the depths of historic antiquity than Hungary. Tradition is the rich soil into which the national sentiment has struck its roots. It lives and draws its sustenance from the past. Its annals are resplendent with spirit-stirring associations, and to have merged in the Austrian empire its separate identity would have been, as it was evermore regarded, the most ignominious of all destinies. Englishmen, at least, can sympathise with the terrible revulsion of feeling which the prospect of such a fate excited. To avert it, no sacrifices have been deemed too painful, no trial too fiery or too prolonged. And now it seems as if the reward were at hand. Hungary will still be Hungary, united by dynastic ties and by clearly defined responsibilities to Austria, but untouched as regards her national integrity. Rather than be degraded into a mere "geographical expression," she has submitted to a pressure amounting to torture, and has won a victory of constancy which has been the admiration of the world. The horrid dream which has troubled her, let us hope, is passing away. Morning breaks, and restores her to herself. My nothing occur to disappoint her hopes, and may her future be brighter and happier than her past!

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor enjoys excellent health. All the accounts of his Majesty's progress in Algeria agree in showing that his reception by the natives has been of a cordial character. Since his visit to Milinah, mentioned in the Gazette of Algiers, he has visited Blidah, Medeah, and Oran. The Emperor visited two of the mosques of Algiers before setting out for Oran, and had the satisfaction of listening to a special prayer offered up on his behalf, accompanied by the fervid responses of the assembled worshippers. An address from the native populations has been published, in which protest is entered against the allegation that they are hostile to the French colonists or inimical to the French rule. With a view to secure the Emperor's person in transitu, they protest that they love and esteem the French.

Sunday's Moniteur contains an important decree, entitled "Reglèle," purporting the Session of the Corps Législatif, which was to have been opened on the 15th of May, to the 1st of June.

The Countess de Montijo, mother of the Empress, has arrived in Paris from Madrid.

On the occasion of the exchange of the satisfaction of the treaty of commerce between France and the Helvetic Confederation, before his departure for Algeria, conferred the grand cross of the Legion of Honour on Baron Bourcard.

Mdme. Drouyn de Lhuys gave a ball yesterday week, to which Princess Murat, Princess Anna Murat, and all the notabilities of the Parisian world were invited.

On Sunday the ceremony of "baptizing" a vessel intended to sail between Brest and Nagasaki, in Japan, took place in the court of the Louvre. The Curé of St. Germain l'Auxerrois, who was accompanied by his clergy, blessed the vessel and sprinkled it with holy water. After a short, appropriate discourse, the Curé made a tour of the deck of the vessel, which is a magnificent one, and destined to meet and sail—symbols of abundance and prosperity. The vessel is of 500 tons burden, and will be propelled by screw and sails. Her engines are nominally of 60-horse power.

The Academy of Belles Lettres and Inscriptions yesterday week elected Mr. Motley, the American historian, in the place of the late Count Peugnot.

The annual fête on the anniversary of the deliverance of Orleans by Joan of Arc has just been celebrated in that city. A procession, in which the clergy, the municipal authorities, and the military all took office, passed, took place; a panegyric on the Maid of Orleans was delivered in the cathedral, as usual, and the bouquet at the benediction of the banners was pronounced, and the city was illuminated in the evening.

On Monday the inauguration of the monument to Napoleon I. took place at Ajaccio, Corsica, amid much enthusiasm. On the statue being uncovered, the flag was wrest from the hands of Napoleon and the frigate Gloire. Prince Napoleon made a long speech, giving the history of Napoleon I., which he described as a complete life and acts of Napoleon I., which he described as a complete programme of liberal policy. During the delivery of the oration her Imperial Highness was frequently interrupted by loud cheers.

PORTUGAL.

The King, by the advice of his Ministers, against whom the Cortes had passed a vote of want of confidence, has determined on dissolving that body.

On the 10th inst. a shock of earthquake at Lisbon was very distinctly felt.

The Portuguese journals state that an edifice, entirely composed of glass and iron, in the style of the Crystal Palace at Sydenham, is about to be erected in Oporto, on the hill of Serra de Pilar, just outside the town. It is intended for the exhibition of all the productions of Portuguese industry, as well as of the manufactures of the country, especially minerals, of which Portugal contains a great variety.

ITALY.

King Victor Emmanuel left Genoa for Florence on Thursday week. On Saturday his Majesty inaugurated the Dante Exhibition in the Uffizzi Palace. The Archbishop of Florence and the King had entered the Palace he was presented by Count Digny, in the name of the Provincial Council, with a magnificent sword, as a memento of the Dante Fête. Count Digny, in presenting the sword, observed that it stated that the various books, documents, and other objects in the exhibition of Portuguese manuscripts, as well as the building for the purpose of illustrating the poet's life, the time in which he lived, and the fame he has acquired for Italy, the Council proposed the public exhibition in detail. Among its contents is the muster-roll of the Florentine army at the Battle of Montaperti, which Dante is enumerated among the combatants. The King and all the company then signed their names in the book, which is to be preserved in the Florentine library as a memorial of the exhibition. The inauguration of the monument erected in honour of the poet took place on Sunday, the King, the Diplomatic Corps, Ministers, and deputations from all the Italian provinces being present. Many national and foreign scientific bodies were represented on the occasion. The streets, houses, and city were decorated with flags, and great general enthusiasm prevailed. The festivities continue for three days.

The debate on the sale of the State railways has been brought to a close by the Senate, which has approved of the sale by a majority of 63 against 23 votes.

Farini's Ministry have issued a circular announcing that the reform of religious bodies, which had to be postponed this Session, is only delayed a short time.

The Chambers are ordered to be prorogued.

An official decree was published in Turin on Monday regulating the issue of a loan of 100,000,000 lire. Fifteen millions are to be paid in part of it, and 100,000,000 lire are reserved for public subscription in Italy. This latter portion is to be paid up in ten instalments, the last falling due in October, 1866.

AUSTRIA

A Vienna paper has published an analysis of Austria's reply to Prussia's proposal relative to the convocation of the Diet of the duchies. Austria, considering that the present is a favourable occasion to discussed by the Diet, the two great German Powers should take a joint initiative in the matter. The Augustenburger should be allowed to remain in Kiel during the session. The elections to the Diet are to be based on the electoral law of 1848, with some modifications. It is added that Austria does not offer any objection to the Prussian propositions with regard to the port of Kiel.

RUSSIA

The King, accompanied by the Queen and the Crown Prince, laid the first stone of the new Polytechnic School at Aix-la-Chapelle on Monday, when the fiftieth anniversary of the union of the Rhine provinces with Prussia was celebrated with much pomp. On Tuesday his Majesty laid, in the Haymarket at Cologne, in the presence of the Queen, the Crown Prince, the Councillors of the Crown, and other dignitaries, the foundation-stone of the monument to be erected in commemoration of King Frederick William III.

The Crown Prince, on Saturday last, opened the Universal Exhibition of Industrial and Manufacturing Products at Stettin.

The Committee of the Budget, in the Chamber of Deputies, settled on Tuesday the military budget for 1865. They propose to the Chamber an expenditure during the year of 82,597,741 thalers (under 12,000,000), being 382,841 thalers more than were granted last year. The committee have, however, struck out the sum of 6,892,753 thalers, which had been introduced by the Government for the reorganisation of the army.

The debate on the bill for the increase of the navy was continued by the naval committee of the Chamber of Deputies in a tumultuary sitting held on Tuesday night. The debate was resumed on Wednesday, when, after a discussion which lasted four hours, the Government bill was unanimously rejected. All the amendments to the bill were also rejected.

The new treaty reconstructing the Zollverein was formally signed on Wednesday by the plenipotentiaries of all the Governments who are members of the Zollverein.

The English system of announcing storms by telegraph has been adopted in Prussia. Professor Dove will send the result of his observations daily to all the principal ports.

AMERICA.

By the North American and the City of Washington we have New York news to the 6th inst.

President Johnson had issued a proclamation offering a reward of 100,000 dollars for the arrest of Mr. Jefferson Davis, who was said to have been on the 10th inst. at Irwinville, on the northern border of South Carolina, and to have had some Federal cavalry only one day's march in front of him. Proclamations of implication in President Lincoln's assassination have been made against Mr. Davis, also against Jacob Thompson, late Secretary of the Interior, George N. Sanders, W. C. Cleary, and "other rebel traitors against the United States Government, known to be in Canada," for whose apprehension rewards are offered. The charge against Mr. Davis is apparently dated to turn on the Canadian journals.

The formal surrender of General Johnston's forces, which were stated to number 27,000 men, took place at Greensborough on the 26th inst. The main body of General Sherman's army was also on the march northwards; but General Schofield's corps was to remain in North Carolina.

Mr. Mallory, the Confederate Secretary of the navy, has given himself up to the Federal authorities at Tallahassee.

At Memphis an order had been issued announcing that after a certain date those of the Confederate soldiers who had not surrendered will not be treated as prisoners of war.

The reduction of the Federal armies has been begun by discharges of convalescent and paroled soldiers; and it was said that as many as 100,000 men would be mustered out of service.

President Johnson made a speech to the Pennsylvania delegation reiterating that the severest penalties of the law would be inflicted upon the rebel leaders. He said that he would relax many of the restrictions on trade, except in articles contraband of war, with the Southern States east of the Mississippi.

Chief Justice Chase and a treasury agent have left for the South, to organise the tax system of the reconstructed populations.

A Confederate iron-clad steamer, named the Webb, said to have been built with cotton, was set on fire on the south of the Red River on the 23rd ult., and succeeded in passing the Federal squadron. She proceeded down the Mississippi to the New Orleans on the 21st; but before she had passed the forts she encountered a Federal frigate coming up the river, and her captain ran her ashore and burned her.

Mr. Seward was reported to be ill, and had been for some time growing gradually.

The newspapers were discussing the terms on which a "reconstruction" of the Union is to be effected; and the chief difference of opinion appears to be as to the conditions under which rebels are to be admitted as voters.

An advertisement had been published in a Washington paper inviting officers and soldiers to go to Mexico, and other papers have at Shiloh-ing sympathising with it.

It is said that among Mr. Lincoln's papers has been found a package of letters marked, in his own handwriting, "Assassination Letters," while many of its contents are unopened. The world has yet to learn what it has to take it.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

We have received advices from the Cape colony to the 11th ult. A week previously to the departure of the mail, Sir Philip Wodehouse left at Grahamstown to consider a proposal of the Government that they should be located in the Orange River. So far as Sir Philip Wodehouse, as chief, was concerned, the proposition was rejected; but there can be little doubt that the plan will be partially carried out.

At Port Elizabeth and Natal there had been a commercial crisis, arising chiefly from the depreciation of produce shipped to England.

AUSTRALIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

MELBOURNE, March 25.

"The political news this month is more important than usual. Another land bill has passed both Houses of Parliament and become the law of the land. This one is not quite so liberal, but quite liberal enough to satisfy the most fastidious in such matters; but so have all the others been which have preceded it, and none in practice. It will not do, therefore, to be too sanguine until we see how the new bill work. Its object is professedly to induce the people already here, and who may be induced to come, to go on the land; as well as to attract from the mother country a class of immigrants of whom we have hitherto been exhibitors—agricultural labourers, small farmers, and others with some money in their pockets. So, in order that such may have some idea of the manner in which land may be procured under the new law, I subjoin a few of the conditions of the Act—a lengthy document, which will be published separately. Any selector to have the right to select from 40 to 640 acres in one or more allotments, at the price of £1 per acre, which is to be paid in instalments of seven years, at 2s. per acre, payable half-yearly in advance; to make improvements to the value of £1 per acre within two years; no assignments to be allowed within three years, and then only when improvements have been effected; disputes as to the value of improvements to be determined by an arbitration of three persons, one to choose, and after making improvements, selectors may ask that the allotments be put up to auction at the upset price of £1 per acre without competition; a selector residing on his land for three years may have his allotment at £1 per acre without competition; selection to be governed by priority of application; lands not proclaimed open for selection to be sold by auction; no selection to exceed 640 acres, nor less than one acre unless in towns; not more than 5,000,000 acres of agricultural lands to be open for selection within three years, and not less than 2,000,000 acres to be kept constantly open for selection.

In last month's letter I intimated that the House of Assembly, as he anticipated, would not agree to the Government proclamation in the tariff as to make it virtually the adoption of a prohibitive or protective system. My anticipations were got up in a hurry, and the country to denounce the new policy. This feeling on the part of a powerful influential portion of the people so alienated the Ministry for the safety of their pet scheme that they decided upon not risking it on its merits in the House. It was, therefore, announced by the Chief Secretary, a few nights ago, that the Government intended to take the Customs Duties Act to the Appropriation Bill, so that the Council might not have it in its power to reject the one without the other. A deputation waited upon me to see if I could give on the subject, but Ministers were victorious by a large majority; and so the two bills will be sent to the Council together.

Mr. William Nicholson, a respected and consistent politician, who is regarded as the "father of the ballot" in Victoria, died on the 24th inst., aged forty-nine.

Monday, the 27th ult., was one of the hottest days ever experienced here. From an early hour in the morning a scorching wind commenced to blow with great violence, the heat resembling that issuing from an open furnace. In the shade the thermometer stood at 105 deg. Great destruction of property took place throughout the country in consequence of the prevalence of bush fires. A traveller, who returned to town on the eventful evening, wrote to one of the papers:—"Between Sandhurst and Castlemaine the Alexandrina range and Mount Alexander itself presented a magnificent sight; the grass had been all consumed, and millions of burning trees and logs were seen over the whole face of the hills." The important agricultural district of Kyneton suffered most. Here homesteads, growing crops, stacks, and barns full of produce were swept away by the burning wind. Considerable sums of money have been raised for the relief of the sufferers; and it is said that Parliament will be asked for £50,000 to assist the more destitute.

With the steam-ship Great Britain, which sailed on the 16th inst., a large and valuable collection of contributions was sent to the Dublin Exhibition. Perhaps one of the most interesting features in the collection is the model of the gold trophy, similar to that shown at the Exhibition of 1862. The quantity of gold obtained in Victoria from Oct. 1, 1851, to Oct. 1, 1861, amounted to upwards of 800 tons, the value of which would be £104,649,728. The quantity got between October, 1861, and the end of 1864 amounted to upwards of 223 tons, of the estimated value of £29,211,980. This latter amount is represented in the form of a base to the original design of the model; and the whole, on a scale of 1½ in. to 1 ft., will give our Dublin friends some idea of the bulk of the precious metal extracted from the earth in this colony in fourteen years, the total value of which is £133,861,708.

While on the subject of gold, it is worth while mentioning that every day goes to prove that, much as we have already done in this way, we have really done next to nothing compared with what is in store in the vast undiscovered gold-bearing regions which yet lie unexplored in and beyond the Gipps Land ranges. Wood's Point was unknown a year or two ago. It is now the head-quarters of a busy and successful mining community. The reefs in and around this district are yielding fabulous returns—some of the quartz giving from four to fifty ounces to the ton. On the older gold-fields the dry season has much interfered with mining pursuits. Bendigo, Castlemaine, and the surrounding country have especially suffered from want of water. But winter will soon be on, when a plentiful supply will, no doubt, be forthcoming.

The Confederate steamer, the Shenandoah, is reported to be still on this coast, although it does not appear that she has done anything yet in the way of capturing Federal merchantmen.

An organised attempt to explore the deep-sea fisheries of the coast is about to be made, Government having promised the use of a cutter and funds for the purpose.

There is little of importance to report from the other colonies. In New South Wales bushranging is as prevalent as ever. Gold escorts, as well as her Majesty's mails, are attacked and robbed with impunity, the desperadoes not even hesitating to commit murder so that their object may be accomplished.

An extensive fire occurred a few days ago at Maitland, New South Wales, by which property to the value of £130,000—of which only £73,000 is covered by insurance—has been destroyed.

The Government of New South Wales propose to raise a loan to meet the existing financial difficulties of the colony.

The Parliament of Queensland has been prorogued to the 2nd of May. When it reassembles the Government is to ask Parliament for a subsidy to a line of steamers to run between Brisbane and Batavia, or Singapore, viâ Torres Strait, to meet the Peninsular and Oriental Company's mail-steamers.

Sugar and cotton are being extensively grown this season in Queensland, with every appearance of success.

NEW ZEALAND.

Ohoutahi, a Maori position, has been captured by natives friendly to the English, and several of the rebel chiefs made prisoners. The present mail also brings news of the capture by the Arawas—a friendly tribe which distinguished itself last year at Matata against the rebels—of nearly sixty very violent rebels, under the leadership of Te Hau, one of the chief priests of the Pai Mairi superstition, without bloodshed.

This favourable intelligence is accompanied with a horrible account of some native fanatics having murdered the Rev. Mr. Volkner, a missionary, and eaten his brains and eyes. The Rev. Mr. Grace, Dr. Agassy, and a captain were prisoners in the hands of these savages.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Charing-cross Hotel was formally opened on Monday, and was more than half occupied by the evening.

Dr. Manning, the Roman Catholic Archbishop elect of Westminster, has left London for Rome, where he is to be consecrated as Bishop, and to receive the pallium, as Archbishop, at the hands of the Pope.

A large sum has been subscribed by members of the Middle Temple for a full-length portrait of the Prince of Wales, who is one of the Masters of their Bench, to be placed in the new Library of the society.

The Brompton Consumption Hospital has received information from Captain Erskine, Consul at Madeira, that the residents and visitors in that island are prepared to maintain twenty patients during the coming winter, if the hospital authorities will provide passages for them.

The members of the Institution of Civil Engineers gave their annual dinner yesterday week night at Willis's Rooms. Their guests numbered over 250, and John R. M'Clean, Esq., F.R.A.S., the president of the institution, occupied the chair.

An Anglo-French Working-Class Exhibition, for commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of peace between Great Britain and France, is to be held at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, on Saturday, July 29, and to remain open during the months of August, September, and October, 1865.

The examinations of candidates for admission to any of the Inns of Court with the view of keeping terms for call to the Bar for the ensuing Trinity Term will take place in the Benchers'-room, Middle Temple Library, at ten o'clock to-day (Saturday), on the 27th inst., and on the 3rd and the 10th of June.

Mr. Mill will have the support of the Chancellor of the Exchequer for Westminster. In a letter which he has sent to Mr. Beal the right hon. gentleman says:—"Mr. Mill's claims appear to Mr. Gladstone to be of the highest order; but, being a member of the Government, Mr. Gladstone does not intend to join any committee or take part beyond giving his vote."

At the meeting of the Anthropological Society, on Tuesday evening, the Bishop of Natal read a paper on "Missions among Savages." He detailed some of the difficulties to be contended with, and maintained that there was no reason to be dissatisfied with the results obtained. A discussion followed, in which some startling assertions were made, the speakers being the chairman, the Rev. Dunbar Heath, Mr. Winwoode Reade, the Rev. Mr. Arthur, the Rev. Dr. Irons, Mr. Bendysche, and Mr. Wallace.

On Monday, just as the Queen quitted the Paddington station for Windsor, ninety feet of the boundary wall of the coal-yard fell into the street, together with 100 tons of coals, burying two passers-by. One of them, a man named Wood, residing at Ealing, was not seriously hurt; but the other, Captain H. C. Newberry, of the 51st Madras Infantry, who was not extricated for half an hour, so deeply was he buried, has since died. He had received a fracture of the skull and a compound fracture of the hip.

Under the title of "Notre Dame de France à Londres," a French Roman Catholic Church is to be founded in Leicester-square, and there will be annexed to it free schools and an establishment of Sisters of Charity. Subscriptions have been received on so liberal a scale as to enable the promoters of the work to secure the site on which Burford's Panorama stood. Previous to the erection of the church, the Sisters of Charity will occupy the building.

The friends of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum held their thirty-seventh annual festival, on Wednesday, at the Crystal Palace. The chairman was Mr. C. H. Hoare, who was supported by an enthusiastic company, numbering nearly 1400. The chairman, in an effective speech, advocated the claims of the asylum upon the sympathy of the company, which was responded to by the secretary shortly after announcing a list of subscriptions amounting to nearly £3000, which included a contribution of 100 guineas from the Prince of Wales, the patron of the institution.

The accounts of receipt and expenditure in connection with the British Museum for the year ending the 31st of last March have been presented to Parliament. Beginning with a balance of £39,474, the museum received during the year £92,127 in the shape of a Parliamentary grant, and £1173 dividend on stock and proceeds from the sale of guide-books, &c. The expenditure was £97,279 for general purposes, an increase of £952 above the estimate, and £253 for publishing the cuneiform character. The balance left for the new year was £35,242. The estimate for the current year's expenditure is £100,164.

The National Reform League held its first public meeting, in St. Martin's Hall, last Saturday evening. The meeting was largely attended. Mr. Edmond Beales, the chairman of the League, presided. In an inaugural speech he explained the objects which the League has in view and the grounds upon which it demands manhood suffrage and vote by ballot. Mr. P. A. Taylor, M.P.; Mr. W. Lawson, M.P.; Mr. T. B. Potter, M.P.; Mr. S. Pope, of Manchester, and several working men addressed the meeting. Various resolutions bearing on the furtherance of reform were carried, and a deputation was appointed to attend the Reform Conference to be held in Manchester on Monday and Tuesday.

The Poor-Law Board has given its decision in the case of the pauper, Richard Gibson, who died in St. Giles's Workhouse, under circumstances that led to an inquiry. The board is satisfied that Gibson was shamefully neglected during his illness, and while it bears in mind that the doctor who made the post-mortem examination gave it as his opinion that death was not caused by neglect, still it is of opinion that the assistant surgeon and the head nurse should be called upon to resign their situations. The master of the workhouse is censured, and reminded that he will for the future be held responsible for the management of the infirmary as well as for the other parts of the house.

At the meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works, yesterday week, a report was read from a committee recommending that a gratuity of £6000 should be given to Mr. Bazalgette, and that £4000 should be distributed among the other engineers employed under him, as an acknowledgment of the ability and skill displayed by them in the construction of the main drainage. At the same time protests against this waste of the money of the ratepayers were presented from several parishes, and the question was raised whether the funds of the board could legally be applied to such a purpose. The board adjourned the consideration of the report in order that its legal power to carry out the proposal might be settled.

The opening cruise of the season of the Royal London Yacht Club was begun on Saturday afternoon and resumed on Monday. The spirited commodore, Mr. Arcedeckne, and vice-commodore, Mr. E. W. Edwards, in their beautiful yachts, Violet and Stella, led the way, followed by the Will-o'-the-Wisp, Queen, Era, Water Sprite, Octoroon, Haidee, and some others, and, after a short cruise on Saturday below Greenhithe, and a return a few miles up, the members dined at Erith at the Pier Hotel. The commodore presided and gave the usual toasts, taking occasion, in drinking "Prosperity to the Royal London Yacht Club," to dilate upon its continuing prosperity and advancement.

A grand universal bazaar, so called from the number of charitable and pious interests and establishments which it was instituted to serve, has been held this week at St. James's Hall, Piccadilly. More than a dozen Roman Catholic institutions were concerned in the success of the undertaking—namely, the French Schools of Sisters of Charity, the German Church and Charities, the Hospital of St. John and St. Elizabeth, the House of Refuge for Female Prisoners, the Infant Asylum and Orphanage of the Sisters of Charity, the Italian Church and Charities, the Little Sisters of the Poor; the New Church, Kensington; the New Schools, Warwick-street, Golden-square; the Orphanage, Vicarage-place, Kensington; the Servants' Home, St. Edward's Convent, Blandford-square; the Society of St. Vincent de Paul; and the St. Nicholas Industrial School, Walthamstow.

The fiftieth, or jubilee, meeting of the members of the Royal Yacht Squadron was held last Saturday, at Willis's Rooms, for the transaction of the usual business, and to settle when the regatta shall take place at Cowes during the present year. The Earl of Wilton, commodore of the squadron, occupied the chair, and there was present a large number of distinguished yachtmen. The funds were shown by the accounts to be in a very satisfactory state. A motion was submitted that the regatta at Cowes should take place the week before Goodwood races; but after some discussion this was negatived, and the regatta will be held, as usual, early in the month of August. The following new members were admitted:—John Blackett, Esq., owner of the Fox (cutter), 35 tons; Adrian E. Hope, Esq., Pilgrim (schooner), 125 tons; Viscount Hood, Minx (yawl), 69 tons; Lord Berners, Galatea (schooner), 143 tons; Lord Willoughby d'Eresby, New Moon (lugger), 200 tons; Viscount Lismore, Ione (schooner), 75 tons. The Royal Yacht Squadron now consists of 212 members, exclusive of the Emperor of the French, the King of the Netherlands, the Grand Duke Constantine, Prince Louis of Bourbon, and about 600 honorary members. Some alterations were made in the rules.

The thirteenth anniversary festival of the Royal Medical Benevolent College took place, last Saturday, at the Freemasons' Tavern—Earl Granville in the chair. The objects of the Royal Medical College are to assist members of the medical profession who, from ill-health, want of professional success, or other adverse influences, have sunk into poverty; and the widows of medical men in reduced circumstances. With this is combined a school, devoted, in part, to the gratuitous education of orphans of medical men. Although opened only in 1855, the objects of the society have been so far carried out that there are at the present time resident in the college which has been erected at Epsom twenty-four pensioners, being aged medical men or their widows, each of whom is provided with three comfortably-furnished rooms, an annual allowance of three and a half tons of coals, and a pension of £21 a year. There are also resident in the college 200 boys, the sons of medical men, forty of whom—being the foundation scholars—are educated, boarded, clothed, and maintained entirely at the expense of the institution, while the remainder are charged £40 a year each for an education of the highest class. The balance-sheet for last year showed the receipts to be £11,892; deducting expenses, there remained £310 in the hands of the treasurer. The interests of the association were advocated with much tact and geniality by the chairman, who presided for the second time at its anniversary festival, Sir Charles Locock, Dr. Babington, Dr. Charles Hogg, Mr. Scourfield, M.P., and Mr. Propert. The result of the subscriptions was a sum close upon £1000.

The births of 1999 children—1008 boys and 991 girls—were registered in London in the week ending Saturday last, May 13. In the corresponding weeks of ten years, 1855-64, the average number corrected for increase of population was 1971. The deaths in London in the same period were 1167. The average number for the nineteenth week in ten years (corrected) is 1306. The deaths in the present return are less by 139 than the average number. This is the healthiest season of the year in London, and the mortality in May is generally low. The actual mortality in the two last weeks is much below the low average. Two hundred and thirty-two persons died from zymotic diseases, the corrected average number being 295. Eight deaths occurred from smallpox, 18 from measles, 22 from scarlatina, 5 from diphtheria, 57 from whooping-cough, and 49 from typhus. Phthisis proved fatal to 151 persons. Ninety-six deaths occurred from bronchitis, 54 from pneumonia, and 67 from diseases of the heart. A boy, aged eleven, died, on the 8th, at Dean's-court, Old Bailey, from hydrophobia, having been bitten by a dog, in Holborn, about three months previously.——The births in London and ten other large towns of the United Kingdom during last week were 3967; the deaths, 2453. The annual rate of mortality in the week in those eleven towns was 22 per 1000 persons living, and was lower than in the two previous weeks, when the rates were 25 and 24 respectively. The rate of mortality last week was 20 per 1000 in London, 24 in Edinburgh, and 22 in Dublin; 31 in Liverpool, 27 in Manchester, 19 in Salford, 18 in Birmingham, 23 in Leeds, 21 in Bristol, 25 in Hull, and 29 in Glasgow. In Liverpool the births were 374, the deaths 281; in Manchester—births 221, deaths 182; in Salford—births 75, deaths 40; in Birmingham—births 253, deaths 115; in Leeds—births 218, deaths 92; in Bristol—births 108, deaths 65; in Hull—births 73, deaths 50; in Edinburgh—births 144, deaths 80; in Glasgow—births 357, deaths 238; in Dublin—births 145, deaths 136.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean are at New York, attracting brilliant audiences at the Broadway Theatre.

The Bulletin des Lois publishes a new list of patents. Among them is one granted to two Lyonese, who have discovered a mode of lining letter envelopes with silk; there is another for a cane which you can put in your pocket and transform into a seat at will; another for an instrument to indicate the existence of minerals or springs of water in land; another for raising a ship into the air and steering it there; another for applying steam to children's toys; another for heating and lighting apartments with the same apparatus.

In the Yorkshire Sheriffs' Court at Leeds, on Thursday week, before Mr. Wheelhouse, barrister-at-law, the High Sheriff's assessor, £50 damages were awarded to Walter Shaw, bobbin manufacturer, of Dewsbury, who was the plaintiff in an undefended action against Messrs. John and James Gomersal and William Thackrah, manufacturers, of the same place. On the 18th of February the plaintiff wrote a letter to Miss Sarah Jane Gomersal asking for an interview. As the plaintiff had no intimacy with the family to warrant this step, the defendants, who are the young lady's brothers, sent a letter to the plaintiff, which appeared to have come from their sister, and which invited him to their house on the night of the 23rd of February. When he made his appearance on the premises the defendants seized him and threw him into a horse-trough full of water, in which they kept him three minutes. After that they drenched him by means of a hose attached to a water-main, and then put him in the water-trough a second time, and finally kicked him off the premises. In his letter to the young lady he had stated that he had his eye upon another fair creature in York, but he wished to give Miss Gomersal the first chance. He laid the damages at £500.

Major-General A. B. Stransham, Inspector-General of the Royal Marine Forces, was engaged last week in making his spring inspection of the Royal Marine Artillery and the Royal Marine Light Infantry at Portsmouth. On Tuesday and Thursday General Stransham was engaged with the Portsmouth division of Royal Marine Light Infantry at the head-quarters of the division, Forton Barracks, near Gosport, inspecting the officers and men on parade, in their quarters, at ship-gun drill, &c., together with the schools and regimental accounts. On Thursday the General proceeded to the head-quarters of the Royal Marine Artillery, at Fort Cumberland and Eastney Barracks, and made a close inspection of the men in quarters and at practice with guns, mortars, &c., of different calibres. Yesterday week the artillery and light infantry brigaded together on Southsea-common for a joint inspection under arms, the artillery being under the command of Lieutenant-Colonels A. Schomberg and C. Barnard, and the light infantry under the command of Colonel-Commandant W. H. March. The artillery mustered on the ground in a strength of eight companies, and the light infantry in a strength of twelve companies, and about three p.m. were formed in line on the common, parallel with the beach. After inspecting the force in line the General, accompanied by his Staff, galloped to the saluting-point, and the troops, breaking into open column, marched past, first in open order of companies in slow time, and afterwards in grand divisions in quick time. A series of field-manœuvres followed, comprising the usual infantry movements. The general appearance of both corps under arms and the individual smartness of the men was all that could be desired by most fastidious military martinets.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Bishop of Norwich will begin his septennial visitation on Monday, June 19.

The Archdeacon of London has appointed Wednesday next, the 24th inst., for his annual visitation of the clergy and churchwardens of the archdeaconry, at St. Sepulchre's Church.

The annual visitation of the Ven. Dr. Bickersteth, Archdeacon of Buckingham, is appointed to begin on Monday, the 29th inst. On Tuesday, the 30th, the Archdeacon will deliver his charge, at Aylesbury.

The Ven. Sir George Prevost, Bart., Archdeacon of Gloucester, has appointed his primary general visitations to be held as follows—viz., May 30, at Gloucester, for the deanery of Gloucester; 31, at Stow-on-the-Wold, for the Stow deanery; June 1, at Chipping Campden, for the Campden deanery; 2, at Cheltenham, for the Winchcomb deanery; 13, at Newnham, for the Forest deanery; 15, at Stroud, for the Stonehouse deanery; 16, at Dursley, for the Dursley deanery.

The Ven. John Sinclair, M.A., Archdeacon of Middlesex, held a visitation of the clergy of that part of the London diocese which is under his jurisdiction on Monday. The visitation was held at St. Paul's Church, Covent-garden. The main topic of the Archdeacon's address was the recent theological decisions of the Committee of Privy Council. The principles laid down in these cases, he said, would justify the most infidel propositions in Humes "Essays," if they had been put forth by a clergyman of the Church. He was therefore in favour of a change in the Court; but he was afraid, after the recent decisions, there must also be a change in the law. But if the law would not allow infidels to be driven out of the Church, let them keep their emoluments but cease to take part in the celebration of services in which they did not believe.

Springthorpe Church, Gainsborough, was reopened on the 23rd ult., after extensive restorations under Mr. Goddard, architect.

The Church of St. Michael, Hartlip, was reopened on the 27th ult., after restoration under the superintendence of Mr. R. C. Hussey.

Yesterday week the newly-erected Church of St. Bartholomew, Shepperton-street, Islington, was consecrated by the Bishop of London.

It is intended to hold a festival meeting of parochial choirs on July 20, in the nave of Wells Cathedral. The Bishop of the diocese is president, and the Rev. G. J. Blomfield honorary secretary.

The annual festival of the choirs of Buckingham and its neighbourhood was held at Buckingham, on the 11th inst. Divine service was celebrated in the parish church. The number of voices was 200.

The reopening of St. Michael's Church, Wood-green, took place on Sunday. The Ven. W. H. Hale, the Archdeacon of London, father of the Vicar of Tottenham, in whose parish the church stands, preacher.

St. John the Evangelist, Goose-green, Peckham, was on Tuesday consecrated by the Bishop of Winchester. It is in the Early English style, designed by Mr. Baily, of Guildhall, and is calculated to hold 900 persons, 300 being free seats.

The chancel of Galcombe Church, Isle of Wight, which has been entirely rebuilt, the work having been undertaken by the late Rector, the Rev. J. Branthwaite, and completed by his family after his death, was opened by a special service on Easter Eve.

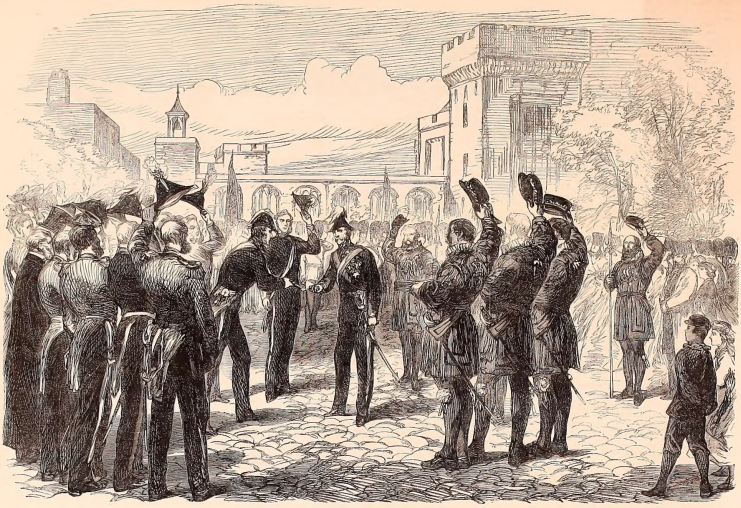
Gainford Church was reopened on the 4th inst. The Bishop of Durham preached in the morning, and Archdeacon Musgrave in the afternoon. The church has been restored thoroughly. Stained oak benches, with slightly-carved ends, have been introduced in the place of the former pews. It is also made an unappropriated church, free for the use of the parishioners.

The Convocation of Canterbury resumed its session on Tuesday. In the Upper House the question of clerical subscription was discussed, and a resolution praying for an alteration in the present form was adopted. In the Lower House, the differences between the clergy and the Committee of Council on Education came under review on a report brought up by the Archdeacon of Taunton. On Wednesday the Upper House continued the discussion upon the motion to petition the Crown in favour of the report on clerical subscription. The resolutions were agreed to; and their Lordships then adjourned to meet the Prince of Wales at the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy. The Lower House continued the discussion on the Court of Final Appeal, and in a succession of divisions they negatived all the amendments that were moved, and finally the resolution itself, so that the long-protracted discussion has been productive of no results.

The 211th anniversary festival of the Sons of the Clergy was celebrated, on Wednesday, under the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral, with a full choral service, and a sermon preached by the Very Rev. Harvey Goodwin, D.D., Dean of Ely. There was an unusually large attendance, a more than ordinary amount of interest being excited by the fact that the Prince of Wales was present.——In the evening the stewards of the festival invited about 300 gentlemen to a banquet in the great hall of the Merchant Taylors' Company, the Lord Mayor presiding. The Prince of Wales was present, and, as on the occasion of his visit to St. Paul's, he was warmly greeted by the large number of persons who had assembled to witness his arrival. In the course of the evening the secretary announced that the collection at the cathedral amounted to £312, and that £1489 had been collected at the dinner. The name of the Prince of Wales appeared as a subscriber of 100 guineas, and forty-four other stewards contribute £1350. The whole income of the society for the year from voluntary contributions was stated to be £4689, which was entirely independent of the income from landed estates and funded property. We defer giving the details of the banquet until our next Number, which will contain an Engraving of the festival.

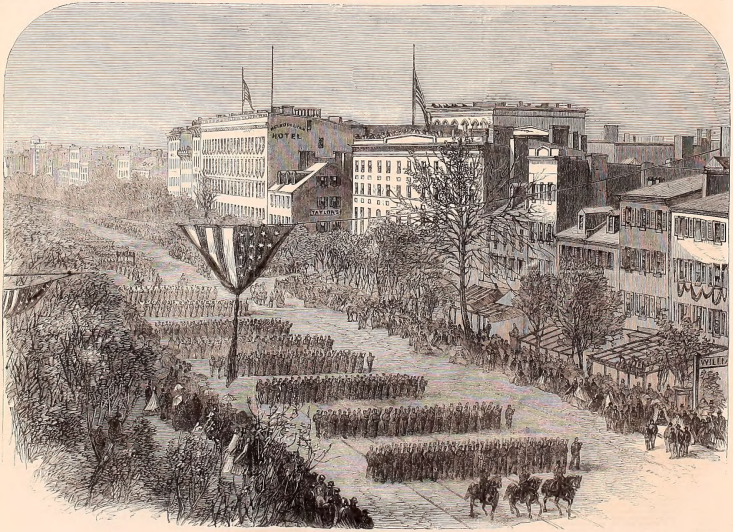
The following preferments and appointments have recently taken place:—Rectories: The Rev. T. Hullah, Perpetual Curate of Tideford, St. Germans, to Calstock, Tavistock; Rev. T. H. Tarlton, Incumbent of Stroud, to Milbrook, Beds; Rev. W. Thorold, Incumbent of Middleton, Leeds, to Weeton, Blackpool. Vicarages: Rev. G. G. P. Glossop to Twickenham; Rev. G. T. Hoare to Walkinstead, alias the rectory of Godstone. Incumbencies: Rev. N. F. Y. Kemble to Hesket with Armathwaite, Carlisle; Rev. T. C. Mayo to St. Andrew, Hillingdon; Rev. R. C. Webb to St. Mary Magdalene, Billericay. Perpetual Curacy: Rev. H. M. White to St. John's, Masbrough, Yorkshire. Curacies: Rev. G. T. Birch to St. Clement's, Toxteth Park, Liverpool; Rev. J. Burrows to Bowdon; Rev. H. J. N. Chase to St. John's, Cheltenham; Rev. J. G. Dixon to Mission Chapel, Clare-market; Rev. A. Edwards to Temple Sowerby, Westmorland; Rev. E. Griffiths to Barbon, Westmorland; Rev. G. Q. Head to St. Matthew, Oakeley-square; Rev. A. H. Hodgson to Samlesbury; Rev. J. Inglis to Natland, Westmorland; Rev. F. F. Jones to Kemerton; Rev. W. H. Lee to Christ Church, Leicester; Rev. G. F. Le Mesurier to Tormarton; Rev. R. H. Mullens to Acton Turville; Rev. R. F. Mumford to Walsall; Rev. D. Paul to Titchmarsh; Rev. A. Pertwee to St. Margaret's, Leicester; Rev. E. Puttock to Flaxley; Rev. J. R. Rathbone to Bringhurst with Great Easton, Leicestershire; Rev. J. Raven to Cowley; Rev. R. O. T. Thorpe, Vicar of St. Clement's, Cambridge, late Chaplain of Campbell Town and Ross, Tasmania, to Christ Church, Newgate-street. Rev. J. Sephton to be Clerk in Orders of St. Anne, Soho.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—A letter from Mr. Adams, the American Minister, to Lord Derby, as Chancellor of Oxford University, acknowledging the University address of condolence on the assassination of President Lincoln, has been transmitted to the Vice-Chancellor, and read to Convocation.——Mr. Taylor, of Gloucester, has been elected organist of New College, in the place of Dr. Arnold, who has succeeded Dr. Wesley at Winchester.



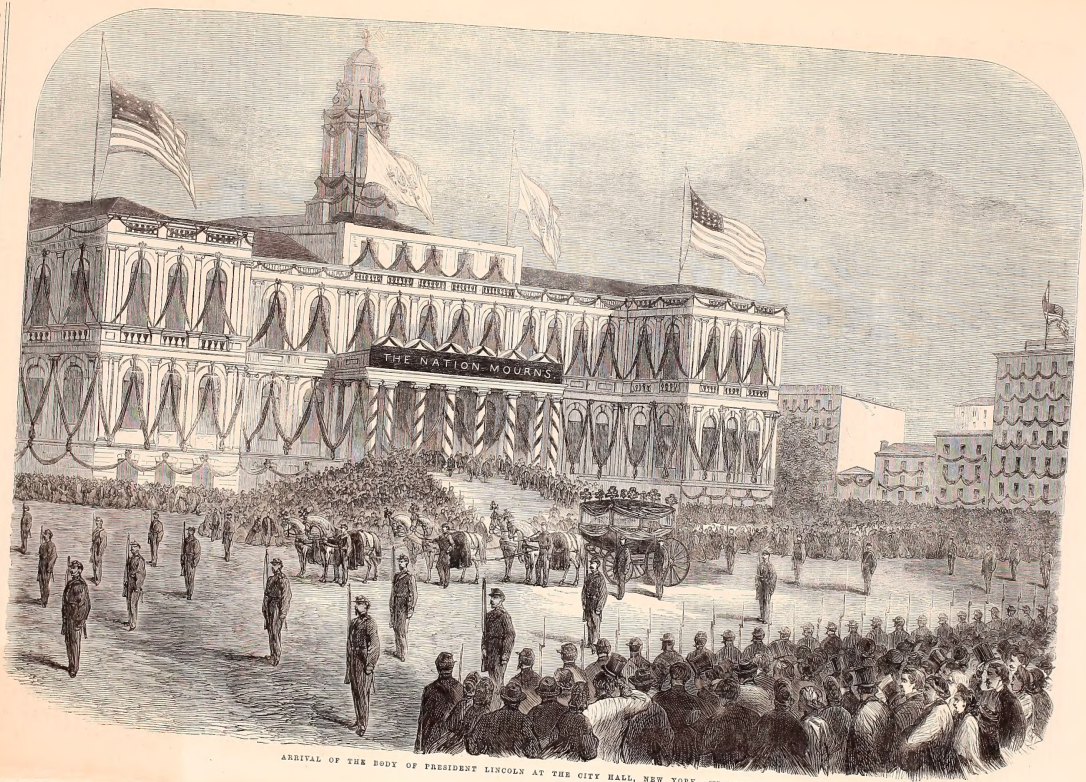
At Cambridge the Duke of Devonshire's gold medal for the encouragement of English poetry was, on Saturday last, awarded for this year to Sidney Colvin, Trinity College, for the best poem on Florence; and on the same day the Marquis of Camden's gold medal for the best exercise in Latin hexameter verse was awarded to Frederick Gunton, Magdalen College—subject, "Roma Subterranea."——The annual prize to the best proficient in Moral Philosophy among the commencing B.A.'s was this year adjudged to Arthur Cust, St. John's College.

It is resolved to carry into effect the recent regulations of the visitor and governors of the University of Durham in the following manner, the changes to commence with the Michaelmas term, 1865:—1. Faculty of Theology—Lectures in Hebrew will form, as heretofore, a regular part of the theological course; and the Hebrew prizes, which have been given since 1835, will be continued. Two new prizes of £50 each will be given annually to the most deserving students, where there is positive merit, on their passing their final examination; in which proficiency in Hebrew will have due weight. Also two exhibitions of £30 each, tenable for one year, after each of the two preceding examinations. Other prizes and exhibitions will be founded in this faculty, when the funds derived from the abolished fellowships or other sources shall permit. 2. Faculty of Arts—The degree of B.A. may be taken after two years. The residence during each of these years will be of eight months. In this faculty will be founded a school of physical science, in which regular lectures will be given in mathematics and natural philosophy, in chemistry, in civil engineering and mining, including hydrostatics and hydraulics. The terms of residence in this school will be the same as those in arts. At the end of the second year students may become associates in physical science. Prizes and exhibitions will be founded in this school, when the funds derived from the abolished fellowships or other sources shall permit. The University scholarships will be open to all the students in the University. The University lectures will, as at present, be open, on such conditions as the senate may determine, to persons who are not members of the University.



The annual examination for open scholarships at Marlborough College will begin on the 30th inst. The value of senior scholarships is £50 annually; of the junior, £20.

The Rev. B. Hesketh-Williams has been appointed one of the assistant masters of Uppingham School, Rutland.



A letter from Canea, Candia, announces that the olive crop of 1864-5 has turned out most unfavourably.

GENERAL SIR J. F. BURGOYNE, G.C.B., RECEIVING THE KEYS AS CONSTABLE OF THE TOWER OF LONDON.—SEE PAGE 486.

PROCESSION THROUGH WASHINGTON WITH THE BODY OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN.—SEE PAGE 490.

ARRIVAL OF THE BODY OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN AT THE CITY HALL, NEW YORK.—SEE PAGE 481.

BIRTHS.

On the 15th inst., at 11, Grosvenor-square, Lady Lindsay, of a daughter.

On the 30th ult., at No. 1, Place Lartique, Montreal, Canada, the wife of Captain Edward Welch, Barrackmaster, of a daughter.

On the 14th inst., at Myddelton House, Enfield, the wife of H. C. Bowles Bowles, Esq., of a son.

At John-street, Berkeley-square, the Hon. Mrs. Vaughan Johnson, of a son.

At Charles-street, Berkeley-square, Lady Emily Kingscote, of a son.

At Shugborough, the Countess of Lichfield, of a daughter.

At Edinburgh, the Hon. Mrs. Buller Elphinstone, of a son.

At Bishopscourt, Naas, Lady Maria Fitzclarence, of twin sons.

In Norfolk-square, Hyde Park, the Hon. Mrs. George Pepys, of a daughter.

At Brighton, Lady Forbes, of a son.

At Gloucester-place, Lady Harriet Vernon, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On Nov. 3, 1864, at Valparaiso, by the Rev. Richard Dennett, Thomas James Wallace, youngest son of the late David Millie, Esq., formerly of Balhousie, Fifeshire, Scotland, to Fanny Elizabeth, eldest daughter of the late Robert Wainwright, Esq., of Eccleswall Court, Ross, Herefordshire. No cards.

On the 17th inst., at the parish church, Leamington Priors, Warwickshire, by the Rev. H. Fisher, M.A., brother of the bride, Richard Lea, Esq., of Tezpore, Assam, India, to Elizabeth, second daughter of the Rev. John Fisher, Rector of Higham-on-the-Hill, Leicestershire.

At Henley-on-Thames, the Right Rev. T. B. Morrell, D.D., Lord Bishop (coadjutor) of Edinburgh, to Francina Maria, daughter of C. Lane, Esq., of Badgemore, Oxfordshire.

DEATHS.

On the 17th inst., at the residence of her son-in-law, Hillesdon, Prince's Park, Liverpool, Mary, relict of William Jennings, Esq., Congresbury, Somerset, in the 91st year of her age.

On the 16th inst., at Mickleham, Surrey, Edward William Smith, Esq., aged 76.

On the 13th inst., at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, from the effects of a severe accident, W. D. Wills, Esq., of Bristol, in his 63th year.

On the 14th inst., Mrs. G. S. Measom, of St. Margaret's, Isleworth, suddenly, of acute congestion of the liver, while attending a sick sister, and away from her broken-hearted husband and only child, aged 45. Friends will please to accept this intimation.

At Otago, New Zealand, Francis John, son of the late Baron Alderson.

At Halifax, Nova Scotia, the Ven. Archdeacon Willis.

At the Cedars, Sunbury, Lady Giffard, widow of Sir A. H. Giffard, Bart., LL.D., formerly Chief Justice of Ceylon, aged 78.

* The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 27.

SUNDAY, May 21.—Rogation Sunday. Establishment of the Society of British Artists, 1823.

MONDAY, 22.—The Order of Baronets created by King James I., 1611. Death of Robert Vernon, who gave the Vernon Gallery to the British nation, 1849.

TUESDAY, 23.—Battle of St. Albans: The Lancastrians defeated and Henry VI. taken prisoner, 1455. Jerome Savonarola, Roman Catholic reformer, burnt at Florence, 1498.

WEDNESDAY, 24.—Death of Nicholas Copernicus, the great astronomer, 1543. Queen Victoria born, 1819. New Moon, 10h. 49m. p.m.

THURSDAY, 25.—Ascension Day. Holy Thursday. Prince Louis Bonaparte (now Napoleon III.) escaped from his prison at Ham, 1846. Princess Helena born, 1846. Trinity Term begins.

FRIDAY, 26.—St. Augustin, first Archbishop of Canterbury (died 605). Napoleon I. crowned himself King of Italy, with the iron crown, at Milan, 1805.

SATURDAY, 27.—Venerable Bede. Habeas Corpus Act passed, 1679. George V., King of Hanover, born, 1819.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE
FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 27.

Sunday.		Monday.		Tuesday.		Wednesday.		Thursday.		Friday.		Saturday.
M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
10 33	11 8	11 40	—	0 9	0 36	1 3	1 29	1 51	2 17	2 40	3 4	3 26	3 47

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF: Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	THERMOMETER: Minimum, read at 10 A.M.	Maximum, read at 10 P.M.	WIND: General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours.	Rain in 24 hours. Read at 10 A.M.
	Inches.	°	°		0-10	°	°		Miles.	Inches
May 10	29·502	49·0	46·8	·92	10	46·3	50·7	NW. NNW. N.	167	.719
11	29·646	47·7	42·4	·83	10	43·6	50·1	NNW. NW. WSW.	177	.465
12	29·881	47·5	40·0	·77	8	44·5	57·7	SW. W.	331	·135
13	29·984	52·5	36·5	·57	6	38·8	62·0	SW. WSW.	179	·000
14	..	..	..	..	..	47·0	57·0	..	151	·094
15	29·622	49·4	46·2	·89	9	43·6	57·3	SSE. SW. SSW.	197	·025
16	29·835	49·7	39·5	·70	8	37·8	57·5	SSW. SW.	366	·003

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29·498	29·592	29·858	30·011	29·911	29·652	29·812
Temperature of Air	46·9°	46·3°	48·6°	53·6°	50·9°	52·8°	53·9°
Temperature of Evaporation	46·4°	44·6°	45·6°	47·0°	47·4°	51·7°	48·2°
Direction of Wind	NW.	NNW.	SW.	SW.	ENE.	SSE.	SSW.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—MONDAY NEXT, MAY 22, and Tuesday, 23, Last Two Nights of Mr. Sothern as the original Lord Dundreary. THE MILLER'S DAUGHTER Every Night—Mr. Whiffen, Mr. Cooper, Miss Louise Keeley, &c. On Wednesday, May 24, BROTHER SAM—Mr. Sothern, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Compton, Miss Snowdon, and Miss Nelly Moore. With other Entertainments.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—MONDAY and following Evenings, DON CÆSAR DE BAZAN—Don Cæsar, Mr. Fechter. Saturday, May 27, Last Night of the Season, Mr. Fechter's Benefit, RUY BLAS, Mr. Fechter; and THE ROADSIDE INN—Robert Macaire, Mr. Fechter.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER.—Last Four Nights of Miss Bateman in FAZIO, MONDAY, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday, at Eight, preceded by THE IRISH TIGER. Tuesday and Thursday, FLOWERS OF THE FOREST—Characters as before. By desire, ONE TOUCH OF NATURE—Mr. B Webster and Miss H. Simms. To conclude each evening with THE STEEPLECHASE—Mr. J. L. Toole.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, with Mr. JOHN PARRY, will appear in their NEW ENTERTAINMENT Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight. Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. A New Opera di Camera every Tuesday and Thursday at Three. Saturday at Eight.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY.—EVERY EVENING at Eight o'Clock; Saturday Afternoon at Three o'Clock. PARIS PORTRAYED and MRS. BROWN AT THE PLAY.—EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Box-office open Eleven to Five.

THURTON'S "ODD FOLKS," with a New Piece of Extravaganza, termed "GOING TO COURT," the Model Policeman, and other Novelties, at LLANGOLLEN, MONDAY, MAY 22; Wrexham, 23 (return visit); Frodsham, 24; Heaton Norris, 25; Newton-in-Makerfield, 26.
Manager, Mr. J. MORPEY.

STODARE'S THEATRE OF MYSTERY, EGYPTIAN HALL.—EVERY NIGHT at Eight and Saturday Afternoon at Three.—The New and Startling Illusions, as performed by Colonel Stodare, continue to create the greatest success and astonishment.

POSITIVELY the LAST WEEK BUT THREE of GENERAL TOM THUMB and his LITTLE PARTY at ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly. They close June 10. We advise our friends not to delay coming, as their last few levées are always crowded. Three Grand Entertainments daily, at Eleven, Three, and Half-past Seven. Admission, Day Entertainments, 1s., 2s., and 3s.; Evening, 1s.; Children under Ten half price to all parts of the house; a few Reserved Seats, 2s.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL. Second Appearance of Mdme. Schumann on MONDAY EVENING NEXT, MAY 22. The programme will include Beethoven's sonata in C, dedicated to Count Waldstein, for pianoforte alone; Beethoven's pianoforte trio in D, op. 70; Schubert's string quartet in A minor; and Tartini's "Trille du Diable," for violin alone. Executants—Mdme. Schumann, MM. Joachim, Piatti, Grün, Weiner. Vocalist, Miss Edmonds. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s; Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s; and at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

MUSICAL UNION.—THIRD MATINÉE, TUESDAY, at Half-past Three, MAY 23.—Quartet No. 7, in F, Beethoven; Trio, B flat, Schubert; Quartet, No. 2, E flat, Mendelssohn. Solos, Pianoforte. Artists—Joachim, Ries, Webb, and Piatti. Pianist, Herr Alfred Jaell. Tickets, Half-a-Guinea each, to be had at the usual places. Members can pay for visitors at the door, St. James's Hall.
J. ELLA, Director, 18, Hanover-square.

GREAT FLOWER SHOW and FASHIONABLE PROMENADE of the SEASON. THIS DAY (Saturday). Open at Ten. Show open from about Twelve until Six.

CRYSTAL PALACE—The GUINEA TICKETS admit Free to the Great Flower Show THIS DAY, to the OPERA CONCERTS, and to the other Great Fêtes announced in the Programme.
NOTE.—It will facilitate the purchase of Season Tickets at the entrances to the Palace if visitors intending to purchase them will kindly come prepared with card or written name and address.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Popular Day for Classical Music. MONDAY AFTERNOON NEXT, BEETHOVEN'S CHORAL SYMPHONY will be repeated. Full Band and Chorus of 150 Voices. Conductor—Mr. Manns. One Shilling. The Symphony will be played at Four o'Clock. Doors open at Nine as usual.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—WEDNESDAY NEXT.—Queen's Birthday.—Great Fête.—Repetition of the GREAT CHORAL CONCERT of 5000 VOICES of the METROPOLITAN SCHOOLS, on the Great Orchestra. Conductor—Mr. G. W. Martin.

NOW IS THE TIME TO VISIT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.—Wet or Dry.—Delightful Summer appearance of Gardens and Park. Nature in fullest beauty. Refreshed by the recent rain, the Park and Gardens truly delightful. The shrubs and plants in flower around the lakes have never been so charmingly fresh; alone worth a special visit.
Arrangements for this week:—
Monday—Popular day for classical music; repetition performance of Beethoven's Choral Symphony. Full Band and Chorus.
Wednesday—Great Choral Concert of 5000 Voices of Metropolitan Schools. Conductor, Mr. G. W. Martin.
Saturday—Third Grand Opera Concert. Names of Vocalists will be duly announced.
Monday to Friday, One Shilling.
Saturday Concert, Five Shillings, or, by Half-a-Crown Admission Tickets, on sale up to Friday.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, Regent's Park.—FIRST EXHIBITION of PLANTS and FLOWERS will take place on WEDNESDAY NEXT, MAY 24. Tickets to be obtained at the Gardens, and of the Society's Clerk, Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's Hall, on vouchers from Fellows of the Society, price 5s.; or, on the day of Exhibition, 7s. 6d. each. Gates open at Two o'Clock.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—Conductor, Professor Sterndale Bennett.—FIFTH CONCERT, MAY 29.—Programme: Spohr's Symphony in D minor and Mendelssohn's Overture in C (both composed expressly for the society); Beethoven's Symphony in F (No. 8); Mozart's "Zauberflöte" Overture; and Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor. Pianiste, Mdme. Schumann. Vocalist, Mdlle. Ilma de Murska.
CAMPBELL CLARKE, Sec.
24, Lincoln's-Inn-fields, W.C.

WEDNESDAY.—Mrs. JOHN MACFARREN'S MORNINGS at the PIANOFORTE, EGYPTIAN HALL, EVERY WEDNESDAY, at Three. Vocalists: Miss Banks, Miss Robertine Henderson, Mdme. Gilardoni, and Miss Poole. Pianist, Mrs. John Macfarren. Stalls, 5s., 3s. (schools half price); Tickets, 2s. and 1s.

MR. BENEDICT'S ANNUAL CONCERT, JUNE 21, under the immediate patronage of H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES and H.R.H. the PRINCESS of WALES.—Mr. BENEDICT'S THIRTIETH ANNUAL GRAND MORNING CONCERT, at the ST. JAMES'S HALL, on WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21. Early application is solicited for the few remaining Sofa and Balcony Stalls. The full programme will be published on Thursday, June 1.

MR. DEACON begs to announce that his SECOND and THIRD MATINEES of CLASSICAL MUSIC will take place on THURSDAYS, the 1st and 22nd of JUNE, at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, to commence at Three o'Clock. Particulars will be duly announced. Tickets, reserved and numbered, to admit three to a single Matinée, One Guinea; single ticket, Half-a-Guinea; to be had of Messrs. Ollivier and Co., 19, Old Bond-street; the principal Musicsellers; at the Rooms; and of Mr. Deacon, 10, Wimpole-street, Cavendish-square.

JUNE 1.—MR. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Charles Hallé. Tickets, 6s., 3s., 2s., 1s.; Stall Ticket for four, 21s. Addison and Lucas, 210, Regent-street; Hammond, 214, Regent-street; Keith, Prowse, 48, Cheapside; Austin, 28, Piccadilly; and all Musicsellers.

MR. J. T. STONE begs to announce that he TEACHES the PIANO and HARMONY in Blackheath, Eltham, and Charlton. Terms may be had at his residence, 2, Waterfield-terrace, Blackheath; or of his publishers, Messrs. D'Almaine and Co., 104, New Bond-street, W.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL EXHIBITION IS NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 53, PALL-MALL (near St. James's Palace). Daily from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d.
JAMES FAHEY, Sec.

FRENCH GALLERY, 120, PALL-MALL.—The TWELFTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF PICTURES—the Contributions of Artists of the French and Flemish Schools, to which has been added ROSA BONHEUR'S NEW PICTURE of "A Family of Deer Crossing the Summit of the Long Rocks" (Forest of Fontainebleau)—IS NOW OPEN. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d.

HYDE PARK in 1864, by HENRY BARRAUD, Esq., containing 220 Portraits of the Frequenters of Rotten-row, NOW ON VIEW, at 220, Regent-street (opposite Hanover-street). Admission 1s. Open from Ten till Dusk.

THE LARGE PICTURE—A DRAWINGROOM at ST. JAMES'S PALACE, in the reign of Queen Victoria—painted by JERRY BARRETT, and containing nearly 60 Portraits—is now ON VIEW at Mr. HOGARTH'S, 5, Haymarket. Invitation cards issued before the Picture's removal are available. Hours Eleven till Six. Admission, One Shilling.

ARTISTS' BENEVOLENT FUND for the RELIEF of their WIDOWS and ORPHANS. Established 1810. Incorporated by Royal Charter 1827.
PATRON—Her Most Gracious Majesty the QUEEN.
The FIFTY-SIXTH ANNIVERSARY DINNER will take place, in FREEMASONS' HALL, on SATURDAY, the 27th MAY, 1865,
Viscount BURY, M.P., in the Chair.
Tickets, £1 1s. each, may be obtained of the Board of Stewards; Charles J. Dimond, Esq., Hon. Secretary; Augustus U. Thiselton, Secretary, 16A, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields; and at the Freemasons' Tavern.
Donations and annual subscriptions forwarded to the Secretary will be duly announced at the anniversary dinner, previous to the list of contributors being published.
Since the formation of the fund, the sum of £26,310 18s. 3d. has been distributed in relieving Widows and Orphans of British Artists; fifty-two widows having, during the year 1864, received annuities amounting to £751 5s., and ten orphans the sum of £43 11s.

SAILORS' HOME, WELL-STREET, LONDON DOCKS, E. The Directors beg to inform their friends and the public that the New Building, in extension of this Institution, will be opened by H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, on MONDAY NEXT, 22nd inst., at 3 p.m.
By order of the Board, W. H. WEBB, Sec.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, MAY 20, 1865.

"I ALLOW nothing to be a trifle," writes Paley, "which ministers to the harmless gratification of multitudes, nor any order of men to be insignificant whose number bears a respectable proportion to the sum of the whole community." The enormous increase, since the days of the great Archdeacon, in the body which enjoys public amusements, and in the body which supplies them, and the conviction in the minds of all reasonable persons that those amusements are not at present, and as a general rule, "harmless," but that they might be rendered so, induce us to make some observations on the now vexed subject of free trade in the drama.

We could most heartily wish that dramatic representation—the favourite enjoyment of the many, in all ages and in nearly all countries, and the liking for which may almost be considered as an instinct—could be rendered something more than mere amusement. But we are not unphilosophical enough to believe that it will ever be resorted to for a higher purpose than that of mere entertainment; and inasmuch as relaxation itself is a duty, and as much a duty as the use of any other safeguard of health, mental or physical, we shall consider that no ordinary good has been effected when a stage play and all its conditions are what Paley calls harmless. We prefer being practical to being theoretical upon utopian terms; and, instead of wasting time and space in lamenting that direct lessons of good can hardly be taught from the stage, we would rather dwell upon the means of preventing the most popular of all our institutions from working harm. We will not now venture to combat the views of the small but respectable minority who object to the theatre altogether. We are fully aware of the nature of their arguments, and though we believe that these could be successfully met, the meeting them just now is not of pressing importance. The stage exists, and will exist, and myriads derive gratification from it. In the interest of the majority and of society, let us see whether it is not capable of much improvement.

No person whose opinion is of value will say that in an intellectual or moral point of view the drama in England is in a condition of which we can be proud. We are not strong in dramatists or actors, and our audiences are no longer critical. Each of these three facts reacts upon the others, and when one of the classes is attacked it shifts the blame upon another. The dramatist says that it is of no use to write high-class plays, for they cannot be acted; and if they could, people would not go to see them. The actors say that, if they get no good parts they cannot improve in their art, and that the present system of running pieces for years is ruinous to the intellect of the performer. The playgoer, derided for attending night after night and applauding rubbish, says that there is nothing else and that he must take what amusement he can get. Then we have a number of little causes assigned for the degeneracy of the stage. Authors can be better paid for quiet work in the study than for dangling at rehearsals and submitting to the impertinences of managers and actors. The habits of society now seat the superior classes at their dinner-table at the hour when a play is already half over. Good music, of which we have more than any nation in the world, has deposed the drama in the regard of the educated. The facilities for visiting London have ruined the country theatres, formerly the schools of the actors. These are some of the reasons which are given for the decadence of the stage; but, though they have weight, they do not satisfactorily account for the present state of things. The true key to this is in the fact that what used to be the amusement of comparatively a few is now the amusement of the mass, and a lower standard has come into use. Those who attended the performances of the Kembles, Young, and Kean, and dared to be critical even on those great artists, would have as little toleration for the kind of acting and the kind of pieces which now satisfy the town as for the fulsome adulation which is too generally poured upon everything and everybody connected with the stage.

We must take this fact as we find it. You cannot sneer a population into intellectuality. After all, a man has a right to please himself in the matter of amusement, provided it is harmless; and, if he prefers a pantomime or an equestrian drama to "The Broken Heart," "The Alchemist," or "Tartuffe," he has a perfect title to his queer enjoyments. The sensation dramas, as they are foolishly called, which have filled theatres with the lower middle classes for months, and even years, have delighted the spectators; and, though an educated person does not feel much satisfaction in beholding gymnastic feats instead of acting—in seeing women flung into ponds, houses on fire, irruption of water into mines, or other "realisms"—and is not much attracted by an exact reproduction on the stage of a street or square which he can see every day for nothing, such things give great and harmless delight to thousands, and must be looked at with a larger view than that of æstheticism. You must resign to the many such theatres as cater for the many.

But what right have those whose theatres are simply shops for the sale of a certain article, the inferior drama, to a monopoly which virtually prevents a certain other article, the superior drama, from being sold. A manager who is making his fortune by showing a series of scenes which culminate in a brutal Irish murder, or its prevention, can call in the law to chastise a body of gentlemen who may take a hall and enact a Greek or Latin play, or a tragedy of Shakspeare's, if admission be charged for. The educated, and those who desire to be so, are actually debarred from high-class relaxation for the sake of protecting vested interests in comparative rubbish. For theatres constantly open for the higher drama will not pay; but occasional performances, in which a high standard could be aimed at, and natural instead of theatrical acting might be practised, would probably do so, and would set an example that might produce good. But these are unlawful, and a manager who should open a house on such conditions would be fined, and sent to prison if he did not pay the fine. The only objection to a free drama is one which frightens only those who half think. There are a number of music-halls in which a very low class amuse themselves with not bad music interspersed with the most abject ribaldry. It is "feared" that throwing open the drama would encourage these places. How? Their present performances are almost as bad as they can be. An infusion of anything like dramatic taste—the even hearing the language of civilisation—would improve them. But this is a bugbear plea got up by the monopolists. Let the drama be free. The theatre, regarded, as we have said, from the intellectual standpoint, does not rank high. But the theatre is not the drama, and those who comprehend the distinction will assist in the enfranchisement of the latter. England has the finest drama in the world, but it is silenced for the sake of melodramas and mountebanks.

The Queen and King of Spain left Madrid on Thursday for Aranjuez.

The Emperor of Mexico has published an ordinance containing a provincial constitution for the empire.

The Hon. William Wedd Tuxford, of Adelaide, has been elected a member of the Legislative Council of South Australia.

In our Map of the Indian Railways, published in the Number for April 29, the name of Moulmein was, by an error of the engraver, substituted for that of Moultan.

According to Athens letters, the Budget of the kingdom of Greece, shortly to be presented to the Chambers, will not only show a balance, but even produce a surplus, intended to cover the deficit caused by the revolution of 1862.

From Central America we learn that Captain Bedford Pim is making progress with his operations on the isthmus. His contract has been ratified, and he now has exclusive privilege for ninety-nine years, with upwards of 2,000,000 acres of land, and other very important grants. A new track, with an easier grade than the former one, had been cut by Captain Pim through the forest, between the lake of Nicaragua and the Atlantic.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold, left Osborne at ten minutes to four o'clock on Saturday, en route for Windsor Castle. The suite in attendance consisted of the Dowager Duchess of Athole, the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, the Hon. Emma Lascelles, Lieut.-Gen. the Hon. C. Grey, Col. the Hon. Sir C. B. Phipps, Col. H. Ponsonby, Mr. Sahl, and Mr. Buff. The Queen was rowed in the state barge to the Royal yacht Alberta, lying off Osborne, on board which her Majesty embarked, and crossed the Solent to Gosport, the Elfin following. The Queen was rowed in the state barge from the yacht to the Clarence Yard. Her Majesty was received upon landing by Admiral Sir Michael Seymour, Lord William Paulet, and Mr. Godson, traffic superintendent of the London and South-Western Railway. The Queen travelled thence in a state saloon, by a special train, leaving Gosport at ten minutes past five, and proceeded along the South-Western line to Basingstoke, Mr. Godson having charge of the train. At this station Mr. Grierson, general manager of the Great-Western Railway, took charge of the train, and, an engine belonging to that company having been affixed, the journey was continued to Windsor, which was reached at twenty-three minutes past seven. Her Majesty drove at once to the castle.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa attended Divine service, in the afternoon, in the private chapel of the castle. Prince Leopold and Princess Beatrice attended the morning service. The Rev. Lord Wriothesley Russell officiated. Earl Russell arrived at the castle and had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, left the castle for Buckingham Palace, for the purpose of holding a Court, an account of which is given below. Her Majesty returned to the castle at a quarter past seven. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa remained in London and honoured the Philharmonic Society's concert with their presence in the evening at the Hanover-square Rooms.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove in the castle grounds. Princess Louisa, attended by the Hon. Harriet Phipps and Colonel H. F. Ponsonby, returned to the castle from Buckingham Palace. The Dean of Windsor and the Hon. Mrs. Wellesley had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Wednesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, drove in the castle grounds. Princess Helena returned to the castle from Buckingham Palace. The Duke and Duchess d'Aumale visited her Majesty and remained to luncheon. The Queen was graciously pleased to confer the honour of knighthood upon the following officers, Knights Commanders of the Bath, previous to their investiture by the Prince of Wales with the insignia of their dignity—namely, Gen. William Wood, Gen. Thomas Kenah, Gen. Abraham Roberts, Lieut.-Gen. W. Cator, Lieut.-Gen. Patrick Montgomerie, Lieut.-Gen. Thomas Reed, Lieut.-Gen. John Scott, Lieut.-Gen. William Wylie, Lieut.-Gen. Charles Ash Windham, Vice-Admiral Kingcome, Lieut.-Gen. John Edward Dupuis, Lieut.-Gen. Fortescue Graham, Rear-Admiral Sydney Colpoys Dacres, Major-Gen. Lord Wm. Paulet, Major-Gen. Hon. Augustus Almeric Spencer, Col. William Gordon, Col. Edward Harris Greathed, Dr. James Brown Gibson, Dr. William Linton, Commissary-General-in-Chief Wm. James Tyrone Power, Gen. Charles Menzies, and Major-Gen. Charles Warren. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, entered the White Drawing-room at three o'clock, attended by the Duchess Dowager of Athole, Viscount Sydney, the Marquis of Tweeddale, Lord de Tabley, the Hon. Mortimer West, and Col. Sir Thomas Biddulph. The Knights were severally introduced and presented by the Lord Chamberlain, when the Queen conferred on each the honour of knighthood. Each Knight then kissed her Majesty's hand and retired.

DEPARTURE OF THE QUEEN FOR SCOTLAND.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold, was expected to leave Windsor Castle yesterday (Friday) evening, en route for Balmoral. The suite in attendance was to consist of the Duchess Dowager of Athole, the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, the Hon. Miss Bowater, General the Hon. C. Grey, Colonel H. Ponsonby, Mr. Buff, Mr. Brown, and Mr. Sahl. The Queen was to travel in a state saloon, by a special train, provided by the London and North-Western Railway Company. The Royal train was to leave Windsor at ten minutes to seven and proceed along the Great Western Railway, viâ Leamington, to Bushbury junction, timed to arrive at forty minutes past ten. Thence the train would proceed over the London and North-Western line to Stafford, where a stay of fifteen minutes was to be made for refreshments. The journey was to be resumed at twenty minutes past eleven, proceeding viâ Boar's Head station, Kendal, and Carlisle, thence along the Caledonian Railway, viâ Summit, to Greenhill, and hence over the Scottish Central line to Perth, a stoppage of five minutes being made at each of the above stations. At Perth the Queen was to alight and remain an hour for refreshments. The route was to be resumed at a quarter to ten o'clock this morning (Saturday) upon the Scottish North-Eastern Railway, viâ the Bridge of Dun, to Aberdeen, and thence, along the Deeside Railway, to Aboyne, where the train was timed to arrive at thirty-seven minutes past one, the distance of 580½ miles occupying rather less than seventeen hours. The journey was to be performed under the direction of Mr. Cawkwell, general manager of the London and North-Western Railway, and Mr. Neale. The Queen was to travel post from Aboyne to Balmoral.

The Court will remain in Scotland until about the 11th of June, and then return to Windsor Castle.

THE QUEEN'S COURT.

The Queen held her fifth Court, on Monday, at Buckingham Palace. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louisa and attended by the Duchess Dowager of Athole, the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, Major-General F. H. Seymour, and Colonel H. Ponsonby, arrived at the palace at one o'clock from Windsor Castle. The Prince of Wales, attended by Earl Spencer, Lieutenant-General Knollys, Major Teesdale, and the Hon. R. Meade, and escorted by a detachment of the Royal Horse Guards, arrived at the palace shortly before three o'clock from Marlborough House. Princess Mary was present at the reception.

The Queen's body-guard of the Honourable Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms was on duty at the Court, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Sir William Topham. The Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty, under the command of Captain Parker Rickford. A guard of honour of the Grenadier Guards was mounted in the court of the palace.

The Queen, accompanied by the Prince of Wales, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Princess Mary, entered the Throne-room at three o'clock.

In attendance upon her Majesty were the Duchess of Wellington, Viscountess Jocelyn, Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Mrs. George Campbell, the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, the Hon. Harriet Phipps, the Hon. Emma Lascelles, Viscount Sydney, the Earl of St. Germans, the Marquis of Ailesbury, Earl Spencer, Viscount Castlerosse, Viscount Bury, Lord Proby, Colonel Sir Thomas Biddulph, Lord de Tabley, the Hon. Mortimer West, Major-General Seymour, Colonel H. F. Ponsonby, the Marquis of Tweeddale, the Earl of Ducie, Lord Foley, Lieutenant-General the Hon. C. Grey, and the Hon. Spencer Ponsonby.

The Queen wore a black silk dress, with train trimmed with crape and jet; a Mary Queen of Scots cap, with long veil, the cap ornamented with large pearls. Her Majesty wore four rows of large pearls round the neck, and pearl brooches, the ribbon and the star of the Order of the Garter, the Victoria and Albert order, and the order of Louise of Prussia.

A number of distinguished persons had the honour of receiving invitations to attend the Court.

Previously to the reception the Right Hon. Edward Cardwell presented the Hon. J. A. Macdonald, the Hon. G. E. Cartier, the Hon. George Brown, and the Hon. Alexander Galt, who had the honour of kissing her Majesty's hand.

The Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary, the Crown Prince of Denmark, and the Prince of Leiningen visited the Queen.

After the reception, her Majesty left the palace at a quarter-past six o'clock for Windsor Castle. The Queen drove through Hyde Park to the Paddington station of the Great Western Railway in an open carriage and four, attended by the Equerries on horseback.

STATE BALL AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

By command of the Queen, a state ball was given, on Tuesday evening, at Buckingham Palace. The Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty in the palace under the command of Captain Parker Rickford. A guard of honour of the Grenadier Guards was mounted in the court of the palace.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, escorted by a detachment of the Royal Horse Guards, and attended by the Countess of Morton, the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke, Earl Spencer, Lord Harris, and the Hon. R. Meade, arrived at the palace at ten o'clock from Marlborough House.

Princess Helena, the Duchess of Cambridge, and Princess Mary were present at the ball. The Duke of Cambridge was prevented by indisposition from attending the ball. The Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by Princess Helena, the Duchess of Cambridge, and Princess Mary, conducted by Viscount Sydney and attended by their ladies and gentlemen in waiting, entered the ball-room soon after ten o'clock.

The Princess of Wales wore a rich dress of black and white tulle over black glacé silk. Head-dress of black velvet and diamonds. Necklace, brooch, and earrings of pearls and diamonds. The Victoria and Albert order, and the order of Isabella of Portugal.

Princess Helena wore a dress of pink and white tulle over white glacé, trimmed with white crystal and satin ribbons, and bunches of water-lilies. Head-dress, wreath of water-lilies and diamonds. Diamond ornaments. Victoria and Albert order, and order of St. Isabel.

The Duchess of Cambridge wore a black satin dress, trimmed with black lace and bugle and satin ribbon. Head-dress, a diadem of pearls and diamonds, with black velvet and lace. Necklace, stomacher, and earrings of pearls and diamonds.

Princess Mary of Cambridge wore a white tulle dress over glacé silk, trimmed with green silk and blonde. Bouquets of violets and long-grass. Head-dress, a diadem of diamonds, mounted with violets. Stomacher, necklace, and earrings of diamonds.

Dancing was commenced immediately upon the entrance of the Prince and Princess of Wales, with the members of the Royal family, to the ball-room. The quadrille band of Messrs. Coote and Tinney was in attendance, conducted by Mr. Coote. Among those who had the honour of receiving invitations were the Prince and Princess of Leiningen, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and Countess Dornberg; the Turkish, Austrian, Russian, Prussian, and French Ambassadors, with the ladies of their respective families, and the Councillors, Secretaries, and Attachés of the various Embassies; the Belgian, Bavarian, Italian, Netherlands, Portuguese, Guatemala, Saxon, Honduras, United States, Chili, Swedish, and Norwegian, Peruvian, Spanish, Argentine, Hanse Towns, Ecuador, and Salvador Ministers, with the ladies of their families, and the Councillors, Secretaries, and Attachés of the several Legations; the Hanoverian, Danish, Persian, Haytian, and Paraguay Chargés d'Affaires, with the ladies of their respective families; the Lord Chancellor of Ireland and Mrs. Brady; the Speaker of the House of Commons and Lady Charlotte Denison, the Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress, the Governor of the Bank of England, the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, the Gold Stick and Silver Stick in Waiting, the Commanders-in-Chief at Portsmouth and Devonport, the commanding officers of the several regiments of the Guards, the 13th Hussars, the Royal Engineers, the Royal Artillery, and the Royal Marines, the Captain Commander and First Lieutenant of the Royal yacht, and upwards of 1600 members of the aristocracy, some of whom were prevented by unavoidable circumstances from obeying the Queen's command. The Russian Ambassador and Baroness Brunnow, with the members of the Embassy, were prevented from being present at the ball in consequence of the death of the Czarewitch. The United States Minister, and Mrs. and Miss Adams, with the members of the Mission, were also prevented from attending by the death of the President of the United States.

COURT ARRANGEMENTS.

Princess Helena, by command of the Queen, held a Drawingroom at St. James's Palace, on behalf of her Majesty, on Thursday.

The Prince of Wales will, by command of the Queen, hold a Levée at St. James's Palace, on behalf of her Majesty, to-day (Saturday).

A state concert will be given on Monday next at Buckingham Palace.

The Prince of Wales will hold an investiture of the Order of the Bath, in the Queen's name and on her Majesty's behalf, at St. James's Palace, on Thursday, the 8th day of June next, at three o'clock, for the purpose of investing the recently-appointed Knights Grand Cross and Knights Commanders with the insignia of their respective dignities in the Order of the Bath.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Marlborough House.

On Tuesday week the Right Hon. Edward Cardwell attended at Marlborough House and introduced a deputation consisting of Mr. Childers, M.P., Mr. Moor, M.P., and Major Pasley, representing the colony of Victoria in this country, to present an address and a present from the colony of Victoria to the Princess. Lord Harris and the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke were in attendance. The Duke and Duchess de Nemours visited the Princess at Marlborough House.

Yesterday week the Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke, drove out.

On Saturday last the Prince, attended by Earl Spencer, Lieutenant-General Knollys, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, Major Teesdale, and Mr. Fisher, arrived at Marlborough House at eight o'clock in the morning, from Dublin. Subsequently his Royal Highness, accompanied by the Crown Prince of Denmark, rode out. Later in the day the Prince and Princess, accompanied by the Crown Prince of Denmark, took a drive. In the evening the Prince and Princess and the Crown Prince of Denmark honoured the Royal Italian Opera with their presence.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess and the Crown Prince of Denmark attended Divine service in the Chapel Royal St. James's. The Lord Bishop of London, the Rev. the Sub-Dean, and the Rev. Thomas Randolph officiated.

On Monday the Prince, accompanied by the Crown Prince of Denmark, rode out. His Royal Highness was present at the Queen's Court at Buckingham Palace. The Prince also attended the House of Lords. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke, took a drive.

On Tuesday the Prince, accompanied by the Crown Prince of Denmark, rode out. Subsequently the Princes, accompanied by the Princess, took a drive. In the evening the Prince and Princess went to Buckingham Palace, where the Princess, as representing the Queen, presided at the state ball, an account of which is given above. The Crown Prince of Denmark took leave of the Prince and Princess, and, attended by Captain Lund, left Marlborough House for Dover en route for Denmark.

On Wednesday the Prince went to St. Paul's Cathedral to hear a sermon preached in aid of the sons of the clergy. His Royal Highness afterwards dined at Merchant Taylors' Hall. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke, drove out.

The Prince and Princess will shortly leave Marlborough House for Frogmore House.

The Provost and Fellows of Trinity College, Dublin, have conferred on the Prince the honorary degree of LL.D.

His Royal Highness has signified his intention to inaugurate the central hall of the Royal Dramatic College on Monday, June 5.

Their Royal Highnesses the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary have arrived at their residence in the Ambassadors' Court, St. James's Palace, from Cambridge Cottage, Kew.

The Count and Countess d'Eu arrived at Claremont, on Tuesday, from the Continent.

Their Highnesses the Maharajah and Maharanee Dhuleep Singh have arrived at Claridge's Hotel from Alexandria.

His Excellency the Marquis d'Azeglio has left the Italian Legation, in Grosvenor-street, for Turin.

The Duke of Sutherland has returned to Stafford House from Turin.

The Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe and the Marquis of Bowmont have arrived at the Clarendon Hotel from Floors Castle.

The Duchess (Dowager) of Sutherland has arrived at her villa at Chiswick.

The Duchess (Emily) of Beaufort has arrived in town from Grimston Park, Yorkshire.

Prince Paul Esterhazy has arrived at Claridge's Hotel from Paris.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Duchess of Wellington gave a grand ball, on Wednesday week, at Apsley House. The Duke and Duchess d'Aumale, the Count and Countess de Chartres, Prince de Condé, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, the Countess of Dornberg, and a large number of the Corps Diplomatique and of the nobility was present.

The Duke of Buccleuch, as president of the Royal Horticultural Society, received between 2000 and 3000 Fellows and members of the society, on Wednesday evening, at a conversazione in the Royal Horticultural Society's conservatory, at the gardens in South Kensington.

The Countess of Derby had an assembly, on Thursday evening, at the family mansion in St. James's-square. The reunion was numerously attended. Previously to the reception, the noble Earl and Countess entertained a select party at dinner.

The Countess De Grey gave her first assembly this season, on Wednesday evening, at the family mansion in Carlton-gardens. Previously to the reception the noble Earl and Countess received a distinguished party at dinner.

The Earl and Countess of Fife entertained a large party at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at their residence in Grosvenor-place. A select party assembled afterwards.

The Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue and Frances Countess Waldegrave entertained the Count and Countess de Paris and a distinguished circle at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at their residence in Carlton-gardens. Later in the evening the Countess had an evening party, which was attended by a very numerous assemblage.

Earl Stanhope, as President of the Society of Antiquaries, gave his annual dinner to the officials of the society, on Wednesday evening, at his mansion in Grosvenor-place. The Countess had a select party after dinner.

Lord and Lady Foley entertained the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary and a select company at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at the family residence in Grosvenor-square.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The Queen has appointed Lord Belhaven to be her Majesty's High Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

The Leeds Town Council, on Wednesday, elected Mr. Emsley Coroner, in the stead of Mr. Blackburn, deceased.

A cottage was suddenly swallowed up by the earth at Prince's Town, Tredegar, on Thursday week, the family barely escaping in time. It had been undermined by a coal-pit.

The Synod of the United Presbyterian Church was opened at Edinburgh on Monday. The Rev. Mr. Marshall, of Coupar-Angus, was chosen moderator for the ensuing year.

New docks, which will cost between £30,000 and £40,000, are about to be made at Preston. The River Ribble will have to be diverted for a mile, opposite Preston, in order to afford the necessary accommodation.

Seven boys were playing on a balk of timber on the Forth and Clyde Canal, when it canted over, flinging them into deep water. Five of them were saved by a man named Osprey, who dashed into the water with his clothes on, and another was rescued by his companion, Nelson, the only one of the party that could swim.

The Provincial Typographical Association presented to Mr. Speke, a compositor, the late secretary of the executive at Sheffield, on Saturday last, 120 sovereigns, a valuable timepiece, a massive silver snuff-box, and an address, framed, the gift of the united trade of England, Ireland, and Scotland.

The Russian squadron, under Rear-Admiral Lessofsky, with the remains of the late Czarewitch, anchored in Plymouth Sound on Wednesday. Flags were hoisted half-mast high on her Majesty's ships in commission, on the forts, and at all the public departments. The Liverpool screw-frigate, as the senior ship in the Sound, fired a salute of twenty-one minute guns. The Port Admiral's ship, Royal Adelaide, also gave a similar salute.

A riot has broken out at Dewsbury, in the West Riding, the exciting cause being that one of the workmen at the factory there, after striking along with his fellow-workmen, had gone in again on the master's terms. The whole working population of the place appears to have become terribly excited against him, and detachments from the county police, in aid of the borough force, were found to be inadequate for the preservation of order. Several of the rioters were, however, apprehended and committed for trial at the next assizes.

The foundation-stone of the first Working Men's Hall in Dublin was laid last Saturday, by the Lord Mayor, in the presence of a large number of ladies and gentlemen notable for their exertions in the cause of philanthropy. The building will be situated in Lower Kevin-street. The building will be three stories in height—viz., a shop on the level of the street, a committee-room and residence for the manager on the first floor, and the kitchen, scullery, pantry, stores, &c., on the upper floor. The works are being carried out from the designs and under the superintendence of Mr. Alfred G. Jones, architect, and Mr. John Boyce, the contractor.

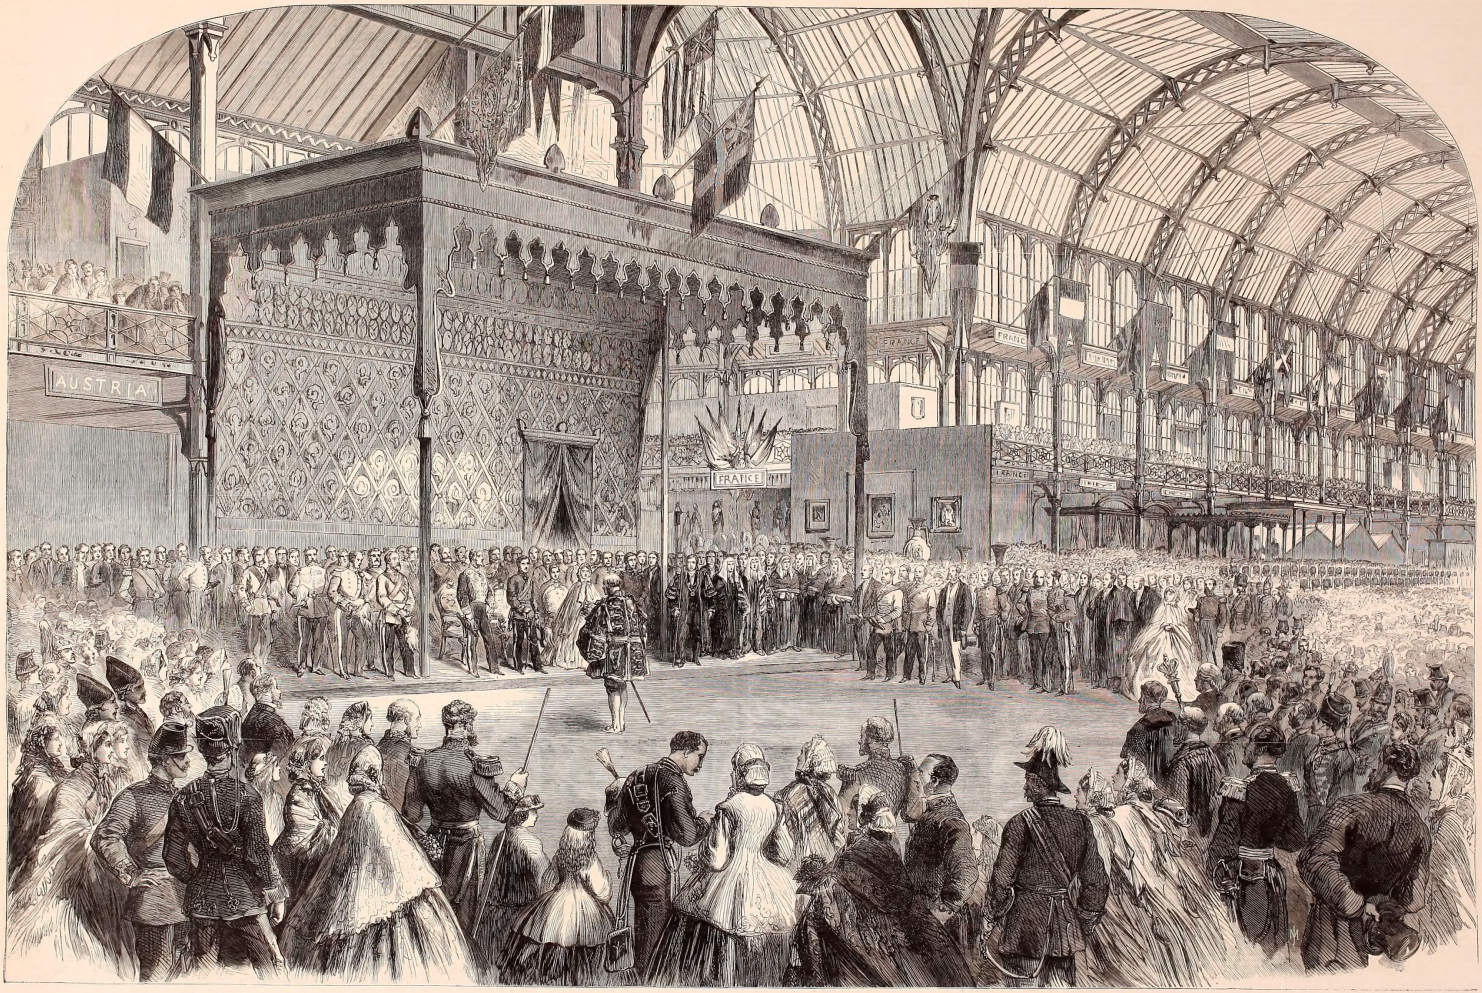
A gigantic hoax has been played off on the people of Boston by a man named Mortimer. He gave orders to the principal publicans of the town to provide accommodation for a large number of officers and men of the 15th Hussars. The innkeepers made great preparations to receive their expected and welcome guests, and the population turned out en masse to do them honour. When the appointed time arrived it soon became manifest that a practical joke had been perpetrated upon the inhabitants. Mortimer was, therefore, arrested; but, as he does not appear to have benefited by his folly, it is doubtful whether he can be convicted on any specific charge.

A meeting of delegates from Reformers in various parts of the kingdom was held, on Monday and Tuesday, at Manchester—Mr. George Wilson in the chair. Resolutions were proposed expressing dissatisfaction with the present state of the representation of the people; regret that Government has abandoned the reform question; and an opinion that Reformers throughout the country should support, at the next general election, only such candidates as are favourable to the introduction of a comprehensive measure of reform in the next Session of Parliament. A very general opinion in favour of manhood suffrage was expressed, but it was decided that it would be expedient to accept an instalment of reform. A great meeting was held in the Free Trade Hall on Tuesday evening, at which the resolutions of the conference were adopted.

On Wednesday, in presence of a large gathering of the gentry of the county of York, Lord Hotham, one of the members for the East Riding, laid the first stone of a memorial building, on the summit of Garton Hill, a prominent feature in the Wold country, about fourteen miles from Malton, to perpetuate the memory of the late Sir Tatton Sykes. The design is one selected from upwards of 150 sent in to the committee, and had a prize of £20 awarded to it. The architect is Mr. Gibbs, of Oxford. Mr. Gibbs has adopted a gothic tower and observatory of rectilinear form, surmounted by a pointed spire and cross. The base is 28 ft. square, and the height is 120 ft. A winding stair leads to the observatory, which is 80 ft. above ground, and will command views of East Yorkshire, from Filey Brig to the Humber.

In consequence of the improved circumstances of the district, the Poor-Law Board have signified their intention to discontinue the weekly publication of the return of pauperism in the cotton-manufacturing unions. "These statistics," the Manchester Guardian states, "have been now laid before our readers, with few intermissions, during the past three years, and in parting with them we take the occasion of pointing out, very briefly, a few of their more marked results. The area affected by the cotton famine contained a population of rather more than 2,000,000 persons. The distress, which began early in 1862, rose to its maximum at Christmas, when the guardians relieved from the poor rates 275,000 poor, or between four and five times the number that was on the relief-lists in the corresponding season of 1861. From that point the pauperism slowly declined, and at the end of last August the number was 79,000, when a general increase was experienced, which by the middle of November brought 33,000 more claimants on the rates. Since November the distress, with some slight checks, has diminished. According to Mr. Purdy's latest report the guardians had 86,000 paupers on their books, or about 1 in 21 of the population."——At a meeting of the contributors to the Leeds Lancashire Distress Fund, held on Tuesday night, it was resolved to distribute the balance of the fund, amounting to £19,013, amongst the charitable institutions of the town, the Infirmary receiving one half and the Public Dispensary five twentieths of the amount.

A painful sensation has been created in Lancaster and the neighbourhood by the sudden death of Mr. William Whelon, a gentleman of high position, and carrying on business at Lancaster and Preston. He had risen from a poor office-boy to the secretary of the Little North-Western Railway; then a merchant and manufacturer; afterwards Town Councillor, Mayor, and magistrate of Lancaster. While Mayor he was distinguished for his liberality and hospitality, and his wife was presented with a silver cradle. He was chairman of the Lancaster Athenæum Club and the Morecambe Gas-works, vice-chairman and director of the New Waggon Company, a churchwarden, and generally a man of high influence and position. On Friday he was at Preston on business, and returned home in the evening. On Saturday it was rumoured that he had forged and embezzled sums varying, according to report, from £6000 to £20,000. On the evening of that day a warrant was issued for his apprehension, on the charge of taking scrip belonging to the Little North-Western Railway. The police went to his house, but he was absent. An officer was afterwards sent to Preston, where it was thought he might have gone, but he could not be found. On Monday his dead body was found in the water at Fleetwood. At the inquest it appeared that he left home on Saturday evening in good health and spirits; that he walked along the coast towards Fleetwood; that at midnight he got a boat at Knott-end, opposite Fleetwood, and about ten miles from Lancaster, rowed out a short distance in it, and either jumped or fell from the boat into deep water. The jury returned a verdict of "Found drowned." The deceased was about forty-three years of age, and he has left a widow and seven children.



THE PRINCE OF WALES OPENING THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION: ULSTER KING OF ARMS RECEIVING HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS'S COMMANDS TO DECLARE THE EXHIBITION OPEN.—SEE PAGE 18.

THE PRINCE OF WALES OPENING THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION: ULSTER KING OF ARMS RECEIVING HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS'S COMMANDS TO DECLARE THE EXHIBITION OPEN.—SEE PAGE 480.

COMMANDS TO DECLARE THE EXHIBITION OPEN.—SEE PAGE 480.

THE PRINCE OF WALES OPENING THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION: ULSTER KING OF ARMS RECEIVING HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS'S COMMANDS TO DECLARE THE EXHIBITION OPEN.—SEE PAGE 480.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

THE Prime Minister has for a period which may be called long been absent from his place in Parliament, gleaned for a short time in the House of Commons on Monday evening. His reappearance was not made in a manner to seize on applause and sounds of welcome; for it was timed after business, or, rather, the pre-business, in which members delight—the question—had begun; and he glided quietly in from behind the Speaker's chair in the midst of a very interesting communication from the Attorney-General, who was answering a slender interpellation of Mr. Fermand in a matter of the distribution of certain patronage by the holder of the Great Seal. Mr. Attorney-General had reached a climax in his explanation which was so triumphant that eheers were elicited from all parts of the House, and a burst of glory out after the enthusiasm of half a minute was expended, they suddenly broke out again, and swelled into those manly, rattling sounds which are resolute to those manifestations when their inspiration is personal. For a moment they were puzzled to know to which of the two the advantage of having their eyes fixed on the Treasury bench, and to say truthfully as to which of the two compliments it was most astonished at the gratifying tumult which he supposed that he had raised; but a hint from behind him and a glance to his left hand showed him the real cause, and he stood up with a look of relief on his mind for stating the rest of his case. Naturally, all eyes were turned on him with interest on the part of members, as he rose to reply to a question which had been waiting for his return: it was one of those questions we are apt to call personal, when he bore his right arm in a sling, he looked feebler and brighter than might have been expected after his severe illness; and his voice was in capital order, and his manner just of that playful, banterings kind which he invariably employs in answering those petty questions when put to him by such inquisitors as Mr. White and Mr. Darby Griffith, who are among the Boeotians of the parliamentary sphere of any Minister of the day.

Some observers, professing to be more keen than their neighbours, are apt to trace the influence of the Premier's presence in every act because that is brought forward and in every speech that is made; but, although it is in some individuals a habit, it is a habit whose assertion can hardly be accepted in its totality. Of a certainty, the course taken by a section of the Conservative party in the Union Chargeability Bill is not the best calculated to win golden opinions from all sorts of people; and Lord Derby himself has been battle royal between town and country on this question; and the tenderness of the latter to the poor-rate has been one of the most incredible specties, each after its kind; long, blatant, and inconsistent, by Mr. Ferrand; by Mr. Henley, who has waxed so solemn and prophetically portentous that one would think he had been reading the revelations while contemplating a mummy of a priest of Isis; by Sir William Miles, who gets into such paroxysms of passion when he comes to the outbursts of those irascible, elderly gentlemen of whose Sir Anthony Absolute is a type: by Lord Naas, whose quiet common-sense may be literally described as wailings and gnashings of teeth; and, last and least, by Mr. Wm. Ewart Gladstone, who has come from Liverpool to the Poor-Law Board for quite a year and a half, thought himself entitled to speak on the subject, and has shown by the way he has himself fairly smothered in the disapprobation and interruption of the House. In these contests we have been from the last Tuesday—Mr. Villiers has come out in capital force as a debater. The defence of the measure has been left entirely to him, as far as the Government is concerned; and he, having been put on his mettle, has risen to the occasion, and chuffed—if such an unparliamentary word may be allowed—while beneath all the bluster and the blustering opposition of strong argument and powerful illustration, relieved every now and then by clever gibe from humour, which has been sometimes at the cost of half frenzy; his confident manner being, of course, supported by the sense that he had an unanswerable measure in hand. The debate, after much travail, landed the bill in the stage of Committee.

Mr. Disraeli has been appearing in a very pleasant character, abdicating for a time the dignity of leadership, he has quietly placed himself in the position of a private member, and has moved for copies of Papers connected with the Consulate in Egypt on a Friday, and waited his turn with the simplicity and patience which befitted the occasion. Giving up to a distant Government the powers which have so long been devoted to mankind, he brought forward a poor-law proposition in connection with the Union Chargeability, in a speech of greater duration than he usually now gives to his great parliamentary displays, which was not much to occupy twenty members, there was not much to encourage him; but then he had Mr. Villiers chained down before him, and he was not to be put on his department that he was pitching his grievance that did not so much matter. Indeed, Mr. Villiers appeared to have resolved to be nice to measure himself with the doughty chief of the Opposition; but his natural indifference to what anybody can say or do soon came into play, and he asserted himself in his own quiet and goodnature manner. Apart from the interesting, and, so to speak, disinterested, attitude in which the leader of the Opposition has placed himself, there was nothing particularly exciting about the scene, the subject being the disfigurement—such it is—of the poor-law code of relief, upon which it was attempted to base a charge of neglect of duty on the part of the present Poor-Law Board, which charge he disproved.

There ought to have been a great religio-controversial Wednesday upon the second reading of Mr. Monsell's bill for allering the oath which is taken by Roman Catholic members, but the measure was so small, and the occasion was rather laid hold of for bidding for the Irish members, in which Sir Maguire's Government decidedly has the advantage. There were no milder sectarians evinced than that of Mr. Monsell, who moved the rejection of a measure which proposes to strike out of the oath certain blotspoken of therein as tending to endanger the peace and security for the safety of the Established Church of England and Ireland, and that of Ireland. The bill was opposed in a manner worthy by an occasional enunciation of high Protestant sentiment in the meshed of courses and the most quiet of tones; but Mr. Monsell was allowed to trickle on for more than an hour, for there were no materials for any damming of the stream, and so there and twenty; and when he made way for Mr. Whalley no man guessed the manifold powers of the impending and frequent orator, who is original so far as that he can be miles away in a labyrinth of talk of a most diverse nature, and yet suddenly bring himself to his great starting-point, the atrocities of Popery. Nobody knew exactly how it happened that he had brought his illustrations to a proper bearing upon the question of the day, but he was to be proceeded to read sundry heterodox doctrines; but some members, hearing for the hundred a startling sentence, supposed that he made a demand, which became general, as to what work he was reading from. Then he ran, hereafter, into the Bible, which he mentioned something which as Irish member flouted as a transaction of his own and instead of reading from the volume Mr. Whalley murmured something about Latin, which was understood to be a declaration that he should read from the Douay version, and attempted to proceed with his readings; but, by this time the Committees were clehouching into the lobby, and so he delivered a very heavy and decided fire, and showed that he was supported in force; and, indeed, upon each play that he made he was supported by those who for a mortal hour poured out a torrent of shot and shell after his usual fashion. Somehow, he did not seem to make much impression, however temporary, of his party immediately about him, and the applause he received was principally from those who, like himself, were with a radiant smile upon his face, continually emitted a rapturous noise, which sounded not unlike an inspiriting tally-ho. Whenever Sir George Grey intends to be earnest and precise, he invariably contrives to seem as though he was in a violent passion, and this time, while making a distinct declaration in favour of the bill on the part of the Government, he appeared to be scolding everybody, whether supporters or opponents, and showed in remarkable contrast to Mr. Walpole, who followed in one of those solemn, sententious deliveries of proverbial philosophy which inevitably suggest Polonius to one's mind when he is speaking. There was significance in the pronounced manner in which Lord Henry Lennox declared in favour of the bill, because this noble member is supposed to be a sort of pilot-fish to Mr. Disraeli, and may have been swimming to order on this occasion; while the demonstration of Mr. Collins, who in his way is a personage amongst the Tories, was also remarkable. Nevertheless, Mr. Darnell voted against the second reading, which was carried, on a division, much sooner than was expected, the moment for securing a majority being so favourable that even Mr. Monsell forbore to say anything, and Mr. Gregory, who had all day been making a long speech, was left to the mercy of a speech which he hoped would reach to Galway, did not think it politic to interfere.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MONDAY.

The Married Women's Property (Ireland) Bill and the Life of Man (Insurance) Bill were read a third time and passed.

The Diplomatic Salaries Bill was read a second time and passed. Several private bills were also read a third time and passed.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL LONG CUSTARD presented a number of petitions were presented from Indian officers complaining of the manner in which the analysis system with the steps of the Queen had been effected.—The Earl of ROSSLYN presented an address from Scotland addressed to the grievances under which the petitioners were labouring. He (the Earl of Rosslyn) hoped that Government would take the matter into serious consideration, and, if necessary, agree to a Committee of Inquiry. He was sorry to find that the noble Earl at the head of the Government, entertained that if any grievances had ever existed they had not been redressed. He (the Earl of Rosslyn) contended that they had been redressed. The address had been presented to the Queen, and Her Majesty expected that Government would take the matter into consideration and treated the address with respect. He hoped it should not be necessary to appeal to Parliament, but he earnestly requested the claims of the petitioners, which were disputed by the Duke of ARGYLL.—The Earl CRAWFORD AND LINDSAY presented petitions from the officers and seamen of the last Commission; and, after a few words in reply from the Earl of ELLENBOROUGH, the petitions were laid on the table.—Lord BROUGHAM presented a petition intended to appoint a Commission to ascertain whether the alleged grievances had not been removed, on the matter referred to.

BRIDGEWATER HOUSE.—Lord BROUGHAM asked whether the recognition of the Emperor of the French had been communicated in the usual way by the Government.—Earl RUSSELL thought the question ill-timed. The President of the French Republic had been recognised by the Queen, and the usual course of the Government had been followed in the matter. It was the usual practice to so recognise the South as belligerents. Under the blockade the United States had the right to search neutral vessels, and Lord Derby had recently supported this with great severity. So long as they continued to maintain the right of search it was impossible to recognise the Confederate States.—The Earl of CLARENDON said that as to Federal vessels of war not staying more than twenty-four hours in a British port might be considered as a breach of British neutrality, Her Majesty's Government intended to continue or discontinue the right of search as could not have been expected of the noble Lord. If the United States declared war against the war at an end, the Government would refer the question of what should be done to the law officers of the Crown.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

Lord Palmerston resumed his place on the Treasury bench for the first time since his retirement from office, and was received with cheers from every part of the house. The noble Lord carried his right arm in a sling, but appeared in excellent health.

The report of the Militia Bill was brought up and read a first time.

Leave was given to bring in a bill for the better management of county constabularies.

The Exchequer Bonds (£1,000,000) Bill and the Salmon Fisheries Act (1861) Amendment Bill were read a second time.

The Commissioners of Supply Meetings (Scotland) Bill and the County of Dublin Bill were read a third time and passed.

The Pilotage Order Confirmation (No. 2) Bill was referred to a Select Committee.

The report of amendments to the County Voters Registration Bill was read a first time.

The motion for going into Committee on the Militia Ballot Bill was negatived without a division.

The Customs and Inland Revenue Bill, the Prisons (Scotland) Act Amendment Bill, the Drainage and Improvement of Land Sites (Ireland) Amendment Bill, and the Lunatic Asylums (Ireland) Act Amendment Bill were read a third time and passed.

The report of the Militia Bill was brought up.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—TUESDAY.

Mr. WHITE asked the first Lord of the Treasury whether the Government had determined to recognise the independence of the Confederate States of the (so-called) Confederate States of America.

Lord PALMERSTON replied that he was provided with loud and general cheering, rose to answer the question. The noble Lord spoke with fully his usual animation and vigour. He said that the Government considered that the belligerent rights of the two parties has been this:—The President of the United States issued a proclamation declaring that he intended to blockade the Confederate ports in the Southern Confederacy, in accordance, as he stated, with the law of nations. That proclamation was followed by an Order in Council, a belligerent right, which can only accrue to a State which is at war. The fact of the blockade was not disputed, and the Order in Council was founded upon it. Lord Derby had not only supported the Order in Council, but had declared it to belong to a belligerent declaring a blockade—the right of capture, condemnation, &c., and this was the right which the Government claimed. The British Government had not one of two courses to pursue—either to refuse to submit, on the part of British subjects, to the laws belligerents had a right to claim, which might have been assumed, that there was no formal belligerent on the other side. The other course was immediately to recognise the two States to pursue was to acknowledge and to submit to those belligerent rights. But Lord Palmerston said that the Government had not thought it right to grant a belligerent and entitled to the rights of a belligerent. Whenever the Government should think it right to recognise the Southern States it would be with regard to neutrals those rights of search, capture, and condemnation which would be the rights of a belligerent. The Government had not recognised them, and therefore will be a subject for consideration either on one side or the other.

THE UNION CHARGEABILITY BILL.

The adjourned debate on Mr. Thompson's amendment—that the Union Chargeability Bill be not now read a third time, but committed to a Committee of the whole House—was resumed by Mr. HENLEY, who, having recently joined the part of the Opposition, say desire to obstruct the passing of the bill, urged at great length that, if the party with which he had formerly acted had been in power, they would, for the limits of the unions were absolutely necessary, it ought to be so found and should be altered. He was opposed to the principle of the bill, which was only the perpetration of jobs. Having denied that there was any truth in the statements which had been made by the supporters of the bill as to the state of the agricultural districts, and having animadverted in severe terms upon all of them, the right hon. gentleman commented upon the report of Dr. Hunter, the Royal Commissioner, which he characterised as one of the most false statements and prejudiced in its tone and spirit. For those reasons he thought the bill ought not to be read a third time that day.

Mr. H. BERKELEY reminded the House that the bill was based upon the unanimous recommendation of a Select Committee appointed in a most deliberate manner, and that the principle of it had been sanctioned by every thoughtful mind and every practical man who had given attention to the subject.

Mr. PEACOCKE supported the proposition to send the bill to a Select Committee.

Mr. WYNDHAM opposed the amendment, and thought that if any person were to referred a second time to a Select Committee, it would be tantamount to throwing the bill over for the present session.

Mr. FACEY characterised the bill as unjust, tyrannical, and dishonest; in fact, as everything that was bad. It was a bill to rob the country for the country—the towns being the wolves and the rural parishes the lambs.

Lord HOTHAM thought that the bill ought to be read a third time, that it might proceed; but he urged that something ought to be done towards an equitable adjustment of the poor-rates.

Mr. WHALLEY supported the bill.

Mr. HUNT opposed the bill, which was wholly in favour of the towns as against the rural districts.

Mr. LUDDELL said the question was not one between town and country, but between rich parishes and poor parishes, and he believed that, if it were carried to its fatal to the measure, he could not consent to refer it to a Select Committee.

Mr. LAYARD contended that the Government had a right to expect that the measure be accompanied by a revision of the unions.

Mr. SCHOLEFIELD spoke in favour of the bill, whilst Sir J. Trollope, Mr. Goodall, and Lord J. Manners supported the amendment.

Mr. WALPOLE, on the part of the Government, referred to the circumstance that the measure had been framed by a Select Committee, which had sat for a considerable time, and had received during three sessions, and which had had the benefit of the evidence of Dr. Hunter. He also reminded the House that the country party, who now opposed the bill, had had the benefit of the evidence of Mr. Goodenough, who, he believed, was a country. Their object in proposing to refer the bill to a Select Committee was solely for the purpose of getting rid of it altogether. The farmers were decidedly in favour of the bill. He was aware that the incidence of rating required consideration, and that the mode of assessment was often capricious and unreasonable. Should it be his lot to be at the head of the Poor-Law Department next Session he would support a motion for inquiring into those anomalies, and he hoped that, after this admission, the hon. member for Whitby would withdraw his amendment. He should vote against it, and with a measure which had been voted on large a share of support out of doors.

After a few words from Earl PERCY, Mr. THOMPSON expressed his willingness to withdraw his amendment; but, a few members objecting, the House divided, when the numbers were—For the amendment, 91; against, 254.

The House then went into Committee pro forma, and the chairman reported progress.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—TUESDAY.

The Sewage Utilisation Bill and the Oxford University (Visitation Powers) Bill were read a second time.

The Metropolitan Houseless Poor Bill passed through Committee.

The Marriages Lumbourne Bill, the Isle of Man (Harbours) Compensation Bill, and the District Church Tithes Bill were read a third time and passed, as also were the following private bills:—West Cork Railway, Ferrara Gas, Glengoor and South-Western Railway (Kilmarnock direct), Gosport Gas, Ipswich, Paddington, and South-Coast Railway (St. Leonard's Branch), Gas, East London Railway, Glasgow and South-Western (City of Glasgow Union).

The Commons' amendments to the Private Bill Costs Bill were considered and agreed to.

The report of amendments on the Married Women's Property (Ireland) Bill was brought up and agreed to.

The Duke of RICHMOND moved that the Earl of Rosslyn's address, which was intended to stultify the result of murder in the Navy, and he would shortly lay a proposition on that subject before their lordships.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—TUESDAY.

The Attorney-General, in answer to Mr. Orr, said it was not intended to introduce a bill to amend or consolidate the law of bankruptcy.

The following bills were read a third time and passed:—Grieff Junction and Arbroath Coating Railway, Glasgow, Dumbarton, Barony, and Monkland and Scottish Central Railway Companies; North and South Wiltshire Junction Railway, Port Talbot Railway and Canal, Shrewsbury and Hereford Railway, Westerwemkl Improvement; and Wrexham, Mold, and Connah's Quay Railway Diversion.

CIVIL SERVICE IN INDIA.—Mr. A. MILLS drew notice to the existing system of appointments to the civil service in India, which, he contended, was framed for a copy of all cases of bankruptcies within their own districts during the whole of the year, and to report annually to Parliament. The present law afforded no remedies to dishonest debtors; insolvency and bankruptcy were sometimes too much confounded. Mr. AUSTEN, in seconding the motion, considered that greater powers should be given to the Commissioners, which might be added to dispose of all local cases of bankruptcies within their own districts during the short space of the Christmas and Lent vacations. Under the expense of winding up the estate, which, under the present system, are very considerable. Mr. ADDERLEY thought that the proceedings of the Bankruptcy Court in manner moved that the House be counted, and, there not being forty members present, the House was counted out.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—WEDNESDAY.

The Exchequer Bonds (£1,000,000) Bill passed through Committee.

The Inland Revenue (Duties) Bill was brought up, read a second time.

The Dogs Regulation (Ireland) Bill made some progress in Committee.

Mr. Bowyer obtained leave to bring in a bill for the establishment of a fire brigade within the metropolis. The bill was read a first time.

Leave was also given to Mr. Monsell to introduce a bill to authorise the inclosure of certain lands in pursuance of a report of the Inclosure Commissioners for England and Wales. The bill was read a first time.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC OATH BILL.

Mr. MONSELL moved the second reading of this bill.

Mr. LIDDELL seconded the motion, which he had to read a second time that day six months.

Mr. WHALLEY addressed the House at length in favour of the bill, describing the oath which it sought to abolish as unchristian in language and immoral and unrighteous in its character.

Mr. WHITESIDE said the oath was drawn with the view of keeping and confirming a Protestant succession to the throne. He for one regarded the oath not as an insult to the loyalty of Roman Catholics, but as a safeguard for the Established Church of England and Ireland against Popery.

Sir G. GREY vindicated the consistency of the Government in giving its support to the bill. He had no doubt that it would affect the working of the bill, on the Committee its provisions might be calmly considered, and, if necessary, altered. He should vote for the second reading of the measure, which had been supported by every member who came to the table.

Mr. WALPOLE said he should support the bill on two grounds—first, because he considered that the declaration substituting one against which not only were Protestants, he was ashamed to see his Church maintained against that bill of the vote of the hon. Member.

Mr. COLLINS considered the time had come for removing a disability which there was no longer any reason for maintaining.

The House then divided, and the numbers were:—For the second reading, 190; against, 151; majority for the second reading, 39.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—THURSDAY.

Their Lordships only sat for a few minutes, during which the following business was transacted:—

The Customs Inland Revenue Bill, the Police Superannuation Bill, and the Prisons (Scotland) Act Amendment Bill were read a third time and passed.

The report of the amendments in the Metropolitan Houseless Poor Bill was brought up and agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

Mr. D. GRIFFITH, in pursuance of notice, brought under the attention to the reward offered by the President of the United States for the capture of Mr. Jefferson Davis, late President of the Confederate States, and moved that he would intimate to the Government of the United States that a resort to any countries would be regarded as a hostile act by civilised nations.

Mr. Grant Duff at once disclaimed the assertion of the Government, and Mr. Long were repaid by the Treasury.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer said that the Government had no information on the subject. The Earl of CARNARVON presented a memorial to the Treasury, to the effect that in this suit he had been advised by counsel that he was entitled to the full amount of his salary during the rights of the Crown as regarded his office. The matter was referred to the Treasury, and the petition was laid on the table of the House.

Mr. FERRAND moved for a return of all persons without authority the written statement was prepared from which he read his replies on Monday with regard to the Poor-Law Board.—Mr. Walpole said he could not agree to the letter which he read from Mr. Welch on Monday last on the table.—The Attorney-General said that he had taken the most extraordinary course ever put upon the paper of the House. He derived his information from the best sources, but could not give any further information than that which he had given on Monday last. But, between man and man, he was ready to answer any question which the hon. gentleman might put to him privately as to the matter. The motion had been placed upon the paper, and he would lay it on the table.—The Speaker ruled that, in this case, the Attorney-General was correct in drawing a distinction between public and private documents.

UNION CHARGEABILITY BILL.

The House then went into Committee on this bill.

Clause 1 was agreed to.

On clause 2 Mr. HENLEY moved amendments to abolish entirely the law of settlement and removal, and the hardships which the present law had entailed, and the expenses entailed by removals. He urged that, during the discussions which had taken place on the bill, no one had ventured to defend the existing law of settlement and removal. He should be glad to know who supported the bill, if they really cared for the interests of the poor.—Mr. Walpole said he could not accept the motion moved, Mr. Henley with a want of consistency as well as of sincerity in moving his present amendment. He had voted against the bill on every one bill by saying that if he could. He (Mr. V.) highly approved of the principle laid down in the provisions of the clause under discussion, but that was not the time to enact it. He wanted simply to carry his bill, and, that object being effected, he was prepared to give his support to the bill by saying that the law of settlement and removal.—Upon a division, Mr. Henley's amendment was negatived by a majority of 183 to 31.

The remaining clauses of the bill were then agreed to.

The Partisanship Amendment Bill was next considered in Committee: its provisions, having undergone a severe criticism, were ultimately passed.

A supplement to Tuesday's Gazette has been published, containing a formal account of the ceremony of the investiture of the King of Portugal with the "Insigne and Habit of the most noble Order of the Garter," which took place at Lisbon, on the 6th inst.

Several additional post offices in the London district and in the country will be open and after the 20th inst., for the receipt of re-posals for the issuance of lives or the purchase of Government annuities, under the Act 17 and 18 VICT., cap. 45, and for the receipt of the premiums becoming due to the Postmaster General from time to time, under contracts for the issuance of lives or the purchase of Government annuities. A tract, entitled "Plain Rules for the Guidance of Persons desiring to Insure their Lives or to Purchase Government Annuities," has been printed for gratuitous distribution.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THE weather was very beautiful at York, and Knavesmire looked just like a Turkey carpet, but the meeting was not of a high character. The big Inca made a sad exhibition of himself in the Craven Stakes, where the winner, Lozenge, of his own year, gave him 7 lb. and fairly chopped him down. Fobert's stable did very differently in the Zetland Stakes, which they only lost by a head with Castanet. No less than fifty-three out of seventy-two accepted for the Great Northern; but all the top weights were absentees, and Buckfoot was scratched at the eleventh hour, thus leaving a very easy victory to the ponderous hollow-backed chestnut, Cathedral, another light-weighted four-year-old. The steeplechaser Stanton was second, and Sidewind, who was sold for £1000 that afternoon, third. The Union Plate, in which one of the riders' "get up" excited great amusement, was won, amid the usual cheering, by Mr. George Thompson, who had a different mount the next day, and beat his present mount, Oustwick, easily enough. No wonder that he is looked upon as the "Admirable Crichton" of Yorkshire gentlemen in the saddle. The Lion, of whose defeat by The Duke at 3 lb. over this course so much has been made, cut up wretchedly in the Knavesmire Plate, whose winner, Roderick Random, a 200-guinea purchase at Sir Lydston Newman's, found some 50 to 1 support for the Derby. On Wednesday the fund had a very fine pull in the Selling Stakes. Osiris, who was on 1 lb. better terms with Credulity, met her again over the T.Y.C., and changed his head-beating into a half-length victory; and The Grappler was defeated twice. Caractacus ran badly enough over Knavesmire in '62, but The Grappler's Derby friends can hardly take courage from that.

Gladiateur "jumped about" in the rooms on Tuesday in consequence of a telegram to say that he had not been out at exercise that morning, and Zambesi was looked upon as hopelessly gone from breaking a blood-vessel. No one was prepared to back Breadalbane, although the temper, make, and condition of Broomielaw at Chester were very generally disliked. Still, we have seen a horse stick his toes into the ground there, and win the Derby after all. The Yorkshiremen generally stand on the chestnut, and consider that his defeat of thirteen horses at Newmarket, when the pace was a stinger, was worth far more than a victory like Bromielaw's against such a wretched field. It is argued by those who, unlike Mr. Steel, do not "plunge" on Bromielaw, that there is no reason to believe the trial to be correct, as it was only ridden by stable-boys; and that, as both horses were very far from fit, it was no criterion, as in six weeks one may come to hand far quicker than the other. Yorkshire has nothing else than Mr. Chaplin's pair to swear by for the Derby, as the Whitewall lot seem to be fairly run through, and Oppressor is but a weak Middleham champion. There was a good deal of doubt expressed at York as to whether Custance would ride for John Day's or I'Anson's stable, and in case he does not mount Breadalbane, it is said that Snowdon will. One eminent jockey will, it is thought, not ride at all in the Derby, as "the old enemy" has made it almost impossible for him to waste. I'Anson was quite besieged by friends at York asking him whether they were to "stand nevvey or uncle;" but he told them, in his quiet, imperturbable way, that he really didn't know which was the best of the two, and left them as wise as they came. Archimedes seems to be rising in favour, and Wild Charley to be going back; but the betting barometer has become so sensitive that these changes mean nothing. Chattanooga, or "the great mystery man," still hangs over the heads of the backers of horses, and they have some dread of Kangaroo's Biennial form returning; but Swindon platform next week will no doubt reveal something. Sir Joseph Hawley has given £1000 for Planet, and therefore he will have a more reliable timekeeper than Argonaut for Bedminster.

The blood yearling sales of 1865 might be said to have virtually commenced in Nelson's Yard, at York, on Tuesday; a wretched place, and crammed to excess. "The Rawcliffes" were not a very remarkable lot, and the Young Melbournes pulled down the average, which was 151 gs. for twenty-nine. Last year it was nearly 159½ gs. for twenty-two. Lord Stamford bought four—one of them a Newminster filly, own sister to Cerintha, for 900 gs., after a stiff contest with one of his late trainer's masters, Mr. Pardoe. Captain Machell bid hard for Brother to Bacchus, for whom Mr. Padwick gave 570 gs., and was afterwards offered a "pony" by the Captain for his bargain. The greatest sale the company have had was in 1863, when twenty-five averaged 210 gs. Biondella (900 gs.) was then the top price. Mr. Jackson's yearlings sold pretty well, and Count Batthany gave 400 gs. for the highest of them, a bloodlike and rather flashy dark chestnut colt by St. Albans. Lord Middleton's celebrated hunting-plate winner, Vandal, was also sold (so it was said) at 450 gs., which we understood to be 10 gs. above the reserve.

Mr. R. D. Walker has had the first good gentleman innings of the year (51) for Marylebone; and Jupp (37) and Humphry (34) have made one of their grand stands against a twenty-two of Ireland, nine of whose stumps, thanks to James Lillywhite's and Willsher's bowling! fell for nine "ducks' eggs" in their only innings. The two also got their hands well in against twenty-two of Putney on their return.

YORK SRPING MEETING.—TUESDAY.

Craven Stakes.—Lozenge, 1. Lady of Coverdale, 2. Minie, 3.
Zetland Stakes.—Valentine, 1. Castanet, 2. Credulity, 3.
Great Northern Handicap.—Cathedral, 1. Stanton, 2. Sidewind, 3.
Stand Stakes.—Relic f., 1. Portrick, 2. Sister to Bombay, 3.
Union Hunt Plate.—Oustwick, 1. Mischief, 2. Bonnets o' Blue, 3.
Knavesmire Plate.—Random, 1. Venice, 2. Lady Sykes, 3.

YORK SPRING MEETING.—WEDNESDAY.

Consolation Scramble.—Gil Blas, 1. Summerside, 2. Reginella, 3.
Eglinton Stakes.—Osiris, 1. Credulity, 2.
Londesborough Cup.—Sundeelah, 1. Lozenge, 2. Grappler, 3.
City Purse.—The Squaw f., 1. Sister to Bombay, 2. Portrick, 3.
Flying Dutchman Handicap.—Donnybrook, 1. Finesse, 2. Aline, 3.
Tyro Stakes.—Relic f., 1. Jolly Boy, 2. Full Bloom, 3.
Tally-ho Stakes.—Cimarosa, 1. Mischief, 2. Oustwick, 3.

SALISBURY RACES.—THURSDAY.

Craven Plate.—Viceroy, 1. Crytheia, 2. Teddy, 3.
City Bowl.—Kill 'em and Eat 'em, 1. Codicil g., 2.
Wiltshire Stakes.—Raglan, 1. Bradamante, 2. Pelios, 3.
Old Castle Stakes.—Guardsman, 1. Blackrock, 2.
Salisbury Stakes.—Salisbury, 1. Lady Audley, 2. Sweet Anne, 3.
Sweepstakes.—Heir-at-Law, 1. Soapstone, 2. Laverick Wells, 3.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

3rd Dragoon Guards: Vet. Surg. M. D. Byrne to be Veterinary Surgeon. 4th: Paymaster G. A. Coventry to be Paymaster. 5th: E. Armitage to be Cornet.

11th Hussars: Paymaster J. A. Dyer to be Paymaster. 14th: Cornet J. Harpur to be Adjutant. 19th: Capt. K. J. W. Coghill to be Captain.

Royal Artillery: Staff Assist. Surg. J. Wales to be Assistant Surgeon.

Grenadier Guards: Major and Brevet Col. M. Bruce to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Capt. and Lieut.-Col. and Brevet Col. A. C. Cure to be Major; Lieut. and Capt. C. Gascoigne to be Captain and Lieutenant-Colonel; Ensign and Lieut. R. Gaussen to be Lieutenant and Captain; H. Wellesley to be Ensign and Lieutenant.

Coldstream Guards: Ensign and Lieut. the Hon. V. Dawson to be Lieutenant and Captain; the Hon. E. A. B. Acheson to be Ensign and Lieutenant.

3rd Foot: L. B. Irwin to be Ensign. 5th: M. J. Carlisle to be Ensign. 10th: T. G. Booth to be Ensign. 12th: Capt. G. Horner to be Captain; Lieut. H. M. Lowry to be Captain; Ensign J. Boulton to be Lieutenant; R. B. Ward to be Ensign: Staff Assist. Surg. J. M. M'Lean, M.D., to be Assistant Surgeon. 18th: Lieut. F. W. Lipscomb to be Instructor of Musketry. 19th: Lieut. C. J. F. Smith-Forbes to be Captain; Ensign J. G. Moir to be Lieutenant; A. Roche to be Ensign; Quartermaster C. M'Lagan to be Quartermaster. 21st: Staff Assist. Surg. J. H. C. Whittle, M.D., to be Assistant Surgeon. 22nd: Lieut. B. H. Dillon to be Captain; Ensign C. E. C. King to be Lieutenant; P. Aubertin to be Ensign. 24th: Capt. A. W. Campbell to be Captain; Lieut. W. R. B. Chamberlin to be Captain; Ensign T. Rainforth to be Lieutenant; M. C. A. Cavagnari to be Ensign. 27th: Capt. M. Fanning to be Captain. 29th: Lieut. F. Russell to be Lieutenant. 37th: Ensign G. B. Dobson to be Lieutenant; W. C. J. F. Nott to be Ensign. 49th: Lieut. De Lacy R. F. Wooldridge to be Lieutenant. 56th: Lieut. A. N. Bolton to be Captain; Ensign J. E. Le Mottée to be Lieutenant; J. Corse-Scott to be Ensign. 61st: Capt. J. J. P. Fox to be Captain. 67th: Staff Assist. Surg. G. M'Iver to be Assistant Surgeon. 70th: Capt. W. Cooper to be Major; Lieut. C. Roger to be Captain: Ensign G. Young to be Lieutenant; Cadet A. C. Y. Rolleston to be Ensign. 74th: Quartermaster W. Maloney to be Quartermaster. 82nd: Lieut. W. C. Seaton to be Captain; Ensign S. Pitt to be Lieutenant; Ensign N. Y. Lloyd to be Ensign. 100th: J. R. Atkin to be Ensign.

2nd West India Regiment: Capt. and Brevet Major E. N. Molesworth to be Captain.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.—Assist. Surgs. R. Heard, T. Walsh, H. W. Devlin, and G. Park to be Staff Assistant Surgeons.

BREVET.—Lieut.-Col. W. W. Lodder to be Colonel; First Lieut. W. Hutton to have the honorary rank of Captain.

The annual dinner of the officers of the 7th Hussars will take place at the Clarendon Hotel on June 16.

The members of the Navy Club dined together, on Tuesday evening, at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's. Rear-Admiral Hastings Reginald Yelverton, C.B., was president.

A Parliamentary return has been issued, showing that the number of officers and men of the Royal Marines, including the artillery division, on shore, was 8712 on the 1st of April, 1864, and 8970 on the 1st of April this year. The number effective and available for embarkation was 5069 in 1864, and 5674 this year.

The Liverpool pensioners were inspected at Everton, on Tuesday, by General Sir John Jones. The officers in command were Colonel Mountsteven and Major Faulkner. The total muster, rank and file, was 347. After putting the corps through battalion movements, the inspecting officer complimented the men upon their clean and orderly appearance, and said that in all respects he should be able to present a favourable report to the War Office.

The public exhibition of athletic spots by the gentlemen cadets of the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich, practised as a compulsory part of their training, came off yesterday week in the grounds of the academy. A large number of visitors was in attendance, special tickets having been granted on application to upwards of 2000 persons, independently of the officers of the garrison in uniform.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The annual meeting of the National Rifle Association was held, at Willis's Rooms, on Wednesday. As the Duke of Cambridge was prevented from taking the chair by an attack of gout, Lord Elcho presided in his place, and briefly called the attention of the meeting to the business before it. The funds of the association are in a flourishing condition; there is no point of dispute arising among them to disturb their harmony; the prospects for the next Wimbledon competition are most encouraging; and there is a disposition to unite, on certain conditions, with the Artillery Association which has lately been formed.

Last Saturday evening the London Scottish, under command of Lord Elcho, were inspected by Colonel Erskine, Inspector-General of Volunteers, in Hyde Park, near Knightsbridge Barracks. The regiment was highly complimented by the inspecting officer for its efficiency.

The opening of the newly-acquired ground and buildings at the head-quarters, Stratford, for the use of the 3rd Essex Artillery Volunteers, was celebrated, on Tuesday evening, in the new building by a dinner, to which 200 sat down. Viscount Ranelagh, Lieutenant-Colonel of the South Middlesex Royal Volunteers, presided, and was supported by Colonel M'Murdo, Colonel Erskine, Major-General Ward, and other leading representatives of the volunteer movement.

The second general drill for the season of the 5th Battalion of Cheshire took place, last Saturday, at Macclesfield, in a park near Sutton Hall. There was a great concourse of spectators. Sir Charles Thackerley, Bart., was the reviewing officer, and was very much gratified with the skirmishing and other tactics of the various companies. The battalion numbers nearly 800.

An all-comers' Enfield rifle prize-meeting was held, last Saturday, on the shooting-range of the Stockport corps. There were sixteen money prizes competed for, of the value of £30, the highest of which was fixed at £7; and there were 130 entries. Some excellent scores were made; Private J. Cunliffe, 3rd Manchester, winning the first prize. The second was won by Sergeant-Major Butterworth, 8th Lancashire; and third and fourth by Private T. Hilditch and Private G. Roberts, 1st Manchester.

On Monday the members of No. 8 (Captain Phillips's) Company, 1st Manchester, assembled on the new range of the regiment at Astley, to compete for their challenge cup and money prizes. There was a fair muster of competitors. Sergeant Ridge and Private Harrison tied for the cup and the first money prize, the former making thirty-three marks and the latter thirty, Sergeant Ridge having to allow three marks for winning the cup previously. On shooting off, Ridge won; Harrison consequently took the second money prize. Lance-Corporal Canfield won the third prize, Private Whiting the fourth, and Private Smith the fifth, after a tie.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

NOTWITHSTANDING that the transactions in all Home Securities have been on a very moderate scale, both for Money and Time, the quotations generally have ruled tolerably steady. The prospect that a large amount of stock will be shortly absorbed on account of the National Debt Commissioners has tended to impart some firmness to prices. In the Unfunded Debt scarcely any sales have taken place.

The supply of money on offer in the general discount market is extensive. The demand for accommodation is steady, at the annexed rates for the best commercial paper:—

Thirty days' bills	4¼ per cent.	Four months' bills	5 per cent.
Sixty days' bills	4½ "	Six months' bills	5½ "
Three months' bills	4¾ "

In the Stock Exchange large sums have been lent, at from 3 to 3½ per cent.

With the exception of Madrid, where money is scarce and dear, capital is freely offered. The rates in the leading cities are:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.		Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	3½	3½	Turin	5	4½ 5
Vienna	5	5½	Brussels	3½	3½
Berlin	4	3½	Madrid	9	10
Frankfort	4	3	Hamburg	—	2½
Amsterdam	3½	3½	St. Petersburg	6	7

A few parcels of gold have been withdrawn from the Bank of England for export. For silver, however, there is scarcely any inquiry. The total imports of bullion amount to about £250,000.

On Monday Consols, for Money, were 90⅛ ¼; Ditto, for Account, 89⅞ ¾; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅞ ¾; Exchequer Bills, 6s. to 3s. prem. Bank Stock was 240 to 242. On the following day Consols, for Transfer, marked 90⅛ ¼; Ditto, for Time, 89⅞ ½; New Two-and-a-Half per Cents, 72¾; Long Annuities, 13 15-16; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem.; Bank Stock, 240; and India Bonds, 15s. to 19s. prem. On Wednesday Consols, for Money, left off at 90⅛ ¼, and 89⅞ ¾ for Account. Reduced and New Three per Cents sold at 88¾ ⅞; India Five per Cents, 106¼ ½; India Bonds, 14s. to 19s.; and Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem. On Thursday the market was flat. Consols, for Money, realised 90⅛ ¼; for Account, 89¾ ⅞ ex div.; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88¾ ⅞; India Five per Cents, 105¾ ½; and Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem.

The fortnightly biddings for bills on India have taken place. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 10⅛d. on Calcutta and Madras, and 1s. 10⅛d. on Bombay, showing a reduction from the last occasion of 2 per cent.

Mexican Stock has ruled heavy, at reduced quotations. Turkish Consolidés have given way in value, the price being 47⅝ ¾. Nearly all other Foreign Securities have been very inactive, the scrip of the new Turkish Loan being especially dull, at 1½ to 1¼ dis. Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents have realised 81¾; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 96¼; Ditto, 1864, 93; Greek, 20½; Ditto, Coupons, 8; Mexican Three per Cents, 25⅛; Ditto, 1864, 21⅞; Portuguese Three per Cents, 48¼; Ditto, 1853, 48¾; Russian Three per Cents, 54⅞ ex div.; Ditto Five per Cents, 1862, 90⅞ ex div.; Ditto, 1864, 92⅞; Spanish Three per Cents, Deferred, 40⅛; Ditto, Passive, 29½; Ditto, Certificates, 15⅞; Turkish Six per Cents, 1858, 70⅞; Ditto, 1862, 73⅞; Venezuela Six per Cents, 1864, 39½; Dutch Two-and-a-Half per Cents, 62⅞; Dutch Four per Cents, 95⅛; and Italian Five per Cents, 65⅛.

A very moderate business has been transacted in Joint-stock Bank Shares. Agra and Masterman's, 115; Alliance, 31⅛; Australasia, 69½; Bank of London, 143; Bank of Queensland, 22; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 26; Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China, 49; European, 13; Imperial Ottoman, 16⅞; Land Mortgage of India, 4½; London Chartered of Australia, 23½; London and County, 77; London Joint-stock, 50½; London and South-Western, 21; Ditto, New, 13; London and Westminster, 95; Metropolitan and Provincial, 16½; National, New, 90½; New South Wales, 42½; Oriental, 52½; and Union of Australia, 55.

The Market for Colonial Government Securities has ruled quiet; Canada Six per Cents have realised 91; New Brunswick Six per Cents, 93⅞; Queensland Six per Cents, 101; and Victoria Six per Cents, 108½.

Miscellaneous Securities have commanded but little attention. Ceylon Company, 10½; City Offices, 4½; Contract Corporation, 1; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 8½; Discount Corporation, 12½; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 3; Fore-street Warehouse, 10⅞; General Credit, 5⅞; International Financial, 6; Joint-stock Discount, 9½; London Financial, 22½; Millwall Ironworks, 6⅞; North British and Mercantile Insurance, 18; Oriental Financial, 2½; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 86½; Scottish Australian Investment, 127½; and Warrant Finance, 7⅞.

The Railway Share Market has ruled heavy, and in several instances a further decline has taken place in the quotations. Annexed are yesterday's official closing prices:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Caledonian, 131; Cambrian, 95½; Great Eastern, 46⅞; Great Northern, 130⅞; Ditto, A Stock, 143½; Great Western, 73½; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 120⅞; London and Blackwall, 69½; London and Brighton, 105½; London, Chatham, and Dover, 40½; London and North-Western, 121⅞; London and South-Western, 99; Metropolitan, 136⅞; Metropolitan District, 100; Midland, 133; North British 54½; North-Eastern—Berwick, 108⅞; South Devon, 59; South-Eastern, 81⅞; West Cornwall, 47½.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 102½; East Indian, 103½; Great Indian Peninsula, 103½; Great Southern of India, 100½; Great Western of Canada, 9⅞; Madras, 102; Indian Branch, 1⅞; Scinde, 101.

Foreign.—Antwerp and Rotterdam, 9⅞ ex div.; Central Argentine, 3½; Great Luxembourg, 14½; Imperial Mexican, 4.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending May 17 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

An increase of circulation of	£67,612	An increase of bullion of	£161,811
An increase of public deposits of	311,863	An increase of rest of	11,711
A decrease of other deposits of	270,741	An increase of reserve of	89,686
A decrease of securities of	41,336

The total circulation is £21,769,022. Public deposits amount to £7,660,077; and private deposits to £13,489,291. Securities are £31,108,642; the stock of bullion is £15,023,913; and the reserve of notes and coin, £8,360,913.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, May 15.—To-day's market was but moderately supplied with English wheat. Selected samples were in fair request, at an advance in the quotations of 1s. per quarter. All other kinds were a slow inquiry, at late rates. The show of foreign wheat was by no means extensive. The best qualities were taken off somewhat readily, at full currencies. Otherwise the trade was inactive; nevertheless, prices were well supported. Floating cargoes of wheat were held on higher terms. The show of English barley was only moderate; of foreign, tolerably good. On the whole, the trade was firm, at last week's quotations. Malt moved off slowly, on former terms. For the time of year the oat trade was steady; whilst the few samples of beans and peas on offer found buyers at extreme currencies. The flour trade was steady.

May 17.—Wheat and most other kinds of produce were in fair request to-day, at prices about equal to Monday. The supplies were only moderate.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 38s. to 43s.; ditto, white, 43s. to 48s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 38s. to 42s.; rye, 26s. to 27s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 24s.; distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 27s. to 34s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 51s. to 61s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 51s.; Kingston and Ware, 54s. to 61s.; chevalier, 58s. to 62s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 19s. to 23s.; potato ditto, 23s. to 27s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 18s. to 22s.; ditto, white, 19s. to 24s.; tick beans, 33s. to 35s.; grey peas, 34s. to 36s.; maple, 36s. to 39s.; white, 31s. to 36s.; boilers, 37s. to 38s. per quarter.

Seeds.—The demand for seeds generally is much restricted, and the quotations are barely supported. In cakes very little is doing.

Linseed, English, crushing, 66s. to 62s.; Calcutta, 57s. to 58s.; hempseed, 42s. to 43s. per quarter; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt.; brown mustard seed, 10s. to 12s.; white ditto, 8s. to 10s.; tares, 9s. to 10s. per bushel; English rapeseed, 61s. to 72s. per quarter; Linseed cakes, English, £10 15s. to £11 0s.; ditto, foreign, £11 0s. to £11 5s.; rape cakes, £6 0s. to £6 10s. per ton; red clover seed, 65s. to 110s.; white ditto, 65s. to 83s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 7d. to 7½d.; of household ditto, 5½d. to 6½d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Weekly Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 40s. 11d.; barley, 29s. 7d.; oats, 23s. 2d.

English Grain Sold last Week.—Wheat, 74,649; barley, 8387; oats, 5495 quarters.

Tea.—The demand for most kinds has ruled inactive; yet prices are fairly supported.

Sugar.—Nearly all raw qualities are a slow inquiry, and, in some instances, the quotations have a drooping tendency. Stock, 79,883 tons, against 68,301 tons last year. Refined goods are in fair request, at 43s. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—There is about an average business doing in this article, at full currencies. The stock consists of 8155 tons, against 8646 tons in 1864.

Rice.—Full rates have been paid for all kinds. The market, however, is by no means active. Stock, 39,218 tons, against 41,583 tons last year.

Provisions.—The demand for butter continues inactive. Prices, however, are fairly supported. Friesland, 106s.; Groningen, 66s. to 74s.; Holstein and Kiel, 104s. to 105s.; and Jersey, 86s. to 91s. per cwt. Bacon moves off slowly, at 58s. to 62s. per cwt. for Hamburg. Hams and lard are quite as dear as last week. In other provisions, very little is doing.

Tallow.—P.Y.C., on the spot, is selling at 40s. 6d. per cwt., with a moderate inquiry. Stock, 33,106 casks, against 49,554 casks last year. Rough fat, 2s. 1d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil has sold at £32; rape, £41 10s. to £44; olive, £46 to £51 10s.; and fine palm, £36 10s. French turpentine has declined to 56s. per cwt.

Spirits.—There is about an average business doing in rum, at full quotations. Brandy and grain spirits rule about stationary.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 4s. to £5 5s.; clover, £4 15s. to £6 6s.; and straw, £1 5s. to £1 10s. per load.

Coals.—Holywell Main, 17s. 6d.; Gosforth, 15s. 9d.; Haswell, 18s.; Hetton, 18s.; Hough Hall, 17s.; Kelloe, 16s. 3d.; and Hartlepool, 17s. 9d. per ton.

Hops.—The demand for most kinds is inactive; nevertheless, the quotations are supported.

Wool.—The public sales are progressing steadily, but at a decline of from 1d. to 1½d. per lb.

Potatoes.—Full average supplies are on offer, and the demand is inactive, at from 60s. to 150s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, May 18).—The supply of beasts on sale here to-day was very moderate. The trade for most breeds ruled steady, at full prices. Very prime Scots realised 5s.; but the more general top price was 4s. 10d. per 8 lb. Sheep were in moderate supply. Most breeds were in steady request, and the quotations ruled firm. Prime Downs and half-breds realised 6s. 2d. per 8 lb. Lambs—the supply of which on sale was but moderate—moved off steadily, at full prices—viz., at from 6s. 8d. to 8s. per 8 lb. Calves were in fair demand, at previous rates. The pork trade was quiet.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 8d.; second quality ditto, 3s. 10d. to 4s. 2d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 6d.; prime Scots, &c., 4s. 8d. to 4s. 10d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 4d.; second quality ditto, 5s. 6d. to 5s. 10d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. 6d. to 5s. 10d.; prime Southdown ditto, 6s. 0d. to 6s. 2d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; prime small ditto, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 2d.; large hogs, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 4d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 10d.; lambs, 6s. 8d. to 8s. 0d.; suckling calves, 16s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 25s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 980; cows, 115; sheep and lambs, 8570; calves, 305; pigs, 220. Foreign: Beasts, 490; sheep and lambs, 3230; calves, 190.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—The trade is steady, as follows:—Beef, from 3s. 4d. to 4s. 6d.; mutton, 4s. 0d. to 5s. 8d.; lamb, 6s. 4d. to 7s. 8d.; veal, 4s. 0d. to 5s. 0d.; pork, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 10d. per 8 lb. by the carcass.

ROBERT HERBERT.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, MAY 12.

BANKRUPTCIES ANNULLED.

T. TAYLOR, Headbourne Worthy, Hampshire, blacksmith.—E. HAWTHORN, Smith-street, journeymen brazier.—J. BENNETT, Birkenhead, journeyman mason.

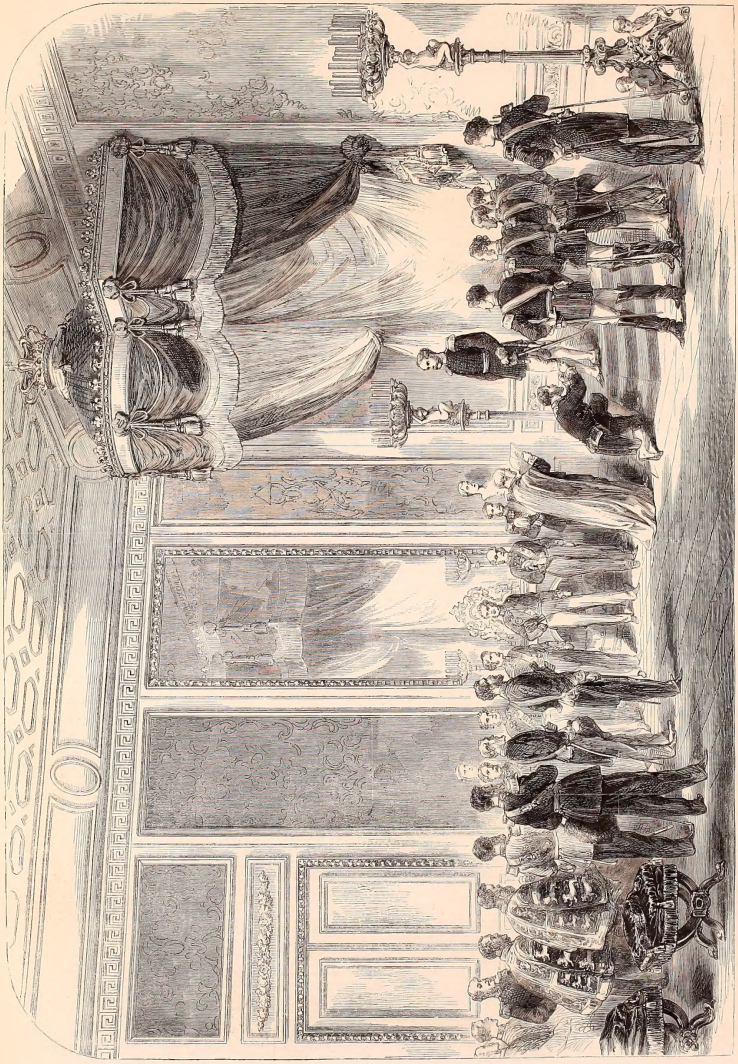
BANKRUPTS.

R. HOLMES, King's Cliffe, Northampton, butcher.—G. MOWL, Bethnal-green-road, builder.—P. READ, Croydon, greengrocer.—A. H. M. CHESNEY, Lansdown-terrace, Regent's Park, retired Lieutenant-Colonel.—W. ORCHARD and J. HOLMAN, Downes Park-road, Hackney, builders.—W. ARMITAGE, Hornsey Rise-mews, flymaster.—J. M. SCHOLFIELD, Borough-road, Southwark, knapsack patentee.—R. L. WILLIAMS, Duke-street, St. James's.—G. PEARCE, St. Ann's-road, Stepney, baker.—W. RUTLAND, Edward-street, St. John's-wood, auctioneer.—R. T. HAWKINS, Oaksey, Wilts.—W. G. DWYER and H. BATEMAN, Kentish Town-road, bootmakers.—W. STARLEY, Lyam-road, Brixton.—C. DAVIS and A. ALVAREZ, St. George's-in-the-East, rag-dealers.—I. J. JONES, Prospect-place, Wandsworth-road.—W. KEMMISH, Jun., Camberwell-road, Walworth, stationer.—G. YOUNG, Banstead, Surrey, cattle-dealer.—M. W. KIRCK, Great St. Helen's, City, shipbroker.—J. BUTLER, Portsea, Southampton, mastmaker.—W. M. CLEMENTS, Norton Folgate.—L. MORGAN, St. George's-street East, grocer.—S. COWAN, Goswell-street, general dealer.—H. R. FRENCH, North Cray, hay and straw dealer.—F. D. C. JONES, Warwick-street, Pimlico, commission agent.—W. S. WALKLEY, Croydon, builder.—E. WOLLHEIM, Charles-street, Westbourne-terrace, and Alexandria, merchant.—A. LUCAS, Richmond-road, Hackney, shipping agent.—J. B. HODGSON, Woodville-road, Stoke Newington.—G. PALMER, E. LEE, and W. RALLINGS, Diglis, timber merchants.—J. JOLLEY, Norton-in-the-Moors, farmer.—H. SMITH, Eccleshall, chemist.—B. RICE, sen., Derby, plumber.—J. R. DAVIES, Cardiff, commission agent.—A. GRIBBLE, Cullumpton, attorney.—E. MORRISH, Taunton, grocer.—D. WEISSER, Plymouth, watchmaker.—H. CROSSLEY, Todmorden, cotton manufacturer.—J. GILL, Reeth.—A. GARFIT and J. SLEIGHT, Kingston-on-Hull, merchants.—M. SAMUELSON and W. H. MOSS, Kingston-on-Hull, iron-ship builders.—W. S. and C. H. ENTWISTLE, Sheffield, iron merchants.—R. BUTCHER, Southport, dentist.—J. DYSON, Liverpool.—J. CHEETHAM, Manchester, boot and shoe maker.—R. STEWART, Bolton, manufacturing chemist.—W. JOHNSON and J. WHITAKER, Leigh, ironfounders.—T. BROWN, Manchester, glass and earthenware dealer.—E. TURNER, Preston, maltster.—J. WILSON, Newcastle-on-Tyne, innkeeper.—J. M. DOLBY, Levenshulme, commission agent.—G. ROBSON, Gateshead, grocer.—R. SMITH, Northfleet.—J. MORGAN, Hereford, hatter.—C. SOUTHERDEN, Hastings, grocer.—J. POOLE, Nottingham, music-hall proprietor.—W. BAILEY, Dewsbury, commission agent.—H. J. C. C. E. de BROUWER, Torquay.—J. FLORENCE, Portsea, blacksmith.—W. KEELING, Dunkerton, auctioneer.—J. POOL, Carlisle, hatter.—T. SARTAIN, Holt, Wiltshire, cattle-dealer.—T. OLDFIELD, Bulmer, stonemason.—T. THOMAS, Swansea, grocer.—J. LEESE, Poulton-by-the-Sands, licensed victualler.—J. HORNER, Londesborough, saddler.—W. CROFT, Liverpool, plumber.—W. CHALONER, Hulme, publican.—E. MIDDLEDITCH, Maldon, baker.—C. A. DAVIS, Kingston-on-Hull, cornfactor.—J. OLDING, Southampton, plumber.—C. HOLMES, Great Grimsby, fruiterer.—S. MORRIS, Llangollen, grocer.—G. GRIFFITHS, Birkenhead, grocer.—H. HUMPHREY, Eastbourne, general dealer.—H. W. PIPER, Tunbridge Wells.—T. MORTLOCK, Clare, innkeeper.

TUESDAY, MAY 16.

BANKRUPTS.

G. HOBBS, Fetter-lane.—E. SELIGMANN, Noble-street, dealer in fancy goods.—R. W. GRAY, Lambeth.—J. H. EASTMAN, Battersea, builder.—J. TINSLAY, Finsbury, baker.—W. EVANS, jun., Cubitt's Town, carpenter.—R. RICHARDSON, Euston-road, builder.—B. MILLAR, Spitalfields, pickle manufacturer.—C. P. CROSSMAN, Queen Anne-street, Captain in the Army.—L. COHEN, Tilley-street, tailor.—E. COLE, Clarkson-street East, pastrycook.—G. DIDDAMS, Hoxton, boot manufacturer.—S. B. SMITH, Camberwell, builder.—J. NEAL, St. Neots, fishmonger.—C. GRIMWADE, Ipswich, broker.—J. DOUSE, Ipswich, baker.—W. and T. W. COTTOM, Westbromwich, ironfounders.—M. R. BRIGGS, Stoke-on-Trent, tailor.—M. GREEN, Wolverhampton, tailor.—H. J. ARNOLD, Uttoxeter, cheesefactor.—J. and R. D. JONES, Chalford, timber merchants.—J. P. SMITH and J. THOMAS, Gloucester, wine merchants.—J. M. NICHOLAS, Bristol, bill discounter.—J. LITTLE, Exeter, hotel-keeper.—S. KENDALL, Redruth, dealer in shares.—W. H. PUTT, Brixham, master mariner.—W. A. ELLISTON, York, musicseller.—H. PICKLES, Leeds, draper.—W. BYWATER, Holbeck, tool manufacturers.—R. T. SALES, Kingston-on-Hull, painter.—M. GREGORY, Great Grimsby, draper.—R. JONES, Llanrwst, doctor of medicine.—J. FLEMING, Liverpool, hardware-dealer.—W. JONES, Manchester, surgeon.—I. DEVEREUX, Stockton-on-Tees, clothier.—F. W. EAST, Reading, upholsterer.—A. PETTINGILL, Great Yarmouth, auctioneer.—J. and H. GARDNER, Liverpool, painters.—S. DAVIES, Liverpool, coaldealer.—R. LEES, Manchester, auctioneers.—J. DIXON, Horsforth, veterinary surgeon.—R. HOWELL, Leeds, soda-water manufacturer.—W. H. SPENCER, Moss-side, agent.—G. NEAL, Glossop, victualler.—R. PRICE, Aberdare, grocer.—C. H. GRAY, Brighouse, general dealer.—R. SPINK, Hook, Yorkshire, grocer.—J. BUTTERLEY, Newcastle-on-Tyne, cooper.—J. C. LUNN, Newcastle-on-Tyne.—H. JONES, Bronyfoelganol, joiner.—T. LUCAS, Worthing, ironmonger.—T. GOODMAN, Warminster, scrivener.



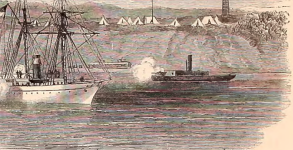
SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

D. FRASER, Culcabock Village, Inverness, sheepdealer.—J. STEWART, Elgin, corn-dealer.

RICHMOND AFTER THE DEPARTURE OF THE CONFEDERATES.

THE first vessel that went up the James River to Richmond after the evacuation of that city by the Confederates on Monday, April 3, was a private yacht, the steamer Octavia, of 430 tons, built in America, but belonging to an English gentleman, Mr. T. W. Kennard, the chief engineer of the Atlantic and Great Western Railway, who was accompanied by his son and several other gentlemen in this early visit to the fallen capital of the South. We have been favoured by Mr. Kennard with the sketches from which our Illustrations on page 481 are engraved. One of them is a view of Fort Powhattan, with the encampment on the extreme left of the Federal position before Petersburg, about half way up the river in going from Fortress Monroe to Richmond. The yacht passed this place on the Monday morning, and saluted with two guns. The salute was returned by Fort Powhattan, and the troops cheered. At that hour Mr. Kennard had not heard of the evacuation of Petersburg and Richmond, which had taken place the same morning; but he met a number of large steamers, crammed with Confederate prisoners, coming down the river. Upon his arrival at City Point, the head-quarters of General Grant, he learnt that both Petersburg and Richmond were abandoned, and the Confederate army in full retreat. Mr. Kennard then landed at City Point, and called upon General Collis, the Federal officer in command. Next morning, having been summoned by Admiral Porter to attend on board the flagship, Mr. Kennard did so, and made a satisfactory apology for having ventured, without a pass, to bring his yacht up the river, as the Federal authorities had ordered that no vessel should go above Fortress Monroe. The next two or three days were spent in exploring Petersburg and the country around that town. On the Friday Mr. Kennard and his party proceeded to Richmond. He gives the following account of his visit to the ruined city:—

"After waiting some hours on that day at the bridge over the Appomattox, at Petersburg, for the rails to be laid down for us, we safely crossed over on to the Richmond Railway in the first United States car that had run on the line for years past. En route to the fallen city we passed exploded ammunition-trains and railway débris, not forgetting numbers of niggers profuse in broad grins, salutations, and elaborate bows. These poor fellows were only too glad to let us have all the Confederate currency they had about them in exchange for any trifle we liked to give. Upon arriving at Manchester, on the south side of James River, we found the fine railway-bridge, three quarters of a mile long, destroyed by fire. Nothing remained but the stone piers. All the other bridges were destroyed in the same way, and we entered the town over a bridge of boats thrown across by the Federal troops. The scene of ruin and devastation presented on entering the place is beyond description. The main street, and the entire blocks of buildings stretching down to the river, had been totally destroyed by fire—some



EARL COWPER INVESTING THE KING OF DENMARK WITH THE ORDER OF THE GARTER.—SEE PAGE 485.

RICHMOND, VIRGINIA, AFTER ITS CONQUEST.

THE LATE RESIDENCE OF PRESIDENT DAVIS.

FORT POWHATTAN, AND THE RIGHT OF THE FEDERAL LINES.

say by order of General Ewell, others by accident. At any rate, nearly half the city has been reduced to ashes, notwithstanding the efforts of the Federal troops to arrest the flames. Only one hotel was open, and but few shops, and those very bare of goods. The Capitol was visited, also Jeff Davis's house, Castle Thunder, and the notorious Libby prison, crammed to overflowing with Confederate prisoners. Both are miserably small holes, originally warehouses. The stories we heard with regard to the treatment of Federal prisoners in the Libby are contradictory; one Colonel, who, with 150 other officers, had been confined in it for three months, speaks well of the treatment: on the other hand, there are statements of shocking ill-treatment and suffering. One of the first regiments in the city was negro, and black troops were on guard in every street.

"No pillage or destruction of property had taken place; and, to the great honour of the Federal arms be it fairly said, never before did cities like Petersburg and Richmond, entered by excited troops after years of siege, suffer to so trifling an extent. Tobacco was the only temptation that could not be resisted. There was not a whisper amongst the inhabitants conversed with, other than that they had been treated in the most humane and proper manner. We can all certify to the fact that out of the thousands upon thousands of troops we have seen only one man has been detected the worse for drink. This is accounted for by the fact that spirits are forbidden both in the army and navy on service. One could not fail to remark the deep mourning worn by the ladies moving about the streets, or the careworn expression of their countenances. The 'darkie' element, on the contrary, was decidedly jubilant. The return to City Point was by way of the James River, steamers having arrived while we were in the town. We thus had an opportunity of seeing part of the vast system of fortifications and works that surrounded the fallen city, extending over eighty miles. The number of guns left by the Confederates must have been enormous. The celebrated Atlanta was lying in the neighbourhood of Dutch Gap, in company with five Federal monitors. The gap appears about 200 yards in length, cut through a very high bank, under fire of the Confederate guns. Had the work been successfully carried out, seven miles of batteries through which the gauntlet had to be run by the invading fleet would have been saved. From the enormous strength of the shore batteries and number of torpedoes sunk it seems almost impossible that any ship could have reached Richmond. Suspicious little red flags stuck in floating logs of wood commanded the greatest possible respect from the man at the wheel. These had been placed by a torpedo-hunting gun-boat to mark the proximity of its deadly guns; but not without reason was this respect paid, for it is rumoured a river-steamer that passed us en route to Richmond deviated from the proper course, struck a torpedo and was sunk, the majority of those on board being killed. The torpedoes fished up by the hunters were lying on each bank—one containing no less than 1700 lb. of powder. In all excursions some of the party get adrift. One of ours did on this occasion, a circumstance he had no reason to regret, as he passed the evening with General Weitzel, who occupies Jeff Davis's house, and visited points of interest in the fugitive President's carriage. Saturday was spent at City Point in making our adieux to all those who had shown our party such great and unusual attentions. We saw a train of 2000 men dispatched to bring back some 12,000 prisoners captured on Thursday, including General Ewell and five other generals. Upon our way back to the yacht the English portion of the party called upon the President, who had been here for some time on board the River Queen steamer. The President received us with the greatest courtesy, and we enjoyed a long and interesting conversation with him, not the least amusing part of it being a history he gave of General Grant's career, winding up with a happy anecdote of a boyhood adventure of the General. The President looked very careworn, and with feeling expressed his delight at the prospect of a speedy close of this dreadful war."

There is a melancholy interest now belonging to this record of so late a conversation with President Lincoln, whose fate was not known when Mr. Kennard wrote his letter. The view of the City of Richmond, and that of Mr. Jefferson Davis's House, are likewise engraved from Mr. Kennard's sketches.

THE CITY OF RICHMOND, FROM THE JAMES RIVER.

NEW BOOKS.

NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "LADY AUDLEY'S SECRET," &c.
Second Edition, at all Libraries, in 3 vols.,
ONLY A CLOD.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

NEW NOVEL BY AUTHOR OF "ROLAND, THE KNIGHT OF ARVON."
On May 31, in 1 vols., 6s. cl. Limpsfield,
WHO WAS TO BLAME?
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

ANECDOTIC HISTORY OF THE EMPEROR.
On May 30, in 1 vol., 10s. 6d. Library,
NAPOLEON III. AND HIS COURT.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

NEW NOVEL BY STEPHEN MASTERGRIT, M.A.
Shortly, in 3 vols., at all Libraries,
CHARLOTTE TRALEE.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

On June 1, in 3 vols., at all Libraries,
CRUEL FORTUNE.
By the Author of "Milly Mine," "Queen of Song," &c.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

THE CHEAP EDITION OF "HENRY DUNBAR."
Now ready, in 1 vol., price 2s., boards, and Vignette Frontispiece, in cloth, price 2s., uniform with the Author's previous Works,
HENRY DUNBAR.
By the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," &c.
Also uniformly with the above, price 2s. boards,
BECKEN TO HARNESS. By EDMUND YATES.
RACHEL'S CHILDREN. By C. J. COLLINS.
SIR VICTOR'S CHOICE. By ANNIE THOMAS.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

In the press, crown 8vo, price 5s.,
DANTE'S INFERNO. With Seventy-six Illustrations by GUSTAVE DORÉ. Cary's Translation. Memoir of Dante, and Explanatory Notes.
CASSELL, PETTER and GALPIN, London, E.C.

BEE-KEEPING.—See the TIMES BEE-MASTER, 2s.
Book-in-Bee, 2s. 6d. London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Longacre-hill.

BEE-HOUSES.—See the TIMES BEE-MASTER.
London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Longacre-hill.

BEE-ENEMIES.—See the TIMES BEE-MASTER.
London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Longacre-hill.

BEE-KEEPING.—How to make it an addition to your Income.—TIMES BEE-MASTER, Price 2s.
SAMPSON LOW and Co., Longacre-hill.

THE TIMES BEEMASTER is pretty well known as sure to prove a favourite in many country homes.—London Review. Price 2s.
SAMPSON LOW and Co., Longacre-hill.

THE TIMES BEEMASTER, One Volume, is an interesting addition to the bibliography of the bee.—Athenæum. Price 2s.
SAMPSON LOW and Co., Longacre-hill.

THE NEW BEE BOOK.—Now ready,
THE TIMES BEEMASTER. A Manual for all who keep or wish to keep Bees. With numerous Illustrations. Price 2s.
"We intend the Beemaster for the branch of exposition, and have no doubt that it will be found a valuable guide to the bee-keeping at this country, and to prove a formidable rival to the many others which have given an impetus to bee-keeping throughout the country."—Times.
SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Longacre-hill.

THE MODERN HERBARIST. A New Work for the Harp, by ATTOMMAR, containing paragraphs upon Medicinal Herbs, Flowers, Fruits, Insects, Quadrupeds, Stimulants, Binding, Teaching, Playing in Public, &c.
Price 2s. 6d. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

DECALCOMANIE.—Box containing Sixteen Sheets of Designs, price 10s. 6d. Instructions for Transfer WINDOWS, the improved Transfer Process (Illustrated Wood-cuts), with Specimens of Work, and Directions for Procuring Materials, &c., by HAROLD MOLLETT, Cambridge-street, Hyde-park.

Tenth Thousand, price 3s. 6d., post-free, 32 stamps,
HUNT on the SKIN: a Guide to the Treatment and Management of Diseases of the Skin without the Use of Mercury. By THOS. HUNT, F.R.C.S., Surgeon to the Surgery for Diseases of the Skin, 4, Finsbury-circus. "Mr. Hunt has translated these diseases from Hebrew and Greek into English."—Medical Circular, Dec. 7. RICHARDS, 37, Wellington-street, W.C. Consult "Hunt on the Skin."

Second Edition, now ready, post-free 12 stamps,
BARD MACDOWALL'S CRAB PURIFIERS: Their Successful Treatment, without Arsenic or Sperlice.
T. RICHARDS, 37, Wellington-street, Adelphi, W.C.

HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT of RHEUMATISM, HEPATIC ANÆMIA, and FEVER. By J. J. DRYSDALE, M.D., Physician to the Royal Infirmary for Children, and to St. Paul's-sch.-yard, and 1, Verulam-buildings, W.C.

Price 1s. 6d., bound in cloth,
HOMŒOPATHIC TEXT-BOOK of SYPHILIS and PRACTICE; embracing the Treatment of the Secondary Stage, the Cow Stage, and Tertiary Stage. By HARRY GOODALL. London: JAMES EPPS, 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street.

Price 2s., Second Edition, bound in cloth,
HOMŒOPATHY. Parents' Guide to Treatment of the Diseases of Children. By J. LAURIE, M.D. LEATH and ROZE, 7, St. Paul's-sch.-yard, and 8, Verulam-buildings, W.C.

Sixty-third Edition, price 1s.,
HOMŒOPATHIC FAMILY GUIDE: containing Plain Directions for the Domestic Treatment of Common Complaints. A Chest of Medicines for the Waistcoat Pocket. By LEATH and ROZE, 8, St. Paul's-ch.-yard, and 7, Vere-st., Oxford-st.

Nineteenth Edition, 8vo. cloth, 12s.,
HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. LAURIE, M.D. Specially adapted to the use of Families, Missionaries, and Travellers. "Every family should have a copy."—Tweeddale Courier. "Very complete."—Bell. The Case of Medicines sent to the former work, price 30s.; and to the latter, price 20s.
LEATH and ROZE, 7, St. Paul's-ch.-yard, and 8, Verulam-buildings, W.C.

POSTAGE-STAMPS.—A priced Catalogue of Foreign Postage-Stamps sent post-free for 2 stamps, by the Publisher, W. RICHARDS, 37, Wellington-street, Adelphi, W.C. Agents wanted.

RAGSTER'S POLYGLOT BIBLES.
In Ragster's flexible bindings.
All of the principal Bibles kept in stock, and to be had of every bookseller and stationer.

25,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and TESTAMENTS, CHURCH SERVICES, in plain and elegant bindings, suitable for presentation, school prizes, and family use. Also, a large assortment of Bibles and Prayer-Books, in various sizes, exceptions for largest, cheapest, and best-bound stock in London.
BAGSTER and SONS, 15, Paternoster-row, E.C.

FIELD'S GUINEA FAMILY BIBLE, large type, with Illustrations and Maps, Red Line Fillets, and Family Register. The cheapest Bible ever issued. Price 21s. in cloth, free, 22s. 6d.; 30 gilt-edged, 25s. 6d. Field's Great Bible Warehouse, 65, Regent-quadrant.

FIELD'S 10s. ILLUMINATED PRAYER BOOK, handsomely printed, with exquisite designs in Gold and Colours, and Red Line Fillets, in various bindings, 10s. 6d. Field's Great Bible Warehouse, 65, Regent-quadrant.

THREE HUNDRED BIBLE STORIES, with nearly 300 Bible Pictures, a Pictorial Family Bible for 12s. Illustrated Catalogues sent free for 1 stamp. Field's Great Bible Warehouse, 65, Regent-quadrant. The largest Stock of Juvenile Books in London.

COLOURED SCRAPS, for Screens, Scrapbooks, &c. A large assortment, comprising Flowers, Figures, Animals, Birds, Landscapes, &c. Post-free, 1s. 6d.
WM. BARNARD, 10, Cranbourn-street, Leicester-sq., W.

A FACT.—An Elegant POCKET DIAL, with gold spring-case, warranted to denote correct time, in beautiful gilt case. One Shilling; by post, 14 stamps.
J. ARCHAMBEAU, 39, Ironmonger-lane, Cheapside, London, E.C.

NEW MUSIC.

THE CARDILLE OF THE SEASON.
COOTES'S LARA QUADRILLE.
Illustrated. Solo, 2s.; Duet, 4s. Post-free at half price.
ROBT. COOTES and Co., 10, 11, 27, and 28, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE VALSE OF THE SEASON.
COOTES'S LARA VALSE.
Illustrated. Solo, 2s.; Duet, 4s. Post-free at half price.
ROBT. COOTES and Co., 10, 11, 27, and 28, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE ARAB SONG from LARA.
"The rose of the open." Sung by Miss Louisa Pyne.
SIDNEY NELSON'S Popular Ballad, "The Arab Song," for Pianoforte Solo. Price 3s. Post-free at half price.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, and 39, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SENSATION MAD.—Mr. Sothern's Comic Song, "Sensation Mad in Rhyme." Price 2s. Post-free, 1s. Illustrated. Price 3s. Post-free for 18 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, and 39, Great Marlborough-street, W.

BEN È RIDICOLO.—The favourite Italian Song, sung by Mdlle. Titiens, Mdlle. Parepa, and Mdlle. Lemmens-Sherrington, is published by Ricordi, 265, Regent-circus, W. In E for Contralto; in G for Soprano. Price 2s. each. Post-free at half price.

NEW PIANOFORTE MUSIC.
The following are some of the most popular Pianoforte Pieces published by ROBERT COCKS and Co.:
BLUMER, E.—Air Hongrois. Fantaisie dedicated to her Majesty the Queen of Hanover. Price 4s. Illustrated, 5s.
COENEN, E.—Les Fleurs. Six Morceaux Faciles. Price 4s. each.
No. 1. Le Papillon au rayon. Pastorale ... ... 4s. 0d.
No. 2. Le Lys. Impromptu ... ... 4s. 0d.
No. 3. Le Bluet. Mazurka ... ... 4s. 0d.
No. 4. Le Muguet. Impromptu ... ... 4s. 0d.
No. 5. Le Lilas. Nocturne ... ... 4s. 0d.
No. 6. Le Bouquet d'Amarante. Chanson allemande ... 4s. 0d.
Mandelsloh's "How my Prayer." ... ... 3s. 0d.
Schumann's "Wild Horseman." ... ... 3s. 0d.
transcribed ... ... 3s. 0d.
SPEIDEL, W.—Le Rêve. Nocturne ... ... 3s. 0d.
SZIDLER, C.—Souvenir populaire, No. 1. Valse arrivée, No. 2. Galop de cour, No. 3. Polka ... ... 3s. 0d.
WOLLENHAUPT, H.—Marche hongroise, No. 1. Valse brillante, No. 2. Mazurka, No. 3. Polka ... ... 3s. 0d.
Any of the above pieces may be had arranged as a duet for Pianoforte and Violoncello.
London: ROBERT and Co., Musical Library, 87, Regent-street.

THE WORKS MOST USEFUL FOR SCHOOL AND FAIR AND FALSE.
EWER and Co., 390, Strand, near Temple Bar, London.

STEPHEN GLOVER'S NEW VOCAL CHART, recently sung by Gardiner, Montem, Hodsdon, Felton, &c. Senior lancy is often due to the voice being used in the wrong register. Stephen Glover's Vocal Chart will entirely remove this defect. Price 2s. 6d., with the method entirely explained. Sent by the author direct to the purchaser, notice which should be the first object to be studied. Address, 9, Bedford-street, Bedford-square, London, W.C.

NEW SONGS by ROBERT COOTES and Co., 10, Holywell-street, Wilton-street.
NAAMAN. By MICHAEL COSTA.
The following are the principal Songs in this popular Oratorio:
No. 1. Duet, "I sought the Lord (MS. and B.), 3s.
No. 2. Air, "Lift thine eyes" (Mez.), 3s.
No. 3. Air, "Thy shall be turned back" (Sop.), 3s.
No. 4. Air, "Is not Jordan" (Ten.), 3s.
No. 5. Air, "Be mad shall be preserved" (MS. or B.), 3s.
No. 6. Air, "Then shall your light" (Sop.), 3s.
No. 7. Air, "Behold, God the Lord" (Bass), 3s.
No. 8. Prayer, Master of arrange (str.), 3s.
No. 9. Chorus, "Then shall your light" (S. A. T. B.), 6s.
Full Score, three printed: Vocal Score, 42, 10s. 6d.
Orchestral Parts, 42, 10s. 6d. Post-free at half price.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR.
The Words by Mrs. HEMANS. The Music by HENRY RUSSELL.
Beautiful Song, now established as one of the leading favourites of the day. Sung by Mr. Henry Russell. Price 2s. Post-free for 13 stamps. Half the price. ROBERT COCKS and Co.

E. L. HIME'S PARFAIT AMOUR.
Ex. Entrance for Piano. Played by Master Willie Pain before the Queen at Windsor. Price 3s. Post-free for 18 stamps. Beautiful Arabesque accompaniment. Sent free 13 stamps.
E. L. HIME, 9, Bedford-street, Bedford-square.

E. L. HIME'S GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR
Ex. Entrance for Piano. Price 3s. Post-free for 18 stamps. Beautiful Arabesque for Piano of Stephen Glover's beautiful Melody.
E. L. HIME, 9, Bedford-street, Bedford-square.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST of NEW SONGS.
Each 2s. net. Post-free, 13 stamps each.
O Ye Tears. By W. T. Wrighton.
The Voice of Night. Price 4d.
Ave Maria. Price 4d.
Ave Maria. Arranged for Violin and Violoncello.
The Banner Bird. Price 4d.
The Valley Flower. Price 4d.
Kathleen Aroon. Price 4d.
The Lily Bell. Price 4d.
The Departed Year. By W. Brighton.
The Cuckoo Song. Price 4d.
The Lady of the Lea. By Miss Lindsay.
All, all remember me. By Miss Lindsay.
O Ye Tears! Two Voices. Price 4d.
Gentle Annie. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. Price 4d.
Order of all Musicsellers; and of Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street, W.

Agents for all Country Publishers.

HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS FOR PIANO, as 42nd Edition.—Piano Music: Part 1, Rudiments; Part 2, Exercises; Part 3, Lessons. Vocal Music: Part 1, Rudiments; Part 2, Exercises; Part 3, Lessons. Instrumental Music: Part 1, Rudiments; Part 2, Exercises; Part 3, Lessons. Gratis and post-free. Crisis and postage-free, Thematic Catalogue of Music, Vocal and Instrumental, Ancient and Modern, for the Use of Schools, Families, and Private Students.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co. Published by the Queen's Most Honourable Privy Council, and by Appointment to the Royal and Imperial Majesty Napoleon III., New Burlington-street, W.

MISS M. A. WILSON'S NEW SONG, LETTERS, LETTERS, LETTERS FROM HOME. Price 2s. Post-free for 13 stamps. Half the price.
ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street, W.

HUTCHINGS and ROMER'S LIST of NEW PIECES TO MATCH NEW PIANOFORTE WORKS, as played by Miss Arabella Goddard at her Concerts and Pianoforte Recitals.
Gerster's Valse dedicated to Madame Patti and Mdlle. Titiens, played at the Concerts ... ... 4s.
Un cuite d'Adieu (Scottish) ... ... 4s.
Un cuite d'Amour ... ... 4s.
Adieu ma Patrie (Transcription) ... ... 4s.
Gerster's Mazurka ... ... 4s.
HUTCHINGS and ROMER, 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

SWEET KILKENNY TOWN. Price 4s. Post-free, 24 stamps. Illustrated with Portrait of Miss Kate Ryland, Vocalist. To be had of all Musicsellers and Pianoforte-makers. Wholesale Agents, HUTCHINGS and ROMER, Musicsellers and Pianoforte-sellers, 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

GATHERING HEARTSEASE. Price 3s. Mr. Miss Lindsay's New Song to be had of all Musicsellers and the Publishers,
HUTCHINGS and ROMER, 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. The Musical Exchange, 192, High Holborn. Sale of every publisher's remainder immediately on publication to any part of the kingdom. Lists gratis and post-free. Country Booksellers supplied with Music for Sale or Exchange. Libraries purchased for cash or exchange. Music engraved, printed, and published. Estimates and terms on application.

BOUDOIR PIANOFORTES, Seven Octaves, by Grand Action, Patis Model.—Price to be SOLD immediately, £25, cash.—Apply to Messrs. KEENE, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside.

MUSICAL BOXES by NICOLE FRÈRES. A Selection of Two Hundred Airs of the newest description. Sixteen Stops, vibrating with the slightest touch, 15s. to 50 Guineas.
KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPÔT for the Sale of Nicole Frères' Celebrated Instruments. Prices from 5s to 5l; and 3l. Cartridge Tune Sheets. A large assortment of all sizes from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Price gratis and postage-free.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPÔTS, 56, Cheapside, and 30, Leicester-square, next the French Protestant Church. Large size, Sheffield, 3s. to 10s. per tune. Catalogues of tunes and prices gratis and post-free on application to Walch and Co., as above.

TO LOVERS OF MUSIC.—The choicest Stock of Musical Boxes in London, by Sacelle, at 41 per size; Sheffield, 3s. per tune.—At 2, W. NELSON, 31, Strand (three doors from Somerset House).

NOTICE.—THOMAS TAPLING, BELL, and Oil, formerly "Thomas Tapling and Co.," Organ Contractors, &c., have REMOVED from 214, Gresham-street, and 12, Wellington-street, Goswell-road, Premises, 1 and 2, GRESHAM-STREET, E.C.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., Silversmiths, Cutlers, &c., presentment for their Show-rooms, 220, Regent-street, W.
Electro-Silver Plate suitable for Presentation.
Elkington's Patent Electro-Silver Wedding Presents.
Dressing-Cases, Dressing-Bags, Writing-Desks.
Sterling Silver Volunteer and Rifle Prizes.
Table Cutlery of every description.
Electro-Silver Fiddle and Thread Pattern Dessert Knives and Forks.
Electro-Silver Fish-Carvers, Cruet-Frames, &c.
Electro-Silver Dessert-Knives and Forks, in cases.
Table Knives of unsurpassed excellence.
Corner-Dishes and Dish-Rings; Hind Joint Stands.
Prize Cheese for partial or entire Outfits.
Mappin, Webb, and Co.'s Catalogue, Illustrated with Engravings, sent free by post.
Illustrated Catalogues and priced list free on application.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Celebrated Electro-Silver Plate, Fiddle and Thread Pattern.
REDUCED PRICES.—Fiddle and Thread Spoons and Forks, 12s. 6d. each. Gentlemen's Manufactures in the Queen's Pattern, 10s. 6d. each. Fiddle and Thread Pattern Dessert Knives and Forks, 10s. 6d. each. Fiddle and Thread Pattern Carvers, 7s. 6d. each.
Mappin, Webb, and Co., 220, Regent-street, W.

ORNAMENTS for the MANTELPIECE, &c.
Ormolu and Porcelain Clocks, many other Ornamental Groups, Statuettes, Vases, &c., in Parian and English and Foreign Porcelain, Bronzes, Ormolu, Alabaster, and gilt; Rich-glass Brackets, Candelabra, Candlesticks, and Bohemian Glass.
JOHN GRAY, 33, Berners-street, W.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, DINING ROOM, consisting of vases, flowers, groups, figures, &c., in Parian, Statuary, Porcelain, Bronzes, Ormolu, Alabaster, Ivory, Marble, Glass, &c., Designed and Manufactured by J. TENNANT (late Hunter), 149, Strand, W.C.

GARDNERS' LAMPS ARE THE BEST.—Drawing-room Lamps, Moderator Lamps, Table Lamps, 2s. 6d. each. Gardners' Manufactures to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (corner of Northumberland-street).

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality, Illustrated Catalogue post-free.—Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (4 doors from Northumberland-street).

CERTONNE CHINTZ, requiring no ironing, is particularly adapted for curtains or furniture coverings, and is manufactured in a variety of new designs and tints, 50 inches wide, at 3s. 6d. per yard.
FILMER and SON'S UPHOLSTERY and CABINET FURNITURE SHOW-ROOMS, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, Oxford-street. Established 1862. Illustrated Price-book sent free on application.

FILMER and SON'S UPHOLSTERY and CABINET FURNITURE SHOW-ROOMS, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, Oxford-street. Established 1862. Illustrated Price-book sent free on application.

FURNITURE, Carpets, and Bedding.—Best quality, moderate charges, and separately, with prices 25 per cent less than any other house. The most extensive and only Show-rooms in London, at 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, Oxford-street; and 24, Bentinck-road, Kingsland-cross, Country carriage-free.

OAK FURNITURE at the BELGRAVE EXPOSITION.—Illustrated Price-book sent free on application. Manufactured by JAMES SHOOLBRED and Co., Tottenham-court-road. Furniture for sale, in solid oak, of the best description, and at a moderate charge for superior workmanship. Also, with locks of prize and plate of Exhibition Medal, awarded to JAMES SHOOLBRED and Co., 1862.

MUSLIN, LACE, and LENO CURTAINS, MADE.—Patterns to be selected from our assortment and the general public that they have seen.
JAMES SHOOLBRED and Co.'S ANNUAL STOCK,
Is the largest that they have ever had to offer, of carpets, carpet, and draperies. An early inspection is respectfully solicited.
Nos. 106, 108, 110, 112, 114, 116, and 118, Tottenham-court-road.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by Appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, has SEVEN LARGE SHOW-ROOMS entirely devoted to the Display and Illustration of his Illustrated Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia Metal Goods; Dish Covers and Hot-water Dishes; Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimneypieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gasoliers, Tea Trays, Urns and Kettles, Clocks, Tea and Coffee Machines, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-hangings, Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices and plans of Discovery Premises, at 39, Oxford-street (corner of Newman-street); 1, 1a, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; and 4, 5, 6, and 7, Perry's-place.

SLACKS' FENDERS and FIRE-IRONS. Every New Design always on Show.
Bright Steel and Ormolu, 4s. to 10l.
Bright Steel and Or-molu, 4s. to 10l.
Bright Steel and Steel-mounted, 6s. to 12l.
Bronzed Fenders, 2s. 6d. to 5l. 5s.
Dressing-room fit, 18s. 6d. to 6l.
Chimney-pieces, 1l. 1s. to 50l.
Fire-irons, 1s. 6d. per set to 5l. 5s.
Catalogue, containing 250 Engravings and Prices, gratis, or sent free by post.—SLACKS', 336, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best Articles at DRAKES' Ironmongery and Furnishing Warehouse, 49, Leicester-square. Established 1820. Illustrated Price-list and Plans free by post.

DRAKES' 49, Leicester-square, London Bridge.

WENHAM LAKE ICE for Town or Country. Wenham Lake Ice Company, Machine Saloopians, Fountain Tavern, and everything connected with freezing, of the most improved description. Apply to the Secretary, 31, Cornhill.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, W. London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, exhibited ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING MACHINES at the Exhibition of 1862, and were the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress Making, Tailoring, Shoe Making, Bookbinding, and every description of Sewing. They stitch, hem, fell, bind, cord, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily learned, work with perfect regularity, and are unsurpassed for rapidity. Prospectuses, with specimens of work, post-free. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—GROVER and BAKER, 150, Regent-street, W.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING MACHINES, with the Recent Improvements, are the most elastic and Patentees and Introducers of the only Machines producing a satisfactory result for all practical purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with ease, and in a manner unsurpassed by any other machine, and to be the lightest, simplest, and most elegant machines for family use, and the utmost amount of work can be quilted and,—86, Regent-street, W.; 65, Cheapside, E.C.; and 4, Exchange-street, Manchester.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The 12l. Printing Machine, price from 2s. to 21s., for Marking Linen, Cheapside, or Lithographic Printing. "Art of Printing," "Art of Lithography," 1s. or 13 stamps each.—S. G. HANSARD, Engraver and Stereotyper to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

STAINED-GLASS WINDOWS for CHURCHES and DWELLINGS.
HEATON, BUTLER, and BAYNES New Catalogue, containing Designs and Estimates for Memorial Windows, Figure Subjects, Heraldic Subjects, also Church Decorations and Memorial Brasses, now publishing, 2s. 6d., post-free.—Heaton, Butler, and Bayne, 2 and 3, King-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

COUNTY FIRE OFFICE.
Established 1807.
The Directors are now prepared to give their Policy Holders the advantage of the reduction in duty.
The well-established charge will be made for Policy or Stamp.
Insurances are effected on every description of Property in all its connections with the public will be undertaken.
Notorious and gentlemen are invited to secure the advantage of the reduction in duty by insuring their Plate, Jewels, &c., and by the reduction in duty, which enables the Company to allow a return of one half in the amount of their insurances without any other charge.
Agents are appointed in all the principal towns throughout Great Britain.
JAMES G. BLAIKIE, Secretary.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND.
Shareholders in the General Government of New Zealand, the Provincial Governments, and Private Individuals.
Capital, £1,000,000, in 10,000 Shares of £100 each.
Branches and Agencies in New Zealand:
Auckland, Hawke's Bay, Nelson, Napier, New Plymouth, Dunedin, Taranaki, Invercargill, Wanganui, Christchurch, Wellington, Timaru, Otago, Manawatu, Lyttelton, Picton, Mount Ida.
The Bank transacts every description of business connected with the Colonies of New Zealand, and the other Australian Colonies, and the Islands in the Pacific Ocean.
Bills and Drafts granted on any of the above-named places, and Telegraphic Transfers of Money between any of the Colonies of New Zealand, on the most favourable terms.
The London Office is open daily, for interest for fixed periods, on terms which may be learned on application.
J. ALEXANDER GALBRAITH, Secretary.
No. 30, Old Broad-street, London, E.C. 11th May, 1865.

ACCIDENTS to LIFE or LIMB.—£1000 in case of death, or £6 per week while laid up by injury, may be secured by an Annual Payment of £3 to £5 5s. Apply at the Railway Passengers Assurance Company's Offices, 64, Cornhill, and 10, Regent-street.
W. J. VIAN, Secretary.

THE ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Incorporated 4.D. 1847, under Royal Patronage), 70, Waterloo-place, London, S.W.
ARTHUR R. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 3s. per annum, or £6 6s. for £4000.—THE RAILWAY PASSENGERS ASSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London.
WILLIAM J. VIAN, Secretary.

LOANS on DEBENTURE.—The GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY are prepared to receive TENDERS for LOANS on DEBENTURE, bearing interest at Five per Cent. per annum.
Debenture Tenders, May 19, 1865.
By order, CHARLES SAMPSON, Secretary.

TO LET, a MODERN GENERAL PATENT COMPANY (Limited), 77, Fleet-street, Lavatory, situate and fitted for Sale of Patent Articles. Rent moderate. Apply to the Company's "Handbook" issued gratis.
Offices, 77, Fleet-street, E.C. (Corner of Bride-lane).

RESIDENT PATIENT.—A Married Physician, having a large and successful Private practice in a beautiful part of Gloucestershire, is desirous of receiving a RESIDENT PATIENT, who requires medical attention. The advertiser was formerly connected with a metropolitan hospital for the treatment of the insane, and has had considerable experience in the treatment of lunacy, to and has devoted much attention to the treatment of those disorders. References exchanged. Terms, from 200 guineas per annum. Address, M.D., 3, Cambridge-terrace, Hyde-park.

LADIES' SCHOOL, 40 and 50 Guineas. Mrs. and Miss Lloyd have Education—Languages, Music, Singing, Musical Prizes, Drawing Materials, and use of Books included. No Extras. Resident Governess. Address, 3, Cambridge-terrace, Hyde-park Strand, W.C.

SMALL SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from 10 to 5 daily. Gentlemen's sons and relatives of gentlemen are taught at any time entirely their own convenience. Lessons can be had by the hour, day, week, month, or quarter. Terms, one guinea per month. Prospectuses, with testimonials, forwarded on application, by which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For private instruction, 2l. 2s. per month. Mrs. Smart, Principal.
N.B.—Agents to the Week of Eminent Insurance Company.

LADIES' TEETH.—Mr. ROBERTS'S system, given with his Paper, Handsome gilt frame, glass and brush, 10s. 6d. Instructions for Self-Adjustment. Certificates and Testimonials. 33, BERNERS-STREET, and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

PEARS'S PHOTOGRAPHS are obtained by the new patent process of DOUBLYTYPE on Paper and Glass, producing the most perfect Photographs ever offered to the Public. Full Instructions and sent of price 2s. post. Apparatus and Chemicals supplied. Address, PEARS'S PHOTOGRAPHIC ASSOCIATION of PHOTOGRAPHY (London), 213, Regent-street, W.

FAMILY ARMS.—Now complete, a Work containing Authentic Information, Genealogical and Historical Records of nearly every family in the kingdom, the result of many years' research in the College of Arms, and the Public Records. Also, a Dictionary of Heraldry, containing the Origin and Meaning of Ancient Heraldic Terms, &c. Published in 2 vols., 8vo, cloth, price 2l. 2s., by JOHN RUSSELL SMITH, 36, Soho-square. Also, Part IV., containing Supplement to the Queen, 21, Cranbourne-street, Leicester-square.

NO CHARGE FOR ENGRAVING DIE with every ORDER for STATIONERY of 5s. value. Best cream laid Note, 4s. per Ream. Thick Ditto, 5s. 6d. Bordered Note, 6s. 6d. Bordered Envelopes, 6s. 6d. per 1000. Wedding Cards, 50 Superfine Cards, 2s. 6d. Visiting Cards, 3s.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 17, Cranbourne-street, Leicester-square, London.

CAMDEN STEAM-PRINTING WORKS, 2, Bond-street, Brunswick-quay, Camden-town.—Estimates and specimens of every description of book-work or music forwarded by return of post. Accounts rendered monthly. Apply as above, or to Mr. CLARKE, 20, Cornhill, E.C.

ALBUM.—20 per cent allowed on all orders of 20s.—C. ALMEDINGER, Selling Off his large and valuable STOCK of ALBUMS, Portfolios, Writing-cases, and Fancy Goods. Post Monk Tropic, 10s. 6d.—174, Oxford-street, W.

ALBUMS.—Cartes and Cabinets, Royal Blue, Six Arcana, gross Leather Pouch-bag, 4cm-guard, Pingue-Pongue, Backgammon, Chess, Cribbage, Dominoes, Bagatelle, &c. Stamp Tax 2d.—C. ALMEDINGER, 174, Oxford-street, W.

UNIVERSAL PENCIL-CASE. Price 4d. by 6d.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, and 6, Coleman-street, London.
Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

PORT and SHERRY, 15s. per dozen, CLARET 12s. per dozen, at HENRY BRETT and CO.'S Wine Vaults, 31, Lower Thames-street, E.C.
Terms, Cash on delivery.

Terms, strictly cash on delivery, and packages will have to be returned within seven days, or charged for. Terms strictly cash on delivery. Bins to Let. Pamphlets Post Office.

Country orders must contain remittance. Post-office orders payable at Lombard-street.

Country orders must contain remittance. Post-office orders payable at Lombard-street.

Your Sherry quite astonishes me. I had an idea such pleasant wine could not be had for money.—W. W.

The Claret is excellent, and I am glad to find very reasonable.—W. H.

Hailsham, May 16, 1865.

I am much pleased with your cheap Claret.—W. H.

Upper Tulse-hill, May 8, 1865.

Your Sherry quite astonishes me. I had an idea such pleasant wine could not be had for money.—W. W.

The Claret is excellent, and I am glad to find very reasonable.—W. H.

Hailsham, May 16, 1865.

I am much pleased with your cheap Claret.—W. H.

Upper Tulse-hill, May 8, 1865.

May 10, 1865.—E. S.

TEA.—STRACHAN and CO., 12, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, within. A NEW BLEND, RECOMMENDED at their TEA-MART, at 4s. per lb. and after the 1st of June next, at 3s. 8d. per lb. Strachan and Co. are now selling the finest family Teas to be had. Cake to all parts of London daily.—Strachan and Co., purchasers only direct from importers.

ORIGINAL AND SUPERIOR ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES, SAUCES, PICKLES, and CATSUP, as supplied by JOHN OF DUNDEE and Co., 2, Queen-street, Cheapside, and other shops of repute, London.

SELECT PLANTS, Post-free at the annexed prices:—12 superb varieties, Fuchsias, 3s.; 12 varieties, Verbenas, 3s.; 12 Dwarf Lobelias, 1s.; 12 varieties, Pansies, 4s.—JOHN H. WARD, Florist, Ealing, Middlesex.

KING and CO., SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, have the Largest and Cheapest Stock of the NEW SPRING SILKS, NEW SPRING and SUMMER FABRICS, SHAWLS, MANTLES, &c., all bought previous to the late advance. Patterns sent post-free to all parts of the World.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

MADE-UP DEPARTMENT. An elegant variety of Trimmed Dresses in all the latest designs, commencing at 16s. 9d., with materials and trimming for bodice.

MANTLE DEPARTMENT. Silk Mantles, Jackets, and Paletots in great variety, commencing at 1 guinea.
Light and fancy Summer Cloth Jackets and Paletots, in the newest shapes, commencing at 15s. 9d.
Opera Mantles in all the new summer fabrics.
Address to KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

£35,763 BLACK SILKS, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

Black Glacé Silks, £1 5s. 6d. the Full Dress of 14 yards
Black Ducapes	£1 7s. 6d.	the Full Dress.
Black Gros Grains	1 10s. 6d.	"
Black Corded Silks	1 15s. 6d.	"
Black Reversible Broché Silks	1 17s. 6d.	"
Black Drap de France	2 2s. 6d.	"
Black Drap de Lyon	2 5s. 6d.	"
Widows' Silks	2 10s. 6d.	"
Richest Black Moire Antiques	£3 3s. 6d.	"

Patterns sent post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

NEW SPRING and SUMMER DRESSES at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

Spring Cashmeres	8s. 9d.	the Full Dress.
Marie Glacés	10s. 6d.	"
French Glacé Lawns	12s. 6d.	"
New French Camlets	12s. 9d.	"
Wool Grenadines	13s. 9d.	"
Marie Poplinettes	16s. 6d.	"
Broché Silk Grenadines	17s. 6d.	"
The New Cameleon Cloth	£1 5s. 6d.	"
Real Irish Poplins	£1 15s. 6d.	"
N.B.—A large Lot of Last Year's Muslins	5s. 0d.	"
The New Organdie Muslins	10s. 6d.	"

Patterns sent post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

NEW SPRING SILKS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.
First Delivery.
Striped Silks, £1 1s. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Checked Silks, £1 5s. 6d.
Tartan Silks, £1 7s. 6d.
Corded Silks, £1 10s. 6d.
Gros Grains, £1 15s. 6d.
Broché Reversible Silks, £1 17s. 6d.
New Crossbar Silks, £2 2s. 0d.
Corded Drap de France, £2 10s. 6d.
Richest Moire Antiques, £3 13s. 6d.
Patterns sent post-free.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

By Appointment to the Queen, her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, and H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY would respectfully announce that great saving may be made by purchasing Mourning at their Establishment, the Stock of Family Mourning being the largest in Europe. Mourning Costume, of every description, is kept ready made, and can be forwarded—town or country—at a moment's notice. The most reasonable prices are charged, and the wear of every article guaranteed.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, Regent-street, near the Circus.
JAYS'.

SILKS.—Paris taste and fashion have declared Black and White, and White and Black, to be the reigning colours in dress for the present season.
Messrs. Jay have, in consequence, imported the most elegant patterns in these varieties; and they can now supply their patrons and the public with the finest materials for such Dresses.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

MILLINERY FASHIONS.—Paris taste has not yet decided on the particular Bonnet Shape of the season. A new style, with very high crown, named the Empire, is much in vogue; whilst the more quiet and smaller shapes are worn by many ladies of distinction. The Manager of the Millinery Department at Messrs. JAYS' has just returned, after her second visit to Paris this season, with the latest Novelties in French Millinery.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

TAFFETA D'ITALIE.—Messrs. JAY have just imported this new Material for Black Dresses, which is as rich in texture as it is irresistible in substance. For durability in wear, proportionate economy in price, and richness in appearance, Taffeta d'Italie will stand unrivalled among new fabrics.
JAYS'
LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

AMOTT'S CHEAP SILKS. Patterns free.
500 pieces Black Silks, 18s. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, £1 5s. 6d., worth 2 guineas.
Rich Black Lyons Silks, 1½ guinea.
Rich Black Poult de Soies, £1 15s. 6d.
Rich Black Drap de Lyon, £1 19s. 6d.
The new Gros de Soie, £2 5s.
Hundreds of Moire Antiques, £1 19s. 6d., worth 4 guineas.
Amott's Silk Warehouses, St. Paul's-churchyard.

AMOTT'S CHEAP SILKS. Patterns free.
Moire Antiques, any colour, very handsome, 3 guineas, unequalled under £5.
Rich Lyons Taffeta and Broché Silks, £1 18s. 6d. to 3½ guineas.
Thousands of Wedding Silks, very new, £1 5s. 6d. to 5 guineas.
Hundreds of Fancy Silks, last year's patterns, are selling from 1 to 2 guineas, worth £3.
Amott's Silk Warehouses, St. Paul's-churchyard.

AMOTT'S CHEAP SILKS. Patterns free.
Quantities of New Check Silks, for Young Ladies, £1 5s. 6d., £1 7s. 6d., and £1 9s. 6d.
Rich Coloured Ottoman Corded Silks, 1½ guinea, in appearance worth £5.
All the New and Pretty Patterns.
Also the New Colours in Glacé, Taffeta, and Armoires, £1 13s. 6d., £1 18s., and £2 5s.
Plain Glacés in thirty New Shades, 2s. 6½d. per yard.
Amott's Silk Warehouses, St. Paul's-churchyard.

AMOTT'S CHEAP SILKS. Patterns free.
An immense Stock of French Fancy Silks, all at 2 guineas, worth £3.
Rich Broché and Chéné Glacés and Antiques, 3 guineas to 5 guineas.
Fashionable Silks in New Styles, very elegant, 2½ to 4½ guineas.
All the new Made-up Silk Skirts and Jackets, 2½ to 15 guineas.
Amott's Silk Warehouses, 61 and 62, St. Paul's-churchyard.

AMOTT'S BLACK SILKS Extraordinary, Bright, Wide, and Durable, for One Sovereign.
AMOTT'S SILK WAREHOUSES, 61 and 62, St. Paul's-churchyard.

SEWELL and CO'S NEW SPRING SILKS, in every design and colour, 2½, 3, and 3½ guineas the Full Dress. MOIRES ANTIQUES, in all the new colours, 4½ guineas the Full Dress.—Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square, W.

FRENCH PRINTED MUSLINS.—SEWELL and CO. have purchased from the Compagnie Lyonaise, Paris, upwards of 1000 printed muslin dresses. The high reputation of their goods needs no comment. Prices 1s. to 1s. 6d. per yard. Original price 3 f. and 3f. 50c. per metre.
Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSES, by appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.
117, 119, and 127, Regent-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Yachting Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, and Hose. Serges, Fine Tweeds, and Linsey Woolseys for Ladies' Travelling and Seaside Dresses.
Patterns forwarded free.

MARRIAGE TROUSSEAUX and LAYETTES.—CHRISTIAN and RATHBONE respectfully solicit an inspection of their extensive and recherché Stock, combining Parisian taste with the excellence and durability of material for which their House has been noted for upwards of seventy years.
Christian and Rathbone, 11, Wigmore-street, W.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S. Patterns free.

Last year's Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks at	£1 5s. 6d.	Full Dress.
The New Spring Silks	£1 13s. 6d.	"
The New Rich Fancy French Silks	£2 2s. 0d.	"

Neat, useful, and recherché Silks for Young Ladies, from £1 7s. 6d. Full Dress.
198, Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S. Patterns free.
Rich Corded Silks (same both sides), £1 13s. 6d. Full Dress, or 2s. 9½d. the yard.—198, Regent-street.

MOHAIRS, Camlets, Mexican Glacés, &c. Patterns free.
The New Mohairs, and Camlets, 8s. 9d. to 15s. 6d.; Mexican Cloths, Poplinettes, &c., 12s. 6d. to 1 guinea, Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

WOOL EMBROIDERED MUSLINS, 8s. 9d. Full Dress.—BAKER and CRISP are now selling a Manufacturer's Stock of White and Coloured Embroidered Muslin Dresses at the above price; every Dress worth double. Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free, Invisible HAIR NETS, in any colour; the new Floss Silk Hair Nets, 1s. 6d.; Chenille ditto, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

BAKER AND CRISP'S

BLACK SILKS of extraordinary brightness and durability. Patterns free.
Good Black Gros de Naples (the old make), 29s. 6d. Full Dress; Spitalfields Gros Grains (wear warranted), 39s. 6d. to 55s. Bright Lyons Glacés, 2 guineas to £5.—198, Regent-street.

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS, Barèges, Balzarines, Grenadines, Mohairs, &c., at half the original cost. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

CURTAINS! CURTAINS! CURTAINS! Samples free.
BAKER and CRISP have the cheapest stock of Muslin, Lace, and Leno Curtains in London, measuring from 3½ to 4½ yards long, from 6s. 9d. to 2 guineas the Pair.

2 YARDS WIDE, THE UNTEARABLE

BLACK GRENADINES, Barèges, Tamataves; also the New White and Black Llamas, 2 yards wide, for Shawls, Mantles, or Dresses, very cheap. Patterns free.

GRENADINES. Patterns free. Plain, Striped, Checked, and Embroidered, for Dinner, Evening, or Walking Dresses, from 12s. 6d. to 1 guinea Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

1500 BLACK LACE SHAWLS at Half Price.
During May we shall sell Black Lace Shawls that are worth 1, 2, and 3 guineas for 12s. 6d., 19s. 6d., and 25s. 6d.
Samples free.
BAKER and CRISP.

BAKER AND CRISP'S

NEW CHÉNÉ MEXICAN CLOTHS. Patterns free.
The largest variety in the kingdom, 15s. 6d. Full Dress.

MOURNING.—Untearable Black Barèges, Grenadines, &c., 12s. 6d. Full Dress. The New Crape Laine, Tamataves, Muslins, Mohairs, &c., from 8s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

15,000 YARDS PURE ALPACAS, all at 1s. 0½d. yard; worth 1s. 6d. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

RUMCHUNDER and TUSSORE SILKS, for Ladies Dresses, Suits, &c.; any length cut; from 25s. 6d. to 2½ guineas the Full Dress. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

MUSLINS! MUSLINS! MUSLINS! The best Selection, the finest goods, and the cheapest in London. Patterns Free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

MUSLIN JACKETS, 4s. 9d. BAKER and CRISP'S new Muslin Jackets are now ready in great Variety, from 4s. 9d. to 10s. 6d. each.
198, Regent-street.

FOULARDS! FOULARDS! FOULARDS! PATTERNS FREE.
We have just purchased from Lyons 20,000 yards of the best Silk Foulards, and are now selling them considerably under the regular prices. Very best goods 35s. 6d. extra Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

OSTRICH FEATHERS, ROMAN PEARLS, &c.—10,000 White, Green, Blue, Straw, Violet, and Scarlet Ostrich Feathers, now selling at 2s. 9d., worth 4s. 6d. each. Also, a large Stock of best Roman Pearls and Vienna Beads, at half price. at BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

GLOVES! GLOVES! GLOVES! The best Alpine Kid, 1s. 6d. pair, Black, White, and Coloured. Sample for 2 extra stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

GLOVES! GLOVES! GLOVES! The world-wide noted Guinea Gloves, any size or colour, for Ladies or Gentlemen. 21s. dozen post-free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

GLOVES! GLOVES! GLOVES! Great reduction in the very best Paris. Every pair warranted. All at 2s. 6d. pair, any size or colour. Sample for two extra stamps. BAKER and CRISP.

N.B.—GENTLEMEN'S VERY BEST, 2s. 9d.

VALENCIENNES LACE, made with genuine linen thread, scarcely distinguishable from the real French. Very durable, and sold at one-tenth of the price. 4s. 6d. to 8s. 6d. dozen. Patterns free.
Sole Agents, BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THIS SEASON'S FASHIONS IN DRESS. LADIES and the PUBLIC visiting London are respectfully invited to inspect our STOCK of SPRING PURCHASES, consisting of all the LATEST NOVELTIES IN DRESS, of British and Foreign Manufacture.
RICH BLACK GLACES, GRO GRAINS, and DUCAPES, of the Best Manufactures.
FANCY SILKS in all the new Styles and Colours.
BONNET GLACES, SATINS, and TERRYS, in the newest Shades.
All the LATEST FASHIONS in JACKETS and MANTLES for Spring Wear.
Paisley, Cashmere, and Lace SHAWLS in all the latest Designs.
NEW POPELINES, Plain and Checked, 10s. 9d. and 12s. 9d. (much under the usual price).
Ribbons, Gloves, Hosiery, Trimmings, Haberdashery, Parasols, Ties, &c.
FAMILY AND COMPLIMENTARY MOURNING.
Drapers, Milliners, and Dressmakers supplied with cut lengths at Trade Price.
Matching Orders carefully and promptly attended to.
Patterns post-free.
Close on Saturdays at Five o'Clock.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., Wholesale and Retail Silkmercers, Drapers, &c., 77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard.

SANSFLECTUM CRINOLINES, 17s. 6d.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

THOMSON'S CRINOLINES, 12s. 6d.
"Beautiful shapes."—Court Circular.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

ONDINA or WAVED JUPONS, 18s. 6d.
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

CRINOLINES AND CORSETS. Illustrations, with some useful "Remarks," gratis and free.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

SMYTH'S MILLINERY ROOMS. Modes du Premier Empire, dernières nouveautés de Paris, 109, Oxford-street, and 276, Regent-street.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE, London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

LYONS LEVANTINE, a perfectly new Twilled Silk, made expressly to our order, and very suitable for Ladies' Morning Costumes, in most brilliant colours, £2 6s. 6d. the Full Dress, 14 yards, 25 in. wide; or any length cut.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS FOULARDS of the most improved manufacture, the wear of which cannot be surpassed. The most fashionable article for the present season for ladies' morning suits, including black and coloured grounds.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

CHÉNÉ SILKS. Now selling, 100 Pieces of rich French Chénés, £2 19s. 6d., or any length cut.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH FIGURED MOIRE ANTIQUES, 3½ and 4½ guineas the Full Dress of 14 yards. 27 inches wide.
Real Indian Tussores for Seaside Wear.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR SUMMER. New Colours in Rich Plain Silks, including our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, from £2 19s. 6d. to 5 guineas extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Just Imported,

5000 SILK DRESSES, made expressly to our order for this season, including every style for present fashion, from £1 15s. 6d. to 10 guineas extra Full Dress. Many of the above have been produced in new designs expressly for young ladies' wear.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Just purchased from France,

450 PIECES MOZAMBIQUE (otherwise Wool Grenadines, Silk Broché), the whole of which are now being sold at 12s. 6d. the Full Dress, in every variety of style.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Also on Sale a very large Purchase of

MEXICAN CLOTH DRESSES, consisting of Chenie grounds with Silk embroidery. In all colours, 21s. the extra Full Dress, being one half their value.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE

RICH SILK GRENADINES, adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses, 18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALL THE CHOICE DESIGNS IN

NEW ORGANDIE MUSLINS. British, French, and Swiss Printing, 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d., 12s. 6d. to 35s. the extra Full Dress.
An immense variety of patterns post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF

LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS. Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new. An endless variety of patterns (at the reduced price) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Now ready, all the New Patterns in

PRINTS, BRILLIANTS, and PIQUES, for Ladies' Morning Dresses.
An endless variety of patterns post-free.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

EVERY NEW COLOUR IN THE

ARABIAN GLACÉS, for Ladies' Dresses and Jackets complete.
A most useful and desirable fabric either for Walking or Travelling Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A Choice Assortment of the

NEW PRINTED ARABIAN GLACÉS, in every variety of style, either in white or coloured grounds from 14s. 6d. to 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

GINGHAMS and COLOURED LAWNS, for Ladies' travelling, morning, and seaside Dresses, 12s. 6d. the Dress, in plain colours, checks or stripes.
A large collection of Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE MOST DECIDED NOVELTY FOR THIS SPRING IS THE

SILK CRÈPE MEXICAN, a most elegant and useful fabric. In all the new colours, 28s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A CAREFULLY SELECTED VARIETY OF

CHEAP SUMMER DRESSES. A new series of colours in the Plain Mexican Cloth, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Also Striped, Checked, and Chéné ditto, 12s. 6d. to 18s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NEW SUMMER PETTICOATS. A choice assortment made, unmade, and by the yard.
New French and Sicilian Lawns, for Morning Dresses, in Plain, Striped, and Checked, all colours, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FAMILY MOURNING, MADE UP and Trimmed in the most correct and approved taste, may be obtained upon the most economical terms at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.
Goods sent free of charge for inspection to all parts of England, and Patterns to all parts of the world.
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
The largest Mourning Warehouse in Europe.
Peter Robinson's.

MILLINERY for MOURNING.—PARIS FASHIONS.—The novelties from Paris are now ready for inspection, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

PARIS FASHIONS.

MANTLES and JACKETS for MOURNING and otherwise.—The New Shapes, in elegant and graceful novelties, are now ready for inspection, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

NEW SPRING DRESSES.—PARIS FASHIONS.
The New and Beautiful Novelties are now ready for inspection at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

JUST RECEIVED FROM FRANCE,

HALF-MOURNING SILKS of New and very recherché character, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS.—Patterns free. Good useful Black Silks, from 35s. to 50s. the Dress.
Superior and most enduring qualities, from 3 to 6 guineas.
At PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

A NEW FABRIC.—The ROYAL BLACK SUMMER CASHMERE.—Ladies requiring a new and useful Black Dress are invited to write for patterns of this excellent material, which is exactly alike on both sides, to PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street.

UNTEARABLE

WIRE-GROUND BLACK GRENADINES and BAREGES. The improved makes introduced by PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street, excel all others for strength and beauty of finish.
May be obtained by the yard, or made up into Skirts.
Patterns free.
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 256 to 262, Regent-street.

DISPOSAL OF PREMISES.—REMOVAL OF BUSINESS.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—The Premises, 79, Gracechurch-street, having at length been disposed of, and the Valuable Stock having to be cleared out by the early part of June next, the whole has been reduced and is now selling at FULLY ONE HALF THE ORIGINAL COST; thus giving to customers such an opportunity of "buying cheap" that has seldom or ever presented itself.
Rich French and Paisley Shawls reduced from 6 to 3 guineas.
Rich and Fashionable Silks reduced from 10 to 5 guineas.
Mantles of the latest novelties reduced from 8 to 4 guineas.
Lace Shawls reduced from 4 to 2 guineas.
Beautiful Mousseline de Soie Dresses reduced to one half.
And all other goods reduced in the same proportion.
Observe the address,
JOSEPH ROBINSON (late HOWELL'S), 79, Gracechurch-street, City.

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg to announce that they have just received their second delivery of French Muslins, Cambrics, and Piques, including many novelties.
Piccadilly and Regent-street.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 2s. 6½d. the yard, made of bright Italian silk, with the guarantee for durability of eminent firms in Paris and Lyons. The Silk Department includes all the richest and most costly productions. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster-bridge, S.

BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELL have returned from Paris with their Elegant GUINEA BONNET, in Tulle, Crape, French Straws, &c. Show-rooms (no shop), 61, Regent-street (four doors from Swan and Edgar's).

BONNETS, ONE GUINEA, at Mrs. AXFORD'S, 51, Maddox-street, Bond-street, Milliner and Dressmaker. Wedding orders, outfits, and country orders punctually attended to. French Corsets, 12s. 6d.

THE "ARIEL" MANTLE, SHAWL, and SWISS MANTILLA.—These elegant Novelties for the present Season can be purchased only of FARMER and ROGERS, 171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street. India, China, French, Paisley, Norwich, and Fancy Shawls, from 1 guinea to 200 guineas.

IMPORTANT TO WOOLLEN BUYERS. Tailors and others desirous of saving 5 per cent every purchase, should go to JAMES PLATT and CO., 78, St. Martin's-lane, and 28 and 29, Cranbourn-st., who return to Cash Buyers 1s. out of 20s. N.B. Foreign Orders honestly, carefully, and promptly executed.

WOOLLEN STOCK. TO TAILORS AND WOOLLEN BUYERS.
We have bought by public tender the whole Stock of Messrs. Greenwell and Co., Blackfriars-road, amounting to £11,716 8s. 9d., and will SELL OFF the Woollen and Manchester Goods and Tailors' Trimmings on our own Premises, 111, Holborn-hill (corner of Hatton-garden), on THURSDAY NEXT, MAY 25, at fully one third less than Messrs. Greenwell's selling prices.
CHARLES MEEKING and CO., Woollen Warehouse, 111, Holborn-hill (corner of Hatton-garden), London.

FORD'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LIST, post-free.—Intending purchasers, who cannot favour us with a call, will find it of great assistance. It contains over forty drawings of shirts, shirt-collars, &c. All the new fashions are to be found in it.—R. Ford and Co., 38, Poultry, E.C.

FORD'S EUREKA COLOURED SHIRTS reduced to Six for 34s. 6d. Superior quality, and made expressly to measure; the new patterns to select from sent post-free.—R. Ford and Co., 38, Poultry, E.C.

A. FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair.—Solid Gold Lockets for Hair, from 5s. each; Hair Rings, from 6s. 6d.; Hair Alberts, from 25s. each, &c. Illustrated Catalogues sent free.—213, Regent-street, London.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, WATCHMAKERS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Bank). First-class Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements and maintaining power to continue going whilst being wound, recommended for accuracy and durability.

PRICES OF SILVER WATCHES.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds	4	14	6
Ditto, jewelled in four holes and capped	6	6	0
Ditto, the finest quality, jewelled in six holes	8	8	0
Silver Watches, in Hunting Cases, 10s. 6d. extra.
GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR LADIES.
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled	11	11	0
Ditto, with richly-engraved case	12	12	0
Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes	14	14	0
GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR GENTLEMEN.
Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, seconds, and capped	13	13	0
Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold balance	19	19	0
Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, £3 3s. extra.

List of prices with remarks on Watches, gratis and post-free.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE IVY LEAVES, for ornamenting Chimney-glasses, 18 stamps per set of 72 slips. Tissue for Stove Aprons, 8 stamps per packet; 6 for 40 stamps.—R. PETERS, Tovil, Maidstone.

EPSOM AND ASCOT RACES. PARASOLS AND SUNSHADES.
W. and J. SANGSTER respectfully solicit an inspection of their extensive assortment of Sunshades and Parasols, prepared expressly for these occasions, of the newest and most elegant designs.
140, Regent-street; 75, Cheapside.
N.B. Parasols adapted for Presents and Fêtes in great variety, at 140, Regent-street.

IF YOU TRAVEL send for BUSSEY SMITH and CO.'s Illustrated Catalogue of PORTMANTEAUS, Trunks, Travelling-bags. Also Field, Marine, and Opera Glasses, unrivalled for excellence, cheapness, and choice. 483, New Oxford-street, W.C.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Sole Proprietors, Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

MILK of ROSES—PIESSE and LUBIN. This exquisite Emulsion has been a favourite preserver of beauty for many years. It is the best and simplest remedy and preventive of sunburn and freckling. Be sure to ask for Piesse and Lubin's Milk of Roses. Sold by Fashionable Druggists and Perfumers. 2s. 6d. Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—Miss TALBOT, thirty years Lady's Maid in the highest circles of England, Paris, and Spain, will forward, on receipt of thirty stamps, full directions in the new and beautiful art of getting-up the FACE and EYES in the most brilliant style, with other recipes for the Toilette, standing unrivalled. Address, Miss Talbot, Folkingham, Lincolnshire.

LADIES NURSING.—ELAM'S NEW NIPPLE SHIELDS, for cracked or sore Nipples. Metallic ditto; Milk Receivers or Dress Preservers; Improved Breast Pumps; Enemas and Abdominal Belts.—196, Oxford-street.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN and SIMEON MOSELY and SONS, 30, Berners-st., Oxford-st., and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross-Railway Station). These teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet."—No connection with anyone of the same name.

WHITE and SOUND TEETH are indispensable to personal attraction, and to health and longevity, by the proper mastication of food.
ROWLANDS' ODONTO, OR PEARL DENTIFRICE, preserves and imparts a pearl-like whiteness to the Teeth, eradicates tartar and spots of incipient decay, strengthens the gums, and gives a pleasing fragrance to the breath. Price 2s. 9d. per box. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden; and by Chemists and Perfumers.
Ask for ROWLANDS' ODONTO.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

DR. DE JONGH'S (Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium) LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed by the most eminent medical men throughout the world as the safest, speediest, and most effectual remedy for CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, RICKETS, INFANTILE WASTING, AND ALL SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS, is incomparably superior to every other variety.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. LETHEBY,
Medical Officer of Health to the City of London.
"It is, I believe, universally acknowledged that Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil has great therapeutic power; and, from my investigations, I have no doubt of its being a pure and unadulterated article."

DR. LAWRANCE,
Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
"I invariably prescribe Dr. de Jongh's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, feeling assured that I am recommending a genuine article, and not a manufactured compound in which the efficacy of this invaluable medicine is destroyed."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s.; labelled with his stamp and signature, WITHOUT WHICH NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE, by respectable Chemists and Druggists.
Sole Consignees,
ANSAR, HARFORD and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W. C.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE. Produced at the Grand Opera of Paris, with the greatest success. Already published, the whole of the vocal music, with French words.

The Overture for Pianoforte, Solo, or Duet	..	4s.
Grand Indian March	..	4s.
Religious March	..	3s.
Bouquet de Melodies. By Cramer	..	5s.

The Italian and English versions are in the press, together with Pianoforte arrangements by Kuhe, Osborne, Richards, &c.; and Waltz and Quadrille by D. Godfrey and Coote.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by E. F. RIMBAULT. Price 1s. each.

No. 1. The Guards' Waltz.	No. 4. The Hunt Quadrille.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz.	No. 5. The Jockey Galop.
No. 3. The Orpheus Galop.	No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

N E W S O N G S.

The Lost Star	Wallace	3s. 0d.
The Sails are Spread	Brinley Richards	2s. 6d.
The Cottage Window	G. Russell	2s. 6d.
Syr Tankarde	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
White-Wings	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
Again I wander	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
I will not wander	Schumann	2s. 6d.
My lost youth	Walter Maynard	2s. 6d.
Part with forgiveness	Florence	2s. 6d.
The Cloister'd Nun	Louis Emanuel	2s. 6d.
Cantilène (for two voices)	Gounod	2s. 6d.
In Youth's Season	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Versar nel mio cor	Gounod	2s. 0d.
Our Starry Home	Ascher	2s. 6d.
Only thee	Linley	2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new Edition of this justly celebrated work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," including the Soldiers' Chorus, Valse, &c.; "The Guards' Waltz," and numerous other airs, arranged as progressive exercises, thus rendering it the cheapest and best Tutor extant. Price 4s., post-free.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S BROOKLET. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S GRAZIELLA. Romance Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "TWO BUDS." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S "ROLAND." A celebrated French War Song. Transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S TWO HUNGARIAN MELODIES for the Pianoforte.
No. 1. ELEGY. Price 2s. 6d.
No. 2. THE GIPSIES' MARCH. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MOZART'S CELEBRATED QUARTETS for Stringed Instruments arranged for the Pianoforte by E. PAUER. No. 1 in G; No. 2 in D Minor. Price 5s. each.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PARADE MARCH. Composed, in aid of the Guards' Industrial Home, by Mrs. D. M. DAVIDSON. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SERA. Venetian Gondola Song, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

J. F. BARNETT'S PASTORAL SCENE. A characteristic Piece for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 6 are now ready, price 3s. each; or the six numbers in one volume, bound in cloth, 12s. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, played by the Composer with immense success. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Stabat Mater"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50 New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY—Handel's celebrated Song, sung by Santley—transcribed for the Pianoforte, Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE VALSE. On Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE QUADRILLE. A new and charming Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE POLKA. On Airs from Offenbach's Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. A new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will eventually become as popular as the celebrated "Guards' Waltz," by the same Composer. Price 4s., Solo or Duet. Illustrated by Lynch. Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. A new Quadrille on favourite Nautical Melodies. Arranged by D. GODFREY, Composer of the "Guards'" and "Mabel" Waltzes. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MILL-GROVE WALTZ. A new Waltz by GERALD STANLEY (Composer of the "Woodland Whispers Waltz"). Illustrated. Price 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARGUERITE WALTZ. On favourite Airs from Gounod's "Faust." By A. F. GODFREY, B. M. Coldstream Guards. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's popular Opera, "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. GODFREY. Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 4s. Illustrated.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop, from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s. Illustrated. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

THE GUARDS' QUADRILLE. By the Composer of The Guards' Waltz. Just published, a new Quadrille on Popular Marches of the Brigade of Guards. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE. — PIANOFORTE ARRANGEMENTS of the new grand Opera published by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CALLCOTT'S AFRICAINE. — Meyerbeer's last great Opera. The favourite Airs, in three books, Solos and Duets arranged for the Pianoforte by W. HUTCHINS CALLCOTT.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE, on Meyerbeer's new Opera, performed for the first time at Her Majesty's State Ball, May 17. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

GODFREY'S AFRICAINE WALTZ, on Meyerbeer's New Opera. Price 4s. Illustrated.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CRAMER'S AFRICAINE BOUQUET DE MELODIES, on Meyerbeer's Opera. Price 5s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S AFRICAINE. Grande Marche Indienne, from Meyerbeer's New Opera, arranged for the Piano by Brinley Richards. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S NEW SONG, "I cannot sing the old songs." Composed expressly for her by CLARIBEL, and introduced for the first time, with remarkable success, at Mdme. Sainton-Dolby's concert, May 15.

"I cannot sing the old songs,
I sung long years ago,
For heart and voice would fail me,
And foolish tears would flow."

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. CLARIBEL'S new Song, composed for Mdme. Sainton-Dolby. Published this day by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MELVIL CASTLE. Old Scotch Ballad. Newly arranged by Mrs. CAMPBELL, of Drimnamuchloch.

"Willie's gane to Melvil Castle, boots and spurs, an a',
To bid farewell to the leddies fair, afore he gaed awa."

Price 2s. 6d. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MELVIL CASTLE. — Notice. — The only correct Edition of this very popular old Ballad, with the genuine Music, is that edited by Mrs. CAMPBELL, and just published by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

New Edition of

MARION'S SONG by CLARIBEL. This highly-popular Song will in future be published exclusively by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

FOR OPEN AIR SINGING.

MENDELSSOHN'S 26 FOUR-PART SONGS (Op. 41, 48, 49, 50), with English words complete, price 1s., cloth gilt. Also, for Choral Societies, in 12 Numbers, One Penny each.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW SONG.

THE MESSAGE OF LOVE. Valse Ariette. 3s. Also, with Italian words, "La Messaggier a d'Amore." 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ARDITI'S L'OROLOGIO, New Scherzo, with Italian words, 3s., or English words, "Tic tic," 3s.; also for the Pianoforte, 3s. This charming polka movement promises to become as popular as "Il Bacio." It has been sung (with unfailing encores) by Mdlle. Volpini and Mdlle. Carlotta Patti.
BOOSEY and Co.

M. BLUMENTHAL'S New Song, THE CHILDREN'S KINGDOM. Composed for Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, and sung by her for the first time at her concert, May 15. Two editions may be had, with the original and a simplified accompaniment. It is also in the press for the pianoforte.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S SCOTCH PIECES.
Souvenirs d'Edinburgh, 6th Edition. 4s.
Souvenirs d'Ecosse. 12th Edition. 4s.
Auld Robin Gray and Bonnie Dundee. 4th Edition. 4s.
Annie Laurie. 2nd Edition. 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE AUTHOR OF "SALOPIA."

HIBERNIA. By Miss HAWLEY. A new, fanciful, and elegant transcription of "The Last Rose of Summer," for the Pianoforte. Published this day. Price 3s. Also, by the same Author,
SALOPIA. "Home, Sweet Home." (20th Edition.) 2s. 6d.
IVANHOE. "Auld Robin Grey." (3rd Edition.) 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MOZART'S SONATAS, 10s. 6d. BOOSEY and CO.'S new and complete Edition, printed from newly-engraved plates, and edited by W. Dorrell, Esq., of the Royal Academy of Music. In one vol., paper cover, price 10s. 6d. Also, with Memoir and Portrait of Mozart, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt, price 16s.; or, half morocco, gilt edges, price 18s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

HENRY SMART'S IMPERIAL MASS of HAYDN (No. 3, in D), arranged in a complete form for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. Published this day.
Also, uniform with the above,
HENRY SMART'S STABAT MATER (of Rossini). 3s.
HENRY SMART'S TWELFTH MASS (of Mozart). 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MUSICAL PRESENTATION LIBRARY, Holles-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bound works excepted).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF

OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! The great Christy Song. Price 2s. 6d. (Creating a perfect furore)—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG,

THE WEEPIN' WILLER; or, The Miller's Daughter, price 2s. 6d., is the best comic song published.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A MOST AMUSING COMIC SONG.

HAVE YOU SEEN HER LATELY. Price 2s. 6d. Sung by Albert Steele.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT THE ADELPHI.

J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS.

Bob Simmons's Courtship	3s.
He, She, and the Postman	3s.
A Norrible Tale	3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A COMIC VERSION OF

THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by BALFE, price 3s., causes shouts of laughter.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER WALTZ. 4s. With a superb Illustration in Colours.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. Price 3s. This celebrated Galop eclipses all the others, and is the reigning favourite.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S CADIZ QUADRILLE. Price 4s. A beautiful Quadrille on Spanish Melodies.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED.

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Watercresses," "Have you seen the Ghost?" "Polly Perkins," &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

COOTE'S NEW CALEDONIANS, with the Figures. Price 4s. One of the best quadrilles ever published by this popular dance composer, and will be sure to take its place with the celebrated Cure Lancers by the same Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE on the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Bedford, comprising "He, She, and the Postman," "Jolly Nose," "The Whistling Song," "Married on Wed-nes-day," and "A Norrible Tale." Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. A real merry set. No dance programme complete without them. Always redemanded.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

Music Warehouse, 201, Regent-street.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207, Regent-street.

MESSRS. CRAMER and CO. (Limited) have lately published the following Compositions:—

I.—FOR VOICE.

GOUNOD—"For lack of gold he left me." Sung by Titiens. In A and G	3s. 0d.
" "Hero to Leander." An exquisite Song	3s. 0d.
" "The Lark Song." Vocal Waltz	4s. 0d.
ARDITI—"Oh, touch the ivory keys again!"	3s. 0d.
" Beauty Sleep (L'Ardita)	3s. 0d.
" Dream of Home (Bacio)	3s. 0d.
" Gondolier's Last Good-night	3s. 0d.
WALLACE—Bird of the Wild Wing	3s. 0d.
V. GABRIEL—Little Golden Hair	3s. 0d.
" Breeze and the Harp	3s. 0d.
BALFE—She sleeps! though not a star	3s. 0d.
" Ah, could I but re-live the past!	3s. 0d.
ASCHER—The Cavalier's Steed. In E and C	3s. 0d.
BENEDICT—My Home in Cloudland. In D and B	3s. 0d.
MORI—Sunshine of love	3s. 0d.
" Maid of the silver mail	3s. 0d.
NICOLAI—The Happy Dawn of Day	3s. 0d.
RANDEGGER—"Round with her, boys! Yo-ho!" In C, B, and G	3s. 0d.
" Innamorata d'una stella. Aria	2s. 6d.
" La luna è bella. Aria	2s. 6d.
DELAMERE—My Lady's glove	3s. 0d.
LEVEY—Coo! says the gentle dove. In G and F	3s. 0d.
" Hurrah for the Bombardier! In A and F	3s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—The celebrated "Leah's Song." In E, D, and C	3s. 0d.
" "The Chieftain's Wife."	3s. 0d.
" "In the hour of my distress." Sacred Song	3s. 0d.
PERRING—Beware!	2s. 6d.
MACFARREN—I've watched him	3s. 0d.
" Wear this flow'r	3s. 0d.
" Duet: Ne'er yield thy soul	3s. 0d.
ROBERTI—Duet: Faintly flow	3s. 0d.
" Child's Vision. Duet. S.C.	3s. 0d.
VERDI—"Swiftly thro' the West." Boat Song.	3s. 0d.
LOCHIEL—The Covenanter's Bridal	3s. 0d.
" Heather Bell	3s. 0d.
FARNIE—A Happy Song	3s. 0d.
ARTHUR SKETCHLEY (as sung by)—The Twin Brothers. A Song of Mystery. With Portrait.	3s. 0d.
MAGAZZARI—Taci non d'irmi. Arietta	2s. 6d.
CAPT. COLOMB—"Up the Alma's Height"	3s. 0d.
W. VINCENT WALLACE—"A holy calm, a peace divine," the companion song to "Sweet Spirit"	3s. 0d.
REICHARDT—The Haunting Thought	3s. 0d.

II.—PIANOFORTE PIECES.

WALLACE—Prelude and scherzo	5s. 0d.
GOUNOD—Four songs without words, each	3s. 0d.
ASCHER—Chant des Naiades	5s. 0d.
BLUMENTHAL—La Stella	3s. 6d.
" Téré, Téré	3s. 6d.
" Les Ailes	4s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—"Wear this flower" (Helvellyn)	2s. 6d.
" Cujus animam. Solo, 4s.; Duet	4s. 0d.
" "Leah." Transcription	3s. 0d.
FAVARGER—Stradella Fantaisie	3s. 6d.
" Masaniello ditto	4s. 0d.
" Pandora. Bluette de Salon	3s. 0d.
MRS JOSEPH ROBINSON—Elf-Land	4s. 0d.
" A Dream	3s. 0d.

III.—DANCE MUSIC.

MONTGOMERY—Starry Night Mazurka	3s. 0d.
DE VILLIERS—Donato Galop	4s. 0d.
" Donato Quadrille	4s. 0d.
" Poppies Red Valse	4s. 0d.
CLARKE—Witches' Own Galop	3s. 0d.
COOTE—Merry Wives' Quadrille	4s. 0d.
" She Stoops to Conquer, ditto	4s. 0d.
MARRIOTT—Helivellyn Galop	4s. 0d.
" " Waltzes	4s. 0d.
" " Quadrille	4s. 0d.
" Dark Eyes Valse	3s. 0d.
GIORZA—Limited Liability Galop	4s. 0d.
GODFREY—Coldstream Guards Quadrille	4s. 0d.
WARREN—River Sprite Quadrille	3s. 0d.
" Sleeping Queen Quadrille	3s. 0d.
D'ALEMBERT—Woman in Mauve. Waltz	4s. 0d.
" Wild Irish Girl. Galop	4s. 0d.

MR. SIMS REEVES'S NEW SONG.

LADY HILDRED. New Tenor Scena, especially composed for Mr. Sims Reeves by BALFE. Price 4s.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

Specially prepared Lists of Vocal and Instrumental Music on application.

ALL NEW MUSIC SENT AT HALF-PRICE.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

For the Pianoforte Department, see other advertisements.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted for hot climates and to keep well in tune, from Two guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANO, price 17 guineas, in a walnut case, full compass. This instrument is confidently recommended as the best cheap piano before the public. The touch and tone are alike excellent, and the workmanship is of the best description.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO has the Check Action, and is in a highly-finished elegant walnut case, with every mod. improvement. The touch is elastic, and the tone of that pure rich quality that especially distinguishes first-class English pianos.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage English Piano, and no better can be desired. It is in a richly ornamented case, has the registered keyboard, as well as the new grand compass of seven octaves.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S HARMONIUMS with DAWES'S PATENT MELODY ATTACHMENT.—By the addition of this ingenious but simple piece of mechanism, placed inside a Harmonium and applied by means of an ordinary stop, the highest note of any chord is made to sound with great power and to produce a distinct melody, as though emanating from another Instrument. This new effect is obtained without any exertion on the part of the performer, and the result is a variety of tone which must effectually overcome any prejudices that have hitherto existed against the Harmonium on account of its monotonous character. For leading public worship this new stop will be found invaluable.
Anticipating much popularity for this new invention, Boosey and Co. have obtained a license to apply it to any of their Harmoniums at a moderate cost. It can also be attached to Harmoniums now in use. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, London.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded).—A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Yachts, Boudoirs, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 26 guineas. A great variety may be seen at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the pure English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as the above makers', and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in every respect to other instruments at 50 guineas, price 35 guineas; in walnut, 40 guineas.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side (and hired with option of purchase) at the new Show-rooms of CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. Messrs. Chappell strongly recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte at or about the same price, whether new or secondhand.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 60 guineas; other varieties at 25 and 35 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues and Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and in oak case. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak case, 32 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited)
LET on HIRE the following PIANOFORTES for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—

24-guinea Pianette, in rosewood or walnut.	10 guineas per annum.
40-guinea Drawing-room Model Cottage, rosewood or walnut	15 guineas per annum.
60-guinea Semi-oblique, rosewood or walnut	20 guineas per annum.

Every instrument is warranted of the very best manufacture, inferior Pianofortes being entirely excluded from the stock.
Quarterly payments are required.

PIANOFORTE GALLERY
(the Largest in Europe),
207 and 209, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) Let on Hire the following Harmoniums for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—

24-guinea, 7-stop, in oak, rosewood, or walnut	2 guineas per quarter.
36-guinea, 11-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut	3 guineas per quarter.
48-guinea, 13-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut	4 guineas per quarter.
60-guinea, 19-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut	5 guineas per quarter.

Every instrument is warranted, by Debain, of Paris, and of the very best manufacture.
Quarterly payments are required.

HARMONIUM GALLERY,
201, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM, as above detailed, is extended to all parts of the United Kingdom.

CRAMER'S ENGLISH PIANETTE.—22 guineas in polished ash, 26 and 28 guineas in rosewood or walnut. Double, or Check, Action, agreeable tone, solid touch; rendering it far superior to old instruments, loose in the key and worn in the hammer.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-st.

BROADWOODS' NEW DRAWING-ROOM GRAND, 135 guineas in rosewood, and 165 in walnut. These extremely elegant and much-admired Instruments are sold at the manufacturer's prices, and are selected with the greatest care. They may be bought on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARDS' NEW BOUDOIR GRAND, 135 guineas in rosewood, and 150 in walnut. These powerful and remarkably effective pianofortes may be bought on the three-years' system.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARDS' NEW SEMI-GRAND 110 guineas. The largest selection in town at the Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, London.

PLEYEL and CO., of Paris, have appointed CRAMER and CO. (Limited) their Sole Agents for England. PIANOFORTES by this eminent firm may now be had for Sale or Hire. Prices, from 50 to 200 guineas.
Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-st.

ERARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS, 135 guineas in rosewood, 155 in walnut. Perfect specimens of these celebrated instruments—almost equal in power to the largest grand—in stock, and may be purchased on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES of every class and size, from the smallest pianette to the most elaborate oblique, and by all the best makers, constantly in stock, and may be purchased on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

BROADWOODS' at CRAMER'S.

COLLARDS' at CRAMER'S.

ERARD'S at CRAMER'S.

KIRKMAN'S at CRAMER'S.

PLEYEL'S at CRAMER'S.

70 TO 80 GRANDS by the above eminent makers, at prices from 105 to 280 guineas, always on stock at the Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

INDIAN PIANOFORTE.—A superior upright Pianoforte, in solid mahogany, especially made with metallic bracings, &c., for extreme climates, delivered free on board, packed in zinc, for 50 guineas.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S PIANETTES. These favourite Instruments are now in stock at the Pianoforte Gallery, 207, Regent-street, in the following variety of case and mounting, viz.:—

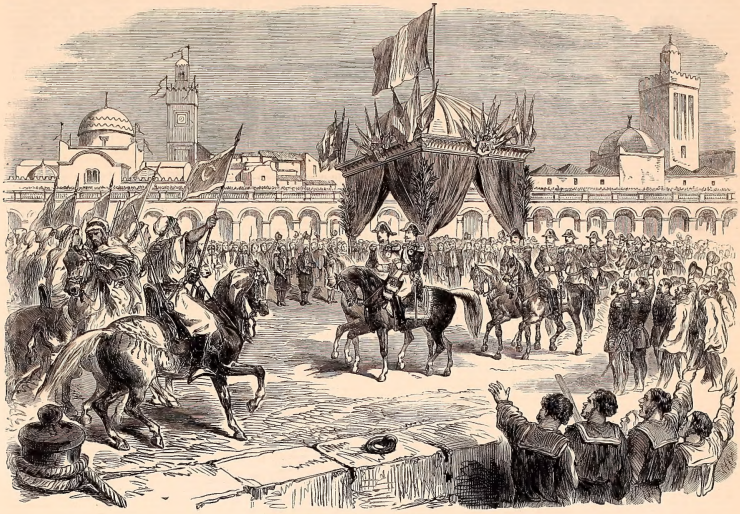
	Guineas.
In Ash	22
In Black Walnut	25
In Figured Walnut	28
In Rosewood	28
In Ebony	28
In Rosewood, with Albert Fall	30
In Burr Walnut, with Albert Fall	34
Ditto, with Trusses	38
In Pollard Oak ditto	42
In Maple and Gold, Albert Fall and Trusses	45
In Figured Cedar, with do. do.	45
In Satinwood and Gold, with do. do.	48
In Coromandel and Gold, with do. do.	50
In Amboyna and Gold, with do. do.	52

[The folding-up keyboard is fitted to any of these instruments at an extra charge of 5 guineas.]

FOR INDIA.	Guineas.
In Solid Mahogany, packed in Zinc and Shipped	40
Ditto, with Folding-up Keyboard	45

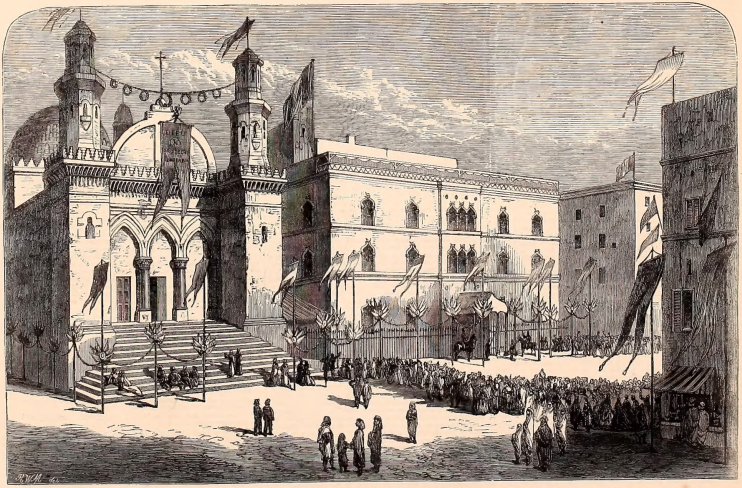
CRAMER and CO. (Limited) have been induced, from the very extensive popularity attained by their Pianettes, to manufacture them in the various styles enumerated above. In addition, the ornamentation and patterns of the cases are varied artistically, to match the instruments with suites of furniture, when that is desired. Their Pianettes are, without doubt, amongst the most perfect instruments in tone, touch, and durability ever made in this country; and are all fitted, not with the common, but with the improved, check action. Thus Cramer and Co. are now enabled to offer an instrument sterling in quality without being expensive, and elegant in shape and design without being rococo or unsubstantial.

CRAMER'S THREE YEARS' SYSTEM, by which the term of payment for a Pianoforte is extended over Three Years, applies to ALL the above MODELS.



THESE PIANOFORTES may be ORDERED through Country Dealers; but if any difficulty be experienced, CRAMER and CO. will forward them direct.

PIANOFORTE GALLERY, 207 and 209, Regent-street.



CRAMER and CO.'S NEW ARTISTS' CONCERTINAS, selected by Mr. Richard Blagrove, 48 Keys, 12 gs.; 55 Keys, 16 gs.—201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) have a large Stock of secondhand ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by the most eminent Makers, at greatly reduced prices.—201, Regent-street.

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH TO ALGERIA.

RECEPTION OF THE EMPEROR ON THE QUAY AT ALGIERS.

RESIDENCE OF THE EMPEROR AT ALGIERS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE VISIT OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON TO ALGIERS.

We have commissioned an artist well known to the readers of this Journal, M. Mariani, of Paris, to go to Algiers for the special purpose of supplying us with a series of Illustrations of the visit of the Emperor Napoleon III. to that province of the French empire. The interest belonging to the scenes and spectacles presented by the progress of his Majesty through the Algerine territory, and by the ceremonial reception with which he is greeted at each important place in his route, will be enhanced by the picturesque variety of costumes and attitudes among the mixed African, Oriental, and European population of the country, as well as by the peculiar scenery and architecture of Algiers. Several of the sketches made by our Special Artist during the first week of May have already come to hand. We have engraved two of them for this Number of our publication. The first Illustration shows the scene upon the quay of Algiers immediately after the Emperor's landing, on Wednesday morning, the 3rd inst. His Majesty, after receiving the loyal addresses of the Government officials and municipality of Algiers, which were read to him in the pavilion erected on the quay, mounted his horse and rode to the palace of the Governor, where he was to dwell during his abode in that city. The troop of horsemen shown on the left-hand side of the Engraving are the goums, a body of irregular cavalry who serve as a kind of National Guard in the interior districts of the province, and who had been brought down to the port of Algiers in order to appear on the arrival of the Emperor. They are drawn up in line of battle, holding their small flags in their hands. Amongst the peculiarities of their dress and equipment we may notice the huge sabre which is carried beneath the saddle, laid across horizontally, instead of being hung at the horseman's side. The subject of our second Illustration is a view of the Governor's Palace, on the Place Malakhoff, and the adjacent Cathedral of Algiers. The Emperor showed himself at one of the windows of the palace, on the second floor, acknowledging, by a gracious salute, the hearty acclamations of the people. This palace, which is a Moorish building, was formerly the residence of Hassan Pacha, but has undergone a complete transformation since it became the head-quarters of the French Government of Algiers. The whole of the façade and the entrance portal are the work of the architects of the French War Office; but the interior, which preserves its original form, displaying an open court surrounded by a portico, with a fountain and some green plants in the centre, is handsomely fitted up. The cathedral, or Church of St. Philip, stands on the site of an ancient mosque, which was demolished because it was too small for the number of Mussulman worshippers. We shall give a View of the City of Algiers in a future Impression.

OPENING OF THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

A View of the exterior of the Dublin Exhibition building, with an account of the proceedings on Tuesday week, when the Exhibition was formally opened by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, appeared in the last Number of this Journal. The large Engraving which occupies the two middle pages of this Number displays the imposing scene in the interior when the proclamation of opening the Exhibition was made by Sir Bernard Burke, Ulster King-of-Arms, at the Prince's command. This ceremony took place upon the return of the procession which had escorted his Royal Highness (after the presentation of the addresses by the Duke of Leinster, Mr. Gilbert Sanders, and the Lord Mayor) along the eastern transept and through the principal galleries of the Exhibition Palace, returning by way of the Entrance Hall, or Sculpture Hall, to the dais in the centre of the nave, where a sort of canopy or pavilion had been erected for the Prince and the other illustrious personages with him. The Duke of Cambridge and the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, with Lady Wodehouse, stood nearest the Prince of Wales; the members of the Exhibition and Winter Garden Committee, with Mr. H. Parkinson, the comptroller and secretary, being assembled on his left hand. The chorus of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," with the accompaniment of a full orchestra and organ, was performed with grand effect; after which his Royal Highness called upon Ulster King-of-Arms to come forth and declare the Exhibition open. This having been done, rockets were sent up from the pleasure-ground, and then followed Royal salutes fired from the Pigeon-house Fort, from the battery in the Park, and from H.M.S. Royal George and the other vessels in the harbour, announcing "the opening" to the public. Handel's grand Hallelujah Chorus was then performed by the orchestra: it was followed by the National Anthem. The whole of the musical performances were conducted by Mr. Joseph Robinson. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, the Lord Lieutenant, and Lady Wodehouse then left the building amid loud and enthusiastic cheers. The Engraving on our front page represents the passage of the procession through the Sculpture Hall. We must reserve till a future opportunity our notice of the contents of this department, and other features of the Exhibition.

THE BALL AT THE MANSION HOUSE.

The ball given by the Lord Mayor of Dublin, the Right Hon. John Barrington, at the Mansion House, on the evening of the day of opening the Exhibition, was one of the most brilliant and successful entertainments of its kind ever known in that city. About three thousand invitations had been granted, and there was ample accommodation for all the guests. Since the Mansion House was last opened for a similar reception considerable improvements had been effected in the internal arrangements; and not the least important of these was the building of a new supper-room, in continuation of the apartment known as the Sheriffs' Room, with which it communicates by large folding doors. This new room, which is of great extent, and admirably adapted for its purpose, had been richly carpeted and furnished. By means of folding doors it at once leads into the King's Room, so as to remedy all the inconveniences formerly experienced, the approaches to the ball-room being now by three direct and spacious avenues—the one on the left hand of the entrance by the drawing-room and Oak Room; the second, by the large centre hall and corridors, right through the building; and another on the right hand, by the new room, as we have described. The Round Room itself had undergone a restoring and decorating process, and when brilliantly lit up—as shown in our Illustration—presented a very gay and animated appearance. The dome roof had been tastefully divided into compartments, panelled and ornamented in the Italian style, the centre of each being of a blue tint, relieved with delicate white tracery. These were divided by stiles of buff colour, painted in various lines, having a gold star for a finial, and producing a pleasing and dazzling effect. The cornice and frieze were ornamented with a handsome scroll pattern, in various tints, all round the room, under which ran a fringe of gas jets which illuminated the apartment. Opposite the principal entrance was a magnificent canopy, draped in velvet hangings, with a background of plate glass. This formed the central object on the dais, furnished with superb gilt chairs of state for his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, Lady Wodehouse, and the other distinguished guests. Immediately over the canopy and the several entrances were arranged a number of devices in coloured transparencies, consisting of Royal arms, Prince of Wales's plume, and other appropriate designs, all of which were brilliantly illuminated with gas. A number of mirrors in richly gilt frames were suspended around the walls of the room, and the various entrances were handsomely hung with rich velvet hangings, festooned with gold cord and tassels. In different parts of the room were ottomans, sofas, and lounges of every form, for the accommodation of the company. The Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Lord Lieutenant, Lady Wodehouse, the Duke of Cambridge, and the Prince of Leiningen, attended by a brilliant Staff and escorted by a troop of the 10th Hussars, arrived at half-past eleven o'clock, when he was received at the entrance by the Lord Mayor, several members of the Corporation of Dublin, the civic officers in state, Earl Granard, Lord Dufferin, and the members of the Viceregal household. Sir George Brown and a distinguished party were also present at the reception. Upon entering the King's Room, the Prince was warmly greeted. He was conducted by the Lord Mayor to the dais, the band stationed in the gallery playing the National Anthem. Dancing was immediately commenced; a quadrille was formed, in which the Prince of Wales danced with Lady Wodehouse, having for vis-a-vis the Lord Lieutenant and the Marchioness of Drogheda. The Lord Mayor danced with the Marchioness of Kildare. The Duke of Cambridge danced with the Countess of Charlemont. There were also in the same quadrille Lord Rivers, the Earl of Howth, Lord Dufferin, Lord St. Lawrence, and others. The Prince of Wales joined in nearly all the dances while he was in the room: he waltzed and also danced in the "Lancers" with the Countess of Charlemont. His Royal Highness appeared to be much pleased with the festivities, and thoroughly enjoyed himself. Shortly after one o'clock the Royal party were conducted to the supper-room. The Prince, their Excellencies, and the Duke of Cambridge returned to the ball-room after supper, and again joined in the dancing. They took their departure at a quarter-past two o'clock in the morning, and returned to the Viceregal Lodge, escorted by cavalry. The general company did not separate till a much later hour. All were delighted with the kindness and hospitality of the Lord Mayor, in whom the social as well as the commercial interests of Dublin have obtained a most excellent and worthy representative. We may refer to the memoir of this gentleman, which accompanied his Portrait in the Number of our Journal for Feb. 4.

THE REVIEW IN PHŒNIX PARK.

It had been expected that the review, on Wednesday week, would be on a more extensive scale. There were rumours, indeed, that troops would be brought up from the Curragh; but this was not done, and all the men on the ground were drawn from the garrison of Dublin, the only soldiers from the great military encampment of Kildare being the men belonging to various corps undergoing the course of musketry instruction, who were ordered to rejoin their regiments for this particular day. The Fifteen Acres, in Phœnix Park, is a very fit place for military displays, being an extensive plain, skirted by belts of trees, gently undulating at one side and affording accommodation for a large number of spectators, while giving the troops ample room to move about. The spectators increased in numbers very considerably as two o'clock approached, although the rain was falling at intervals. Opposite the Chief Secretary's Lodge, which overlooks the open expanse of the review-ground, a flagstaff was pitched; and immediately behind this carriages containing ladies and children were ranged in considerable numbers. In front of the flagstaff, at the distance of some eight or nine miles, the background of the view was formed by the range of lofty mountains, the tops of which were occasionally covered with clouds. On the ground were the 5th Dragoon Guards, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. Somerset J. E. Calthorpe; the 10th Hussars, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel V. Baker; the 11th Hussars, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel C. C. Fraser, V.C.; the C and E troops of Royal Horse Artillery, under the command of Colonel C. S. Henry; the 29th Regiment, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel L. Farrington; the 41st Regiment, under the command of Colonel J. E. Goodwyn, C.B.; the first battalion 60th Rifles, under the command of Colonel H. Bingham; the 61st Regiment, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel J. P. Redmond; and the 78th Highlanders, under the command of Colonel C. C. M'Intyre, C.B. A troop of the Military Train was also present. In all there were about 4000 men. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, and the Lord Lieutenant, accompanied by their suite of officers, arrived on the ground from the Viceregal Lodge at three o'clock, and as the brilliant cavalcade trotted along the front of the line of spectators there was considerable cheering. The Prince was saluted by twenty-one guns on arriving. The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of the 10th Hussars, which regiment had the pleasure of seeing its Royal Colonel. The Duke of Cambridge wore his Field Marshal's uniform, and his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant wore a morning suit and the collar of the Order of St. Patrick. Lady Wodehouse and a party of ladies and gentlemen followed in two carriages. After the inspection of the troops, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, and the Lord Lieutenant took up position at the flagstaff, when the troops marched past, preceded by the boys of the Royal Hibernian School, an institution similar to the school for soldiers' children at Chelsea, known as the Duke of York's. Shortly after the troops had taken up position the artillery opened fire with the heaviest guns, and the infantry replied with file and volley firing, which was exceedingly well maintained. After the performance of a few evolutions, the review closed, and the Prince of Wales returned to the Viceregal Lodge with Lord and Lady Wodehouse. The Duke of Cambridge returned to Kilmainham Hospital with General Sir George Brown, the commander of the forces. His Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief was in command during the review. A smart shower which fell at the close of the proceedings hastened the return of the people to Dublin.

PRESENTATION OF THE KEYS OF THE TOWER OF LONDON TO SIR JOHN BURGOYNE.

The newly-appointed Constable of the Tower of London, General Sir John Fox Burgoyne, took possession of that ancient fortress, with all the accustomed formalities, on Tuesday week. This ceremony, of which we give an Illustration, was performed within the walls of the Tower, in the presence of Viscount Sydney, the Lord Chamberlain, the officers of the garrison, and a battalion of the Grenadier Guards, now stationed there. Among the persons who were present on this occasion were the Duke of Richmond, his son, the Earl of March, Lord Frederick Paulet, General Wyndham, the Hon. Spencer Ponsonby, Lord De Ros, Colonel Michael Bruce, Colonel Whimper, Lord Hinchingbrook, Lieutenant-Colonel Napier-Sturt, M.P., and Mr. Harvey Lewis, M.P., as a Deputy Lieutenant. The Guards, attended by their band, were drawn up within the garrison, and formed three sides of a square. The Yeomen Warders of the Tower, forty in number, also took part in the pageant, dressed in their quaint bright scarlet costume and bearing halberds. At one o'clock General Sir John Burgoyne, attended by his Aide-de-Camp, Captain the Hon. George Wrottesley, entered the garrison, and the troops presented arms to receive him. He wore the uniform of a general officer, and all his many military decorations. Having taken his place within the hollow square formed by the troops, Mr. John Humphreys, by virtue of his office of Coroner for the Eastern Division of Middlesex, but wearing the uniform of a Deputy Lieutenant on the occasion, proceeded to read her Majesty's letters patent appointing Sir John Lord Lieutenant of the Tower Hamlets and Custos Rotulorum; and Mr. T. W. Ratcliff, Steward and Coroner of the Liberty of the Tower, read the patent of appointment as Constable and Governor of the Tower of London. That done, Lord Sydney, the Lord Chamberlain, turning to Sir John, presented him with the keys of the fortress in the name and on behalf of her Majesty the Queen; the Yeomen Warders, following an ancient custom on such occasions, responded "Amen" in chorus, the troops gave a Royal salute and presented arms, and the band played the National Anthem. Sir John was then formally presented to the officers of the garrison. With that the ceremony of installation ended, and the new Constable and Governor was conducted over the armoury, and afterwards took luncheon with the officers at their head-quarters. The late Lord Combermere, who last held the office of Constable and Governor of the Tower, was preceded by the late Duke of Wellington.

OBSEQUIES OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN AT WASHINGTON AND NEW YORK.

The funeral of the late President Lincoln, as we have already reported, commenced on the 19th ult. The body had lain in state under the dome of the Capitol in Washington and had been visited by thousands of people. The members of the Cabinet, with other friends of the deceased, assembled at six o'clock in the morning on the 19th, and, after a brief religious service, the coffin was taken from the catafalque and placed in the hearse which was waiting to receive it in front of the Capitol. The procession was then formed, and escorted the remains to the dépôt of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, in New Jersey-avenue, where a special train had been prepared for their conveyance. In front of the procession marched the Veteran Reserve Corps, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Bell; following them came the hearse with the coffin, beside which was a guard of honour composed of a detail of twelve orderly sergeants from the Veteran Reserve Corps, under the command of Captain J. M. M'Camley of the 9th, and Lieutenants J. R. Durkee of the 7th, E. Hoppy of the 12th, and E. Murphy of the 10th Regiment Veteran Reserve Corps. Immediately following the hearse, on foot, came Lieutenant-General Grant, Brigadier-General Hardie, Brigadier-Generals Barnard, Rucker, Ekin, Howe, Eaton, Townsend, and M'Callum, and Major-Generals Hunter and Meigs, Admiral Davis and Captain W. R. Taylor of the navy, and Major Field of the marine corps. Behind them were several carriages, in which were Secretaries Stanton, Welles, and M'Culloch; Postmaster-General Denison and Attorney-General Speed; Major B. B. French, Commissioner of Public Buildings; Commissioners Dole, of the Indian Bureau; Holloway, of the Patent Bureau; Captain Newman, of the Capitol Police; Governor Oglesby, Senator Yates, and ex-Senator Browning, of Illinois; the Illinois delegation, which took charge of the remains on behalf of that State; and a number of other senators and members of Congress. President Johnson's carriage was in the procession, accompanied by the President's body-guard, mounted, which closed the procession. The coffin was carried into the dépôt, followed by the gentlemen before mentioned, civil and military, and deposited in the car which had been prepared for its reception. A prayer was repeated by the Rev. Dr. Gurley; and the train, decked with funeral trappings, started from Washington at eight o'clock. It arrived at Baltimore about ten, when the coffin was borne to the Exchange, and lay there in state till the next day. The same ceremony took place at Harrisburg and Philadelphia on the two following days.

On Monday, the 24th ult., the funeral arrived at New York. A correspondent in that city, from whose sketch one of our Illustrations is engraved, describes the scene as follows:—

"The remains were escorted from the railway station by the favourite regiment of New York, the 7th. The funeral car in which the body was conveyed was decorated with eight black-and-white plumes and draped with the national flag. It was drawn by six grey horses, heavily draped and plumed, and led by soldiers. The streets through which the cortége passed were lined with dense crowds of people, representing all classes of society and creeds of politics; for, whatever differences of opinion might have existed with regard to Abraham Lincoln while living and holding the reins of Government in his hands, they are all merged now in sorrow for his untimely fate, and detestation of the assassin who has brought the nation to this great grief. As soon as the body had been carried into the City Hall and placed upon the catafalque prepared for its reception, a solemn dirge burst forth from a choir of 900 Germans, who, dressed in black and with their heads uncovered, were ranged in close array upon each side of the steps leading up to the City Hall, the space in front of which was kept clear by a strong force of policemen and by detachments of the 8th Regiment. Outside this cordon the crowd was immense, but, like most American crowds, quite orderly. From noon yesterday until noon to-day the body lay in state in the Rotunda of the City Hall, within a lofty catafalque erected at the head of the stairway leading to the Governor's Room. The coffin was placed in a sloping position beneath the canopy, the upper part of it being open, so as to display the features of the murdered Chief Magistrate. A guard of honour, composed of officers of the army and navy, remained in constant attendance near the body. All day long and all night a silent procession of citizens—men and women, old and young, rich and poor—moved past the coffin in single file, winding up the stairs on one side and down by the other. Many floral tributes were laid upon the coffin, some of them composed of camellias and other rare flowers. On the afternoon of the second day (the 25th) the remains left New York, by way of Albany and Buffalo. They will arrive at Springfield, Illinois, on the afternoon of the 31st, and will be interred there with all possible honours."

INVESTITURE OF THE KING OF DENMARK WITH THE ORDER OF THE GARTER.

The mission of Earl Cowper to Copenhagen, for the purpose of investing the King of Denmark with the Order of the Garter, which her Majesty has conferred upon him, was performed on the 25th ult. We present an Illustration of this ceremony, from a sketch taken by our Danish Artist. Earl Cowper, the Envoy Extraordinary, and Sir Charles Young, Garter King of Arms, went to the Royal Palace in the Amalienborg, attended by their respective suites. Here they were received, in the saloon adjoining the Throne-room, by his Majesty's High Steward, the Chamberlain Lövenskiold. The arrival of the mission being announced to the King, and the Ministers having passed into his Majesty's presence, the procession advanced into the Royal presence, with due reverences, in the following manner, the insignia of the order being carried on velvet cushions:—

George Glynn Petre, Esq., Secretary to the British Legation, carrying the Book of the Statutes.

Lieutenant-Colonel Harvey Tower, carrying the Sword. | The Hon. James Stuart Wortley, carrying the Hat and Plume.

The Hon. Evelyn Ashley, carrying the Star of the Order. | James Hamilton, Esq., commonly called Viscount Hamilton, carrying the Collar of the Order.

Albert William Woods, Esq., Lancaster Herald, in his Tabard and Collar of S.S., bearing the Garter with the Ribbon and George.

William Courthope, Esq., Somerset Herald, Secretary to the Garter Mission, in his Tabard and Collar of S.S., carrying the Sovereign's Commission. | The Hon. Edward Scott Gifford, Secretary to her Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary, bearing the Mantle and Cordon of the Order.

Sir Charles George Young, Knt., Garter King of Arms, in his Mantle, Chain, and Badge, bearing his Sceptre and his Sovereign's Letters of Credence. | The Right Hon. Francis Thomas De Grey, Earl Cowper, her Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary, on a special mission.

These gentlemen having arranged themselves, Earl Cowper made an address to his Majesty declaratory of the object of his mission, to which his Majesty graciously replied, and expressed his gratification at the reception of the order. Garter then delivered to his Lordship the letters of credence, which his Lordship presented to the King, who placed the same in the hand of M. Quaade, in the absence of the Minister for Foreign Affairs. The statutes were then in like manner presented to the King, and next the commission, both which were delivered by his Majesty to M. de Scheele, Vice-Chancellor of the Order of the Dannebrog, by whom the latter was subsequently returned to Garter. Garter then taking the garter delivered it to Earl Cowper, who buckled the same around his Majesty's left leg, Garter reading the admonition. His Majesty was next invested with the ribbon and George appendant, Garter reading the admonition. The King then delivered his sword, which Garter received and retained as an ancient fee appertaining to his office, and his Majesty was invested with the sword of the order. His Majesty being then divested of the ribbon and George, which was received by an officer of the Court, Garter presented to Earl Cowper the mantle, with which his Majesty was invested by the Plenipotentiaries. His Majesty was in like manner invested with the collar of the order. Garter then delivered to Earl Cowper the hat and feathers, which were presented by his Lordship to the King, and his Lordship immediately after delivered the star of the order to his Majesty. The ceremony of the investiture being completed, the Plenipotentiaries, with their respective suites, making their reverences, withdrew from the Royal presence.

A banquet took place in the evening, at which the King appeared, wearing the insignia of the order, and drank the health of Queen Victoria. His Majesty's health was, of course, drunk most heartily in return.

The officers and ship's company of her Majesty's ship Petrel, at present on the North American and West Indian station, have sent to the National Life-boat Institution a contribution of £6 10s.

It is reported that war has broken out between Paraguay and the Argentine Republic.

The postal communication has been re-established between Vienna and Constantinople by way of Tchernavoda and Kustendjie. Mails for conveyance by this route are dispatched from Vienna twice a week—on Mondays and Fridays; and letters from the United Kingdom intended to be forwarded by such mails will in the ordinary course of post be in time for the mail of Monday, if dispatched from London viâ Ostend on the morning of the previous Saturday, and for the mail of Friday if dispatched from London on the morning of the previous Wednesday. Letters for Constantinople, which the senders may desire to forward by this route, must be specially addressed "viâ Kustendjie." The postage chargeable upon letters will be the same as viâ Trieste—viz., 11d. for a letter not exceeding half an ounce in weight, when prepaid, and 1s. 1d. if sent unpaid.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

THIS is a land of freedom! I do not offer this as an original remark, for I believe the "sentiment" has been before uttered at public dinners, but I have been led modestly to repeat it by thinking of the state of the British drama when Mr. Locke's bill becomes, as it may become, law. "There are upwards of dozen thousand literary institutes throughout Great Britain—assembly-rooms, townhalls, lecture-rooms, and mechanics' institutes—suitably constructed in every respect for the drama in a simple form." This opens a matter for consideration—Mr. Coumnles and his patent, the infant phenomenon, and the lady who, by letting down her back hair "does" the blood-drinker's burial with such completeness effect will, we suppose, also be allowed to sing and to amuse her Majesty's lieges without previously taking permission of Mr. Mayor and local magistrates. Provided, however, we can get under that act; certainly, writing for the stage will become infinitely more remunerative, because a successful piece by a little stretching-room drama will produce "a mint of money." Whether the public will be chastised as to avoid silly sensation plays and the drama according to Jack Sheppard and other murderous heroes, we do not know. We have a free Parliament, free churches, a free press, and we shall have a very free drama. Then the proprietor of the "Grand" may take advantage of the magistrates' decision by announcing that his "is the greatest spectacular ballet theatre in England," and the floors may be decorated with the busts of musicians externally, is internally devoted to the ballet. A gentleman is therefore evidently coming for "comic ballet, sensation singing, and loud performances generally. Dance will be in the ascendant. We have failed to teach the Italians to dance, whether we now offer him the sop of penny readings without beer, and cheap theatres with beer, tuning, and tobacco—for the Lord Chamberlain's license carries with it an excise license too. The opponents of this measure had best look after it.

Two contradictory signs are visible in America. One peaceful and happy, the other lurid and threatening. On the one hand, we are told that Secession Greeley is "mustering out" 200,000 men, and that a million of armed men, at one stroke; secondly, that President Johnson, who some of late made such pitiful exhibitions of himself, the armour-bearer of Jove—i.e., the American Eagle—and the British Lion, is now on a pacific mission, and that he openly desires to cultivate the British alliance. But, on the other hand, he has a large plan in his head. Mexico, it seems, is somewhat disturbed, and that the old Mexican Republic is making overtures to her North American Union; and, at a meeting in New York, gentlemen were both publicly and privately informed that there who promised to support the Monroe doctrine could do so without compromising you to use the power of the State to enforce them themselves or the Government in trouble. Does this point to filibustering? We trust not; but we are to celebrate the 4th of September, which directly implicates Canada. The advertisements already begin all directions to the officers to register their names with Colonel Washington and to "emigrate" to Mexico would be ominous. Shall we have Sir Colin Campbell or Captain Mayne Reid, promoted to a General, as their leader? Mr. Jefferson Davis has friends even in the Cabinet, and it is said that he has taken any measures with him in the eleven waggons which follow, or rather precede, this deposed President. It be to caught, with Messrs. Breckenridge and Secretary Benjamin, and sent to the grand trial, and no doubt mainly deaths on the scaffold for President Johnson, and Jefferson Davis as the conspirators against the human race," will punish all traitors with the "utmost severity." Treason, felony, misprision of treason, "is the present law of the land," and the generals and General Wallridge approved of it. Shade of George Washington, listen to this with horror! How the old republican is vindicated! How true is Sir John Harrington's epigram—

> "Treason doth never prosper: what's the reason?
> For if it prosper none dare call it treason.

No, treason is not prosper the greatest of crimes; but want of success is.

And upon a branch of the subject, we have been glad to see that Henry Lewes, the editor of the Fortnightly Review, discourses with an eloquent pen upon it. To be successful in treason is to make the laws founded on our threefold nature—intellectual, moral, and material. The material branch of the tripod is the basis, but moral force is that of sincerity; the esthetic from is the principle of beauty. Truth is the soul of literature; sincerity is the soul of morals; and esthetic truth. And unless a writer has truth, vision, and beauty of expression, he cannot be successful. Mr. Lewes says that many writers would accept Mr. Lewes's dicta, and at once give up preach, and scribbling, dogmatising, and compiling descriptive catalogues. The fact is that half of our contemporaries are to be draughted over to Canada, or else be put out of existence in a pleasurable way. We have too many of them, and we have too much industrious and prodigiously prolific that publishers and the public must suffer. But we do not see Napoleon and Napoleon's fall in the rank, you know) to muster us out, as General Grant is "mustering" the American army? We should spare at least one Napoleon for Madame Lendon sleeve. All who had no regular engagement, all volunteer authors without situations, unattached writers, and contributors, should be first sacrificed; and next to the lady authoresses, as the coriosey mid-Well, we must feel honestly with them on a question which George Elliot Evans, whose review "On the Influence of Rationalism" is the very best in the Fortnightly. Her description of a general reader is wonderful. He is fond, she tells us, of "dipping into poetry," he likes an "undefined Christianity, which opposes itself to nothing in particular, and is called orthodoxy, or sometimes evangelical," and he is assents to indistinct, blurred statements. His only bigotry is a bigotry against any clearly defined opinion. He is fond of science and scientific scepticism, but belonging to a lack of coherent thought—a spongy texture and fluid that gravitates to the nearest pole. The one thing he is stanch for is the utmost liberty of private laziness." The whole article is worth reading, but not so brilliant as Mr. Lewes's. The new reviews the writers sign their names even to condemnatory articles. We are glad to see a contributor like that of the Revue des Deux Mondes the Fortnightly is not yet either so servile or so partial as to print a number that was hardly to be expected.

If the Reformers in Parliament are not united in earnest, the Reformers out of Parliament are so. They are going in for manhood suffrage, the ballot, and a thorough reform of the constituencies. Mr. Mill out or in Parliament, Lord Amberley, and Mr. Gladstone are apparently the three future leaders. Mr. Bright, the colleague of Mr. Mill, and Mr. Mill approves of Mr. Gladstone. Lord Amberley, like the prodigal son, is a friend in a quarrel, and Mr. Gladstone is both. Meanwhile, our irrepressible friend the "working man" has turned up again, and it is not without reason that he is so called. He generally the working man is represented by those who are not working men at all—that, in fact, the drones are the spokesmen of the bees. The fact is, the real working man gives himself his own suffrage, owns himself in the social scale, and does not much care about the ballot. The cries in the street are not for reform, but emigration to America when the war has ceased will soon start into full action, and it is not possible that the working man cannot find an exodus from England which will startle our politicians.

Years ago it was the fashion to say, "Where's Cobwell have a statue?" Now, with a very slight turn, we ask the same about Richard Cobden; and the answer is precisely where great men usually arrive, in fact, it would appear that not only one statue, but many statues, will be raised to the Sussex boy who has become one of the delightful story-books, become a "famous man;" and it is to put aside that we have the matter that an inhabitant of Midhurst pleads very sensibly for the decayed town of Cobden's native county. To see this Midhurst woman is not a friend to the sculptors, and, as he very sensibly says, Cobden in the Guildhall would be quite as much object to Cobden in the marble. Our age is utilitarian; when we raised a memorial to the Duke of Sussex we did it by the wing of a hospital; let us likewise remember Richard Cobden by restoring the free school of his town. No doubt in Manchester he will stand in bronze, looking, such is the effect of our climate, black to all ages. So stands that statue which does not enchant the world—that of Sir Robert Peel, Cobden's great rival and warm admirer, who is now familiarly said "to be looking up the Poultry" near St. Paul's. Most people, we fancy, will vote for the school at Midhurst. We must check, if we can, this exuberance of statues; and truly the plain citizen forms of our great men do not offer any opportunity of display for our sculptors. There is, therefore, more reason than one to vote for the schools.

MUSIC.

The performance of Beethoven's "Fidelio" at Her Majesty's Theatre on Tuesday last was more than usually interesting from the fact of the opera can rarely meet with. "Fidelio" has every beauty that a musical drama can possess—the interest of the story, the situations and thrilling interest; a well-connected series of incidents leading to a complete and satisfactory denouement; and music full of power, beauty, and expression. The character of Leonore, the tender, devoted, and courageous wife, is one of the most beautiful in the whole range of the drama. It is the finest of Trieste's parts, displaying in the greatest advantage her incomparable qualities as an actress and a singer. We have seen all the representatives of Leonore—Schroder-Devrient, Devriest, and Malibran to the present day, and feel convinced that Titiens excels them all, not only in the truth and nature of her portraiture of the charming heroine, but in her execution of Beethoven's grand music—music which, in the hands of the great German, is often perverted by Dr. Gunz, who, it will be remembered, made a favourable impression here as a violoncello player some 15 or 16 years ago by Sadler's Roon by Jones; and Marcellus by Mille. Sinico. The orchestra and chorus were admirable, and the opera was throughout rendered with the most delightful opera, as a whole, never has been more effectively performed in this country.

Adelina Patti made her first appearance this season at the Royal Italian Opera on Saturday last. She performed the part of Amina in "La Sonnambula," and was received with enthusiasm. Her impersonations is so well known to the public that it is sufficient to point out on Saturday last as fully sustaining her reputation than ever, and that she was welcomed by a crowded audience with the greatest enthusiasm. The remainder of the cast was in a manner which has seldom been excelled—Mario being the Count Almaviva; Ronconi, Figaro; Graziani, Doctor Bartolo; and Tagliafico, Basilio.

Mdlle. Emma de Marska made her first appearance at Her Majesty's Theatre, on Thursday week, in "Lucia di Lammermoor," and achieved one of the most successful triumphs of the season. Her voice is of great charming and pathetic tone we have ever witnessed.

The Philharmonic Society gave their last concert (the fourth of the season) was honoured with the presence of Princesses Alexandra and Dagmar. The programme included Mozart's Jupiter symphony, Weber's overture to "Euryanthe," Mendelssohn's Italian symphony, Gounod's "Gallia," and Spohr's "Historical" violin concerto, played by Herr Lauterbach; and two of the finest of Beethoven's vocal pieces, sung by Mme. Joachim, the wife of the celebrated violinist—an admirable young singer, who was much applauded by receive by the audience.

Costa's oratorio, "Naaman," was performed by the Sacred Harmonic Society, at Exeter Hall, yesterday week. This oratorio, it will be remembered, was commenced at Birmingham Festival last autumn, when it was splendidly performed, and received with triumphant success. At Exeter Hall it has been as well performed, and was received with great favour. The principal solo performers were Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Mdme. Rudersdorff, Miss Edmonds (a pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves), Mr. Lawler, and Mr. Santley (in addition), Mr. Simms Reeves, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Cummings. The sacred Harmonic Society's performances, during the present season, and the whole performance was received with the warmest applause, Costa, who conducted, being repeatedly called for. The oratorio, and is, on the whole, not unworthy of Mr. Costa's high reputation.

M. Henri Herz, the celebrated composer and professor of playing, has arrived in London, and intends to reside here permanently during the season.

Mr. Benedict, whose concerts have always met with such brilliant success, will have a still stronger attraction than usual this season, as he has secured the services of Mdme. Lemmens, the great talent of both the great Italian opera-houses, Mdme. Titiens, Mdme. Paulina Lucca, Carlotta Patti, Trebelli, and Fioretti, as well as Signori Graziani, Bagagiolo, Mario, Giuglini, Gardoni, and Tagliafico, the instrumentalist—Mdme. Arabella Goddard, Joachim, Piatti, and our favourite Sainton, will assist at them.

Mdme. Sainton-Dolby and M. Sainton gave their annual concert at St. James's Hall, on Wednesday last. Mdme. Dolby has long and deservedly been one of the greatest favourites of the London public, and her husband, almost unrivalled by long residence among us, has gained golden opinions from all sorts and conditions of the musical as a man. Accordingly, the hall was crowded to the doors by an elegant and fashionable audience, and the entertainment partook of all them was of the most refined and classical description.

We read in the Paris journals, that Le Menestrel, the following notice of the recent visit of M. Lemmens and Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington to that city:—"Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, whose talent we saw so appreciated at the Concerts de la Reine, the house of Rossini, has been heard this season at many concerts and parties, which have given her the opportunity to display her talent. She has just left us to return to England, where she has numerous engagements. Before leaving she has given us a taste of the last scene of the Prefet of the Seine; at the sacred concern of M. de Lesdeyng, on the 14th inst. Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington sang and on Sunday last at a performance of organ and vocal music given by her husband and herself in the hall of the Salle Herz. Mdme. Rossini a remarkable talent for admiration of her talents. After hearing her sing the air from Le Reine de Barbier de Seville, he wrote for her, with his own hand, the changes necessary to suit her music, originally written for a mezzo soprano, to a soprano voice. Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington has consequently added this piece in possession of an authentic version of this celebrated part."

Miss Edmonds, a pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves, and among our younger generation of pianists, gave her first morning concert, at the Hanover-square Rooms, on Saturday last. There was a numerous and elegant audience, of whom a large portion were pupils of Herr Zimmermann's principal performance was Beethoven's celebrated Sonata appassionata, which was played by Miss Edmonds with precision, purity of style, and truth of expression. A beautiful song, composed by her for Christmas, was sung by Mr. Lawler, and sung by Mr. Cummings, evinced great talent for that branch of her art.

The young violoncellist, Herr Tom Hollins, of whom we have already had occasion to speak, has been lately singing with immense success in the North. The newspapers of that musical city speak rapturously of the power and sweetness of his tone, and of the excellence of his method and style. If half of what is said of him be true, he is a performer of the highest order of study and practice, we may expect for him a successful and brilliant career.

THE THEATRES.

A new drama, in two acts, by Mr. Palgrave Simpson, entitled "A Fair Pretender," which may boast of a considerable share of originality, has been produced at the Prince of Wales's. It is at least, we believe, something of the kind. Mademoiselle Lucie Lady Arabella Stuart from prison, aided by her husband, William Seymour, grandson of Lady Catherine Seymour, who married the Earl of Hertford, James I., and the scene is placed on some part of the English coast in the neighborhood of an old castle belonging to Sir Thomas Wilton (Mr. Wilton). It is the aim of the author to concentrate the interest of the piece upon the character of Lucie Herbert, who, upon their interview with a seeming pollar, named Mark (Mr. Sydney Bancroft), go far to disturb the mind of her jealous lover, Gideon Gubbins (Mr. J. G. Clark). The reader may imagine how such an action would be managed by two performers whose peculiarities are so well known. The pedlar is Lord Seymour in disguise, and the imprisoned lady was formerly the mistress of Sexsmu, who naturally feels an interest in her misfortunes. She therefore projects with him a plan for her deliverance, and he, in the character of Mark, having been admitted as a recruit to the castle, becomes easily conversant with all that is going on. Lady hour Lady Arabella, attended by Susanna, finds her way secretly to a ferry-boat moored among the rocks. The escaped lady and her lord are received on board a French ship. Susanna has much difficulty in hoodwinking the governor of the castle, and for this purpose makes herself up as Lady Arabella—in this plan she is somewhat thwarted by one Kezia, the Governor's disagreeable mistress, but finally succeeds. It is this incident which gives title to the little drama. It will have been seen that Lady Arabella herself has nothing whatever to do with the action, and indeed only appears once in a mute personage, and that the name is, in fact, carried on by the subordinates. The weight of the interest is imported by Lucie Herbert, Mark, and the scenery is well painted by Mr. Charles James. The merits of the drama are not of an ambitious order; but the general skill of the writer enables him to make the most of slender materials.

A new piece was produced on Monday at the Strand, for which we are indebted to the pen of Mr. W. Brough and Mr. A. Halliday. It is entitled "Up Stairs and Down Stairs; or, The Great Nowhopolis Question." The piece is called an original one; but it is, in fact, only a social squib, without any attempt at plot. The main support of the piece is Mr. Toole, who plays the part of Sniffles, of Snipper, a footman, defends the right of his order to receive fees and computes from individuals, and also occasionally and poetically. Miss Simpson, too, as Clipper, the lady's-maid, sympathises with the footman and conducts with him; and both lead the servants of Sir Leicester Squeezetite (Mr. Clifton) into open rebellion against the Squeezetites' determinations attempted to be introduced by the Baronet. The master, moreover, is opposed by Mr. Rayley in the clever rôle. Taking advantage of Snipper's romantic tendencies, fostered, as they have been, by penny journals, Lucretia Lancaster causes him to believe that he is of an aristocratic family and true heir to Sir Leicester's property. He writes to his family in consequence, and appears to Snipper as its future master. With his change of position, Snipper's opinions change; he refuses to allow perquisites and percentages, despises Clipper, and makes love to the Baronet's daughter. Sir Leicester, of course, resumes his authority, and Snipper practically convinces all his domestics that the system they would uphold is wrong. The piece is not free from faults of authors and as forcibly acted by the performers; nor is the audience less responsive to the social lesson conveyed.

A new theatre will be opened to-day (Saturday). It has been erected by Mr. Charles Morton, the proprietor of Highbury Barn, on a portion of his estate. He has called it the Alexandra Theatre, and it is certainly a credit to him. It is a handsome theatre, only of stalls, pit, and boxes, there being no gallery; and is, therefore, adapted for the richer rather than the poorer classes. The opening night is said to been employed for the entertainment, which Mr. William Brough has written by Mr. Morton, in which certain celebrities of Highbury on Tuesday, "Arrest of Genius." A full-dress rehearsal was presented on Tuesday, when the theatre was perfectly satisfactory, and the arrangements are such as will secure the respectability of the building. The musical department is under the able direction of Mr. Jarrett, who has supplied the music of the burlesque, which is exceedingly well compiled.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Professor Frankland's sixth lecture on organic chemistry given on Thursday, the 11th inst., was principally devoted to the consideration of the organic compounds of nitrogen and ethereal salts. Nitrogen is a class of organic bodies described in the preceding lectures. He defined ethers as water in which hydrogen is replaced by organic radicles, and alcohols as organic radicles in which hydrogen is replaced by ethereal salts, as derived from water, one atom of hydrogen being replaced by an atom of nitrogen. He stated that the second class, or ammoniacal ethers, such as ethylamine, are identified the "continuous" method of substitution ether, by treating a mixture of iodide and ammonia with potash, and being able to transform, by means of alcohol into ether, and remaining itself unchanged. He then explained the mode of obtaining ammoniacal ethers from ethyl iodide, and exhibited the properties of ether—its low specific gravity, its dangerous inflammability, &c., and referred to its employment as a solvent of gun cotton, India-rubber, and to the application of its rapid evaporation in the ether freezing-machine. He then proceeded to the consideration of the nitrogen acids, and showed the organic radicles derived from the oxides of nitrogen, peroxide, pure, nitric, and other acids, and the formation of organic ammoniacal salts. He contrasted on the model of common ammonia (hydrogen 3, and nitrogen 1) the acid families of the nitrogen acids, and showed that the nitrous glow, or diamets is heated with soluble of ethyl a new base is formed, which was discovered by Dr. Hofmann, and named ethyl-ammonia. This substance gives a most beautiful violet tint. Aniline acting upon the salts of magenta a new purple colour is produced, known as mauve; and by the action of aldehyde a green is produced, which, unlike most other shades of green, is permanent. Mr. Perkin, a pupil of Professor Hofmann, has made a still more valuable discovery in the production of aniline colours, and established magnificent establishments at Greenford, for the manufacture of aniline dyes, which are now being extensively imitated by Messrs. Simpson, Maule, and Nicholson; and for the latter he (Professor Frankland) had purchased silk-dyers of Coventry one of the specimens of violet dye was valued at £70). The president, Sir Henry Holland, Bart., was present.

Professor Bain, in his concluding lecture on the physical accompaniments of mental action, on Saturday last, gave a brief sketch of the theories of materialism and immaterialism. Critical Bacon sought to reconcile the two theories by the hypothesis that matter and, secondly, as they suppose one existence. The first class is subdivided into the Epicurean materialists existence of atoms in the material world and among the Fathers of the Church down to the 18th century; and the Stoics, who believed in a universal substance. It has been the prevalent view in Christendom from the fifth century down to the present time. Hobbes presented as a simple proposition, that all existence is material, mind and matter are held to be essentially the same phenomena, which is the doctrine of materialism. Immaterialism is divided into two classes—the Platonic and the Christian—the according to (1) the essential contrast of mind and matter is vexed, which is the doctrine of Platonic immaterialism. Berkeley, now a growing party among physiologists and metaphysicians. He gave in detail the opinions of the ancient philosophers, Pythagoras, Plato, Father Fullum, Malebranche, Calvin, Descartes, Hobbes, Locke; the eighteenth century materialists, represented by Du Cerf, Lamettrie, Diderot, the metaphysical school of Germany, and the recent materialists of Germany. He considered that the arguments in favour of the existence of matter were unsatisfactory, and that the phenomena are capable of being represented by a two-sided unity—a mental one and a physical one—without the existence of the supposed matter.

Professor Frankland's seventh lecture on organic chemistry, given on Tuesday, was principally devoted to the consideration of the crystalline bodies, of which very fine specimens were exhibited, principally supplied by the kindness of Professor Church. Caffeine (obtained from tea and coffee, and theobromine have analogous properties; to obtain very fine crystals of theobromine, he stated that the best mode is to obtain very fine crystals of theobromine, he stated that the best mode is to obtain very fine crystals of theobromine subsistence—then enabling man to live on a lower diet. These alkaloids, with the exception of nicotine, are solid at ordinary temperatures. Nicotine, however, was obtained the ammoniacal gas, quinine, and other less volatile alkaloids, cinchonine and aconine. Nicotine is procured in large quantities from tobacco refuse. Quinine is a famous bitterness has led to the absurd notion of its being used in brewing. Tobacco plant the alkaloid nicotine, which is a most powerful poison, from which hills a strong dog in three minutes. The various alkaloids derived from opium are more interesting medically than chemically—morphine being the chief. In the latter part of the lecture the professor considered the organic carbonic acids, and exhibited a number of specimens illustrating their structure. These include the fatty and aromatic acids—formic, acetic, stearic, benzoic, &c. By means of the electric light and a screen he exhibited the beautiful crystals of caffeine, produced by heating some traces of it under the lecturer; and also showed some living ants, and the reaction produced on them by the formic acid emitted from their stings.

On Friday evening, the 26th of May, the discourse will be given by Dr. Alexander Wilson, F.R.S., on the subject of "Chemistry and the spectrum analysis of the rich and passage of crystalline substances into and out of the tissues of the living body.

OPENING OF THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION: THE BALL AT THE MANSION HOUSE, IN HONOUR OF THE PRINCE OF WALES.—SEE PAGE 484.

OPENING OF THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION: THE PRINCE OF WALES AT THE REVIEW OF TROOPS IN PHŒNIX PARK.—SEE PAGE 488.

FINE ARTS.

EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

THE LANDSCAPES, ETC.

The number of pictures in which human figures are the chief source of interest yearly increases at this exhibition, and—still more on account of the increasing diversity of styles and subjects—yearly requires fuller consideration. To prevent, therefore, the review of this department exceeding our available space, we have reserved for notice in the present article a few pictures which, although containing human figures, may also be regarded as examples of landscape or animal painting. Foremost among these are the works of Messrs. Hook, Ansdell, and T. S. Cooper. Some change of scene has stimulated Mr. Hook to even a keener perception than usual of his favourite aspects of sea and strand, and to a still greater sympathy with the people whose bread is on the waters. From the bays and inlets of Cornwall, with its fishers and miners, the artist has betaken himself to somewhat similar scenery and a cognate race on the coast of Brittany, the exact locality being Concarneau, a chief seat of the sardine and mackerel fisheries. Thence he has derived the subjects of all his four pictures—"Breton Fishermen's Wives making Nets" (40), "The Mackerel Take" (70), "The Sardine Fleet" (283), and "The Seaweed Gatherer" (567), the last a matelotte raking the vraic that is to serve for manure. The sea in all these pictures is in the condition of comparative calm, which Mr. Hook so often represents. Such a condition is, however, rare on this stormy coast. And it is perhaps excusable to ask a painter who has acquired such a perfect mastery over one phase of natural effect to try his hand on another. The vigour and truth of these pictures, their sense of luminous, open-air vivacity and freshness; the marvellous painting of the sea, that seems to have been floated in at once with a few liquid touches, and to gently undulate, and play, and sparkle like nature herself, are worthy of all praise. But, as these admirable qualities have been attained subsequently to Mr. Hook's total change of subject from his early, conventional Venetian representations, might not greater novelty than is procurable by a trip from one coast of the Channel to another, and an attempt to grapple with the grander aspects of nature, be productive of still nobler results?

Mr. Ansdell is one of the few English artists who appears to greater advantage in proportion as he approaches the life-scale. His clever, workman-like execution seems then to partake less of a mechanical character. All his three pictures this year are of unusual size and more than ordinary mark. The best, it seems to us, though not, like the others, a subject of striking action, is a scene, effective in composition, colour, and effect, at the entrance of one of the halls of the Alhambra (392), now converted, like other Moorish remains, into a Roman Catholic shrine. The principal figure is a handsome maja mounted on an ass; near her are a muleteer, lighting his cigarito, and several beggars, and within the shadow from the bold semi-circular archhead the devotees are kneeling at the shrine. A second picture (338), painful in subject, represents an English poacher pulled down, and so kept at bay till the keeper arrives, by a huge mastiff, from which the man's bull-terrier slinks away. The third contribution is a large picture of the Spanish mode of threshing corn—as seen, in this instance, within the walls of the Alhambra (470): a team of barbs harnessed to a sledge set with knife-blades, on which the driver stands, are urged swiftly round and round the thrashing-floor by the lash and the shouts of bystanders. The near horse in the picture rears violently and thus affords a climax to this spirited representation, and, indeed, imparts an amphitheatrical air to the whole—which, however, we cannot affirm is unauthorised by fact. Mr. Sidney Cooper has at last contrived to tear himself away from his native Canterbury meadows; and his works have thereby gained considerably in picturesqueness and interest; though less hardness, coldness, and matter-of-fact precision—more of the graces and amenities of pastoral poetry—are still to be desiderated. He sends two companion pictures, entitled "North" (163) and "South" (478): in the first a large flock of sheep, with some cattle, are being driven up a steep path leading over a mountainous ridge—probably of the Grampians—on their way to the low-country farmers to be fattened for the Edinburgh, London (by steam-vessels), or other market; and in the second we see the same flock, headed by the rams and wethers, descending, straggling and wearied, the southern declivity of the same mountain.

But among pictures combining landscape and animals, the most remarkable, in our judgment, is contributed by Mr. H. W. B. Davis. Few persons who remember this artist's small, very minutely and delicately wrought studies of the herds and peculiar scenery of the Pas-de-Calais and some neighbouring districts of Picardy and Artois, would anticipate from the same hand so sudden an increase in size, and with it commensurate breadth of execution and effect, as are found in "The Strayed Herd, Dunes de Condette, Artois" (560)—a large herd of oxen and cows, headed by a wild-looking master bull, lowing to each other as they find themselves at evening, far from familiar ground, among the rolling sand-hills, in all directions closely resembling each other. Here there is none of the pettiness or over-elaboration of preceding works, but, on the contrary, a masterly breadth, upon which may be grounded high anticipations of this young artist's future career.

Mr. W. V. Herbert, son of the Academician, has made a further and considerable advance in his picture—excellent in composition, colour, and keeping—of a caravan halted at sundown (495), "from a sketch made in the desert." It appears that actual study in the East has produced a modification of this young artist's scheme of colour, which removes entirely the English character with which former works were chargeable. Another picture marking a great advance by a young painter is Mr. W. Field's "Midsummer Day" (64), where we do not know which is to be more commended, the figures or the landscape. Mr. J. G. Naish treads nearly in the steps—or, to employ a more suitable nautical phrase, follows in the wake of Mr. Hook in his picture with the didactic title "Better than Gold" (604)—a ferry or fisherman, with his boat alongside a jetty in one of the lovely little inlets of Devonshire, kissing the little one that an elder sister has brought with some message for father. There is much merit in this little work, but the head of the infant is unnaturally small. By Mr. J. W. Bottomley, an animal-painter of ability, there is a picture of very simple elements—a herdsman with his small charge of a cow, calf, and a few sheep, rounding a bend on the dull banks of a sluggish river; yet these simple elements are rendered truly impressive by the large and truthful treatment of an impending rain-cloud. There is honest and commendable painting in Mr. W. H. Hopkins's "Before the Steam-Plough" (386). A little picture with animals, by Miss Morrell (516), has much promise. Before fixing our attention on the landscapes proper, we should mention that there are a few—a very few—figure-painters of old-established reputation who have contributed to this exhibition works so entirely coinciding with their respective well-known styles; or else of so little comparative importance, or so much below their usual level or the vigour of their prime, that we have not thought it necessary to refer to them. We find, however, upon renewed survey, that we have overlooked very few pictures which seem to us of real promise. The principal omissions are, perhaps, "Sunshine" (291), a capital picture of a group of Normandy fish wives and girls making nets, by L. Smythe; "Mistress and Maid" (354), by C. M. Dobell; and others by Messrs. A. Hill, Dicey, R. Tait, Coppard, R. Collinson, and Miss Coode.

The landscapes proper will make comparatively little impression on the general visitor. Notwithstanding the great tendency to descriptive painting in words in recent poetry and literature—notwithstanding all that Mr. Ruskin has done to interest us in Turner and landscape art generally—notwithstanding that we are repeatedly told that a British landscape-school, extensive and original, has sprung up among us—there is little evidence of it in the principal exhibition of oil pictures. Doubtless, this is in great measure attributable to the preference shown—and, to a certain extent, rightly shown—to figure-subjects by the Academy. Yet it is greatly to be regretted that, owing to the limited space, there can be, or at all events there are, scarcely a dozen landscapes by artists not members of the Academy on "the line," and which can, therefore, fairly be seen, in Trafalgar-square. The case of the landscape-painters calls loudest for the increased accommodation which, there is now reason to hope, will be afforded at no distant day.

In any review of a number of landscapes, the first consideration is due to works revealing imaginative conception or feeling. From the infinity of nature no two persons derive the same impression. No two artists will render the same scene in precisely the same manner; and the poetic mind will be as easily distinguishable from the prosaic here as elsewhere. It must be admitted, however, that evidences of imagination are extremely rare among English landscape-painters, and that the great majority are, like the Dutch, able executants of realistic tendency. In this class are to be found our landscape Academicians—Stanfield, Creswick, Cooke, Redgrave, and Lee. In Mr. Stanfield's recent works we have, however, the fruits of ripe experience conveyed with a tenderness of colour and an uncertainty of handling which have more of poetical suggestiveness than the firmer and completer realisation of an earlier time. Fine feeling must also be recognised in his "Bass Rock" (96), with its troubled Firth of Forth and stormy sky, rendering the rock more sad and desolate, and distant Tantallon more lonely. "The Vale of Narni, Italy" (128), is a contrast in its serene sweetness and beauty. The monotonousness and blackness of Mr. Creswick's recent works and of the "Changeable Weather" (222) are not to be charged to "The Village Smithy" (117), a charming rural scene—the ruddy glow from the wayside smithy forming a capital foil to a cool, grey, summer-evening effect. Altogether, this is the most original and thoroughly-studied landscape by this painter we have seen for years. Of Mr. Lee we must honestly say that he seems to be losing all reverence for nature, else he could hardly employ the same set of clay-cold sickly tints and apply them in the same off-hand, self-satisfied routine manner whatever the subject, whether nooks of Old England (243 and 466), Garibaldi's home at Caprera (66), or a gale off the coast of Malaga. The sea in the last reveals clever but unthinking handwork: one cannot be brought to believe either in the colour or the sudden diminution of the perspective. Mr. Cooke (one of this year's hangers) sends but one picture, and that is placed in the last room. It is described as "A Dutch Beurtman Aground on the Terschelling Sand (North Sea) after a Snowstorm" (595). As in many similar subjects by the same artist, the drawing of the labouring craft is admirable. On the whole, however, it is not quite so favourable an example as some of its predecessors. If we may make a suggestion to an artist whose conscientious care and accuracy all must respect, we should say that his method of painting the sea in motion requires revision: for example, convexity in waves, even breakers, is, we suspect, more rarely seen.

From the few works indicating imaginative sympathies we would select for prominent mention three small landscapes by Mr. E. Mason. Their subjects, materially considered, are of the humblest—to wit, bits of rough moorland, with a little water, geese, a girl or two, or a man leading a pony that has cast a shoe; the effect in all being at or immediately after sundown (31, 229, and 240). But the spectator feels that the painter's real theme was the low-toned, palpitating, after-glow, with its mystery of indefinite form and broken yet beautiful colour; and he feels, moreover, that the theme has been treated with pure feeling and true poetic perception. At the same time, it is to be regretted that Mr. Mason should do himself the injustice of nearly always devoting his rare powers to the glorification of geese, in pond or puddle, and one particular little girl, whom the winds seem to constantly pursue like furies. His refined sentiment, excellent drawing of the figure, and exquisite colouring might surely be more worthily employed. Mr. J. Linnell passed at a comparatively early period from the imitative into the indicative method, and his works now have, notwithstanding their sameness and obvious mannerisms, a breadth and potency partaking largely of the dignity of "style" and the force of dramatic conception. "The Reapers" (337) is quite as fine an example of the painter as the "Haymakers," which we engraved last year. In forming their style prematurely on that of the elder Linnell, the two younger Linnells are condemned, if not to inevitable inferiority, to be seen to disadvantage. Mr. W. Linnell's "Shepherds Mount" (397) is effective as regards the figures and sandy mount; but the weald country beyond has the air of being introduced arbitrarily for effect, with little reference to nature. Mr. J. T. Linnell's "Hill and Dale" (552) looks still more like a landscape composition of discordant elements. A foreign artist, M. L. R. Mignot, evinces, in "Evening in the Tropics" (565), a deep sympathetic appreciation of some of the grandest scenery in the world—that of equatorial South America, seen, too, under the most splendid and imposing effects—and renders his perceptions with a thoroughly disciplined, yet original and artistic, skill that is near akin to the highest order of poetical landscape, and is specially to be commended for study to our English painters. Mr. Whistler, in a view of "Battersea Bridge" (343), with all its usual accompaniments of soot and fog, shows his unrivalled power of matching subtle hues and gradations; and renders these with a breadth singularly suggestive, but that approaches the ostentatious slovenliness which is so offensive in his figure-pictures. Mr. E. Walton chooses an effect after sundown, in his "Tombs of the Sultans, near Cairo" (346), almost precisely similar to that in his view of the Pyramids of last year. The same impressive time, as it always is under the cloudless skies and with the low horizon of the Nile valley, has been chosen by Mr. Dillon for his solemn picture of the ruined "Hypæthral Temple, Philæ" (325). The broad, sober shadow-tones of English twilight are admirably rendered in a "View in the Outskirts of a Farm" (301), by Mr. H. T. Wells, an artist hitherto known only as one of the best of our younger portrait-painters. We cannot warmly congratulate Mr. Thorburn upon his essay in landscape (see No. 465). In the first landscape (203) by another portrait-painter, Mr. F. Talfourd, there are some broad passages of beautiful colour, and true as beautiful. The poetical feeling which sometimes distinguishes Mr. Anthony's works is hardly apparent, though well intended, in "Rest for the Weary" (526); but certainly not in the rather coarsely-painted "Sheepwashing in Knowle Park" (361). "Dunnoter Castle" (541), by Mr. J. W. Oakes, seems unnecessarily scenic in its sky effects. A warm sunset view of the Thames at Chelsea, from the house by Turner (23), by Mr. W. Ascroft, is noteworthy.

The reaction against the conventionalities of the older school of landscape-painting has, combining with the keener vision and the more strenuous determination natural in years of studentship, impelled many of our younger landscape-painters to aim at a degree of copyism, and of literal, exact, and minute elaboration which, though they will never afford the highest artistic and poetic qualities, yet form the best possible discipline for the future master. Among works painted probably under the conditions we have indicated, none are so remarkable as the contributions of Messrs. J. M. Carrick and J. Brett. Mr. Carrick, this year, distances all competitors in the direction just now mentioned. The view of the "Maritime Alps and Valley of the Paglione, near Nice" (480), rivals the camera itself in the evident accuracy of the drawing, while the same aim at rendering the whole truth is apparent in the gold and orange lights, and the blue and purple shadows. As, however, the lights of the drawing fall immeasurably short of the force of nature, the shadows (as in so many landscapes painted on a favourite pre-Raphaelite theory) look wrong, and therefore are wrong; for to the eye of memory a painted representation must make the final appeal, and one never remembers distant, and still less foreground, shadows obtrusively blue in nature. In another work by the same artist, "Weather Clearing, Dunraven, Glamorgan" (21), representing a discoloured sea, still breaking vexed and furious from the passing storm along the rugged Welsh coast, the same minute realisation is conjoined with truth of action and suggestiveness of motion in the waves and clouds more successfully than we ever remember to have witnessed, and in a way that affords noble promise, coming, as they do, from a comparatively young artist. Mr. Brett's picture of "Morant's Court" (137), with the hawthorn in blossom round the quaint old homestead, and the dandelions seeding in the rank grass of the foreground paddock, attains a great deal of delicately-detailed truth, but at the expense of hardness and some heaviness. Mr. MacCallum, by dint of painting broad twilight and evening effect, is rapidly passing from the stark anatomical precision of his early works. He has, perhaps, never exhibited anything so truly artistic as the large view of Rome and the Campagna, from Monte Mario, shortly after sundown, with the blue haze gathering beneath the dome of St. Peters, and the picturesque ilex groves of the Villa Mellini telling black against the deepening glow of the blood-red sky. Mr. Inchbold is another artist who is passing into a broader style; witness his view of "The Public Gardens, Venice, from the Sea" (500); yet respect for the actualities characteristic of an earnest seeker after truth is displayed in the unconventional masses of the distant, cold, dark-green foliage, forming so strong a contrast to the feluche and bragozi gliding before them like gaily-painted moths. The empty space of water in the foreground must be considered a fault of composition. In striving to imitate as much as possible of nature exactly as it is, the great risk is of losing relative balance in the picture—a result to which preceding remarks have already pointed. Take, for a last example, the masses of crude greens in Mr. E. Edwards's view, "By the Pond in Kempton Park, Sunbury" (306), where are few of the mitigating and compensating influences which would be felt in the freshest, most vernal season of the year, under similar conditions of real atmosphere and sunlight. M. Dommerson's "Rough Water off the Isle of Walcheren, Holland" (221) is as minutely painted as any picture we have mentioned; but the precise handling, the smooth texture, and the general effect are perhaps too plainly derived from study of the Vanderveldes and other Dutch masters. A great number of our younger artists, however, after a useful course of close adherence to the plain facts of simple views, minute copying of foreground "bits" and other landscape studies, are, of late, like Mr. MacCallum, treating more complex and extensive subjects in a true spirit of representation (not mere imitation) controlled in accordance with the necessary conditions of art. Of these none have made more rapid progress than Messrs. B. W. Leader and C. E. Johnson. Mr. Leader's two landscapes, "A Sunny Autumn Afternoon, North Wales" (317), and "Autumn's Last Gleam" (468), though rather less striking in subject than usual, are about as admirable as works pretending to no esoteric quality can well be. The last is an altogether delightful representation of a delightful view, barred and striped here and there with the long mellow evening rays of a sunny October day—deserving the prominent place accorded to it, and to be specially commended to the reader's attention. Mr. Johnson's coast scene, "A Hastings Trawler Going Out" (314), is equally admirable in its way, the facile handling, too, affording a special charm. The painting of the sea is specially to be commended. Note the discrimination of the sky reflections, the transparent shadows, and the transmitted lights. Other "rising" artists are Mr. G. Mawley, the excellent water-colourist of the Dudley Gallery, equally well represented here in the oil landscape, "The Brook at Evening" (278); Mr. C. P. Knight—see the thoroughly well-studied and pleasantly-coloured "Oxwich Bay, from Nicholaston" (187); H. Moore, "Near Hartland Abbey, North Devon" (51); N. O. Lupton, "Beech-trees in Winter" (280); H. Paton (a Scotch artist, not known in London so well as he deserves), "Lochaber No More" (370). Landscapes possessing assured merit, and that of a kind that seems to afford promise besides, are also contributed by Mr. J. Fairlie, "Devoke Water, Cumberland" (13); Mr. R. B. Beechy (419), Mr. E. N. Downard (444), and Mrs. W. Luker (45).

A few landscape-painters—good men and true, and of genuine English sympathies and characteristics—remain unmentioned, who, having assured themselves of a share of public appreciation, have comfortably settled into their respective styles and line of subject, subjects and styles, however, which are sufficiently well-known not to require definition anew. Such are the veteran J. J. Wilson—"Blowing Fast, Etretat, Normandy" (233); Vicat Cole—"Spring" (460); H. Jutsum—"The Stream Through the Woods" (592); F. W. Hulme—"An English Pastoral" (381); G. Sant—"Middleton Meadow, Isle of Wight" (477); T. Danby—"A New Bride for the Sea" (548); G. E. Hering—"Amalfi" (576); and T. F. Marshall—"The Way Across the Common" (393).

In conclusion, we may characterise generally a class of landscape work which is to be seen in much larger quantity in the gallery of the British Artists than at the Academy. Individually, the paintings of this class are usually of respectable and sometimes of excellent character as regards their mere workmanship; but in them the old exhibition-goer readily finds a routine sameness which smacks of studio manufacture as well as of nature. The scenery and class of subjects are the same the artists have painted for ten, twenty, thirty, any number of years; the effects are the same; the scheme of colouring is the same, and the same artifices are employed to express the same varieties of foliage. The stranger to these marketable productions may be at first seduced by the painter's cleverness and complete command over the resources of his craft; but soon he begins to entertain an uncomfortable suspicion that he is not quite fairly treated; that the work, while pretending to the extreme exactitude of the realistic school, has a license which the imaginativeness it does not possess would alone excuse. Familiarity only deepens this suspicion till, naturally enough, he will not credit them with the measure of fidelity to which they are really entitled. We feel it the more necessary to refer to the existence of this class of works because the systematic practice of landscape which produces them in such large quantities is manifestly not so much based on generally known and acknowledged principles of art as it has been empirically brought about in the effort (to meet the demands of dealers) to turn out a number of assistant family painters or pupils by cramming them during a short course of study from nature and the works of the manufacturing school with a stock in trade which shall serve for life.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Goethe's Faust. Translated by Theodore Martin. (William Blackwood and Sons.) There is no more successful translator than Mr. Theodore Martin, and his present attempt will add to the fame he has already acquired. He had before shown his mastery of German, and his facility in moulding the less pliant, so far as convenient terminations are concerned, English in his adaptation of the second part of "Faust;" and in the first part of the great German poem he has found a more congenial task and a better opportunity of displaying his accuracy, his delicate appreciation, and his happy elegance. Even when he comes into rivalry with Shelley he, to say the least of it, holds his own, and, as a whole, his translation may be pronounced the most perfect and the most readable which has yet appeared. And, so difficult and even thankless a task is it (for those who cannot read "Faust" in the original are not likely to be clamorous for the translation), that we do not look just yet for another. It seems odd that so correct a writer as Mr. Martin is should have given as the answer to Mephistopheles' question > Get you that girl? Which do you mean?

so ungrammatical an expression as (p. 130),

> She that went by but now.

And it jars upon one to read (p. 132),

> She will be with a neighbour. So
> You may, quite undisturb'd the while,
> Within her atmosphere beguile
> The time by dreaming, fancy free,
> Of pleasures afterwards to be:

for it is hard to dissociate the phrase "fancy free" from Shakspeare's

> In maiden meditation, fancy free, where it surely means something almost diametrically opposite to Mr. Martin's meaning. Of course, we may have lived for years in a state of ignorance; but it has always been our impression that Queen Elizabeth, according to the poet, "passed along" uninjured by the "love-shaft," and so was void of "fancy" in the sense in which the word is used in the lines "Oh, tell me where is fancy bred," &c.

Frost and Fire. By a Traveller. (Edinburgh: Edmonston and Douglas.) Two handsome volumes, enriched by very many quaint and wonderfully graphic illustrations. The traveller, there is reason to believe from a mysteriously written introduction, is Mr. J. F. Campbell; and the object of his book is best described in his own words:—"The following pages," he says, "are meant for readers who take pleasure in natural science, without being philosophers. They are records of things seen or learned, and of thoughts which sprang up while scenes were fresh or knowledge freshly gained; they are written by one who has no claim to scientific knowledge, and they are printed for people like himself. A traveller's book is not for learned professors, but for that vagrant class who wander and think for themselves—who think of something besides daily bread, or daily turtle and champagne: how to get ease and plenty, and how to get rid of time." The author has a remarkably original style, and his use of symbols to express certain forms and conditions is sometimes a little puzzling: and there is assuredly ground for his warning that "those who do not like rough work had better leave his book unread." Briefly, we may say that his purpose is to trace the effects upon the earth's crust of the natural forces frost and fire. The very covers of the volumes are devoted to this purpose, for on the upper cover of each volume is a pattern of "ice-marks at St. John, New Brunswick, on a slate rock in a street." Let it not, however, be supposed that there are no topics of a more exhilarating nature. There are to be found accounts of many stirring scenes such as one expects to be introduced to by him whose "holiday time has been spent in fishing, boating, and bathing in rivers and lakes and in the sea; in walking, riding, and shooting; in travelling over glaciers, and mountains, and desert moors; in driving where roads were to be found; in rowing and steaming in fjords, and along seacoasts, and over seas, amongst reefs and islands, and currents and icebergs; in scrambling about under ground where there were caves or mines to be explored." The narratives are to a great extent extracted from the writings of other travellers, and, indeed, it is generally difficult to know whether the author is quoting from his own or from others' diaries.

Lent Lectures on the Decalogue. By John Oakley, M.A. (Smith, Elder, and Co.) This is hardly the season for a Lenten entertainment, even of the literary kind. But an opinion seems to have prevailed amongst the churchgoers at St. James's, Piccadilly, that the Rev. Mr. Oakley's discourses during Lent, 1864, should be printed, and we have no reason to differ from those who were of that opinion. Certainly this is the year of grace 1865; but what held good with respect to the Decalogue in 1864 still, no doubt, holds good; and there is no objection on that score to the publication of Mr. Oakley's lectures. They seem likely to suit the requirements of a great many readers of sermons, and they appear to us decidedly "safe."

Like Unto Christ. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) A new translation of the celebrated "De Imitatione Christi." It is by no means certain that a fresh version was wanted, but, if it were, it could not be presented in more exquisite form, for a more sightly volume was never seen. It is unnecessary to recommend the work translated; it is impossible to do rigid justice to the translation with the time and space at our disposal; and it is, therefore, advisable to dismiss the book with the simple remark that the translation of the title is what may be considered, from one point of view, a "hit," and from another an affectation.

Mental Exertion in Relation to Health. Edited by Dr. Arthur Leared. (John Camden Hotten.) For ages Wisdom has cried at the corners of the streets and has been disregarded; and it seems, therefore, improbable that men will heed the printed advice of the late Dr. Amariah Brigham, of America, even under the auspices of Dr. Leared. The little book, no doubt, has merits; and recent events, amongst which the self-slaughter of an enthusiastic meteorologist and of an eminent banker must be still fresh in everybody's memory, seem to protest emphatically against over-stimulation of the brain; but the author of "Rab and his Friends" and many another popular writer have cried aloud against the same abuse—to no effect. It is with very faint hope, then, of doing any good that we call attention to Dr. Leared's little volume.

Hunting Sketches. By Anthony Trollope. (Chapman and Hall.) Let all who are in the habit of asking contemptuously "What 's in a name?" regard this neat little book. It has but 115 pages; its contents are merely a reprint of eight articles which appeared in the Pall Mall Gazette; and the articles are not remarkable for depth, vigour, humour, elegance, or any other characteristic. They are just light, pleasant, easy reading, lively enough, and apparently written by one who understands his subject. Had an ordinary man contributed them to any newspaper, they would probably have been applauded at the time and consigned to oblivion; but they had appended to them the name of Mr. Anthony Trollope.

"Self-Help;" ou, Caractère, Conduite, et Persévérance. Par Samuel Smiles. Traduit de l'Anglais par Alfred Talandier. (Paris: Henri Plon; London: John Murray.) There is no occasion to heap up words about the famous "Self-Help;" suffice it to say that "l'édition présente a été revue avec soin et en grande partie refaite; et les esquisses de Palissy, de Boettgher, de Papin, de Jacquard, de Philippe de Girard, de Heilmann, d'Ambroise Paré, de Callot, de Cellini, de Nicolas Poussin, d'Ary Scheffer, de St. François Xavier, de St. Vincent de Paul, de l'Abbé de Saint-Pierre, de Riquet de Bonrepos (génie presque entièrement oublié), de Richard Lenoir, et de plusieurs autres, paraissent pour la première fois dans cette édition-ci." And so, good speed!

Beatrice. By Julia Kavanagh. (Hurst and Blackett.) An exceedingly clever three-volume novel, with a combination of force and delicacy. The character of Beatrice is particularly well drawn and developed with careful elaboration. It may be objected that it is not every woman of Beatrice's type who has the chance of being chastened, and subdued, and perfected by alternate rises and falls of fortune, by being alternately on and off with her love, and by the hallowing influence of a charming boy and two twin daughters; but in a novel such things are allowable. It is not unlikely that in real life a Beatrice would lose her estates, and her love, and her mind—become a pauper lunatic, and be buried at the expense of the parish; but fiction covers a multitude of difficulties. The story is essentially worldly: the possession of wealth is made out to be the chief thing needful; one is kept in a state of continual bewilderment and indignation by the maze of intrigue and villany in which one is entangled; and the arch-villain is such an unctuous, selfish, sensual, cold-blooded, hypocritical scoundrel that one's gorge rises at him. He is a mixture of Count Fosco and Mr. Pecksniff. We do not mean to say that the author has copied from Mr. Wilkie Collins and Mr. Dickens; but Mr. Gervoise reminds us at one time of the velvet-pawed Count, at another of the slimy architect.

Violet Osborne. By Lady Emily Ponsonby. (Hurst and Blackett.) This three-volume novel tells how a highly-gifted but shy man is wooed by and wins a peerless beauty. For it is plain to the meanest capacity that Violet wooes Leicester, and is not wooed by him. It is wonderful how so slight a plot could be carried on through three volumes; but it is, and that with no little grace and piquancy, by means of large print and liberal margins. The five sisters are sometimes almost more than human nature can endure, and their knagging is as exasperating as the caterwauling at a midnight meeting of discordant cats. But, on the whole, the book is decidedly readable, and its tone is tolerably wholesome, though conventional. A born lady musn't think of marrying a grocer, however poor she may be, and however good and well-to-do he may be; and yet the same lady musn't marry a Baronet, for in that case she presumes as much as she would in the other case condescend. Really, it is very hard to please the perfectly correct Christian. A very proper, as the world thinks, regard is paid to Mammon; you should take care, if you wish to be happily married, to add Bank Stock to a stock of true religion. It will be seen, therefore, that the book contains nothing very deep, or very high, or very romantic; it is eminently suitable for the reading of the "comfortable classes." Let us add that most of the characters are sketched in graphic and lifelike style.

Grey's Court. Edited by Georgiana Lady Chatterton. (Smith, Elder, and Co.) The form in which this two-volume novel is written is a little bewildering; for we have, first of all, an autobiographical narrative by Lora Grey; then an autobiographical sketch by the Marquis de Chabanes; then the recollections of Règnier de Chabanes; and the story is completed, from hearsay, by Lora Grey's grandson, Edwin Grey, in a manner which suggests a confusion of identity between him and Lady Chatterton. Portions of the book are particularly readable, portions are tedious, portions are rhapsodical, portions are quasi-metaphysical, portions are (to us) incomprehensible. The quotations at the heads of the chapters overwhelm one with the learning displayed, for, from Plato to Jean Paul Richter, extracts are liberally showered upon the astounded reader, and one cannot help suspecting that the miraculous grammatical feat performed by a lady's eyes (vol. ii., p. 166) is told in language characteristic rather of Lady Chatterton than of anybody else, though Edwin Grey is made responsible for the description. "Her richly-coloured eyes," we read, "looked (what shall I call it?) conditional scorn—decided scorn, dependent on something undecided. Her eyes expressed scorn by ἂν with the optative." We have heard of the language of the eyes, and Greek is certainly as good a language as any other for them to speak; but to suppose that they should in modern times talk ancient Greek and bother themselves with particles (except of dust or other wind-blown matter) is too much to require of even scholars. Besides, there is reason to suppose that it was ἂν with the imperfect indicative, and not "ἂν with the optative," which Lora's beautiful eyes would have expressed. The book is full of murder, suspicion of murder, intrigue, escapes from prison, and duels; and its object seems to be to warn young men who are betrothed to girls just budding into womanhood to be careful how they behave at that critical period at which, as we learned lately, to our astonishment, from a contemporary, young ladydom is in so unsatisfactory a state of development that the feminine fancy may turn as readily to murder as to love. Lady Chatterton has some hints (useful ones we should think) to give about the behaviour young men should exhibit at that perilous juncture.

Donnington Hall. By the Rev. F. Talbot O'Donoghue, B.A. (Saunders, Otley, and Co.) This one-volume novel was "written to relieve a great sorrow," and it may have been published with the same purpose. It is theretore advisable to say no more about it than that it exalts High Church above Low Church and above Romanism; that it is not very interesting; and that it is sufficiently well written.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

AULD REEKIE.—We have mentioned more than once that the new chess periodical is published by Trübner and Co., of Paternoster-row, London.
SNOOKS.—It was explained last week. The first move should be, 1. Kt to K B 6th.
MONKBARNS, ASHTON.—See notice above to "Auld Reekie."
NEREUS.—1. Yes. 2. We shall give a short notice of the volume when we can find room, and that will be the proper opportunity for enforcing its claims.
I. A. H., Canada.—There is really nothing problematical in either of them, as you would soon have found if you had devoted your attention for a few months to the productions of D'Orville, Bolton, Campbell, Healey; I. B., of Bridport, &c. Try that course, and you will send us something very different to your last contribution.
H. W. B.—Simply a succession of checks, apparent at a glance.
EGROEG SEVORG.—Three of them are defective or pointless; the fourth, "No. 32," is passable.
F. A. G.—Yes; he can claim a second, third, fourth, Queen; as many Queens, in fact, as he has Pawns which reach the adverse royal line.
NEREUS.—It shall be duly examined.
W. F., Cardiff.—It is now under consideration.
W. BOSBING.—Such a scheme has often been suggested; but, from want of unanimity among English players, it has always proved fruitless.
SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1106 by Carlos, I. B., Samarcand, T. V., Oliver, M.P., Dryburgh, I. C. D., Larry, C. F. T., Nimrod, W. P., Annie, Box and Cox, Todgers, S. L. D., Histrion, B. P. E., Frank Wills, Julio, A. M., Manfred and Man Friday, E. S., Harry Hereward, Silas, T. P. C., Henry Frau, Lyons, Cosmos, T. C. D., Bachelor, F. C. S., G. W., Manxman, Egbert, Lucy, A Clerk, F. R. S., A Swede, Target, Snooks, H. W. B., Simon, G. R. B., Charlie, E. R., B. H. C., I. R., Guthin, Dan, The Chief, Aunt Sally, Li Calsi, Nereus; R. S., of Malines; D. C. L., Esmond, A Water Baby, Verdant, I. C., A. R. G., T. Addison, Tom Tiddler, Old Benbow, S. B., M. D., Chorister, Van G., Pugnose, Lily, M. E. D., Old Joe, Adelphi, Derevon, Bion; T. Q., of Hampstead; Percy, I. G. D.; H. W., of Oxford; Jerusalem, H. E. F., Marian, Felix, Civis, Bessie, G. D., Andrew, W. C. E., Fanny, Clericus, F. S. A., Oxoniensis, W. E. D., Tam O'Shanter, R. R. K., Auld Reekie, Sissa, A Schoolboy are correct. All others are wrong.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1107.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Q to Q Kt 3rd	takes Q, or (a)
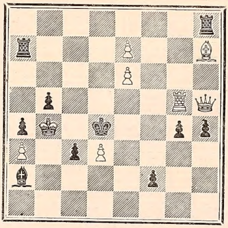
2. B to K B 8th	K to Q 5th

(If 2. R takes P, then follows 3. B takes P (ch), and mates next move.)

WHITE.	BLACK.
3. Kt tks P (dis. ch)	K moves
4. Kt to Q R 4th (ch), or B takes P (ch) and mates, according to Black's play.

WHITE.	BLACK.
(a) 1.	R to Q B 8th, or P to 8th, becoming a Kt



(If Black play 1. Kt to Q 5th, the reply is 2. Q to Q B 3rd, &c.)

WHITE.	BLACK.
2. P to Q 4th (ch)	K takes P (best)
3. Kt tks R (dis. ch)	K moves
4. Q mates

PROBLEM No. 1108.

By C. BAYER (Le Sphynx).

BLACK.

WHITE.

White, playing first, to mate in four moves.

CHESS IN BERLIN.

Game between Mr. DE RIVIERE and Mr. G. R NEUMANN, a very able German player and co-editor of the Neue Berliner Schachzeitung.—(Evans' Gambit.)

BLACK (Mr. de R.)	WHITE (Mr. N.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Q Kt P
5. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q B 4th
6. Castles	P to Q 3rd
7. P to Q 4th	P takes P
8. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd
9. Kt to Q B 3rd	Kt to Q R 4th

(This, or 9. P to K R 3rd, serves to avoid the terrible "Mortimer" attack, of which so much has been seen of late.)

BLACK (Mr. de R.)	WHITE (Mr. N.)
10. B to Q 3rd	Kt to K 2nd
11. Kt to Q R 4th	Castles
12. Kt takes B	Q R P takes Kt
13. B to Q Kt 2nd	Kt to K Kt 3rd
14. R to Q B sq	P to Q B 4th
15. Kt to Q 2nd	P to K B 3rd
16. P to K B 4th	P to K B 4th
17. Q to Q B 2nd	Q to K R 5th
18. P to K Kt 3rd	Q to Kt 5th
19. P to K 5th	P takes P
20. Q P takes P	B to K 3rd
21. Kt to Q B 4th	Kt takes Kt
22. B takes Kt	K R to K sq
23. B takes B (ch)	R takes B
24. Q to Q B 4th	Kt to K B sq
25. Q R to Q sq	Q to K Kt 3rd
26. R to Q 6th	Q to K B 2nd
27. K R to Q sq	R takes R
28. Q takes Q (ch)	K takes Q
29. R takes R	R to Q R 3rd

(Mr. Neumann appears to have played this game too timidly. He ought here to have taken the Q R Pawn.)

BLACK (Mr. de R.)	WHITE (Mr. N.)
30. P to Q R 3rd	P to Q Kt 4th
31. R to Q 5th	R to Q B 3rd
32. K to B 2nd	K to K 2nd
33. K to K 3rd	Kt to Q 2nd
34. B to Q B sq	Kt to Q Kt 3rd
35. R to Q 3rd	K to K 3rd
36. R to Q 8th	Kt to Q 4th (ch)
37. K to Q 3rd	P to Q Kt 5th

(White has now completely overcome the attack, and, with a Pawn more and an equal position, he ought, apparently, to have the game almost at command.)

BLACK (Mr. de R.)	WHITE (Mr. N.)
38. K to Q B 4th	Kt to Q B 2nd
39. P to Q R 4th	K to K 2nd
40. R to K Kt 8th	Kt to K sq
41. B to K 3rd	K to B 2nd
42. R to K R 8th	P to K R 3rd
43. P to Q R 5th	R to Q B sq
44. K to Kt 3rd	K to K 2nd
45. P to K R 3rd	K to Q 2nd
46. P to K Kt 4th	P takes P
47. P takes P	K to B 3rd
48. P to K B 5th	R to Q sq
49. P to K B 6th

(Well played.)

BLACK (Mr. de R.)	WHITE (Mr. N.)
49.	R to Q 6th (ch)
50. K to Q B 2nd	R to Q B 6th (ch)

(Had he taken the Bishop, Black would have won by P to K B 7th.)

BLACK (Mr. de R.)	WHITE (Mr. N.)
51. K to Q 2nd	Kt takes P
52. P takes Kt	P takes P
53. R takes K R P	K to Kt 4th
54. R takes K B P	K takes P
55. P to K Kt 5th	P to Q B 5th
56. R to B 5th (ch)	K to R 5th
57. R to Q 5th	R to Q R 6th
58. P to Kt 6th	P to B 6th (ch)
59. K to K 2nd	K to Kt 6th
60. R to Q 8th	R to Q R 3rd
61. P to Kt 7th	R to K Kt 3rd
62. P "Queens"	R takes Q
63. R takes R	K to B 7th
64. R to K Kt sq	P to Kt 6th
65. R to Q B sq (ch)	K to Kt 7th
66. K to Q 3rd	P to B 7th
67. K to Q 7th, and wins.

CHESS MATCH BETWEEN NORWICH AND LYNN.—This match was played at the Athenæum, Lynn, on Wednesday week, the proceedings exciting great interest; and after the close of the play the members of the Norwich club were most sumptuously entertained by their friendly antagonists. One of the Norwich eight being unexpectedly prevented at the last moment from attending, Mr. H. R. Household, the secretary of the Lynn club, was unfortunately excluded from the contest, to the regret of all. The following is the score:—

BOARD.	LYNN.	WON.	NORWICH.	WON.	DRAWN.
(1)	Mr. Stocking	0	Mr. Howard Taylor	3	—
(2)	Mr. Atmore	0	Rev. W. D. Beard	1	—
(3)	Mr. Hastings	0	Mr. Rainger	2	—
(4)	Mr. Self	2	Mr. Crook	1	—
(5)	Mr. Bennett	1	Mr. Thurgar	1	1
(6)	Mr. Bray	2	Mr. W. T. Palmer	1	—
(7)	Mr. Kendle	0	Mr. G. C. L. Knight	3	—

There are seventy-four tribes of Indians, numbering 268,279 souls, in the United States territories. The Californian tribes are the most numerous, and the Pottawatomies of Huron the least so—the former numbering 33,500 and the latter only fifty.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE DUKE D'HARCOURT.

Eugène (Francis Gabriel) Duke d'Harcourt, the head and representative of one of the most ancient and noted families in Europe, whose death has just occurred in Paris, was born Aug. 22, 1786, and succeeded in the dukedom his brother, Duke Alphonso (Francis Maria), Oct. 5, 1840. Eugène Duke d'Harcourt, the subject of this notice, passed an active and honourable career amid the stirring events and vicissitudes of the last fifty years in France. He was French Ambassador to Spain in 1830, and became a Peer of France in 1837. One of the last public acts of the venerable Duke, who was very popular, was to assist at the fête inaugurating, in 1862, in the church of Dines, in Normandy, a companion Roll to that of Battle Abbey—viz., the Roll of those who were companions of the Conqueror throughout the Conquest of England. The Duke d'Harcourt married, April 18, 1807, Aglaé Terray, by whom he had (with a daughter, Henriette, wife of Count Leon d'Ursel) three sons—Henry, who died in 1846, leaving three sons and a daughter; John, an officer in the French navy; and Bernard, formerly French Envoy at Stutgardt. The Duke is succeeded by his grandson, his son Henry's elder son, Francis (Charles Maria), present Duke d'Harcourt, who was born in 1835, and who is an officer in the French army. This house of Harcourt boasts of a genealogy as old as any known one in the world, and, in fact, the heralds carry back the line to a fabulous era, and bring the descent from Antenor of Troy. This may or may not be so, but undoubtedly the Harcourts are of the Royal blood of Saxony, and have been famous in Normandy from the time of Rollo. A scion of the family came to England with the Conqueror, and his descendant was Viscount Harcourt, Lord Chancellor of England, ancestor of Field Marshal Earl Harcourt, whose representative is the present Rev. William Vernon Harcourt, of Nuneham-Park, Oxon, Prebendary of York. In France there have been two Bishops, four Marshals, an Admiral, and sundry other official and political celebrities of the family of Harcourt. The Harcourts were Counts in 1338, and their dukedom was created in 1746, their title coming from their seat, Harcourt, four leagues from Caen. A branch of the late Duke of Harcourt's family has been, in recent time, naturalised in England, and it is now represented by George Trevor Douglas Bernard, Marquis d'Harcourt, younger son of the late Duke's brother, Amedius; the elder son, William Bernard d'Harcourt, of St. Leonards, Berks, died in 1846, leaving by his wife, Elizabeth Georgiana Harriet, daughter of the Hon. General Henry F. C. Cavendish, three daughters—viz., Marie d'Harcourt, Maria, and Alice.

SIR DAVID DAVIES, K.C.H., M.D.

Sir David Davies, K.C.H., M.D., physician to King William IV., who died at Lucca, in Italy, on the 10th inst, was the scion of an old Welsh family, and was the only son of Robert Davies, Esq., of Llwyn, in the county of Cardigan. He was born in 1793, and adopted early in life the medical profession. He was for some years in successful practice at Hampton, Middlesex, when he was appointed domestic physician to William IV. and Queen Adelaide. He attended King William in his last illness, and received the Guelphic Order a few days before that Monarch's decease. He was Knighted by Queen Victoria, shortly after her Majesty's accession. Sir David Davies married, in 1819, Mary Anne, youngest daughter of the Rev. John Williams, of Ystrudmenie, Cardiganshire.

JOHN OGDEN, ESQ.

This highly-respected gentleman, whose death, which occurred at Hastings, on the 9th inst., will be heard of with regret in Manchester, and by the legal profession and all who know him, was born in 1803, and was, during his earlier life, in practice as a solicitor. He was, some five-and-twenty years ago, appointed Clerk of the Peace of the newly constituted corporate borough of Manchester, and he continued in that office when the town became a city, and down to the time of his demise. During that long period he fulfilled the duties of his post with high integrity and remarkable assiduity and courtesy, and gave constant and general satisfaction. Mr. Ogden was called to the Bar in 1850, and went the Northern Circuit. He was married, and leaves a family.

THE LATE CHAMPION DYMOKE.—To the Editor.—I observe in your last week's paper some interesting observations on the death and pedigree of the late Sir Henry Dymoke, in which you state that from Sir Edward Dymoke, who was Champion to Charles II., springs, in the female line, a junior branch of the champion's family, now represented by Edmund Lionel Welles, Esq. As that Edmund Lionel Welles, and as a representative of the Dymoke family, will you permit me to correct this statement, since I cannot allow myself to be designated of the junior branch. My ancestor, Sir Edward Dymoke, who performed the office of King's Champion to Charles II., had four sons—1st, Charles; 2nd, Edward, my ancestor; 3rd, Nicholas; and 4th, John, the ancestor of the late Sir Henry Dymoke. Charles, the eldest son, succeeded his father, and performed the office of King's Champion to James II.; and left two sons, Charles and Lewis, the elder of whom, Charles, performed the office of Champion to Queen Anne, and died without issue. He was succeeded by his brother Lewis, who died a bachelor, and alienated the estates, for the first time since their grant in 1377, to Sir John Dymoke, in right of his wife Margaret. He did so by devising them to the issue of John, the fourth son, instead of to the issue of Edward, the second son, of the above Sir Edward Dymoke, Champion to Charles II. I nevertheless have not my position altered by this devise, and, of course, as descending from Edward, the second son, am of a senior line to that of the present champion. In additional proof that I am not a junior branch, I may state that, when the elder brother of the late Rev. John Dymoke, the father of Sir Henry Dymoke just dead, prosecuted his claim for the barony of Marmion before the House of Lords, and had made good his claim to our common ancestor, Sir Edward Dymoke, my father put in a counter claim by petition, presented by Lord Redesdale, and was acknowledged heir general to the family of Dymoke. As to the devise by Lewis Dymoke, of the Scrovelsby estate, I have my doubts, in consequence of the attachment of the championship to the estate; for, if the Scrovelsby estate can be devised, by the same law it can also be sold, and the office of King's Champion attached to this estate would become the property of any purchaser, any John Doe or Richard Roe, however unchivalrous he may be.—EDMUND LIONEL WELLES, 33, Gloucester-square, Hyde Park.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

Probate of the will of the Right Hon. Mary, Dowager Countess of Amherst, formerly of Knole Park, Sevenoaks, Kent, but late of Bournemouth, near Christchurch, Hants, was proved in her Majesty's Court, on the 12th ult., and the personalty sworn under £140,000; the executors being her nephew, the Right Hon. Mortimer Sackville West (the third surviving son of the Earl and Countess Delawarr), and Frederick Fied Nicholl, Esq. The trustees are the Earl of Verulam and Bernard Hale, Esq., of Holly Hill, Tunbridge Wells. The testatrix was the eldest daughter and coheir of the third Duke of Dorset (title now extinct), and was twice married—first, in 1811, to Other Archer, sixth Earl of Plymouth, who died in 1833 (title now extinct); and secondly, in 1839, to William Pitt, first Earl Amherst, P.C., G.C.H., who had been Ambassador to China and Governor General of India, and died in 1857. Her Ladyship's will is dated 1860, and there are two codicils, executed in February and May, 1864. Her Majesty having been graciously pleased to grant the dignity of Baroness to the testatrix's sister, Elizabeth, Countess Delawarr, by the title of Baroness of Buckhurst, with remainder of dignity of Baron Buckhurst to her sister's second surviving son (the testatrix's nephew), the Hon. and Rev. Reginald Windsor Sackville West, Rector of Wittingham, and Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen. The testatrix, by a codicil, has conveyed her estates in the counties of Kent, Warwick, Gloucester, and Sussex, and all other estates, together with the statues, pictures, furniture, and effects about the mansion of Knole in trust, in a course of entail, to correspond as nearly as may be with the title of the Barony of Buckhurst. Her jewels and ornaments of the person she leaves to her niece, Lady Arabella Diana Sackville West. All wines and consumable stores her Ladyship has bequeathed to her sister, Countess Delawarr, whom she has appointed residuary legatee. There are a few legacies to personal friends, and to each of the executors and trustees £500.

The will of the Hon. Gerbrand Faas Elias, of the city of Amsterdam, was administered to in the London Court by Nichola Jacobus Van Limmock, the younger, of Amsterdam, the sole executor appointed for England. The testamentary document is translated from the Dutch, and contains no bequests or dispositions, but is simply confined to the appointment of an executor to obtain that portion of his property invested and embarked in this country, and which was estimated at £20,000.

The will of Charles Deane, Esq., of Keekle-grove, Whitehaven, Cumberland, and 61, Lincoln's-inn-fields, was proved in the London court by his nephew, Anthony Parker, Esq., of Shanew Bay, Cumberland, the sole executor. The personal property was sworn under £40,000. The testator died at the age of seventy-eight, and had retired from the legal profession. He was for many years a member of the West-End clubs—viz., the Carlton, Conservative, Garrick, and Union, and also of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club; was a nephew of Captain Deane, R.N., of her Majesty's ship Lowestoffe, 61, who distinguished himself at the siege of Quebec, in 1760. His will bears date December, 1855, by which he leaves to his two sisters a life-interest in his real estates, and upon their decease he devises the same to his said nephew and executor, who is also appointed residuary legatee. There are a few legacies to some of his personal friends. He has bequeathed to his man-servant, Robert Hall, a legacy of £1000, and all his wearing apparel, linen, &c., and mourning for himself and wife. All legacies to be paid free of duty.

We are requested to announce the reopening of the Malta and Alexandria Telegraph; the repairs on the section of the line which was interrupted between Benghezi and Alexandria having been completed.

The Queen has appointed Francis Gerbard Myburgh, Esq., her Majesty's Consul at Nagasaki, to be Consul at Kanagawa; Francis Howard Vyse, Esq., her Majesty's Consul at Hakodadi, to be Consul at Nagasaki; and Abel A. J. Gower, Esq., to be Consul at Hakodadi.——The Queen has approved of Don Juan Pisani as Consul at Gibraltar for the Emperor of Mexico; Mr. Alfred Rimmer as Consul at Montreal for the King of Denmark; and of Mr. Johann Heinrich Danelsburg as Consul at Singapore for the Free Hanseatic City of Hamburg.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

VIOLET OSBORNE. By LADY EMILY PONSONBY, Author of "The Discipline of Life," &c. 3 v.
ALEC FORBES OF HOWGLEN. By GEORGE MACDONALD, M.A., Author of "David Elginbrod."
A FAITHFUL WOMAN. By the Author of "Cousin Geoffrey," &c. 3 vols.
LISABEE'S LOVE STORY. By the Author of "John and I," "Dr. Jacob," &c. 3 vols.
CARRY'S CONFESSION. By the Author of "High Church," "Owen," "Mattie," &c. 3 vols.
BEATRICE. By JULIA KAVANAGH. 3 vols.
CHRISTIAN'S MISTAKE. By Author of John Halifax. "A more charming story has rarely been written."—Times.
THE CURATE OF SADBROOKE. 3 vols.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

DEDICATED TO THE RIGHT HON. W. E. GLADSTONE.
Now ready, Vol. I., with above 100 Illustrations,

THE LIFE OF JOSIAH WEDGWOOD. From his Private Correspondence and Family Papers in the possession of Joseph Mayer, Esq., F.S.A.; Francis Wedgwood, Esq.; C. Darwin, Esq., M.A., F.R.S.; Miss Wedgwood, and other original sources; with an Introductory Sketch of the Art of Pottery in England. By ELIZA METEYARD.
"This is 'The Life of Wedgwood,' to the expected appearance of which I referred at Burslem."—Extract from a letter to the author by the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Now ready, at all the Libraries,

BRIGAND LIFE IN ITALY. By Count MAFFEI. 2 vols.
HISTORIC PICTURES. By A. BAILLIE COCHRANE, M.P. 2 vols. 21s.
YACHTING ROUND THE WEST OF ENGLAND. By the Rev. A. G. L'ESTRANGE, R.T.Y.C. Illustrated. 15s.
IMPRESSIONS OF LIFE AT HOME AND ABROAD. By Lord EUSTACE CECIL. 14s.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK. Price 7s. 6d. Seventy-sixth Thousand, revised and enlarged, and fully illustrated. "The best book of its class yet produced."—Illustrated London News.—London: LONGMAN and Co.

Ninth Edition, with 26 Plates, price 1s., postage-free,

STAINED GLASS, by the Improved Transfer Process of Diaphanie; easily performed by any person, at small cost.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

New Edition, with Drawings in Colour, price 2s. 6d.; post-free, 2s. 10d.,

A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON LANDSCAPE PAINTING AND SKETCHING FROM NATURE. By JOHN CHASE, M.W.C.I. Edited by the Rev. J. Harris, M.A.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st.

Price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,

MONOGRAMS and CYPHERS, Modern and Gothic (Handbooks of), by VICTOR TOUCHE, London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Third Edition, price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,

ALPHABETS and DESIGNS of DIFFERENT PERIODS, for the Use of Illuminators and Decorators, by F. C. WOOD.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 6d., postage-free,

PHOTO-CHROMOGRAPHY; an Easy Method of Colouring Photographs (producing a beautifully enamelled appearance), which may be practised by any person unaccustomed to drawing and ignorant of art. By M. C. C. London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Fifth Edition, with 12 Diagrams printed in colours, price 2s.,

PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, Draperies, Backgrounds, &c. A guide to Painting in Water Colours; to which is added Instructions for Painting in Oil Colours. By A. N. RINTOUL.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st. W.

Price 3s. 6d.,

ON THE TREATMENT OF ENLARGED TONSILS, at any Period of Life, without the Operation of Excision. By WILLIAM J. SMITH, M.B., Lond.; Surgeon to the Islington Dispensary, &c.—R. HARDWICKE, Piccadilly.

Just published, post-free,

TEETH.—GABRIEL'S Pamphlet explains the only effectual mode of supplying Teeth, without pain, at half the usual charge.—27, Harley-street, W.

120 SHEETS OF NOTE-PAPER for 6d.; 120 thick ditto for 1s.; 120 sheets ditto, black-bordered, for 1s.; 250 useful Envelopes for 9d.; 1000 extra large ditto for 4s. 6d.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Pleasanter to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, well adapted for the steel pen, and cheaper than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 25, Oxford-street.

DANCE PROGRAMMES (Perfumed); Invitation and At-Home Note-paper; Return Thanks; Bordered Note-papers; Dinner Lists; Dish and Dessert Papers; Household Papers.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street.

MONOGRAM, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES cut at half price, and remain the property of the customer. No charge for plain stamping; coloured stamping reduced to 1s. per 100. Writing-paper and Envelopes supplied to the public at wholesale prices.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street, W.

BIRTHDAY PRESENTS,
WEDDING PRESENTS,
CHRISTENING PRESENTS.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PURSES, pocket-books, cigar-cases, card-cases, wallets, opera-glasses, scent-bottles (double and single); pencil-cases; fans, note-cases, &c., the largest Stock in London. N.B. Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon prepayment.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-st.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for presents.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.

500 DRESSING-CASES and DRESSING-BAGS, of the best manufacture, and fitted in the most complete manner for ladies or gentlemen. DESPATCH-BOXES, INK-STANDS, ENVELOPE-CASES, BOOK-SLIDES, RETICULES, PURSES, BLOTTING-BOOKS, &c. The public supplied at TRADE PRICES.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-st., London.

2s. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pen-case, &c., can be sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom upon receipt of 28 stamps to PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

THE NEW CROQUET DEPARTMENT PARKINS and GOTTO'S. Prices 15s., 18s., 21s., 25s., 30s., 35s., 40s., and upwards, including Book of Rules. Warranted of seasoned woods, and sent carriage-paid to any railway station upon prepayment.—Parkins and Gotto, 25, Oxford-street, W.

THE FAVOURITE SET of CROQUET, Full Size, for 30s., including Book of Rules, in strong box. Sent carriage-paid to any railway station in England, upon receipt of P. O. order.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 24, Oxford-street, W.

CROQUET.—Nice Present to Children. PARKINS and GOTTO'S 15s. set of Croquet, the cheapest in London, sent into the country, carriage-paid, on receipt of P. O. order.—Parkins and Gotto, 25, Oxford-street, London, W.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of art. Note-paper and envelopes stamped in colour relief, and illuminated in the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, in handsome antique morocco and russia bindings; also in ormolu, walnut, and coromandel. Albums for monograms, crests, and postage-stamps.—At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Ball Programmes and Bills of Fare printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

PARIS.—GALLERY of the DUC DE MORNY.
The SALE of the COLLECTION of
ANCIENT AND MODERN PAINTINGS,
the property of the late Duc De Morny,
consisting of the masterpieces of the first painters of the Flemish, Dutch, French, and Spanish schools, will take place in PARIS, at the Palace of the Presidency of the Legislative Body, on WEDNESDAY, the 31st of MAY; Thursday, the 1st, Friday, the 2nd; and Saturday, the 3rd, of June, 1865.
The Sale of the important
COLLECTION OF OBJECTS OF ART AND CURIOSITIES,
consisting of porcelain, bronze ornaments, enamels in frames, jade, rock crystal, and other valuable objects from China and Japan, several ancient snuffboxes of the reigns of Louis XV. and Louis XVI., porphyry vases, marble sculpture, furniture, &c., will also take place at said Palace of the Presidency, on TUESDAY, the 6th, Wednesday, the 7th, Thursday, the 8th, Friday, the 9th, Saturday, the 10th, and Monday, the 12th, of JUNE, at Two o'Clock precisely.
General Exhibition:—
Private, on Thursday, the 25th, Friday, the 26th, and Saturday the 27th, of May.
Public, on Sunday, the 28th, and Monday, the 29th, of May, from One to Five o'Clock.
Catalogues may be obtained, from the 4th of May inst., in Paris, of—
M. Charles Pillet, the Auctioneer, 11, Rue de Choiseul;
M. Eugène Escribe, Auctioneer, 217, Rue St. Honoré;
M. Ferdinand Laneuville, Appraiser, 73, Rue Neuve des Mathurins;
M. Horsin Déon, Appraiser, 1, Rue Chabanais;
M. Francis Petit, Appraiser, 43, Rue de Provence;
M. Mannheim, Appraiser, 10, Rue de la Paix;
M. Roussel, 20, Rue de Victoire;
M. Malinet, Dealer in Curiosities, 25, Quai Voltaire
and in London of
Mr. Colnaghi, 14, Pall-mall East;
Mr. Webb, 22, Cork-street, Burlington-gardens
Mr. Durlacher, 113, New Bond-street;
Mr. Annoot, 16, Old Bond-street;
Mr. Davis, 101, New Bond-street; or of
Mr. Gambart, 120, Pall-mall.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Grand Attraction, Saturday, May 20.—Flower Show.—The famous Drawing-room Plant Cases in great variety, furnished with the choicest exotic plants, arranged by BARR and SUGDEN, of 12, King street, Covent-garden, W.C.

ARCHERY PRIZES, Fancy-Fair and Bazaar Novelties.—EDWARDS and JONES beg to call the attention of the Nobility, Clergy, and Gentry to their extensive and varied Stock of Attractive Novelties suitable for the above purposes, and to which fresh novelties are being daily added.
161, Regent-street, W., London.

PRIVATE CARTES DE VISITE. REDUCTION IN PRICE.—Twelve for 10s., or Twenty-five for £1. When Twenty-five are ordered two positions are given, and specimen copies are submitted. Enlargements made from any small picture, and finished in oil, water, or crayon, from £5 5s. to £105, according to the size and style.—LONDON STEREOSCOPIC COMPANY, Photographers to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 110 and 108, Regent-street; and 54, Cheapside.

THE FIVE-SHILLING ILLUMINATING COLOUR BOX contains twelve superfine Colours, body, white, gold, aluminium, and brushes.—J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st., London; and all Artists' Colourmen, &c.

THE PHOTOCHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to colour photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with twelve colours, all materials, specimen, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

THE LITTLE MODELLER.—How to Make a Model Village, 48 Coloured Engravings, post-free for 7 stamps; a Model Railway, 7 stamps; Windsor Castle, 7 stamps; a Model Farm, 7 stamps; a Wreck Ashore, 7 stamps; a Model Race-course, 7 stamps; a Cricket Field, 7 stamps; a Watering-place, 7 stamps; Shakspeare's Birthplace, 7 stamps; Ann Hathaway's Cottage, 7 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and Co., 252, Strand.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Six. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and the RECONNOITERER GLASS, 10s. 10d., sent free.—This "Tourist's Favourite" distinctly shows small windows ten miles off, landscape at thirty miles, Jupiter's moons, &c.—The Marquis of Carmarthen: "The reconnoiterer is very good." Earl of Breadalbane: "I find it all you say, and wonderfully powerful for so very small a glass." Lord Garvagh: "Remarkably good." Rev. Lord Scarsdale "approves of it." Lord Gifford, of Ampney: "Most useful." Sir Digby Cayley: "It gives me complete satisfaction, and is wonderfully good." Major Starkey, of Wrenbury Hall: "Quite as powerful as that for which I gave £5 5s." Captain Sendey, Royal Small-arms Factory, Enfield: "I have found it effective at the 1000 yards' range." F. H. Fawkes, Esq., of Farnley: "I never before, although I have tried many, met a glass combining so much power for its size with so much clearness." The Field: "We have found it fully equal to others which had cost more than four times its price." Notes and Queries: "What tourist will now start without such an indispensable companion?" The celebrated "Hythe" Glass shows bullet-marks at 1200 yards, and men at 3½ miles. Price 31s. 6d. All the above, respectively bearing the registered trade marks, "Salom," "Reconnoiterer," and "Hythe," are only to be had direct from SALOM and CO., 98, Prince's-street, Edinburgh.
No agents of any kind anywhere.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.—OPERA-GLASSES in every variety of form and mounting, matchless for their great magnifying power and sharpness of definition, at CALLAGHAN'S, 23A, New Bond-street (corner of Conduit-street), W. Sole Agent for the celebrated Field and Opera Glasses made by Voigtländer, Vienna.

THE DERBY.—"The best and cheapest Race-Glass is the newly-constructed one manufactured by Callaghan." Price, including sling case, 50s. Post-office orders have immediate attention.—WM. CALLAGHAN, Optician, 23A, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Conduit-street).

THE PLANET JUPITER, when magnified 250 times with the new £5 TELESCOPE, appears seven times as large as the moon is to the naked eye; and the other planetary bodies proportionately. It will also distinguish the face of a sheep and features of a man four miles, shot marks upon a target two miles, and time by a church clock ten miles. This instrument is guaranteed, in writing, to perform the whole of the above, and to be equal in the most important respects to telescopes costing £70. It has a 3-in. superior achromatic object-glass, two eyepieces, &c., with portable metal tripod stand with jointed claw feet. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by book post.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. High-power small pocket Telescopes, opera, race, field, and general outdoor glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Weighs three ounces, and occupies less room than a card-case. Price 21s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the combined purposes of the opera, race, and general outdoor use.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE ACHROMATIC SPECTACLE LENSES, registered by S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians to the Government, 24th December, 1863, No. 4610.—"The great advantage and benefit derived from the use of these lenses need no comment."—Vide "Sir David Brewster on Optics," page 57; and Sir William Herschel, page 22.—39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. Copies of testimonials from the principal ophthalmic hospitals sent post-free.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

TEETH WITHOUT PAIN and WITHOUT SPRINGS.—OSTEO-EIDON for Artificial Teeth. Equal to Nature.
Messrs. GABRIEL, 27, Harley-street; and 64, Ludgate-hill.

TEETH.—GABRIEL'S GUTTA-PERCHA ENAMEL prevents Toothache and arrests Decay. Price 1s. 6d. per box.—27, Harley-street, and 64, Ludgate-hill, London; 134, Duke-street, Liverpool; 65, New-street, Birmingham.

TEETH.—By Mr. ESKELL'S INVENTION. (Patent granted July 17, 1860).—Sets or partial sets of teeth, exquisitely enamelled to nature, are made and fitted in a few hours, without the extraction of stumps or giving the slightest pain. They support loose teeth, and act independently of all disturbing causes, and are guaranteed to last a lifetime, as well as for mastication and articulation. A treatise, which fully explains the above, free for seven stamps. Consultation free. Terms strictly moderate.—8, Grosvenor-street, Bond-street, W.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, free from acidity or heat, and much superior to low-priced Sherry. One guinea per dozen. Excellent Clarets, 18s. and 24s. per dozen. Terms cash. Three dozen, rail paid.—W. D. WATSON, Wine Merchant, 73, Great Russell-st. (corner of Bloomsbury-sq.), London, W.C.—Established 1841.

PALE SHERRY at 36s. per Dozen, fit for a gentleman's table. Bottles and Cases included. Terms, Cash. Post Orders payable Piccadilly.
Samples sent free of charge.
CHARLES WARD and SON
(Established upwards of a century), 1, Chapel-street West, May-fair, W., London.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 8d., at the retail houses in London; by the agents in the principal towns in England; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The MARCH BREWINGS of the above Ale are now being SUPPLIED in the finest condition, in Bottles and in Casks, by FINDLATER, MACKIE, and CO., 33, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, pronounced by Connoisseurs "THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE."
None genuine without name on wrapper, label, bottle, and stopper.
Sold by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Barclay and Sons, and by Grocers and Oilmen universally.

MENIER'S FRENCH CHOCOLATE defies all honest competition. The healthiest and most delicious aliment for breakfast. Unadulterated; highly nutritious. Annual consumption exceeds 4,000,000 lb. Menier, 23, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden; and sold retail by all respectable houses.

CHOCOLAT-MENIER.
The best aliment for Breakfast.

Yellow wrapper	2s. 0d.	per lb.
Chamois ditto	2s. 6d.	"
Pink ditto	3s. 0d.	"
Blue ditto	3s. 6d.	"
Flavoured with Vanille.
Green wrapper	2s. 6d.	per lb.
Lilac ditto	3s. 0d.	"
Bronze ditto	3s. 6d.	"
White ditto	4s. 0d.	"

Sold, in ¼ lb. packets, by all respectable Houses.
Wholesale, 23, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden.

THE
ONLY PRIZE MEDAL, 1862, awarded to any English Manufacturers of CHOCOLATE and COCOA, was obtained by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.
Prize Medals, 1851, 1853, 1855, and 1862.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.
FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA, IN PACKETS SECURED IN TINFOIL.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is made, have rendered it a standard article of GENERAL CONSUMPTION.
It is equally adapted for invalids and others, and is highly approved and strongly RECOMMENDED BY MEDICAL MEN.

THE ONLY PRIZE-MEDAL CORN FLOUR.
MAIZENA.
Reported by the Jury "Exceedingly excellent for food." Costs no more than inferior articles.

BROWN AND POLSON'S PATENT CORN FLOUR, recommended for use with Stewed Fruit of all kinds.

OSWEGO
PREPARED CORN, for Puddings, Custards, Blancmanges, &c.,
Manufactured and Perfected by
T. KINGSFORD and SON,
of Oswego, State of New York.
It is the original preparation from the farina of maize, established 1848, commands the highest price from the trade, and offers the best value to the consumer.
It is stronger than any of the imitations, has a finer grain, and is more delicate.
The Oswego has the natural golden tinge, and not the chalk white produced by artificial process.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

LETTERS PATENT, 1823. PRIZE MEDAL, 1862.
ROBINSON'S PATENT GROATS is the most valuable preparation for making pure and delicate gruel. Modern chemistry has shown that this food is easy of digestion and rich in nutriment.
ROBINSON'S PATENT BARLEY makes a delicious custard-pudding, directions for which have been given by Mons. C. E. Francatelli. It is appreciated as a non-inflammatory drink, is excellent for mothers nursing, and has long been used with great success for rearing children by hand.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

KEEN'S GENUINE MUSTARD.
First Manufactured A.D. 1742,
or more than
ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY YEARS.
This well-known brand of Mustard has been sold by the trade of Great Britain for more than a century, and is held in high estimation for its purity and pungency of flavour. The qualities that are recommended for family use are the Double Superfine and the Genuine, both of which can be obtained from most Family Grocers, in canisters of 1 lb. and ½ lb. each.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.
COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD bears their trade mark, the Bull's Head, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1862.
For domestic purposes nothing finer can be produced. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 26, Cannon-street, London.

COLMAN'S STARCH obtained Prize Medals,
International Exhibitions, 1851, 1862.
Report—"Superior Quality, with large Production."

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

SPRING.—WATTS'S ALKALINE SOLUTION OF SARSAPARILLA.—This fine purifier of the Blood in scrofulous affections, chronic rheumatism, indigestion, &c., so frequently prescribed by the medical profession, is to be had wholesale of Messrs. Barclay and Sons, Farringdon-street, and retail of all Druggists. In bottles at 4s. 6d. and 10s. 6d. each.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Stomachic Disorders of every kind and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

CONSUMPTION.—DR. CHURCHILL'S Successful Treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Chest, Chronic Cough, General Debility, Loss of Appetite, &c., by Hypophosphites, prepared by H. H. Swann, of Paris. Full prospectuses, testimonials, and medicines, of DINNEFORD and CO., Chemists, 172, New Bond-street, W., wholesale and retail agents.

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS give instant relief of Asthma, Consumption, Colds, Coughs, &c.
Price 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box, of all Druggists.

SUMMERS'S CASTOR-OIL PILLS (a safe Substitute for Castor Oil). For Bilious and Liver Complaints. Wind, Headache, and Drowsiness. Sold by all Chemists; or a box sent by post from the Proprietor, Mr. Summers, Chemist, 43, Curtain-road, London, for 15 stamps.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER; it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or constitutional causes.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-street; Prout, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

HAND-EMBROIDERED COURT TRAINS.
GRANT and GASK are now exhibiting a Splendid Collection of hand-embroidered Court Trains, also Rich Embossed and Plain Satins. Illustrations of made-up Court Trains free on application.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

MOIRE ANTIQUES.—GRANT and GASK invite especial notice to a large purchase of most beautiful Moire Antiques, in all the new colours, at 4½ to 5½ guineas the Full Dress, of the richest quality. Patterns free.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FOULARD SILKS.—A Great Variety of New French Foulard Silks, best quality, at 38s. 6d. the Full Dress. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FANCY SILKS.—Patterns forwarded of new and beautiful Fancy Silks, from 2½ guineas the Full Dress of 14 yards. Any length cut.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FRENCH SILK and WOOL GRENADINES. Patterns forwarded of a very large purchase at 1s. 2½d. per yard.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

MADE-UP DRESSES and COSTUMES for MORNING and SEASIDE wear, in a variety of new and useful fabrics; also French Percale Suits in quite new designs.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

NEW MANTLES and SHAWLS.—The Mantle and Shawl Departments are fully supplied with an unusually large assortment of NEW and CHOICE GOODS at most moderate prices. An immense Stock of LACE SHAWLS and ROTONDES, greatly under value. Illustrated Fashion-books forwarded free. GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FRENCH KID GLOVES.—250 Dozens of Calvat's best Paris Kid Gloves, at 2s. 6d. per pair, usual price 3s. 3d. Sample pair by post.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY (now opened).
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, £1 15s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 yards, £2 2s.
Patterns of New Ribbed Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
A large assortment of New Patterns, £2 5s. 6d. for 14 yards.
Black Gros Grains, Black Gros de Suez.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

SUMMER CHALLIS.—Patterns free. Checks and Striped Summer Mohairs, a large variety of useful Dresses cut by the yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

LENO and MUSLIN CURTAINS.—Double borders, 4 yards long, 12s. 6d. per pair. A cheap lot of New Patterns, 18s. 6d. 4½ yards long.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips,
Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

FORD'S NEW JACKETS FOR LADIES, at 76, Oxford-street, opposite the Pantheon, London, W., comprise a large number of beautifully braided patterns in Silk, Cashmere, Cloth, and Velvet, at various prices, all of which are arranged in sizes to fit ladies without delay.

FORD'S MARGUERITE JACKET, registered. Prints illustrative of the shape and design of this charming Jacket are prepared to send post-free. In general it is semi-fitting, may be worn open or closed, and is adapted, according to material and ornament, for Morning Wear, Dinner Dress, and Evening Home Parties. It is also specially suited to the occasional requirements of married ladies. Ready in different sizes, in Silk, from 21s. to 3 gs.; Cashmere or Cloth, 18s. to 2 gs.; Velvet, 2 gs. to 4½ gs.—Thos. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RICH SILK MANTLES display the best taste and newest designs of the Season, in Glacé and Gros Grain Silks, from 38s. 6d. to 10 guineas. The New Grenadine Bernouses, Lace, and other thin textures, from 14s. 6d. to 5 guineas. Carriage Wraps; Waterproof Cloaks warranted to resist rain, from 21s.—Thos. Ford, 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S GUINEA JACKETS, to wear open or closed, beautifully braided; materials silk, cashmere, and fine cloth; are especially worthy of notice. Ford's New Jacket Rooms exhibit the largest and cheapest stock in Europe.—Thos. Ford, 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S HALF-GUINEA JACKETS, in cloth and cashmere, in tight-fitting, Zouave, and loose shapes. Immense numbers of these are sold. Although remarkably cheap, they are good, and such as any lady may wear. Patterns and illustrations free.—Thos. Ford, 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas. Quality and fit guaranteed. Riding-trousers, 21s. per pair. Illustrations of the new Riding-jacket, with Patterns of Cloth and Directions for Self-measurement, post-free.—T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Manufacturers' Prices.
JAMES LINDSAY and CO.
will forward, carriage paid on parcels of £5 and upwards, Single and Double Damask Table Cloths, Napkins, Diapers, Family Linens, Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Tickings, Huckaback and Diaper Towellings, Glass Cloths, Pantry Towels, &c., &c.; Ladies' and Gentlemen's Lawn and Cambric Handkerchiefs.
Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., 18, Donegall-place, Belfast.

LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING of best make at moderate prices. A stock always on hand of Chemises, Nightdresses, Petticoats, Morning Robes, &c. Price-books by post. Address "Ladies' Department," WHITELOCK and SON, 166, Strand.

INDIA OUTFITS and WEDDING TROUSSEAUX. Newest styles, best work, and moderate prices. Price-books by post.—WHITELOCK and SON, 166, Strand.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, at moderate prices. Flannel Shirts and Dressing-gowns.
CAPPER and WATERS, 26, Regent-street, London, S.W.

SHIRTS, SEASON 1865.—A large variety of new Patterns in fancy Cashmere and Cambric Shirtings, made from the finest materials, adapted for Spring and Summer Shirts. BOWRING, ARUNDEL, and CO., 11 and 50, Fenchurch-street, E.C.; 11, Old Bond-street, W., London.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. G. HYAM, 10, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash instantly remitted. Established 1820.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. A. DAVIS, 2, Crawford-st., Baker-st., W., attends Ladies and Gentlemen privately, to purchase Wearing Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c.; or, Parcels being sent, Post-office orders remitted the same day. Est. 64 years. Terms cash.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Jewellery, and Miscellaneous Property, &c. Highest price given. Ladies and gentlemen waited on. Address Mr. or Mrs. D. DAVIS, 46, Marylebone-lane, Oxford-street, W. Parcels being sent, Post-office orders remitted. Established 1800.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY MAY 20, 1865.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

No. 1317.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, MAY 27, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE DANTE FESTIVAL.

SIX HUNDRED YEARS have passed away since the city of Florence added to the catalogue of her illustrious children that of Dante Alighieri, beyond all comparison the most majestic spirit of the Mediæval Age. Nothing could have been more appropriate, nothing more significant, and, we are happy in being able to add, nothing more successful, than the national festival which the Italian people have just celebrated at Florence in commemoration of the birth of the poet, philosopher, statesman, and martyr to whose fervid and magnificent genius Italy owes more than probably even she is aware of. It is to him, more than to any other writer, that she may trace her language. It is from him, for long centuries, that the spirit of her literature has been derived. He is the father of thought and sentiment among modern Italians. Grand in his conceptions, marvellous in his power of intellect, pure and unselfish in purpose, of an indomitable will, but withal of a spirit gentle as a woman's, he devoted himself, his philosophy, his spotless life, his bitter exile, his divine poetry, to the then ungrateful task of raising his country above the contentions of faction, and died, seemingly without having accomplished much, at the premature age of fifty-six. The city of Ravenna gave a sepulchre to that part of him which was mortal, Florence having cast out while living the greatest and best of her sons; and Italy, including Florence, inherited as a legacy his immortal fame.

More or less, ever since his death, the mind of Dante has been incessantly quickening, nourishing, informing, moulding, as a long succession of adverse circumstances would allow, the mind of Italy; for he was seer as well as poet. The leaven hidden in the vessel of meal has been long in leavening the lump—long, if we measure the process by the life of a man; not long, if compared with the life of a nation. But it has never wholly ceased to work, never worked entirely without result. The vitalising influence emanating from Dante's unquenchable patriotism, and directed by his transcendent genius, has made its assimilative energy felt century after century, but never before so triumphantly as at this moment.

"THE GIRL AND BUTTERFLY," BY G. THOMAS, FROM THE GENERAL EXHIBITION OF WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS.
SEE PAGE 516.

The "young Italy" of to-day exhibits distinctly the lineaments of her father, and in her eyes may be seen a reflection of the light and love which filled his soul. His countrymen, catching his spirit of self-sacrifice, are turning into history his wise and patriotic counsels; and the kingdom of Italy is but the projection in fact of what already was existent in the thought of Dante 600 years ago.

Most appropriate, therefore, was it that May, 1865, should witness a Dantean festival at Florence — most curious that the removal of the seat of Government to that city — a fact so illustrative of the sacrifice of municipal jealousies to the national weal—should have coincided with this commemorative demonstration. There was a sort of poetic harmony running through, and blending into unity, all the circumstances which characterised the event. They were precisely such as may be read either as comments upon the past or as types of the future. It would seem as if the soul of Dante gave to them all an affinity of meaning and wove upon a ground of prosaic facts a beautiful national allegory. The people of the southern peninsula were never more truly or more heartily a brotherhood than they were in celebration of the memory of their greatest man.

It will not be necessary for us to describe the various modes in which the festival was celebrated. The arrangement by which the interest of each great class of the community was consulted and amply sustained indicated sound practical judgment. There were solemnities to impress the politician, readings and recitations to gratify the highly cultivated, spectacles and sports to give delight to the multitude. There was also a procession, in which representatives of six or seven hundred municipalities or public bodies, each symbolised by the armorial bearings of the Corporation worked upon a silken banner, took rank and moved along the streets to the square of Santa Croce in stately army. For once, every quarter of Italy furnished delegates to join hands with each other in the name of Dante and reciprocate fraternal greetings. The local feuds of days gone by were forgotten. Provincial enmities and heartburnings were swept away by the swelling tide of national emotion. Italy rejoiced in a visible unity comprehending even Rome and Venetia. Reverence for the poet obliterated all distinctions, fused all hearts into one, and gave reality for the time being to the fondest dreams of patriotism. The mere draperies and upholsteries of the festival, artistic and splendid as they were, faded into insignificance in the presence of a moral demonstration of far more abiding glory, and the bounding pulsations of Italia's heart were the truest exponents of her deep appreciation of the life-purpose and life-work of the immortal Dante.

We have already hinted at the singular coincidence in point of time between the removal of the seat of the Italian Government to Florence and the Dante festival in the same city. Such coincidences it is the delight of poetic minds to interpret as prophetic. It is not, however, necessary in the present instance to venture a step beyond the boundaries of the soberest reason to see how the coming together in close contact of the two events augurs well for the future of Italy. A removal, even if it be only of a private family from one house to another, more especially when it has resulted from the decision of a stranger, is a process very ill calculated to sweeten the temper. Noble and self-sacrificing as had been the behaviour of the little kingdom of Piedmont in reference to the Franco-Italian Convention, it was yet matter of conjecture whether, when the price demanded for the evacuation of Rome came to be paid, there might not be among the disagreeable incidents of the flitting, something to provoke irritation, and, perhaps, to revive ancient discords. The festival has entirely obviated all danger of the kind. The removal can hardly be said to have been completed before the house-warming brought together all the members of the Italian family and melted their hearts into one. All could forget their supposed claims in the claim of Dante. Florence, his native city, foremost in anxiety to do honour to the name which her citizens had once essayed to estinguish, bore herself penitently, humbly, lovingly towards her sister cities, and assigned highest distinction to those of them who had deserved best. Her good feeling was reciprocated. The symposium of the municipalities in celebration of Dante's memory has washed away, let us hope, the last lingering traces of local jealousies, and has harmonised all the elements out of which discord might have arisen.

Italy, one in political organisation, is one also in national feeling. This is the assurance given to the world, and meant to be given, by the Dante festival at Florence. Ten years ago Europe would not have believed it possible—nay, there were among the Italians themselves men of high cultivation and broad sympathies who would have pronounced it utopian. We question whether even the strange romance of her recent history would have had so gratifying a consummation if Dante had not so largely moulded her ideas and sentiments. It was but fitting that he should at length receive his apotheosis—that the reverence due to him and inwardly felt by his country should take outward shape. Italy, united, independent, and free, will be the most appropriate memorial of Dante's life, labours, sufferings, and song. The recent festival, we trust, is at once proof and augury that the poet's dreams were but facts recognised from afar by his marvellous insight.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor is still making flying visits in Algeria. On the 19th inst. he left Oran for St. Denis du Sig, returning to Oran in the evening; and on the 21st he was at Mostaganem, whence he proceeded to Relizane. Here he was surrounded by the whole tribe of Flittas, who earnestly requested that their relatives who were compromised in the late insurrection and are now prisoners in France should be set at liberty. His Majesty, moved by their assurances of fidelity, granted their petition. This act of clemency was received with enthusiastic applause by the Flittas. On the 22nd the Emperor embarked at Arzew for Algiers; and on the 24th he was to visit Fort Napoleon, in Great Kabylia. His Majesty is everywhere most enthusiastically received, and he continues to enjoy excellent health.

A medal is being struck at the Mint commemorative of the journey of the Emperor to Algeria. It is to be distributed to the principal Arab chiefs, and will have two inscriptions—one in French, the other in Arabic.

An expedition has been undertaken against the tribe of Babore. In a night attack nine of the French soldiers were killed and eight wounded; but no real resistance has since been encountered, and the tribes are submitting.

A pamphlet on Rome, by the Duke de Persigny, was published in Paris on Saturday. It is couched in the form of a letter addressed to the President of the French Senate. It ventures boldly to declare the Imperial policy, and states, in the most brusque terms, that, whether the Pope leave Rome or not, the Convention will be carried out, and France will establish a provisional Government to rule in the name of his Holiness, to execute all the reforms which he would not effect, and then calmly to await his return. But the Duke declares emphatically against the idea of having Rome made the capital of Italy.

Wednesday's Moniteur publishes an article confirming the revocation of the order limiting the stay of Federal vessels in French ports to twenty-four hours, and says:—"France has also announced that she will hasten to raise all other restrictions as soon as the Washington Cabinet shall cease to exercise the exceptional rights which its quality as a belligerent Power enables it to claim on the sea towards neutrals." The Moniteur then reverts to the fully-satisfactory assurances of Mr. Lincoln some days before his death, and adds:—"The latest news from America affords reason to believe that President Johnson intends to follow the wise policy of his predecessor."

The French Oaks was run on Sunday at Chantilly. Deliane won easily by two lengths, Lalla Rookh being second. Fortune was a bad third. Eleven started.

AUSTRIA.

The Lower House of the Reichsrath, on Saturday last, agreed, by a large majority, to the treaty of commerce with the Zollverein as modified by Prussia.

The Vienna papers announce that the removal of the exceptional state of things in Hungary is imminent.

The Croatian Diet will assemble on the 17th of July next.

PRUSSIA.

In Tuesday's sitting of the Chamber of Deputies a debate took place upon the commercial treaty between Austria and the Zollverein. Several members of the Progressist party and Count Bethusy declared their intention of voting against the treaty, because it was based upon Protectionist principles. The Minister of Commerce said, in reply, that those very principles would be supported by the rejection of the treaty. The vote of the House was then taken by nominal appeal, when the treaty was approved by 170 against 99.

M. de Quaade, the new Danish Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of Berlin, has arrived in that city, and was received on Saturday last by Herr von Bismarck.

The commercial treaty between Belgium and the Zollverein was signed at Berlin on Monday.

An International Agricultural Exhibition is to be opened at Cologne on the 2nd of June, by the Hereditary Prince of Prussia.

AMERICA.

The pacification of the country seems to be rapidly progressing. General Dick Taylor has surrendered his forces to General Canby. The interview between the two Generals for arranging the terms, which were similar to those granted to Lee and Johnston, took place at Magee's Plantation, fourteen miles north of Mobile, on the 4th inst. In some quarters, however, there is evidence of a disposition not to give in. Kirby Smith has published an appeal to his soldiers, dated Shrieveport, April 21, denouncing Lee's surrender and exhorting them to stand by their colours. He says that his resources are ample to protract the struggle until foreign aid arrives, or until such time as they can secure terms worthy of a proud people. The people of Houston, Texas, passed resolutions on the 22nd ult. to continue the struggle. The trans-Mississippi department was declared to be sufficiently vast and full of resources to repel invasion, ensure independence, and sustain Davis. "Some thought otherwise," adds the telegram, laconically.

Jefferson Davis had not been captured. When last heard of he was at Powell Town, Hancock County, a little north-east of Milledgeville, Georgia. A close watch is being kept on the coast to prevent his escape.

Several orders have been issued having in view the reorganisation of the South. These show, in the first place, that there will be no undue severity exercised on the people; next, that slavery is everywhere absolutely extinguished and the freed men put under the guardianship of the Federal forces, which for the present will occupy the country; and, finally, that trade is to be fully reopened.

President Johnson has issued a proclamation calling for renewed efforts to capture rebel cruisers. He goes on to say that he will refuse hospitality to the ships of neutral nations who may henceforward give hospitality in their ports to rebel cruisers.

In an address to the coloured population, President Johnson said that he trusted the time would come when all the coloured people would be assembled in one country, best adapted to their condition, if it should appear that they could not get along with the whites. He declared that man could not hold property in man.

The trial of the Booth conspirators, which began on the 9th inst., is proceeding, with closed doors. The prisoners pleaded not guilty.

According to the New York Times, Johnson's proclamation offering rewards for the arrest of Mr. Davis and others was issued upon the opinion of the Judge Advocate-General that evidence proved Mr. Davis to be connected with the inception and execution of the Booth plot, though it is not supposed that direct personal action can be traced to him.

A Mexican emigration company has been formed in New York, with agencies throughout the United States, and has advertised for naval and military emigrants. A large number has already been enlisted. It was, however, confidently anticipated that the Federal Government would enforce the neutrality laws as regarded the Mexican enlistments.

There is an increasing exodus from Canada to the United States. The inhabitants of Lower Canada are emigrating in large numbers.

INDIA.

The Viceroy and Staff had left Calcutta for Simla.

The recapture of Dewangiri is stated to have caused much consternation in Bhootan proper; but Tinsgoo Penlow is determined on war, in opposition to the wishes of the courtiers.

The heat was excessive in nearly all parts of India, and a great many cases of cholera had occurred. A detachment of Royal Artillery had been attacked with the dreadful malady while marching from Mhow to Kirkee, and thirty died out of 116.

COUNTRY NEWS.

A new Jewish synagogue in Southampton was consecrated, on Monday, by Dr. Adler, the Chief Rabbi.

Lord Crofton's house at Moate Park, Roscommon, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday week. Nearly all the furniture and many objects of interest and great value were destroyed.

A handsome telescope was, on Thursday week, presented by the Local Marine Board at Liverpool, on behalf of the Government, to Captain W. M'Micken, master of the Sidon, for rescuing the captain and twelve of the crew of the barque Ellergill, of Hull, from the latter vessel when she was in a sinking condition in the Bay of Biscay in November last.

John M'Cann, a "steeple jack" in the Black Country, was engaged in repairing a chimney at Wednesbury Oak a few days since. He had been drinking somewhat before he ascended, and, after playing some antics on the top, he laid himself across and went to sleep; rolling off, he was killed. An inquest was held on the body last week, and the jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death." It seems that deceased was in the habit of taking stimulants when employed at work of this kind, as he alleged, to "give him nerve."

Many parts of England were visited by a thunderstorm at the beginning of the week. At Preston the storm raged, on Monday, with great fury. One man was killed and several buildings were struck by the lightning, while considerable damage was done by the heavy rain and hail. Reports of a like kind have been received from other towns. In some parts of Scotland the storm was also severely felt. On the Castlecary branch of the Caledonian Railway two bridges were swept away by the flood caused by the torrents of rain which fell; and a Glasgow contemporary gives a curious account of a railway train being overtaken by a waterspout.

At Linton, Derbyshire, a man, named Leatherbarrow, after performing some of the Davenport feats, on his way home told two men to tie him up and then bind him to a tree, saying that before they could get to the Hollybush public-house and drink a glass of ale he would be there himself, and that if he failed in doing so he would pay for half a gallon of ale. The two men then set off for the public-house, drank their ale, and, after waiting for a quarter of an hour, as their companion did not make his appearance, they returned to the spot where they had left him, and found him hanging by the neck, having liberated his ankles and thighs. The two men let him down, but he was quite dead. It is said he had been warned of the danger of this trick if he should happen to get his neck into a noose.

A strange application is reported by the Newcastle Chronicle to have been made, on Thursday week, to the sitting magistrates at North Shields. A middle-aged woman, living in Milburn-place, North Shields, applied for a summons against a person for defaming her daughter's character. She said that a short time ago some person in the neighbourhood had lost a breech, and it could not be found, and some person about the place was thought to have stolen it, but the culprit could not be traced. However, after considerable consultation, it was decided that the neighbours should assemble and solve the mystery by having recourse to the antiquated test of the "key and the bible." This "holy and infallible" method of discovering the perpetrator of guilt is as follows:—A piece of string is tied round the bible, the book is then laid on the table, and a key is spun round on the top of the bible, and while the key is "going its rounds" some one in the company completes the charm by repeating a verse of Holy Writ by way of guiding the movements of the revolving key. The party to whom the end of the key points when it has stopped is considered to be the guilty one. In the experiment referred to the applicant's daughter was the individual who was taken notice of by the "knowing" key, and as the mother considered the character of her daughter slandered by the conduct of the key she sought redress at the hands of the Bench. The magistrates said they could do nothing to assist the old woman beyond advising her to cease putting the bible and the key to such silly uses.

The Queen has conferred the honour of knighthood upon Montague Edward Smith, Esq., one of the justices of the Court of Common Pleas; and upon John Thwaites, Esq., chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Works.

A benevolent lady has placed at the disposal of the National Life-boat Institution the cost (£400) of a new life-boat and transporting-carriage, on condition that the boat be named the Admiral Fitzroy, in memory of the late distinguished meteorologist and "Clerk of the Weather." The donor is entirely unknown to the family of Admiral Fitzroy.

An invention has been patented by Mr. Josiah Harris for applying photography to almost every light-coloured surface—wood, porcelain, ivory or bone, ground glass, cotton, woollen, or silk cloth, and leather—with such durability that the pictures cannot be destroyed either by washing with soap and water, or by exposure to the air and sun. Portraits or landscapes may by this process be taken immediately upon any smooth and even substance, of a porous nature, without any varnish or other previous preparation. For the cheap and elegant decoration of furniture, and of the panels of doors or walls of rooms, this promises to be extremely useful.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Council of the Society of Arts have arranged to hold a conversazione, on the 14th of June, at the South Kensington Museum.

Arrangements have been made for laying the foundation-stone of the new bridge at Blackfriars on Tuesday, June 20.

Her Majesty, by letter from Sir Charles Phipps, has graciously intimated her willingness to become patroness of the West London Working-classes Industrial Exhibition.

The National Portrait Gallery, 29, Great George-street, Westminster, will be open to the public on Whit Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, from ten to five o'clock.

Yesterday week the Lord Mayor entertained at a banquet, in the Egyptian Hall, the President and Council and a large number of the members of the Royal Society.

The sale of the works of the late David Roberts, R.A., at the rooms of Messrs. Christie, Manson, and Woods, ended last Saturday, the attendance throughout the week having been large. The whole realised £16,425.

Mr. A. J. B. Beresford Hope, President of the Royal Institute of British Architects, delivered to the Institute, on Tuesday, a lecture entitled "Incidents of Old English Architecture, civil and ecclesiastical, especially in rural districts," before a numerous audience.

Mr. Charles Reed, F.S.A., the late Deputy-Governor of the Honourable Irish Society, received, on Tuesday, from the members of this Corporation, a valuable mark of their esteem on account of the remarkably efficient manner in which he discharged his duties during his term of office.

The Peace Society held its annual meeting, on Tuesday night, under the presidency of Mr. Joseph Pease, of Darlington, in Finsbury Chapel. It was well attended. The report, an abstract of which was given by the Rev. Henry Richard, the secretary, was satisfactory, and the sentiments of the speakers found a hearty response from the audience.

A new street, running parallel with Oxford-street, has been formed by direction of Lord Portman, on the site formerly occupied by Portman Barracks—the street joins Portman-street with Orchard-street. Another new street has also been formed parallel with Oxford-street, and joining Park-street and Park-lane.

The rhododendron show, now open at the Royal Horticultural Society's Gardens, South Kensington, to be followed, the week after next, by a similar exhibition held, according to annual custom, in the Botanic Society's Gardens, Regent's Park, will not be overlooked by the admirers of those flowering plants, which have never presented more gorgeous masses of colour than in this most favourable season.

The annual meeting of the Infant Orphan Asylum, Wanstead, was held, on Thursday, at the London Tavern. The report stated that there were 543 children in the asylum, and that the income of the past year had been £17,212. It also referred to a donation of £5000, made by Lady Morrison, of Snaresbrook, for the advancement of the children on quitting the institution. Thirty additional children were elected from a list of 120.

Miss Millard, a riding-mistress, was giving some instructions to a pupil in Rotten-row, on Thursday week, when, unobserved by her, a watering-cart came along, and her horse dashed with full force against it, killing himself on the spot by the violence of the collision. At the same instant, through the breaking of the saddle-girths, Miss Millard, with the saddle, was thrown upwards into an adjacent tree. Her face came into violent contact with one of the branches, and she fell headlong into the roadway, sustaining further injuries by the fall.

On Tuesday afternoon the Prince of Wales laid the foundation-stone of a new wing for St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington. There was a gay assemblage, and the Prince was received with loud cheers. The usual formalities were gone through on the occasion, and a handsome sum was raised by purses laid on the foundation-stone. The new wing is to bear the Prince's name, and it is to consist of two wards—one named after his wife and the other after his son. We reserve the particulars till next week, when we shall give an Illustration of the ceremony.

The first fête and flower show of the Royal Botanic Society for the season took place, on Wednesday, at the gardens in Regent's Park, under favourable circumstances. The weather was bright and sunny but agreeably cool, and the gardens, refreshed by the recent rains, were in the fullest glory of verdure, and set off the rhododendrons and laburnums in bloom, which were apparent all over the open space. In the tent where the floral exhibition proper was displayed there was a massive collection of azaleas, pelargoniums, calceolarias, orchids, and heaths, and a few fine specimens of roses. Nothing could be more rich in colour or more luxuriant in every respect than the flowering plants, which were piled in tiers over the large area of the principal marquee. Amongst the visitors were the Duchess and Princess Mary of Cambridge, Le Comte d'Eu, the Duchess of Sutherland, the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland, the Bishop of Oxford; Lords Alfred Hervey, Chesham, Leigh, Granville, Blayney, Headley; Baron Brunnow, the French, Austrian, Turkish, Prussian, Brazilian, American, and Bavarian Ambassadors and suites.

On Thursday afternoon a public meeting of Roman Catholic noblemen and gentlemen was held at the Hanover-square Rooms for the purpose of providing a monument—a memorial cathedral—to the memory of the late Cardinal Wiseman, titular Archbishop of Westminster. The large "Queen's Concert-room," in which the meeting was held, was filled. The Most Rev. Dr. Manning, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, elect was called to the chair. Several resolutions were unanimously passed; and the secretary, Mr. Paterson, read a list of subscriptions to the present time:—Anonymous, £2000; Viscount Campden, £1000; V. Fielding, £1000; E. Bailey, £500; E. Firth, £500; W. Sills, £200; R. Dely, £200; Rev. A. Paul, £100; J. M'Cabe, £100; Mostyn, Sir Pyers, £200; Serjeant Bellasis, £100; T. Ward, £100; Sir Chas. Clifford, £100; Mr. North, £100; Mr. Wetman, £100; Mr. Dumphy, £100; Miss Tasker, £1000; Stuart Mill, £250; Mr. Edward Blunt, of Paris, £500; besides a large number of subscribers ranging between £50 to £5.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the governors of the Hospital for Sick Children was held on Monday, at the hospital, in the large room used as a play-room for the convalescent children. The chair was taken by the Hon. A. Kinnaird, M.P. The annual report, which was read and unanimously adopted by the meeting, referred to the encouraging progress made by the charity during the past year, an increase of ten beds having been made. The annual subscription received during the year amounted to £1937, which, with donations and legacies (including a gift of £500 from R. W. Crawford, Esq., M.P., and of moneys placed at his disposal by the Hon. Rustomjee Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, of Bombay) made the total income of the charity £6206. The expenditure having been £4281, the committee were enabled to invest nearly £2000 towards the rebuilding of the hospital. It was also stated by the chairman that a further enlargement of the wards is in progress, and fifteen additional beds will soon be opened, making a total of seventy-five beds.

The births of 2192 children—1083 boys and 1109 girls—were registered in London last week. In the corresponding weeks of ten years—1855-64—the average number, corrected for increase of population, was 1917. The deaths in London in the same period were 1168, a number almost identical with that in the previous week (1167). The average number for the twentieth week in ten years (corrected) is 1268. Zymotic diseases proved fatal to 258 persons. Twelve deaths occurred from smallpox, 12 from measles, 24 from scarlatina, 7 from diphtheria, 60 from whooping-cough, and 43 from typhus. 198 persons died from phthisis, 94 from bronchitis, 48 from pneumonia, 48 from diseases of the heart, and 145 from diseases of the brain and nervous system. The widow of a clergyman died at Burton-crescent, St. Pancras, at the age (as stated) of 104 years.——It appears from the return issued by the authority of the Registrar-General that last week the births in London and ten other large towns of the United Kingdom were 4364; the deaths 2542. The annual rate of mortality in the week in those eleven towns was 23 per 1000 persons, slightly higher than the rate that prevailed in the previous week. The rate of mortality last week was 20 per 1000 in London, 24 in Edinburgh, and 25 in Dublin; 31 in Liverpool, 30 in Manchester, 28 in Salford, 17 in Birmingham, 28 in Leeds, 17 in Bristol, 28 in Hull, and 32 in Glasgow.

The annual general meeting of the members of the Royal Geographical Society was held on Monday, at Burlington House, Piccadilly, under the presidency of Sir Roderick Murchison. The gold medals "for the encouragement of geographical science and discovery" were presented to Captain Montgomerie, R.E., for his trigonometrical survey from the plains of the Punjaub to the Kara Korum range, embracing an area of 56,000 square miles—a survey just completed, after nine years' arduous labour, whereby an account of geographical knowledge has been advanced up to the thirty-sixth degree of latitude over regions for the most part hitherto unknown. During the survey, observations were taken at upwards of 20,000 ft. above the sea, and the height fixed of the second highest known mountain in the world. The patron's medal was awarded to Mr. Samuel Baker, for his vigorous explorations, entirely at his own cost, in the interior of Africa, whereby he first determined the course and position of various affluents of the Atbara, a great Eastern tributary of the Nile; next, for having fitted out, at Khartum, an expedition by which he relieved Speke and Grant; and, thirdly, for his exploration of Equatorial Africa, on which he is now engaged. A testimonial of the value of £40 was awarded to Dr. Armenius Vambery, for his adventurous travels in Turkistan. At the close of the distribution, Sir Roderick Murchison gave an address on the progress of geography during last year.

In our notice of the passage of the Prince of Wales from Holyhead to Kingstown, in the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert, we should have stated that the mail packet-boat Leinster, which made the distance in nine minutes' less time than the Royal yacht, belongs to the City of Dublin Steam-Packet Company, and not to the railway company on this side of the Channel.

END OF THE NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE STRIKE.

The strike of the puddlers in the North Staffordshire iron district, having lasted eighteen weeks, has at last been brought to a conclusion by the submission of the men to terms less favourable than those Lord Lichfield was instrumental in obtaining from the masters. Those who have followed the events of this struggle will remember that the proposal to which the masters agreed was as follows:—"That the masters should open their works, and leave the question of wages to arbitration; pending the award, the men to draw wages on account." The men of South Staffordshire, having already recognised the necessity for a reduction in their wages of 1s. a ton, went to work, on the removal of the lock-out, at the old terms. The men of North Staffordshire, who had all along resisted this reduction on the plea of special circumstances, refused to resume work upon the terms accepted from Lord Lichfield by their masters, unless they were allowed to do so at the old wages. They evidently did not desire arbitration, but conquest. The feeling of the entire body was expressed in the language of one of their number: "We are not prepared to return to work for less than we have turned out for." When this resolution was announced, and the southern masters left the northern to fight their own battle, the puddlers in the southern districts and the trades unions generally throughout the country made no secret of their intention to support the men on strike, whose conduct they appeared to think worthy of the highest admiration. Six weeks have now elapsed since this stage in the affair was reached. During the whole of that time the masters have shown no signs of weakness. They have made some efforts to secure workmen from Belgium and elsewhere, and to some extent have supplied the places of the recusant puddlers with underhands. Great efforts have been made by the trades unions to ship the men on strike for America and our distant colonies, and not without success. The men, however, have miscalculated. They concluded that an easy victory was before them; that the northern masters, forsaken by their southern brethren, would soon give in, especially when they saw the funds of the whole trades societies employed against them. Somehow or other, however, the feeling among these unions has not been unanimous, and the support received has fallen so far short of what was promised that the men on strike, having lost patience, last week intimated their intention to leave their claim to arbitration and go to work at the reduction which they had all along resisted. Finding this disposition to prevail, the Brierly-hill Union made a move to prolong the strike. The promise was made to levy 2s. 6d. per week on each member of the union at work in South Staffordshire for their support so long as they should continue out. These new tactics, which show the true spirit that animates the executive of this union, which, be it remembered, first ordered the North Staffordshire puddlers out, and then withdrew its support when they would not go in again at the word of command, did prolong the strike for a few days. The workmen, however, finding that their places were gradually being filled up, held a meeting on the 14th inst., and resolved to return to work, provided each man was reinstated in his former position—a stipulation which, at this stage of the dispute, the masters will be quite safe in disregarding where they think fit to do so.

This strike of the puddlers has never secured the sympathy of the public. The men made a show of having a case to rely upon, but, point by point, the masters met and refuted it. They were shown to be a class of men in receipt of excellent wages and not over-worked. The justice, nay, the necessity, of the reduction in the scale of wages with which they refused to comply was acknowledged by their fellow-workmen in the southern field. The state of trade was allowed to have less weight with them than their own inclinations. The public, failing to find a legitimate reason for the strike, were driven to infer that it arose from a desire on the part of the trades societies to force on a struggle with the masters. Some persons gave American emigration agents credit for it; but, however industriously they may have taken advantage of it, there does not seem to be any fair ground on which to rest an accusation against them of originating the strike. It is more likely to have had its birth in the restlessness of the trade societies, which abound in leaders who draw their vital breath amid scenes of agitation. These corporations have grown prodigiously of late years. In every skilled trade in England this process of amalgamation is proceeding with the utmost rapidity. No matter which side is right or wrong, no matter whether the men gain their point or are beaten with heavy loss, the strike or lock-out only serves to stimulate the process. I will give two instances to prove that this is not a rash assumption. Since what was considered the defeat of the men by the lock-out in the building trade, associated with which the names of Messrs. Kelk and Lucas will be remembered, the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners has really sprung into strength. In 1860 it had twenty branches, 618 members, and funds in hand to the amount of £321. The increase to December, 1864, was constant, and then the branches numbered eighty-one, the members 3279, and the fund amounted to £4566.

In 1853 the Engineers' Union began an agitation throughout the country to put an end to over-time and piecework, and to procure a reduction of the hours of labour and the abandonment of machine-making machines. The men attemped to localise the struggle by refusing to work in one establishment only. The masters enforced a defensive lock-out throughout the Manchester and London districts. After fifteen weeks' idleness and a loss of £43,000, the men returned to their shops under more stringent terms than before. They went into the contest with 11,829 members, and they emerged from it with the loss of nearly all their funds and 2000 members. It was supposed that the society was too shattered for recovery. The last published report, however (1863), gives the numbers at 26,058, and the reserve fund at £67,410.

The tendency of trade societies to fatten upon adversity is truly inconvenient. Though capital gets the nominal or the temporary victory, they get the real and ultimate victory, and are in a position to jeopardise, by inconsiderate and selfish action, the trade of the country. It is true that the force with which they threaten the ranks of capital can be met with equal, perhaps superior, force, but the uniform result is that a number of bees are transformed into drones, and consume in idleness the stored results of industry.

Seeing masters and their workmen reduced to this strait, and industry frequently suspended over the whole country, Lord St. Leonards, with statesman-like ability, endeavours to provide a remedy to meet the case. His Lordship desires to see established equitable Councils of Conciliation to adjust differences between masters and operatives, and has framed a bill embodying this design. Such councils are to consist of not less than two masters and two workmen, nor more than ten masters and ten workmen, and a chairman, who is to be of no trade. Each council is to be appointed annually. Persons of twenty-one years of age who, being masters in such trade, have resided and carried on the same within the limits of any city or borough, or wherever an equitable court is formed, for the space of six months previous to the 9th of November in any one year; or, being workmen, have resided for a like period within the same limits, and have worked seven years at their calling, shall be entitled to be registered as voters for the election of the council, and shall be qualified to be elected members of such council; the masters appointing their portion of the council and the workmen theirs. Each section of this council shall be provided with a clerk, who shall keep a register of all qualified voters. The Council of Conciliation and Arbitration shall be the result of petition of qualified persons to the Home Secretary of State, at whose option it will be to grant a license, and any award made by it shall be final. It is further to be remarked that the council is to appoint its own chairman and officers, and that lawyers will not be allowed to attend the hearings.

However happy a device this may be for settling those disputes that must be expected between capital and labour, and preventing their destructiveness as at present conducted, no one, I imagine, who is acquainted with the spirit of the class of men with whom these disputes originate will be very sanguine about its success. Judging from the admissions of the leaders in the late strike, no arbitration would suit them save that which was certain to be in their favour. While men are under the impression that they can never be wrong in coercing their masters to increase their pay and to reduce the hours of labour without any reference to the state of trade, they are certainly not in a state to bow to the award of even-handed justice. It is to be hoped, however, that a fair trial may be given to his Lordship's proposition. It may be that an example here and there of a speedy and peaceful solution of trade disputes may be productive of a widespread appreciation of the process.

YACHTING.

In a sea-girt isle this amusement may be looked at in a national point of view; for the more seamen that are employed, whether in the Queen's, merchant, or pleasure vessels, the more distant is the prospect of invasion. There can be no doubt that our best defence would be found in the Navy; for, with a large fleet of gun-boats, frigates, and line-of-battle ships, our shores would be protected against any enemy. The amount of able-bodied men that are employed by the members of the respective yacht clubs of England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales is immense; and the majority are fine, healthy young fellows, full of courage, determination, and inured to hardship during the winter months as pilots and North Sea fishermen. Shipbuilding, too, has greatly improved; and, when we take into consideration the fact that the tonnage of the vessels belonging to the yacht clubs amounts to about 80,000, that from 5000 to 5500 men are employed, that the wages alone for the masters and seamen exceed £130,000 per annum, and that the intrinsic value of the yachts is more than three quarters of a million of money, enough has been said to prove the importance of a pursuit which, from its profuse outlay, magnificence, and discipline, has been the wonder and admiration of foreigners and the pride of every Englishman.

The yachting season may be said to commence in May, and we should strongly urge every owner to fit out his vessel as early in this month as possible; for, by so doing, he gets the pick of the best men and makes it worth their while to do their duty cheerfully, as they may at least count upon a five months' cruise. For the Thames and within the Isle of Wight a cutter of from five-and-twenty to forty tons is the most available vessel; and many of this class can be purchased or hired for the season. To river sailors we recommend Greenhithe or Gravesend as the best moorings for their respective crafts; for Woolwich and Greenwich are far from being safe berths, and the chances are ten to one that in less than a week their vessel will be fouled by a collier, run down by a steamer, their bowsprit carried away by a merchantman, or their boat stove in by a billyboy. For those who brave "the dangers of the sea" we consider Cowes to be the most perfect spot, as it possesses a safe anchorage either in the roads or harbour. To this is to be added the beauty and brilliancy of the scene, which combines all that is lovely by land or water. The fleet of noble merchantmen from all parts of the habitable globe—the stars and stripes of America floating proudly from some New York "clipper;" the meteor flag of old England fluttering gracefully to the breeze over a magnificent vessel freighted for the East, emblem of the mercantile wealth of "our tight little island;" the heavy-laden timber-ship from Canada; the collier from Newcastle; the billyboy from the north; the brig from Bremen, with its heavy stern; the Dutch galliot, so picturesque though slow of foot; the flat-sided Swedish barque; the bluff-bowed Dane; the "ship-shape" Sardinian; the raking schooner from the New World; the fishing-smack from Portland; the oyster-vessel, with its Apician luxuries; the lobster-boat from Yarmouth, are all anchored in the roads, awaiting tide, or wind, or orders. Then, within range of a good telescope, may be seen Portsmouth, Spithead (crowded with shipping), the New Forest, Calshot Castle (erected towards the latter part of the reign of Henry VIII., about the same period that East and West Cowes Castles date their origin), the West Channel, Beaulah, and Lymington; while Newtown, Yarmouth, Alum Bay, the Needles, Freshwater, and Chale Bays, Black Gang Chine, the rampart rock of St. Catharine, the Undercliff, the dark Dunnose (the once-famed haunt of the smuggler), Bembridge Point, St. Helens Roads, Ryde, King's Key (where tradition places King John among the fishermen), are all within easy distances by sea or land.

For a cruise to the French coast a cutter or yawl from fifty to sixty tons, or a schooner of that tonnage to twenty or thirty more, will be found the best; while for foreign service, the Mediterranean, Norway, or the Baltic, we should advise a schooner of not less than a hundred and twenty tons. There are always plenty of vessels for sale and hire: the price of a new one being £26 per ton, for an almost new one £16, for an older one £10 to £12. The above prices include coppering, and every article from a match-box to a mainsail. In hiring, a guinea a day for a small craft, or 30s. a month per ton, which includes the wages and provisions of the captain and men, will be about the price; much, however, depends upon the character of the yacht and the time for which it is required. Great care, both in purchasing and hiring, must be taken; and it is highly desirable that the vessel should be thoroughly overhauled by a practical and disinterested builder. Too many yachts, built after the "lath-and-plaster" fashion, whose defects have been hidden by a coat or two of paint and varnish, have brought their owners to grief; and, however cheap they may have sounded in the onset, have proved most expensive in the long run. A man may as well buy a tumble-down house, whose foundations are gradually giving way, as a defective vessel; we speak not only of the hull, but of the masts, spars, sails, and ropes; and, if all are not strong and in good order at starting, endless danger, vexation, anxiety, and large drains of money must inevitably be the result. To prevent the above evils, we most strenuously advise everyone who wishes to hire or buy a vessel, from the open wherry to the top-sail schooner, to place himself in the hands of the secretaries of the respective yacht clubs, or in those of the best builders, and they will never repent following the advice we offer. With regard to men, the wages vary from a guinea to five-and-twenty shillings a week, and the skipper of any tolerable sized craft receives a hundred guineas a year, with one or two suits of clothes, according to the time he is employed. Under fifty tons, thirty shillings to two pounds would pay the captain. The usual complement is one man to every ten tons, and that in a large vessel includes captain and steward.

To those who feel as the poet Quarles did two hundred and thirty-five years ago, and who thus describes his sentiments,

> I love the sea, she is my fellow-creature,
> My careful purveyor—she provides me store,

we recommend a sea-fishing excursion during the summer months—say, in a wherry of fifteen tons—open, with the exception of a forecuddy, in which the crew sleep, and cook their meals. If the hirer is satisfied to trawl off Spithead, Stokes Bay, and Anglesea Villa, sleeping on shore at nights, he will find plenty of mackerel, plaice, whiting, grey mullet, soles, dab, and skate; and in Stanswood Bay, near Eaglehurst, on the Hampshire coast, he may with the same net count upon all the above piscatory luxuries, with the addition of salmon-peel and red mullet. The above vessel, with a man, a boy, and two fishermen, including hire of their nets, would amount to about £2 a day, and on the non-fishing days it would be reduced to one half that sum. In a larger vessel, between Easter and Whitsuntide, excellent cod may be caught at Allonby, Workington, and Whitehaven, in Cumberland, and on the Lancashire coast; from the beginning of April until the end of May on the west part of Ireland; from Christmas to Michaelmas on the north and east of Ireland; and from March to August on the north-east of England.

The best season for fishing on the great bank of Newfoundland is from the beginning of February to the end of April, at which time the cod return to the bank from which they have retired during the winter, and get very large. Mackerel are to be found in large shoals both on the coast of England and of France, and are taken either with lines or nets. In angling for them the best bait is a piece of a herring; and, after one is caught, its own flesh will entice the rest. When they are angled for it must be out of a boat or a smack, and there must be what fishermen call a mackerel breeze to take the vessel four or five knots through the water. The first process is to ship a boom, clear of the wash, and fasten the lines to its ends; they should be about fifteen fathoms in length, with a lead to sink them, allowing seven fathoms to be under water. Two other lines must then be placed on the boat's quarter, about nine fathoms long if the weather is calm, and eleven should it blow fresh. A guy must be fastened to the line at the water's edge, to pull it in by. The snood ought to be three fathoms long, the weight of the lead from two to four pounds in light winds, and seven if there be a breeze.

A new edition of Black's General Atlas of the World, corrected so as to agree with the most recent territorial changes, the latest results of geographical exploration, and the newest works of railway construction, has just been published by Messrs. Adam and Charles Black, of Edinburgh. The completeness, the accuracy, and the beauty of this valuable work are too well known to require any further commendation. It is the book, after all, "which no gentleman's library should be without."

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Sir Samuel Cunard, Bart., late of Prince's-gardens and Bush-hill Park, Middlesex, formerly of Halifax, Nova Scotia, was proved in London on the 13th inst., the personality in this country being sworn under £350,000. The executors are his sons, Sir Edward Cunard, Bart., and William Cunard, Esq. The testator was an eminent shipowner, and was contractor with the Admiralty for the mail services between Halifax, Newfoundland, Bermuda, and St. Thomas's Island. He leaves all his interest therein, and in the British and North American, and British and Foreign Steam-Packet Companies, together with all other investments in England and America, in trust, for his executors to pay thereout to each of his six daughters the sum of £20,000, and, subject thereto, leaves the residue between his two sons, the executors, for their own absolute use. The will is dated Nov. 11, 1858; and the testator died on the 28th ult., at the age of seventy-seven. He was the eldest son of the late Abraham Cunard, Esq., of Halifax, and married, in 1815, Susan, daughter of W. Duffus, Esq., of the same colony.

The will of Cuthbert Colling, Esq., of Palmer Green, Southgate, was proved in London on the 17th inst., and the personalty sworn under £45,000. The executors are George S. S. Williams, of Thornhill-square, Islington, builder; and Henry N. Saxton, 86 to 89, Bartholomew-close, currier. The will, with a codicil, bears date the 9th of March last, and the testator died on the 12th of the same month. The will was attested by W. B. Kesteven, surgeon, Upper Holloway; and W. Pitman, solicitor, King's-road, Bedford-row. The testator was formerly of 87, Bartholomew-close, currier. He has left to charitable institutions the sum of £24,000; to his relatives, being his brothers, sister, and nephew, legacies amounting to £6000; to other persons about £5000, including £100 each to three of his servants; and £1000 to Frederick Williams, a son of his executor. The residue he leaves to his executors for their own use absolutely. The following are the charitable bequests —viz., to the London Hospital, £4000; Smallpox Hospital, £2000; Royal Free Hospital, £2000; Great Northern Hospital, £2000; City of London Hospital for Diseases of the Chest, Victoria Park, £2000; London Fever Hospital, £1000; Royal Hospital for Incurables, Putney Heath, £1000; Metropolitan Free Hospital, Devonshire-square, £1000; National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, £1000; and to the Newcastle Infirmary, £1000; also to the London Orphan Asylum, Clapton, £2000; Infant Orphan Asylum, Wanstead, £2000; British Orphan Asylum, Slough, £1000; Orphan Working School, Haverstock-hill, £1000; and to the Royal Asylum, St. Ann's, £1000.

The will of Major-General James Mattie, of her Majesty's Indian Forces, late of Gothic House, Upper Hamilton-place, St. John's-wood, was proved in London under £35,000—the executors being Edward Jenkyns, Esq., and Edward Senkler Jenkyns, Esq., both of the East India House. This gallant military officer was formerly of Chowringhee, Calcutta, a Colonel in her Majesty's Indian Army, Bengal establishment, and attached to the 2nd Regiment of European Fusiliers. He died on the 28th of March last, having executed his will in 1859. After leaving several legacies of £500, also £1500 to his housekeeper, £100 to his former nurse, and £200 to each of his executors, all which legacies are to be paid free of duty, he bequeaths the residue of his property between Mrs. Mure, widow, and her two daughters.

The will of Thomas Wingate Henderson, Esq., of Roke Manor, Romsey, Hants, and of 84, Cavendish-square, London, has been proved by his widow. Amongst other bequests, he has given the sum of £1000 to the Scottish Hospital, and £1000 to the Caledonian Asylum. He has left the bulk of the residue to his widow absolutely, to whom administration, with the will annexed, has been granted.

Mr. J. Passmore Edwards, who compounded with his creditors in 1852, has just paid his debts in full.

The consumption of snails (escargots) has become so great in Paris that a special market, it is said, is about to be opened for them.

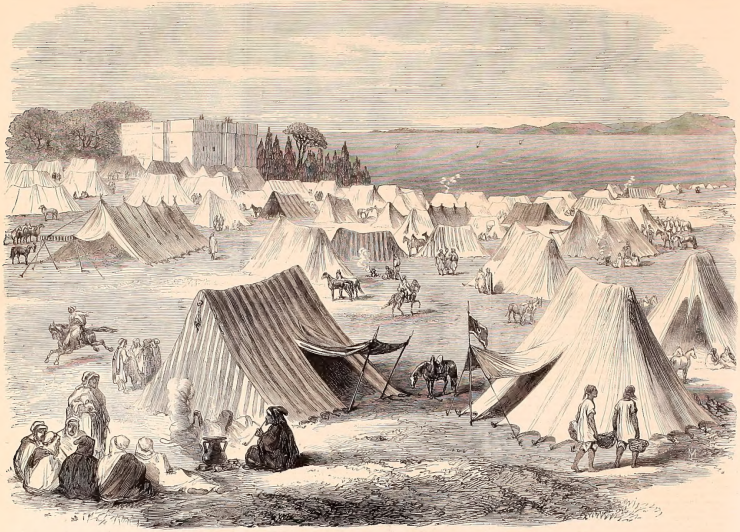
The Minister of the Interior in Russia has suspended the National Historical Archives of St. Petersburg, this case being one of the first applications of the new law on the press.

The Chamber of Brunswick has just met in an extraordinary sitting to consider a proposal for the rebuilding of the ducal palace. A sum of nearly £120,000 was voted almost unanimously for the purpose.

The Italian Rifle-Shooting Society has fixed its meeting for the present year to take place at Florence, from the 18th to the 24th of June. The prizes will consist of works of art, and gold or silver medals of a value of from 20f. to 1500f.; they will form six categories, of which two will be reserved for the Italian National Guard, Army, and Navy, while the rest will be open to all comers.

Edward Cleary, the sailor who saved the lives of the captain and crew of the Govindpore during the cyclone at Calcutta, last September, has been presented with the Royal Humane Society's gold medal. Its presentation, along with some other gifts, was, we learn from the Times of India, made by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, in the presence of the Viceroy and a number of spectators.

A Queensland paper gives the following particulars of a voracious fish, called a grouper, which was caught off that coast. It was 7 ft. long, 6 ft. in circumference at its thickest part, and its head weighed 80 lb. When opened there were found in its stomach two broken bottles, a quart pot, a preserved-milk tin, seven medium-sized crabs, a piece of earthenware, triangular in shape and three inches in length, incrusted with oyster shells, a sheep's head, some mutton and beef bones, and some loose oyster shells. The spine of a skate was imbedded in the grouper's liver.

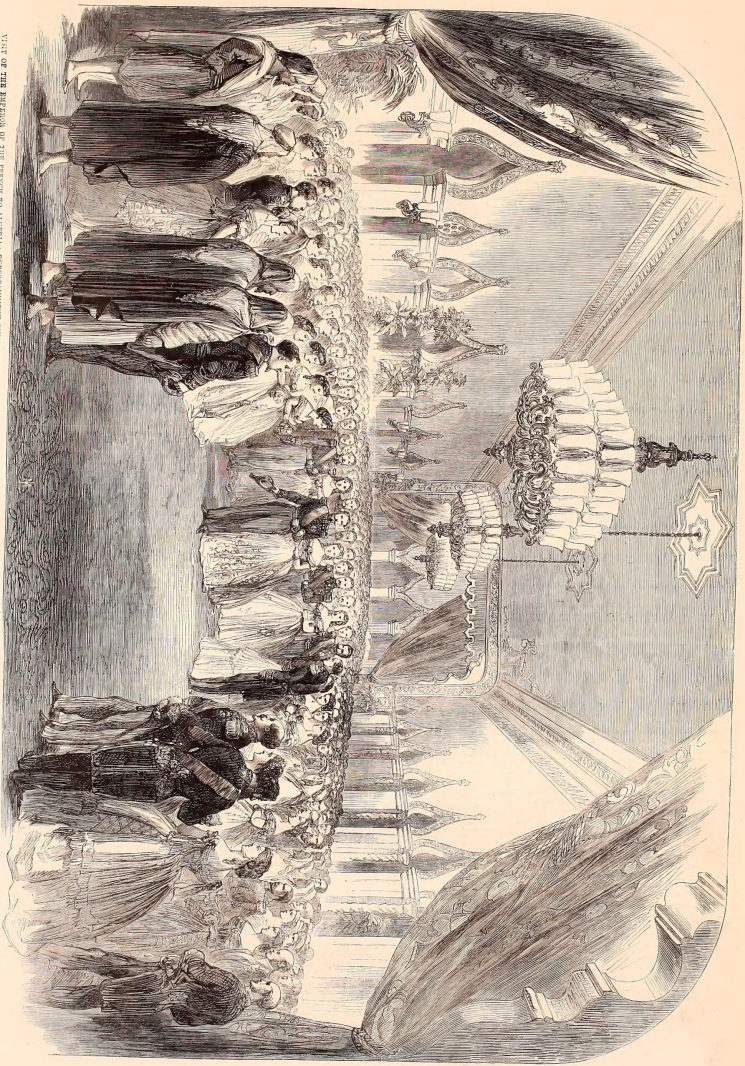


The Queen has confirmed the appointment of Edward Jordon, Esq., C.B., to be a Member of the Privy Council of the Island of Jamaica; and her Majesty has appointed Edward Jordon, Esq., C.B., to be Secretary for the Island and Secretary to the Governor, and Hugh Williams Austin, Esq., to be Receiver-General for the Island of Jamaica. The Queen has also appointed Edward Hutchinson Pollard, Esq., to be one of her Majesty's Council for the Colony of Hong-Kong; and Horace Watts, Esq., M.D., to be Colonial Surgeon for the Falkland Islands.

The report of the Council of Military Education for 1864, occupying eighty-five closely printed pages of an octavo bluebook, was issued last week. The council are gratified at the progress which they have to record, and add that it is not an improbable supposition that this progress will be still more marked when the public and other schools shall have adopted the recent recommendations of the Royal Commissioners with respect to the requirements of modern education. "The army examinations, which even now are based as far as possible upon the general education of the country, will then be in entire conformity with it, and will more fully be to one class of young men what university examinations have long been to another, incentives to further progress. But whether this expectation be fulfilled or not, the council believe that an important advance has already been made, and that the public service will not fail to reap the benefit of the measures that have been adopted for the education of the officers of the army."

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE VISIT OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON TO ALGERIA.

Three of the sketches we have received from our Special Artist commissioned to attend the progress of the Emperor Napoleon through the French province of Algeria are engraved for this Number of our Journal. The first of these is a View of the Arab Encampment at a place called Lower Mustapha, just outside the city of Algiers, where the representatives of many of the native tribes have assembled, coming from the interior of the country, to pay their compliments to the Emperor, whose dominion they are forced to own. Their tents, as we may observe, are of various shapes and sizes; but those of the most important chiefs are distinguished by the copper crescents ranged along the top of the tent. These tents are pitched in no regular order, but wherever the master of each tent pleases, in any part of the ground. The members of each tribe live pretty much by themselves, and cook their national dish of couscoussou, a kind of savoury stew, over their own fire, which is often sheltered from the wind by a heap of saddles and baggage, as shown in the left-hand corner of our Engraving. The subject of our second Illustration is a dance of negroes and mulattoes in the streets of Algiers, performed in honour of the Emperor's visit to that city, and, perhaps, also with a view to some distribution of money as a recompense for their festive capers upon so appropriate an occasion of loyal and popular rejoicing. Each group of dancers consists of six, eight, ten, or a dozen men and boys, whose complexions range from the deepest black to the lightest variation from the fair flesh-colour of the European race, most of them wielding in each hand a huge pair of iron castanettes, which in their language are called karakeub; whilst others beat lustily with a curved stick upon the ass's-skin parchment of a small drum. They all sing, in a monotonous, nasal tone, a very unmusical and disagreeable ditty, and at the same time perform the wildest and most frantic gesticulations, often whirling round upon one leg, or bending forwards and backwards almost to the ground, as the excitement of the dance leads them to increase their violent exertions. In contrast with this half-savage entertainment is the scene represented by our third Engraving—the grand ball which was given by the Governor of Algeria, Marshal Macmahon, at his Summer Palace, Mustapha, likewise in honour of the Emperor Napoleon, who was himself present, and appears, with Mdme. la Maréchale on his arm, in the centre of the floor. The figures in Arab costume are several of the judges or magistrates of the native tribunals, who were invited to the ball, along with most of the French civil and military officials of the province.



VISIT OF THE EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH TO ALGERIA.

ENCAMPMENT OF THE ARAB TRIBES, MUSTAPHA, NEAR ALGIERS.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

DANCE OF NEGROES AND MULATTOES IN THE STREETS OF ALGIERS.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH TO ALGERIA.—VISIT OF THE EMPEROR AND EMPRESS TO THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL AT THE SUMMER PALACE, IN THE MUSTAPHA.—FROM A SKETCH BY MATTEI.—SEE PAGE 498.

BIRTHS.

In Grosvenor-square, Lady Lindsay, of a daughter.
At Leamington, Lady L. Moser, of a daughter.
On the 19th inst., at Greenfield House, Redhill, the wife of Robert O. L. Cuthbert, of a son.
On the 19th inst., at 73, Boundary-road, the wife of Francis Edward Hoby, Esq., of a son.

MARRIAGES.

At Ploermarlingay, S. H. Hertford, Captain in H.M. Regiment of Cape Mounted Riflemen, to Alice Victoria, daughter of the late Hon. and Rev. Tail Bathurst.
At the English Legation, Berne, Count E. de Bussy, to Elizabeth, widow of W. Forrester, Esq.
At St. George's, Hanover-square, the Hon. and Rev. A. H. Gore, Rector of Wyvill, Lincolnshire, to Emma, daughter of the late General and Lady S. Beresford.
At Ilive, W. T. Pellatt, Esq., of Conrad Hill, Shrewsbury, to Emily, daughter of the Hon. J. Butler.
On the 3rd inst., at St. James's Church, Piccadilly, Edward Pulteney, Esq., Captain 7th (the Queen's Own) Hussars, to Jane, youngest daughter of the late Sir John Byrd, of Hickay, Leicestershire.

DEATHS.

On the 19th inst., at Euston Lodge, near Dunmow, Essex, the Right Hon. Henry Newcome Neville, in his 84th year.
At Walkhampton, S. Petly, Esq., son of the late Sir J. H. Petly, Bart., in his 54th year.
On the 21st inst., at Aldrington-street, Sophia Jane, Countess of Zetland, in her 62nd year.
At Orlingbury-square, Bromley, the Rev. J. H. Cowen, in his 61st year.
At Poole, W. D. Somerville, Esq., son of the late Hon. and Rev. W. Somerville, aged 33.
On the 18th inst., at Frankfort, of rapid decline, esteemed and lamented, Christian Keck, Esq., her Britannic Majesty's Consul in that city, aged 30.
On the 21st inst., in Brighton, after a few weeks' illness, Henry Neale Ingelow, Esq., of 8, Norfolk-street, Park-lane, and Lincoln's Inn; eldest son of the late Right Hon. Thomas Erskine.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 3.

SUNDAY, May 28.—Sunday after Ascension. Birth of Thomas More, the poet, 1480.
MONDAY, 29.—Constantinople taken by the Turks, end of the Eastern empire.
TUESDAY, 30.—George II. of England born, 1683. Consent to the throne, 1727.
WEDNESDAY, 31.—Battle of Prague fought at Constance, 1415. Andrew Melville, Queen of Scots' tutor, died, 1622.
THURSDAY, June 1.—Rollo, Norman prince and first duke of Normandy. Lord Rowe's great victory over the French fleet, off Ushant, 1794. Death of Sir David Wilkie, 1841. Moore's first publication, 1796.
FRIDAY, 2.—Marriage of King Henry V. and Princess Catherine of France, at Paris, 1420. Beginning of the Council of Trent, 1545. Queen Elizabeth, 1760. Oxford Easter term ends.
SATURDAY, 3.—Death of Arthur Hall, puritanical reformer, advocate of "droll outing and frequent boxing," 1740. Great earthquake at Manilla, 1863. Oxford Trinity term begins.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 3.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.
5 30	6 12	6 54	7 36	8 18	9 0	9 42
17 54	18 36	19 18	20 0	20 42	21 24	22 6

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE ROYAL OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28′ 40″ N. Long. 0° 0′ 47″ W. Height above Sea level, 160 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.			WIND.	RAIN.
	Barometer reduced to 32° Fahr.	Dew Point.	Humidity.	Ozone.	Maximum.	Minimum.	General Direction.	Force in lbs. on the sq. foot.	Rain in inches and hundredths.
	in.	°	%		°	°		lbs.	in.
14	29·7·3	47·0	76	7·3	58·2	42·7	S.S.W.	3·18	·000
15	29·7·3	47·0	79	7·3	55·8	42·7	S.W.	3·45	·000
16	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·8	42·7	S.S.W.	3·18	·000
17	29·7·3	47·0	87	7·3	57·8	42·7	S.W.	3·18	·000
18	·····	·····	·····	·····	57·6	42·7	ESE. E.	1·60	·000
19	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
20	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
21	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
22	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
23	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
24	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
25	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
26	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
27	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
28	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
29	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
30	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
31	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
32	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
33	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
34	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
35	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
36	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
37	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
38	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
39	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
40	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
41	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
42	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
43	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
44	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
45	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
46	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
47	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
48	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
49	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
50	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
51	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
52	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
53	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
54	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
55	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
56	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
57	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
58	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
59	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
60	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
61	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
62	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
63	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
64	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
65	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
66	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
67	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
68	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
69	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
70	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
71	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
72	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
73	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
74	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
75	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
76	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
77	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
78	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
79	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
80	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
81	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
82	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
83	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
84	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
85	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
86	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
87	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
88	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
89	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
90	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
91	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
92	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
93	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
94	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
95	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
96	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
97	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
98	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
99	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000
100	29·7·3	47·0	83	7·3	57·6	42·7	·····	0·00	·000

Barometer in inches corrected for Temperature of Air	29·960	29·952	29·941	29·955	29·952	29·956	29·979
Temperature of Air	59·0°	58·8°	57·4°	58·1°	58·2°	58·2°	58·2°
Temperature of Evaporation	54·0°	53·5°	52·4°	53·2°	51·7°	51·7°	51·4°
Direction of Wind	N.	S.S.W.	S.S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, MAY 27, 1865.

THE leaders have spoken. The House of Commons was, in the debate on Mr. Baines's bill, informed by Sir George Grey, on behalf of the Government, that the latter would be guided by public opinion, as it might be expressed at the general election; but that at present the Cabinet did not undertake to bring in any large measure for Parliamentary reform. Mr. Disraeli, for the Conservatives, having taken time to consider the situation, has put forth a manifesto from Hughenden Manor, and the views of the party which he leads may now be regarded as before the world. It is scarcely worth while to remark the fact that there exists a certain amount of dissidence in his camp; but the fact is patent. The great country party may, however, be considered as represented by Mr. Disraeli, and it is not uninteresting to note what advantage that army has made, and what position it takes up on the eve of the great struggle.

Mr. Disraeli's carefully-drawn state-paper asserts that the impending appeal to the country involves consequences as momentous as any such appeal has, perhaps, hitherto offered. But when we come to examine the great subjects on which only he thinks it worth while to dwell, they are Church Rates, Rates and Reform. His first reference is to Lord Derby's Church Rate bill and its rejection; and at different points in the address he recurs to the subject, and alleges that the Church has been continuously and injuriously assailed. Her assailants have always been discomfited by the faithful Conservatives. As it is our desire to show the respective attitudes of the political parties, rather than to assume the position of partisans, we may content ourselves with remarking that probably many persons will be of opinion that this church rate question has taken, in the eye of the Conservative leader, proportions which the world will by no means be ready to recognise. A cat is, no doubt, an animal of the tiger kind, but it would scarcely be expedient to speak of it as one speaks of a tiger. Church rates, no doubt, are a portion of the means by which the Church is supported; but we cannot allow that they mean "the maintenance of the Church." The sum raised by the rate is comparatively a very small one; the rate is abandoned in numerous places, not in obedience to Dissent, but by the wish of Churchmen; and although it may be a point of honour to fight for a contested right, there is nobody in England who believes that, were the rate suddenly abolished to-morrow, the Church would be in the least danger. Politically, the rate may be a good platform for champions to mount; but the religion of the country, and its love for the Church of our fathers, make a rocky foundation which will hold up the Establishment when the platform shall have crumbled away. Upon applying to Mr. Disraeli's ophthalosophical use of the magnifying glass, we proceed to a subject which he describes more accurately as of great importance.

After adverting to the defeat of Lord Derby's Reform Bill and his surrender of office, Mr. Disraeli says that since that time the Parliamentary condition may be described as a continued effort to save the Establishment in Church and State. He claims a signal victory over the attacking party in the defeat of Mr. Baines's bill, when he states that the House of Commons by a vast majority declared that the franchise in boroughs should not be lowered. Mr. Disraeli is a man of honour, and incapable, therefore, of a wilful mis-statement, and we must suppose that he believes the case to be as he has represented it. We have no affection for Mr. Baines's bill, but we certainly cannot venture to say that the House recorded any such opinion. The majority was gained on the "previous question," which notoriously means (and we refer every reader to Captain Dod) the avoidance of any decision. Let us quote the words of the oracle :—"When a motion has been made to the effect that the House happens to be unwilling to come to a vote there are formal modes of avoiding a decision, among which are moving that the orders of the day be now read, or moving the previous question." In fact, the House recorded only that the borough franchise should not be lowered. The accession of Liberals to the majority on that occasion can only be explained by the general conviction that the bill was but a partial treatment of the subject, or that this is not the time to treat the subject at all.

We are unable, therefore, to concur with Mr. Disraeli in his estimate of the condition of the Church or in his report of the battle fought for it. We hear him, therefore, on a matter on which no question can arise, and on which he has a right to speak with authority—viz., the attitude and intention of his party. We take it for granted that the Conservative's mess is to carry as many votes as they can. When in office, and with all the "influences," regular and irregular, which office places at the disposal of its holders, they could not command a majority. They have since won a good many isolated victories; but still, if they have anything cards, they never play them. In the next contest the present Government will have all the "influences" on their side, and no doubt use will be made of those gracious agencies. It is said, in Liberal circles, that the Conservatives expect to gain from five-and-thirty to forty seats in the coming struggle. Be this as it may, the Conservatives will fight their hardest. Mr. Disraeli thus states their position :—"Their leaders, although they will not shrink from the responsibility of public acts, are not obtrusive candidates for office. Place without power may gratify the vain, but can never satisfy a noble ambition." Appeal to the constituencies to say whether place even power shall be the sole or principal object on the Speaker's left hand. If the decision be affirmative, Mr. Disraeli is equal to the occasion; and he adds a happy formula, which appears to us more exactly to express Sir George Grey meant, only that the Whig spoke more plainly than the Tory. Mr. Disraeli hopes that the Constitution in Church and State will be upheld, "subject to those changes which the progress of society will demand." Exactly—and no more, we all mean. In the underplot of the "Provoked Husband" the stupid country member excuses his having been induced to vote against the Minister by his having been told that he was to vote for "the good of the nation," and, he added, seriously, "and I was always for that, you know, cousin." Our country members are not stupid, but they are always for the good of the nation. On the whole, Mr. Disraeli's clever state-paper seems to us to mean only "Let us see how the division-list will stand after the elections."

THE COURT.

THE Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louis, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold, arrived at Balmoral Castle on Saturday last from Windsor Castle. The suite in attendance consisted of the Dowager Lady Ashley, the Hon. Mrs. Grey, Miss Bowater, the Duke of Argyll, Lieutenant-General the Hon. Charles Grey, Major-General H. Ponsonby, Mr. Theodore Martin, Mr. Sahl. Major-General the Hon. A. and Mrs. Gordon arrived at Balmoral on Sunday last by Ballater.

The Queen, accompanied by the members of the Royal family, takes daily walking and driving exercise in the grounds of the castle.

Prince Arthur arrived at the castle, on Tuesday, from a tour in the East.

Wednesday was the forty-sixth anniversary of her Majesty's birthday.

Mr. Noble has had the honour of submitting to the Queen his model for the statue of her Majesty about to be erected in the Victoria Gardens, Bombay. The Right Honourable Khanderao Gulcowar, Knight of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

The Queen attained her forty-sixth year on Wednesday. The day was celebrated in town and country with all the honours customary on the anniversary of her Majesty's birthday.

At the Horse Guards there was a parade of the several battalions of household troops, under the command of Colonel Mark Wood (Coldstream Guards). The Princess of Wales, attended by the Countess of Morton and Lieutenant-General Knollys, arrived at the Horse Guards at a quarter to ten, and was conducted to the Commander-in-Chief's reception-room, whence her Royal Highness witnessed the proceedings. The Prince of Wales, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, Lieutenant-Colonel Kingscote, C.B., and Major Teesdale, arrived on the ground at ten o'clock, and at the same time also arrived Field Marshal the Duke of Cambridge, K.G., commanding-in-chief, attended by a numerous suite. The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of the 10th Hussars, as Colonel of the regiment; and the Duke of Cambridge the uniform of the Grenadier Guards. Upon the arrival of the Prince and the Duke of Cambridge, the united bands played the National Anthem, and the battalions of Guards were received with a Royal salute. The troops formed up in open line from the mortar to the long gun with open ranks. The Duke of Cambridge, accompanied by the Prince, inspected the line. The usual ceremonial of troops in column was then gone through, and the troops marched past in slow and quick time, and saluted their Royal Highnesses upon leaving the ground. The bands played during the inspection. The several bands then marched to St. James's Palace, and performed a selection of music.

The ships in the river and in the docks presented a gay appearance, dressed in colours of all nations. In the evening the public buildings and the principal streets were brilliantly illuminated.

Banquets were given in celebration of the event by the following members of the Royal family:—Viscount Palmerston, K.G., First Lord of the Treasury, had the honour of entertaining his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and a distinguished party at Cambridge House; the Earl of St. Germans, G.C.B., Lord Steward of her Majesty's Household, at Cleveland House; Viscount Sydney, G.C.B., Lord Chamberlain of her Majesty's Household, at his residence, Chesterfield-house, South Audley-street; the Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Master of the Horse, at his residence, Pall-mall; the Right Hon. Sir George Grey, G.C.B., Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, at his residence; Earl Russell, K.G., Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, at his residence, Richmond Park; the Right Hon. Edward Cardwell, Secretary of State for the Colonies, at his residence, 74, Eaton-square; the Right Hon. Sidney Herbert, Secretary of State for War, entertained Field Marshal his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge and a distinguished party. The Duke of Somerset, as First Lord of the Admiralty, at his official residence at the Admiralty, Whitehall; Sir Charles Wood, G.C.B., Secretary of State for India; the Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer, at his residence, Carlton-terrace.

The Archbishop of York entertained the Archbishops of Canterbury, Armagh, and Dublin, and the Bishops, at his Grace's residence, Bretton-square. The Attorney-General, Sir Roundell Palmer, entertained the Queen's Counsel and the leading members of the Bar at the Albion. Covers were laid for one hundred.

Entertainments in honour of the day were also given by the following:—The Duke and Duchess of Wellington entertained a distinguished circle at Apsley House; Earl Granville entertained the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary and a select company at his residence in Bruton-street, Berkeley-square; the Queen's body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard at Willis's Rooms, and the Queen's body-guard of Gentlemen-at-Arms had a dinner at the same place at their mess-room, in St. James's Palace; the members of the Royal Naval Club of 1765 and 1785 at Willis's Rooms. The Earl of Hardwicke presided.

At 6 o'clock in the morning a royal salute was fired from the Tower of Julius Cæsar and the parish church of St. John. A Royal salute of twenty-one guns was fired by the town bombardier, and repeated from Fort Belvedere and Fort Cumberland, Portsea, and at Virginia Water. Flags and banners floated in all parts of the town. In the evening the Corporation assembled at the Mansion House, Sir Hugh Cubitt—Mr.-W. B. Harris, the Mayor of Windsor, presiding. A fine banquet of venison, the gift of the Queen, was forwarded from Bushey Park to grace the table.

At Portsmouth a grand military display took place on Southsea-common, and the day was observed as a general holiday.

At Chatham the anniversary was observed as a holiday at the dockyard and other public establishments, and a review of troops took place upon the Great Lines.

At Woolwich the day was celebrated as a general holiday at the Royal Arsenal Dockyard and other public establishments, and by a review of the whole of the corps in garrison.

A grand review of troops was held in Phœnix Park, Dublin, before Lord and Lady Wodehouse. The venerable Field Marshal Lord Gough was present.

THE QUEEN'S DRAWINGROOM.

By command of the Queen, a Drawingroom was held, on Thursday week, by Princess Mary of Cambridge, on behalf of her Majesty, at St. James's Palace. Presentations at this Court were, by the Queen's pleasure, considered as equivalent to presentations made to her Majesty. Princess Helena, accompanied by Princess Louisa, attended by her ladies and gentlemen in waiting, was received by a detachment of the Life Guards, arrived at St. James's from Buckingham Palace shortly before two o'clock, and was received by the Mistress of the Robes and the Great officers of state of the household. The Prince of Wales, escorted by a detachment of the Royal Horse Guards and attended by Earl Spencer, the Hon. Colonel Keppel, and Major Teesdale, arrived at the palace from Marlborough House.

The Duke of Cambridge escorted Mary, and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar were present at the Court.

The Queen's body-guard, the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen at Arms was on duty in the state-saloon, under the command of the Lieutenant. The Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty, under the command of Captain Parker Bickford.

Princess Helena took her station in front of the throne, accompanied by the Prince of Wales, Princess Louisa, and the other members of the Royal family.

In attendance upon Princess Helena were the Duchess of Wellington, the Duchess of Roxburghe, the Countess of Gainsborough, the Countess of Caledon, the Dowager Viscountess Dowager of Mount-Edgcumbe, Viscountess Jocelyn, Lady Churchill, Lady Waterpark, Lady Caroline Barrington, Lady Charlotte Legge, the Hon. Mrs. George Campbell, Viscountess Chewton, the Hon. Caroline Cavendish, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, the Hon. Mrs. Seaton, Lucretia, the Hon. Florence Seymour, Earl of St. Germans, Viscount Sydney, the Marquis of Ailesbury, Lord Jocelyn, the Hon. Mowbray Walpole Sackville West, Colonel Lord Charles Fitzroy, Colonel the Hon. Sir C. Phipps, Lord Alfred Paget, Lord Proby, Viscount Castlerosse, and the Pages of honour in waiting.

Princess Helena wore a train of rich lilac silk, trimmed with silver-sprinkled tulle and puffings of the same material, and silver-tulle over glacé, trimmed with blue satin. Head-dress, tiara of rubies and diamonds, feathers, and lappets. Ornaments, rubies and diamonds; stomacher, necklace and earrings of rubies and diamonds.

Princess Louisa wore a train of rich pink silk, trimmed with ruches, pink and white roses, and white Honiton lace; petticoat of white glacé, trimmed with flowers to correspond. Head-dress, pink and white roses and fern leaves, trimmed also with feather, and lappets. Ornaments, pearls and diamonds.

Princess Mary of Cambridge wore a white satin train, spotted with red; a petticoat of red and white tulle over glacé silk, richly trimmed with Brussels lace. Head-dress, a wreath of white hawthorn, mounted with feathers, and silver tulle veil; stomacher, necklace and earrings of emeralds and diamonds.

The Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers having been introduced in the order of their precedence by the Marquis de Caux they were received by the Spanish Envoy.

The general circle was well attended and the presentations were very numerous.

THE QUEEN'S LEVÉE.

By command of the Queen, a Levée was held, on Saturday last, by the Prince of Wales, on behalf of her Majesty, at St. James's Palace. Presentations to his Royal Highness at this Court were, by the Queen's pleasure, considered as equivalent to presentations to her Majesty. The Prince, escorted by a detachment of the Life Guards and attended by Earl Spencer, the Hon. Colonel Keppel, and Major Teesdale, arrived at two o'clock, from Marlborough House, and was received by the great officers of state of the household.

The Duke of Cambridge and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar were present at the Levée.

The Queen's body-guard of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen at Arms was on duty in the state-rooms, under command of the Lieutenant. The Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty, under the command of Captain Parker Bickford.

The Prince of Wales entered the Throne Room, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and attended by the Earl of St. Germans, Viscount Sydney, the Marquis of Ailesbury, Lord de Tabley, the Hon. Mortimer West, Major-General F. H. Seymour, Lord Alfred Paget, Viscount Bury, Lord Proby, Viscount Castlerosse, the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, Lord Alfred Hervey, the Hon. R. H. Needs, and Major C. Teesdale.

The foreign Ambassadors and Ministers were introduced in the order of their precedence, when Count Knuth Knuthenborg was presented by the Danish Envoys.

The general circle was numerously attended.

STATE CONCERT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

By command of the Queen a state concert was given on Monday evening at Buckingham Palace. The Prince and Princess of Wales, attended by the Countess of Morton, the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke, Earl Spencer, the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, Major Teesdale, and the Hon. R. Meade, arrived at the palace at ten o'clock. The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary were present at the concert.

The Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty in the palace, under command of Captain Parker Rickford. A guard of honour of the Scots Fusilier Guards was mounted in the court of the palace. The Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by the Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, and the Duke of Cambridge, conducted by Viscount Sydney and attended by the ladies and gentlemen in waiting, entered the saloon shortly after ten o'clock, when the concert immediately commenced.

The following distinguished artistes had the honour of singing upon this occasion :—Mdlle. Titiens, Miss L. Pyne, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr Santley, and Signor Gardoni. The performers, exceeding 160 in number, consisted of the Queen's private band, aided by several instrumentalists of the Philharmonic Society, Her Majesty's Theatre, and the Royal Italian Opera; the chorus being selected from the Operas and the Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall. The performance was conducted by Mr. Anderson, the director of her Majesty's private band. Mr. W. G. Cusins presided at the pianoforte.

Among those who had the honour of receiving invitations to the concert were the Prince and Princess of Leiningen, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and the Countess of Dornberg, the members of the Corps Diplomatique with the ladies of their respective families, and upwards of 600 members of the élite of society.

COURT ARRANGEMENTS.

The Prince of Wales will, by command of the Queen, hold a Levée at St. James's Palace, on behalf of her Majesty, on Wednesday, the 7th of June next, at two o'clock.

Princess Helena will, by command of the Queen, hold a Drawingroom at St. James's Palace, on behalf of her Majesty, on Tuesday, the 20th of June next, at two o'clock. It is the Queen's pleasure that presentations made to her Royal Highness at this Drawingroom shall be considered as equivalent to presentations to her Majesty. The Knights of the several orders are to appear in their collars at the Drawingroom, it being a collar day. It is expected that gentlemen will not present themselves at the Drawingroom, except in attendance upon the ladies of their families.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

Yesterday week the Prince, attended by Major Teesdale, went to Windsor and visited the Queen. His Royal Highness, upon his return from Windsor, went to the Agricultural Hall, at Islington, and opened the International Reformatory Exhibition. Lord Alfred Hervey, Lieutenant-General Knollys, and Major Teesdale were in attendance. Subsequently the Prince rode out. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke, took a drive.

The Duke de Nemours, Princess Marguerite d'Orleans, and the Count and Countess d'Eu visited their Royal Highnesses at Marlborough House. In the evening the Prince and Princess had a dinner party. The company included the Duke of Cambridge, the Earl of St. Germans, Earl and Countess De Grey and Ripon, Viscount and Viscountess Sydney, the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke, the Right Hon. Edward and Mrs. Cardwell, Sir Edmund and Lady Head, the Hon. George Brown (President of the Executive Council of Canada), the Hon. A. T. Galt (Finance Minister of Canada), the Hon. J. A. Macdonald (Attorney-General of Canada West), the Hon. G. E. Cartier (Attorney-General of Lower Canada), Dr. Acland, and Mr. Engleheart.

On Saturday last the Prince, attended by Major Teesdale, rode out. His Royal Highness held a Levée at St. James's Palace, an account of which is given above. The Princess, accompanied by Princess Mary of Cambridge, took a drive. In the evening the Prince and Princess honoured Her Majesty's Theatre with their presence.

On Sunday their Royal Highnesses attended Divine service in the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Rev. the Sub-Dean, the Rev. J. Antrobus, and the Rev. E. Bankes were the officiating clergymen.

On Monday the Prince attended the House of Lords. Subsequently his Royal Highness, attended by Lord Alfred Hervey, Lieut.-Gen. Knollys, and Major Teesdale, went to the Sailors' Home, Well-street and Dock-street, near the London Docks, and opened the new wing recently added to the establishment. Later in the day the Prince, accompanied by Prince Arthur, rode out. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke took a drive. The Prince and Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke and Major Teesdale, stood as sponsors to the infant daughter of Lord and Lady Alfred Paget, who was baptised, by the Queen's gracious permission, in the Chapel Royal, St. James's, by the Hon. and Very Rev the Dean of Windsor, assisted by the Rev. F. Garden. The child received the name of Alexandra Harriet. Their Royal Highnesses presented their goddaughter with a necklet. In the evening the Prince and Princess were present at the state concert at Buckingham Palace.

On Tuesday the Prince, attended by Major Teesdale and Lieutenant-Colonel Kingscote, was present at the review of militia in Hyde Park, held by the Duke of Cambridge. The Princess, accompanied by Princess Mary and attended by the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke, was also present at the review. Subsequently the Prince, attended by Earl Spencer, Lieutenant-General Knollys, and Major Teesdale, went to Paddington to lay the foundation-stone of the new wing to be added to St. Mary's Hospital. At the conclusion of the ceremony fifty-five ladies and children each presented to his Royal Highness a purse containing money, the total amount of which amounted to nearly £300. Later in the day the Prince rode out. In the evening the Prince and Princess honoured the Royal Italian Opera with their presence.

On Wednesday the Prince inspected the troops at the Horse Guards. His Royal Highness afterwards visited the Duke de Brabant, at Claridge's Hotel. The Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, went by special train, at twelve o'clock, on the North Kent Railway, to Strood, and visited the Great Eastern steam-ship, to inspect the Atlantic telegraph cable. The Princess, attended by the Countess of Morton, drove out. In the evening, the Prince honoured Viscount Palmerston with his company at the state banquet given at his Lordship's residence in celebration of her Majesty's birthday.

On Thursday the Prince and Princess left town for the White Lodge, Richmond Park.

Their Royal Highnesses returned to Marlborough House yesterday (Friday).

Major Teesdale has left for St. Petersburg, to represent the Prince at the funeral of the late Hereditary Grand Duke.

Mr. R. Dowling, commissioned by the Government of Tasmania, has been honoured with a final sitting for his portrait of the Princess.

The Countess of Morton has succeeded the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke as Lady in Waiting to the Princess.

Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel has succeeded Major Teesdale as Equerry in Waiting to the Prince.

PRINCE ARTHUR.

His Royal Highness Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone and the Rev. W. R. Jolley, arrived at Dover in the Admiralty yacht Vivid, on Monday, from Calais, upon the completion of his tour in the East. The Prince landed at the Admiralty Pier, and was received by Captain Bruce, Lieutenant Morgan, and Mr. Bishop, the superintendent of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway. His Royal Highness travelled from Dover in a saloon carriage attached to the ten-minutes-past-eight a.m. train, arriving at the Victoria terminus at thirty-five minutes past ten. The Prince drove immediately to Buckingham Palace. His Royal Highness afterwards visited the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House, and remained to luncheon. The Prince left London in the evening, by the London and North-Western Railway, en route for Balmoral. His Royal Highness arrived at the general station, Perth, on Tuesday, by the limited mail, which ran special from Glasgow over the Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway, owing to the breakdown of the bridges between Coatbridge and Greenhill, and in consequence of which the mail was about two hours late. The Prince walked from the station to the British Hotel. After partaking of refreshments, his Royal Highness left Perth, and drove, by way of Glenshee, to Balmoral.

His Royal Highness the Duke de Brabant arrived at Claridge's Hotel, on Monday, from the Continent.

Their Royal Highnesses the Count and Countess d'Eu (Crown Princess of Brazil) returned to the Clarendon Hotel, on Tuesday, from Claremont.

Their Royal Highnesses the Count and Countess d'Aquila have arrived at the Claredon Hotel from Paris.

The Maharajah Dhuleep Singh, with the Maharanee, has left Claridge's Hotel for Scotland.

The Duchess of Somerset and Lady Gwendoline St. Maur have arrived at the First Lord's official residence at the Admiralty, from Bulstrode Park, Bucks.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Westminster and Lady Theodora Grosvenor have arrived at Grosvenor House from Motcomb Park.

The Earl and Countess of Mount-Edgcumbe have arrived at the South Kensington Hotel, from Paris.

The Marchioness Dowager of Sligo and the Ladies Browne have arrived at their residence in Mansfield-street.

Countess Cowley and Lady Feodora Wellesley have arrived in town from Paris for the season.

The Countess Dowager of Morton and Lady Agnes Douglas have arrived in Brook-street from Rome.

Earl Brownlow has left Radley's Hotel, Southampton, for the Isle of Wight.

Viscount and Viscountess Powerscourt have arrived in Grosvenor-square from their seat in Ireland.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

Their Royal Highnesses the Count and Countess d'Eu entertained at dinner, on Tuesday evening, at the Clarendon Hotel, the Count and Countess de Paris, the Duke de Chartres, the Duke de Nemours, the Princess Margaret d'Orleans, the Prince and Princess de Joinville, the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale, the Count and Countess d'Aquila, the Princess d'Aquila, and the ladies and gentlemen in waiting upon the various Royal members.

Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess de Chartres entertained a distinguished circle at dinner, on Saturday evening last, at Morgan House, Ham-common.

The Duchess of Inverness entertained the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary and a select circle at dinner, yesterday (Friday), at Kensington Palace.

The Duchess of Wellington had an assembly, on Saturday last, at Apsley House. The réunion was attended by a very numerous assembly of the Corps Diplomatique and of the nobility.

Earl and Countess De Grey entertained a select company at dinner, on Saturday last, at their residence in Carlton-gardens.

The Bishop of London and Mrs. Tait entertained a large party at dinner, on Saturday last, at London House, St. James's-square.

The Hon. Mrs. Hughes of Kinmell gave a grand ball, on Wednesday evening, at Bath House, Piccadilly. Above 400 visitors were present.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Bishops of Durham and Ripon intend to hold ordinations on Sunday, the 24th of September next.

The Training College for Schoolmasters at Peterborough has been completed for £6137. It is reported by the Government Inspector to be suited for its purpose, but "distressingly plain."

Miss Burdett Coutts has erected, at her own cost, a beautiful church in a destitute portion of the city of Carlisle. It will be consecrated by Bishop Waldegrave on Wednesday next, the 31st inst. The new church is dedicated to St. Stephen, as that is in Westminster, which owes its erection to the munificence of the same lady.

The foundation-stone of a new church was recently laid at Hamer, near Rochdale, in the presence of about 15,000 people. The ceremony was performed by Mr. J. S. Entwisle, the donor of the site and of £1000 to the building fund, Mr. Schofield giving another £1000. The church will cost £4200, towards which a sum of £3500 has already been raised.

The new church just completed on the site of the old parish church of Llanllwchaiarn, Cardiganshire, was reopened by the Bishop of St. David's on the 11th inst. The service for the day was read in English, and an impressive sermon, in English and afterwards in Welsh, preached by the Bishop. In the afternoon and evening, after the Welsh services, the Welsh mode of two sermons by eminent preachers following one another at each service was carried out with their customary effect.

The following preferments and appointments have recently been made :—The Rev. W. C. Bowen, Vicar of Llanstinan, to be Rural Dean of North Dewsland ; Rev. W. Doyle to be Rector of St. Thomas's, Old Trafford, Manchester ; Rev. J. E. Davies, late Rector of Llangelynin, to be Incumbent of Trevor, Merionethshire ; Rev. G. Salmon to be Incumbent of Nun Monkton ; Rev. E. Wilton to be Domestic Chaplain to the Earl of Northesk ; Rev. J. Virtue and Rev. S. B. Windsor to be Military Chaplains, third class ; Rev. J. Davies to be Curate of Vochriew, Glamorganshire ; Rev. W. J. R. Neame to be Curate of Child Okeford, Dorset.

An influential meeting of the St. George's, Hanover-square, branch of the Bishop of London's Fund was held, on Tuesday, at the Hanover-square Rooms—the Earl of Harrowby in the chair. A report was read, which stated that this branch of the fund was formed on May 16, 1864, when appeals were sent to every householder. The sum promised was £5447, of which £3000 had been received ; and of that sum £2300 had been paid to the central fund. This was in addition to £21,000 previously sent direct to the fund. In the parish, which was considered one of the wealthiest, there was a population of 35,000, with between 3000 and 4000 ratepayers ; 1100 of the houses were occupied by the wealthiest classes, and yet there had been only 330 contributors, eighteen of whom gave as much as £1850. In the first eighteen months from the commencement of the Bishop's Fund £116,300 had been paid, and there had been eighty-eight additional clergy, forty-seven scripture-readers, fifteen parochial mission women ; assistance given to fourteen schools, to the erection of four parsonages, twenty-seven mission stations or temporary churches, and to the purchase of sites for twenty-five permanent churches. The meeting was addressed by the Earl of Harrowby, the Earl of Devon, Mr. R. Hanbury, Lord Ebury, and others ; and a resolution was adopted pledging the meeting to support the Bishop of London's Fund.

The forty-seventh annual meeting of the Incorporated Society for Promoting the Enlargement, Building, and Repairing of Churches and Chapels in England and Wales was held, on Monday, at St. James's Hall, Regent-street. The Archbishop of Canterbury presided. The annual report stated that aid had been given in the past year in 137 cases, for the purpose of building thirty-four churches, the rebuilding and enlargement of nineteen churches, and in the repair, enlargement, and improvement of eighty-four other churches. For these objects the sum of £7890 had been voted. The increase of church accommodation thus provided amounted to 31,308 sittings, of which number there were 29,461 (including 6998 occupied by children of parochial schools) reserved, as the condition of the society's grants, for the free use of the inhabitants of the several parishes or districts. The society had paid during the year £11,301 for works completed in ninety-six new churches, the rebuilding of sixteen churches, and the restoration and enlargement of fifty-one churches. Additional accommodation had thus been secured for 20,509 persons, 18,420 of the sittings being reserved for the free use of the inhabitants. The total income of the society during the past year has been £9292. The meeting was addressed by the Bishop of St. Asaph, Archdeacon Emery, the Bishop of Llandaff, Mr. F. S. Powell, M.P., Archdeacon Bickersteth, Mr. Beresford Hope, and others.

The Convocation of the Province of Canterbury again met on Tuesday. Archdeacon Denison moved, in the Lower House, a series of resolutions on the relations between the Church of England and the Committee of Council on Education. After an animated discussion, the resolutions were carried. In the Upper House, on Wednesday, the Bishop of Oxford moved an address, praying the Crown to create three new sees, of which St. Albans, Southwell, and Bodmin or Truro should be the cathedral cities. After a brief discussion, the address was adopted. The Bishop of Winchester, in presenting a petition which prayed for the extension of the episcopate, made some interesting statements concerning his diocese. He recommended that Surrey and the Channel Islands should be erected into independent sees. Two petitions were presented in reference to a court of final appeal. The only subject brought under the consideration of the Lower House was the reform of Convocation. On Thursday morning the members did not meet at the usual hour ; but, by arrangement made at the commencement of the session, the Prolocutor and nearly all the members of the Lower House attended morning service in the Abbey, and partook of holy communion, the Dean of Westminster being the celebrant.

Testimonials have, we learn from the Guardian, been recently given to the following clergymen :—To the Rev. W. Green, on his leaving the parish of Staplegrove, near Taunton—a silver basket, by the working classes. The Rev. H. L. Todd, on his resigning the curacy of Greenwich—a handsome edition of the Bible, "Smith's Dictionary of the Bible," a purse of sovereigns, and an address inscribed on vellum, from the parishioners. Last month the Rev. O. Burney, late Vicar of Halstead, Essex, was presented with an épergne, value £100, by his former parishioners. On the same day the Rev. T. Ovens, who has succeeded to Halstead, was presented by his late parishioners of Aveley with a silver coffee-pot, value twenty guineas. The Rev. E. L. Cutts, appointed secretary to the Additional Curates Aid Society, has been presented, by his late parishioners at Billericay, with a purse containing about £50. A similar mark of respect was paid to Mrs. Cutts about three years since. The Rev. George and Mrs. Dawes, on leaving the parish of Breaston—a clock and work-table, from the members of the congregation. The Rev. F. B. Boyd, on leaving the curacy of St. Mary's, Ramsay—an épergne, with an address from the inhabitants. The Rev. J. C. Denny, on leaving the curacy of Christ Church district, West Bromwich—a beautifully illuminated copy of the Bible, by the ladies of the congregation. The Rev. Augustin Williams, on resigning the curacy of St. Martin's, Worcester—a purse of fifty guineas from the parishioners, and a drawing-room clock from the Sunday-school teachers. Recently the members of St. Peter's Union for Church Work, Bradford, Yorkshire, met in Stott-hill School for the purpose of presenting to their Chaplain, the Rev. James M. Gatrill, who is also one of the curates of the parish church, a complete set of vessels and linen for the communion of the sick, as a mark of personal respect and affection. The Rev. S. Holland, Curate of Washington, Sussex—a breakfast service in electro-plate, accompanied by an address, from the parishioners. The Rev. C. J. Astbury, who has been Curate of Walton-le-Dale for the last eighteen months, and has been appointed to the curacy of the parish church of Preston, has been presented by the parishioners of the former place with a timepiece, two bronze statuettes, a silver salver, and a pocket communion-service.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—Mr. Henry Lockhart, B.A., of University College, Oxford, was on Saturday last elected to the Stowell Civil Law fellowship of that society.

The answer which the Minister of the United States has returned to the letter of condolence addressed to his Excellency by Cambridge University was read to the senate at the congregation on Wednesday. The Porson prize has been adjudged to J. Edwin Sandys, of St. John's College.

We understand that Sir John Bowring, Dr. Holland, and Dr. Verity, the trustees to whom has been confided the handsome fund left for educational objects by Dr. J. B. Gilchrist, the celebrated Hindoostanee scholar, long a resident in Edinburgh, have, in consideration of the claims of his native city, expressed a willingness to grant to the University of Edinburgh three scholarships of £100 a year each, to be held for three years by natives of British India, who shall have passed competitive examinations in the presidential colleges. It is intended, we believe, to attach a similar scholarship to the London University College.

A donation, amounting to £6250, has lately been made to the United College of St. Salvator and St. Leonard, in St. Andrew's University, by two gentlemen of Scottish descent, Mr. James A. Guthrie and his brother, Mr. Arbuthnot C. Guthrie, Idol-lane, London. The object of these gentlemen in making this donation is, as expressed in their deed of endowment, "to promote and encourage education in Scotland, and more especially classical literature, in the University of St. Andrew's."

Earl Granville presided on Thursday week at the distribution of prizes among the evening classes at King's College, London, when addresses were given by the Revs. Dr. Jelf and Professor Plumptre. Amongst the numerous prizes awarded were those for Divinity—to J. Hooper, J. Fry, C. Walsh, and W. J. Larkin ; for Latin—to F. Philips, E. Woolthorne, J. Norton, G. Marshall, and Sir W. Puttock ; for Greek—to E. Collier, F. M. Phillips, F. W. Groves, F. Aubin, and A. Snelgrove. Prize given to the Associate for the current year, who, on examination in the fifteen classes the rules require, has carried the highest number of marks—to F. M. Phillips.

The annual election of scholars to the Universities was held as usual, on Tuesday morning, at Westminster. The names of the candidates elected were J. R. Dasent, C. T. Biscoe, and E. C. Williams, to Christ Church ; G. Heath, J. P. Nichols, and F. L. Harrison, to Trinity. The Triplett Exhibitions were given to Heath and Nichols ; the Thomas Exhibition to Shapter. On Monday evening the Dean and Chapter entertained in the hall a large and distinguished party of guests.

The tenth annual dinner of St. John's Foundation School was celebrated, on Monday, at the London Tavern—the Earl of Harrowby in the chair, supported by Lord Feversham, the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, and others, when the subscriptions and donations announced amounted to nearly £1650.

THE CONSERVATIVE MANIFESTO.

THE Right Hon. B. Disraeli has issued the following address to the electors of the county of Buckingham :—

Gentlemen,—A dissolution of Parliament being imminent, I beg leave to announce my intention of soliciting at your hands a renewal of that high trust which on six previous occasions you have conferred on me by sending me as one of your representatives to the House of Commons.

Although the state of public affairs is, on the surface, little disturbed, the impending appeal to the country involves consequences as momentous as any recurrence to its sense by the Crown has, perhaps, hitherto offered.

Six years ago Lord Derby, then Minister, proposed a measure on church rates, which, while it maintained the principle of a National Church, relieved the conscientious scruples of Dissenters from its doctrines or polity. It was defeated by a large majority, on the ground that nothing short of abolition could be satisfactory.

A month afterwards, anxious to free alike the Crown and the Parliament from the embarrassments in which they were placed in reference to the question of the Parliamentary suffrage, he introduced a measure which would have greatly extended it on principles in harmony with the Constitution, which wisely recognises the electoral franchise as a privilege and not as a right. This measure was also defeated by a large majority, on the ground that no extension of the suffrage could be sufficient which did not involve a lowering of the franchise in boroughs.

In this state of affairs Lord Derby advised an appeal to the country, and, not having obtained a majority, resigned office, an Administration being formed pledged to the total abolition of church rates and to a measure of Parliamentary reform which should secure the lowering of the borough franchise.

Since that period the Parliamentary condition may be generally, but fairly, described as a continued attack on the British Constitution in Church and State; if not always suggested by her Majesty's Ministers, always sanctioned by them, and invariably originated by the party on whose support their existence, as a Ministry, depends.

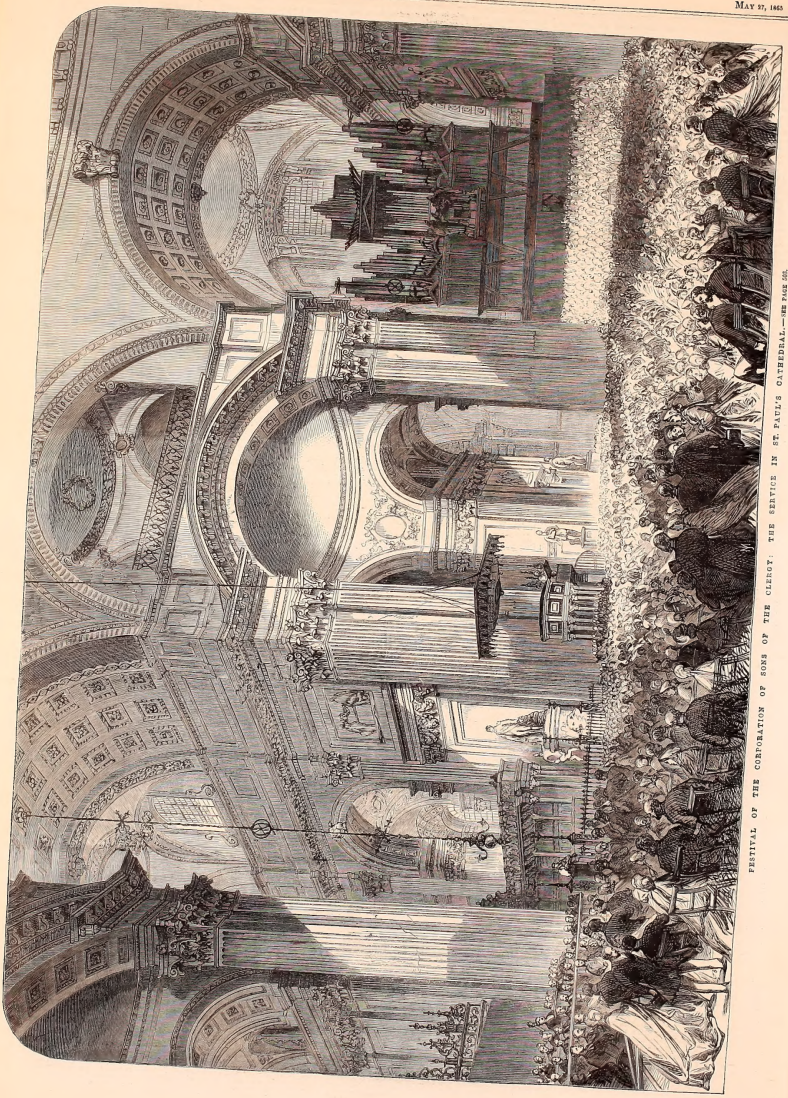
The attacks on the Church, commencing with triumphant majorities, have been encountered first with difficulty and defeat, but always with determination and constancy, and, finally, have been signally discomfited. The various schemes to deprive the Church of its constitutional privileges have been withdrawn, and the House of Commons has resolved that church rates shall not be abolished.

The attacks upon the State, never conducted with so much energy, have, nevertheless, been more prolonged, and it was only a few nights ago when the House of Commons, impatient of protracted mystification, reflected the candour of the community, and declared by a vast majority that the franchise in boroughs should not be lowered, and that the principle on which Lord Derby wished to extend it was the just one.

The efforts of the Conservative Opposition during the last six years have, therefore, been neither insignificant nor fruitless. They have defeated the measures to carry which the present Ministry was formed, and in the course of the struggle they have educated the public mind to bring to the final solution a decision more matured and enlightened.

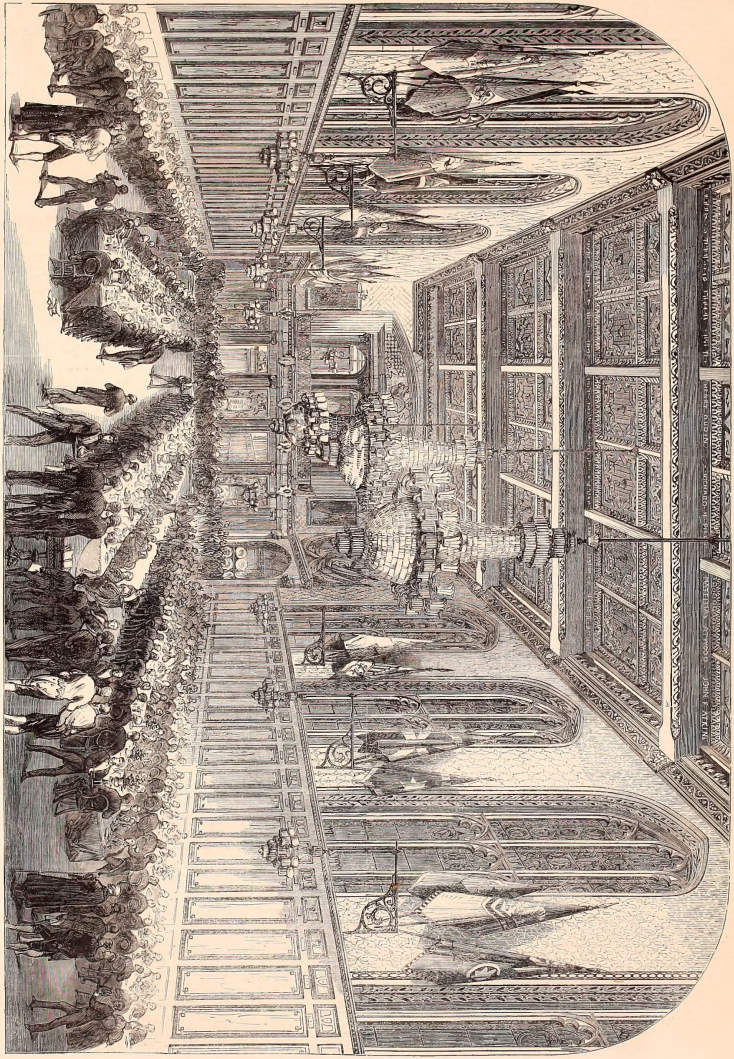
The maintenance of a National Church involves the question—Whether the principle of religion shall be an element of our political Constitution ; whether the State shall be consecrated, or whether, dismissing the sanctions that appeal to the higher feelings of man, our scheme of government should degenerate into a mere system of police. I see nothing in such a result but a corruption of nations and the fall of empires.

On the extension of the electoral franchise depends, in fact, the distribution of power. It appears to me that the primary plan of our ancient Constitution, so rich in various wisdom, indicates the course that we ought to pursue in this matter. It secured our popular rights by intrusting power, not to an indiscriminate multitude, but to the Estate, or Order, of the Commons ; and a wise Government should be careful that the elements of that Estate should bear a due relation to the moral and material development of the country. Public opinion may not, perhaps, be yet ripe enough to legislate on this subject, but it is sufficiently interested in the question to ponder over it with advantage ; so that, when the time comes for action, we may legislate in the spirit of the English Constitution, which would absorb the best of every class, and not fall into a democracy, which is the tyranny of one class, and that one the least enlightened.



The leaders of the Conservative party, although they will never shrink from the responsibility of their acts, are not obtrusive candidates for office. Place without power may gratify the vain, but can never satisfy a noble ambition. Who may be the Ministers of the Queen are the accidents of history ; what will remain on that enduring page is the policy pursued and its consequences on her realm. That will much depend upon the decision and determination of the constituencies of the United Kingdom in the impending general election. Subject to those changes which the progress of society may demand and the experience of the nation may sanction, I trust they will resolve on upholding the Constitution in Church and State.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen, your obliged and faithful servant,



Hughenden Manor, May 20. B. DISRAELI.

The Gazette of yesterday week contained a notice from Earl Russell that, in the existing state of the civil war in America and the uncertainty which may be felt as to its continuance, the Government has resolved to relax the stringency of those regulations respecting the ships of both belligerents which prohibited them from obtaining in British ports more supplies than were necessary for immediate use, and which required them to leave the port within twenty-four hours after having obtained them.

The dead body of a young man was found last week suspended from a tree in the Bois, at Paris. In the pocket of the deceased was found this letter :—"To those curious people who think it concerns them.—You will be astonished to find a suicide aged thirty. It is neither want, idleness, nor love which has driven me to this deed. I am a workman, and gain my living without difficulty. I came to Paris to work, and have had work for some years, so I am neither poor nor idle ; but tastes beyond my condition and education prevent my leading the life I wish, and, above all, I am prevented making a suitable marriage."

FESTIVAL OF THE CORPORATION OF SONS OF THE CLERGY: THE SERVICE IN ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.—SEE PAGE 505.

FESTIVAL OF THE CORPORATION OF SONS OF THE CLERGY: THE BANQUET AT MERCHANT TAYLORS' HALL—SEE PAGE 506.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

Any interest which may have existed in the proceedings of a somewhat irregular and spasmodic Parliamentary week has been mainly confined to individuals. It has been observed that the putting of the leadership proper of the House of Commons into commission has not been without its effect in the goings on of that assembly. There is not exactly rebellion or disorder, but, to use a horsey phrase, a good deal of gibbing. This may not be very palpable at other times: but during the short three quarters of an hour every evening that Lord Palmerston is present, there is an obvious straightening of the ranks and a better tone pervading the House—attributable, of course, to an insensible moral influence which he exercises: indeed, in one instance, when some member of the Opposition demeaned himself towards the Treasury Bench in the free-and-easy and recalcitrant fashion which is habitual under the deputy leadership, the Prime Minister thought it necessary to put on a stern and almost angry manner, and to pull up the offender rather sharply. One seems to fancy that Mr. Disraeli avails himself of the absence of the Premier almost to dictate how things are to be done, the calm assurance of his mode of suggesting the regulation of business being indicative of an idea that he is in temporary possession of more power than usual in that way. For instance, take the cool authoritative way in which he signified that a distinct arrangement should be made for a special discussion of the Roman Catholic Oath Bill, and his insinuation that he had taken that matter into his own hands and intended at the proper time to develop a mysterious and recondite settlement of the question. It would appear that Sir George Grey appreciated the spirit by which Mr. Disraeli was moved, and was nettled, if not irritated, at this occult flout at his pretensions as manager of the House, for he tossed the subject over to Mr. Monsell in a way which was meant to be contemptuous to Mr. Disraeli, insinuating advice that, as the owner of the bill, Mr. Monsell had better take care of it, and look out for secret torpedoes which were lying in wait to blow it up. Again, on an evening which was memorable for the circumstance of Mr. Ferrand's foregoing the delivery of a high-pressure speech in support of an indictment against the Lord Chancellor in deference to an implied suggestion of Lord Palmerston that, as a motion for a Select Committee of inquiry would be acceded to by the Government, it would be more just to postpone discussion, Mr. Disraeli, who had waited through a long series of unattractive proceedings which were leading up to a count-out, interposed with an air of dictation, and demanded, rather than intimated, that the proceedings should assume a particular shape; and, while carefully avoiding entering into the subject-matter, by his manner and by the lurking mischief in his eye, invited such of his satellites as were desirous of indulging their propensities for man-hunting to let slip their tongues. Accordingly, Lord Robert Cecil, with a deadly smile upon his lip and a ferocious calmness of manner, let drop a certain quantity of those bitter distillations of his brain which are peculiar to him; and sundry milder illustrations of Conservative memberdom went on with attempts in the same vein without in the least succeeding in catching the manner, however they may have shown the spirit, of Lord Robert, until they were fairly discomfited and put to silence, of all persons in the world, by Mr. Hadfield, who shrewdly and emphatically cried out against all this pother about the distribution of patronage by Lord Chancellors; asked whether it was the exception or the rule for such functionaries to provide for their relatives (thoughts of the penultimate holder of the Great Seal flashed through everyone's thoughts, and the Tories, as a body, palpably winced); and inquired whether they were quite sure that their virtuous indignation was not political and personal rather than abstract and impartial.

The wayfarers in the great metropolitan highway called the Strand have doubtless had their attention attracted by an exhibition of a very liliputian character, and which, entitled "The Magic Donkeys," consists of two little pasteboard representations of persons riding on donkeys, which are in perpetual motion, advancing and retreating towards each other with considerable vivacity of wriggling, but gaining no step in advance, and are rewarded by laughter from the spectators, of which they are a little ashamed, inasmuch as it is roused by so puerile a device. Why is it that this toy comes into one's mind when, night after night, in the House of Commons, one sees Mr. Darby Griffith perpetually fidgeting on one side and Mr. Whalley playing fantastic tricks on the other? In the present state of the Parliament, the minds of members may be supposed to be a little distracted, and they do not care to concentrate their moral authority to prevent the bores from usurping more than their legitimate share of the attention of the House; and so Mr. Griffith and Mr. Whalley are permitted to disport themselves almost at their pleasure, and their names are in constant repetition on the notice-paper, and their voices continually vexing the echoes of thin Houses waiting to be counted out. Nevertheless, it ought to be recorded that, for once, Mr. Darby Griffith caught the sympathies and enchained the attention of a considerable majority of the House when he brought forward the case of Colonel Dawkins, of the Guards. Without entering into the merits of that affair, it may suffice to say that Mr. Griffith succeeded in getting up a smart give-and-take debate, in which that body of military members generally known as "the Colonels" necessarily took a prominent part against the Horse Guards, as their manner is, they being quite out of the immediate proximate or possible purview of that authoritative institution, and which grew so hot that it tempted Mr. Bright to talk about a matter in which fighting men were concerned, and to indicate that he may have been unconsiously training himself for the office of Secretary for War, which people have laughingly asserted that he is to hold in the great Radical Ministry which is to be in power about 1868. Indeed, Mr. Darby Griffith got a moral victory over the Government, and would probably have beaten them on a division, but that many members who felt that they must vote against them good-naturedly went away. Next day Mr. Griffith, looking as much as he could like Alexander the Great when he was "assuming the god" under the influence of the wild music of Timotheus, inquired in a condescending but dignified manner whether Ministers, having been practically defeated, had taken warning, and were going to comply with his behests in Colonel Dawkins's case. Alas! the grand manner and the assumed importance went down with a crash before the contemptuous reply of Lord Palmerston, which was really nothing more nor less than that he would see Mr. Griffith in any absurd or abhorrent position before he would take any notice of anything he said or did. The collapse that ensued ought to have been tremendous. But Mr. Griffith never collapses; and it is probable that, unless something is done, we shall hear of Colonel Dawkins from him three times a week, and have a succession of notices on the paper, and speeches following each other, on those Tuesday evenings which are given up this year entirely to those members who are content to listen to themselves for indefinite periods; no one to speak of being present but themselves and those fated officials whose business it is to reply to them. Thus it has happened that Mr. Whalley was able to make four speeches one night on the atrocities of the Rev. Mr. Wagner, as understood and related by the anti-Papistical member for Peterborough, with scarce any interruption except an occasional humorous shout, in which the words "Sing, sing" are invariably introduced, as much to the surprise as the annoyance of Mr. Whalley, who has appealed more than once to the Speaker to know whether it is Parliamentary for a gentleman to be vocal in the house in that way. It would seem as if Mr. Whalley himself has forgotten the origin of this peculiar admonition of the impatience of the House; and he may be reminded that in one of his earlier speeches on his special subject he recited some verses at a moment when the House was almost frenzied in its interruption, and that suddenly a facetious member roared out a request that he would vary his style a little by "singing" the lines which he was delivering. It is probably the same humorous gentleman, of whose identity we have a strong suspicion, who introduces the word now and again when he wishes particularly to baffle Mr. Whalley in his talk. All this is, in its way, amusing enough; but somehow, after these scenes one finds oneself involuntarily thinking that it will not be a bad thing that there is to be a new Parliament next year.

According to the "American National Almanac" 1100 vessels of all kinds were captured by Federal cruisers in attempting to run the blockade during the war.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Monday.

Lord Kinnaird withdrew the Metalliferous Mines Bill, which stood for a second reading, complaining of the opposition which it had met with from the Government.

The reports of Mr. Bateman and Mr. Beardmore on the subject of the River Shannon and the Sewage Utilisation Bill were referred to a Select Committee.

The Pheasants (Ireland) Bill (the object of which is to assimilate the period for pheasant-shooting in Ireland to that which prevails in England), the Tories, Robbers, and Rapparees Bill (the object of which is to repeal a statute which provides for the summary infliction of penal servitude on certain sturdy beggars in Ireland), and the Exchequer Bonds (£1,000,000) Bill were read a second time.

The Oxford (Vinerian Foundation) Bill and the Customs and Inland Revenue Bill were read a third time and passed.

The Earl of Derby called attention to a report of the inspector appointed under the Alkali Works Regulation Act, and stated that it showed that the measure worked most successfully.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Monday.

The amendments to the Partnership Amendment Bill were considered and agreed to.

The Public-house Closing Act (1864) Amendment Bill was further amended and agreed to.

The General Post Office (Additional Site) (Recommitted) Bill, the Churches and Chapels Exemption (Scotland) Bill (as amended), the Dogs Regulation (Ireland) Bill, and the Ecclesiastical Leasing Act (1858) Amendment Bill passed through Committee.

The House went into Committee on the Civil Service Estimates, beginning with the vote for the Privy Seal Office. A number of votes were agreed to, and the House resumed.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer moved a series of resolutions in reference to certain stamp duties in connection with the Budget, which were agreed to.

The report of the Committee of Supply was brought up, and the resolutions were agreed to.

THE UNION CHARGEABILITY BILL.

This bill, as amended, was considered.

Mr. Knight moved a resolution to the effect that expenses for the maintenance of pauper lunatics in asylums, the establishment charges of poor-law unions or parishes, and all other expenses connected with the relief of the poor, except those of their in-maintenance and out-relief, now charged on union and parochial poor rates, should be voted by Parliament out of the general public revenue.

In a debate which followed, the vexed question of Dr. Hunter's report was again raised.

Mr. Villiers pointed out that the moving of an abstract resolution having no direct bearing on the bill before the House would only arrest its progress. He denied that this measure had been founded on Dr. Hunter's report, which, however, he had reason to believe, had rather understated the real condition of the dwellings to which it referred. The resolution proposed to transfer a charge of £1,800,000 from the rates to the public revenue, and this was intended as compensation to those who by this bill would have to pay more rates than they had hitherto done, and that was the issue which was to be decided.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, discussing the resolution, showed that, including Scotland and Ireland with England, it proposed to place a charge of two millions and a half on the public revenue, and asked whether gentlemen connected with land were prepared to double the succession duty in order to raise that sum.

Mr. Knight's resolution was then negatived without a division.

Certain verbal amendments were introduced by Mr. Villiers, and the bill was agreed to and ordered for a third reading on Thursday.

THE CASE OF COLONEL DAWKINS.

Mr. D. Griffith brought under notice the case of Lieutenant-Colonel Dawkins, of the Guards, to whom the Commander-in-Chief had made a communication to the effect that it was necessary he should either sell his commission or retire upon half pay, as he was not a person to whom it would be desirable to give the command of a battalion of the Guards. The hon. gentleman urged that Colonel Dawkins had been illegally detained in custody for eleven days, and that he had not committed any offence known to the articles of war, the only charge against him being that he had not shaken hands with Lord Rokeby, his superior officer. With the view of inaugurating a discussion on the subject, Mr. Griffith moved the adjournment of the House.

Colonel North seconded the motion, believing the present to be a special case, although he quite admitted that the House of Commons ought not to be converted into a court of appeal on military matters.

The Marquis of Hartington and Lord Palmerston defended the War Department, contending that the Commander-in-Chief had merely acted on the report of a court of inquiry into the circumstances alleged against Colonel Dawkins, and that it would be in the last degree undesirable that the House of Commons should interfere in such cases.

Colonel Dickson gave it as his opinion that if the case, as alleged on the part of Colonel Dawkins, were true, he had been the victim of tyranny and oppression by his superior officers.

Mr. Bright was of opinion that, although as a general rule it might not be desirable to bring such cases under the notice of the House, it was the prerogative of Parliament to deal with them if it thought proper.

Mr. Walpole suggested, as a compromise, that the War Office should give Colonel Dawkins time for considering the course he ought to adopt.

After a somewhat animated discussion, the House divided on the motion for adjournment, which was defeated by 172 to 112.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Tuesday.

The Mortgage Debenture Bill and the War Department Tramway (Devon) Bill were read a second time.

The Companies' Workmen's Education Bill, the Public Offices Bill, the India Offices Bill, the Pheasants (Ireland) Bill, and the Tories, Rapparees, and Robbers (Ireland) Bill passed through Committee.

Lord St. Leonards explained that Mr. Edmunds was not appointed clerk of patents by himself alone in 1852, but by all the Commissioners, who found that he had been in the office nearly twenty years.

Lord Chelmsford moved for a series of papers connected with the imprisonment of Captain Cameron and other British subjects in Abyssinia, which he alleged had been seriously prolonged by the neglect of the Foreign Office.—Earl Russell observed that it was not desirable to irritate the Emperor of Abyssinia, as it would lead him to visit his vengeance on the prisoners. He defended the course pursued by the Foreign Office in a very delicate and difficult matter, in the conduct of which the most judicious course was adopted under the advice of persons best acquainted with the peculiar position of the African Monarch, and he expressed a belief that the active measures taken would be soon successful in obtaining the release of the captives.—On a division, the motion was carried by 43 to 41, after a long discussion on a point of order connected with the mode of taking the votes in their Lordships' House.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Tuesday.

Mr. Berkeley gave notice that, on June 13, he should move a resolution in favour of the ballot.

A discussion took place on the mode of proceeding with the Roman Catholic Oath Bill, and it was agreed that the debate should take place at a morning sitting on Tuesday next, Mr. Disraeli stating that, before going into Committee on that day, he should take the opportunity of expressing his views on the general question, and of indicating what, in his opinion, would, on the whole, be the best course for the House to take.

Lord Palmerston, in reply to Mr. Darby Griffith, said the Government did not intend to take any steps in the case of Colonel Dawkins, of the Coldstream Guards, it being their opinion that it would be subversive of all discipline in the Army if the Commander-in-Chief were not allowed to use his own discretion as to who should or who should not be considered fit to command a regiment.

Lord Palmerston, referring to Mr. Ferrand's questions respecting the resignation of the late registrar of the Leeds Bankruptcy Court, said that the Lord Chancellor was desirous that the whole matter should be fully inquired into, and therefore that no opposition would be offered to Mr. Ferrand's motion for a Select Committee to investigate the case. At a later period of the evening it was agreed to appoint a Committee.

A motion by Mr. Maguire that the position in which the British paper trade had been placed by the abolition of the import duty on foreign paper, leaving the foreign export duty on rags in full operation, was one of great hardship to the British manufacturer, and called for prompt legislative interference, with the view of placing the home manufacturer on terms of fair and equitable competition with continental manufacturers, was, after a reply by Mr. Milner Gibson, negatived, on a division, by 149 to 95.

Mr. Whalley moved for a Select Committee to inquire as to the mode in which the services of the Church were conducted at St. Paul's, Brighton, and especially as to the use of the confessional by the incumbent, Mr. Wagner. He also proposed that the inquiry should extend to the services at other churches. The hon. gentleman spoke amidst constant interruption.—Mr. Staniland urged that it was a reflection on the Bench and the Church that the law was not enforced, so that Protestants might know whether they were worshipping in a church of England or in a Roman Catholic temple. He recommended, however, that the motion should be withdrawn.—The motion was negatived without a division, as was also another motion by Mr. Whalley, for leave to bring in a bill for better enforcing the law against alleged usages and ornaments in the Church of England, and especially in respect of the practice of auricular confession.

The House at its rising adjourned till Thursday, Wednesday being appointed for the celebration of the anniversary of the Queen's birthday.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Thursday.

This being Ascension Day, the Lords did not meet.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Thursday.

The Partnership Amendment Bill and the General Post Office (Additional Site) Bill were severally read a third time and passed.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in answer to Sir Fitzroy Kelly, proposed to postpone the motion for the second reading of the Malt Duty Bill for a week.

UNION CHARGEABILITY BILL.

On the motion for the third reading of this bill,

Mr. Henley defended his conduct in reference to the bill, and again urged the necessity for abolishing the laws permitting removability.

Mr. G. Bentinck objected to the bill on the ground that it was hypocritical. Its promoters professed to benefit the poor. So far from that, he believed the bill would entail upon the poor a large amount of hardship. Moreover, it was suspicious that on the eve of a general election a bill should be brought in by the Government by which the boroughs would be benefited at the expense of the county districts.

Mr. Knight also opposed the bill on similar grounds.

After a few words from Mr. Mitford in support of the bill, it was read a third time and passed.

BANK NOTES ISSUE BILL.

On the order of the day for the third reading of the Bank Notes Issue Bill,

The Chancellor of the Exchequer moved that the order for the third reading be discharged and that the bill be recommitted for the purpose of inserting in the preamble after the word "mentioned," the following words:—"And to fix by law a time whereat the present statutory right of issue on the part of bankers obtaining such exemption shall determine, in order that either their issues may become subject to the enactments of the Bank Act of 1844, hereinafter mentioned in respect to lapsed issues of bank-notes, or that Parliament may make further provision concerning them as it shall think fit, upon grounds of public policy.

Mr. Heygate moved, as an amendment, that the order for the third reading be read and discharged, and the bill recommitted for the purpose of making the following amendment in clause 8, line 2, to leave out "shall," and insert "may."

The Chancellor of the Exchequer agreed to the amendment, as it did not alter the powers of the bill.

The bill, as amended in the preamble and the 8th clause, was then agreed to.

FIRE BRIGADE (METROPOLIS) BILL.

On the order of the day for the second reading of this bill,

Mr. T. G. Baring said that a Committee of that House in 1862 inquired into the operations of the fire brigade, and they found that it was not adequate to the wants of the metropolis. They, therefore, recommended that an efficient fire brigade should be formed under the direction of the Chief Commissioner of Police; that the expense should be annually laid before Parliament, and that the bill should extend to the metropolitan area. It was also found that the fire insurance offices contemplated abolishing the brigade on account of its expense and increasing the rate of insurance. The Government therefore communicated with the Metropolitan Board of Works on the subject, and the result had been the proposal to place the brigade under the control of that Board. To maintain that force they proposed by the present bill to levy a rate of a halfpenny in the pound sterling, on the metropolitan parishes, to tax the fire insurance offices to the extent of £35 for every £1,000,000 insured in the metropolis, and to grant £10,000 annually from the funds of the country. The brigade would then be greatly improved, and engines would be stationed at the Tower, Somerset House, the National Gallery, Chelsea, and other Government offices, thereby affording the Government property additional protection. It was not proposed by the bill to impose fines upon people whose chimneys took fire. It was desirable to include the fire-escapes in the bill, but as the contemplated income of £50,000 a year would be only sufficient to maintain the brigade efficiently, it was only proposed give permissive power in the bill to place the present fire-escapes under its provisions, when their income increased, so as to enable them to do so.

Sir W. Joliffe thought that the Board of Works was not the proper body to have the control of the fire brigade.

Mr. Ayrton supported the bill, but suggested some alteration in its details.

Mr. Blackburn was of opinion that the brigade should be supported entirely by a local rate.

After some further conversation, the bill was read a second time.

THE PENSION LIST.

The following is the list of pensions granted for 1864-5, in addition to one of £100, which was given early in the year to Mrs. Hills, daughter of Southey, the poet:—

Armstrong, Dr. Robert Archibald, in acknowledgment of his philological labours as a Gaelic lexicographer (in addition to a pension of £40), £20.

Bingham, Mrs., widow of Colonel Charles Bingham, of the Royal Artillery, in consideration of her late husband's long and valuable services, and of the straitened circumstances in which she and her children are left, £150.

Boole, Mrs., widow of the late Professor of Mathematics in Queen's College, Cork, in consideration of his distinguished attainments as an original mathematician of the highest order, and of his remarkable labours towards the extension of the boundaries of science, £100.

Haydn, Mrs., widow of the late Mr. Joseph Haydn, author of "The Dictionary of Dates," &c. (completing her pension to £100), £25.

Hayter, Mr. John, on account of his labours as a portrait-painter, £50.

Howitt, Mr. William, in consideration of the long and useful career of literary labour in which both he and his wife have been engaged, £140.

Laing, Mr. Henry, in consideration of the services he has rendered to the study of Scotch antiquities and Scotch historical research, £50.

Leech, Mrs., widow of the late Mr. John Leech, artist, £100.

Lucas, Mr., in consideration of his merit as an artist, and of his having presented to the Kensington Museum some valuable ivory carvings and antiquities, £150.

Nicol, Dr. David, in view of his long and zealous exertions for the moral and literary improvement of the community in which he lives, and to the fact of his being suddenly incapacitated by disease from the professional practice which was his only source of income, £100.

Reid, Mrs., widow of Dr. D. Boswell Reid, in consideration of his efforts to promote the knowledge of chemistry and the practical science of ventilation, and of the narrow circumstances in which his widow is left, £100.

Spruce, Mr., on account of his contributions to botanical and geographical knowledge—the result of travels in South America—and of his services in introducing cinchona (quinine) seeds into India, in 1860, £50.

Wright, Mr. Thomas, an author who has contributed much to English literary and political history, £65.

The annual dinner of the Press Fund Society took place last Saturday at the Freemasons' Tavern. Mr. Charles Dickens was in the chair, supported by Lord Truro, the Right Hon. Spencer Walpole, M.P., Mr. Denman, M.P., Sir John Boileau, Admiral Burney, and several other distinguished persons. The subscriptions amounted to more than £1200. The speech of the chairman, in proposing the toast of the evening, was distinguished by more than his usual playful kindness of manner, and contained some reminiscences of his own early connection with newspaper reporting, which, on account of their great interest, we give entire. Mr. Dickens said:—"I hope I may be allowed in the few closing words that I feel a desire to say in remembrance of some circumstances, rather special, attending my present occupation of this chair, to give those words something of a personal tone. I am not here advocating the case of a mere ordinary client of whom I have little or no knowledge. I hold a brief to-night for my brothers (Loud and continued cheering). I went into the gallery of the House of Commons as a Parliamentary reporter when I was a boy not eighteen, and I left it—I can hardly believe the inexorable truth—nigh thirty years ago; and I have pursued the calling of a reporter under circumstances of which many of my brethren at home in England here, many of my brethren's successors, can form no adequate conception. I have often transcribed for the printer from my shorthand notes important public speeches in which the strictest accuracy was required, and a mistake in which would have been to a young man severely compromising, writing on the palm of my hand by the light of a dark lantern in a post-chaise and four, galloping through a wild country all through the dead of the night at the then surprising rate of fifteen miles an hour. The very last time I was at Exeter I strolled into the castle yard, there to identify, for the amusement of a friend, the spot on which I once 'took,' as we used to call it, an election speech of my noble friend Lord Russell in the midst of a lively fight maintained by all the vagabonds in that division of the county, and under such pelting rain that I remember two good-natured colleagues, who chanced to be at leisure, held a pocket-handkerchief over my notebook after the manner of a state canopy in an ecclesiastical procession (Laughter). I have worn my knees by writing on the back row of the old gallery of the old House of Commons; and I have worn my feet by standing to write in a preposterous pen in the old House of Lords, where we used to be huddled like so many sheep—(Laughter)—kept in waiting till the woolsack might want restuffing (Laughter). Returning home from excited political meetings in the country to the waiting press in London, I do verily believe I have been upset in almost every description of vehicle known in this country (A laugh). I have been, in my time, belated on miry by-roads towards the small hours, forty or fifty miles from London, in a rickety carriage, with exhausted horses and drunken postboys, and have got back in time before publication, to be received with never-forgotten compliments by Mr. Black, in the broadest of Scotch, coming from the broadest of hearts I ever knew (Hear, hear). Ladies and gentlemen, I mention these trivial things as an assurance to you that I never have forgotten the fascination of that old pursuit (Cheers). The pleasure that I used to feel in the rapidity and dexterity of its exercise has never faded out of my breast. With whatever little cunning of hand or head I took to it, or acquired in it, I have so retained as that, I fully believe, I could resume it to-morrow (Cheers). To this present year of my life, when I sit in this hall, or where not, hearing a dull speech—the phenomenon does occur (Laughter)—I sometimes beguile the tedium of the moment by mentally following the speaker in the old, old way; and sometimes, if you can believe me, I even find my hand going on the tablecloth, taking an imaginary note of it all (Laughter). Accept these little truths a confirmation of what I know, as a confirmation of my interest in this old calling. Accept them as a proof that my feeling for the vocation of my youth is not a sentiment taken up to-night to be thrown away to-morrow (Hear, hear), but a faithful sympathy which is part of myself (Cheers). I verily believe—I am sure—that if I had never quitted my old calling I should have been foremost and zealous in the interest of this institution, believing it to be a sound, a wholesome, and a good one."

CURRENT LITERATURE.

A History of the Commonwealth of Florence. By T. Adolphus Trollope. (Chapman and Hall.) The subject of these two volumes, which will be succeeded by two more volumes, completing the work, is forcibly recalled to our notice by the interesting ceremony of last week, when the 600th anniversary of the birth of Dante was celebrated at Florence with a national festival of historical and not merely of literary significance. The age in which Dante lived, from 1265 to 1321, is, perhaps, the most characteristic period in the annals of that famous old Florentine Commonwealth whose republican experience is narrated in Mr. Trollope's very opportune and instructive book. It is true that the political condition of Dante's native city, in those times of its troublesome and perilous self-government, affords the strongest possible contrast to the present situation of Florence as the new capital of the Italian kingdom; nor does it appear, from what we know of the part actually taken by Dante in the public affairs of his own day, that he could ever have looked forward to the happy consummation of Italian unity and Constitutional liberty which Cavour and Garibaldi have been enabled to bring about within the last five or six years. Mr. Trollope is well known to have done good service to the cause of a free and united Italy, whose claims were from the first advocated by him, and by the lamented lady taken but a few weeks since from his side, with the sincerest eloquence and with the most perfect knowledge of that glorious country, and of its generous and intelligent people. But as Mr. Trollope is a true scholar and a true historian, he resolutely puts aside, in the work before us, the very natural temptation to seek in the renown of this mediæval commonwealth a prototype of the new era of national prosperity which he hopes to have seen begun with the proclamation of the Italian kingdom in 1861. Beyond a few grave and thoughtful reflections, in the preface to these volumes, upon the moral fitness or the historical justice of fixing upon that city for the definitive capital of Italy which has contributed the most towards the civilisation of Italy and the world, he does not here discuss the political theories and prospects of our own day, but keeps a single eye to the examination of his proper subject. He has carefully and sagaciously analysed the social life of the old Florentine community, detected the sources both of the best and the worst qualities of their national character, defined the peculiar influences of the prevailing doctrines and customs of the Middle Ages, the traditions of Guelph and Ghibelline which pervade the history of centuries in the Italian peninsula; he has, with equal discrimination, traced the workings of all those different institutions and schemes of government which were adopted one after another by the inventive genius, and soon destroyed by the wanton impatience, of the liveliest, the busiest, the most restless, and perhaps the cleverest people upon earth. Such a topic, as Mr. Trollope's readers may well anticipate, is full both of dramatic interest and of moral and political instruction. There has seldom been anything like the joyous, tumultuous vehemence of that fresh burst of exuberant vitality with which the young commonwealth of Florence, defying alike the feudal and imperial potentates of Europe, and reckless even of the Papal curse, leaped forth in the buoyant vigour of its popular liberties, and started far ahead of every other State in the race of civilisation. We find, however, that this energetic and quick-witted race of artisans and tradesmen, who rapidly accumulated so much wealth, and who, as woollen-manufacturers, silk-weavers, merchants, and bankers, carried on as large a proportionate share of the commercial and financial business of Europe as England carries on at this day, were incessantly breaking out into the boldest adventures of military and political ambition, which we should now deem inconsistent with the habits of a mercantile community. From the year 1107, when, according to their most ancient chronicler, "the Florentines, wishing to extend their territory, determined to make war against any castle or fortress which would not be obedient to them," and thereupon attacked the feudal lords of Monte Orlando, seven miles from their city, down to the period of their conquest of the rival republics of Pisa and Siena, and the consequent subjugation of the whole of Tuscany, the history of Florence is one of alternate enterprises, of self-aggrandisement, and desperate conflicts with a host of inveterate foes, such as can only be paralleled in the narratives of Thucydides and Livy. Since Mr. Trollope has undertaken to be the Grote or the Arnold of these mediæval chronicles of the Florentine Commonwealth, we would recommend the subject to a large number of readers who may be tolerably well acquainted with the campaigns, the factions, and the political vicissitudes of Greece and Rome, but ignorant of the strife between the Bianchi and Neri, the achievements of Uguccione della Fagiuola and of Castruccio Castracane, and other old stories of the Tuscan world.

Songs of Love and Death. By George Eric Mackay. (Chapman and Hall.) The title well describes the book, in which love and death play the principal parts. It is to be regretted that several of the ladies in whose eyes love plays his merry pranks are not so virtuous as they are beautiful. The songs are remarkable rather for spirit and grace than for depth of feeling or originality of thought. Poets should take great care in their choice of epithets and of comparisons, else readers may make disparaging remarks. For instance, "lambkin, dear" (p. 14) might suggest to certain minds the price of meat; and the lines (p. 72)

> And deem her eyes the break of morn,
> Whose glance would put the sun to scorn, might call to one's recollection (not to the advantage of Mr. Mackay) a song beginning

> Take, oh, take those lips away,
> That so sweetly were forsworn;
> And those eyes the break of day,
> Lights that do mislead the morn, &c.

Isn't "put to scorn," too, an odd jumble? we put to shame, and we laugh to scorn; but let such small matters pass.

Spells and Voices. By Ada Keyne. (Trübner and Co.) Though the nightingale, the thrush, and the blackbird be the chief of feathered songsters, there is many a humbler bird besides which has a sweet note and trills a pleasant carol; let, then, the author of this little volume be content to join the company of those whose voice may lack volume and power, but nevertheless is sweet and musical.

Helen Felton's Question. By Agnes Wylde. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston). This one-volume story is called "a problem in a novel." Now, Helen's question (at the unripe age of sixteen, when, as a contemporary informed us not long ago, young ladies will commit any extravagance, from murder to marriage) was really (p. 13) "WHAT AM I PUT HERE FOR? WHY DID GOD MAKE ME? Of what use am I? What ought I to live for?" This is scarcely the form in which one is accustomed to couch a "problem." It should rather have been after this fashion: "Upon a given straight line (or anything else) to construct a young lady who shall know what she was put here for, why she was made, of what use she is, and what she ought to live for." It is astonishing how long she took, and what floods of tears it cost her, to find out what she must have been told every Sunday ever since she had been "called upon to hear sermons;" for she belonged to a family so highly respectable that they would, no doubt, have considered it as disreputable not to go to church as not to go to the exhibition of the Royal Academy: at any rate, there is every reason to suppose that they did go to church; and if you will only keep your ears open at church you cannot help getting a complete answer (not necessarily in the sermons, but in the service generally) to Helen Felton's question. However, the novel is worth any number of the trashy, flashy, Bohemian, and yet clever and ingenious three-volume stories which threaten to overwhelm us. It is not powerful, it is not profound, it is not artistic, it is not original; but it is pleasantly written, it introduces the reader to ladies and gentlemen, it represents truthfully a certain phase of society, it contains some charming characters; and though the author drops just a little into the tract-line towards the end, she, through the greater part of her story, maintains a superior tone and a wholesome atmosphere. It is now the height of the "season;" and if young ladies, a little older, but not more beautiful—not more clever, not in better circumstances, though perhaps of a little higher rank, than Helen Felton would, on their return from the ball, or the rout, or the theatre, or the concert, when the weary day is over, when the roses are gone from their cheeks, and when "all is vanity," dip, night by night, or, rather, morning by morning, into a few pages of their fabulous sister's history, and learn how she was taught to answer her question, both they and their fellow-creatures might possibly be benefited.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

SALISBURY had a middling meeting, of which the most prominent feature was the winning début of Salisbury, the 830 gs. Royal yearling, and the defeat of Ackworth by Mr. T. Parr's Derby and St. Leger colt, Friday, at 27 lb. for the year, in a very fast-run, three-mile Queen's Plate. Wild Charley was receiving 23 lb. when he beat the brown over a mile at Northampton; but, what with trials and a Chester preparation, the latter must be staler since then. King Hal, Qui Vive, and Robin Hood, all of them winners, were beaten at Bath by the 800 gs. Royal Doralice colt, who is, we believe, the first St. Albans winner. He was, however, beaten the next day, with a very bad start and 5 lb. extra, by Vespasian by Newminster, a 420 gs. Rawcliffe colt; in fact, the highest priced one of the '64 sale. Mr. Merry's heavily-engaged Student was third; but, perhaps, The Primate may prove the best Russley two-year-old. Ely revenged himself on Cambuscan in the Cup, for which "A. D. G. Wagner," late the Miss Sellon colt, made most of the running.

Be it pictures of horses, or photographs of jockeys, bronze statuettes, or Jockey Club essence, or scarves with the favourite's colours, or pins with Thormanby heads, or luncheon hampers, or siphonias and veils, every fourth shop window bears some Derby reference. The prophets, who have had a poor time of it lately, are quite overshadowed by tipsters, ready to impart "double events" and "outsiders that cannot lose" for thirty stamps. The "gentleman who has made sufficient to retire on in two years" will do it for six; "the lady who dreamt three nights running that she saw the Derby won by a neck," and then adds, parenthetically, "shouts rang in her ears," will do it for twelve; while a "Miss Nelson, to whom the name of the winner has been confidentially imparted by the owner and trainer," sticks to thirty, and wants the odds to a pound as well. "Augur" goes a step beyond this, and declares that four members of the Jockey Club simultaneously dreamt Longdown on Saturday night, and "something in black second." Gladiateur (H. Grimshaw) holds his place, and, even if he was "pricked," the great, raking winner of the Two Thousand must always be held in honour. Archimedes (J. Mann or Martin) is hotly supported by his owner, but our impression is that he will be not so forward as he was at Newmarket. Wild Charley (A. Edwards) has been heavily supported this week. Breadalbane is said to have gone on well since the Guineas, and it is generally expected that Aldcroft will be on him after all. Trainers declare that, setting aside his temper, Broomielaw can never be got fit by the time, and his present price is said to be owing to defeat in a trial. Looking at Breadalbane's blood and steady preparation, and the performances of Gladiateur and Wild Charley, nothing on paper seems to have the chance of these three for places. Christmas Carol is quite dark, and people are asking why if the dead-heaters, Longdown and Gladiateur, are such favourites, Siberia, who beat them both in the autumn at 5 lb., should not beat them now at the same difference in the Derby? Chattanooga (Challoner) will be at a short price if he comes to the post, as his Criterion victory cannot be forgotten, and a nicer colt never galloped. A new rival to Siberia, Wild Agnes, Wild Duck, &c., for the Oaks, has sprung up in Delaine, winner of the French Oaks, and daughter of the Dutchman and Imperieuse.

Mr. Gulliver's finest yearling was injured by a nail in his box, and therefore the average was considerably reduced on Monday. Still, two of his half brothers by Big Ben averaged 415 gs., and the five which were sold, 227 gs. The programmes for the summer sales are now published. The Diss lot come up to Tattersalls' on the "Milward Monday" before the Derby. There are seven colts and three fillies, all by Vedette, and all from the dams of winners; and seven fillies and three colts by Promised Land. Sir Lydston sends up nineteen on Monday, the 5th of June; nine by Gemma di Vergy, and the rest by eight different sires. Saturday, the 10th of June, will be a great day at Hampton Court. Of her Majesty's twenty-five no less than sixteen are fillies. There are five Orlandos, eight St. Albans, five Newminsters, two Voltigeurs, a Stockwell, a Rataplan, two Young Melbournes, and a Wild Dayrell; and among them own brothers to The Knave, and own sisters to Guardsman, Chattanooga, Imaus, and Express. Twenty-seven of the late Mr. Greville's brood mares, many of them with foals at their foot, will be sold, as well as twelve yearling colts and seven fillies, which includes own sister to Saragossa, a half brother to King Hal, and a half sister to Doralice colt. Eighteen of the Stanton stud, principally by Knight of Kars, come up to Tattersalls' on June 12; and on June 17 we have the Middle Park sale. It is headed by a chestnut colt by Stockwell from Governess; and the forty-five are made up of three Stockwells, three Newminsters, five Dundees, twelve Marsyasses, two Chanticleers, a Monarque, a Flying Dutchman, two Wild Dayrells, a Weatherbit, a Musjid, five Horrors, a Horror or Dundee, a Drogheda, a St. Albans, two Neashams, and four Amsterdams. Twenty-six of them are from dams of winners. Dundee's subscription is full.

We understand that the committee of the Cumberland hounds are anxious to meet with a master. The country is a two-days-a-week one, and fairly stored with foxes. There is a pack of twenty-two couple in kennel, and £550 a year would be guaranteed for three years. The Carlisle otter-hounds have had some good sport, in which there was rather a curious episode of the otter and the pack all rolling together over a steep bank. Dr. Grant's day on the Ettrick came to nothing, as the water was too high and coloured, and the crowd of horse and foot so immense that the dogs had no chance given them, and two of them were lamed.

The cricketers are at full work again in town and country. T. Humphry has made 97 and the Hon. E. G. Lyttleton 67 (one of them a magnificent drive for six) in a match (drawn) between the Surrey and the Marylebone Clubs, in which Mr. A. J. Wilkinson bowled very effectively for Surrey. Parr and Hayward have also made good scores against Twenty-Two of the West of Scotland, and J. Smith (73) on the part of Cambridgeshire against Yorkshire, which ended in a draw, when the former county had 10 to get and three wickets to go down. The United South have got into good working order with James Lillywhite, Willsher, Bennett, and Griffith as their bowlers.

The first match of the season of the Prince of Wales Yacht Club was sailed last Saturday, from Erith to the Chapman Light and back. The race was confined to boats of fifteen tons and under, and was open to all recognised yacht clubs. There was a time allowance of one minute per ton. The following were at their anchors for the start:—Gipsy, Surprise, Satanella, the Queen, Dudu, Octoroon, and Dione. The first prize, value twenty-five guineas, was won by Captain Whitbread's Queen, 15 tons; and the second, value ten guineas, by Captain Baldock's Dudu, 15 tons.

BATH RACES.—TUESDAY.

Landsdown Trial Stakes.—Lytham, 1. Heir-at-Law, 2. Donnybrook, 3.
Fourteenth Biennial Stakes.—Doralice c., 1. King Hal, 2. Queen Mary, 3.
Kelston Stakes.—Blackbird, 1. Lord of the Manor, 2. Thais, 3.
Somersetshire Stakes.—Armagnac, 1. Buckfoot, 2. Claxton, 3.
Thirteenth Biennial Stakes.—Friday, 1. Sydmonton, 2. Tennyson, 3.
County Members' Plate.—Raglan, 1. Guildhall, 2. Stockinger, 3.

WEDNESDAY.

Selling Plate.—Sylph, 1. Blackbird, 2. Auld Ailie, 3.
Weston Stakes.—Vespasian, 1. Doralice c., 2. Student, 3.
Bath Handicap.—Donnybrook, 1. Godmersham, 2. Beadle, 3.
Beaufort Cup.—Ely, 1. Cambuscan, 2. Sydmonton, 3.
Welter Stakes.—Idumæa, 1. Overstone, 2.
Badminton Stakes.—Ozone, 1. Cranberry, 2. Hesper, 3.
Dyrham Park Handicap.—Bradamante, 1. The Count, 2. Seven-and-a-Half, 3.

LATEST BETTING AT TATTERSALLS' ON THURSDAY.

DERBY.—9 to 2 agst Gladiateur (t and off), 11 to 2 agst Breadalbane (t), 7 to 1 agst Archimedes (t), 8 to 1 agst Wild Charley (t), 13 to 1 agst Christmas Carol (t), 14 to 1 agst Longdown (t), 1000 to 70 agst Oppressor (wanted), 20 to 1 agst Chattanooga (t), 33 to 1 agst Bedminster (t), 40 to 1 agst Brahma (t), 40 to 1 agst Ariel (t), 50 to 1 agst Kangaroo (t freely), 1000 to 10 agst Eltham (t), 1000 to 10 agst Siberia (t), 1000 to 10 agst Zephyr (t), 1000 to 10 agst Roderick Random (t), 1000 to 10 agst Farewell (off.), 750 to 30 agst Farewell and Ariel (t). The Duke was scratched for the Derby at 4.11 p.m. on Thursday. 9 to 1 had been taken kindly about him a few minutes previously.

The Graaf Reinet Herald tells the following amusing story about a wool farmer, who was anxious to get full value for his produce:—"Since it was known that there had been no assizing of weights in this town for four years, and that there were differences in the scales of several dealers, an amusing incident occurred. A farmer who reads his newspaper came to town resolved to be wide-awake in selling his wool; so he went to the first store, and brought up the subject of weighing people. Stepping on the platform scale, he said:—'I wonder what I weigh now?' His weight was read off, and away he went to the next store; and so on to others. When he came back he knew who had the lightest scales, and did not go there with his wool."

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, May 22.—There was only a moderate supply of English wheat on sale in our market to-day; nevertheless, owing to the fineness of the weather for the growing crops, the demand for all kinds ruled inactive, at prices barely equal to Monday last. The show of foreign wheat was somewhat on the increase. Selected samples were steady in price; but all other kinds were a dull inquiry. Floating cargoes of wheat were held at extreme rates. The sale for both English and foreign barley was somewhat heavy, on former terms. In malt, the transactions were very moderate, at late currencies. Oats were a slow inquiry, but not quotably lower. Both beans and peas supported former terms. The flour trade was steady.

May 24.—The transactions in all kinds of produce to-day were much restricted, at about Monday's quotations.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 38s. to 43s.; ditto, white, 43s. to 48s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 38s. to 42s.; rye, 26s. to 27s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 24s. distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 27s. to 31s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 54s. to 61s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 51s.; Kingston and Ware, 54s. to 61s.; Chevalier, 58s. to 62s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 19s. to 23s.; potato ditto, 23s. to 27s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 18s. to 23s.; ditto, white, 19s. to 24s.; tick beans, 33s. to 35s.; grey peas, 31s. to 35s.; maple, 36s. to 39s.; white, 34s. to 36s.; boilers, 37s. to 38s. per quarter.

Arrivals this Week.—English and Scotch: Wheat, 280; barley, 110; malt, 330; oats, 220; flour, 290. Foreign: Wheat, 17,670; barley, 5990; oats, 43,320; flour, 430 brls.

Seeds.—Very little business is doing in agricultural seeds. Linseed and cakes are a dull inquiry.

Linseed, English, crushing, 56s. to 62s.; Calcutta, 57s. to 58s.; hempseed, 42s. to 43s. per quarter; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt.; brown mustard seed, 10s. to 12s.; white ditto, 8s. to 10s.; tares, 9s. to 10s. per bushel; English rapeseed, 64s. to 72s. per quarter; Linseed cakes, English, £10 15s. to £11 0s.; ditto, foreign, £11 0s. to £11 5s.; rape cakes £6 0s. to £6 10s. per ton; red clover seed, 66s. to 110s.; white ditto, 66s. to 83s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 41s. 8d.; barley, 29s. 9d.; oats, 22s. 9d. per quarter.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 88,015; barley, 8181; oats, 3359 quarters.

Tea.—Very little business is doing in any kind. Prices, however, are supported.

Sugar.—There is a fair demand for most raw qualities, at full quotations. The stock consists of 80,900 tons, against 70,000 tons last year. Refined goods move off steadily, at 43s. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—Most descriptions command full quotations; but the demand is by no means active. Stock, 9800 tons, against 8000 tons in 1864.

Rice.—Prices are supported, and the market is steady. Stock, 37,000 tons, against 40,000 tons last year.

Provisions.—The butter market is inactive, at the late decline in the quotations. Bacon, hams, and lard are quite as dear as last week. Other provisions are a dull inquiry.

Tallow.—The demand is heavy, at 40s. 6d. per cwt. for P.Y.C., on the spot.

Oils.—Linseed oil is selling at 32s. per cwt., on the spot. Other oils support late rates.

Spirits.—Rum is in fair request, at 1s. 5d. to 1s. 6d. per gallon for proof East India. Malt spirit, duty paid, 12s. 6d. to 13s. 6d.; Geneva, 2s. to 2s. 5d.; and grain spirit, for export, 1s. 5d. to 2s. per gallon. We have no change to notice in the value of brandy.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 4s. to £5 5s.; clover, £4 10s. to £6 6s.; and straw, £1 5s. to £1 12s. per load.

Coals.—Hasting's Hartley, 16s.; Holywell, 17s. 6d.; Gosforth, 16s. 3d.; South Hetton, 18s. 3d.; Kelloe, 17s.; and Hartlepool, 18s. per ton.

Wool.—The public sales are progressing steadily, at the opening decline in the quotations.

Potatoes.—The supplies are seasonably extensive, and the demand is steady, at from 60s. to 160s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, May 25).—The arrivals of English beasts fresh up to our market to-day were very moderate. The supply of foreign beasts was good, and the trade ruled inactive, at about Monday's currency. The top price was 4s. 10d. per 8 lb. Sheep—of which there was a moderate supply on offer—sold somewhat slowly, but at full prices for all good and prime breeds. Prime Downs and half-breds realised 6s. 2d. per 8 lb. The lamb trade was quiet, at 6s. 8d. to 7s. 8d. to, in some instances, 8s. per 8 lb. Calves were in moderate supply and slow request, at late rates. Pigs moved off slowly, at previous quotations.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 8d.; second quality ditto, 3s. 10d. to 4s. 2d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 6d.; prime Scots, 4s. 8d. to 4s. 10d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 8d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 4d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. [illegible] to 5s. 10d.; prime Southdown ditto, 6s. 0d. to 6s. 2d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; prime small ditto, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 2d.; large hogs, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 4d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 10d.; lambs, 6s. 8d. to 7s. 8d.; suckling calves, 16s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 23s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 990; cows, 130; sheep and lambs, 8680; calves, 410; pigs, 370. Foreign: Beasts, 450; sheep, and lambs, 3130; calves, 290.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—Beef, from 3s. 4d. to 4s. 6d.; mutton, 4s. 0d. to 5s. 8d.; lamb, 6s. 4d. to 7s. 6d.; veal, 4s. 0d. to 5s. 0d.; and pork, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 10d. per 8 lb. by the carcass.

ROBERT HERBERT.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, MAY 19.

BANKRUPTS.

F. COLLINS, Author-terrace, Stoke Newington, commission agent.—W. RIDGLEY, jun., Rosamond-street, Clerkenwell, butcher.—G. GRAHE, Queen-street, Cheapside, merchant.—E. P. DOWLING, Hitchin, farmer.—W. E. BROWNING, Temple, barrister.—H. E. HARRIS, Roman-road, Islington. — J. DAVIS, Ampthill-square, surgeon dentist.—W. HARRISON, Johnson's-place, Harrow-road, oilman.—J. CAMM, New North-road, Hoxton, schoolmaster.—H. JOEL, Regent's-row, Dalston, looking-glass manufacturer.—W. MOORE, Nicholas-lane, City, tailor.—R. BURN, Oakham, Rutland, chemist.—G. T. PETTY, Orpington, Kent, carpenter.—J. JOHNSON, Wells-next-the-Sea, Norfolk, coal merchant.—H. C. MEREDITH, Fenchurch-street, commission merchant.—J. HART, Finchingfield, Essex, farmer.—J. C. WAIGHT, King's-cross-road, cheesemonger.—W. WALKLEY, Arundel, Sussex.—R. W. JONES, Vauxhall Bridge-road, corndealer.—F. DAVIS, Holloway-road, zinc manufacturer.—J. L. BARBER, Bradwell, Suffolk.—G. GURNEY, New North-road, Hoxton.—M. HART, Middlesex-street, Aldgate, bootdealer.—W. COCKETT, Folkestone, auctioneer.—G. FARTHING, Cheapside, tailor.—E. GOSDEN, Pirbright, farmer.—S. R. DAWSON, Southwick, butcher.—H. E. DIGHTAM, Bedford, watchmaker.—E. P. DOWLING, Hitchin, farmer.—J. BULLIN, Hixon, horsedealer.—J. WOOD, Lichfield, farmer.—C. EVERALL, Hereford, butter-factor.—W. MOXON, Leicester, hairdresser.—W. VERITY, Bradford.—J. OLDROYD, Batley, cloth manufacturer.—G. and J. S. BELL, Barwick-in-Elmet, farmers.—T. HENNIN, Liverpool, provision-dealer.—W. DAVIES, Liverpool, builder.—R. and D. TOWERS, Blackburn, manufacturers.—J. P. ALLEN, West Hartlepool, shipowner.—J. and J. BRODIE, Consett, drapers.—J. ROGERS, Nottingham, plumber.—J. P. FISHER, Everton, schoolmaster.—T. EVERITT, Dudley, buckster.—R. K. BAILEY, Leicester, butcher.—S. TILLOTSON, Birmingham, provision-dealer.—J. D. KIND, Moseley.—C. WOODHAMS, Tunbridge Wells, greengrocer.—J. HALSTEAD, Heywood, clogger.—H. WHITTAKER, Bury.—H. E. JONES, Southsea, commission agent.—A. COX, Mark.—H. WILSON, Whitby.—W. BROUGHTON, jun., Sibbertoft, butcher.—G. ALLSOP, Derby, butcher.—J. HOLDEN, Bolton, gilder.—E. BELTON, jun., Hebbern Quay, brickmaker. — W. MILLER, South Shields, tinner. — T. and G. PAYNE, Hulme, grocers. — J. MELLISH, South Brent, butcher. — T. LUVATI, Swan Hill, carver. — T. and J. SHRIMPTON, Redditch, needle manufacturers.—J. HOLLIER, Sharnford, licensed victualler.—W. R. GRANT, Wardington, tailor.—F. T. ASHBY, Holbeach, beerhouse-keeper.—J. EDWARDS, Pwllheli, baker.—A. CULWICK, Westbromwich.—G. PICKARD, Waterloo, plasterer.—W. H. OXLAND, St. Budeaux, licensed victualler.—J. BROWN, Wolverhampton.

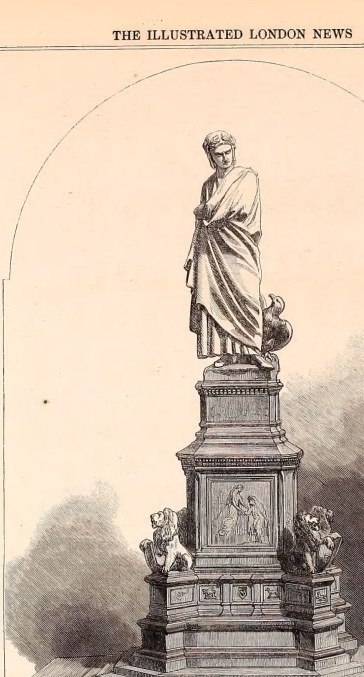
TUESDAY, MAY 23.

BANKRUPTS.

C. A. H. D. B. CREAGH, Hastings, Cornet in the 6th Dragoons.—H. CORSTEN, Praed-street, florist.—C. JOYCE, F. G. WESTMORELAND, and T. L. JOYCE, Moorgate-street, merchants.—G. LEVY, Old Fish-street, auctioneer.—J. BROWN, Upper Lisson-street, cheesemonger.—M. FIELD, Tunbridge Wells, dealer in toys.—W. J. COTLAND, Abingdon-street, Westminster, engineer.—J. STEWART, Blackwall, engineer.—J. HAMPTON, Latymer-road, cornchandler.—C. GILES, near Ashford, farmer.—J. S. COLLINS, Southampton, merchant.—J. COWARD, Bow, master mariner.—C. STUBB, Bolton, chemist.—D. COWEN, Dalston, shipowner.—J. B. VAUGHAN, Wormwood-scrubbs, gas engineer.—J. H. PLATT, Moorgate-street, doctor of homœopathic medicine.—J. CLARK, King's-cross, potato merchant.—F. R. WILSON, Crown-court, stockbroker.—E. PIKE, Leigh-street, draper.—T. E. STEVENS and W. FLEWITT, Nottingham, brassfounders.—E. WILLIAMS, St. Aidan's College.—J. GUSH, Exeter, builder.—B. CHAMBERS, Leeds, cloth merchant.—W. L. DEADY, Ormskirk, builder.—E. P. LEWIS, Liverpool, licensed victualler.—W. LEA, St. Helen's, licensed victualler.—D. JONES, Flint and Connah's-quay, shipbuilder.—W. MORTON, Liverpool, schoolmaster.—J. EVANS, Everton, builder.—P. COHEN, Salford.—W. HARGREAVES, Southport, cotton manufacturer.—W. COX, Hulme, brewer.—F. BOYSEN, Sunderland, shipchandler.—E. MYERS, Hulme, Manchester, bootdealer.—J. MAGEE, Papcastle, threadmaker.—J. FOSTER, Darlaston, coal carrier.—J. SMALLWOOD, Darlaston, miner.—H. JESSOP, Kirkheaton, shoemaker.—C. L. ARDRON, Kirkheaton, bootmaker.—B. WOOD, Marsh, stonemason.—R. EDWARDS, Nottingham, fishmonger.—W. CROSBY, Nottingham, butcher.—W. L. LANE, Hatfield Woodhouse, wheelwright. — T. JOHNSON, Taddington, farmer. — R. W. PEARSON, Liverpool, congregational minister. — C. GARLICK, Broughton, bricklayer. — J. NIXON, Liverpool, house-painter. — S. K. MACKAY, Liverpool, barrister-at-law. — E. CHAMBERS, Clifton, shoemaker.—E. TAYLOR, Blackburn, coaldealer.—T. SMITH, Willenhall, ale retailer.—H. BEST, Burslem, brewer.—B. PEARSON, Wolverhampton, coffee-mill manufacturer.—G. HUGHES, Bristol, brush manufacturer.—J. WEST, Great Grimsby, baker.—F. T. ALLSOP, Hereford, bootmaker.—G. T. BARNARD, Brighton, wireworker.

FESTIVAL OF THE SONS OF THE CLERGY.

THE annual festival of the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy, which was celebrated, for the 211th time, on Wednesday week, was briefly mentioned in our last impression. Two of our Engravings in this Number are devoted to the illustration of the proceedings of that festival, which was distinguished by even more than its usual brilliancy, owing to the presence of the Prince of Wales.



The afternoon service in St. Paul's Cathedral, which was attended by the Prince of Wales, and at which a congregation numbering upwards of 2500 persons assembled, including the Bishops of Oxford and London, was assisted by a full choral service, in which the choirs of her Majesty's Chapel Royal, St. Paul's, Westminster Abbey, St. George's Chapel, Windsor, and the members of various other cathedral choirs took part. The choral service included three anthems, one of them composed expressly for the occasion, the words of which were by Dean Milman and the music by Mr. Goss, a production of more than ordinary merit, both on the part of the poet and musician, and which was rendered with due appreciation of the work by the choir. The sermon was preached by the Very Rev. Harvey Goodwin, D.D., Dean of Ely, who, upon the words of the first verse of the sixteenth chapter of the Epistle to the Romans, based an earnest appeal on behalf of the institution.

In the evening a dinner took place, as usual, in the magnificent hall of the Merchant Taylors' Company, under the presidency of the Lord Mayor, and amongst the company were his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K.G.; Earl Spencer, Groom of the Stole; Lieutenant-General Knollys, Comptroller and Treasurer; Major Teesdale, C.B., Equerry; the Archbishop of Canterbury; the Bishops of London, Winchester, Oxford, St. Asaph, Salisbury, Llandaff, Lincoln, Ripon, Gloucester and Bristol, Moray, Brisbane, and Bishop Designate of Nelson; the Dukes of St. Albans and Manchester; Earl Manners, Lord Cranworth, and others. Upon the removal of the cloth, the Lord Mayor gave, first, "The Church and Queen;" and afterwards "The Prince of Wales, the Royal Steward of the year, and all the Royal Family." The Prince of Wales, who was received with loud cheers, in acknowledging the toast, said:—"My Lord Mayor, my Lords, and Gentlemen, I return you my most sincere thanks for the way in which you have proposed my health and that of the Princess of Wales and the Royal family, and for the still kindlier manner in which it has been received by you all. I need hardly assure you with what pleasure and gratification I find myself assisting at the festival of this Corporation, which renders such inestimable benefits to the poor clergy of the Church of England. All will admit that it is of the greatest importance that our clergy should be men of education, and not only so, but that they should be able to devote a portion of their time to study and reflection, as well as to the more active duties of their profession, free from the harrowing distraction of poverty. How great must be the distraction in the too frequent case of a poor clergyman with a large family and a scanty income during his life, and the prospect of nothing at his death! Yet it has always been considered desirable in our Church that, if possible, the clergy should marry. It is to meet such cases that this society has been formed—to mitigate the anxieties and sorrows of many a hard-working clergyman, to soothe the aching heart of many a widow and orphan in the hour of affliction. In conclusion, I must not omit to mention one important feature in the administration of the funds of this charity—that it is secret. No one once knows to whom they go, and thus none seeking it need have the mortification and humiliation of knowing that their distress has been paraded and published to the world. We must all admit that this is a wise provision, and that it completes the claim which this society has upon our sympathies and support; and I cannot better conclude than by calling on you all to stretch forth your hands liberally, and do your utmost for so estimable and so noble a charity." The next toast of "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," was responded to by General Knollys, Sir J. Hecto Maxwell, and the Duke of Manchester; after which the health of the Archbishop of Canterbury was drunk; the toast of "The Prelates and Clergy" was responded to by the Bishop of London; the next toast, "The Judges and the Bar," was acknowledged by Lord Cranworth and the Attorney-General; and the Bishop of Oxford responded for the "Stewards of the Festival." The remaining toasts were—"The Houses of Lords and Commons," for which the Duke of St. Albans returned thanks; "The Very Rev. the Dean of Ely, the Preacher;" "The Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's;" "The Merchant Taylors' Company;" "The Treasurers of the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy." Many liberal donations were announced.

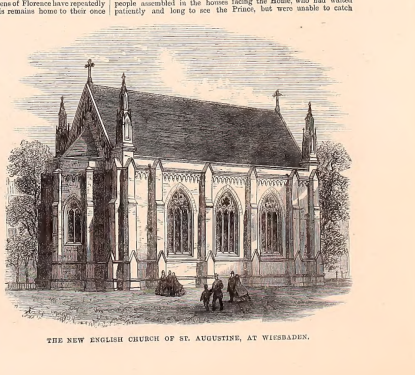
THE NEW STATUE OF DANTE AT FLORENCE.

We have, in another page of this Journal, commented on the political and literary interest of the Dante Festival at Florence on Sunday week, and we reserve for our next publication a View, from a sketch by our Special Artist, of the imposing scene presented by the unveiling of the colossal statue of the great Italian poet, in front of the Church of Santa Croce, under the auspices of the King of a free and united Italy. Our Engraving on this page will give some idea of the statue itself, which is the work of an eminent sculptor, Enrico Pazzi of Ravenna—Ravenna, the place where Dante is interred, since he died in exile, and his fellow-citizens of Florence have repeatedly asked in vain to be allowed to fetch his remains home to their once ungrateful city. The height of the statue itself is 5·68 metres, or near 20 ft.; and it stands upon a lofty pedestal, in the style of the fourteenth century, designed by Luigi del Sarto. Around it four lions guard as many shields, on which are inscribed the names of four of the poet's minor works. On the front, in the centre, are the arms of Rome, and the arms of all the principal Italian cities are also sculptured upon the monument, to the cost of which all those cities have contributed. Various other allegorical devices and four bas-reliefs of scenes in the "Divina Commedia" adorn the base of the statue. The inscription is as brief and simple as possible:—"To Dante Alighieri; Italy, MDCCCLXV." The likeness, the expression, and the attitude of the poet's figure, as represented in this work of modern Italian art, have been very generally praised.

STATUE OF THE POET DANTE, BY E. PAZZI, LATELY ERECTED IN THE PIAZZA DI SANTA CROCE AT FLORENCE.

HOUSE AT FLORENCE, THE REPUTED BIRTHPLACE OF DANTE.

THE REPUTED BIRTHPLACE OF DANTE.



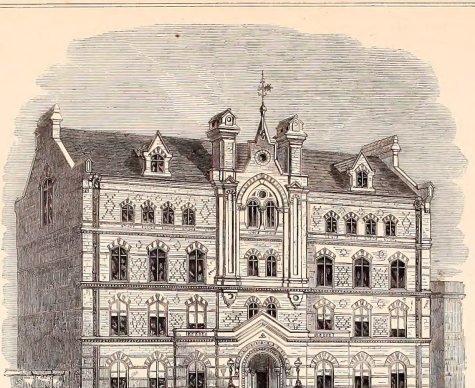
The visitor to Florence, or any other of the old cities of Italy, while exploring their quaint nooks and corners, or merely wandering at leisure through the streets, may sometimes find his attention directed to a small marble slab inserted in the walls or fixed up over the door of some private dwelling-house, with a record which tells that there, in that very house, was born, or resided, or died, one of those men whose genius in science, literature, or the arts, has won renown for the Italian name. Such a record is attached to an obscure and mean-looking habitation in the narrow Via di S. Martino, which leads from the Piazzetta of that name in Florence. Here we find written upon the tablet beneath the arch of the small doorway:—"In questa casa degli Alighieri nacque il divino poeta." The street is so narrow, and the neighbouring tower and houses are so lofty that but little of the sky is seen through the opening; and it is only in summer that the sun can send its beams to enliven the dull grey of the building. If we may credit the tradition that in this house, which belonged to the Alighieri family, Dante was born six centuries ago, it can scarcely be said, to use the common phrase, that he first saw the light in this house. As it is natural, however, to look with interest upon the very stones that prate of the whereabouts of any man of genius, we give an Engraving of the ancient building, from a sketch by Mr. Colebrooke Stockdale. It is only certain that Dante was born at Florence, on the 12th of May, 1265.

THE NEW ENGLISH CHURCH AT WIESBADEN.

We mentioned a few weeks ago the fact of the opening at Wiesbaden of an English church, dedicated to St. Augustine of Canterbury. This building, of which we are now enabled to give an illustration, stands in the best situation in that pretty German watering-place, in the new public garden. It is calculated to seat 500 persons. The dimensions of the nave are 60 ft. in length by nearly 32 ft. in width. The chancel is 20 ft. in depth, and the height to the point of the roof is 50 ft. The want of such a church had been long felt by the English residents and visitors, and its completion must prove a great convenience to a congregation varying throughout the year from 150 to 300 worshippers. The cost of the building, including the stained-glass windows and all fittings, has amounted to £7500, of which sum at least £700 remains yet to be collected. An organ and a spire are much needed. It is hoped that sufficient funds may be raised this summer to provide at least for the paying off the debt at present incurred. We are requested to mention that subscriptions will be gladly received for this fund by Messrs. Coutts and Co., Strand.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AT THE SAILORS' HOME, WELL-STREET, LONDON DOCKS.

In the year 1830 a home for sailors was established in Well-street, and in 1833 it was first opened. From that time to the present it has attracted to it so many of the sailors of the mercantile navy that it has been found necessary to add to it a dormitory, the first stone of which was laid by Lord Palmerston in August, 1864. The addition will accommodate 174 men, special provision being made for officers of the mercantile marine, so that the building will now accommodate 502 persons. The new dormitory was opened on Monday last by the Prince of Wales. His Royal Highness arrived at the principal entrance of the building, in Dock-street, about twenty minutes to four. He came in a close carriage, much to the disappointment of the people assembled in the houses facing the House, who had waited patiently and long to see the Prince, but were unable to catch those men whose genius in science, literature, or the arts, has won renown for the Italian name. Such a record is attached to an obscure and mean-looking habitation in the narrow Via di S. Martino, which leads from the Piazzetta of that name in Florence. Here we find written upon the tablet beneath the arch of the small doorway:—"In questa casa degli Alighieri nacque il divino poeta." The street is so narrow, and the neighbouring tower and houses are so lofty that but little of the sky is seen through the opening; and it is only in summer that the sun can send its beams to enliven the dull grey of the building. If we may credit the tradition that in this house, which belonged to the Alighieri family, Dante was born six centuries ago, it can scarcely be said, to use the common phrase, that he first saw the light in this house. As it is natural, however, to look with interest upon the very stones that prate of the whereabouts of any man of genius, we give an Engraving of the ancient building, from a sketch by Mr. Colebrooke Stockdale. It is only certain that Dante was born at Florence, on the 12th of May, 1265.



THE NEW ENGLISH CHURCH OF ST. AUGUSTINE, AT WIESBADEN.

a sight of his face. The neighbouring streets were decorated with flags, and several bands of music enlivened the scene. At the door of the building his Royal Highness was received by a number of gentlemen, among whom were the officers of the Royal Naval Reserve in the full dress of their handsome uniform. A guard of honour of the Hon. Artillery Company, under the command of Captain Defries, was stationed here. The bands of the Royal Naval School, of the Hon. Artillery Company, and of the Grenadier Guards struck up "God Save the Queen," which was sung by the choristers when the Prince entered the hall appropriated to the day's ceremony. This hall is called the "Admiral Sir Henry Hope Dormitory." It has three side galleries, the rafftered roof being very lofty; and the little sleeping-cabins, which run in rows on both sides of the hall, on the ground floor as well as on the galleries, have open-worked iron panels, to admit the air and light. The cabins are furnished each with a bed, and the ventilation of the whole is perfect. On the area of the hall rows of spectators sat with their faces towards a dais at the upper end, a passage being left clear down the middle of the assembly. A procession was formed at the door to conduct the Prince to the dais. Here all took their places, and an address was read by Admiral Sir William Bowles, K.C.B., president of the institution, setting forth that its origin was due to the benevolent efforts of three naval officers — Captain Robert James Elliott (now deceased), Admiral George Charles Gambier, and Captain Robert Justice; that since the year 1835 the Home had accommodated 158,823 sailors, including many of her Majesty's Navy—134,885 belonging to the United Kingdom and to her Majesty's possessions abroad, and 23,640 to the various foreign countries with which England has maritime and commercial intercourse; that out of an aggregate sum of £1,263,893 lodged by the sailors in the bank of the Home £711,560 had been drawn out, £459,040 had been remitted to friends and relations, and £46,460 had been invested in the Home and Board of Trade Savings Banks; that, so rapidly of late years had the advantages of the institution grown in the estimation of sailors, it had become imperatively necessary to erect this additional building; and that a deficit of £3581 now has to be made up by contributions.

To this address the Prince of Wales made the following gracious reply —

"Sir William Bowles, your Excellencies, my Lords, and Gentlemen,—It is very gratifying to me to comply with the invitation I have received to take a part in this day's proceedings, and to preside at the opening of your new wing. The beneficial results attending the establishment of a Sailors' Home for our immense mercantile navy are shown by the statement of figures which you have now given, and which establishes in the most satisfactory way the necessity of adding to the original building. The interest taken by my lamented father in the religious welfare of this institution, evinced by lying the first stone of the seaman's church adjoining, this manner is peculiar to most foreign nations, and this mark of respect for the departed is far more impressive than the usual funeral ceremonies adopted by us. The squadron arrived at Plymouth on Wednesday morning, the 17th inst.

Our second illustration, on page 509, from a sketch by Mr. C. L. Cunningham, of H.M.S. Liverpool, shows the Alexander Newsky in Plymouth Harbour, whence the whole squadron has since departed on its way to the Baltic.

NEW FRONT OF THE SAILORS' HOME, WELL-STREET, LONDON DOCKS.

will not be less in his son, who is well aware of the sentiments of loyalty and devotion to the Throne which distinguish the mercantile navy of Great Britain."

Prayers were then read by the Bishop of Oxford, assisted by the chaplain of the institution, the Rev. Daniel Greatorex; a list of contributions was read by the secretary; a copy of the address on vellum was presented to the Prince; the building was declared by his Royal Highness to be open; and the Bishop offered up a concluding prayer and pronounced the benediction. The Danish National Anthem was then played; and the Prince, attended by the members of his suite and by the directors and stewards, made an inspection of the building, the architect of which, Mr. E. L. Bracebridge, had the honour of being presented to his Royal Highness.

THE RUSSIAN SQUADRON IN THE TAGUS, WITH THE BODY OF THE CZAREWITCH.

We are indebted to Mr. James Cox, of H.M.S. Defence, for a sketch taken in Lisbon Harbour, when the Russian squadron, with the body of the Czarewitch, left that port, on its way to St. Petersburg, where his interment will take place. The squadron consisted of the frigate Alexander Newsky, 57 guns, Captain Teodorovsky, bearing the flag of Admiral Lessowski, and having on board the remains of the late Hereditary Grand Duke of Russia; the frigate Oleg, 57 guns, Captain Birulew; and the steam-yacht Almaz, Captain Andreyen. They were accompanied by her Majesty's ship Defence (ironclad ram), Captain Augustus Phillimore; and the United States frigate Niagara, Commodore Craven, as a guard of honour. The Alexander Newsky has the standard of the late Czarewitch hail-mast at the main, the Niagara and Defence having the Russian flag. All the ships have their yards topped fore and main, being opposite to each other, thereby forming crosses, when seen ahead or astern of the ship, as represented in a Portuguese corvette at anchor off Belem Castle, swinging to the tide. The topping of the yards in

THE RUSSIAN SQUADRON LEAVING THE TAGUS WITH THE BODY OF THE LATE CZAREWITCH.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

COMPARED with some previous weeks, an increased quantity of Stock has been purchased on account of the public. The market for Home Securities, however, has been far from active. The steady influx of gold from America and the absence of any export demand of moment have given confidence to the usual operators. The Unfunded Debt has continued heavy, at a small premium.

On Thursday the Directors of the Bank of England reduced their minimum rate of discount to 4 per cent. The supply of bullion held by the Bank has been increased to £15,299,268.

The demand for money has fallen off, and the leading houses are now discounting the best papers as follows :—

Thirty days' bills	3¾	per cent.
Sixty days' bills	4	,,
Three months' bills	4¼	,,
Four months' bills	4½	,,
Six months' bills	5	,,

In the Stock Exchange short loans on Government Stocks have been obtained at 2½ to 3 per cent.

There has been a steady market for American Securities, on higher terms. The Five per Cents have been dealt in at 66 to ½; Erie Shares, 52¼; and Illinois Central, 75 to 75½.

On Monday Consols were 90⅜ ½; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅜ ½; Annuities, 14 1-16; India Five per Cents, 104; Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem. The dealings on Tuesday were only moderate :—Consols closed at 89⅞ ¾; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅞ ½; Bank Stock, 240 to 242; India Stock, 216; Ditto Five per Cents, 106⅛ ⅝; Ditto Four per Cents, 96¾; Rupee Five per Cents, 100; Ditto, Five-and-a-Half per Cents, 108½; India Bonds, 16s. to 19s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem. On Wednesday, owing to the purchase of £15,000 New Three per Cents for the reduction of the National Debt, the market was firmer. Consols sold at 90 ¼ ⅛ ⅜ ⅜ ⅞, for Money, and 89 ⅞ ¾ ⅝ ⅞, for Account; Reduced and New Three per Cents left off at 88¾ to ⅞; Long Annuities, 1885, 14⅛; Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem.; India Stock, 218; Ditto, Five per Cents, 106½; and Bank Stock, 242. The market on Thursday was firm :—Consols, for Money, marked 90⅜ ⅞; for Account, 89¼; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅜ ⅞; Long Annuities, 14; India Five per Cents, 106¼ ½; and Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem.

Mexican Stock, in the early part of the week, was very dull, and prices declined considerably. The market, however, has since improved. Turkish Scrip continues very dull, and is quoted at 2¼ to 2 dis. Spanish Securities and Turkish Consolidés have realised somewhat higher prices. Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents have been done at 81; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 1864, 92¾; Greek, 20¼; Mexican Three per Cents, 23¾ to 24⅛; Ditto, 1864, 24; Portuguese Three per Cents, 48½; Russian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 89; Ditto Five per Cents, 1862, 90 ex div.; Ditto, 1864, 93; Spanish Three per Cents, 48; Ditto, Deferred, 40; Ditto, Passive, 29½; Turkish Six per Cents, 1862, 73¾; Ditto, Small, 73½; and Italian Five per Cents, 65.

Joint-stock Bank Shares have been dealt in to only a moderate extent. Agra and Masterman's have realised 115; Ditto, New, 56½; Australasia, 68½; Bank of London, 143; Bank of Queensland, 21; Bank of New Zealand, 18; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 46¾; City, 109; Consolidated, 10¾; Continental, 20½; European, 12; Hindustan, China, and Japan, 18; Imperial Ottoman, 16½; Land Mortgage of India, 4; London and Brazilian, 44½ cum div.; London Chartered of Australia, 23½; London Joint-stock, 49¾; London and South African, 18½ ex div.; National Provincial of England, 162; Scinde, Punjaub, and Delhi, 6¼; and Standard of British South Africa, 19½.

The market for Colonial Government Securities has ruled quiet. Canada Six per Cents have realised 94½; Ditto Five per Cents, 82½; New South Wales Five per Cents, 92; Queensland Six per Cents, 104; and Victoria Six per Cents, 108¾.

In the Miscellaneous Market a limited business has been transacted. Bombay Gas, 5¾; Ceylon Company, 11⅛; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 8½; Crystal Palace, 37; Ditto, Preference, 114; Discount Corporation, 13; English and Australian Copper, 1½; General Credit, 5⅜; Humber Ironworks, 3¾; Italian Land, 8; London Financial, 22; London General Omnibus, 3¼; Millwall Ironworks, 6¼; National Discount, 15¾; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 85; Royal Mail Steam, 114; Scottish Australian Investment, 123; Trust and Agency of Australasia, 2¼ ex div.; and Warrant Finance, 7.

Although the dealings in the Railway Share Market have been only to a moderate extent, the market has ruled decidedly firm, and prices have somewhat improved. The following were the official closing prices on Thursday :—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Bristol and Exeter, 95; Great Eastern, 46⅞; Great Northern, 130½; Ditto, A Stock, 116¾; Great Western, 72¾; Ditto, South Wales, 63; Ditto, West Midland—Hereford, 104; London and Blackwall, 89; London and Brighton, 106½; London and North-Western, 122¼; London and South-Western, 98½; Metropolitan, 138; Metropolitan District, 100; Midland, 133¾; North-Eastern—Berwick, 109¾; Ditto, Leeds, 68½; Ditto, York, 101½; North London, 117; South Devon, 60½; South-Eastern, 85½.

British Possessions.—Atlantic and St. Lawrence, 55½; Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 102½; East Indian, 103¾; Grand Trunk of Canada, First Pref., 62½; Great Indian Peninsula, 103¾; Great Southern of India, 100½; Great Western of Canada, 10¾; Madras Five per Cent, 101¾; Melbourne and Hobson's Bay, 66; Scinde, 101½; Punjaub, 101.

Foreign.—Great Luxembourg, 14⅝; San Paulo, 17.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending May 24 shows the following results when compared with the previous week :—

A decrease of circulation of	.. .. ..	£138,532
An increase of public deposits of	.. ..	336,128
An increase of other deposits of	.. ..	62,569
A decrease of securities of	.. .. ..	307,925
An increase of bullion of	.. ..	275,355
An increase of rest of	.. ..	7,265
An increase of reserve of	.. .. ..	720,440

The total circulation is £21,330,490. Public deposits amount to £7,997,105; and private deposits to £13,551,860. Securities are £30,800,717. The stock of bullion is £15,299,268; and the reserve of notes and coin, £9,087,353.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET. Mr. SOTHERN.—Great success of BROTHER SAM, which will be performed MONDAY, MAY 29, and Every Evening; with the successful Operetta of THE MILLER'S DAUGHTER. OUR MARY ANNE, at Seven. BROTHER SAM, at Eight—Mr. Sothern, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Compton, Miss Snowdon, and Miss Nelly Moore. Concluding with A KISS IN THE DARK.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER.—MONDAY, and during the Week, THE IRISH TIGER. At Eight, LEAH—Miss Bateman, Messrs. Jordan, Swinbourne, Ashley, and Miss H. Simms; and THE STEEPLECHASE—Messrs. J. L. Toole and P. Bedford. Commence at Seven.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Now is the Time to Visit the Crystal Palace.—Delightful Summer appearance of Gardens and Park, refreshed by rain. Nature in fullest beauty. The shrubs and plants in flower around the lakes have never been so charmingly fresh. Alone worth a special visit.
The Rhododendron Valley. Ten thousand plants in rare beauty. No extra charge. Two performances by the Orchestral Band of the Company and on the Great Organ. Chinese Collection, Skating Hall, Chimpanzee, Archery, Boats on the Great Lake, Bowls, Cricket, &c.
Arrangements for the week :—
Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, One Shilling.
Thursday—Extra Concert. Mdme. Schumann, &c. Half-a Crown.
Saturday—Opera Concert. Solo artistes from Her Majesty's Theatre. Five Shillings.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Mdme. SCHUMANN. An EXTRA CONCERT will be given on THURSDAY, JUNE 1, at Three o'Clock, at which Mdme. Schumann will play R. Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto, with Orchestral and Solo Pieces. The Programme will also include the Italian Symphony (Mendelssohn), Overture to "Genoveva" (Schumann), Songs, &c. Vocalist, Mdme. Joachim. Conductor, Mr. Manns. Admission Half-a-crown; reserved seats, Half-a-crown.

ALL THE GREAT FOUNTAINS NEXT THURSDAY, at Two o'clock. With the Gardens and Rhododendrons in such beauty, everyone should witness this Display

CRYSTAL PALACE.—WHIT MONDAY and TUESDAY.—All sorts of Holiday Attractions. Everything now in rare beauty.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, with Mr. JOHN PARRY, will appear in their NEW ENTERTAINMENT Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight. Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. No Morning Representation on Wednesday Next (Derby Day). A New Opera di Camera every Tuesday and Thursday at Three. Saturday at Eight.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY.—EVERY EVENING at Eight o'Clock (except Saturday); Saturday Afternoon at Three o'Clock. PARIS PORTRAYED and MRS. BROWN AT THE PLAY.—EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Box-office open Eleven to Five.

POSITIVELY the LAST WEEK BUT THREE of GENERAL TOM THUMB and his LITTLE PARTY at ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly. They close June 10. We advise our friends not to delay coming, as their last few levées are always crowded. Three Grand Entertainments daily, at Eleven, Three, and Half-past Seven. Admission, Day Entertainments, 1s., 2s., and 3s.; Evening, 1s.; Children under Ten half price to all parts of the house; a few Reserved Seats, 2s.

JUNE 1.—MR. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Charles Hallé. Tickets, 6s., 3s., 2s., 1s.; Stall Ticket for four, 21s. Addison and Lucas, 210, Regent-street; Hammond, 214, Regent-street; Keith, Prowse, 48, Cheapside; Austin, 28, Piccadilly; and all Musicsellers.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—Conductor, Professor Sterndale Bennett.—FIFTH CONCERT, MAY 29.—Programme: Spohr's Symphony in D minor and Mendelssohn's Overture in C (both composed expressly for the society); Beethoven's Symphony in F (No. 8); Mozart's "Zauberflöte" Overture; and Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor. Pianiste, Mdme. Schumann. Vocalist, Mdlle. Ilma de Murska.
24, Lincoln's-inn-fields, W.C. CAMPBELL CLARKE, Sec.

MUSICAL SOCIETY OF LONDON. ST. JAMES'S HALL, WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 7. Conductor—Mr. Alfred Mellon. Beethoven's Symphony in A; Spohr's Ninth Concerto for Violin; Overtures by Mendelssohn ("Athalie"), Sterndale Bennett, and Cherubini ("Anacreon"). Vocalists, Mdme. Parepa and Mr. Santley; solo violinist, Herr Ludwig Straus. Numbered Stalls, 10s. 6d. each; Gallery Tickets, 3s. 6d. Cramer and Co., and Austin's, St. James's Hall.
CHARLES SALAMAN, Hon. Sec., 36, Baker-street.

MR. DEACON begs to announce that his Second MATINEE of CLASSICAL MUSIC will take place on THURSDAY, the 1st of JUNE, at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, to commence at Three o'Clock. Executants—MM. Sainton, Pollitzer, Webb, Pezze, and Deacon. Vocalists—Mdlle. Enequist and Mdme. Sainton-Dolby. Tickets, reserved and numbered, to admit three to a single Matinée, One Guinea; single ticket, Half-a-Guinea. To be had of Messrs. Ollivier and Co., 19, Old Bond-street; the principal Musicsellers; at the Rooms; and of Mr. Deacon, 10, Wimpole-street, Cavendish-square.

MR. BENEDICT'S ANNUAL CONCERT, JUNE 21, under the immediate patronage of H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES and H.R.H. the PRINCESS of WALES.—Mr. BENEDICT'S THIRTIETH ANNUAL GRAND MORNING CONCERT, at the ST. JAMES'S HALL, on WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21. Early application is solicited for the few remaining Sofa and Balcony Stalls. The full programme will be published on Thursday, June 1.

MUSICAL UNION.—HERR JAELL'S Last Appearance in London, TUESDAY, JUNE 9, with Joachim and Piatti.—J. ELLA, Director, 18, Hanover-square.

TUESDAY NEXT.—Mr. HAROLD THOMAS'S MATINEE, at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS. Three o'Clock. Artistes: Parepa, Edith Wynne, Cummings, Weiss, Sainton, Piatti, Benedict, Sullivan, Lindsay Sloper, and Harold Thomas. Single Tickets, Half a Guinea; to admit Three, One Guinea.—49, Maddox-street, Bond-street, W.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—On MONDAY EVENING NEXT, MAY 29, the programme will include Beethoven's Pianoforte Trio in B flat (repeated by desire); Schumann's string quartet in A major; Bach's Partita in B flat, for pianoforte alone; and Ernst's Elégie for violin. Violin, Herr Joachim; pianoforte, Mr. Charles Hallé; violoncello, Signor Piatti; vocalist, Mdme. Joachim. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s; Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s; and at Austin's, No. 28, Piccadilly.

MAY 30.—The LONDON GLEE and MADRIGAL UNION (established 1859; Director, Mr. Land) will give their LAST AFTERNOON CONCERT on TUESDAY NEXT, Messrs. COLLARDS' CONCERT-ROOM, 16, Lower Grosvenor-street. Glees, Madrigals, and Old Ditties by Miss J. Wells, Miss Eyles, Mr. Baxter, Mr. Coates, and Mr. Winn, assisted by T. Oliphant, Esq. (Literary Illustrator), and Mr. Cusins, Solo Pianist. Conductor, Mr. Land (to whom address applications relative to engagements), 4, Cambridge-place, Regent's Park. Admission, by ticket only, Numbered Stalls, 5s., to be obtained only at Mr. Mitchell's Royal Library, 33, Old Bond-street; Area, 3s.

HYDE PARK in 1864, by HENRY BARRAUD, Esq., containing 220 Portraits of the Frequenters of Rotten-row, NOW ON VIEW, at 230, Regent-street (opposite Hanover-street). Admission 1s. Open from Ten till Dusk.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL EXHIBITION IS NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 53, PALL-MALL (near St. James's Palace). Daily from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d. JAMES FAHEY, Sec.

STODARE'S THEATRE OF MYSTERY, EGYPTIAN HALL.—EVERY NIGHT at Eight and Saturday Afternoon at Three.—The New and Startling Illusions, as performed by Colonel Stodare, continue to create the greatest success and astonishment.

THURTON'S "ODD FOLKS," with a New Piece of Extravaganza, termed "GOING TO COURT," and Portraits of Popular Characters, at SOUTHPORT, MONDAY and TUESDAY, MAY 29 and 30; Hyde, 31; Buxton, June 1; Wirksworth, 2. Manager, Mr. J. MORPEY.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. W. ORAM, Secretary.

LOWESTOFT.—The ROYAL HOTEL is NOW OPEN for the SEASON.
Families intending to visit Lowestoft should communicate with the proprietor at least a week in advance, so as to secure accommodation and avoid disappointment.
Lowestoft is a favourite watering-place—famous for its salubrious air, its fine sea-beach, and noble pier.
A tariff of prices forwarded post-free.
The choicest wines, a first-rate cuisine, a large billiard-room, baths, and all modern appliances. Horses, carriages, &c.
Lowestoft is easy of access from London and all the home and midland counties. See Railway Guides.

EDUCATION IN GERMANY. Dr. KLUGE, of the University of Breslau, Master of the Royal College of Essen, Rheinprovinz, receives a limited number of Pupils. The advantages of a good Classical Teaching and the comforts of an English Home are offered on moderate terms.
Mrs. Kluge is an Englishwoman.
Address, Dr. Kluge, Essen, Rheinprovinz. Reference is kindly permitted to Dr. Dempsey, 27, Charterhouse-square, London.

ST. MARYLEBONE.—TO ORGANISTS. Notice is hereby given that the Vestry of the parish of St. Marylebone are prepared to receive APPLICATIONS from persons desirous of becoming Candidates for the appointment of ORGANIST to All Souls' Church, Langham-place, in this parish. Applications, with Testimonials, to be forwarded under cover to the Vestry Clerk, on or before Wednesday, the 31st day of May instant, after which time no applications can be received. Notice will be given to candidates of the day on which their attendance will be required.
Further information and amount of salary may be obtained on application to the Vestry Clerk.
By order, W. E. GREENWELL, Vestry Clerk.
Courthouse, Marylebone-lane, May 18, 1865.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate Rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

A FACT.—An Elegant POCKET DIAL, with gold appendages, warranted to denote correct time, in handsome gilt case. One Shilling; by post, 14 stamps.
PAUL RANSOM, 94, Brunswick-street, Haggerstone, London, N.E.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, DINING-ROOM, consisting of vases, figures, groups, candlesticks, inkstands, obelisks, inlaid tables, &c., in Alabaster, Marble, Bronze, Derbyshire Spar, &c. Imported and Manufactured by J. TENNANT (late Mawe), 149, Strand, W.C.

BATHS.—DEANE'S DOMESTIC BATHS. The bath department of Deane and Co.'s warehouses contains an extensive stock of shower, hip, plunging, sponging, nursery, and every description of bath for family use. Each article is of the best material and workmanship, and at the lowest possible prices. Patent gas baths, simple, efficient, and economical. Bath-rooms fitted complete. Deane and Co.'s Pamphlet on Baths and Bathing, with engravings, gratis and post-free.—Deane and Co., 46, King William-street, London Bridge. Established A.D. 1700.

SPOONS and FORKS.—RICHARD and JOHN SLACK, manufacturers and electro-platers, solicit an inspection of their stock and prices. Every article warranted to have a strong coating of pure Silver over Slacks' nickel. The fact of 20 years' wear is ample proof of its durability. Table Spoons or Forks, 30s. and 38s. per dozen; Dessert, 20s. and 30s.; Tea, 12s. and 18s. Old goods replated equal to new. Orders above £2 carriage free. Catalogues, with 350 Engravings post-free.—Richard and John Slack, 336, Strand. Established 50 years.

WENHAM LAKE ICE for Town or Country. Refrigerators, Ice-cream Machines, Saltzogenes, Freezing Powders, and everything connected with freezing, of the most reliable character. Illustrated Price-lists. Order direct from THE WENHAM LAKE ICE COMPANY, 140, STRAND, W.C.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-paid. It contains upwards of 600 Illustrations of his illimited Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia-metal Goods, Dish Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimneypieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gaseliers; Tea Trays, Urns, and Kettles; Clocks, Table Cutlery, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-room Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices, and plans of the twenty large Show-rooms, at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "LADY AUDLEY'S SECRET," &c.
Second Edition, at all Libraries, in 3 vols.,
ONLY A CLOD.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "ROLAND, THE PAINTER,"
This day, in 2 vols., at all Libraries,
WHO WAS TO BLAME?
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

ANECDOTICAL MEMOIRS OF THE EMPEROR.
This day, in 1 vol., at all Libraries,
NAPOLEON III. AND HIS COURT.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

NEW NOVEL BY STEPHEN MARTEGRES.
This day, in 2 vols., at all Libraries
CHARLOTTE TRALE.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

On June 1, in 3 vols., at all Libraries,
CRUEL FORTUNE.
By the Author of "Milly Moss," "Queens of Song," &c.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

CHEAP EDITION OF "HENRY DUNBAR."
This day, in one vol., with Frontispiece and Vignette Titlepage, in cloth, price 6s., uniform with the Author's previous Works,
HENRY DUNBAR.
By the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," &c.
Also ready, uniform with above, price 6s. each,
BROKEN TO HARNESS. By EDMUND YATES.
SACKVILLE CHASE. By C. J. COLLINS.
SIR VICTOR'S CHOICE. By ANNIE THOMAS.
JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

A NEW VOLUME OF VERSE BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE GENTLE LIFE."
Immediately, in fcap 8vo, beautifully printed, beveled boards, platinum and gilt tooling,
FRANCIS SPIRA; and other Poems
By the Author of "The Gentle Life."
Dedicated, by permission, to the Poet Laureate.
London: EDWARD MOXON and Co., Dover-street.

At all Libraries, in 3 vols., post 8vo.
TOO GOOD FOR HIM: a Novel. By FLORENCE MARRYAT, Author of "Love's Conflict," and daughter of the late Captain Marryat, R.N.
RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street, W.

Next week, in 3 vols., post 8vo,
ROMANCE OF LONDON. Strange Stories, Scenes, and Remarkable Persons of the Great Town. By JOHN TIMBS, F.S.A., Author of "A Century of Anecdote," &c.
RICHARD BENTLEY, Publisher in Ordinary to her Majesty.

LONDON.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.
PARIS.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.
KENT and SUSSEX.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.
Contain Maps, Plans, and numerous Wood Engravings.
One Shilling each.
W. and R. CHAMBERS, London and Edinburgh.

FAMILY HERALD, Part 265, Price Sixpence.
"For amusing reading, such as may be admitted to one's household without fear of consequences, we can recommend the 'Family Herald,' the father of this class of publications. For one penny you get a portion of a well-written novel, two or three novelettes, a lot of useful information interspersed throughout a page of Answers to Correspondents, alone worth the penny, and a variety of other matters which will make readers either merrier or wiser, or perhaps both."—The Bookseller.
Novels and Tales—
Mabel May. Chapters I. to XV.
Uncle John's Legacy, A Brilliant Match, Lucy Dawson, My Little Cousin Amy, and other Tales.
"Its novels and tales are quite as well written as the best circulating-library stories."—Saturday Review.
Essays—
"The Foolish Passion called Love."
Hatred.
Going about doing Good.
The New Light-agent.
"There is a well-considered essay every week upon some subject of an instructive or thoughtful character."—British Quarterly Review.
Correspondents—
Answers to.
"The Answers to Correspondents cannot be fictitious, a romance and a life history being embodied in almost each of them. The editor is the confidant and confessor in every station of life."—Saturday Review.
Together with Poetry, Family Matters, Statistics, Scientific and Useful Information, Varieties, Random Readings, &c.
London: W. STEVENS, 421, Strand.

Now ready, handsomely bound in cloth, price 7s. 6d.,
THE FAMILY HERALD. Vol. XXII. "For amusing reading, such as may be admitted to one's household without fear of consequences, we can recommend the 'Family Herald,' the father of this class of publications."—The Bookseller.
"Its novels and Tales are quite as well written as the best circulating-library stories."—Saturday Review.
London: W. STEVENS, 421, Strand.

Price 1s., Monthly,
THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE. Contents of No. 6, Vol. I., New Series (JUNE) :—Hearts Errant. By the Author of "Squire Rowley's Difficulties." Chaps. I., II.—Prickings on Music.—Gilmour's Ward. Chaps. XXIV.–XXVI.—Familiar Lines: "There is no place like home!" With full-page Illustration.—Petronilla's Fear. A Tale of Corsica. Chaps. IV., V.—The Irishman in Reality and Romance.—A Slight Misunderstanding.—"Boz" in Paris.—"Les Hirondelles." Air de la Romance de Joseph.—The Fashions.—The Englishwoman's Conversazione.—La Mode.—Operas and Musical Entertainments.—"For Valour." By Thomas Hood. Chaps. XI., XII.—Bells.—Questions and Answers.—Our Christian Names.—Our Paris News-letter.—Music of the Month.—Answers to Correspondents.—Mildred's Wedding—Pages 457-472.
FASHIONS AND NEEDLEWORK.—A Coloured Fashion Plate. A Sheet of Designs, containing information about Fashion, Dress, and Needlework. The full-sized Pattern for cutting out a Lady's new and fashionable Paletot. A large Coloured Fashion Plate. A Coloured Pattern for a Breakfast Mat, in Beads and Woolwork, which is also suitable for other purposes. Also, a Design for Candle Ornaments, in Beads. A Coloured Pattern for a Kid Slipper, to be embroidered in silk. Illustrations of a bride's veil, arranged in two different ways—modern jewellery (23 illustrations)—dress for a little girl, front and back views—costume for a little boy—paletot for a little girl, front and back views—four new designs for summer mantles—boudoir or drawing-room chairs (2 illustrations)—pincushion-cover in crochet—travelling dressing-case (3 illustrations), &c. A Specimen Number sent post-free for twelve stamps.
London: S. O. BEETON, 248, Strand, W.C.

THE GLOWWORM.—Evening Newspaper.
PRICE ONE PENNY.
MONDAY, JUNE 5.

THE GLOWWORM.—LATEST SPORTING.
LATEST POLITICAL.
LATEST CITY.
LATEST TELEGRAMS.
LATEST POLICE.
LATEST INTELLIGENCE.
EVERY EVENING.—ONE PENNY.

THE GLOWWORM.—PROGRAMME of all AMUSEMENTS.—JUNE 5.

THE GLOWWORM.—PRICE ONE PENNY. JUNE 5.

25,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in plain and elegant bindings, adapted for presents, at JOHN FIELD'S Great Bible Warehouse, 65, Regent's-quadrant; without exception the largest, cheapest, and best-bound stock in London.

FIELD'S GUINEA FAMILY BIBLE, large type, best morocco binding, fine Steel Plates, and Family Register. The largest stock of Family Bibles in the kingdom, from 10s. to 20 guineas, at John Field's Great Bible Warehouse, 65, Regent's-quadrant.

FIELD'S 10s. ILLUMINATED PRAYER BOOK, handsomely printed, with exquisite designs in Gold and Colours, and best morocco binding, sent, post-free, from John Field's Great Bible Warehouse, 65, Regent's-quadrant.

THREE HUNDRED BIBLE STORIES, with nearly 300 Bible Pictures, a Pictorial Sunday Book for the Young. Handsomely bound, price 4s. 6d. Post-free from JOHN FIELD'S Great Bible Warehouse, 65, Regent's-quadrant. The largest stock of Juvenile Books in London.

NEW BOOKS.

NEW WORK BY THE AUTHOR OF "MORNING CLOUDS."
Now ready, in 1 vol. post 8vo, price 6s. cloth,
SPRING AND AUTUMN. By the Author of "Morning Clouds," "The Afternoon of Life," "Problems in Human Nature," &c.
London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and Co., Paternoster-row.

Now ready, price 1s. 6d.,
THE SOLAR ORIGIN OF MAN: His Creation and Resurrection, deduced from Revelation and the Sciences.
WILLIAM RIDGWAY, 169, Piccadilly; and all Booksellers.

Fcap. 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d.,
SPELLS AND VOICES. By ADA KEYNE. "Every separate piece contains an idea poetically elaborated. The flower-poems will delight many readers by their simple beauty." Literary Gazette.—TRÜBNER and Co., London.

CORPORATE and OFFICIAL SEALS and PRESSES, Hatchments, Monumental Brasses, &c.; Diplomas, Cheques, and Votes of Thanks; Bookplates, Wedding and other Cards.—PUGH BROTHERS, Artists, Gt. Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE. Established 25 years. For Family Arms send name and county. Sketch, 3s. 6d., or stamps. Arms painted and quartered and engraved on Seals, Rings, Dies, &c. Monograms designed. Pedigrees of Families, 21s.—PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, London, W.C.—Manual of Heraldry, 3s.

PICTURE FRAMES for "HAPPINESS," given with this Paper. Handsome gilt frame, glass and back, 1s. 6d.; maple and gilt, 3s.; ornamented, gold oval frame, 4s.—At GEO. REES, 57, Drury-lane; and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

PERMANENT PHOTOGRAPHS are obtained by the new patent process of WOTHLYTYPE on ivory. Those interested in the advance of the art are invited to view the specimens. Full information and card of prices by post.
"The pictures are printed with wonderful delicacy."—Times.
The UNITED ASSOCIATION of PHOTOGRAPHY (Limited), 213, Regent-street, W.

SCRAPS, for Screens, Scrap-books, &c.—A large assortment, comprising Flowers, Figures, Landscapes, Birds, &c. Specimen sheets, from 1s.
Wm. BARNARD, 59, Connaught-terrace, London, W.

120 SHEETS OF NOTE-PAPER for 6d.; 120 thick ditto for 1s.; 120 sheets ditto, black-bordered, for 1s.; 250 useful Envelopes for 9d.; 1000 extra large ditto for 4s. 6d.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Pleasanter to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, well adapted for the steel pen, and cheaper than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 25, Oxford-street.

DANCE PROGRAMMES (Perfumed); Invitation and At-Home Note-paper; Return Thanks; Bordered Note-papers; Dinner Lists; Dish and Dessert Papers; Household Papers.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street.

MONOGRAM, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES cut at half price, and remain the property of the customer. No charge for plain stamping; coloured stamping reduced to 1s. per 100. Writing-paper and Envelopes supplied to the public at wholesale prices.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street, W.

BIRTHDAY PRESENTS,
WEDDING PRESENTS,
CHRISTENING PRESENTS.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PURSES, pocket-books, cigar-cases, card-cases, wallets, opera-glasses, scent-bottles (double and single); pencil-cases; fans, note-cases, &c., the largest Stock in London. N.B. Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon prepayment.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-st.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for presents.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.

500 DRESSING-CASES and DRESSING- BAGS, of the best manufacture, and fitted in the most complete manner for ladies or gentlemen. DESPATCH-BOXES, INKSTANDS, ENVELOPE-CASES, BOOK-SLIDES, RETICULES, PURSES, BLOTTING-BOOKS, &c. The public supplied at TRADE PRICES.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-st., London.

2s. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pen-case, &c., can be sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom upon receipt of 28 stamps to PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

THE NEW CROQUET DEPARTMENT PARKINS and GOTTO'S. Prices 15s., 18s., 21s., 25s., 30s., 35s., 40s., and upwards, including Book of Rules. Warranted of seasoned woods, and sent carriage-paid to any railway station upon prepayment.—Parkins and Gotto, 25, Oxford-street, W.

THE FAVOURITE SET of CROQUET, Full Size, for 30s., including Book of Rules, in strong box. Sent carriage-paid to any railway station in England, upon receipt of P. O. order.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 24, Oxford-street, W.

CROQUET.—Nice Present to Children. PARKINS and GOTTO'S 15s. set of Croquet, the cheapest in London, sent into the country, carriage-paid, on receipt of P. O. order.—Parkins and Gotto, 25, Oxford-street, London, W.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE.
Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK,
31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street).
Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

THE NEW DERBY RACE-GLASS, price 50s., with sling-case complete. Will show distinctly the entire race, from "the start" to "the coming in." Guaranteed the cheapest and best glass (a new model) ever offered to the public. Sent carriage-free to any part of the kingdom. Post-office orders payable to WILLIAM CALLAGHAN, Optician, 23A, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Conduit-street).

CROQUET! ARCHERY! CRICKET!
An Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

CROQUET, 15s., 18s., 21s., 25s., 30s., 40s., 60s., 80s., complete.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

CROQUET.—An elegantly-bound illustrated Treatise on the Game presented with every set by ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

WEDDING PRESENTS.—A Variety of Useful Elegances, at prices from 5s. to £50.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, opposite the Bank. The best wrought SILVER SPOONS and FORKS, fiddle pattern, 7s. 4d. per ounce. Queen's pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Many other patterns recently finished, plain or highly ornamented.

Fiddle Pattern.	Oz.		£	s.	d.	Queen's Pattern.	Oz.		£	s.	d.
12 Table Spoons	30	..	11	0	0	12 Table Spoons	40	..	15	0	0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	..	7	6	8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	..	9	7	6
12 Table Forks	30	..	11	0	0	12 Table Forks	40	..	15	0	0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	..	7	6	8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	..	9	7	6
2 Gravy Spoons	10	..	3	13	4	2 Gravy Spoons	12	..	4	0	0
1 Soup Ladle	10	..	3	13	4	1 Soup Ladle	11	..	4	2	6
4 Sauce Ditto	10	..	3	18	4	4 Sauce Ditto	12	..	4	16	0
4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)	..		1	0	0	4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)	..		2	2	0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)	..		2	10	0	1 Fish Slice (pierced)	..		3	5	0
12 Tea Spoons	10	..	3	18	4	12 Tea Spoons	14	..	5	12	0
1 Pair Sugar Tongs	..		0	15	0	1 Pair Sugar Tongs	..		1	5	0

A pamphlet is published, with 300 Engravings, as a guide to the stock in the Show-rooms. It contains the weights and prices of silver spoons, forks, tea and coffee services and table plate, with particulars of ornamental plate for private use or presentation; also, of the best silver-plated manufactures, gold and silver watches, clocks, and jewellery. Gratis on application, and post-free to any part of the British dominions.
For the use of committees, a work is printed with large lithographic drawings of plate kept ready for presentation.

NEW MUSIC.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR. Ballad. By S. GLOVER. Sent for 16 stamps. This truly beautiful Song, now established as one of the leading favourites of the season, may be had in the key of C for mezzo-soprano, and in E flat for tenor.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales. This celebrated Romance has already run through fourteen editions. Sent for 15 stamps.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S ROSE LEAVES. Ballad without words. Will rival the successful Romance, "Parfait Amour." Master Willie Pape will play "Rose Leaves" at his Concert. Sent for 15 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, Oxford-st.

E. L. HIME'S GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR sent for 18 stamps. This is an elegant and effective Transcription for Piano of Stephen Glover's beautiful Melody.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

FRANZ ABT'S LA JOYEUSE GALOP, sent for 18 stamps. This Galop is not only dansante in the highest degree, but the elegance of its melody, with its brilliant and sparkling passages, renders it one of the most effective and delightful morceaux de salon of the day.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST of NEW MUSIC.
3s. each Piece. All at Half price.
GOD BLESS THE PRINCE OF WALES. Song. 3s. Ditto, four voices. 2d.
O YE TEARS! Song. By FRANZ ABT. 2s. 6d. Ditto, for two voices. 2s. 6d.
O YE TEARS! For Piano. By G. F. WEST.
JENNY OF THE MILL. By BRINLEY RICHARDS.
SNOW FLAKES. By BRINLEY RICHARDS.
THE LIQUID GEM. By BRINLEY RICHARDS.
IN SEARCH OF THE PRIMROSE. By BRINLEY RICHARDS.
THE HARDY NORSEMAN. By BRINLEY RICHARDS.
I KNOW A BANK. By BRINLEY RICHARDS.
THE WREATH (MAZZINGHI). By G. F. WEST.
THE CHOUGH AND CROW. By G. F. WEST.
BEATRICE (MAZOURKA). By G. F. WEST. 4s.
ON YONDER ROCK. By G. F. WEST.
LA CARITA (ROSSINI). By G. F. WEST.
THE BLOOM IS ON THE RYE. By G. F. WEST. And WEST'S QUESTIONS ON MUSIC. 2s.
6, New Burlington-street, London, W.
Agents for India—Messrs. Burkinyoung and Co., Calcutta.

HENRY RUSSELL'S NEW SONG. MOTHER, TAKE ME TO THE BALL TO-NIGHT. Illustrated. By far the most charming of all his compositions. Free for 24 stamps.—MUSIC LIBRARY COMPANY, 52, New Bond-street.

THE MESSAGE. For the Pianoforte. Just published, price 4s., an Arrangement of Mr. Sims Reeves's popular song, "The Message," as a piece for the pianoforte, by J. BLUMENTHAL.—London: DUNCAN DAVISON, 244, Regent-st.

NAAMAN. By MICHAEL COSTA. The following are the popular numbers of this successful Oratorio:—
No. 7. Duet, I sought the Lord (MS. and B.), 3s.
No. 11. Triumphal March, 4s.
No. 16. Air, They shall be turned back (Sop.), 3s.
No. 19. Trio, Haste to Samaria (S. A. T.), 4s.
No. 21. Air, The seed shall be prosperous (MS. or B.), 3s.
No. 28. Air, Lamentnot thus (MS. or B.), 3s.
No. 32. Air, I dreamt I was in heaven (C.), 3s.
No. 40. Prayer, Maker of ev'ning star (S.), 3s.
No. 42. Quartet, Honour and glory (S. A. T. B.), 4s.
Full Score, three guineas; Vocal Score, £1 11s. 6d.
ADDISON and LUCAS, 210, Regent-street, W.

BUTLER'S BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS.—CORNETS, Saxhorns, Circular Vibrating Horns, Drums, Flutes, Clarinets, &c., are now in general use in Military and Amateur Bands in all parts of the Kingdom and the Colonies, and are giving universal satisfaction. Every instrument made on the premises, and guaranteed first class. Prices much below those usually charged. Cornets from £2.—Manufactory, Haymarket, London. Prices, with drawings, post-free.

TO LOVERS OF MUSIC.—The choicest Stock of Musical Boxes in London, by Stauffer, at £1 per air; Snuffboxes, 7s. per tune.—At T. W. NEILSON'S, 232, Strand (four doors west of Temple Bar).

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 64 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

MUSICAL-BOX DÉPOTS, 22, Ludgate-hill, and 56, Cheapside.—Nicole's largest Musical Boxes, at £1 per air; Snuff-boxes, 14s. 6d. to 40s. each. Catalogues gratis and post-free on application to WALES and CO., as above.

EASY-CHAIRS, COUCHES, and SOFAS, best quality.—Upwards of 300 shapes constantly on view, or made to any shape.—T. H. FILMER and SON'S, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, W. An Illustrated Catalogue sent post-free.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requring no calendering, is peculiarly adapted for curtains or furniture-coverings, being durable, elegant, and inexpensive. HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, have all the new patterns.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, solicit the gentry to inspect their new Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all reception-rooms. An indispensable luxury to every lady's boudoir.

GOOD TASTE NOT INCOMPATIBLE WITH ECONOMY.
UNIQUE and ELEGANT CABINET FURNITURE for Dining-room, Drawing-room, Bed-room, and Library.
CARPETS—FELT, KIDDER, BRUSSELS, VELVET, and TURKEY—adapted for cottage and mansion.
For nearly half a century the house has been famous for BLANKETS, SHEETINGS, and HOUSEHOLD LINENS.
BEDS and MATTRESSES of the best materials, manufactured on the premises, and under special supervision.
CURTAINS of every description in DAMASK, REP, and PEKIN CLOTHS.
LACE, and MUSLIN LENO CURTAINS for the Season.
SILKS, SHAWLS, MANTLES, and every variety of GENERAL and FANCY DRAPERY.
Estimates given. Contracts taken. Illustrated Catalogues free.
ATKINSON and CO., WESTMINSTER-BRIDGE-ROAD,
Nos. 198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, and 210.

MUSLIN, LACE, and LENO CURTAINS. ATKINSON and CO. beg to acquaint their customers and the general public that they have now COMPLETED THEIR ANNUAL STOCK,
the largest they have ever yet held—unequalled for variety, extent, and cheapness. An early inspection is respectfully invited.
Nos. 198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, and 210, Westminster Bridge-road.

DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE. — The BELGRAVE FURNISHING COMPANY, 12, Sloane-street, Belgrave-square, have for disposal a Complete Suite for Drawing-room, highly finished and covered in the elegant and new Regina Blue Silk Reps. Several beautiful specimens of Cabinet Furniture are also included, and, together with the above, form an entire suite of a most elegant description, and can be had for a considerable sum under the original cost.
N.B. Illustrations of the Silver-fir and Marqueterie 25-guinea Bed-room Suites forwarded gratis.

FURNITURE, Carpets, and Bedding. See our Illustrated Furniture Catalogue, 380 engravings, with prices 30 per cent less than any other house. The most unique and complete guide ever published. Gratis, from LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO., 73 and 75, Brompton-road, Knightsbridge. Country orders carriage-free.

THE NEW SHUTTER WARDROBES. Ladies should see these before deciding, at A. SEDLEY and CO.'S, Patentee of the Equilibrium Chairs so celebrated for comfort and economy, of which more than 3000 have been sold.—The Burlington Furniture Galleries, 38, Conduit-street, Bond-street, W.

SPARKLING PERRY and CYDER.—The Orchards around the Malvern Hills have long been renowned for the excellence of their produce. The crop last year surpassed that of any known year. The advertiser had a quantity of the best of both Perry and Cyder carefully made expressly for bottling, which he now offers, in excellent condition, at 18s. per dozen, including package.
Post-office order or reference required.
EDWARD ARCHER, Wine Merchant, Malvern.

TEA.—STRACHAN and CO., 12, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, London, E.C., will REDUCE the PRICE of their TEAS 6d. per lb. on and after the 1st of June next. ¼-lb. samples can NOW be had at the reduction. Good and fine quality, from 2s. to 3s. 6d. Carts to all parts of London daily. "Strachan and Co. purchase only direct from importers."

SELECT PLANTS, Post-free at the annexed prices:—12 superb varieties, Fuchsias, 4s.; 12 varieties, Verbenas, 3s.; 12 Dwarf Lobelias, 3s.; 12 varieties, Pansies, 4s.—From B. W. KNIGHT, Florist, Battle, Sussex.

Just purchased from France,
450 PIECES MOZAMBIQUE (otherwise Wool Grenadines, Silk Broché), the whole of which are now being sold at 12s. 6d. the Full Dress, in every variety of style.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Also on Sale a very large Purchase of
MEXICAN CLOTH DRESSES, consisting of Chenie grounds with Silk embroidery. In all colours, 21s. the extra Full Dress, being one half their value.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE
RICH SILK GRENADINES, adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses, 18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALL THE CHOICE DESIGNS IN
NEW ORGANDIE MUSLINS. British, French, and Swiss Printing, 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d., 12s. 6d. to 35s. the extra Full Dress.
An immense variety of patterns post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF
LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS. Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new.
An endless variety of patterns (at the reduced price) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Now ready, all the New Patterns in
PRINTS, BRILLIANTS, and PIQUES, for Ladies' Morning Dresses.
An endless variety of patterns post-free.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

EVERY NEW COLOUR IN THE
ARABIAN GLACÉS, for Ladies' Dresses and Jackets complete.
A most useful and desirable fabric either for Walking or Travelling Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A Choice Assortment of the
NEW PRINTED ARABIAN GLACÉS, in every variety of style, either in white or coloured grounds, from 14s. 6d. to 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

GINGHAMS and COLOURED LAWNS, for Ladies' travelling, morning, and seaside Dresses, 12s. 6d. the Dress, in plain colours, checks or stripes.
A large collection of Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A CAREFULLY SELECTED VARIETY OF
CHEAP SUMMER DRESSES. A new series of colours in the Plain Mexican Cloth, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Also Striped, Checked, and Chéné ditto, 12s. 6d. to 18s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NEW SUMMER PETTICOATS. A choice assortment made, unmade, and by the yard. New French and Sicilian Lawns, for Morning Dresses, in Plain, Striped, and Checked, all colours, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS LEVANTINE, a perfectly new Twilled Silk, made expressly to our order, and very suitable for Ladies' Morning Costumes, in most brilliant colours, £2 6s. 6d. the Full Dress, 14 yards, 25 in. wide; or any length cut.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS FOULARDS of the most improved manufacture, the wear of which cannot be surpassed. The most fashionable article for the present season for ladies' morning suits, including black and coloured grounds.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

CHÉNÉ SILKS. Now selling, 100 Pieces of rich French Chénés, £2 19s. 6d., or any length cut.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH FIGURED MOIRE ANTIQUES, 3½ and 4½ guineas the Full Dress of 14 yards, 27 inches wide. Real Indian Tussores for Seaside Wear.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR SUMMER. New Colours in Rich Plain Silks, including our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, from £2 19s. 6d. to 5 guineas extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Just Imported,
5000 SILK DRESSES, made expressly to our order for this season, including every style for present fashion, from £1 15s. 6d. to 10 guineas extra Full Dress.
Many of the above have been produced in new designs expressly for young ladies' wear.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FAMILY MOURNING, MADE UP and Trimmed in the most correct and approved taste, may be obtained upon the most economical terms
at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.
Goods sent free of charge for inspection to all parts of England, and Patterns to all parts of the world.
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
The largest Mourning Warehouse in Europe.
Peter Robinson's.

BLACK SILKS.—Patterns free. Good useful Black Silks, from 35s. to 50s. the Dress.
Superior and most enduring qualities, from 3 to 6 guineas.
At PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

MILLINERY for MOURNING.—Paris Fashions.—New Shapes and great Novelties in Bonnets, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

PARIS FASHIONS.
MANTLES and JACKETS for MOURNING and otherwise.
New Shapes, in elegant and graceful Novelties,
at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

JUST RECEIVED FROM PARIS.
WHITE and BLACK, and BLACK and WHITE, SILKS, of new and very recherché character, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

UNTEARABLE
WIRE-GROUND BLACK GRENADINES and BAREGES. The improved makes introduced by PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street, excel all others for strength and beauty of finish.
May be obtained by the yard, or made up into Skirts.
Patterns free.
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS. Patterns free.
Ducapes and Glaces (Bright Imperial Black),
£1 11s. 6d. the Full Dress (14 yards).
Gros Grains, Drap de France, Drap de Lyon,
£2 5s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Gros de Venice, Gros d'Athens (reversible for mourning),
£2 2s. the Full Dress (14 yards).
Coloured Silks, Fancy Dresses, Mantles, and Shawls, in the newest productions for this season.
CATER and CO., Finsbury-square, E.C.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Manufacturers' Prices.
JAMES LINDSAY and CO.
will forward, carriage paid on parcels of £5 and upwards, Single and Double Damask Table Cloths, Napkins, Diapers, Family Linens, Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Tickings, Huckaback and Diaper Towellings, Glass Cloths, Pantry Towels, &c., &c.; Ladies' and Gentlemen's Lawn and Cambric Handkerchiefs.
Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., 18, Donegall-place, Belfast.

SMYTH'S MILLINERY ROOMS.
Modes du Premier Empire,
dernières nouveautés de Paris,
109, Oxford-street, and 276, Regent-street.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

KING and CO., SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, have the Largest and Cheapest Stock of the NEW SPRING SILKS, NEW SPRING and SUMMER FABRICS, SHAWLS, MANTLES, &c., all bought previous to the late advance.
Patterns sent post-free to all parts of the World.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

MADE-UP DEPARTMENT. An elegant variety of Trimmed Dresses in all the latest designs, commencing at 16s. 9d., with materials and trimming for bodice.

MANTLE DEPARTMENT. Silk Mantles, Jackets, and Paletots in great variety, commencing at 1 guinea.
Light and fancy Summer Cloth Jackets and Paletots, in the newest shapes, commencing at 15s. 9d.
Opera Mantles in all the new summer fabrics.
Address to KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£35,763 BLACK SILKS, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.
Black Glacé Silks, £1 5s. 6d. the Full Dress of 14 yards.

Black Ducapes	£1 7s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Black Gros Grains	1 10s. 6d. ,,
Black Corded Silks	1 15s. 6d. ,,
Black Reversible Broché Silks ..	1 17s. 6d. ,,
Black Drap de France	2 2s. 6d. ,,
Black Drap de Lyon	2 5s. 6d. ,,
Widows' Silks	2 10s. 6d. ,,
Richest Black Moire Antiques ..	£3 3s. 6d. ,,

Patterns sent post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
NEW SPRING and SUMMER DRESSES at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

Spring Cashmeres	8s. 9d. the Full Dress.
Marie Glacés	10s. 6d. ,,
French Glacé Lawns	12s. 6d. ,,
New French Camlets ..	12s. 9d. ,,
Wool Grenadines	13s. 9d. ,,
Marie Poplinettes	16s. 6d. ,,
Broché Silk Grenadines ..	17s. 6d. ,,
The New Cameleon Cloth ..	£1 5s. 6d. ,,
Real Irish Poplins	£1 15s. 6d. ,,
N.B.—A large Lot of Last Year's Muslins	5s. 0d. ,,
The New Organdie Muslins..	10s. 6d. ,,

Patterns sent post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
NEW SPRING SILKS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street,
First Delivery.
Striped Silks, £1 1s. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Checked Silks,
£1 5s. 6d.
Tartan Silks,
£1 7s. 6d.
Corded Silks,
£1 10s. 6d.
Gros Grains,
£1 15s. 6d.
Broché Reversible Silks,
£1 17s. 6d.
New Crossbar Silks,
£2 2s. 0d.
Corded Drap de France,
£2 10s. 6d.
Richest Moire Antiques,
£3 13s. 6d.
Patterns sent post-free.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY (now open).
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, £1 15s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 yards, £2 2s.
Patterns of New Ribbed Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS. Patterns free.
A large assortment of New Patterns, £2 5s. 6d. for 14 yards.
Black Gros Grains, Black Gros de Suez.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

SUMMER CHALLIS.—Patterns free. Checks and Striped Summer Mohairs, a large variety of useful Dresses cut by the yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

LENO and MUSLIN CURTAINS. Double Borders, four yards long, 12s. 6d. per pair.
A variety of handsome Curtains, 18s. 6d. per pair, 4½ yards long.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips,
Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

FORD'S NEW JACKETS FOR LADIES, at 76, Oxford-street, opposite the Pantheon, London, W., comprise a large number of beautifully braided patterns in Silk, Cashmere, Cloth, and Velvet, at various prices, all of which are arranged in sizes to fit ladies without delay.

FORD'S MARGUERITE JACKET, registered. Prints illustrative of the shape and design of this charming Jacket are prepared to send post-free. In general it is semi-fitting, may be worn open or closed, and is adapted, according to material and ornament, for Morning Wear, Dinner Dress, and Evening Home Parties. It is also specially suited to the occasional requirements of married ladies. Ready in different sizes, in Silk, from 21s. to 3 gs.; Cashmere or Cloth, 18s. to 2 gs.; Velvet, 2 gs. to 4½ gs.—Thos. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RICH SILK MANTLES display the best taste and newest designs of the Season, in Glacé and Gros Grain Silks, from 38s. 6d. to 10 guineas. The New Grenadine Bernouses, Lace, and other thin textures, from 14s. 6d. to 5 guineas. Carriage Wraps; Waterproof Cloaks warranted to resist rain, from 21s.—Thos. Ford, 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S GUINEA JACKETS, to wear open or closed, beautifully braided; materials silk, cashmere, and fine cloth; are especially worthy of notice. Ford's New Jacket Rooms exhibit the largest and cheapest stock in Europe.—Thos. Ford, 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S HALF-GUINEA JACKETS, in cloth and cashmere, in tight-fitting, Zouave, and loose shapes. Immense numbers of these are sold. Although remarkably cheap, they are good, and such as any lady may wear. Patterns and illustrations free.—Thos. Ford, 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas, Quality and fit guaranteed. Riding-trousers, 21s. per pair. Illustrations of the new Riding-jacket, with Patterns of Cloth and Directions for Self-measurement, post-free.—T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

THIS SEASON'S FASHIONS IN DRESS. LADIES and the PUBLIC visiting London are respectfully invited to inspect our STOCK of SUMMER PURCHASES, consisting of all the LATEST NOVELTIES IN DRESS, of British and Foreign Manufacture.
All the LATEST FASHIONS in JACKETS and MANTLES for Summer Wear.
Paisley, Cashmere, and Lace SHAWLS in all the latest Designs.
Plain and Printed ALPACA LUSTRES, 8s. 11d., 10s. 9d., and 12s. 9d. the Full Dress (now much in demand).
A choice assortment of Embroidered and Braided MADE-UP DRESSES, from 18s. 9d. to 2 guineas, with jacket complete, from 25s. 9d.
A large assortment of GRENADINE DRESSES, from 8s. 11d. to 31s. 6d. (much under the regular price.)
Ribbons, Gloves, Hosiery, Trimmings, Haberdashery, Parasols, Ties, &c.
FAMILY AND COMPLIMENTARY MOURNING.
Drapers, Milliners, and Dressmakers supplied with cut lengths at Trade Price.
Close on Saturdays at Four o'Clock.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., Wholesale and Retail Silkmercers, Drapers, &c., 77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard.

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg to announce that they have just received their second delivery of French Muslins, Cambrics, and Piques, including many novelties. Piccadilly and Regent-street.

BONNETS, ONE GUINEA, at Mrs. AXFORD'S, 51, Maddox-street, Bond-street. Milliner and Dressmaker. Wedding orders, outfits, and country orders punctually attended to. French Corsets, 12s. 6d.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S. Patterns free.
The New Spring Dresses at Baker and Crisp's.
The New Spring Cambrics at Baker and Crisp's.
The New Norwich Poplinettes at Baker and Crisp's.
Extraordinarily good and cheap Black Silks at Baker and Crisp's.
The New Arabian Glacé, all Colours, at Baker and Crisp's.
The New Petticoatings at Baker and Crisp's.
Black Lace Shawls, 15s. 6d., worth 25s. Baker and Crisp's.
Last Year's Muslins, Barèges, Grenadines, &c., Half price.
Baker and Crisp's, 198, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Untearable Black Barèges, Grenadines, &c., 12s. 6d. Full Dress. The New Crape Laine, Tamataves, Muslins, Mohairs, &c., from 8s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free, Invisible HAIR NETS, in any colour; the new Floss Silk Hair Nets, 1s. 6d.; Chenille ditto, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS, Barèges, Balzarines, Grenadines, Mohairs, &c., at half the original cost. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

1500 BLACK LACE SHAWLS. During May we shall sell Black Lace Shawls that are worth 1, 2, and 3 guineas for 12s. 6d., 19s. 6d., and 25s. 6d.
Samples free.—BAKER and CRISP.

MUSLINS—MUSLINS—MUSLINS. Patterns Free.
Beautifully Embroidered and Printed Muslins, from 6s. 9d. Full Dress. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

By Appointment to the Queen, her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, and H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge.
MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY would respectfully announce that great saving may be made by purchasing Mourning at their Establishment, the Stock of Family Mourning being the largest in Europe. Mourning Costume, of every description, is kept ready made, and can be forwarded—town or country—at a moment's notice. The most reasonable prices are charged, and the wear of every article guaranteed.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
Regent-street, near the Circus.
JAYS'.

SILKS.—Paris taste and fashion have declared Black and White, and White and Black, to be the reigning colours in dress for the present season.
Messrs. Jay have, in consequence, imported the most elegant patterns in these varieties; and they can now supply their patrons and the public with the finest materials for such Dresses.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

MILLINERY FASHIONS.—Paris taste has not yet decided on the particular Bonnet Shape of the season. A new style, with very high crown, named the Empire, is much in vogue; whilst the more quiet and smaller shapes are worn by many ladies of distinction. The Manager of the Millinery Department at Messrs. JAYS' has just returned, after her second visit to Paris this season, with the latest Novelties in French Millinery.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

TAFFETA D'ITALIE.—Messrs. JAY have just imported this new Material for Black Dresses, which is as rich in texture as it is irresistible in substance. For durability in wear, proportionate economy in price, and richness in appearance, Taffeta d'Italie will stand unrivalled among new fabrics.
JAYS'
LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

THE "ARIEL" MANTLE, SHAWL, and SWISS MANTILLA.—These elegant Novelties for the present Season can be purchased only of FARMER and ROGERS, 171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street. India, China, French, Paisley, Norwich, and Fancy Shawls, from 1 guinea to 200 guineas.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! Patterns post-free.
RICH CHENE SILKS, wide width, £1 18s. 6d. the Dress of 13 yards; worth 50s.
Wide-width STRIPED SILKS, New Colours, £1 5s. 6d. the Dress of 12 yards.
The New Colours in FANCY CHECK SILKS, at £1 15s. 6d. the Dress of 14 yards, wide width.
These are worthy special attention.
Good wide-width BLACK GLACES, at 2s. 6d. and 2s. 11d. Also, GROS GRAINS and DUCAPES of the best manufacture, purchased previous to the late advance.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., Silkmercers, &c.,
77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.
Close on Saturdays at Four o'Clock.

SANSFLECTUM CRINOLINES, 17s. 6d.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

ONDINA or WAVED JUPONS, 18s. 6d.
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

PICCADILLY JUPONS, 17s. 6d.
"A celebrated maker of jupons."—Art-Journal.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

THOMSON'S CRINOLINES, 12s. 6d.
"Beautiful shapes."—Court Circular.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

CRINOLINES AND CORSETS. Illustrations, with some useful "Remarks," post-free.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

FORD'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LIST, post-free.—Intending purchasers, who cannot favour us with a call, will find it of great assistance. It contains over forty drawings of shirts, shirt-collars, &c. All the new fashions are to be found in it.—R. Ford and Co., 38, Poultry, E.C.

SOHO BAZAAR.—WEDDING, BIRTHDAY, and other PRESENTS in great variety; and extensive stocks of Jewellery, Hairwork, Leather Goods (made to order), Cabinet Goods, Papier Maché, Fancy Baskets, Toys, Dolls, Steel Ornaments, Perfumery, Stationery, Fancy Furniture, Millinery, Shoes, Children's Dresses and Hats, Stays, Hosiery, Artificial and Wax Flowers, Photographs, Indiarubber, Stove Ornaments, China, Lace, Muslins, Wools, Embroidery, Small useful Articles, Birdcages, &c.

TO MOTHERS AND INVALIDS. ELAM'S ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, for debility, corpulency, &c., of superior construction. Directions for self-measurement sent free. Price 20s. and 27s. 6d.—Elam, 196, Oxford-street.

H. WALKER'S NEW NEEDLES.—The Patent Ridged Eyes are easily threaded, and work without the slightest drag. Post-free, 100 for 12 stamps, of any Dealer. H. Walker, Alcester; and 47, Gresham st., London.

VESTRIS ENAMEL.—The Skin may be made transcendently beautiful by Enamelling. The process is most simple, requires no preparation, and can be easily done by one's self in a few minutes. Scars, freckles, wrinkles, and all imperfections hidden. Full directions with each packet. Price 10s. 6d.; sent for 144 stamps.—ALEX. ROSS, 248, High Holborn, London.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Sole Proprietors, Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH. IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENT.
Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon Dentist, 9, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole inventor of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, on a soft, elastic, chemically-prepared indiarubber gum. No wires or unsightly fastenings are required; they are more natural, durable, and comfortable than any yet introduced. They are self-adhesive, and render support to the adjoining teeth. Consultation free. Observe—No connection with anyone of the same name.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN and SIMEON MOSELY and SONS, 30, Berners-st., Oxford-st., and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Station). These teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet."—No connection with anyone of the same name.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music from the last and greatest work of Meyerbeer is published by Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street, where the following are now to be had :—

All the Vocal Music with French words.

The Overture for Pianoforte, Solo, 2s. ; Duet ..	4s.
Grand Indian March	4s.
Religious March	3s.
Bouquet de Mélodies. By Cramer	5s.
Quadrille. By Coote	4s.
Waltz. By D. Godfrey	4s.
Favourite Airs in 3 Books. By W. H. Callcott. Each	5s.

The Italian and English versions are in the press, together with Pianoforte arrangements by Kuhe, Osborne, Richards, &c.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE. The favourite airs from Meyerbeer's greatest Opera arranged for the Pianoforte, in Three Books, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 5s. each.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S AFRICAINE WALTZ. On favourite melodies from Meyerbeer's successful Opera, arranged for the Pianoforte by D. GODFREY (B. M. Gren. Guards), and performed for the first time, on her Majesty's birthday, by the united bands of the Guards. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE. On favourite Airs from Meyerbeer's New Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by E. F. RIMBAULT. Price 1s. each.

No. 1. The Guards' Waltz.	No. 4. The Hunt Quadrille.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz.	No. 5. The Jockey Galop.
No. 3. The Orpheus Galop.	No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS.

The Lost Star	Wallace	3s. 0d.
The Sails are Spread.. ..	Brinley Richards	2s. 6d.
The Cottage Window ..	G. Russell ..	2s. 6d.
Syr Tankarde	R. Haking ..	2s. 6d.
White-Wings	R. Haking ..	2s. 6d.
Again I wander	R. Haking ..	2s. 6d.
I will not wander	Schumann ..	2s. 6d.
My lost youth	Walter Maynard	2s. 6d.
Part with forgiveness ..	Florence	2s. 6d.
The Cloister'd Nun	Louis Emanuel ..	2s. 6d.
Cantilène (for two voices) ..	Gounod	2s. 6d.
In Youth's Season	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Versar nel mio cor	Gounod	2s. 0d.
Our Starry Home	Ascher	2s. 6d.
Only thee	Linley	2s. 6d.
The Life Clock	J. Barnett ..	2s. 6d.
A life of love with thee ..	J. Barnett ..	2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new Edition of this justly celebrated work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," including the Soldiers' Chorus, Valse, &c. ; "The Guards' Waltz," and numerous other airs, arranged as progressive exercises, thus rendering it the cheapest and best Tutor extant. Price 4s., post-free.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S BROOKLET. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S GRAZIELLA. Romance Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "TWO BUDS." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S "ROLAND." A celebrated French War Song. Transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S TWO HUNGARIAN MELODIES for the Pianoforte.
No. 1. ELEGY. Price 2s. 6d.
No. 2. THE GIPSIES' MARCH. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SERA. Venetian Gondola Song, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GIBSONE'S BEAUX JOURS. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

J. F. BARNETT'S PASTORAL SCENE. A characteristic Piece for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 6 are now ready, price 3s. each ; or the six numbers in one volume, bound in cloth, 12s. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, played by the Composer with immense success. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Stabat Mater"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY—Handel's celebrated Song, sung by Santley—transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE VALSE. On Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE QUADRILLE. A new and charming Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE POLKA. On Airs from Offenbach's Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. A new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will eventually become as popular as the celebrated "Guards' Waltz," by the same Composer. Price 4s., Solo or Duet. Illustrated by Lynch. Orchestra, 3s. ; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. A new Quadrille on favourite Nautical Melodies. Arranged by D. GODFREY, Composer of the "Guards'" and "Mabel" Waltzes. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's popular Opera, "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. GODFREY, Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 4s. Illustrated.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop, from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s. Illustrated. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—PIANOFORTE ARRANGEMENTS of the new grand Opera published by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

CALLCOTT'S AFRICAINE.—Meyerbeer's last great Opera. The favourite Airs, in three books, Solos and Duets arranged for the Pianoforte by W. HUTCHINS CALLCOTT.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE, on Meyerbeer's new Opera, performed for the first time at Her Majesty's State Ball, May 17. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

GODFREY'S AFRICAINE WALTZ, on Meyerbeer's New Opera. Price 4s. Illustrated.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

CRAMER'S AFRICAINE BOUQUET DE MELODIES, on Meyerbeer's Opera. Price 5s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S AFRICAINE. Grande Marche Indienne, from Meyerbeer's New Opera, arranged for the Piano by Brinley Richards. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S NEW SONG, "I cannot sing the old songs." Composed expressly for her by CLARIBEL, and introduced for the first time, with remarkable success, at Mdme. Sainton-Dolby's concert, May 15.
"I cannot sing the old songs,
I sung long years ago,
For heart and voice would fail me,
And foolish tears would flow."
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. CLARIBEL'S new Song, composed for Mdme. Sainton-Dolby. Published this day by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MELVIL CASTLE. Old Scotch Ballad. Newly arranged by Mrs. CAMPBELL, of Drimnamuchloch.
"Willie's gane to Melvil Castle, boots and spurs, an a',
To bid farewell to the leddies fair, afore he gaed awa."
Price 2s. 6d. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MELVIL CASTLE.—Notice.—The only correct Edition of this very popular old Ballad, with the genuine Music, is that edited by Mrs. CAMPBELL, and just published by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

New Edition of

MARION'S SONG by CLARIBEL. This highly-popular Song will in future be published exclusively by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

FOR OPEN AIR SINGING.

MENDELSSOHN'S 26 FOUR-PART SONGS (Op. 41, 48, 49, 50), with English words complete, price 1s., cloth gilt. Also, for Choral Societies, in 12 Numbers, One Penny each.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW SONG.

THE MESSAGE OF LOVE. Valse Ariette. 3s. Also, with Italian words, "La Messaggier a d'Amore." 3s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

ARDITI'S L'OROLOGIO, New Scherzo, with Italian words, 3s., or English words, "Tic tic," 3s. ; also for the Pianoforte, 3s. This charming polka movement promises to become as popular as "Il Bacio." It has been sung (with unfailing encores) by Mdlle. Volpini and Mdlle. Carlotta Patti.
BOOSEY and CO.

M. BLUMENTHAL'S New Song, THE CHILDREN'S KINGDOM. Composed for Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, and sung by her for the first time at her concert, May 15. Two editions may be had, with the original and a simplified accompaniment. It is also in the press for the pianoforte.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S SCOTCH PIECES.
Souvenirs d'Edinburgh, 6th Edition. 4s.
Souvenirs d'Ecosse. 12th Edition. 4s.
Auld Robin Gray and Bonnie Dundee. 4th Edition. 4s.
Annie Laurie. 2nd Edition. 3s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE AUTHOR OF "SALOPIA."

HIBERNIA. By Miss HAWLEY. A new, fanciful, and elegant transcription of "The Last Rose of Summer," for the Pianoforte. Published this day. Price 3s. Also, by the same Author,
SALOPIA. "Home, Sweet Home." (20th Edition.) 2s. 6d.
IVANHOE. "Auld Robin Grey." (3rd Edition.) 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MOZART'S SONATAS, 10s. 6d. BOOSEY and CO.'S new and complete Edition, printed from newly-engraved plates, and edited by W. Dorrell, Esq., of the Royal Academy of Music. In one vol., paper cover, price 10s. 6d. Also, with Memoir and Portrait of Mozart, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt, price 16s. ; or, half morocco, gilt edges, price 18s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

HENRY SMART'S IMPERIAL MASS of HAYDN (No. 3, in D), arranged in a complete form for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. Published this day.
Also, uniform with the above,
HENRY SMART'S STABAT MATER (of Rossini). 3s.
HENRY SMART'S TWELFTH MASS (of Mozart). 3s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

KUHE'S LINDA. New Fantasia on Donizetti's popular Opera "Linda di Chamouni." Revived this season at both the Opera Houses. Published this day, price 4s., by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MUSICAL PRESENTATION LIBRARY, Holles-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bound works excepted).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

STATE BALL, Buckingham Palace.—Played by command, by Coote and Tinney's Band :—

COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE	4s.
STRAUS'S MENESTREL VALSE	4s.
COOTE'S CADIZ QUADRILLE	4s.
FREWIN'S FAIRY FOOTSTEPS VALSE	4s.
COOTE'S NEW LANCERS	4s.
COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP	3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED.

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Watercresses," "Have you seen the Ghost ?" "Polly Perkins," &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE on the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Bedford, comprising "He, She, and the Postman," "Jolly Nose," "The Whistling Song," "Married on Wed-nes-day," and "A Norrible Tale." Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. A real merry set. No dance programme complete without them. Always redemanded.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF

OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! The great Christy Song. Price 2s. 6d. (Creating a perfect furore.)—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG,

THE WEEPIN' WILLER ; or, The Miller's Daughter, price 2s. 6d., is the best comic song published.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A MOST AMUSING COMIC SONG.

HAVE YOU SEEN HER LATELY. Price 2s. 6d. Sung by Albert Steele.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT THE ADELPHI.

J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS.

Bob Simmons's Courtship	3s.
He, She, and the Postman	3s.
A Norrible Tale	3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A COMIC VERSION OF

THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by BALFE, price 3s., causes shouts of laughter.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW SONG.—ABRAHAM LINCOLN. The Poetry by J. B. GEOGHEGAN. The Music by JAMES BATCHELOR. Post-free for 16 stamps.
London : B. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

WILL O' THE WISP. By CHERRY. This extraordinarily successful Song is published in three keys, for Bass, Baritone, or Tenor. Each post-free for 16 stamps.
London : B. WILLIAMS, 11, Paternoster-row.

THE QUADRILLE OF THE SEASON.

COOTE'S LARA QUADRILLE. Illustrated. Solo, 4s. ; Duet, 4s. Post-free at half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE VALSE OF THE SEASON.

COOTE'S LARA VALSE. Illustrated. Solo, 4s. ; Duet, 4s. Post-free at half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE ARAB SONG from LARA. "The gem of the opera." Sung by Miss Louisa Pyne.
BRINLEY RICHARDS'S Transcription of "The Arab Song" for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. each. Half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SENSATION MAD.—Mr. Sothern's Comic Song in "The Woman in Mauve." Written by H. J. Byron. Illustrated. Price 3s. Post-free for 19 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

BEN É RIDICOLO.—The favourite Italian Canzone, by RANDEGGER. Sung by the principal Vocalists and invariably encored. In E for Contralto ; in G for Soprano. Price 3s. ; post-free for 19 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

HATTON'S MOST SUCCESSFUL NEW SONG.

FAIR AND FALSE. 2s. 6d. Post-free for sixteen stamps.
EWER and CO.'S Musical Library, 87, Regent-street, London.

MISS C. M. E. OLIVER'S NEW SONG, LADYBIRD, LADYBIRD, FLY UPON ME ! Price 2s. 6d.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded).—A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Yachts, Boudoirs, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 26 guineas. A great variety may be seen at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the pure English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as the above makers', and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in every respect to other instruments at 50 guineas, price 35 guineas ; in walnut, 40 guineas.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side (and hired, with option of purchase) at the new Show-rooms of
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. Messrs. Chappell strongly recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte at or about the same price, whether new or secondhand.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 60 guineas ; other varieties at 25 and 35 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues of Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and in oak case. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak case, 32 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted for hot climates and to keep well in tune, from Two guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANO, price 17 guineas, in a walnut case, full compass. This instrument is confidently recommended as the best cheap piano before the public. The touch and tone are alike excellent, and the workmanship is of the best description.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO has the check action, and is in a highly-finished elegant walnut case, with every modern improvement. The touch is elastic, and the tone of that pure rich quality that especially distinguishes first-class English pianos.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage English Piano, and no better can be desired. It is in a richly ornamented case, has the registered keyboard, as well as the new grand compass of seven octaves.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MUSICAL BOXES.—BOOSEY and CO. beg to announce the arrival of a large supply of MUSICAL BOXES from the celebrated Nicole, of Geneva, made expressly to their order, and containing all the newest and most popular music of the day, including selections from "Faust," "Mirella," &c. Lists upon application.—24, Holles-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S HARMONIUMS with DAWES'S PATENT MELODY ATTACHMENT.—By the addition of this ingenious but simple piece of mechanism, placed inside a Harmonium and applied by means of an ordinary stop, the highest note of any chord is made to sound with great power and to produce a distinct melody, as though emanating from another instrument. This new effect is obtained without any exertion on the part of the performer, and the result is a variety of tone which must effectually overcome any prejudices that have hitherto existed against the Harmonium on account of its monotonous character. For leading public worship this new stop will be found invaluable.
Anticipating much popularity for this new invention, Boosey and Co. have obtained a license to apply it to any of their Harmoniums at a moderate cost. It can also be attached to Harmoniums now in use. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, London.

MUSICAL BOXES by NICOLE FRÈRES. A Selection of Two Hundred lists of the newest descriptions. Æolian Harps, vibrating with the slightest breeze, 12s. to 26s. KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside.

NORTH BERWICK.—To be LET, FURNISHED, at this favourite Watering-place, a VILLA in West Links, with attendance, in whole or in part. Apply to THOMAS SALTON, House Agent, North Berwick.

LADIES' SCHOOL, 40 and 50 Guineas Yearly for Board and Education—Laundress, Seat in Church, Musical Pieces, Drawing Materials, and use of Books included. No extras. Masters attend daily. References, H. S., Mr. LIMBERD'S, 344, Strand, W.C.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1837, under Royal Patronage), 17, Waterloo-place, London, S.W.
ARTHUR R. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

RESIDENT PATIENT.—A Married Gentleman, residing in a large and commodious house and premises in a beautiful part of Gloucestershire, is desirous of receiving a RESIDENT PATIENT, mentally or otherwise afflicted. The advertiser was formerly connected with a metropolitan hospital for the cure of epileptic, paralytic, and nervous cases, and has consequently paid special attention to, and had great experience in, the treatment of those disorders. References exchanged. Terms, from 200 guineas. Address S. T. E., Post-office, Campden, Gloucestershire.

TO INVENTORS.—The GENERAL PATENT COMPANY (Limited), 71, Fleet-street, London, obtains Patents for Inventions at moderate charges. Intending Patentees should procure the Company's "Handbook," issued gratis.
R. MARSDEN LATHAM, Sec.

THE £3 SET of PHOTOGRAPHIC APPARATUS is replete with every appliance for taking Positives or Negatives.—LONDON STEREOSCOPIC COMPANY, Optical Department, 110, Regent-street, W.

NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and the RECONNOITERER GLASS, 10s. 10d., sent free.—This "Tourist's Favourite" distinctly shows small windows ten miles off, landscape at thirty miles, Jupiter's moons, &c.—The Marquis of Carmarthen : "The reconnoiterer is very good." Earl of Breadalbane : "I find it all you say, and wonderfully powerful for so very small a glass." Lord Garvagh : "Remarkably good." Rev. Lord Scarsdale "approves of it." Lord Gifford, of Ampney : "Most useful." Sir Digby Cayley : "It gives me complete satisfaction, and is wonderfully good." Major Starkey, of Wrenbury Hall : "Quite as powerful as that for which I gave £5 5s." Captain Sendey, Royal Small-arms Factory, Enfield : "I have found it effective at the 1000 yards' range." F. H. Fawkes, Esq., of Farnley : "I never before, although I have tried many, met a glass combining so much power for its size with so much clearness." The Field : "We have found it fully equal to others which had cost more than four times its price." Notes and Queries : "What tourist will now start without such an indispensable companion ?" The celebrated "Hythe" Glass shows bullet-marks at 1200 yards, and men at 3½ miles. Price 31s. 6d. All the above, respectively bearing the registered trade marks, "Salom," "Reconnoiterer," and "Hythe," are only to be had direct from SALOM and CO., 98, Prince's-street, Edinburgh.
No agents of any kind anywhere.

CAMDEN STEAM-PRINTING WORKS Good work, prompt attention, and extensive facilities for the execution of large orders. Every description of book-work or music undertaken. Machining for the trade. For estimates apply to BERRY and CO., 1½, Gloucester-street, Regent's Park.

TOSELLI'S FREEZING-MACHINES produce Transparent Ice, Dessert Ices, &c., in Fancy Moulds, in six minutes, so simply and cleanly that ladies can use them in drawing or dining rooms. Price from 15s.—BROWN BROTHERS, 43, Cranbourn-street, W.C. Prospectus post-free.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., Silversmiths, Cutlers, &c., pre-eminent for their
Electro-Silver Plate, for Dinner à la Russe,
Electro-Silver Plate suitable for Presentation,
Electro-Silver Christening, Wedding, and Birthday Presents,
Sterling Silver ditto ditto,
Sterling Silver Volunteer and Rifle Prizes,
Electro-Silver ditto ditto,
Electro-Silver Cups and Tankards,
Sterling Silver Cups and Tankards,
Electro-Silver Tea and Coffee Services,
Electro-Silver Side Dishes and Dish Covers,
Electro-Silver Breakfast, Luncheon, and Dinner Cruets,
Electro-Silver Egg Frames,
Electro-Silver Fish-eating Knives and Forks,
Electro-Silver Fish Carvers, in case,
Electro-Silver Dessert Knives and Forks, in cases,
Table Knives of unsurpassed excellence,
Canteen-Cases completely fitted for Officers,
Plate Chests for partial or entire Outfits.
77 and 78, Oxford-street ; and 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory—The Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.
Illustrated Catalogues and priced list free on application.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Celebrated DRESSING CASES } completely fitted with every article DRESSING BAGS } of convenience and luxury.
DESPATCH BOXES, fitted with Cutlery and Stationery.
77 and 78, Oxford-street ; and at 71 and 72, Cornhill.

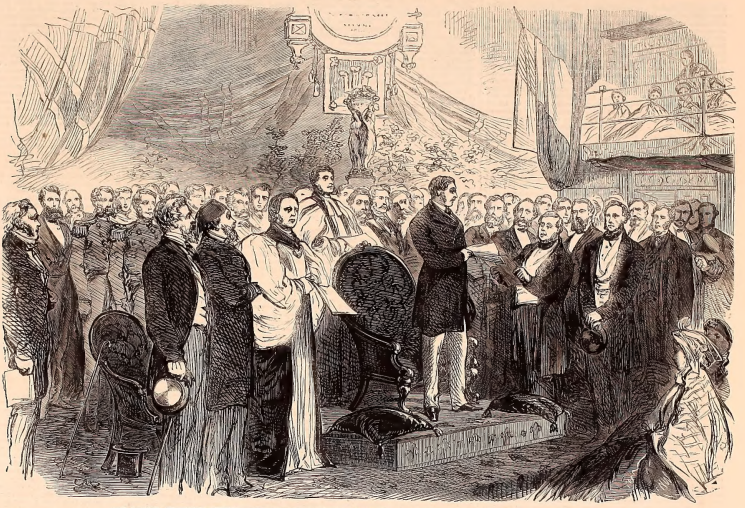
BASKETS FOR THE RACES, completely fitted.
Field Glasses for the Races.
Courier Bags for the Races.
Drinking Flasks for the Races, with shoulder straps.
Sandwich Cases for the Races.
MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., 77 and 78, Oxford-street ; and 71 and 72, Cornhill.

GARDNERS' LAMPS ARE THE BEST.—MODERATOR and PARAFFIN TABLE LAMPS, from 5s. 6d. each. Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality. Illustrated Catalogues post-free.—Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (4 doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

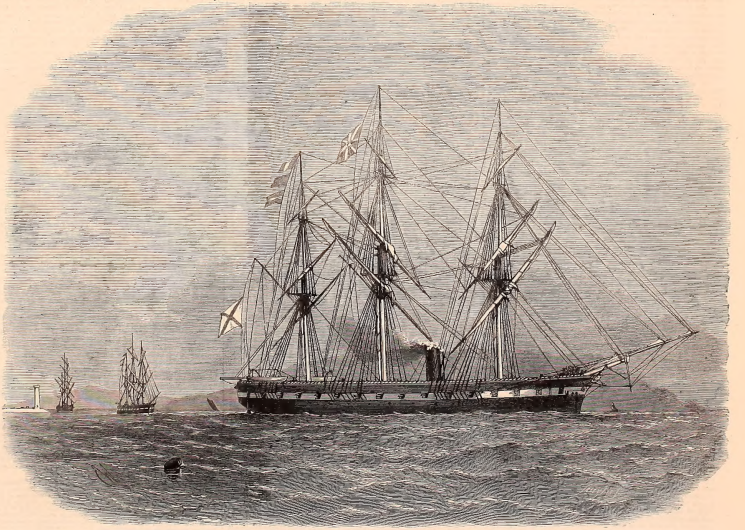
DINNER, DESSERT, BREAKFAST, TEA, and TOILET SERVICES.—A large assortment of new and good patterns. Also a beautiful variety of every description of Cut Table Glass. The stock is well selected, and admirably suited for parties furnishing to choose from.
First-class quality, superior taste, low prices.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

OSLER'S Crystal Glass CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c.
Glass Dinner Services, for 12 persons, from £7 15s.
Glass Dessert Services, for 12 persons, from £2.
All articles marked in plain figures.
Ornamental Glass, English and Foreign, suitable for presents.
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
London—Show-rooms, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Show-rooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.



CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Moderator Lamps, in Bronze, Ormolu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Vases, and other ornaments.—OSLER, 45, Oxford-street, W.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C.



LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE. WAUGH and SON, Carpet Manufacturers, beg respectfully to acquaint the nobility, clergy, and gentry that their Show-rooms contain a choice assortment of Axminster, Velvet-pile, Brussels, and other CARPETS, in designs of Alhambra, Greek, Mediæval, and other styles, for reception-rooms, dining-rooms, halls, staircases, &c., and of superior fabrics, by which their reputation has been established. Tasteful designs for Bed-room Carpets of a cheaper description, Silk Damasks, Reps, Cretonne Chintzes, and other materials for window curtains and portières. Gilt Cornices, Looking-glasses, and other gilt decorations of elegant designs.—3 and 4, Goodge-street, and 65 and 66, Tottenham-court-road. Entrance in Goodge-street.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING MACHINES.—Prize Medal 1862.—These machines, made by the original Patentees and Introducers of the Invention, stand foremost and unrivalled for all practical purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with exceeding rapidity, regularity, and durability, and give no trouble. The stitching (alike on both sides of the material) is without cord or ridge, and the thread cannot be pulled out.—66, Newgate-street, and Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. One hundred thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.C.

THE PRINCE OF WALES OPENING THE NEW WING OF THE SAILORS' HOME, IN WELL-STREET, LONDON DOCKS.—SEE PAGE 505.

THE RUSSIAN FRIGATE ALEXANDER NEWSKY DROPPING HER ANCHOR IN PLYMOUTH SOUND.—SEE PAGE 503.

"GIRL AND BUTTERFLY."

The drawing engraved on the first page was one of the most charming contributions to the Exhibition at the Dudley Gallery, Piccadilly; an Exhibition which, after a success complete in every way, and far beyond all expectations, closed on Saturday last. The great advantage of the new Exhibition was the opportunity it afforded (better than could be found elsewhere) for bringing before the public the water-colour drawings of artists who are not—and who, many of them, do not chose to comply with conditions which would make them eligible to be—members of the old-established water-colour societies—artists who, like nearly every painter nowadays, occasionally practise in water colours, but who have won a reputation as painters of oil pictures which they are not likely to wish to exchange or to cease to retain. Among the latter is Mr. George Thomas, the painter of the "Girl and Butterfly," an artist very widely and favourably known for his oil pictures, especially of public and state ceremonials; the painter of a capital picture of "Rotten-row," which we engraved some years ago, and of the very creditable picture of the marriage of the Prince and Princess of Wales, lately exhibited at the German Gallery; and the brother, we may add, of Mr. W. L. Thomas, one of the last-elected members of the Institute of Painters in Water Colours. We repeat that nothing of the kind could be more charming than the drawing now engraved. The delighted eagerness of the little girl's action and expression is perfect, which, with her childlike beauty and the ease and grace of the execution throughout, contributes to make this unpretending drawing one of the gems of the Exhibition. The subject is one that is better commended to notice by our Engraving than it could be by the pen. Simple as the subject is, and without pretending that the artist had any intention "to point a moral or adorn a tale," or any idea beyond rendering a common rustic incident merely on account of its being a pretty and paintable one, it may yet prove variously suggestive according to diversity or mood of mind. Many countryfolk, or persons who, like the writer of this, enjoy the dear delight of a suburban garden, and who just now find their rose and fruit trees half eaten up with the larvæ (in the shape of caterpillars) of butterflies and moths, may have very prosaic reasons for enjoying the representation of this keen young entomologist's amusement. But our less prosaic readers will think of the butterfly as a harmless, beautiful, garden sprite, an aerial flower, the favourite emblem, ever since the days of the old Greeks, of the soul in its volatile habits, and in its metamorphosis from the chrysalis state; while the moralist will extract a thousand reflections from its aimless wanderings from flower to flower, its frail and short-lived beauty; and, contemplating the future life of the pretty child now pursuing it with such gay thoughtlessness, will perhaps derive a sound moral lesson from this picture of the "Girl and Butterfly."

FINE ARTS.

EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

THE PORTRAITS.

The portraits in this year's exhibition have apparently been rather more carefully weeded than usual. At all events, such performances as on former occasions every visitor has felt to be a reproach to our school are less numerous and obtrusive. Still, however, the comparatively low condition of this branch of art is very unpleasantly obvious. Various reasons have been given for this degradation, but it appears to us to be attributable principally to one cause. That cause is the little cultivation of the old "historic style," as practised by Rubens, Vandyke, Titian, Velasquez, Reynolds—all the great artists who ever painted portraits. That style does not necessarily confine itself to subjects from history, but it involves painting a human figure or figures on the scale of life, and introducing it or them in such a way as to form a picture—that is to say, a representation objectively true to nature, so far as that lower kind of truth does not clash with the higher subjective laws of vision and memory, upon which are founded the great principles of art. To succeed in this style requires the most thorough and complete artistic education, and knowledge derived not merely from haphazard copying of nature, but also from study of those "principles" which we have just mentioned—principles which are derived from the experience of many ages, and only fully exemplified in the works of the great masters. It was this latter kind of study which made Reynolds to differ from his master, Hudson; and so it will ever be. Likeness-painting is the best possible training for the historic style; but it is only proficients in that style who have left the inimitable portraits which now excite our utmost wonder and admiration. A good portrait is literally a piece of history—it is the history (as far as painting may be) of an individual.

But how can we expect the higher kind of portrait-painting to flourish among us when the style upon which it must be founded is practically ignored in our Royal Academy, misunderstood and decried by literary critics, and when only a very limited demand for works in that style can exist among us under present social and political conditions? In the Royal Academy the studies from the "antique" and "the life" are all reduced to a scale of about two feet. We have hardly any public employment for painters cultivating the higher branches of their art; no churches, and only one public building, to decorate; but we have a brisk market for pictures suited to the taste, or want of taste, of private purchasers, and to the size of their dwellings. Hence ours is a school of cabinet-painters; hence there is no general cultivation of those higher and severer forms of art which embrace all noble portraiture.

But, besides the artistic deficiencies of the portraits generally in Trafalgar-square, there is (if, indeed, the one can be separated from the other) a prevalent tendency to violate good taste, as regards outward seeming and well-bred retenue and convenance, that is perfectly inexplicable either as regards artist or sitter. What is the first requisite for a portrait, if not the pure, unconscious, simple grace of refined nature in women, and quiet self-respect—it may be dignity and thoughtfulness—in men? Yet if we except the works of Boxall, Grant, a head by Watts, and a few portraits, principally of the Scotch school, there are few representations of British ladies and gentlemen on these walls that are free from some sort of self-consciousness and affectation, descending, in several instances, to vulgar so-called "flattery," foppishness, or meretriciousness. It is time, however, to offer detailed evidence in support of these general remarks.

In the first place, let us speak of the portraits distinguished by the rare attribute of good taste. Among these, then, we think, there is none more noteworthy than Mr. Boxall's portrait of "Mrs. Cardwell" (62), an elderly lady clad in the simple black and white of widow's weeds, and seated, with that perfect unconsciousness of being the subject of observation which should primarily distinguish every portrait, while, at the same time, the face wears an entirely suitable expression of gentle, matronly amiability—an expression which seems to more than replace the beauty of youth by that which wins general reverence as well as affection. This painter's tender, broken execution and colouring have also a special charm, because they are suggestive of life and movement, and appear to result from sensitiveness of perception. The portraits of Mr. S. Angell (159) and Mr. W. Gibbs by the same artist are almost as admirable as that of Mrs. Cardwell; and in all three Mr. Boxall evinces his entire adhesion to one great principle of art totally ignored by the Pre-Raphaelites of ten or a dozen years ago and by the few remaining to this day. He never allows the eye to wander from the face; but, as in all unsophisticated impressions from nature, he gives to the head its predominant interest and distinctness. At the same time, it must be admitted that the indefiniteness of the accessories is sometimes too obviously intentional, and that uncertainty of handling gives to a few of Mr. Boxall's heads a vagueness that verges on vapid insubstantiality.

There are some points of affinity between Mr. Watts and Mr. Boxall. The former has manifested in his monumental works a power of drawing and a command of "style," derived from early study of the great Italian frescanti, to which the latter would probably not lay claim, but both appear to have a delicately nervous organisation; the colour and brushwork of both are of a broken, indeterminate, almost timid, character, and the portraits of both are distinguished by refined propriety. The pure and elevated aims and intentions of Mr. Watts in portraiture have long been widely recognised; but in our critical estimates we are bound not to accept aims and intentions for assured results, and, as we remarked in a recent article, it is only (as it seems to us) this year, in the portrait of Mr. Bowman (251), the eminent oculist, that the painter has given adequate technical expression to those aims and intentions. In previous portraits the colouring has been sometimes poor and inharmonious, and the flesh-painting generally wanting in that solidity of impasto and clearness of tone which, as artists believe, constitute the chief and proper virtue of the material of oil. Now, however, that these objections are almost wholly removed, the gain in power and vitality of effect is enormous. Speaking for ourselves, no portrait in the exhibition leaves so vivid an impression as this of Mr. Bowman, by Mr. Watts, and no other male portrait seems to have been caught at so happy a moment of unstudied intelligent apprehension.

The merits of Mr. Knight and Mr. Sant—and they are great—are of a much more obvious kind than those of the artists just named. Mr. Knight is a master of his craft; he is a rich colourist, his effect always embraces the utmost limit of light and dark; his handwork is astonishingly dextrous, and to him we owe (from his portrait of the President of the Academy, exhibited a few years ago, down to his General Cabrera of last year) some of the finest portraits of the recent English school. But in his works technical skill sometimes usurps attention when we should expect to be interested only with the subtlety and refinement of nature. This is apparent in his portraits of ladies and children, even when, as in the portrait of a little girl called "Spring Flowers" (158), the colouring is sufficiently delicate and beautiful. Other of the painter's works this year are rather less complete in relief than usual. The large seated full-length of Mr. White, the treasurer of St. Bartholomew's Hospital (105), has great breadth and power; but the background is heavy, and some of its blackness has got into the shadows of the face. The extremely clever but slight handling in portions of two other portraits is a dangerous example to young artists.

We have had occasion to refer to a manifest paintiness, off-hand execution, and edginess in some former portraits by Mr. Sant; but these faults are, generally speaking, less evident in his present contributions than we ever remember to have seen them. Relief and force have been attained by more careful modelling and at a less sacrifice of refinement. It would appear that renewed study of Sir Joshua Reynolds has been productive of the best results. Like the master after whom Mr. Sant evidently forms his style, he excels in the representation of children. His portrait-group of the children of Mr. H. M. Ames (122) is truly charming, and, together with Nos. 4 and 17, is particularly noteworthy. Nor were we prepared to see from Mr. Sant's hand so grave and Rembrandtesque a portrait as that of "The Bishop of London" (49), standing in a side light that throws the greater portion of the face into broad shadow and half-tint.

Among our younger portrait-painters there is none deserves so distinguished a place as Mr. H. T. Wells. When we recollect how few years since this artist exclusively practised miniature painting, it is surprising how fully he has mastered the medium of oil, in this respect affording a contrast to Mr. Thorburn and the late Sir William Ross. The weak or sullied "carnations" of earlier works have disappeared, and his flesh-painting now, making allowance for the lowering and toning of time, very nearly hits the exact mean between hardness (though now inclining a little thereto) and mealiness on the one hand, and softness and varnished juiciness on the other. His avoidance of the coventionalities of portraiture, and his efforts to render a portrait or group also a "picture," are likewise to be highly commended, and were never more successful than in his family group (173) of the three daughters of Mr. J. Lowthian Bell. In this figure-picture—for it is this in an eminent degree, and probably as such has had accorded to it a place on the line in the great room—the artist has ingeniously chosen the not improbable incident of preparing a tableau vivant as a means of presenting three sisters under circumstances of interest, and engaged in a way that shall afford varied employment for each and a natural reason for diversity of expression. Two of the sisters are arranging the third as a living portrait, to resemble one of Sir Joshua's Nelly O'Briens, behind a large carved frame, surrounded by Christmas foliage, draperies, &c. The painting throughout is carried to a high point of realisation, equally as regards drawing, chiaroscuro, and colour—too far, perhaps, in some of the accessories, but not so far as to detract materially from the interest of the heads. Mr. Wells's portrait of Mr. Stansfeld (250) is also praiseworthy; and the artist's range of power is further shown in the landscape (301) already reviewed; a chalk head of Miss Jeffray; and a beautiful miniature of the same lady.

Mr. Richmond's portraits gain little from colour. His method of painting is plainly derived from early practice with "the point" (in chalk drawing), and consists in great measure of precise and rather laboured superficial "hatching," with a monotonous shadow-colour, and is not calculated to secure the most characteristic qualities of oil painting. Mr. Richmond's painted portraits are, however, like his drawings, excellently drawn and modelled, and the value of these essentials is evinced in the powerful and more than usually masculine portrait of the Bishop of Oxford (61) and the vigorous sketch of the late "Maharanee Chund Kowr" (207). In other portraits, and also in the drawing of the Dean of Christchurch, there is a besetting tendency towards a treatment that recalls the "genteel" style of Sir Thomas Lawrence. Of Mr. Grant's gifts or acquirements as an artist not a great deal can be said, either in warm praise and still less in censure. He is a respectable, not a great, draughtsman; his colouring is negative and thin, but unvulgar; he never taxes his invention for a background, content with the dull skies and shadowy trees, the use of which to set off the head has been sanctioned by several great masters; but he never introduces obtrusive and misplaced accessories. This one thing, however, Mr. Grant knows how to do better than nearly all other of our fashionable portrait-painters—he knows how to paint an English lady as a lady, not as a traviata or a ballet-girl; and an English gentleman as a gentleman, not as a fop or a fool. We may select, in confirmation of this, the group of Lady Augusta Sturt and Son" (83), and the portrait of Mr. E. Holroyd (155), in black velvet jacket and knickerbockers, standing, with dog-whip in hand, beside the hunter he is about to mount for a turn round his grounds, or perhaps a little quiet cub-hunting. But in the portrait of Lord Westbury (147) the artist has aimed at more of expressive action than he usually attempts, and the result is a comparative failure: the gesture represented has something of jocular cajolery in it, which, like the stigma of a recent "scandal," hardly becomes the dignity of the Chancellor of England. Nevertheless, from Mr. Grant to the rest of the fashionable portrait-painters is a long descent. These hangers-on of fashion form a peculiar and distinct class among artists. It may in all fairness be affirmed that, generally, they have too little talent to succeed in any other branch of art or to satisfy any other class of patrons. For nothing is more certain than that the old taste for and knowledge of art has almost died out in the aristocracy. In the days of Reynolds, acquaintance with the great pictures to be seen in the "grand tour," and a sufficient smattering to at least be able to talk plausibly upon both painting and sculpture, were considered necessary parts of a nobleman's education, and picture-marts and auctions were fashionable lounges. But the old dilettante spirit which, with all its prejudices, was calculated to foster the more elevated branches of art, is departing from our titled ones, like much of their political power. Now, our judges and purchasers of works of fine art are the great wealthy middle class, and the aristocracy appear to resent their intrusion by looking coldly on art itself as a thing degraded and plebeian. It is universally known that the patronage of some of the highest in the land is either withheld altogether or bestowed on some of the cheapest or least deserving recipients.

There must, however, be some to minister to the vanity of the vulgar of all classes. Hence your fashionable portrait-painters. To enjoy this distinction it seems to be absolutely necessary that the aspirant should not have been bred to so low a thing as art. For of the successful we are always told to the effect that, "although" Mr. Such-a-One paints, he is quite a gentleman, you know; he is the son, you know, of So-and-So; related, therefore (distantly), to Lord Noodle. Equally conclusive is the fact that another is married to the daughter of the Hon. Poodle; a third would have been a man of fortune, but, having run through everything at Newmarket, as a last resource, "took to" painting his friends' likenesses; a fourth was educated at Oxford and intended for the Army, the Bar, or at least the Church, "but, somehow, his friends could not keep him from daubing"; and so on—always with an apology for the disgrace of being an artist. And a very gentlemanly set of fellows these highly-privileged painters will be found to be—irreproachably gantés; quite an acquisition in the dull time in the country; and to be conveniently visited in town in the round of morning calls, at their studios in Belgravia, St. James's, and Mayfair. Our only objections are—and it is the duty of the art-reviewer to be outspoken in such cases—that none of them paint better than, and some not so well as, many of their humblest brethren; and that all lend themselves to the fashionable propensities for suppressing nature by a system of so-called "flattery" that is as devoid of real beauty as it is silly and obvious; and for substituting man-millinery; meretricious "make-up," theatrical affectation; and the general artificiality which thrives in the most fashionable atmosphere. The examples which might be adduced in partial or entire justification of one or other of these remarks from the productions, among others, of Messrs. Buckner, Swinton, Weigall, and Desanges—artists (at least two or three of them) who have done fairly good work and promised better things, but whom contact with titled patrons seems to have spoiled—the examples, we say, justifying our observations are so conspicuous in this Exhibition that we shall content ourselves with a general protest, convinced that further particularisation would be thrown away equally upon those who do and do not need it.

In turning from the kind of portraits we have just alluded to, we find the opposite extreme in the works of the Scotch school founded by Raeburn, long headed by the late Sir Watson Gordon, and here largely represented by Messrs. Macnee, Macbeth, Tweedie (the Hon. F. Peel), J. Ballantyne, J. M. Barclay (Sir W. Bruce and Son), and C. Smith (a very black and strongly individualised full-length of Mr. A. Buchanan). We have some doubt respecting the correctness of our classification of one or two of these artists; but they resemble each other in leading characteristics, Mr. Tweedie being the least rigid. Generally, the painters of this school keep on that side of the juste-milieu in portraiture which does not allow sufficiently for the mobility of life, the softening, often dignifying and beautifying influences of expression, and the legitimate graces and embellishment of art. Everything is sacrificed to hard, dry, shrewd Scotch character, and that character is represented with a sort of dogmatic, persistent, Calvinistic scrupulosity, sometimes almost painful to behold, and yet that is incomparably more agreeable to good taste than the offensiveness of many "prettified" portraits. There could not be a more strongly pronounced example of this school than Mr. Macnee's portrait of Lord Brougham (139). Now, whether the countenance of the Scotch sage may or may not seem to invite a little pictorial treatment, we will not commit ourselves to any personality in saying, certainly, however, no photograph could give a more uncanny, wizard-like version of a head originally sufficiently strongly marked and now whitened and deeply worn by time and thought.

Mr. Lowenthal's half-length of Gibson, the sculptor (103), and the companion half-length of R. Westmacott, the sculptor (113), by Mr. Baccani, with Mr. Lutyen's portrait of "Lady Mary Hope" (184), and a portrait by Mr. C. Du Val, are examples of foreign portraiture to be commended for their truth, modesty, and freedom from the prevailing faults in taste of our own portrait-painters, though it must be confessed that unnecessary reserve is shown in their monotonous colouring and comparative flatness. Mr. Ercole's full-length of the Marchioness of Northampton (174) is placed in a cross light, where the face cannot be fairly seen; but it appears to indicate feeling for style, with, however, some hardness and unpleasantness in the colour oppositions. Among English artists not yet named who deserve to be held in esteem for their workman-like ability, fidelity to nature, and comparative freedom from inartistic conventionality, are Messrs. L. Dickenson (Sir J. Walsh), Gush (Mrs. Vander Byl), J. E. Williams, H. W. Phillips, and Mr. S. Laurence. Besides a portrait, Mr. Phillips exhibits a large incident-picture, painted with vigour and truth, which we have not yet described. "The First Day of Bairam" (473) represents an Eastern widower going out with his child to lay a palm-branch on the grave of his dead wife on the first day of the great Mohammedan feast. Mr. Laurence's chalk drawings, though inclining to be a little hard and blocked out (see the head of Mr. Anthony Trollope), are always highly characteristic likenesses; and, as they are often of literary celebrities, they have the one merit of greatest value. But in oil the artist is not seen to advantage. A seated full-length here is, pictorially considered, hot, dry, and commonplace to a degree that is quite distressing.

In order to render our survey of the field of portraiture more complete, we would offer a few observations on a portrait group, entitled "The Children's Holiday," which Mr. Holman Hunt has lately added to his other paintings exhibiting in Hanover-street. It contains, we are informed, portraits of the wife and children of Mr. Thomas Fairbairn, of Manchester. We must at once say that the composition is scattered and inartistic, though the painter has chosen a natural "motive" for bringing together his group by representing an al fresco tea in the parklike grounds of the family residence on the occasion which gives the title. With a sincere respect for Mr. Hunt's earnestness of purpose, patient diligence, and great talent, we must yet confess that our first impression from this picture was that of being repelled by a general obtrusiveness without any scale of compensation or "keeping," without balance or subordination. From the face of the lady, notwithstanding the flesh has the kind of superficial hardness artists call "wooden" and the expression something of galvanised life, the eye wanders to a grey dress of marble solidity, a tea-urn brilliant as polished steel, a baby with cheeks of wonderful firmness, a mahogany arm-chair, "more like," to use an Irishism, "than the thing itself;" and thence to passages of the landscape background which press close up to the lady's head. Let us hasten to say that, taking portion by portion, the painting is astonishing for power of effect combined with vividness of colour. But to astonish by mere substantiality of details is not a high aim in art. The exploded and almost disused Pre-Raphaelite principle upon which this picture was executed is similar to that of Mr. Madox Brown's "Work" and that of Mr. Woolner in sculpture, and involves, we think, a fundamental error. The artist has painted each separate object as he saw it with concentrated attention, and with the most strenuous determination to realise it with the full resources of his art, leaving the whole to harmonise as nature harmonises. But here is the mistake: the painter forgets the limited character of his means compared to those of natural effect; and the fact that the eye only sees distinctly an object at the point and on the plane to which the visual focus is adjusted. Had Mr. Hunt really wished to preserve the relative scale of nature he would, having made his teapot, urn, and sky as bright as possible, have had to darken his face and everything else enormously. A painted representation moreover, has but one plane; nor in looking at a given portion can the eye dwell on it without a sense of distraction (as in open space) unless assisted by the artist. The sacrifice of some portions, by toning or a less defined treatment, is therefore inevitable, and, of course, the least important should go first. A painter or sculptor should recognise that art is a system of infinite compromise, otherwise we have the result seen in Mr. Hunt's painting: the draperies and accessories—with the aspect of which we are least familiar and should least notice—look far more real than the face, of which we are all critics, and upon which our chief attention would fix. In paintings executed on this principle we have, as it were, a mass of forcible but not thoroughly-digested evidence; whereas in a work of art we look for the logical statement of the historian or the masterly summing-up of the judge. In short, works of this kind do not answer to the definition of a "picture" we gave at the outset of this article; they are not true to the mental impression, even as prosaic records, while they tend to sever from Art all that by which she claims relationship to her sister, Poetry.

The ship Melmerby, 3000 tons burden, belonging to Messrs. James Baines and Co., sailed on the 13th inst., from Liverpool for Queensland, Captain George Borlase, commander, Surgeon-Superintendent Dr. Salmond, assisted by Miss Darke, matron. The Melmerby is the fifty-sixth vessel that has sailed on the land-order system of emigration, under the immediate direction of the Queensland Government. She contains 520 souls, divided into paying, assisted, and free passages, and consisting of 221 members of families, 250 single men, and forty-nine single females.

An American journal states that in the United States there are fifty-three religious sects. Amongst them are ten different kinds of Baptists, nine of Methodists, thirteen of Presbyterians, and two of Quakers. The Baptists number 1,724,373 members or communicants, and the Methodists 1,651,732. The number professing the Roman Catholic religion is 3,177,140. The Baptists are divided into the following curious sects—viz., regular, anti-mission, seventhday, sixprinciple, freewill, riverbrethren, winebrennarians, dunkers, mennonites, and campbellites. The Quakers are divided into orthodox and hicksite.

MUSIC.

Mdlle. Jina De Murska, whose brilliant début at Her Majesty's Theatre in "Lucia di Lammermoor" we mentioned last week, has followed up her first success by another, equally decided, in "Linda di Chamouni," on Monday last. She astonished as well as delighted the audience by displays of vocal power and execution which could not have been surpassed—if, indeed, they could have been equalled—by any prima donna now on the stage; and her representation of the Swiss heroine was charming and interesting. We need scarcely add that she was rapturously applauded.

At the Royal Italian Opera Mdlle. Lucca made her first appearance this season on Tuesday last in the character of Margaret, in Gounod's "Faust." The lady, it will be remembered, left London rather suddenly last season before her engagement had expired, to the surprise and displeasure of the public, but Mdlle. Lucca appears to be remained on Tuesday it could not have resisted the exquisite beauty of her performance. Her Margaret was the pure, unsophisticated of Goethe's heroine, and she sang as charmingly as she acted. Her reception, accordingly, by one of the most crowded houses that have assembled this season, was in the highest degree enthusiastic; for she showed, beyond all doubt, that she was one of the greatest actresses and singers now on the musical stage.

Cherubini's most celebrated opera, "Medea," is now in active preparation at Her Majesty's Theatre. The part has been cast as follows:—Medea, Mdlle. Titiens; Jason, Dr. Gunz; Creonte, Mr. Santley; Dirce, Miss Laura Harris; Neris, Mdlle. Sinico; Lamia, Mdlle. Rudi; Egeo, Mdlle. Rudi; and Glauce, Madame Medea, Mdlle. Tiziens.

At the second open concert at the Crystal Palace the singers were from Her Majesty's Theatre, and comprised Miss Laura Harris, Mdlle. Rudi, Mdlle. Betthellem, Signor Gordon, Scalese, Bossi, and Bonchi. Mdlle. Arabella Goddard, the well-known pianiste, was the pianist.

The matinée of the Musical Union, on Monday last, was as brilliant as usual. The performers were Joachim and Ries, first and second violins; Wells, viola; Piatti, violoncello; and Charles Halle, pianist. The pieces performed were Beethoven's seventh quartet in F (the first of the "Rasoumofsky" set); Schubert's pianoforte trio in B flat, op. 99; and Mendelssohn's quartet in E flat, also executed in perfection, and to the delight of the fashionable audience by which it was filled.

The well-known London Glee and Madrigal Union are at present giving a series of concerts at Gloucester Rooms, in the New Grosvenor-street, under the direction of Mr. Land. We need scarcely remind our musical readers that the object of this society is the cultivation of a style of music for mere country singing, which this country has especial reason to be proud, though at present it is too much neglected—the glee, madrigal, and motet, which are the pure English School. These compositions are performed at the concerts of this society by a body of singers—Miss Wells, Miss Orpen, Mr. Lawler, Mr. Oostes, Mr. Land, and Mr. Winn—by whom they have been thoroughly studied, and who sing them with a finish and precision rare to be met with. The last concert of the present series, we observe, will take place on Tuesday next, the 30th inst.

Mr. Kennedy, the Scottish vocalist, upon whose shoulders the mantle of the celebrated John Wilson has fallen, is now giving his entertainments at the Royal Gore Rooms, Kensington Gore, Hyde Park-street, the place where Wilson's memorable performances were most frequently given. Mr. Kennedy likely has not the art of the late Scottish famous predecessor. He has the same beauty of voice, simplicity of manner, pathos, and expression, and warmth of feeling. He is from him, above all others, that the English public can gain a just idea of the characteristics and peculiarities of Scottish melody and song.

A most brilliant concert, of which music for the harp was a prominent feature, was given by Mr. Bailie Chatterton, the celebrated performer of that instrument, at Worcester, on Thursday week, the morning, May 17. Mr. Chatterton's reputation, together with the attractive nature of the programme, brought together one of the most crowded assemblage we have ever seen in that great theatre. We can only notice a very few of the many performances that delighted. Several of the finest melodies and choruses of the Principality were performed, after the Welsh manner, with the accompaniment of a band of harps, producing a peculiar and delightful effect. The harmonies played, for the first time, a new fantasia, composed by himself, on themes from "Faust," and a new duet for two harps, by Mr. Aguilar and Mr. John Thomas, was performed by Mr. Chatterton and the composer. The principal vocal performers were Miss Poole, Miss Pyne, Miss Louisa Pyne, Mr. and Mdme. Weiss, Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Poole, Mr. Lewis Thomas, Mr. Lockey, Mr. Cummings, and Mr. Weiss's deservedly popular song, "The Village Blacksmith," and a quartet for four performers on two pianos, called "Romance de Deux Minutes," composed by Mr. W. H. Holmes, were loudly encored. This piece was admirably executed by Mr. Kate (husband of Mr. Chatterton's niece), Miss Merriman, Mr. Hammond, and the composer. A madrigal, called "Wake up, Sweet Melody," composed by a young amateur, Lieutenant T. Davenport, a relative of her Majesty's Madras Army, was much and deservedly applauded.

Mr. Aguilar's musical soirée, on the 10th inst., at his residence in Westbourne-square, was an attractive entertainment, attended by a crowded and fashionable audience. The chief performers were Mdme. Parepa, Miss Grace Lindo, Signor Gardoni, and Signor Gassier. The instrumentalists were Mr. Aguilar, pianoforte; Mr. Sainton, violin; Signor Piatti, violoncello; and Herr Oberthür, harp. Among other interesting performances, Mdme. Parepa sang Mr. Aguilar's air to Tennyson's song, "Break, break, break!" a fine composition, beautifully sung. Gazia's song, "The Nightingale's Trill," composed expressly for the purpose of her having by her with great brilliancy, and encored; and the same compliment was paid to Blangini's Italian duet, "Per valle," sung by Mdme. Parepa and Signor Gardoni. Mendelssohn's "Zuleika" was sung by Miss Grace Lindo with remarkable taste and expression. Mr. Aguilar's graceful romanza, "Come placida ragiuda," was sweetly warbled by Signor Gardoni. The instrumental music was performed in a masterly trio by Mr. Aguilar for the piano, violin, and violoncello played by himself, M. Sainton, and Signor Piatti; Mr. Aguilar's caprice for the piano, in D flat; a duet for two harp-pianos, on themes from "Norma," composed and played by Herr Oberthür and Mr. Aguilar; and for the violoncello, a fantasia, beautifully played and received other interesting pieces.

Miss Fanny Corfield, one of the most distinguished among our younger generation of pianists, gave a matinée of classical pianoforte music, on Monday last, at Goldsmith's Hall, Lower Grosvenor-street. It was very successful, as it deserved to be. Miss Corfield was assisted by Herr Jansa (violin) and M. Paque (violoncello), together with Miss Lascelles, Mr. Lawler, and Mr. Land. She played Beethoven's sonata in G minor, for the piano and violoncello; Mozart's sonata in A, op. 2, for the piano solo; Beethoven's trio in B flat, op. 97; and Hummel's trio, op. 93, in E flat, enabled Miss Corfield to show her finished style and execution, which was justly and warmly applauded.

Dr. Gunz, of Her Majesty's Theatre, is engaged as first tenor at the approaching Gloucester Musical Festival.

The following were the salaries, last winter season, of the principal performers of the Imperial Opera of Vienna:—Ladies—Dustmann, 14,000 fl.; Kraus, 12,000 fl.; Bettelheim, 10,000 fl.; Destinn, 8000 fl.; Gallmeyer, 8000 fl.; Hoff, 6000 fl.; Marska, 16,000 fl.; and Cosqui (first solo dancer), 18,000 fl. Of the gentlemen, Herr Ander received 12,000 fl.; Wachtel, 14,000 fl.; Walter, 12,000 fl.; Beckmann, 10,000 fl.; Erl, 4000 fl.; Dolfi, 4000 fl.; Beck, 7000 fl.; Bignio, 7000 fl.; Husbaneck, 6000 fl.; Schmidt, 8000 fl.; Draxler, 8000 fl.; Rosicky, 7000 fl.; and Mayerhofer, 7000 fl.

Several journals have published a paragraph stating that a Russian lady has presented to the Pope a pair of slippers "warmly" lined with bank notes of the value of more than £600.

An excursion round the world is being organised at Antwerp. The voyage will last two years, and the principal ports in both hemispheres will be successively visited. It is the principle note in a means of educational travel for young men.

THE THEATRES.

There is necessarily an end to all things that have a beginning, and the close of the season for the greater drama has now arrived in unmistakable form. On Saturday a termination was put to that of Drury Lane (this and the preceding season are the longest on record), and Saturday night with a benefit to Mr. Phelps and the comedy of "Love's Ordeal" was presented for the last time on Monday. On Friday a new tragedy, named "M. J. O. Gottfield," by a pupil of Mr. Walter Lacy, whose benefit took place on that evening. The character which he undertook was that of Rezone, and his performance bore marks of good training and gave evidence of general talent. The author's claims were immediately sustained by Mr. Hermann Vezin, and that of Mercutio by the beneficiary himself. Miss Pyne appeared on the closing evening in the part of Imogen. On a review of the season at this theatre, we cannot but congratulate the managers upon. They have had confidence in the legitimate and the public support, which is the consequence of it, has proved to be worthy the character of the national theatre. This result is highly satisfactory to the subscribers and patrons of the house. The minor theatres in general, and petitions signed by dramatic authors (including Sir Edward Lytton Bulwer) have been presented in order to right the balance between them and the managers. Messrs. Bancroft and Chatterton probably hoped that they have kept nearly all the promises made last October, and would have kept all, but that the failure of other speculations compelled them to defer the revival of "Antigone" and the performance of a new play by the Theodore Martin. The regular company, led by Mr. Phelps, has contributed to entertain the actresses and actors of the future—Miss Walter Lacy, R. Roxby, G. Belmore, Mr. Barrett, Mr. Edmund Phelps, and Mr. Walter Lacy, and Miss Pyne. The theatre has also had Mr. Lecicrcq, Miss Atkinson, Mrs. Herman Vezin, and Mrs. Vandenhoff. Engagements have been made for the season, which will open with Miss Helen Faucit, Mr. James Anderson, Mr. Creswick, Mr. Walter Montgomery, Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. Fred Vining, Miss Augusta Thompson, Miss Poole, Miss Rebecca Isaacs, and Mr. Bartleman. The pieces announced are "Macbeth," the legitimate drama. Some of them may be profitably registered, such as the two parts of "Henry IV.," "Othello," "Coriolanus," and "Macbeth," the last with new scenery by Mr. William Beverley, R.S.A., and Mr. Telbin. To these may be added "Henry VIII," "As You Like It," "Romeo and Juliet," "Much Ado About Nothing," "King John," "Hamlet," "School for Scandal," "Fool's Revenge," "Comus," with Beverley's scenery, and "Richard III." Mr. Phelps will also play the part of Lear and the new play of "Love's Ordeal." The Christmas pantomime was, we recall, good and splendidly appointed. It is a triumph of the season, for the ensemblem of pieces speaks for itself.

On Saturday, also, concluded the legitimate season at Sadler's Wells. Mr. Samuel Phelps and Mr. Walter Montgomery as operatic one commenced, under the direction of Miss Catherine Lucy, and will close on Saturday next, June 3.

A new operetta has been produced at the Haymarket called "The Miller's Daughter." Miss Louise Keeley personates the heroine, who is thrilled with the desire to be a lady, and to be taken before Martin Wheatley (Mr. Cooper) would have put aside for an unpleasiled intercourse with a servant to be a wife. Mr. Cooper is the good of the village by seven jolly millers. There are some pleasing ballads in this piece, which are sung with much taste by Miss Keeley and Mr. Cooper. On the whole, however, the music is more creditable to Mr. Langton William than the libretto is to Mr. Suter.

Mr. Arthur Sketchley is presenting "Don Cesar de Bazan" at the Lyceum, which closes for the season this (Saturday) evening with a performance of "Black-Eyed Susan."

A comedian from the United States has appeared at the Olympic in Mr. S. Coyne's comedy of "Everybody's Friend." His name is Joseph Jefferson, and he seems to be a favourite. His reputation as Major Wellington de Boots, which part he delineates in a far broader manner than Mr. Compton, is based on its original production. He is likely, we think, to prove a success.

The Alexandra Theatre opened on Saturday, according to announcement, with "The Lancashire Witches," which was enacted to a large and respectable audience with decided success. The performance, ended by Mr. Buckstone's "Wreck Ashore," written by Messrs. Dominick Murray and Charles H. Ross, which was received with much favour. The scenery of the piece, by Mr. Smith, is it, and incomprehensible fun, which Worrybarry affects in the end to understand. Mr. Belmore, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Compton, Miss Fanny Gwynne, preceded the performance. All the arrangements at this new theatre are of a most complete character, and taken altogether, notwithstanding the remoteness of the neighbourhood, to expect that it will prove a great success. New pieces are now in active preparation and will command a respectable audience anywhere. Mr. Glovanelli has only to set up to this conviction and he will achieve a triumph.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Professor Frankland, in his eighth lecture on organic chemistry, delivered on Tuesday last, described the preparation of formic acid, formerly obtained by distilling red ants, but now manufactured, as by Messrs. Duncan, Flockhart, and Co., wholesale druggists, Edinburgh. Its acid is a fuming and very corrosive liquid, and its presence in nettles is the cause of the stinging sensation experienced when they touch the skin, which exists in vinegar, is also highly corrosive, but less so than formic acid. The propionic acid, which is obtained from sugar, was also described and explained and illustrated by experiment. By fermentation, an infusion of malt produces butyric acid, which is contained in rancid butter, and is commercially obtained. The acetates are much employed in the arts. Professor Frankland referred to the acetate of alumina, employed in dyeing, and to that of lead, so useful in medicine, and to the acetate of iron, which is employed in calico-printing. Acetone, which is obtained by the distillation of the acetate of lime, constituted acetic acid. Stearic acid, which exists, combined with glycerine, in many natural fats, is employed in the manufacture of candles. The fats are generally fattened on a large scale for stearic candles and soaps, of which fine specimens were exhibited. Stearic acid is a white solid, resembling wax in its fusibility and other iron-plated ship. Benzoic acid (obtained from gum benzoin) was also described, as also the nitro-compounds, such as nitro-benzole and aromatic, feebly acid bodies, slightly soluble in water, and capable of sublimation in crystals. The lecture concluded with a notice of the organic acids of benzole, which are only of theoretical importance—sulphonic and cosphyle acids, which are also of theoretical importance, and the sulphonic acids of vegetable origin, which are of practical importance.

Mr. William Huggins, F.R.A.S., gave the Friday evening discourse, on the 19th inst., "On the Physical and Chemical Constitution of the Sun." He said that the sun was the source of the greater number of our knowledge of the subject, referring to Newton's production of the solar spectrum, and to Wollaston's and Fraunhofer's discovery of the dark lines. Fraunhofer had proved that the spectrum of the moon and planets was crossed by dark lines; and the still greater discovery (nearly fifty years afterwards), by Kirchhoff, that many of the dark lines seen in the spectra of the sun and other sources of light may be deciphered by these lines. Kirchhoff has proved that the corresponding dark lines, or bands of dark lines, indicates that the source of light is an opaque body, almost certainly of the solid or liquid state, surrounded by a gaseous body. Kirchhoff proved by space, indicates that the source of light is matter in the gaseous state; and that the corresponding bright lines coincide with the dark lines of the luminous gas, which led him to think that the constituents of both are entirely gaseous, probably hydrogen, nitrogen, or other elements not of a still more elementary character. By means of the electric light during the lecture, Mr. Huggins exhibited several beautiful spectra, and reflected the photographs of the flame-bell and other subjects on a screen. He also, by means of the magnetic-electric spark, produced (for the first time in a lecture-room) the spectrum of nitrogen gas. Sir Henry Holland, Bart., the president, was in the chair.

Mr Alexander S. Herschel gave the first of a course of three lectures on meteorology, illustrated by experiments, on Saturday last. He began with a description of the composition of atmospheres, in height, seventy-nine of nitrogen; and the quantity of the latter in a cubic foot of air (grains), when taken by Cavendish's Eudiometer, Mr. Herschel explained Dalton's law respecting the diffusion of gases and its application to our atmosphere. The experiments illustrated the diffusion of gases in aqueous vapour responded to it, the use of the hygrometers of Daniell and Jones in determining the dew-point, and to the principles of ventilation. He also considered the phenomena relating to the radiation from the surface of the earth, the dew, and the temperature of the subterranean strata, the time of equal temperature, and the formation of clouds and dew; and he concluded with a description of the various instruments employed in the meteorological observatory at Kew.

Professor Frankland, in his ninth lecture on organic chemistry, given on Tuesday last, the 23rd inst., resumed the consideration of the organic acids, and described the benzoic acid, which is a crystalline constituent in the juices of plants (quaken rhubarb, wood-sorrel, &c.), and established its artificial production from benzole, hydrocyanic acid, and (it) (medium) with caustic potash. He showed its property of taking away the elements of water, and thus producing benzonitrile, which is identical with phenylcyanide. Lastly, the lecturer referred to formet during the process of a large number of organic substances, and which exists in sour milk, sour kraut, and the sour juice we next drink many, benzole, namely, in hydrogen, lactic acid. Professor Frankland next considered the interesting group of nitrate-bodies, which are obtained from the acid fluid in apples, currants, &c. (oxalic), in grapes, &c. (tartaric), and in unripe (racemic). The lecture was concluded with an account of some of the large number of organic compounds which contain metals. In most of these the metal is linked to the organic part by oxygen (e.g., in ethylate of potassium of sodium); but in some this organo-metallic bodies' the metal is directly combined with the organic radicle. Professor Frankland described the preparation and properties of zinc-methyl, zinc-ethyl, and the latter of these substances was exhibited by the way in which several specimens manifested their high degree of spontaneous inflammability when permitted to come into contact with the atmosphere they ignited with violence, and the flame rose nearly to the roof of the theatre.

Professor Huxley, F.R.S., will give the evening discourse (on the methods and results of etiology) on Friday next, the 1st of June.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

Sir Hugh Rose, who played so conspicuous a part in the suppression of the sepoy mutiny, has arrived in this country from India. He assumes the command of the Dublin district.

Quartermaster Copeland has been appointed a Military Knight of Windsor, in the room of Lieutenant-Colonel Hall, deceased, by the nomination of the Upper or Royal Foundation.

The half-yearly inspection of the Royal Horse Artillery Depôt Brigade of Artillery, under the command of Colonel Turner, was concluded last week by Major-General Wolfe, Inspector-General.

Commander Vicars, R.N., of the Coastguards, a Trafalgar officer, died at Albert-street, Gloucester-gate, Regent's Park, on the 18th inst., aged seventy-six: and Captain Hamilton, R.N., Inspector of Coastguard, died at Ingmer, on the 16th inst., aged seventy-three.

There were launched from Her Majesty's ships of war during the years 1864-4 ninety-six sixe-vessels. Of these, ninety-one were constructed of iron, and five only of wood. Of the former, seventy-six were screw, after such trials, released.

A return was made to the cost of maintaining the Army was issued last Saturday to the house of Commons. In the financial year 1863-4 the expenditure was £16,000 less than the grants £15,984,000. The total deficiencies were £316,381, and the total savings £700,378.

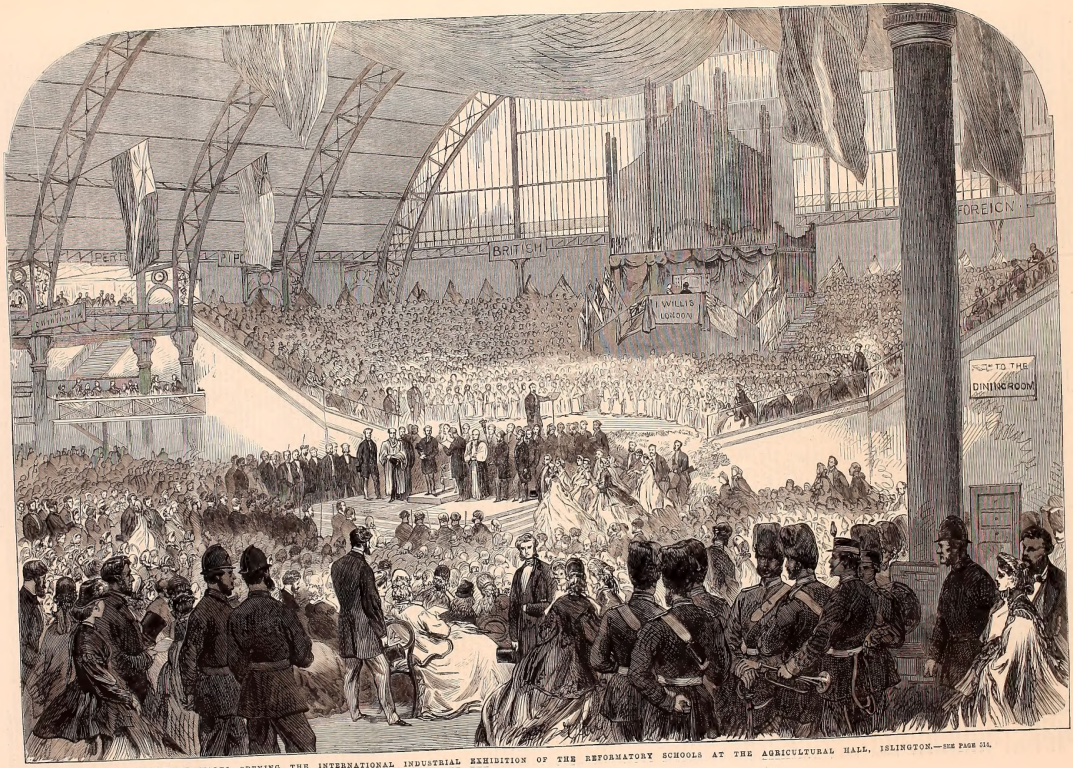
The annual inspection of the 5th (Queen's Royal) Lancers will take place at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, on Tuesday next, the 30th inst., and that of the 11th Hussars, at Hounslow, on Thursday, the 1st of June. The Prince of Wales will honour the officers of the 10th Royal Hussars with a visit to-morrow at their barracks, Hounslow, the 1st of June, at White Lodge.

An amateur performance took place at the Bijou Theatre, yesterday week, in aid of the funds of the Royal School for Daughters of Officers of the Army, which establishment was under the patronage of the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary of Cambridge. The entertainment proved of a varied kind.

There were some experiments in gunnery made at Shoeburyness on Thursday week with the new 40-pounder breech-loading gun was fired against a granite wall representing the strength of the casemates within which it is intended to be placed. The experiments were erecting at Portsmouth, Plymouth, &c. Three shots tore up the casemate, and a fourth struck the wall at the back, but burst it altogether.

A review of the militia regiments raised in the county of Middlesex took place on the 19th inst. before Prince Edward of Wales and the Duke of Cambridge. Sir Hugh Rose, who has just come from India, was also present. The Prince of Wales and Princess Mary of Cambridge also witnessed the review from an open carriage. The evolutions of the regiments were performed in a very creditable manner, and elicited praise from Sir Hugh's training. The ground was kept by a battalion of the Coldstream Guards, under the command of Colonel Lygon.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the subscribers to the Cambridge Asylum for Soldiers' Widows took place on Tuesday, at the United Service Institution, Whitehall—Lord Rokeby in the chair. The report of the committee stated that Major Bell had been appointed secretary, and that the number of the asylum had been increased during the year. The Duchess of Cambridge had also made a special donation of £100 to the asylum. The committee had also received a large fund towards the completion of the building, from which the following portion had been erected and furnished:—Two wards, with kitchen, scullery, and lavatory, an infirmary ward with nurses' room, and six additional rooms for pensioners. Four deaths had occurred during the year, and the committee had proposed to receive six additional pensioners, one to be elected by the representative of each deceased pensioner. The financial statement, by the hon. and general body of subscribers. The financial statement for the year ending March 31, 1865, showed that the total receipts amounted to the sum of £1767, amounted to £2303, and the expenditure to £2383. It further appeared that a sum of £1000 had been invested in the funds, and that £1000 had been paid to the building fund. The balance in the case sheet, after deducting £50 Canada Bonds, and £1118 consols, produce of £1000 clearing from the Duchess of Cambridge.



THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

There was a review of the 1st West Somerset (Queen's) in Regent's Park, last Saturday, which was unfortunately attended by an accident to Colonel Sir Peregrine Palmer Acland, Bart. In the course of the evolutions, the regiment fired a volley, which so startled the high-spirited horse ridden by Colonel Acland that it reared and plunged, and being unable to recover its balance, fell heavily, rolling over his rider, who was taken up stunned and severely injured. Sir Peregrine was conveyed to his residence, where, on receiving himself, he refused to leave the ground, ordered the manœuvres to be resumed, and rode at the head of the regiment a few minutes, amid cheers and encouragement from the carriage.—On Whit Monday the Queen's (Westminster) and the Victoria Rifles, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Hertfordshire, Earl Cowper having kindly invited the corps to visit his beautiful seat at Panshanger.

The spring handicap of the London Rifle Brigade Rifle Association took place at Wimbledon on Tuesday, in connection with the competition for the battalion champion badges and pewters, which took place on Saturday last. The following were the results:—Battalion challenge badges—1st battalion, Private Frere; 1st battalion, Colour-Sergeant Bowyer; 2nd battalion, Private Tebbutt; 2nd battalion, Private Hall; 3rd battalion, Private Hawkins; 3rd battalion, Private Bowyer. First, total highest score, Private Frere: second ditto, Private Way; third ditto, Private Hawkins; fourth ditto, Private Hall. Highest score, Sergeant Allister; second ditto, Colour-Sergeant Towers. 100 yards: Highest score, Corporal Gladly; second ditto, Private Tebbutt. 200 yards: Highest score, Corporal Richards; second ditto, Private Tebbutt; highest score by second battalion, Private Armstrong.

A review took place yesterday week at Hounslow-heath, Count Jarnac, a nephew of Napoleon, having invited upwards of 2000 of the Hon. Artillery Company (with two guns), to a field-day. Great efficiency was displayed in the manœuvres, and the most highly complimentary Colonel Jennings. The two guns worked well together.

Lieutenant-Colonel Fraser inspected last Saturday his official inspection for the present year of the volunteer force of Lancashire. The 3rd Manchester was the first to undergo the ordeal, and the members acquitted themselves with more than ordinary success. The corps numbered 616 members of all ranks, of whom 461 were present. To-day (Saturday) the 4th Manchester will be inspected, and the other local corps at an early date. Last Saturday the 3rd Manchester (third Lancashire) proceeded by special train to Moseley Park, Cheadle, to be inspected by the honorary Colonel, J. H. Double. There were more than 700 members of all ranks present. The corps went through a number of evolutions, which were performed satisfactorily. At the conclusion of the movements Colonel Double addressed the men and expressed his pleasure at so large a muster and at the manner in which they had gone through the various drills. The men then sat down to an excellent dinner provided by the Colonel.

THE PRINCE OF WALES OPENING THE INTERNATIONAL INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION OF THE REFORMATORY SCHOOLS AT THE AGRICULTURAL HALL, ISLINGTON.—SEE PAGE 513.

THE CONCERT-HALL IN THE NORTH TRANSEPT OF THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION BUILDING IN 1862.—SEE PAGE 514.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AT THE INTERNATIONAL AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION.

YESTERDAY week the Prince of Wales opened the International Industrial Reformatory Exhibition at the Islington Agricultural Hall. This exhibition was got up by the Reformatory and Refuge Union, 26, Suffolk-street, with a view to the encouragement of profitable labour in the reformatory schools and similar institutions for the educational nourishment of young criminals, not only in Great Britain, but all over the world. The result was a great variety of contributions from industrial reformatories in England, Scotland, Ireland, Canada, Malta, Belgium, Spain, Portugal, Australia, Holland, the Netherlands, Baden, Wurtemberg, Switzerland, Saxony, the United States, Prussia, Italy, Russia, Turkey, and other countries. Under the galleries and round a sort of trophy in the midst of the hall were displayed specimens in which were to be seen living specimens of the reformed and industrious boys at their work, engaged in various manufactures, which had them employment in these institutions. Rope mats, netting, brooms, baskets, carpet bags, envelopes, firewood, hassocks, fancy boxes, and needlework might be seen in process of manufacture. There were rag-sorters, rag-cutters, chair-menders, shoemakers, tailors, bookbinders, straw-workers, embroiderers, knitters, and ironers. These busy industries would, under the auspices of the exhibition, have been turning cranks ingeniously contrived to register their number of revolutions, and to do nothing else; or grinding the air by means of a treadmill. The hall was handsomely decorated for the occasion, the centre being occupied by the ingenious products of the Edith Grippler Home and other institutions. The space set for the foreign articles were on the right side of the hall, the English on the left. The various counties of England and Wales were represented by Manchester, Liverpool, Newcastle, Ipswich, Bristol, Bath, Aberdeen, Glasgow, Lanarkshire, Dundee, Dublin, and other towns sending their products to the best advantage.

The day was fine, and a large audience assembled. Shortly before four o'clock the orchestra of the hall was taken possession of by the children of the reformatory schools, and a band of 100 boys. A few minutes past four o'clock his Royal Highness arrived at the hall, and was received by the Lord Mayor, in his official costume, and the members of the committee. A procession was then formed, and his Royal Highness was led to the dais upon which his chair was placed. Before taking his seat on his arrival the children sang "God save the Queen," after which the Earl of Shaftesbury read an address to his Royal Highness pointing out the operations of the Reformatory Union throughout Europe, as tending to elevate the condition of the poorer classes, and claiming the sympathy of the Prince in favour of the movement.

The Prince of Wales replied as follows:—"Your Grace, your Excellency, Ladies and Gentlemen,—I have gladly taken a part in the proceedings of this day, and have complied with your request that I should attend as the patron of this society with the greatest pleasure. The benevolent purpose of this Exhibition cannot fail to be followed by the most beneficial results, and I congratulate every person who has the interest of the industrious poor at heart, and who desires to forward the objects which the Reformatory and Refuge Union has in view—namely, industrious and moral training. The committee do me justice in saying that I cordially sympathise with the welcome the society offers to those representatives of foreign countries who have responded to their generous and munificent offer of hospitality which have received. In doing so they have borne testimony, in common with ourselves, to the value of those industrial institutions in promoting the growth of those Christian and kind feelings towards each other which we ought to pray should animate the whole of the nations of the world."

A prayer was then offered up by the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, after which his Royal Highness declared the Exhibition open, and passed through it. He subsequently expressed himself highly pleased, and shortly after left the building.

A beautiful medal, by Mr. J. B. Wyon, displaying on the one side a portrait of the Prince of Wales, and on the other the letters and initials of the title, "Reformatory and Refuge Union," with the motto, "To seek and to save that which is lost," has been struck to commemorate this Exhibition. It was given, at a public meeting on Thursday evening, when this Exhibition was brought to a close, to the representatives of each of the reformatory institutions, British and foreign, which had contributed to the Exhibition.

BALL IN THE CONCERT-HALL OF THE DUBLIN EXHIBITION PALACE.

THE brilliant scene represented in one of our illustrations is the public ball which took place on Friday evening last in the great concert-hall of the Dublin Exhibition Palace, in aid of the funds of the Irish Academy of Music. Between two and three thousand ladies and gentlemen were present at this entertainment, which was one of the most splendid and attractive ever witnessed in Dublin. The Viceregal tenant of Ireland, with Lady Wodehouse, the Duke of Leinster, the Marquis and Marchioness of Drogheda, the Marquis and Marchioness of Kildare, the Marchioness of Ely, the Earl and Countess of Charemont, the Earl of Bandon, Viscount and Lady Powerscourt, Lord Southwell, and other members of the nobility were present. The Exhibition Palace was illuminated throughout, so that the spacious nave afforded a delightful promenade to the numerous guests. The concert-hall was an admirable orchestra of forty musicians, under Mr. Harry Hardy, and at one end of the nave was the band of the Royal Artillery, who played an admirable selection of music at intervals. The pipers of the regiment also strolled about the transept playing their reels and marches, and attracted much attention. The only regret that could be felt by the friends of the company was that the Prince of Wales had not stayed one day longer in Dublin, so that his Royal Highness might have been present on this occasion.

THE FARM.

WILLIS'S Rooms have been put to many and multifarious uses. Pictures, wines, and even a balloon have all made their appearance. But if "the intelligent foreigner," if he does not happen to be a shorthorn man, will be much puzzled when he finds that the walls of Willis's Rooms will ere there a number of Grand Duchesses and Grand Dukes. Provincial mayors become puzzled about the Peerage, and confound him with the whilom Sir Stratford Canning, by falling back upon their original idea of our wife-selling propensities, conclude that the Grand Duke, attracted by a mere desire to see how we get rid of their spouses on the Continent, have come over, in the height of the fashionable season, to buy a wife for themselves in the English laws and customs. Happily, no foreign States will be bereft of their "ladies" made or bought. Not a wife, not a Dowpost herd will be simply dispersed. The executors reserve to themselves the right of selling the lot, or any part of the lot, en bloc. With the exception of Imperial Oxford (18,084), the entire herd is descended from the two cows and heifer Duchess 35th, of Oxford-on-Isis bridge, Kent) shorthorns are also to be sold by Mr. Stuffard, on July 15, and they are cows and heifers which are to be retained. This is a fair, straightforward announcement. Mr. Styan's sale is to be more one; and Mr. Syme of Redkirk did pretty well. We understand that a party of Frenchmen are in England looking at cattle, and roan bulls between ten and twenty months old.

Mr. Charlton has purchased, through Mr. Dodds, from the Carperby herd, the bull-calf Captain Speke, by Royal Alfred (sire of Baron Oxenden), from a Lord of the Vale cow. Mr. Charlton has also the above gentleman refused £100 from a Yorkshire baronet for the Attleborough-bred bull Next of Kin, which was purchased at Kirklevington.

The most remarkable sale took place a week or two ago at Meikle Eadovie in the Vale of Alford. The bone of contention was a shorthorn two-year-old steer, which took a first prize at the Royal Northern and the Vale of Alford Shows last year. It was put in at £50, and from that point the biddings went on between Mr. M'Combie, the great polled feeder, and Mr. Martin of Aberdeen, the equally celebrated carcase butcher and purveyor to her Majesty during her Balmoral sojourn. At £69 "Tillyfour" was in, but he was "covered" immediately, and Mr. Martin will no doubt be "here" with his purchase among the prizes both, at Bingley Hall and Islington. A yearling steer from the same cow was sold to Sir A. G. Cumming for £35. The two-year-old ex was by Master Gunner, a descendant of the Hillhead stock, which did so much good in the northern counties, and five cows and heifers by him averaged £71 15s.

Thirteen of Mr. Milward's ponies come to the hammer, at Tattersalls', on Monday next. None of them are above fourteen two, and only four under fourteen. There are four bays, three browns, two chestnuts, three roans, and a dun. Drama was ridden by Mr. Milward during the Newcastle show; Pattern is said to be very perfect, but rather small; and the bay filly Lucy is the dark chestnut Copper Plate are, perhaps, about the pick of the basket.

The general meeting of the Royal Agricultural Society was held on Monday, when Lord Tredegar was elected president for 1863, and Mr. Jacob Wilson, of Woodhorn Manor, Morpeth, a new member of council. The receipts for the year were £23,000, and the debt £7,000, and the funded capital £21,697 6s. in the New Three per Cents, besides £1000 on deposit at the bankers', and £1,000 in the hands of current cash balance. There has been a larger number of members on the books, but at the beginning of the year there were 1,000 in arrear, and annually cleared of dead members and defaulters. The society, for the first time for ten years, has had a surplus of £1,000. Mr. Pain, from the late Mr. Berish Barfield, M.P., Mr. Morton's resolution, to the effect that the committee should appoint a select report, and render assistance to professional agricultural educators, was negatived by 16 to 12. An unhappy fiasco man asked whether there was a chance of the Royal Show visiting Bury St. Edmunds being reconsidered, and, of course, got no comfort from the committee.

It has been decided by the Court of Exchequer that a person is not justified in driving off cattle trespassing on his land, when they are land adjoining and close to the land of another, with intent to drive said trespass cattle on the premises of the owner of such land. In an action for damage by reason of grouse and other game having been so frightened away from a place to the other land, the plaintiff, in this instance, "fraudulently and wrongfully, and with intent to hire and entice the said grouse away from the plaintiff's land on his own land, cut and other feeding substances," was held laid, and the defence to the said grouse. Baron Martin considered that "Carrington v. Taylor," which decided that an action on the case will lie for charging game near a decoy pound, with design to damage the owner of the decoy, was not to be extended to the present case. Baron Pollock, C. B., "You cannot commit some other wrong of a totally different character by way of preventing another from committing one of the wrong that has been done to you."

THE Queen is the owner of a flock of the strong legislative exposition of what is "open land" contained in 7 and 8 Vic., c. 29, were also declared, in 1844, by Mr. Harvey, M.P., to consist of a bare-set from one hedge nearly to the other, across a road which had been formed by the removal of grass, with no sign of traffic on such side of it, were not on "open land." (Harvey's Parliamentary and Night Poaching Act (9 Geo. IV., c. 69).

A cattle show is to be held at Ayr in Algeria, at which Mr. Sala "assisted" as chronicler, and became quite agricultural, in spite of himself. Algerian cattle are described as "small, but very neat-set in for prizes. A farmer from Joinville received a most inscrutable letter for a cow and calf. The letter was addressed to the owner of the calf on the occasion." The prize-list was pretty catholic in its scope, as it extended to the best donkey. Mr. Hubert brought his sample in fifteen carts, and said he had more at home; but the jury declined the offer. Mr. Sala says, "I am afraid to repeat that he might contemplate what he did being "with legitimate pride." He is a man of seventeen, who led a yoke of oxen while he father guided them in a ploughing-match, and who is now a proprietor of land, and a member de cap-d'ail, asks us, with respect to Mr. Fisher's pig-lecture, what is "black dun"? We find, on inquiry, that it is "only another name for the dust which blows off the oats when they are shelling them."

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

A NEW Planet, the eighty-third of the series, was discovered on the morning of the 19th inst. by Mr. R. Luther, of Bilk, near Düsseldorf, to whom we are indebted already for our knowledge of seven of these bodies. It is very faint (about the 11th magnitude), and has a slow motion in right ascension, and that it has received the name of Beatrice, in honour of Dante.

Throughout June Mercury (in Aries, Taurus, and Gemini) and Venus (in Aries and Taurus) are visible to the naked eye; and Venus will be at her greatest brilliancy on the 13th. On the 15th, at 3h. 30m. p.m., she will be at her greatest elongation, 46° 30' east of the sun. Jupiter, Saturn, and Saturn (in Virgo) will pass the meridian at 7h. 55m. p.m. On the 21st the sun will enter the sign of Cancer, at 10h. 30m. p.m., when the summer will be—First Quarter, June 1, 6h. 32m. a.m.; Full Moon, June 9, 9h. 41m. p.m.; Last Quarter, June 16, 6h. 32m. p.m.; New Moon, June 23, 10h. 37m. a.m. The constellations Draco, Hercules, and Ophiuchus will be on the meridian on Midsummer-day at midnight.

M. Bertsch has presented to the Academy of Sciences at Paris a memoir on the use of the electric telegraph in astronomical observations. He proposes to employ the electric telegraph for the purpose of registering points, intended for the preservation of electric telegraph wires and apparatus during electric storms. The apparatus appears to be similar to Morse's Bandeau, vol. iv., No. 18, is automatic, and has also for its object the prevention of the accidents sometimes caused by the interruption of the wires every trace of the tension of static electricity. Numerous wires are thrown in the direction of the meridian. At the moment when a star, in its electric discharge, the instrument itself puts the line in connection with the wire which corresponds to the meridian. The "Bandeau" would be employed to obtain traces more well fixed, and expresses his conviction that their employment will remove the difficulties which have hitherto attended the use of the electric telegraph.

Mr. John Randall, F.G.S., has given in the Geological Magazine for May some particulars respecting the burning well at Brosley, Shropshire, which has been on fire for upwards of 100 years, but it has ceased to exist for nearly a century. "It was fed by a spring; and petroleum was found floating on the surface of the water. The gas was ignited by the water, and was consumed in a small spring of petroleum, on a much larger scale than the Baku spring. The well was originally a hundred feet deep, but it has been gradually filled up from time to time to the present. Many hogsheads from one of these were exported some years ago under the name of "British Naphtha." The well was originally kept by driving a level through one of the sandstone rocks of the coal measures; but there are now three shafts sunk to the level, and the well is filled up to the top to the cave with a spring in Tar-Batch Dingle, about a mile and a half lower down the valley. The petroleum, however, is not the only product given out in smaller, we apprehend, than when it first gave its name to the dingle." Mr. Randall says that "the gas is now used for lighting the house of the nearest person, and has been probably proved out from the accumulated masses of bituminous matter which have been distilled by the heat of the burning well. The gas is cold naturally find its way out often tapped by shafts, or levels, or water-courses."

At a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences, a note by Chevreul was read, with regard to the species of animals, and especially in Savoy, especially attacking persons of sedentary habits in good circumstances, and who are in the habit of taking much exercise in the open air. Persons who live in close rooms, are much used in the province, Dr. Payne, having recommended it. Dr. Payne, in a communication to the Epidemiological Society, has given an account of the progress of the popular error of attributing the insalubrity of cider stores to a pretended poisonous emanation from the fruit. He found that in 1861 and 1862 the carbon in the cast iron, burning on the reddened surface of the stove, was sufficient, and to give out a considerable dull time appeared to fail in very small quantity. The real cause of the insalubrity of warming by means of close stoves is the consumption of the oxygen of the air by combustion. This come into contact with the hot surface of the stoves, and are imperfectly consumed, and thus give rise to carbonic oxide, which is a powerful and insidious poison. The symptoms are the same as those produced by charcoal fumes. Good ventilation removes the danger.

Further particulars respecting the new comet observed in Australia by Mr. Tebbutt, and which was announced in the Times and in the latest number of the Monthly Notices. Mr. J. Tebbutt, jun., at Windsor, New South Wales, has observed a comet on Jan. 18. The comet was then in R.A. 14h. 44m. 54s., with faintly visible before the moon rose, its tail being 2 deg. or 3 deg. long; and on the 19th it was in R.A. 15h. 4m. 54s., and N.P.D. 87° 17'. Mr. Tebbutt, at Melbourne, observed the comet on Jan. 18. The comet was very bright, and the tail long, perfectly straight, and filamentous. On the 19th the nucleus was much fainter; the tail measured 1½ deg., and was slightly curved with convexity towards the South Pole. Mr. Abbott, at Hobart Town, on Jan. 17, perceived the comet as a distinct object low down, occasionally disappearing among cumuli clouds, and situated in Capricornus, close on the border of Piscis Australis. On Jan. 28 the night was most favourable: the sky was clear and brilliant with stars, and the penetrating light of the comet showed itself in the twilight a few minutes after their first appearance. Its splendour gradually diminished. On Feb. 9-12 it was seen only with the telescope. On the 14th it had much decreased in size; the nucleus had lost the planetary appearance, and the tail was not more than ¼ deg. in length.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

MR. SIDNEY TAFFREITH, to whom Mr. Dickens did me the honour of introducing me (with a few others) most approved of his conduct and had a secret society, bound by a dreadful oath, the sin of which was to overthrow the tyrant monarchy, rescue the gallant apprentices, slay the butchers, massacre the watchmen, seize the Compter, and bring the Lord Chancellor (the great enemy of all City privileges), and, after a fair trial, behead the Lord Mayor. It is true that the defendant author did not permit Mr. Tapperth to reveal all this; indeed, Mr. Sim, who used to "love" all suspected persons, would have been torn, like Ravaillac, with horses, or grilled on a bed of red-hot steel, like Damiens, rather than have revealed a word; but we think such dreadful note of preparation lay in his frown, that such was his intention. Mr. Sim, who regarded Tapperth's story much his society resembles that of our Fenian brethren, has, as the Jeffreys-like block of to crush the Kanucks and the duty Britishers, and, instead of "butchers from the grave, a sop of a Cerberus, against aristocracy." I have many a time given a pet bit of quotation from pretty little prose book, the "Spirit of the Nation." That book will become historic; it is to be the text-book of the Irish Revolution. Mr. Sim, however, is not now "riding the whirlwind," Mr. Garan Duffy, D. F. M'Carthy, Charles Gavan Duffy, and the Tyrtæi of the Nation. The "Master of the North," of which the New York Herald quotes one line, will be sung by millions of voters:

Glory to God, my eyes have seen the ransomed fields of Down!
My ears have drunk the joyful news, "about Pardun has his own!"

Mr. Sim's new song is not quite so hard, from Nicey's vaguish tenors.

But I love very well the Saxon swine, this land is ours, in short!

Seriously speaking, that was the sentiment not wholly to be laughed at which the Times gave on Tuesday from the New York Herald. A child's squib may set a house on fire, and it is supposed to have a bowling place, loaded only with gunpowder, peeping in your eye.

In Mexico the Emperor and the thunderstorm seem to have fallen. The officers of Maximilian refuse his Majesty's commission, and Juarez has no lack of money men who are going out as emigrants. With grim humour the Mexican correspondent of the Times will be furnished with arms to protect themselves against robbers. A few years ago, when Juarez was in power, the most approved of modern cartridges will be added; and a piece of bunting, commonly known as "the gridiron," with its red and white stripes, will be displayed away birds from the unpringing crops of these peaceable incolæ. It is a mad world, my masters. The Emperor has his troubles now, and the crop is not dead yet.

Mr. Disraeli has given us his manifesto, and there is much bolding on of Conservative armour and tightening of girths by the knights who are preparing for the tourney. In the midland counties the Conservatives stand well, and Mr. Disraeli may sounded a less uncertain note of preparation, would probably have a fair chance of success. But we think Lord Troy hardly right in this direction. "The leaders of the Conservative party, although they will never retreat from the principles and policy of their acts, are not obtrusive candidates for office. Place without power may gratify the vain but can never satisfy a noble ambition." Lord Derby is saying. What is power if not power without place? Why does not the Conservative party, like Mr. Gregory's constituents, "run" a good open fight for office? Waiting on chance and opportunity will never do. Was Mr. Disraeli's want avowed as the cheers which greeted Lord Palmerston when he entered the house last week? Was it one of the gods, and sweep to his seat, his arm in a sling, received acclamations which startled the assembled House? Was it Mr. Gregory's looking towards the corner, thought his own eloquence had called down the plaudits? Had the Conservative party, by the help of these acts, yet no obtrusive candidakable policy with regard to America they might have been in office now, and Manchester would have been saved the suffering. Who knows, now the Fenians planning the trouble which will surely come. Let us wish Lord Troy well in his candidature, but, if you do intend to have it some other form than a protesting martyr, make a bold fight of it, and give us the benefit of your experience.

Those irrepressible Bonapartes are at it again. Fresh from the tomb of Mme. Mère, the water vegans, Prince Napoleon—that Jimmy Brutus of the century—has been saying things. Rumour declares that which is nature—has made a speech eulogising the first Emperor for his personal attachment to Republican principles. Napoleon Bonaparte, indeed, loved Republicanism as much as a nurse loves the baby whom she overlays and smothers. Everything Imperial is doing or is being converted into the matryred saint of St. Helena. He loved Republicanism as much as Napoleon III. loves Constitutionalism. He hated the aristocrats of the South. It is indeed easy to hate those who are down. Napoleon I. was a Republican as much as Napoleon III. purported tribunal, the fate of some of these aristocrats—such as Madame Lee and Mrs. Mason—is known at Washington. The best French papers are earnestly in favour of the conquered South, and we trended last anyone should first raise the cry of "Vive Vienna!" One might make Semmonds' reply, and appeal to the reason of the people to be answered. A great man would try and lead the many, even though he failed. But Prince Napoleon, poor man, is bad taste, for Bonaparte acted in worse taste in excluding it; and now, all society in Paris is laughing at the prince's pleasantry about the coolness of Compiègne, the anger of the Court, and the rashness of that headstrong youth, Prince Plon. Yes, Napoleon is headstrong, and very partly turned.

A diversion is being made in critical literature, partly by the force of Mr. Fitzgerald's pleasantry on their critics' side, and partly by the smart castigation which sundry critics have laid on the authors. As the virtuous peasant in a low theatre remarks, "the wurrmun—boy, wurrm—will turn and bite the hand that feed it" when kicked—a useless proceeding for the most part, and, as the author of "Zolliers," who objects to all sorts of criticism on the score of its severity, it is really of no use objecting to deductions, however uncomplimentary, which are based upon premises, where matters of fact are stated the case is different. The Border has lately distinguished itself by becoming wisely angry with the author of a book of the day for his impudency which, if acid, is not unpleasant to the outsider. It has been pointed out in the Border that in quotation the Zolliers confuses two lady-novelists, especially one "who swears worse than our army did in Flanders;" and the author of "Zolliers" has replied in a letter as nose at a successful literary pundit. The joy of authors at this kind of thing resembles that of a street boy who sees a beadle knocked down in a gentleman's pocket. Not even the stage is free. Fancy, if you can, imaginative friend who skims this column in a hansom cab, that Mr. Planché says, of an unfortunate performer on being told that his Hamlet was "all green and gurgle. What has the world come to? Why, we have had worse Hamlets in great yet if we go on in this way.

Mr. Dickens has lately hailed Mr. Dickens's excellent autobiographical speech in aid of the Newspaper Press Fund. No man living is better stereotypeswere generally, and no man could be more kind in a worthy cause and so pathetic. The story of his life, as told at the Freemasons' Hall, should be taken together with the autobiographical speech of "David Copperfield," as the most charming story, and it will give the "general reader" some little notion of the hard work people call life by a misnomer. Cupidity.

Bishop Colenso has republished his speech delivered at the Anthropological Society on the Hottentot Venus, Sarah Baartman. The bishop his Lordship sometimes seems to hold a brief against the faith, and this speech is a very able one. Its most telling speech is well worth consideration. Millais the artist has appeared as an heraldic draughtsman and sticher in a pedigree which connects his ancestors. Mr. Millais has done this privately-printed and most gorgeous volume." The Genealogy of the Millais Family, Ancestors of the Millais Family, the "Armorial of Jersey," &c. Bertrand Payne, who is also a Jersey man. In fact, genius seems to abound in that very independent little island; and I only hope Sir Bernard Burke will not die with envy when he sees this private and particular peerage, so beautiful in blue and gold, in shield, charge, helmet, and lambrequin. The Chinese—satirical dogs—who attend their letters exactly the reverse way to ours, with the name of the town first and Chang-Hang-Smith last, which is after all, the right way—do also make a brave man or a genius (and they put the literary class first, the dry dogs!) ennoble his ancestors. Mr. Millais has done this; and therefore I gladly mention this volume, especially as very few people will see it, and it is not to be bought—as Mrs. Gamp has it, with a rich pleasaunce—for money.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE COUNTESS OF ZETLAND.

The Right Hon. Sophia Jane, Countess of Zetland, who died, on the 21st inst. at the family mansion, 19, Arlington-street, in her sixty-second year, was the youngest daughter of Sir Hedworth Williamson, sixth Baronet, of Markham, Notts, by his wife, Maria, daughter of Sir James Hamilton, Knt., of the county of Monaghan, Ireland, and was aunt of Sir Hedworth Williamson, the eighth and present Baronet. Her Ladyship was married, Sept. 6, 1823, to Sir Thomas Dundas, K.T., second and present Earl of Zetland. Her Ladyship leaves no issue.

VISCOUNT MAYNARD.

The Right Hon. Sir Henry Maynard, third Viscount Maynard, of Easton Lodge, and Baron Maynard, of Much Easton, both in the county of Essex, in the Peerage of Great Britain, and a Baronet, was the only son of the Rev. Henry Maynard, Rector of Radwinter, and Vicar of Thaxted, Essex, by his wife, Susan, daughter of the Rev. Mr. Barnard, of Caxton, Cambridgeshire; and was nephew of Charles, second Viscount Maynard. He was born March 13, 1786, and succeeded to the family honours on the death of his uncle, Charles, the second Viscount, March 10, 1824. He was Lord Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of Essex, and also Vice-Admiral of the coast of that county. His Lordship, who rarely interfered in politics, generally gave his support to the Conservative party. He married, December 28, 1810, Mary, only daughter of Reginald Rabbett, Esq., of Bramfield Hall, Suffolk, by whom (who died Oct. 22, 1857) he had issue (with four daughters, of whom the third, the Hon. Catherine Harriet Maynard, died last February, and the three others survive him—namely, the Hon. Charlotte, married to the Hon. Adolphus Frederick Charles Molyneux Capel, brother of the Earl of Essex; the Hon. Emma, married to I. Robert Ives, Esq., of Bentworth Hall, Hants; and the Hon. Julia Maynard) an only son, the Hon. Charles Henry Maynard, formerly of the Royal Horse Guards, who died on the 2nd of January last, having been twice married—first, in 1840, to Lady Frances Juliet Murray (who died without issue, 1858), the younger daughter of James, Lord Glenlyon, and sister of George Augustus Frederick John, the sixth and late lamented Duke of Athole; and, secondly, in 1860, to Blanche Adeliza, second daughter of Henry Fitzroy, Esq., of Salcey Lawn, Northamptonshire, and grand niece of George Henry, fourth Duke of Grafton, by whom he left issue two infant daughters, Frances Evelyn and Blanche. Henry Viscount Maynard died on the 19th inst., at his seat, Easton Lodge, Essex, after an illness of several weeks' duration. With the venerable Viscount the male line of the Maynards and all the family honours become extinct—events to be regretted, for the Maynards were as old, as honourable, and as constitutional a house as any in the realm. They came from Normandy with the Conqueror, their name appearing on the Roll of Battle Abbey, and we find them constantly in English history standing boldly forward to maintain the just privileges of the Crown and the liberties of the people. Sir Henry Maynard, Knt., the first who settled in Essex, was secretary to Lord Treasurer Burleigh. His second son, Charles, was Auditor of the Exchequer tempore Charles II., and was the immediate ancestor of the Peer just dead. Sir William Maynard, the eldest brother of Mr. Auditor Charles Maynard, was knighted in 1608, and made a Baronet in 1611, and Lord Maynard in the Peerage of Ireland in 1620, by James I., and Lord Maynard in that of England in 1628, by Charles I. His son William, in 1639, became second Lord Maynard, and was Comptroller of the Household to Charles II. and James II. The second Lord's last grandson, Charles, sixth Lord Maynard, was created Baron and Viscount Maynard in October, 1766, with remainder to the male heir of the Auditor Charles, younger brother of the first Peer. These new limitations have, however, availed but little; for the Viscount died, unmarried, in 1775, and was succeeded by his kinsman Sir Charles Maynard, the second Viscount, who, dying childless, was succeeded by his nephew Henry, the Peer who has just passed away, no son of his succeeding. One branch of this family of Maynard was that of Sir John Maynard of Gunnersbury, Middlesex, King's Ancient Serjeant, a celebrated constitutional lawyer, who was Commissioner of the Great Seal of England at the Revolution. His descendants are also extinct in the male line.

SIR THOMAS STAPLES, BART.

Sir Thomas Staples, Q.C., LL.D., seventh Baronet, of Dunmore, Queen's County, who died on the 14th inst., at his town house, 11, Merrion-square East, Dublin, was the eldest son of the Right Hon. John Staples, P.C., M.P. for Antrim, by his second wife, Henrietta, daughter of Richard, third Viscount Molesworth, and was great-grandson of Sir Robert Staples, the second Baronet. He was born July 31, 1775, and was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he obtained several honours. He was called to the Irish Bar in Hilary Term sixty-five years ago, and went with distinguished success the North-East Circuit. Sir Thomas Staples was, perhaps, the ultimate link which connected the present generation with the past—the Ireland of to-day with the Ireland of anti-Union times. Sir Thomas was the last surviving member of the Irish Parliament, in which assembly he represented first the borough of Coleraine, and subsequently Knocktopher, in the county of Kilkenny. He was one of those who voted against the Union. He was an able lawyer, an accomplished scholar, and a courteous gentleman, and was universally esteemed. He was what is professionally termed the "father" of the Irish Bar, and he was, in fact, regarded with filial reverence by all the members of his learned calling. He was a Queen's Counsel and Queen's Advocate in Ireland. Sir Thomas succeeded as seventh Baronet on the demise of his kinsman, Sir Robert Staples. He married, Oct. 27, 1813, Catherine, daughter of the Rev. John Hawkins, eldest son of the Right Rev. Dr. Hawkins, Bishop of Raphoe, but leaves no issue. He is succeeded in the baronetcy by his nephew, his next brother's, the late Rev. John Molesworth (by his wife, Annie, daughter of the Most Rev. Dr. Alexander, Bishop of Meath), eldest surviving son, now Sir Nathaniel Alexander Staples, the eighth Baronet, late Captain in the Bengal Artillery, who was born in 1817, and married Elizabeth Lindsay, only daughter of Captain James Head, and niece of Sir F. B. Head, Bart., and has a family of sons and daughters. Sir Nathaniel's elder brother, Captain John Staples, 7th Bengal Light Cavalry, was killed by mutineers near Cawnpore, in 1857. This family of Staples is of English origin, Sir Thomas Staples, the first Irish Baronet, being the fifth son of Alexander Staples, Esq., of Yate Court, in the county of Gloucester.

THE HON. S. E. SPRING RICE.

The Hon. Stephen Edmund Spring Rice, D.L., son and heir-apparent of that worthy and distinguished nobleman, Thomas, Lord Monteagle, P.C., by his wife, Lady Theodosia, second daughter of Edward Henry, first Earl of Limerick, died on the 9th inst., on board the steam-vessel Tripoli, on his way from the Mediterranean. The hon. and lamented gentleman was in his fifty-first year. He had been a Commissioner and Deputy-Chairman of the Board of Customs. He married, March 11, 1839, Ellen Mary, eldest daughter of William Frere, serjeant-at-law, Master of Downing College, Cambridge, and leaves by her, who survives him, two sons and eight daughters. Of the latter two are married—viz., Mary Spring, wife of Edward O'Brien, Esq., of Cahirmoyle, nephew of Lord Inchiquin; and Aileen Spring, wife of John Raynor Arthur, Esq., Bombay C.S., sixth son of the Right Hon. Sir George Arthur Bart. The deceased gentleman's elder son, Thomas, now in his sixteenth year, becomes heir-apparent of his venerable grandfather, Lord Monteagle.

R. TREVELYAN, ESQ.

Raleigh Trevelyan, Esq., of Netherwitton, Northumberland, whose death has just occurred, was a scion of the family of Trevelyan, Baronets, of Nettlecombe, in the county of Somerset; he was second son of the late Walter Trevelyan, Esq., by his wife, Margaret, elder daughter and coheiress of James Thornton, Esq., of Netherwitton, and was grandson of Sir George Trevelyan, the third Baronet. He was born in 1781, and succeeded his brother, Walter Blackett Trevelyan, Esq., at Netherwitton, in 1818. He, in 1819, married Elizabeth, second daughter of Robert Grey, Esq., of Shorestone Hall, Northumberland, the last representative of a very old Northumberland family; and by her (who survives him) leaves issue. Mr. Trevelyan was educated at Eton, and St. John's College, Cambridge; was B.A. in 1804, M.A. in 1807, and was called to the Bar, at Lincoln's Inn, 1810. He was author of "Essays and Poems," "Parliamentary and Legal Questions," and "Prolusiones Græce et Latine Scriptæ," and was widely known as a polished classical scholar. Mr. Trevelyan's ancestor became possessed of the Netherwitton property by marrying a coheiress of James Thornton, Esq., a descendant of the famous Sir Roger de Thornton, whose memory is cherished in Newcastle for his many acts of public beneficence. Mr. Trevelyan's grandson, Thornton Roger, born in 1843, succeeds to the property.

T. JOHNSON, ESQ.

Thomas Johnson, Esq., a talented architect, of Lichfield, whose death has just occurred, was for very many years a magistrate of that city, and filled the office there of Mayor in 1847. He married a daughter of the late James Trubshaw, Esq., of Haywood. Amongst the many buildings designed by Mr. Johnson may be named Heath House, near Tean; Mere Hall, Cheshire; and the churches of Stoke, Longton, Smethwick, Oldbury, Great Bridge, St. Luke's (Bilston), Wyrley, and other ecclesiastical edifices.

THE DUKE D'HARCOURT.—A correspondent makes the following correction with regard to last week's notice of this French Duke:—"It was the representative of the elder branch of the house of Harcourt, Charles Amédée, Marquis d'Harcourt, cousin, and not brother, of the late Duke, who came to England in 1789, and was naturalised as an English subject. His eldest son, William Bernard, became possessor of St. Leonards, in Berks, the estate of the late Earl Harcourt, and died in 1847, leaving three daughters only—Marie, married to William Deedes, Esq., of Sandling Park, Kent; Elizabeth, and Alice. His second son, the present Marquis d'Harcourt, residing in France, is, therefore, now the head of the elder branch of the family of Harcourt, of which the younger branch possesses the title of Duke."

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

W. HUDDERSFIELD.—Accounts of chess meetings and matches sent to us at first hand will always meet with prompt attention; but accounts which have been previously published in half a dozen other papers, are apt to be stale news with the readers of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

 Our customary Notices to Chess Correspondents are deferred from want of space.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1108.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. R to K 5th	R takes B, or (a)
2. Q takes Kt P (ch)	K takes R
(If K takes P, then follow Q takes B, and mate next move.)
3. P to K 8th becoming a Kt	Any move
4. P to Q 4th, or Q to K 4th. Mate.

(a) 1.	P to B 8th, Queens, or (b)
2. R to K sq	R takes B
(If Q to K B 4th, then Q takes Q, &c.)
3. Q to K 5th (ch)	K takes P
4. Q takes Q B P. Mate.

(b) 1.	B to Q 4th
(If 1. R to Q B 2nd, White answers with 2. Q to K Kt 5th, &c.)
2. R to K 2nd	B to K 5th
3. Q to Q B 5th (ch)	K takes P (ch)
4. Q to K 3rd. Mate.

PROBLEM No. 1109.

Mr. SCHOUMOFF, the well-known Russian chess-master, has just composed two problems and presented them to the Grand Duke Konstantine, one of the finest amateur players of the day. There is a peculiarity in these compositions which, if it adds nothing to their difficulty or beauty, must very much have impeded their construction—it is that the Pieces in one are arranged to represent the initial letter (K) of his Highness's name; and in the other the initial (A) of the name of the Grand Duchess, Alexandra. We publish, by permission, the first of these ingenuities this week, and shall present its companion in our next Number.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

CHESS IN LONDON.

A Lively Affair between the Rev. W. WAYTE, one of our most accomplished players, and Mr. GOSSIP.—(Two Knights' Defence.)

WHITE (Mr. W.)	BLACK (Mr. G.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	Kt to K B 3rd
4. Kt to K Kt 5th	P to Q 4th
5. P takes P	Kt to Q R 4th
6. P to Q 3rd	P to K R 3rd
7. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K 5th
8. Q to K 2nd	Kt takes B
9. P takes Kt	B to K 2nd
10. K Kt to Q 2nd	Castles
11. Castles	B to K Kt 5th
12. Q to K 3rd	B to Q 3rd
13. P to K R 3rd	B to K B 4th
14. Kt to Q B 3rd	Q to K 2nd
15. Kt to Q Kt 3rd	Kt to K R 4th
16. P to K Kt 4th
(This advance exposes White to great peril. He had better have retired his Q to K 2nd, or have played the Pawn on to Q B 5th.)
16.	Kt to K B 5th
17. P takes B	Q to K R 5th
18. Q takes K P	Q R to K sq
19. Q to K B 3rd	Kt tks K R P (ch)
20. K to Kt 2nd	Kt to K Kt 4th
21. B takes Kt	Q mates.

CHESS IN GERMANY.

A brilliant Partie between Mr. MAYET and Mr. NEUMANN.

(K's Bishop's Gambit.)

BLACK (Mr. M.)	WHITE (Mr. N.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P to K B 4th	P takes P
3. B to Q B 4th	P to K B 4th
(In old times this was a popular line of defence in the King's Bishop's Gambit, but of late years, although commended by Jaenisch and Der Laza, it has never been a permanent favourite anywhere.)
4. P to Q 3rd
(Playing 4. Q to K 2nd seems preferable.)
4.	Q to K R 5th (ch)
5. K to B sq	P takes K P
6. P takes P	B to Q B 4th
7. Q to K B 3rd	Kt to K R 3rd
8. B takes K B P	R to K B sq
9. P to K Kt 3rd	Q to K Kt 5th
10. K to Kt 2nd	P to K Kt 4th
11. Q takes Q	Kt takes Q
12. B takes K Kt P	R to K B 7th (ch)
13. K to R 3rd	P to Q 4th
14. B takes Q P	Kt to K 6 (dis. ch)
15. K to R 4th	Kt to Q 2nd
16. P to Q Kt 4th	Kt to K Kt 7 (ch)
17. K to R 5th	B to K B sq
18. Kt to K R 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd (ch)
19. B takes Kt	R takes B
20. Kt to K B 4th	Kt takes Kt (ch)
21. P takes Kt	R to K R 3rd (ch)
22. K to Kt 5th	R to Kt 3rd (ch)
23. K to R 5th	B to K Kt 5 (ch)
24. K to R 4th	B to K B 6th
25. R to K Kt sq	R takes R

and White won the game.

MATCH AT CHESS BETWEEN HUDDERSFIELD AND BRADFORD.

The terms of this contest, which appears to have excited considerable attention among the chessplayers of Yorkshire, were that ten players from each of the towns should enter the arena, and that each antagonistic couple should play a rubber of three games. After a spirited struggle of three days' duration, the men of Huddersfield proved victorious, having won nineteen games to their opponents' eleven. The following is the score:—

HUDDERSFIELD.		BRADFORD.
Mr. John Watkinson	3	Mr. G. Tegeler	0
Mr. G. Brook, jun.	1	Mr. M. E. Werner	2
Dr. Scott	3	Mr. W. Fieldsend	0
Mr. D. Marsden	1	Mr. Petty	2
Mr. W. J. Miller	3	Mr. Knowles	0
Mr. J. Eastwood	1	Mr. Ammelburg	2
Mr. A. Campbell	2	Mr. Mensing	1
Mr. J. H. Finlinson	1	Mr. T. Fieldsend	2
Mr. J. H. Jonas	2	Mr. Shalders	1
Mr. F. Schloesser	2	Mr. Ferrand	1
Total	19	Total	11

CHESS ENIGMAS.

No. 1460.—By Mr. ENGELHARDT (Le Sphynx).

White: K at K R 4th, Q at K Kt 5th, Kts at K 8th and Q 5th, P at Q 2nd.
Black: K at K 3rd, P at K 2nd.
White to play, and mate in three moves.

No. 1461.—By Mr. TONETTI (Le Sphynx).

White: K at Q B 7th, Q at Q R sq, R at K 4th, Bs at Q 2nd and Q R 2nd, Kts at K R 4th and K R 7th; Ps at K Kt 6th, K B 2nd, and Q Kt 3rd.
Black: K at Q 4th, B at Q 6th; Ps at K Kt 7th, K 4th, and Q 5th.
White to play, and mate in two moves.

Archæology of the Month.

It is curious to note in how many instances it has taken scores of years from their first suggestion to effect improvements in our metropolis. The removal of Middle-row, Holborn, is a noteworthy example. It is generally considered as an obnoxious obstruction of a comparatively recent date, but it is in reality not so. Howell in his "Perlestration of London," 1657, p. 344, observes:—"Southward of Gray's-inn-lane there is a row of small houses, which is a mighty hindrance to Holborn in point of prospect, which, if they were taken down, there would be from Holborn Conduit to St. Giles'-in-the-Fields one of the fairest rising streets in the world." Through two long centuries have these obstructive buildings been condemned, but only within a few weeks has their removal been decided on—a measure which we owe to the Metropolitan Board of Works. The rare old row is shown in Faithorne's Ichnographical Delineation of London in the reign of Charles I., a facsimile of which, engraved on copper, has lately been executed.

This is the season for the appearance of the annual reports on the administration of our public museums, prior to the voting of Parliamentary grants. To the South Kensington Museum a number of valuable additions have been made, especially to the art-collections.

The principal purchases of the year have been a Spanish "retable," or altarpiece, a work of great size and importance, of the date of the first half of the fifteenth century, originally in a church at Valencia, now destroyed; a casket in coloured enamel, the work of Jean Limousin; a missal-case in gold, ornamented with translucent enamel, said to have been formerly the property of Henrietta Maria, consort of Charles I.; a candlestick of Henry II.; a Syon cope, a remarkable example of early English needlework; and a collection of objects illustrative of Spanish work in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. Among the gifts of the year should be mentioned a collection of articles, such as watches, needlework, wearing apparel, &c., illustrative of the manners and tastes of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, presented by the Rev. R. Brooke.

The approaching loan exhibitions of miniatures and of stained glass and English mosaics are likely to prove very attractive. The residents at a distance from South Kensington will be glad to hear that the inner circle of metropolitan railways is expected to have a station within 200 yards of the museum.

At the Archæological Institute meeting, on the 5th inst., the proceedings were unusually varied and interesting. A paper was read by Mr. Calvert, "On the Site and Remains of Cebrene, in the Troad," in which the author identified the city, a strong and ancient place, according to Xenophon, with the extensive remains on the hill of Tchali Dagh, or the Bush Mountain, near the village of Turkmanli, south of the Scamander. The Rev. Mr. Greenwell gave an elaborate memoir of the opening and examination of numerous grave-hills, made during the year 1864, in the North Riding of Yorkshire, a district peculiarly rich in remains of the early races who inhabited the island. Mr. Greenwell is of opinion that some of the grave-hills disclose evidence of cannibalism; but this point was much discussed and strongly opposed by several members. An object suggestive of more agreeable association was next exhibited, this being the glass Murano bowl from Dr. Williams's library, Redcross-street, Cripplegate, and which, by tradition, is said to be the vessel in which Queen Elizabeth was baptized. The bowl, which is of the period, and finely gilt, may have formed a Royal gift; but the opinion of the meeting was averse to its being considered the christening bowl. Canon Rock suggested that it is the basin in which the sponsors, after the ceremony, washed their hands, according to custom, which required them, before taking the child, to cleanse themselves of the baptismal water, which always contains two oils. Mr. Octavius Morgan, M.P., exhibited a beautifully painted miniature in oil of King Charles II. by Sir Peter Lely; another, on card, of King James II.; and one, the only portrait known, of Alice, Lady Lisle, who was beheaded in 1685. Mr. Morgan also exhibited a miniature portrait, in wax, of Seifried Pfinzing von Henfenfeld, 1596; two chamberlain keys, seventeenth century; and a Nuremberg official master-key, with sliding bow, seventh century. Mr. Bernhard Smith, a martel, or horseman's hammer, of the seventeenth century; and an officer's poleaxe, temp. Elizabeth. Mrs. Short, a small silver watch, by E. Gilpin, temp. Charles I.; Mr. Glover, a curious glazed hexagon dish of the seventeenth century, suggested to have been used for the washing of mundatories; Mr. W. W. King, three monumental brasses, one a curious palimpsest; Mr. W. W. E. Wynne, M.P., a small bronze hammer, found near Oswestry; Sir Thomas Winnington, M.A., a painting in oil, on alabaster, of the Ascension, probably after Bronzoni; the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, M.P., a silver horn for the head, from the Druse country of the Lebanon, and other objects; and his Excellency the Italian Minister, a curious framed heraldic sketch.

At a late meeting of the British Archæological Association, Lord Boston exhibited an intaglio in calcedony, a Gnostic amulet, with intaglio on each side of yellow jasper, and a minutely-carved cherry-stone of a head lying in a charger: it is of fine execution, and of the sixteenth century. Mr. Syer Cuming alluded to various cherry, plum, and peach stone earrings, forming rosaries, which were in the Duchess of Portland's Museum, &c., some of which are stated to have been executed by Benvenuto Cellini. Mr. Greenshields exhibited a Florentine poniard of the fifteenth century, the gilt hilt of which represents a gigantic crane standing on a human skull, across the foot of which is a broad ribbon, and on one side an hourglass, on the other a bunch of hemlock, the three objects forming the cross-guard. It was contained in a richly silver-gilt sheath with Gorgon's head, a serpent imbibing poison from a chalice, &c. The Rev. Mr. Simpson exhibited a horizontal quadrant dial, of brass, of the close of the seventeenth century, inscribed on the reverse face, "Trin. Coll. Cant. Ex Dono Tho. Scattergood, Arm." It was purchased at a marine-store shop in the country and lately presented to the exhibition. Mr. Halliwell exhibited a ponderous halbert, of the time of Elizabeth, the metal part weighing 3 lb. 4½ oz. The association will hold its annual congress at Durham, on Aug. 21-26, under the presidency of the Duke of Cleveland.

The Holborn Valley Improvement is beset with difficulties. A great number of the inhabitants of the Ward of Farringdon Without have petitioned the Court of Common Council against the Corporation plan, and are much dissatisfied with the rejection of their own plan by the Improvement Committee of the Corporation, and their intention to execute the viaduct from Skinner-street to Ely-court, Holborn: this, the petitioners say, only partially provides for direct communication between the high level and Farringdon-street, except for foot passengers, thereby severing the two main arteries of traffic. Each of the plans has been engraved on wood, large enough to show the respective advantages. The Ward plan provides direct communication between the high and low levels, so as to remedy all evils which bridging over the Holborn valley was intended to obviate; and, in addition, will greatly improve the approaches to Farringdon Market. This plan, also, would, it was maintained, effect a great saving by superseding the cost of two streets, £300,000; but Mr. Deputy Lott elicited that the Ward plan does not include side streets, which would more than increase its cost to that of the Corporation plan. The latter, it is maintained, would diffuse the traffic by four different streets, and prevent any from the north or south coming upon the viaduct. The motion for referring the Ward petition to the Improvement Committee was, however, lost; so that the Corporation plan will be at once proceeded with.

At a recent meeting of the Numismatic Society, Mr. Vaux exhibited thirty milled sixpences of Elizabeth, found by General Sir Thomas Phillips at Pashawur, in the Punjaub. They are curious, as there is a tradition on the spot of an Englishman having been murdered in that place some 250 years ago, and a model of whose tomb is in Sir T. Phillips's possession.

Raglan Castle and its grounds, which have been for some time closed to the public, will, we are happy to learn, be at once opened by order of its noble owner, the Duke of Beaufort; the recent decision in reference to its assessment having been reconsidered and rescinded.

The Archæological Association of British residents in Rome recently held the first open-air meeting or excursion, the place of rendezvous being the Eolian Hill, the objects investigated being some of the ancient churches—those of St. Gregory, St. Stephen, SS. John and Paul, and that dedicated to Four Martyrs, on the same classic height. The lecturer was Mr. Parker, who proved himself deeply read in the lore of Christian art. Lord Talbot de Malahide is president of the association. Any discoveries made by members it is proposed to have photographed for communication to the London Society of Antiquaries.

NEW BOOKS.

MR. BUTTON COOKE'S NEW NOVEL.
This day, in 3 vols. post 8vo, price 31s. 6d. to be obtained at all the Libraries,

SIR FELIX FOY, BART.
By the Author of the "Trials of the Tregellas."
"Also, now ready, at every Library,
HELEN PETRIE'S DOMESTIC SERVANT. By AGNES WYLDE.
DR. BRECHER'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY.
A WINTER IN ALGERIA, 1864-5.
London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Milton House, Ludgate-hill.

On Monday, the 29th inst. One Shilling, No. 56,

THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for JUNE.
With Illustrations by George H. Thomas and George Du Maurier.
CONTENTS:
Armadale. (With an Illustration.)
Chapter XXXIII.—The Third—continued.
Chapter XXXIV.—The Fourth.
Confession.
Modern Mosaic.
Wives and Daughters. An Every-day Story. (With an Illustration.)
Chapter XXX.—Old Ways and New Ways.
A Visit to a Family Vampire.
LESLIE.—Coming Events.
The English Expedition to the Bridge of Elizabeth and James.—Part II.
How We Did Mont Blanc.
Thackeray.
Thomas Sopwith.
Ralph Crosby's Ghost.
Volleys and the Samian.
SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 65, Cornhill.

Sixth Thousand, post 8vo, 7s. 6d.,

SOYER'S MODERN HOUSEWIFE.
"Soyer's Receipts for the Economical and Judicious Preparation of every Description of Food for the Nursery and Sick Room, &c. By the late ALEXIS SOYER.
"Is likely to be the family of every keeper of a kitchen and larder in the United Empire."—Times.
"Is the best cookery-book we ever knew."—Athenæum.
SOYER'S GASTRONOMIC REGENERATOR; or, System of Cookery for the Many and the Million. Ninth Edition, 8vo, 10s.
London: SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, and CO.

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK, Price 6s. Seventy-sixth Thousand, with many additions enlarged, and fully illustrated. "The best book of its class yet produced."—Quarterly Review.—London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and Co.

Ninth Edition, with 25 Prints, post 8vo, 7s. postage-free,

STAINED GLASS, by the Improved Transfer Process of Diaphanie: easily performed by any person, at small cost.—J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

New Edition, with Drawings in Colour, price 5s. 6d.; post-free, 5s. 10d.,

A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTING AND DRAWING ON STONE. By JOHN CRAKE, M.W.S. Editor of the Journal of the Photographic Society. "Mr. Crake's Treatise is excellent."—Athenæum.
Price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 1d., with 12 Plates,

MONOGRAMS and CYPHERS. Modern and Gothic. Sketched chiefly, by VICTOR DELAMOTTE.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Third Edition, price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,
ALPHABETS and DESIGNS for ENGRAVERS, PENSIONS for the Use of Draughtsmen and Decorators, by F. C. WOOD.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 6d., postage-free,

PHOTO-CHROMOGRAPHY; an Easy Method of Producing Photographic pictures in beautifully enamelled appearance, and of various colours, by the Action of Light upon Chromate Salts and Ferrocyanide of Iron.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Fifth Edition, with 13 Diagrams printed in colours, price 2s.,

PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, Pictures, Diagrams, &c. A guide to Painting in Water Colours; which is also a Companion for Painting in Oil Colours. By J. BARNARD, N. BENTON.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st.W.

Second Edition, now ready, post-free 24 stamps,

BARR MEADOWS ON BEES.—Their Natural Economy, without Artificial or Sterile Food.
J. BARNARD, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT of RHEUMATISM, EPILEPSY, ASTHMA, and FEVER. By C. J. HEMPEL, M.D. late Surgeon to the Royal Hanoverian Legion, &c. St. Paul's-ch.-yard, and 9, Vere-st., Oxford-st.

Price 2s. 6d., bound in cloth,

HOMŒOPATHIC TEXT-BOOK of VETERINARY PRACTICE; containing the Treatment of Diseases of the Horse, Ox, Sheep, Dog, and Pig. By C. J. HEMPEL, M.D. St. Paul's-ch.-yard, and 9, Vere-street, Oxford-st.

Price 1s., Second Edition, bound in cloth,

HOMŒOPATHY. Parents' Guide to Treatment and to the Diseases of Children. By C. J. HEMPEL, M.D. St. Paul's-ch.-yard, and 9, Vere-st., Oxford-st.

Sixty-third Edition, price 1s.

HOMŒOPATHIC FAMILY GUIDE: containing the Principles and Domestic Treatment of Diseases. By J. LAURIE, M.D. Chief of Medicines Ready for Use. St. Paul's-ch.-yard, and 9, Vere-st., Oxford-st.

Nineteenth Edition, 8vo, cloth, 16s.,

HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. LAURIE, M.D. Specially adapted to the use of clergymen, missionaries, and schoolmasters. An Appendix, containing Twenty-Sixth Edition, price 1s. The Case of Medicines, adapted to the Treatment of Diseases. St. Paul's-ch.-yard, and 9, Vere-st., Oxford-st., and 74, Piccadilly.

BAGSTER'S COMPREHENSIVE and other BIBLES,
Suitable for Presentation, Teaching, and Reference; and, for all the principal Bazaars.—Bagster and Sons, 15, Paternoster-row, London.

POSTAGE-STAMPS.—A priced Catalogue of Foreign Postage-Stamps sent post-free for 2 stamps, by W. RICHARD, jun., 48, New Oxford-street, London, W.C.
A packet of 100 Stamps, all different, and post-free for 2s.

Just published, post-free,

TEETH.—GABRIEL'S Pamphlet explains the only effectual mode of supplying Teeth, without pain, at half the usual charges.—27, Harley-street, W.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY ROBBINS'S, 62, Friendship, Mounted and Ornamental Stationery, Dressing Bags, Writing Desks, and a variety of useful and elegant novelties suitable for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES, in Russia or morocco, of the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, Inkstands, and Bookslides, at 31, Haymarket.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING-BAGS, with silver or gilded fittings, of the best quality and workmanship. Ivory Tablets, Cigar Cases, and Purses. At Henry Rodrigues', 31, Piccadilly, W.

NO CHARGE MADE for STAMPING PAPER and ENVELOPES with a Crest or Address. Best Cream-laid Note, 5s. per ream for 5s. At H. RODRIGUES', 66, Piccadilly.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The Despatch Printing Press, price from 35s. to £4 4s., for Letterpress, Copperplate, or Lithographic Printing. "Art of Printing," by "An Old Lithographer," 2s., or 36 stamps.—HENRY DEAN, 76, Regent-street (Hanoverian to her Majesty's Post Office, 80, High Holborn, London, W.C.

MADEIRA.—HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, Reception. The Committee of Management have the pleasure to announce that, through the kindness of some friends in Madeira, they are prepared to receive Patients into the Hospital, and to provide them with Wines in that celebrated climate. The expenses of the patients sent home will be paid by the Hospital, and they will be received and provided for at Madeira by a local committee, presided over by Captain Erskine, for Her Majesty's Consul. Suitable cases will be received on the recommendation of Governors or Members of the Committee of Management.
CONTRIBUTIONS are requested, as it is arrangements sanctioned in some degree by experience that the Hospital can be established and maintained. It may be continued, and the greatest possible benefit be derived of this charity.
PHILIP BURN, Hon. Sec.
No. 32, Sackville-street, W.

GENERAL R. E. LEE.—A handsome Cabinet Size Engraving, from a portrait of this distinguished General, sent to Subscribers, by Gowans and Gray, 29, Paternoster-row.

SAUNDERS, OTLEY, and Co., 66, Brook-street, London, W.

PRIVATE CARTES DE VISITE. RICHARD FERRIS (late Ferris and Co.), 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, W., begs to announce that he has just received from Paris a large assortment of the newest and most elegant Cartes de Visite, which he is now prepared to execute in the highest style of the art, at the following prices:—Plain, 12s. per dozen; Tinted, 15s. per dozen; Coloured, 18s. per dozen; Highly Finished, 21s. per dozen. Specimens may be seen at the Establishment, 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

NO CHARGE FOR ENGRAVING DIE with CREST and MONOGRAM, or ADDRESS, in order to give for a Ream of Paper and 500 Envelopes, at the Stationery Warehouse of RICHARD LAUNCELOT, 313, Oxford-street, W. (Corner of Vere-street.)

THE FIVE-SHILLING ILLUMINATING COLOUR BOX enables Gentlemen to write, draw, paint, sketch, and illuminate, in Gold and Colours, as perfectly as the most expensive. Sold by Barnard, Bolton, and Barnard, Norris, and Co., Wholesale Agents, 51, Lewis and Co., Worcester.

THE PHOTOCHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to produce Coloured Photographs, Miniatures, Landscapes, &c., with twelve colours, pencils, and brushes, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and 58, Artist Colourmen, Manchester, and Worcester.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.—OPERA-GLASSES in every variety of form and mounting, matching the Dress Circle Tickets. Also Race-Glasses and Telescopes.—CLARKSON, Optician, 31, New Bond-street (corner of Conduit-street). N.B. Sole Agent for the celebrated Field and Opera-Glasses of Voigtländer, Vienna.

THE DERBY.—"The best and cheapest Race-Glass yet made, and the only one worth buying."—Bell's Life. Price, including sling case, 21s. Post-office orders payable to the maker, HENRY C. HUGHES, Optician, 59, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Conduit-street).

THE GLORIES of the HEAVENS seen by the NAKED EYE.—Twenty-four Coloured Charts of the Constellations of the fixed stars and planets, as they appear in the Northern Heavens are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, which will be forwarded, gratis and post-free, on application to Messrs. Hockling Lord Rose. Sent free by book-post, 8, and 9, SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly. Sole Agents for Ross, Dollond, and Jones.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Invaluable to Tourists, Travellers, Sportsmen, and Yachtsmen. Sent free, post-free, for 2l. 2s. Also a large assortment of the celebrated purchase of the opera, race, and general Field Glasses, by SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

POCKET BAROMETER, COMPASS, and THERMOMETER, all in one, the size of a watch, for telling the Weather, Time, and Temperature, and for finding the Points of the Compass, 21s. Sent free, post-free, for 24 stamps. SOLOMONS, Optician, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

REGISTERED ACHROMATIC AND PATENT PORTABLE MICROSCOPE.—SOLOMONS begs to inform persons in the Country that the uncertainty and risk attending the purchase of Microscopes by Opticians unacquainted with the subject is obviated by the Patent Microscope, which gives the exact optical condition of the eye, so that the defects can be instantly detected. Sent free, post-free, for 2l. 2s. Also a large assortment of Microscopes, from the Cheapest Ophthalmic Hospitals purchase.—39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE WHISPER PHONE are the best means to assist the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to converse in a whisper. Sent free, post-free, for 2l. 2s. each.—SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

A. FORBER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Hair Worker to the Royal Family, begs to call the attention of the Public to his Hair Rings, from 6s. 6d.; Hair Albums, from 25s. each, &c. Hints how to procure Hair, and Lists of Prices, forwarded free.

IF YOU TRAVEL send for BUSSEY SMITH'S LIST of LUGGAGE SUITABLE for MOUNTAINEERS, Tourists, Travelling-bags. Also Field, Racing, and Opera Glasses, and every article of comfort and convenience.—Bussey Smith, 63, Regent-street, W.C.

TRADE PRICES AND FETES.—LADIES will find the application of ROWLANDS' KALYDOR both delightful and refreshing to the face and hands during the heat and irritability; removing eruptions, freckles, and discolorations; and rendering the skin clear, soft, and blooming. Sold by A. ROWLAND and SON, 20, Hatton-garden, Holborn; and by Chemists and Perfumers. Ask for "Rowland's Kalydor," and beware of spurious imitations. Sold in three sizes, 4s. 6d., 8s. 6d., and 21s.

GRAY HAIR.—CLEVELAND'S WALNUT JUICE POMADE will change gray hair to the original colour, without dyeing, in a few days, and will restore it to its youthful beauty and appearance. This is entirely free from mineral poisons, and has astonishing curative imitations, maintained by numerous testimonials. Sold by all Chemists, at 3s. 6d., 7s., and 10s. 6d. per bottle.—CLEVELAND, Chemist, 44, Southampton-buildings; and to be had of all Chemists and Perfumers. Be sure to ask for "Cleveland's Walnut Juice Pomade," and avoid all worthless imitations.

TOILET VINEGAR.—VINAIGRE DE TOILETTE DE JEAN VINCENT BULLY.—This celebrated Vinegar, which has been used for many years in the Nursery of the Tuileries, and is now prepared for the Toilet, has been established for it a universal reputation. Its hygienic properties render it indispensable in a thoroughly-appointed dressing-room and the bath-room. A small quantity poured into the water before washing the face and hands gives them a delicate bloom. It is also a most refreshing application to the head, and is a specific for many imparts to it a most agreeable perfume. It is an admirable lotion for the teeth, and is a specific for many affections of the gums. It is a most refreshing application to the head, and is a specific for many affections of the scalp. Dandruff, Scurf, Eruptions, and Itch disappear after a few applications. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers. Depôt of the Manufactory, 6, New Bond-street, London.

TEETH WITHOUT PAIN and WITHOUT SPRINGS.—ENDERBY'S SYSTEM.
Messrs. GABRIEL, 27, Harley-street; and 56, Ludgate-hill.

TEETH.—GABRIEL'S GUTTA-PERCHA ENAMEL prevents Toothache and arrests Decay. Price 1s. 6d. per box.—27, Harley-street, and 56, Ludgate-hill. London; 134, Duke-street, Liverpool; 10, New-street, Birmingham.

TEETH.—By Mr. ESKELL'S INVENTION, Patent granted July 17, 1861.—Sets or partial sets of teeth, exquisitely assimilated to nature, are made and fitted in a few hours, without the extraction and scraping or cutting of the slightest pain. They support Loose Teeth, and are a perfect success in all disfiguring cases of irregularity, decay, &c. Mr. Eskell's system is the only one that will restore articulation, and enable the patient to masticate with ease. Consultations free. Terms strictly moderate.—2, Grosvenor-street, Bond-street W.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, free from acidity or heat, and the purest wine to invigorate the system. One gallon per dozen. Excellent Claret, 4s. and 5s. per dozen. Terms cash. Wines drawn, bottled, and delivered free. Lees Merchant, 73, Great Russell-st., corner of Bloomsbury-st., London, W.C.—Established 1841.

PORT and SHERRY, 12s. per Dozen: Claret and Hock, 18s. per Dozen.—VICTORIA WINE COMPANY, 65, Lower Thames-street, E.C. Two samples sent for 12 stamps.

PALE SHERRY at 30s. per Dozen, fit for any Gentleman's Table. Bottles and Cases included. Terms, Cash. Post Orders payable to ALFRED BARNARD and SON,
(Established upwards of a century), 1, Chapel-street West, Mayfair, W., London.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY. COGNAC and LIQUEUR BRANDY.—Celebrated Irish Whisky from the finest Pot-Still Malt, 16s. per gallon. Cognac Brandy, pale and rich, 16s. per gallon. Liqueur Brandy, 42s. per dozen. At the retail houses in Dublin, by the wharf in the principal towns in England; or wholesale at the Distillery, Dublin. Terms, cash. Reference for reel seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The MARCH BREWING are now being SUPPLIED. Mr. Allsopp's March credition, in Bottles and in Casks, by HODGKINSON, PURNELL, and WOODHOUSE, Agents, Strand, London.

PEPSINE.—MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE, Morson's Pepsine Lozenges, are perfectly palatable forms for administering Pepsine, the digestive principle of the gastric juice. Sold by Thomas Morson and Son, 31, 33, 35, and 124, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C. Pepsine Wine, in bottles, at 3s. 6d., 6s., and 9s. each; Pepsine, in boxes, at 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d., also in lozenges.

TONIC BITTERS,
WATERS'QUININE WINE,
the most palatable and wholesome Bitter in existence;
an unequalled stomachic, and a gentle stimulant.
Sold by Grocers, Chemists, Wine Merchants, Tea Dealers, Confectioners, and others, at 20s. a dozen.
Manufactory, 1, Worcester-street, Worcester.
A Sample Bottle sent, free by Railway, for 24 Stamps.
Wholesale Agents, R. Lewis and Co., Worcester.

CHOCOLAT-MENIER.
Prize Medal awarded for Excellence.
Yellow wrapper . . . . 1s. 4d. per lb.
Blue wrapper . . . . 2s. 0d. per lb.
Pink . . . . 2s. 8d. per lb.
Blue . . . . 3s. 6d. per lb.
Flavoured with Vanilla.
Green wrapper . . . . 2s. 6d. per lb.
Brown . . . . 3s. 0d. per lb.
Brown Extra . . . . 3s. 6d. per lb.
White . . . . 4s. 0d. per lb.
Sold by the Trade, and by retail at the Depôt, 31, Wellington-st., Strand, London.

THE
ONLY PRIZE MEDAL, 1862,
FOR CHOCOLATE AND COCOA
CHOCOLATE-MENIER, Prize Medal awarded by
LONDON, 1862, 1862, 1862, 1862, 1862.
Prize Medals, 1851, 1855, 1855, and 1862.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA,
IN PACKETS RECKITT'S IN TINFOIL.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, so well as the great facility with which it is prepared for the breakfast table, have obtained for it
THE PREFERENCE
It is equally adapted for invalids and others, and is highly recommended by the faculty.
RECKITT and SONS, HULL and LONDON.

THE ONLY PRIZE-MEDAL CORN FLOUR.
MAIZENA,
Imported by JOHN D. "Exceedingly excellent for food."
Cooks in no more delicate stirring.

BORWICK'S BAKING POWDER.
Recommended by the Analyst to the "Lancet" for making Good Bread, Pastry, and Puddings. Sold everywhere.

BROWN AND POLSON'S
PATENT CORN FLOUR,
Is the Purest and Best.
With Recipes for Puddings, Blancmange, &c.

COWDED
PREPARED COCOA,
Publique, Curtada, Blancmange, &c.,
Manufactured and Perfected by
C. COWDED and SONS,
Of CHARLOTTE-STREET, LONDON.
It is the original and only Cocoa that has obtained a Medal, established 1840, commands the highest price from the trade, and offers the best value to the public.
It requires less sugar in making than tea, and not the cloudy white produced by artificial grocery.
Sold in Packets, BILLYFILLS, and CO., London.

LETTERS PATENT, 1863. PRIZE MEDAL, 1862.
ROBINSON'S PATENT GROATS is the only Prepared Oatmeal for making pure and wholesome Gruel, as has been shown that the food is easy of digestion and rich in nutriment.
ROBINSON'S PATENT BARLEY makes a delicious and healthful Beverage for Invalids when lemon juice is added.
ROBINSON'S PATENT GROATS and PATENT BARLEY are the most valuable natural remedies for restoring children to health.
Sold in Packets, BILLYFILLS, and CO., London.

KEEN'S GENUINE MUSTARD.
First Manufactured A.D. 1742,
OXO CUBES, OXO LIQUEUR.
The well-known brand of Mustard has been sold by the trade of this establishment for upwards of a century, and is held in high estimation for its purity and pungency of flavour. The question frequently asked, "Is Keen's Mustard pure?" is answered by the fact that the Mustard Manufacturers to the Royal Family and Household Guards, in addition to 12, and 13, Hill-street, Berkeley-square, London, W.
Sold by BILLYFILLS, and CO., London.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.
COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD
has been their household word for more than a century.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1851.
For Purity and Excellence of Quality, Colmans' Mustard "carries away the qualities particularly essential."—Vide Jurors' Report.
Sold by Grocers throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 9, Cannon-street, London.

COLMANS' No. 1 INDIGO BLUE is the best article ever introduced for laundry purposes.
9, Cannon-street, London.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
and by the Nobility and Gentry.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Stomachic Disorders of every kind as a safe aperient and general stomachic tonic.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS
Of Asthma, Consumption, Colds, Coughs, &c.
Price 1s. 1½., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box, of all Druggists.

SUMMERS'S CASTOR-OIL PILLS (a safe substitute for Castor Oil). For Bilious and Liver Complaints, Wind, Headache, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Disorder of the Blood. Sold by most Druggists. Mr. SUMMERS, Chemist, 61, Curtain-road, London, for 15 stamps.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE IVY LEAVES for ornamenting Culinary dishes. 18 stamps per set of 72 dozen. Flasks for Store Arrows, 6 stamps per packet; 4 for 40 stamps.—R. ROBERTS, Ivy, Hitchin.

NICHOLSON and CO., Silkmercers, 50 to 52, and 54, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, beg to announce that their new regular will now Summer Silk. Messrs. N. and Co. have also purchased a large lot of Japanese Silks, manufactured about half their original prices. 300 Patterns post-free. Established 21 years. No connection with any other firm.

OWING to the facilities now afforded by the Parliamentary Steamers, Messrs. JENKINSON beg to state that they have greatly improved their system of sending patterns of their Silks to the Country, and will be happy to forward a thousand variety which, from the variance of produce, would forward be sent, they now undertake to forward, post-free, 300 PATTERNS of their Rich Black Silks, at 2s. 6d. per yard.
These patterns comprise every quality of Black Silk now selling in London and Paris, and represent a stock of 120,000 in value.
JENKINSON and CO.,
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS,
Made from the finest Lyons Yarns,
Rich and Full Quality, 3s. 6d. per yard. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS,
Checks and Stripes, from 2 guineas.
Rich Glacés, from 2½ guineas.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

FOULARDS EXTRAORDINARY.
A large parcel of these fashionable Silks, beautiful patterns, at 2s. 6d. per yard. Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS,
Moiré Antiques, Corded Silks, Chené Silks, Checked Silks, Striped Silks, Plain Silks.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S BLACK SILKS,
Black Rich Glacés, from 2½ guineas.
Lyons, Deep de Paris, &c., from 3s. 6d. per yard. Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN WELL DRESSED?—Buy Knickerbocker Cloth, from direction for self-measurement Suits, from 21s. 6d. Patterns of the Cloths, post-free.—SUCHLIFFE, 91, 92, and 93, Fleet-street, London.

NICHOLSON'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE OF PARIS FASHIONS, containing Twenty illustrations of the newest Costumes, with descriptions and every information necessary for the present season, will be forwarded, gratis and post-free, to any part of the world on application to NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

HAND-EMBROIDERED COURT TRAINS.
GRANT and GASK are now exhibiting a Novelty in Court Trains, the Flowers being Embroidered on Tarlatan, and Trimmed with Lace. Illustrations of make-up Court Trains free on application.
GRANT and GASK, 58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Wells-street, Oxford-street, W.

MOIRE ANTIQUES.—GRANT and GASK invite special notice to a large purchase of most beautiful Moiré Antiques, in every variety of colour, at a reduction of 25 per cent on their usual quality. Patterns will be forwarded, gratis and post-free, to any part of the world on application.—GRANT and GASK, 58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Wells-street, Oxford-street, W.

HAND-EMBROIDERED COURT TRAINS.
GRANT and GASK are now exhibiting a Novelty in Court Trains, the Flowers being Embroidered on Tarlatan, and Trimmed with Lace. Illustrations of make-up Court Trains free on application.
GRANT and GASK, 58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Wells-street, Oxford-street, W.

FANCY SILKS.—Patterns forwarded of new and beautiful Fancy Silks, from 2½ guineas the Full Dress of 16 yards. Any Colour.—GRANT and GASK.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 2, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

MADE-UP DRESSES and COSTUMES for MORNING, EVENING, and SEASIDE wear, in every fashionable texture; also French Peasant Suits in guipe new designs.
GRANT and GASK, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 2, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

NEW MANTLES and SHAWLS.—The most Fashionable and Recherché Mantles are fully supplied with an extensive Stock of Shawls, Scarfs, Fichus, Handkerchiefs, and Veils, with the guarantee for durability of colours and texture in Paris and London. Patterns sent free.—GRANT and GASK, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 2, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FRENCH KID GLOVES.—250 Dozens of 3½, or Ladies' 4-button Kid Gloves, 6d. per pair, usual price 2s. 6d. Sample post by GRANT and GASK.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 2, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

IMPORTANT TO WOOLLEN BUYERS.
Tailors and others desirous of saving 1s per cent every purchase, are requested to call at DARLEY FLATT and SON'S, Bradford, and 12 and 13, Cranbourn-alley, when return to Cash Buyers to the end of 1864, will be allowed on all purchases of 5l. and upwards.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and NEW TEXTURES, for the present season, made of wear-resisting materials, with the guarantee for durability of colours and texture in Paris and London. Patterns sent free.—GRANT and GASK, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 2, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

SEWELL and CO.
No. 504, NEW OXFORD-STREET, and 1, 2, and 3, RUPERT-STREET, adjoining the Pantheon.
ROBE DEPARTMENT.
is now replete with every requisite for the coming Season, Court Trains, Dresses, &c.
THE NEW SILK WARP DORAIL CLOTH
Warranted to wear two seasons.
"Mordaunt's" Lustre, and Orlando Cloths in great variety.
CORSETS, Hosiery, Gloves, and Haberdashery.

FRENCH PRINTED MUSLINS.—SEWELL and CO. have received from their Paris Agents a large Purchase, upwards of 1000 printed muslin dresses. The high reputation of these goods for washing and wearing will be kept up. Usual price, 1½d. per yard, Original price 2½ and 3d. per yard.
504, New Oxford-street, Pantheon, Soho-square.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH DRAPERS,
By appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Prince of Wales,
Have always in Stock
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Reclining Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, Travelling Rugs, Scotch Tweeds, Shepherd Checks, Cheviots, and Hose. Serges, Fine Tweeds, and Linsey Woolseys, for Ladies' and Children's Dresses.
Patterns sent free.
59, 60, and 61, Ludgate-hill.

LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING of best make at moderate prices. A stock always on hand of Chemises, Night-dresses, Petticoats, Drawers, Corsets, Collars, Cuffs, Sleeves, Handkerchiefs, &c. Patterns and Prices sent free.—Mrs. HOWARD, 4, Albion-place, Blackfriars-road, London, S.E.

LADIES' OUTFITS and WEDDING TROUSSEAUX. Newest styles, best work, and moderate charges. Patterns and Prices sent free.—Mrs. HOWARD, 4, Albion-place, Blackfriars-road, London, S.E.

BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELL have just returned from Paris with their Stigan GUINEA BONNET, in Black Lace, Tulle, and Crape, at 21s. each. Also a large assortment of Fancy Straws, Crapes, and Flowers.
Mourning Orders executed at the shortest notice.
4, Upper Baker-street, Regent's-park.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, at moderate prices. Patterns and Self-measure free.
CAPTAIN and WATERS, 16, Regent-street, London, S.W.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, for which the highest price in cash will be given. Ladies' and Gentlemen's Clothes attended privately, or purchase Waiting Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c., or, Parcels being sent, Post-office orders remitted the same day. Est. 84 years. Town cash.
WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Jewellery, and Miscellaneous Property, &c. Highest price in cash given. Ladies and Gentlemen waited on by letter or Parcels sent, Post-office orders remitted the same day. Established 1760.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, 19, Strand, aforesaid.—ADVANCE MAY 27, 1865.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Mary-le-Strand, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY MAY 27, 1865.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1318.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, JUNE 3, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE CAPTURE OF JEFFERSON DAVIS.

ONE of the instincts which a high state of civilisation has developed in men is that which prompts them to draw a wide distinction between political and criminal offences. Some of our most highly reputed moralists have maintained the right of insurrection, condemning the exercise of it only when it is resorted to without due consideration of the means it can command for ensuring success. That which we call "treason" when it loses its cause, we glorify as "patriotism" when it wins; and, in common estimation, the interval between the two diminishes in proportion as the efforts which are made at change, by armed force, either the form or the course of no existing Government approach the attainment of their object. We do not think it necessary to test the foundation upon which this sentiment rests. It suffices that it not only exists but prevails in every civilised community the main guarantees of whose liberty have been wrested from de facto rulers by military means. Our own political

THE PRINCE OF WALES VISITING THE GREAT EASTERN STEAM-SHIP TO INSPECT THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH CABLE.—SEE PAGE 533.

Constitution and the independence of the United States owe their origin to movements which ungrudgingly might have failed, and which, if they had, would have figured in history as unjustifiable revolts. Success has consecrated them; but common-sense teaches us that the good fortune which turned the scale in their favour could not affect the morality of the agents who initiated them, and that, had the results been other than they were, the men who risked their all in attempting to achieve them would have been in all essential respects unchanged in character, although, instead of receiving the homage of mankind, their names might have been blackened with infamy.

Neither here nor, we should think, in America, can the capture of Mr. Davis, the political chief of the late Confederation, be regarded as matter for congratulation by those who look far ahead. The desire that he might not be so entangled in the rules of the political office which the North had overturned as to prevent his escape from the country was natural but universal. Men who seriously disapproved of the course which he had pursued felt it as strongly as men who admired and applauded it—the latter on account of sympathy with the man, with the object at which he had aimed, and with the energy and courage he had displayed in the prosecution of it—the former, because the issue of the contest could not be made more complete by the punishment of any who took an unsuccessful part in it; because a struggle which has enlisted the enthusiastic and self-sacrificing support of millions for the space of four years cannot be relegated to the position of a municipal crime; and because any exhibition of vindictive feeling by the North can have no other effect than that of making reconciliation with the South more difficult and hopeless. On all accounts, and with regard to all the parties concerned, it appeared highly desirable that the leading men of the late Confederacy should succeed in getting clear of the pursuit of their antagonists.

The event has fallen out quite otherwise. Mr. Jefferson Davis has been taken, as have also three or four of his most intimate associates. Their camp is in possession of the Federals. His senth-east of Macon, was surprised, and the fugitive-in-chief it is reported, attempting to make good his escape disguised as a woman, was apprehended by troopers. We have observed with pain, not unmingled with disgust, the contemptuous use some quarters to make merry over the latter circumstance. Assuming the truth of the statement made to Major-General Wilson by his men, we see no ground in it for this attempt to disguise Mr. Davis's personal courage. Let the same criticism which has found amusement in such an incident exhibit a like levity over the devices resorted to for concealment by Charles II., or by many a fugitive since, and the good taste of society will very speedily frown it out of countenance. The man who was the soul of an enterprise which required the utmost pertinacity as well as the largest sacrifice on the part of twenty millions of people for the space of four years, might have been reasonably thought beyond the reach of that petty malice which can detect ignominy in a not uncommon ruse to evade pressing danger. The only thing about it to be deplored is that it was unsuccessful.

The people of the United States would very gladly, we think, have been spared the further trial of their magnanimity to which this capture will expose them. The surrender of General Lee has all but quenched their fierce resentment, and the assassination of President Lincoln occurred to rekindle vindictive instincts. The excitement occasioned by that event was subsiding when Mr. Davis was apprehended. What will be done with him ? It can be proved that he was a conspirator; and there will be an end to embarrassment, for in that case the sympathy of all men will be instantly withdrawn from him. But who anticipates this ? None, we venture to surmise, but those who have cherished towards his cause a fierce and unmitigated No; the charge which he will, doubtless, be put upon his trial to answer is that of treason—that of having levied war against the Government of the United States : the legal penalty of it is for Congress to declare. But by no stage is pressure so likely will be taken with due solemnity. The prisoner will have a fair trial; his offence will be proved; the verdict will go against him; he will perhaps be sentenced to the death of a felon. And then ? Most thoughtful persons on both continents are asking this question with no little anxiety—what then ? Let us look at it for a moment.

If the sentence should be carried into effect, it is difficult, at least for European on-lookers, to discover what benefit will accrue therefrom to the American Union. True, the Government at Washington might cite, in defence of an extreme course, not a few Old World precedents some of which might be selected from English annals; but their ability to do this would not dispose of the fact that public opinion as to the mode of dealing with political offences has undergone considerable change since the commencement of the present century, and nowhere more decidedly than in the United States. Judging from the temper displayed by the people of the North during the brief interval between the surrender of General Lee and the assassination of President Lincoln, nothing would have been more in accordance with their wishes than the proclamation of a general amnesty; and it may be safely inferred, from the spontaneity and universality of that outburst of kindly sentiment, that no severity in the working out of justice will be required to satisfy popular feeling. It can hardly be pleaded that it is necessary to the safety of the Government, the military collapse of the Confederacy having proved so complete as to render further deterrent measures quite superfluous. Public policy does not demand it, inasmuch as the speedy conciliation of the South is the one point at which true statesmanship should now aim, and the ignominious execution of Mr. Davis would serve only to add a last drop of bitterness to the cup of humiliation handed to her, and to encircle the name of her foremost man with an aureola of martyrdom. Finally, it would largely abate from the sympathy which late events have elicited from foreign nation, and cast a shade upon the glory which everymore awaits those who glorify victory from noble great difficulties and dangers. We do not discuss the Constitutional doubts involved in the case; but, on the assumption that Mr. Davis has been guilty of treason against the sovereignty of the United States, we contend that the circumstances which in this instance surrounded the offence powerfully recommend the exercise of clemency.

We believe it will rest with Congress to declare, in the almost certain event of Mr. Davis's conviction, the nature of his punishment. If so, we are not without hope that, through its highest organ of expression, the nation will pronounce a leuient sentence. It is not to be expected that the prisoner will receive immediate and plenary pardon. But we cannot conceive that that his life may be spared, and that exile for the remainder of his days from the American continent will be considered a heavy a doom as expediency and public policy render imperative. Much discontentment might be avoided by the adoption of some such course : general respect, both at home and abroad, would, we think, be gained by it. All that is thought to be due to the law, and to justice, would be secured : while the least possible violence would be done to the sentiments of humanity, which are strong in the bosom of civilised communities. Our kinsmen across the water will, we earnestly trust, remember and illustrate the language of the bard whom they as well as we revere—

> And earthly power doth then show likest God's
> When mercy seasons justice.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor has received the Embassy from Morocco sent to welcome him. His Majesty returned to Algiers on the 26th ult, and gave many audiences. The Italian and envoy, Prince Napoleon and the Admiral and his staff were received by Napoleon. On the 27th his Majesty left for Philippeville. An immense crowd was present, and enthusiastically cheered the Emperor at his departure. Before leaving, his Majesty sent the following telegram to the Minister:—"I take with full confidence in the future of Algeria and profound faith in the prosperity of the Empire." The Emperor arrived at Philippeville on the 28th, escorted by the French and Italian fleets. After having gone through the usual formal receptions, he left for Constantine, where he was enthusiastically received.

The speech of Prince Napoleon at Ajaccio has called forth the following letter from Prince Jerome, which appears in yesterday's Moniteur :—

"Napoleon, my dear Cousin,—I cannot refrain from informing you of the painful impression I have experienced on reading your speech at Ajaccio. In leaving your hands the high position which I occupied for seven years as President of the Privy Council, I meant to give you a proof of my friendship and my confidence, and I hoped that your generous, your candid, and your loyal language would testify to the union which reigns in our family. But the words which you have addressed to the people of the empire are not calculated to serve the cause of my Government. To judgments which I cannot adopt I will not oppose a vain protest. I will only say that I have not the right to the ideas of the future to the point where it is necessary to leave passed through the stern trials of responsibility and power. And, besides, are we entitled to speak of the future at a time when not only the present but the historical figure of Napoleon I. As in standing before a colossal statue, we are obliged to step back in order to see the head which the clouds strikes our sight; hence the incompleteness of the reproduction and the divergence of opinions. Many of those who have had eyes of vengeance for the other anarchy in men's minds—that formidable enemy of true liberty—the Emperor had established order, in his family and in society. Then, unfortunately, there were discipline which admitted but one will and one action. I cannot, therefore, blame the conduct of the Emperor.—Your affectionate cousin, JEROME. Dear Cousin, I pray God to bless you in His holy keeping. NAPOLEON.

Prince Napoleon, on reaching Paris, set out the law stinging because of its honeyed phrases, resigned the office of Vice-President of the Privy Council, and that of Chief Commander of the Commission of the Universal Exhibition. A rumour that Prince Napoleon had set out for his estate in Corsica is not confirmed, and the latest report is that he is stated that he and Princess Clotilde are at their ordinary summer residence, the Palace of Saint Gratien.

The British Ambassador and Lady Cowley had a grand reception, and the Grand Duke Constantine, of Russia, was personally appointed in his place to the command of the army of Paris.

A new picture-gallery, leading out of the Rubens one, and called the Galerie Lacaze, has been opened to the public. It is composed of four rooms, containing the works of Jean Fouquet, Jean de Cormont, and Nicolas Froment, and the Leonardo da Vinci, the fourteenth centuries, and of twenty-three admirable religious pictures by Beatrice Lacaze, who has also seven admirable paintings of the same artist, and other rare and curious specimens of celebrated masters.

Saturday evening the Jockey Club proceeded to ballot for a new chairman; but, after a preliminary address from Baron de Lavenay, the Duke Decazes was elected by acclamation. The former trusty president, Marquis de Biron, whose name tallied 279 votes.

SPAIN.

A proposal for electoral reform was brought forward in the Congress during the week; but the Ministry opposed it, and it was rejected. The object of the proposal was to put an end to the present withdrawal of the Progressists from political business.

The Emperor Napoleon has been invited by Queen Isabella to pass through Spain on his return from Algeria, but his answer to the invitation on the ground that his absence from Paris has already exceeded the original intention.

A Royal decree of the Queen has suppressed the toll of seventy-five reals hitherto paid to the governor of the fort of the Lezonzo del Puerto, in the Bay of Cadiz, by all foreign vessels which anchored in or crossed that bay.

AUSTRIA.

A decree of the Emperor, issued on Thursday, orders the elections for the Diet of Dalmatia, Croatia, and Slavonia to commence forthwith. The Diet is to assemble at Agram on the 17th of July.

The Finance Committee of the Lower House of the Reichrath has refused the war budget for 1866 by fifteen million florins.

Austria, replying to the note of Prussia, consents to the convocation of the provincial Diets of Holstein and Schleswig and Holstein, in accordance with the constitutions of 1854, in order to vote an electoral law for the common Diet of the two duchies.

The Upper Chamber adopted, on Monday, by a large majority, the treaty of commerce between Austria and the Zollverein. Only six members voted against the treaty. The treaty of commerce between Switzerland and the Zollverein has been signed at Stuttgardt.

PRUSSIA.

The Treaty of Commerce with Belgium was definitively concluded on the 22nd ult. by Prussia in the name of the whole of the States of the Zollverein. The treaty comes into force at the same time as that with France—on the 1st of July.

The Treaty of Commerce between Great Britain and the Zollverein was signed by the Plenipotentiaries on Tuesday.

A singular attempt is being made by some members of the Upper Chamber to interfere with the privileges of the Lower. The attempt takes the shape of a motion calling upon the Government to check the license of debate and of attack on Ministers employed by the members of the Chamber of Deputies.

The International Exhibition at Cologne was to be opened yesterday (Friday) by the Crown Prince.

AMERICA.

We were able to give in a considerable portion of our last Impression the highly important news that had been received by the South, which arrived yesterday week, of the capture of Jefferson Davis, with his family and Staff. Mr. Davis was captured by Wilson's cavalry, and made a place called Irwinville, seventy miles south-east of Macon, in Georgia. This place is not far from the Florida, and not far from the frontier. It stands on a tributary of the Suwanee River, of which the Chattahoochie is another tributary, and which empties itself into the Gulf. In all probability Mr. Davis expected to be able to get down this river to the sea, and thus clear away. General Wilson states that, on a last resort, Mr. Davis had provided himself in one of his dresses and sought refuge in the woods. When brought to bay, he threatened his captors with the use of a revolver. He surrendered at the presentation of a revolver.

By the Hibernian, which brings intelligence from New York to the 26th ult., we learn that Jefferson Davis, with his wife, son, and two daughters, and his private secretary, has been conveyed from Fort Monroe, where they were strictly guarded. Breckenridge is supposed to have escaped over the Mississippi.

The New York Times says that the deliverance of Davis to the gallows will only help to consign the rebellion to infamy. The World regards him as an accessory to Mr. Lincoln's murder, and says there is no human possibility that he can escape the full penalty of the law. The Herald regards him as the leader of the rebellion, and under the protection of the dignity and honour of a self-respecting people.

Magruder had made a speech at Houston, Texas, in which he expressed a determination to continue the war. Sickles left New York on the 19th ult. for Texas, in order to suppress the rebellion in that State.

Regular warfare having ceased to the east of the Mississippi by the capitulation of the Confederate armies, the Secretary for War has notified that other 4 all persons found in arms in those districts will be punished with death.

The Jew Levi Weil was offered for the arrest of Governor Smith, of Virginia. A troop of cavalry was in pursuit of Governor Magruder in South Carolina.

The New York papers say that the amnesty proclamation will include all the rebels excepting below the grade of lieutenant-general.

The negroes have petitioned for the suffrage.

The Government have admitted reporters to the conspiracy trial, and all the evidence which was heard while the Court sat with closed doors has been published. A correspondent of the Herald says that the evidence implicating Davis in the assassination plot has proved to be unfounded, and that the Government have given up pressing it now. Witnesses testified to having seen Booth in Canada conversing with the Confederate Saunders. Booth was present at secret meetings held at the rebel officers at Stanton, Virginia. All the prisoners in court were heard to laugh at the frequent charges they made connecting them with John Surratt, Wilkes Booth, Jefferson Davis, George Saunders, Jacob Thomas, Clement C. Clay, Jun., Wm. Cleary, C. C. Clay, Geo. Young, and others unknown, to murder President Lincoln, Johnson, Seward, and Grant, in aid of the rebellion. Harrold is charged with having conspired to murder and assisting in murdering Payne with attempting the assassination of Mr. Seward, and Atzerot with plying with liquor Vice-President Johnson. Payne, Harrold, Mudd, Arnold, and Mrs. Surratt are charged as accessory to the crime. Mr. Beverly Johnson is to be examined as counsel for Mrs. Surratt. One witness testified that Surratt visited Richmond last March, accompanied by a man who was known between to Washington and Montreal as gold. He stated that he had seen Jefferson Davis and Benjamin, Secretary of State, in Richmond when he evacuated. On the 3rd of Richmond Surratt left for Montreal, and returned to Washington the day before Lincoln's assassination. Mrs. Surratt denies, on oath, the charges, but is stoutly identified the key to the cipher found in the office of the Confederate Secretary Benjamin with the one found in the pocket of Surratt. Lewis identified the key found in Payne's pocket as the one he had given to Richmond in cipher.

President Johnson and Mr. Seward continue to receive with the new French Ambassador, and it is clear from the remarks made by both personages that the relations between the two Governments are of the most friendly character.

On the 11th ult. the iron Stonewall was at Havannah, receiving guns and ammunition there. The Captain-General of Havannah had refused the surrender of the United States Consul that she should be surrendered as a pirate.

MEXICO.

The Emperor Maximilian left the capital on April 18, accompanied by his Minister for Foreign Affairs and others, and arrived at Orizaba on the 20th. The Empress Charlotte was received enthusiastically.

The decree of Maximilian relative to the Church met with no opposition.

The country south of Mexico city was tranquil.

General Bazaine was expected to take the command of the forces under General Negre in the north. A large increase of the French forces in Mexico was contemplated.

A concession had been given for a portion of the railway from Mexico to the Pacific.

On Thursday morning, according to annual custom, the metropolitan police force attended divine service in St. Paul's Cathedral.

The elections throughout Greece began yesterday week and ended on Monday. Order prevailed everywhere, with the exception of a few unimportant cases. The Ionian Islands were all well affected.

The Treaty of Commerce between Switzerland and the Zollverein has been signed by the commissioners of Bavaria, Baden, Wirtemberg, and Switzerland, at Stutgardt.

The spread of the revolution in Peru against the present Government continues. Most of the Eastern provinces and the principal of those of the south, with their cities and towns, have given no allegiance to President Prado, and declare that they will be ready to join the forces under Lima and Callao.

A legislative measure has recently been obtained whereby the turnpikes in the districts south of the Thames will be abolished on the 13th of December next, and arrangements for those in the north of the river were removed some months since. The gates at Kensington, Wandsworth, Battersea, and all those between Hyde Park Corner and Lambeth, as also between Regent and London and Barking Creek, and several others, will be removed on the day named, and the road will be free at the public expense. The total annual charge for the road proceeds of points named, and the long vexatious stoppages at the gates will no longer interrupt the traffic on the thoroughfares.

Sir J. Rowing has presented to the National Portrait Gallery a full-length portrait of Jeremy Bentham, painted, as the age of thirteen, by one admitted a member of Queen's College, Oxford, and took his degree of M.A. in 1767. He was called to the bar by the Benchers of Grey's Inn, and, on the formation of the London University, he became one of its professors of jurisprudence. He was the author of many weighty works of his criticisms and his administration. The portrait was presented to the gallery by the late Jeremy Bentham, Esq., "personally expelled" from his father's house in Queen-square-place, Westminster, by order of Lord Eldon, on the 12th instant, and is a portrait of the sage, executed by himself, and purchased by his executor, who has now given it to the National Portrait Gallery.

The supplemental catalogue of the Melbourne Public Library, recently issued by the Government printers of the province of Australia, is a handsome volume of nearly 400 pages, adorned with a large number of woodcuts, inserted as head-pieces or tail-pieces, representing various specimens of the botany of that region of Australia. The library, which is but ten years old, contains about 18,000 volumes, fairly selected from the best works, ancient and modern, of literature, history, and science, in English and other languages; and Mr. Augustus Tulk, the principal librarian, who is now in London, has arranged them by a convenient method of classification. The reader-rooms, which will accommodate 400 readers, are open twelve hours every day, except Sundays, without any admission ticket.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The annual general meeting of the Guild of Literature and Art will take place on Monday next, the 5th inst.

The Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress (Miss Hale) entertained her Majesty's Judges and a select number of the members of the Bar at a banquet, yesterday week, at the Mansion House.

The Society for the Encouragement of the Fine Arts gave a most agreeable conversazione—the fifth of the season—on Tuesday evening, at the Architectural Exhibition, Conduit-street.

The Exhibition of Portrait Miniatures, consisting of between 3000 and 4000 specimens of all the great masters from the time of Holbein, is open to the public at the South Kensington Museum.

At a meeting of the Court of Common Council, on Thursday week, the resignation of the Rev. Dr. Mortimer, the Head Master of the City of London School, was received. He has held the office for twenty-five years, to the entire satisfaction of the Court, and it was remitted to a committee to consider in what way the Common Council could mark their sense of the value of his long services.

The East London Industrial Exhibition was opened on Monday, at the Beaumont Institution, Mile-end—Sir J. V. Shelley, M.P., presiding. The hall, which had been made available for the purposes of the exhibition, is not large, but every inch of room has been economised. The decorations are in good taste, and the objects exhibited are of considerable merit. A gallery of old pictures is a leading feature, and some models of ships, as well as some wrought-iron work, will repay attention.

The annual general meeting of the members of the London Library was held at the offices, St. James's-square, on Saturday last—the Bishop of Oxford in the chair. The report gave a flourishing account of the success of the institution, and stated that there are more than 80,000 volumes in the library, of which during the past year about 27,352 had been circulated among the members. It also gave a favourable account of the financial condition of the institution, there being £377 in hand.

The Royal Thames Yacht Club opened its season last Saturday. The place of rendezvous was Gravesend, where the Commodore, Lord Alfred Paget, hoisted his flag on board his new ship Xantha, a very fine yawl by Harvey. The yachts assembled included the Stella, Night Thought, Volante, Marina, Blue Belle, Crystabel, Audax, Glance, Vindex, Circe, Meteor, Octoroon, and others. After a pleasant cruise, the yachtsmen returned to the Union Yacht Clubhouse, at Gravesend, where they dined.

The Hon. Charles Gavan Duffy had a dinner given in his honour last Saturday. Sir George Bowyer, M.P., presided, and upwards of a hundred gentlemen, principally Irish or Australian friends of the guest, were present. Mr. Duffy has held office in more than one of the Victorian Administrations; and in the course of a speech which he delivered he defended the colony from the attacks which were made upon it in respect to its representation by Mr. Lowe and Mr. Gregory. He showed that those gentlemen had misrepresented the state of affairs in the colony.

On Monday Mr. R. N. Philipps, who has long been a member of the Corporation of London, was entertained at dinner at the Brunswick Hotel, Blackwall, by one of the principal committees of the Common Council, of which he had been chairman, on the occasion of his retirement from the office. Mr. Symonds, the present chairman of the committee, and who succeeded Mr. Philipps in the office, presided at the festival, and the Lord Mayor was pleased to grace it with his presence. In the course of the evening a magnificent silver épergne was presented to Mr. Philipps, in recognition of his services as chairman during the past year.

The annual meeting of the Aborigines Protection Society was held at Exeter Hall, on Thursday. Lord Alfred Churchill, M.P., presided. He devoted the major portion of his speech to an exposition of the New Zealand question, and after reprobating the war he sketched an outline of policy which he thought might be successfully adopted. Other speakers touched upon the condition of the Indians of the British provinces of North America, and a resolution was passed authorising the committee to present a memorial to the Queen requesting her Majesty to despatch a commission of inquiry to New Zealand.

The Metropolitan Board of Works had under discussion yesterday week the proposed grant of £10,000 to Mr. Bazalgette and his assistants. An opinion which had been got from Mr. Bovill and Mr. Raymond was to the effect that it was doubtful whether the Board had the power to make such a grant for past services; but it was added that the Board might make such payment as it thought fit to the engineers to secure their services for the future. A long discussion followed, and eventually the proposed grant was set aside, on the ground chiefly that the amount was excessive and the time premature.

The births of 1876 children—950 boys and 926 girls—were registered in London last week. In the corresponding weeks of ten years 1855-64 the average number, corrected for increase of population, was 1973. The deaths registered in London last week were 1249. The average number for the corresponding week in ten years (corrected) is 1243. Two hundred and fifty-four deaths from zymotic diseases were registered; seven deaths occurred from smallpox, sixteen from measles, thirty-four from scarlatina, and fifty-two from typhus. The mortality from whooping-cough, bronchitis, and pneumonia has, under the influence of a higher temperature, much decreased. In the week that ended on Saturday, the 8th of April, 108 deaths from whooping-cough, 257 from bronchitis, and 121 from pneumonia were registered. In the week that ended on Saturday last fifty-six fatal cases of whooping-cough were registered; ninety-four deaths occurred from bronchitis, and forty-four from pneumonia. But while during the summer months the population enjoys comparative immunity from some diseases affecting the respiration, diarrhœa swells the totals of the weekly returns of deaths. Twenty-seven deaths from this disease were registered last week; in the week that ended March 25 only seven deaths occurred from it. Diarrhœa is to a great extent a preventible disease; and, with the appliances of science properly exercised and a better knowledge of the conditions necessary to preserve health diffused among the people, it should not assume a formidable aspect.——In the week that ended on Saturday, May 27, the births registered in London and ten other large towns of the United Kingdom were 3794; the deaths registered, 2527. The annual rate of mortality was 23 per 1000 persons living, corresponding exactly with the rate that prevailed in the previous week. The rate of mortality last week was 22 per 1000 in London, 24 in Edinburgh, and 20 in Dublin; 29 in Liverpool; 29 in Manchester, 20 in Salford, 18 in Birmingham, 27 in Leeds, 22 in Bristol, 19 in Hull, and 29 in Glasgow. The rate in Vienna was 42 per 1000 during the week ending the 13th ult. In Liverpool the births were 358, the deaths 265; in Manchester—births 234, deaths 195; in Salford—births 86, deaths 43; in Birmingham—births 248, deaths 115; in Leeds—births 188, deaths 116; in Bristol—births 105, deaths 67; in Hull—births 65, deaths 38; in Edinburgh—births 122, deaths 81; in Glasgow—births 361, deaths 238; and in Dublin—births 151, deaths 120.

LAW AND POLICE.—Some time ago the Master of the Rolls made an order that a child of three years old, the daughter of a Roman Catholic gentleman named Austin, but whose widow was a Protestant, should not be taken from the custody of the mother and given up to her Roman Catholic relatives. This order was appealed against; but the Lord Chancellor, last Saturday, gave judgment confirming the order of the Master of the Rolls, and ordering that the child should remain under her mother's care at least till she was seven years old. The appellants are to pay the costs.

A singular will case, which has been before the Court of Probate for three days, was settled on Wednesday. Mr. Ring died in 1850. With the exception of some legacies, he directed that his property should be allowed to accumulate for twenty-one years, that the whole should then go to the existing heir-at-law. This will was dated in March, 1850, and has been acted on ever since. But in 1862 a codicil dated in May, 1850, was sent anonymously to a lady who took a beneficial interest in the first will, and this codicil gave a different direction to the property, a clergyman of the name of Barton, among others, coming in for a share of the accumulations, which were to be divided in twelve years. The witnesses to this codicil, with the solicitor who drew it up, are dead. It was to test the genuineness of the document that the trial was instituted. The principal witness examined against it was Mr. Chabot, the expert, and his testimony, going into curiously minute points of resemblance and of difference in handwriting, excited much interest in court. The Judge held that the evidence of Mr. Chabot was decisive of the case. There were six points which Mr. Chabot had indicated in which the codicil differed from the admittedly genuine writing of the testator; and any one of these the learned Judge said, if it stood alone, would be enough to convict the codicil of being a forged document. He therefore pronounced it to be a wicked and clumsy forgery, and condemned Mr. Barton, who propounded it, to pay the costs of the suit. It ought to be added that no one seemed to know who had sent the codicil to the executors, nor was it insinuated that Mr. Barton was connected with it further than as a legatee under its provisions.

A trial took place in the Common Pleas, on Friday and Saturday last, which illustrates the deplorably low taste of the frequenters of our popular concert-rooms and public-house amusements. The publisher of a song called "Jolly Dogs" prosecuted a rival for taking from it the words "Slap, bang, here we are again!" which are put into the mouths of the dancers of a polka. It was stated on the trial that the first song had become so popular that the sale in February last reached 3000 a week. The composer of the song confessed that this did not say much for the taste of the British public, it being, in his opinion, the worst of all his compositions. The trial went on till the jury got tired of it, stopped the case, and returned a verdict for the defendant.

In the Court of Bankruptcy, on Monday, Colonel Waugh made another application for his release from custody; but he was again unsuccessful.

Matthews the cabman, who convicted Müller, has received his discharge from the Bankruptcy Court; but the whole of the reward has been paid to his creditors.

The list of arrears in the Divorce Court was exhibited yesterday week. There are 106 original cases and twenty-four standing over by consent of the parties. The sittings will be resumed on Wednesday next, the 7th inst.

FINE ARTS.

EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

THE SCULPTURE.

IN forming an estimate of this year's sculpture we must recollect that several of our leading sculptors, including Messrs. Foley, Weekes, Marshall, Macdowell, Marochetti, Bell, Thornycroft, Phillip, Armstead, Theed, and Lawlor, contribute little or nothing to the Trafalgar-square gathering, doubtless chiefly in consequence of their employment on the works for the national Albert Memorial in Hyde Park. We trust, at all events, that this is the explanation of Mr. Foley's continued defection from the Academy exhibition and not any feeling of resentment—to a report of which we alluded last year. Of the absence of anything from Mr. Gibson's hand we are also reminded by his portrait, already noticed, and a bust of him by Mrs. H. E. Cholmeley, a pupil of whom it is said the great sculptor has good expectations, which we hope may be fulfilled as notably as in the case of Miss Hosmer—by whom, again, we have nothing. From some cause, too, Mr. Woolner does not exhibit this year—an artist who, as a prominent representative of ultra-literalism and minute elaboration, has afforded a useful protest against the prevalent superficiality and conventionality in English sculpture, though we do not think that strict adherence to his principles is at all calculated to produce really noble artistic results. It need not be said that the visitor to the sculpture-rooms must feel the absence of so many of our most distinguished sculptors, and must observe that others are only to be seen in examples affording a very inadequate notion of their powers. Nevertheless, every candid person (bearing these facts in mind) will admit with surprise and pleasure that the display of sculpture this year is full and varied—quite up to those of recent years in its average of merit, though containing few works of salient excellence. Such an exhibition, under conditions so unprecedented and exceptionally adverse, supplies, in truth, most gratifying evidence of the rapidly-increasing encouragement and more successful cultivation of an art till quite lately disgracefully neglected, and still but little understood.

Notwithstanding the increased demand for memorial statues and busts all over the country, the interest of this collection is, strange to say, sustained by a rather less proportion than usual of works of this class. Mr. Marshall exhibits a colossal statue of James, seventh Earl of Derby, who distinguished himself by his devotion to the Royal cause during the Civil War, and who, falling into the hands of the Parliamentarians after the Battle of Worcester, was beheaded at Bolton, on the spot where, or near which, the memorial is to be erected. There is something approaching affectation in the gesture of the hand placed to the breast: in other respects the statue is satisfactory enough. "The Carrier Pigeon," by the same sculptor, is rather what is called wooden, and wanting in definition. Mr. E. B. Stephens—not he of the same surname of whose progress with the Wellington Monument for St. Paul's, commissioned several years ago, the Chief Commissioner could give no tidings to the House the other day, but the sculptor who not long since was elected an associate—sends a lifelike bust of Captain Speke (1038), part of a memorial to be erected in the Assize Courts, Taunton. But Mr. Stephens signalises his induction into the ranks of the Academy chiefly by a semi-allegorical group of "Euphrosyne and Cupid" (896), the most notable piece of ideal work by this sculptor we have seen. In the action of Euphrosyne (protecting a pair of doves from Cupid) there is a little stiffness in the inclination of the head, which is rather unfortunate in a personification of one of the Graces; but the sweetness and beauty of the composition and the forms generally deserve high praise. Mr. Durham's model of a bronze statue of the Prince Consort, to be presented to the Agricultural College, Framlingham, Suffolk, by Mr. Thomas Lucas, is the same as that with which we are all familiar in the casting erected at the Horticultural Society's Gardens, Kensington, and which has been already reviewed. A picturesque, rather sketchy, listening figure, called "The Lady of the Lake" (984); a portrait group of two children, entitled, somewhat enigmatically, "Trying the Lesson;" a bust of Miss Bateman (940); and a head of a child (957) are all respectable works by the same sculptor, but will not extend his reputation.

But the most important memorial work is a colossal electro-bronze statue of the late Sir William Stevenson, to be erected in the Mauritius to the memory of the late Governor. The model was executed by Mr. D'Epinay, an artist who, though of French extraction, is, we are informed, quite naturalised, so to speak, as an Englishman among our sculptors at Rome, and is, indeed, likely enough to be a British subject from the old French colony of what was once the Isle-de-France, as Mr. Millais, the Jersey man, is thoroughly English, though belonging to a family of French origin. This work is decidedly superior to what we are accustomed to see in the shape of bronze statues, and, as the production of a young artist, is not a little remarkable. There is something of the French militaire in the animated pose; but better this than the tameness of such statues generally. The head and hands are modelled with great ability, and the whole treatment is broad and effective. In the exhibition it may be thought too massive, but, on reflection, it will be perceived that it is not so. A colossal statue viewed near and from below must have all its vertical dimensions foreshortened. Moreover, a little extra bulkiness is necessary in a bronze work, and the absence of it gives a poor and mean effect to statues in this material. There are sculptors, even, who seem unacquainted with the optical phenomena which influence our impressions of light and dark objects in the open air. A marble statue, for instance, before any background that is not brighter than itself, by telling more forcibly on the eye, and by radiating light, will appear larger than it really is; whereas bronze, which is rarely seen against anything so dark as itself (at least, until covered with the patina of age), will, on the contrary, and for analogous reasons, appear to be compressed and diminished in a corresponding degree. Again, the most prominent points of a bronze statue should not be too flat, on account of the diffusing tendency of its shining lights; while, owing to its dark general tone, the folds of draperies, &c., should be more deeply cut to secure sufficient depths of shadow. Bronze is, of course, a very desirable material for the open air and in large cities, on account of its durability, and because it does not reveal so obviously as marble weather-stains and discolorations from atmospheric impurities. But its treatment should be regulated by principles peculiar to itself, the rationale for which, as being, perhaps, not generally understood, we have endeavoured to indicate. There is another clever example of toreutic art here, by a French artist, M. Pollet, illustrative of the poem "Eloa," by Alfred de Vigny; and which, besides being a bold and striking composition, shows skilful modelling of "the figure" in action. The Eloa of the poet—the sister of the angels, created from a tear of the Redeemer, and who falls tempted by pity for the Spirit of Darkness—is represented borne through the air by that spirit as she begins to apprehend his true character. Mr. T. Fowke's bronze statuette of the Prince of Wales (990), in his uniform as Colonel of the Hon. Artillery Company, presented by the Prince to the corps as the shooting prize for last year, is a very creditable little work, by a sculptor who is also represented in a well-executed plaster bust (1023). And a word of commendation may be given to the bronze statuettes "Army" and "Navy," by Mr. Vanden Bosch. To complete our notice of works in metal, we may add that a pair of oxydised silver tazzas, with repoussé figures emblematical of Poetry and Music, by M. Ladeuil, are good examples of French chasing.

Returning to the works in marble and the plaster models—first, attention is due to those of ideal aim, and to subjects ranging from the poetical to the naturalistic. Among these a foremost place is due to the "Delilah," by Mr. Fuller, one of our English sculptors in Italy. This vigorously-conceived and powerfully-executed figure may, by the sitting posture and the strongly-marked Oriental features, recall somewhat similar statues by Story; but perfectly original is the intensely malignant expression of the harlot, as, holding Samson's shorn locks, she seems to be watching him writhing in his bonds. Two female statues by Mr. Lawlor, with the rather arbitrary or scarcely sufficiently apposite titles, of "The Captive" and "The Fugitive," are to be commended for comparative fidelity to those changes of form in various positions which we see in nature, but which are often falsified by sculptors from being supposed to interfere with symmetry. We are sorry to say that Mr. Leifchild's model called "Il Pensiere" does not promise to fulfil the great expectations every one formed from the noble statue of "Erinna," which we engraved last year. Surely, an exaggeration of the Greek squareness of nose and overhanging brow is undesirable in this nineteenth century even in a classical theme, which this is not. The sculptor's grandeur of style is indicated to greater advantage in a half lifesize group of "Minerva Repressing the Wrath of Achilles." Few will accept Mr. Macdowell's girlish and affected statue of Eve as a fitting presentment of "our great mother," though any female figure from this sculptor could scarcely be devoid of a fine sense of beauty. Mr. Macdowell's bust of Sir Joshua Jebb is a posthumous work, and, partly on this account and partly from recollection of the fine things we have had from the same hand, we may be excused from criticising it. Mr. Greenough, an American sculptor, has a pretty fancy of a Cupid bound to the back of a tortoise—beautifully drawn, so to speak, and the struggling action very naturally expressed. In the bust of Mr. Motley (947), the American Minister, the treatment is a little tame and mannered. "Paradise Regained" (951), a saintly figure ascending, is a promising model by Mr. Papworth, jun. The busts by this sculptor seem to indicate some lack of insight into character. Mr. Sherwood Westmacott, besides a pair of marble statuettes of "Adam" and "Eve," has a portrait statuette of a little child undressing, called "Missie Going to Bed" (944), which is exquisitely sweet and natural. Similar praise is due to Mr. Munro's graceful portrait group of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Crompton Roberts (906)—decidedly the most successful attempt to reconcile the requirements of child-portraiture with exigences of a fancy composition. An excellent alto-relievo (921), a the fine bust of Mr. A. Bosanquet (932)—the beard treated à la Parmegiano, and a bust of the Right Hon. Mr. Hutt, M.P., testify to Mr. Munro's range of power. This sculptor, whose "Boy and Dolphin" for the fountain in Hyde Park, opposite Grosvenor-gate, we engraved last year, is also, we hear, on the point of completing another important public work—i.e., a drinking-fountain, surmounted by a marble statue, seven feet high, of a naiad holding a brimming urn, on a pedestal of red granite, and which is to be shortly placed in Berkeley-square, facing the residence of the late Lord Lansdowne, the donor. Mr. B. Sax is represented in two different phases of art—first ideal, in "A Young Bacchus; the Last Drain from the Goblet" (908), good in action and pure in line, but perhaps inclining to the monotonous; and, secondly, naturalistic, in a group of a sister consoling her weeping brother (907), truthful, but singularly wanting in grace for the sculptor of the first work. Mr. Wilke's group of "Departing Spirits" (985), a mother and infant child, the "motive" somewhat resembling a work by Monti, has great elegance, but elegance bordering on ornamentalism, and lacking the spiritual refinement that such a master as Flaxman, for instance, would have given to the theme. Other works in the poetical or ideal class are a very pretty and vivacious "Cupid" (943), by Mr. R. Jackson; "The Lady in the Enchanted Isle" (923), by Mr. W. F. Woodington—a bas-relief disfigured in parts by affectation; "Sheherazade" (1042), a bust in good style, by Mr. Landsheer; "Virgo Virginum" (920), another bust, by Mr. Miglioretti, very sweet in expression; "Britannia Unveiling Australia" (1060), by Mr. Halse; "Play," by Mr. Crittenden; "Ophelia," by Mr. Haydon; and "A First Dip," by Mr. Earle.

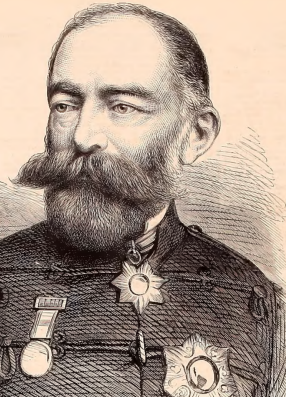
Mr. J. Adams, another of our English artists in that capital of the sculptor's republic, Rome, is represented by several commendable portrait-busts, including one of Mr. Gladstone (1030); and he also sends the best naturalistic statue, "Il Giucatore" (898), a little, half-naked lazzarone playing with a poodle dog. It is very animated, and cleverly modelled with a view to individuality in the anatomy and the character of the head. Mr. Junk's little "Crossing-Sweeper" belongs to the same order of unambitious works. We cannot be quite reconciled to the picturesque style of "The Fisherman's Daughter" (911), by Mr. E. W. Wyon—a sculptor whom we prefer in his portrait-bust (1019).

Several of the most distinguished of the contributors send only portrait busts. Mr. Weekes is one of our few sculptors who, by a broad and masterly treatment and dignity of style, ennobles even the most unpromising heads, and gives to all his portraiture not merely likeness but the general interest and value of art. Though labouring under the disadvantage of being posthumous works, his busts of the late Sir Tatton Sykes (938) and the late Mr. Peter Martin will be found to bear out our remarks—though it may be objected, by those disposed to be hypercritical, that there is rather too uniform a massing of parts in the last. Mr. Noble, another deservedly-esteemed sculptor, is seen under the same disadvantage in his single bust of "Sir Thomas Potter" (939), the first Mayor of Manchester. In all posthumous works there is danger of exaggerating individual characteristics, and this fault seems to us chargeable to the bust, by Mr. Papworth, sen., of the late Mr. Dyce, R.A.—a bust presented to the Royal Academy by Mr. James Brand, the brother-in-law, we believe, of that eminent painter. Mr. Boehm's very cleverly-executed busts are less artificial and partake less of the nature of French charges than on former occasions. The bust of Lord Stratford de Redcliffe has indeed a breadth, gravity, and regulated refinement, for which we should not have given the artist credit. In the bust of the late John Leech, Mr. Boehm has also seized the most characteristic traits of expression with rare felicity. Mr. G. Fontana sends a spirited and natural bust of General Cucchiari (1015). Very creditable portrait busts are also contributed by Mr. G. G. Adams, particularly that of "General Sir Alexander K. C. Kennedy," which, as being posthumous, is the more commendable; by Mr. Marshall Wood, especially his lady subjects (954 and 1028); by Mr. W. Davis, Mr. John Watkins (933); by Mr. Thornycroft, Mr. J. D. Draksford (956); and Mr. Martin (1043).

Of glyptics the best are the cameos by J. Ronca, and some medals by J. S. and A. B. Wyon.

Dr. Salviati exhibits a specimen of the mosaic decoration which is being revived of late; but this specimen is so diminutive in size as to argue the want of a proper appreciation of the right use of the material. Mosaic has great capabilities, and also great limitations. Employed as an architectural embellishment on a scale sufficiently large for a grand but simple design, and viewed at a sufficient distance for the mechanical nature of the work not to be seen, it is invaluable, on account of its sober richness and durability; but, employed in a way to come immediately under the eye, it is only calculated to excite vulgar wonder, it can only be considered as a curiosity, and must be ranked rather with virtù than with art.

The well-known picture by Sir George Hayter, "Latimer Preaching at St. Paul's Cross," has been purchased of Mr. Graves, Pall-mall, by a descendant of the eminent divine residing at Philadelphia.



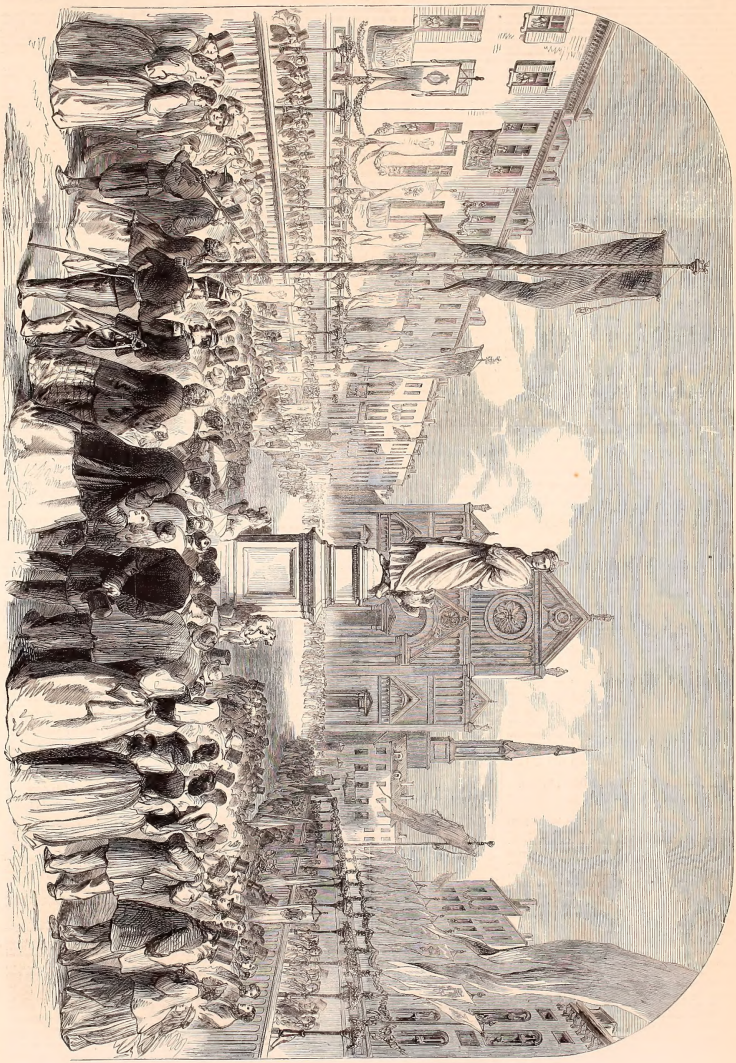
The late Prince de Metternich was a hard worker, and when in the summer he retired to his princely residence at Johannisberg, or to his palaces in Bohemia, he took his principal assistants with him, and he dispatched business with as much regularity as if he were still in Vienna. His leisure hours were employed in the writing of private memoirs, comprehending the political events with which he was identified. In this way he collected many materials of contemporaneous history, which are now in the possession of his eldest son, the Ambassador of the Emperor of Austria at Paris, who is at full liberty to exercise his own discretion as to the publication of them.

A return, issued on Wednesday, shows that, in the twelve months ending April 11 of the present year, there were in the several Bankruptcy Courts of London, Birmingham, Bristol, Exeter, Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester, and Newcastle, 194 bankruptcies in which creditors agreed to arrangement, forty-six annulled bankruptcies, sixty-four in which managers were appointed to act under inspection of creditors, three in which bankrupts' estates sustained losses by the failure or defalcation of creditors' assignee, and 634 sales by order of Commissioners before the day appointed for the choice of assignees.

The Havre journals announce the arrival at that port of the Government transport Truite, which was last year placed at the disposal of M. Miller, of the Institute, when charged with archæological explorations in Asia Minor. The Truite brings to France numerous antiquities discovered by that gentleman at Thassos, a small desert island about ten miles from Mount Athos, and others from Salonica, which were some time since presented to the Emperor by the Sultan. The objects brought from Thassos consist of sarcophagi, capitals and shafts of columns, and fragments of statues, all of fine white marble and well executed. Also a marble bas-relief, 18 ft. long, apparently representing a nuptial ceremony. The figures are about 3 ft. high, and round the heads of several is a fillet of shining metal, supposed to be the remains of a crown of foliage of the same metal. The marbles from Salonica formed part of a portico of majestic height, and consist of capitals of the largest size, fragments of the entablature, friezes, and columns, and also four double monolith-caryatides, 8 ft. high. The whole are of white marble, and belong to the best period of Greek art. M. Miller passed four months in his explorations, and the results obtained are valuable both in an archæological and an artistic point of view.

THE LATE GENERAL KMETY.

GENERAL GEORGE KMETY, who assumed the name of Ismail Pacha when he entered the Turkish military service, was born, in the year 1814, at Pokoncsy, a village near Rima Szombath, in the Gomörer county, Hungary, where his father was a Protestant clergyman. Having lost his father when he was but five or six years of age, he was brought up by his uncle, John Schulek, also a clergyman, at Nyiregyhaza, and received his education first in the grammar school of that place, then in the Protestant College of Pesth, and afterwards in the Lyceum of Presburg. Here he contended for a scholarship in a German University, and was successful; but, in consequence of an error made by the clerk of the managing committee, the reward was accidentally bestowed on another young man of the same name. This disappointment, it is said, induced George Kmetty to give up the notion of pursuing a learned career. He went to Vienna and entered a military college to qualify himself for the profession of arms. In 1835 he received his first commission, in the 19th Regiment of Hungarian Infantry. He was promoted but slowly to the higher ranks, and in 1846 held the command of a company in the battalion of his regiment which was employed to suppress the insurrection of the Croats, previously to the breaking out of the war between Hungary and the Austrian Empire. When that war began, Kmetty devoted himself to the service of his native country, and soon became one of its most distinguished military leaders. At the taking of Buda, on the 21st of May, he, at the head of his division, stormed the intrenchments near the bridge, and in that action received a wound. At Ocorna, on the 13th of June, he inflicted a signal defeat on the Austrians under General Wiest. On the 27th of that month he was engaged at Thaszi with equal success, after which he was sent, with his division, to the Lower Danube, where, on the 16th of July, he forced the Austrians to raise the siege of Peterwardein. In the unfortunate Battle of Temeswar, on the 9th of August, he commanded the extreme left wing, and alone retired in good order; so that, on the 15th of August, two days after the surrender of Görgey's army, he fought, on the heights of Lugos, the last battle of the Hungarian war, which secured the retreat of Kossuth and the other refugees into Turkey. General Kmety himself followed them, and resided at Aleppo till the end of 1851, when he came, with the others, to England, and published an account of some of the most important transactions of the war. At the outbreak of the Russian War, in 1853, he returned to Turkey; and, having become a nominal adherent to the Moslem faith, was appointed to the command of a division in the army of Anatolia. He subsequently commanded the garrison of Kars, and retired, with great skill and fortitude, the overwhelming force of the besiegers, till the arrival of General Fenwick Williams. The battle on the 29th of September, 1855, in which General Kmety, on the heights of Takmuss, defeated a Russian army of 30,000 men, was one of the most remarkable incidents of that siege. For several years past he has been living in retirement in this country. We have recorded his death, which took place in London, a few weeks ago. Our portrait is from a photograph by Messrs. Mayall.



THE LATE HUNGARIAN GENERAL KMETY, ISHMAEL PACHA.

THE DANTE FESTIVAL AT FLORENCE.

THE proceedings at Florence on Sunday, June 14, in celebration of the six-hundredth birthday of the greatest Italian poet, have been related and commented upon in this Journal; and our last Number contained a representation of the statue of Dante, on its pedestal, as designed by the sculptor Enrico Pazzi, of Ravenna. The scene which presented itself upon the ceremony of uncovering this noble monument, in front of the Church of Santa Croce, in the presence of the King of Italy and of a most enthusiastic assembly of spectators, forms the subject of one of our present illustrations; and another Engraving shows the aspect of the procession of deputies of nearly all the Italian municipalities and of the universities and learned societies, as it moved through the streets of Florence on its way to the Piazza di Santa Croce, where it was met by the King. The open square before the new marble façade of the fine old church had been converted into a temporary amphitheatre. The screen which ran all round it was ornamented with seventy-seven alternate bas-reliefs and portraits: the thirty-seven bas-reliefs representing a series of scenes from the life of the poet; the forty portraits, the series of his commentators from the fourteenth century to the present day, commencing with Jacopo della Lana and Pietro Alighieri, and ending with Rossetti, Lamennais, Cesare Balbo, and Torri. Over the bas-reliefs and portraits floated the banners of the eighty-one Tuscan communes; below them those of the chief communes of Italy—each flagstaff having attached to it an appropriate inscription from Dante's poems. The musicians, vocal and instrumental, were stationed on the steps of the church; on the benches within the inclosure, on the two sides of the square, the various deputations took their place; whilst at the other end, facing the church and the front view of the statue, were two large wooden galleries—one for ladies, the other for that portion of the public which had been so fortunate as to secure tickets. A temporary throne beneath an awning had been erected for the King; and soon the cheers of the multitude announced his approach. Very shortly after his arrival the statue was uncovered, and then, first the Mayor of the city, and next Professor

THE SEXCENTENARY FESTIVAL OF THE BIRTH OF DANTE AT FLORENCE: PROCESSION OF THE MUNICIPALITIES OF ITALY.

THE SEXCENTENARY FESTIVAL OF DANTE AT FLORENCE: INAUGURATION, BY THE KING OF ITALY, OF THE STATUE OF DANTE IN THE PIAZZA DI SANTA CROCE.

Giuliani, who occupies in the College of Florence a chair specially dedicated to the study of Dante, addressed to the King remarks appropriate to the occasion. At the close of the ceremony the deputations from the various municipalities were free to present to the city of Florence, in the person of its Gonfaloniere, the banners which they had carried in the procession, and the crowd quietly dispersed to their mid-day repose. In the afternoon there was a regatta on the Arno; and in the park or meadow of the Cascine a tourney in the costumes of the fourteenth century, in commemoration of the peace concluded in May, 1364, between Guelphs and Ghibellines. This, with other sports and gymnastic displays, encouraged by the presence of the King, delighted the Florentine population. In the evening the whole city was illuminated. The winding river, the graceful bridges, and the long streets of houses on each side the line, were represented by streaming lines and steady masses of flame. Brunelleschi's dome and Giotto's campanile beautifully revealed the sombre dark symmetry of night. Far away up the hill, among the cypresses, the façade of Sir Sam Sloniaio shone out in a blaze of light; whilst, within the heart of the city, the Bargello seemed on fire; and, soaring above them all, the lofty tower-bearing tower of the Palazzo Vecchio shone as brightly as the rest of the city.

BIRTHS.

At Grafton-street, Lady Alice Hamilton, of a son.
At Clarendon-square, Lady Eustace Cecil, of a son.
At Creagh, Skibbereen, Ireland, Lady Emily Bocher, of a daughter.
At Cromwell-road, South Kensington, Lady Augusta Fane, of a son.
On the 25th ult., at St. Margaret's, Twickenham, the wife of Henry Wm. Powell, Esq., of a daughter.
On the 26th ult., at Phœnix House Cambridge-heath, Hackney, N.E., the wife of Robert Jesse Chilling-worth, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 1st inst., at St. James's, Piccadilly, by the Rev. H. Hoddinott, M.A., Rector of Balsham, Cambridge, Devon, nephew of the bride, assisted by the Rev. H. Bridges, M.A., Henry Wilson, second son of John W. Bridges, Esq., of Wellington, Somerset, to Mary Elizabeth, youngest daughter of the late Rev. Humphrey Griffith, Colonel Commandant Griffith.
On the 31st ult., at Stoxford, Lincolnshire, by the Vicar (brother of the bride), Thomas Hare, Esq., of Lincoln, to Eleanor Mary, eldest of the late Rev. Richard Yarborough, D.D.
On the 29th of March, at Valparaiso, Chili, by the Rev. Richard Dennett, Edward Hanson Esq., C.B., to Catalina Smith, second daughter of Peter King, Esq., England.

DEATHS.

On the 28th ult., at 7, Walterville-road, Upper Hornsey-rise, London, N., William Carleton, infant son of William Lewers, Esq., barrister-at-law.
In Strathmore-road, the Hon. T. E. Bruce, eldest son of Thomas, Esq., aged 69.
At Hastings, after a protracted illness, Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. G. Elliot, the youngest son of Gilbert, second Earl of Minto, aged 37.
On Ascension Day, at 23, Bouverie-street, Fleet-street, Harriet Ann, the beloved wife of Captain H. Hamilton Beamish, R.N., and daughter of John Rister Rister, Esq., and Lady Louisa Harriet Hamilton, of Richard Park, Carnforth.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 10.

SUNDAY, June 4.—Whit Sunday. John Frith, Reformer, burnt at Smithfield, 1533.
MONDAY, 5.—St. Boniface, apostle of Germany, martyred, 755. Mozart, aged seven, performed at a concert in London, 1764. The Montgolfiers ascended in a fire-balloon, 1783.
TUESDAY, 6.—Death of Lord George Anson, the circumnavigator, 1762. Garibaldi born, 1806.
WEDNESDAY, 7.—Ember Week. John Rennie, engineer, born, 1761. Royal Academy founded by George III., 1768. Battle of Prague, 1757.
THURSDAY, 8.—Death of Josephine Beauharnais, 1814. The Austrians defeated at Montignano by General Baraguay d'Hilliers, 1800.
FRIDAY, 9.—Birth of George Stephenson, engineer, 1781. James Nasmyth patented his steam-hammer, 1842. Full Moon, 6h. 48m.
SATURDAY, 10.—Christopher Tyerdet, 1., Regent of Denmark, and Queen Cydnee, 1396. Memorial of the Great Exhibition of 1851 uncovered, 1861.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 10.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A. h. m.	M. A. h. m.	M. A. h. m.	M. A. h. m.	M. A. h. m.	M. A. h. m.	M. A. h. m.
10 31 11 51	11 11	11 31	11 51	12 11	12 31	12 51

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.
Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.		WIND.
	Barometer corrected and reduced to 32°.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Maximum in the Sun's Rays.	Minimum on the Grass.	General Direction.	Movement in Miles.	Rain in Inches.
	Inches.	°	°	0–10	°	°		Miles.	Inches
18	29·743	52·2	69·0	7·1	59·3	46·9	S. SSE.	178	·130
19	30·122	50·4	68·5	4·3	63·2	46·0	SSE.	97	·000
20	30·164	48·4	63·1	3·3	66·2	45·1	SSE. to S.	160	·000
21	29·838	51·6	68·7	7·2	62·6	47·1	SSW. to WSW.	221	·060
22					64·2	47·0			·000
23	29·932	51·4	54·9	3·0	72·7	39·6	SW. S.		·000
24	29·815	52·1	68·3	5·5	62·6	43·6	SW. WSW.		·100

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m. :—

Barometer in inches corrected	29·844	29·844	29·866	29·866	29·903	29·897	29·871	29·774
Temperature of Air	61·0°	60·6°	66·2°	63·2°	65·2°	64·4°	64·0°	64·0°
Temperature of Evaporation	57·0°	56·0°	60·0°	58·0°	60·0°	59·0°	59·0°	59·0°
Direction of Wind	S.S.E.	S.S.E.	S.S.E.	S.S.E.	S.S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 3, 1865.

The pick and flower of British cavalry has been signally defeated by the French under whose guns it is lounging. After this we may surely be permitted to hope that not the most Anglophobic of Frenchmen will ever recur to a certain charge of British cavalry which, just fifty years ago, achieved a remarkable success. The incident is recalled, and will be recalled in more of Waterloo. There has been a suggestion that half a century of peace between the neighbours should be made the subject of a celebration like 1865. The celebration has taken place at Epsom; and, if medals are to be struck, let these have on effigy of Gladiateur. The Blue ribbon is now a French ribbon.

We believe that the result of the great race has given sincere pleasure to almost all who have not lost their money. The lower orders have not quite conquered all their prejudices, nor was it to be expected. A few vulgar cries that were raised at Epsom against "the Frenchmen" were the proof that civilisation has yet got work to do; but a proof that it has done great work was to be heard in the shouts that hailed the victor. English love of fair play was manifested everywhere on Wednesday. Twenty years ago we were equally fond of fair play, but we had then hatreds and antipathies, the effects of years of antagonism, to get over. Since that time the nations have been better acquainted, the railways have placed us on visiting terms, the telegraph and cheap postage have made us correspondents, the International Exhibitions have made us friendly rivals, and the treaty has made us partners. Now we become playmates, and England is perfectly good-humoured, though in the great contest of all she has received a heavy fall. The international race will henceforth be an institution, for we cannot imagine that the French stables will ever be content henceforth to be unrepresented on the Downs.

The one great English holiday is over. There is no other day which brings all classes together, and there is no other race which rouses the whole country. Even the Derby does not excite the aristocracy, and Doncaster and Newmarket mean business. But everybody fancies himself concerned in the Derby, and manages to become so within a few days of the race, whether he has a terrible "book," or whether he has only backed the starter in a sixpenny sweepstake. The Derby is not a lady's race, for a popular holiday can hardly be cleared of certain features of which the most refined among us would not willingly take cognisance. Yet in the event of the day the ladies do take a great interest, as the gloves will comprehend, to their satisfaction, during the next few days. This year "the fairer portion of creation" had special reason for that interest, inasmuch as it was matter of notoriety that other motives than a mere love of sport or gain had brought certain horses into the list, and though circumstances changed, and those who had been rivals were drawn together in the turf world, and failed to be rivals there, we believe that there was still a kindly hope that one of those might be repaid, by his having getting a good place, for an exertion prompted by a feeling which no woman condemns in any servant, the prince of Wales not being to be present this year, and such an intimation given to every festival an additional éclat. The weather promised to be fine, and kept its promise. A new railway opened opportunely to deliver hundreds from a fatiguing inconvenience, and a perfection of the fly system. In short, there were several additions to the ordinary excitements of the day, and we do not remember a Derby Day on which England had so thoroughly resolved to enjoy itself.

For once, there has been something new to say about proceedings which have been so often described from almost every conceivable point of view that despairing writers seemed to have resolved to use their old descriptions, mutatis mutandibus. The exceptional point of view, that which it would be hopeless to take before the race, but which may be tolerated afterwards, when people have spent their money, and are rather weary of it, is the question of the morality of whether they have really enjoyed themselves so much after all, is a serious one. We are not in the least inclined to preach on the subject, but it is possible to be rational without preaching. Taste for the amusements of the people is to all such festivals, and who would gladly, were it possible, put down the Epsom races and all others. They allege that, independently of the vices inherent in the racing system itself, those who find no amusement in it would find worse. Be that as it may, we do not hear much which no well-ordered person desires to see and hear, indulge in excesses, and are to a certain extent vulgarised. They urge that an educated person ought not to take pleasure in those which disgust others, and that, inasmuch as the latter is certainly not improved by the races, his superiors must be demoralised—all of which has some truth in it, but all the truth in it more than there is some also, in the Derby. It is enough that it is a serious thing to bring all classes together, even with the aid of so rough an introduction as the road to Epsom; that thousands of opportunities are afforded for proof that no orders of Englishmen are so totally estranged as to prevent good humour on holiday; and that a good deal of good common feeling is generated. It is not denied that the vicious and the vulgar go to the Downs; but where do they not go, and it seems to us that eighty per cent of decent people should be deprived of amusement because twenty per cent of the worthless insist on sharing it. The true economist sees nothing very dreadful in a population of a million and a half losing only a little extravagance when for the rest of the year it is industrious and careful; and it may be added, that it is only by means of weeks of foresight and saving that many thousands are enabled to enjoy the day. Of the mid-winter waste of time, we fear that those who urge that argument are in the rear of sanitary discovery. The physician tells us that we are all living in a high-pressure age, and that most men work too much and too continuously. It would be by no means a bad thing that a day of utter and desperate idleness, involving, however, a great deal of hard work, should be forced upon those who are, for the greater part of the year, tied to the fiercely whirling wheels of trade and mind-swearying business. Deducting the smaller from the larger sum of argument, there is an ample balance in favour of going to the Derby; and as it does not signify in the slightest de gree which way the balance inclines—for the Derby will be run, and the members of the Parliament which rises in its honour—such a summing-up is perhaps only a justifiable conventionality, happily required at very distant intervals only.

The annual meeting of the Anti-Slavery Society was held, on Monday evening, at the London Tavern, the Samuel Gurney presiding. A report made congratulatory allusion to the great progress of the anti-slavery cause in almost every part of the globe addressed the meeting.

The Queen has given orders for the appointment of Robert Gilmore Lindesay-Bethune, C.B., her Majesty's agent and Consul-General in Egypt, to be a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath. Her Majesty has also given orders for the appointment of Brigadier William Moore, M.L., Bird Regiment, and Surgeon-Major Henry Burges Barker, 1st Perguna Regiment of Infantry, to be Companions of the Bath.

Pursuant to the memorial of the general director of ways and communications, and a report presented by the Governor-General of Southern and New Russia, the Emperor has ordered that the Port of Odessa is to be applied to the widening and improvement of the port of Odessa. Russian and foreign engineers are to compete in the presentation of plans. The work is to be begun in the present year, and ten years will be given for the completion of them.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, with the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Balmoral Castle, in the enjoyment of good health.

On Wednesday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Louise, drove in the vicinity of the castle. Later in the day the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Arthur, drove to the Lynn of Muick and Birkhall. The cottagers upon the estates of Balmoral and Abergeldie were presented with gifts of flannel, tea, sugar, and other useful articles in commemoration of her Majesty's birthday.

On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in the neighbourhood of the castle. This was the nineteenth anniversary of the birthday of Princess Helena. The girls of the Queen's school presented a handsome bouquet of the day with tea, beneath the trees in front of the castle, and afterwards they had various amusements and sports. The Queen and Princess Louise, and the members of the Royal family were present during a part of the entertainments. The Rev. A. Campbell had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louise and attended by Miss Bowater, drove in the vicinity of the castle. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and the Hon. Mrs. A. Gordon, drove to Castle Grandon.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louise, drove out. Subsequently her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and the Hon. Mrs. A. Gordon, went up Glen Gelder and returned by Allt-na-Guilhasan.

On Sunday Princess Helena and Princess Louise attended Divine service in the morning at the parish church of Crathie. The Queen, Princess Helena, and Princess Louise, attended by the Duchess Dowager of Athole, were present at the afternoon service at Crathie Church. The Rev. Dr. Caird performed both services. The Duke of Argyll and the Rev. Dr. Caird had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louise, drove out. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove to the Linn of Muick. Lord and Lady Ely and the master of Lanesborough accompanied by the Duke de Brabant, honoured the Queen's quarters with their presence.

On Saturday last the Queen went to the South Kensington Museum, and presided at a meeting of the commission for the Paris Industrial Exhibition. Among the visitors to the Queen and Princess, accompanied by Princess Mary of Cambridge and the Duke de Brabant, drove out. In the evening the Princess Royal had a dinner party. The company included the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary, the Duke de Brabant, Prince and Princess Teck, the Viscount and Countess of Dornberg, the Duke of Rutland, the Belgian Minister and Mme. Van de Weyer, the Hanoverian Chargé-d'Affaires and Baroness Blome, the Earl and Countess of Westmoreland, the Earl and Countess of Macclesfield, the Countess of Morton, Earl Granville, Earl Cowper, the Earl of Sefton, Sir Charles and Lady Mary Wood, Lieutenant-General Sir Hugh Rose, Sir Rutherford Alcock, Mr. Laurence Oliphant, Colonel Bruce, Colonel Keppel, Colonel Grant, Baron de Wykerlooth, M. Brewer, and Dr. Smith (in attendance on the Duke of Brabant). Subsequently Colonel Knollys, Mr. Ponsonby, Colonel Keppel, Dr. Gunz, Mdlle. G. Schubert, and M. Joseph Labor (pianist to the Duke of Brabant) had the honour of playing and singing after dinner. Mr. W. G. Cusins accompanied on the pianoforte.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service in the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Rev. the Sub-Dean, the Rev. J. Antrobus, and the Rev. A. Berry officiated. The officiating clergymen.

On Monday the Prince attended the House of Lords. The Princess, attended by the Countess of Morton, drove out. In the evening the Prince, accompanied by the Duke de Brabant, honoured the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland with his company at dinner, at Stafford House. The Princess, attended by the Countess of Morton, in the evening drove to Stafford House, and the Duchess with her presence at a ball at Stafford House.

On Tuesday the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. Subsequently his Royal Highness, accompanied by the Duke de Brabant, drove to Hampton Court. The Princess, attended by the Countess of Morton, took a drive.

On Wednesday the Prince, accompanied by the Duke de Brabant, drove to Epsom and was present at the "Derby." The Princess, attended by the Countess of Morton, took a drive. The Duke de Brabant took leave of the Prince and Princess, and left Marlborough House for Dover, en route for Brussels. In the evening the Prince dined with the Duke of Cambridge at Gloucester House.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Exeter and Lady Victoria Cecil have arrived at the family residence in Grosvenor-square, from Burghley House, Stamford, for the season.

Marquis Conyngham arrived at his residence in Hamilton-place, Piccadilly, from Slane Castle, on the 30th ult., to stay in London.

Earl and Countess Percy have left town for Alnwick Castle, Northumberland.

Earl and Countess Craven and Lady Emily Craven have arrived at their mansion in Charles-street, Berkeley-square, from Combe Abbey, near Coventry.

The Earl and Countess of Coventry have arrived at Thomas's Hotel, Berkeley-square, from Croome.

Earl and Countess Delaware have arrived in town from Beckhord Park, Sussex, for the season.

The Earl of Orford has left town for Gosford Castle, Ireland.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

A marriage is arranged between the Hon Cecily Stuart Wortley, sister of Lord Wharncliffe, and Mr. Edward Henry Scott, M.P., second son of the late Duchess of Beaufort; between the Hon. Emma Lascelles, Maid of Honour to the Queen, and Mr. Edward Cavendish, Fifth Duke of Devonshire; between Miss Stuart, daughter of Mr. Henry and Lady Louisa Stuart, and the Hon. Mr. Ponsonby, C.B., the newly-appointed Military Attaché at Vienna; between Miss Black, niece of Sir Polydore, and Mr. Francis Maurice Wingfield, son of the Rev. Powerscourt; between Miss Mary Sotheby, daughter of the late Admiral Sotheby, and Mr. Edward Hamilton Bruce, son of the Rev. R. G. Bulwer; and between Miss Constance Adeane, youngest daughter of Mr. H. J. Adeane, M.P., and Mr. Hugh Smith, son of Mr. John Abel Smith, M.P. The last-named marriage will be celebrated with Captain Percy, 1st Life Guards, will take place on the 10th inst.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Duchess of Cambridge gave a dinner party, on Sunday evening, at Cambridge Cottage, Kew.

The Duke of Cambridge entertained the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary and a select circle at dinner, on Monday evening, at Gloucester House. His Royal Highness entertained the Duke de Brabant and a large and brilliant company at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at Gloucester House.

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge were honoured by the presence of the Prince and Princess of Wales at dinner, on Saturday last, at Cambridge Cottage, Kew.

At Gloucester House, Twickenham. Among the company invited to meet their Royal Highnesses were the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary, the Count and Countess de Paris, the Duke and Duchess de Chartres, the Duke de Brabant, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and the Countess of Dornberg, the Prince de Castel, and a distinguished circle of the members of the Corps Diplomatique and of the aristocracy.

The Count and Countess de Paris received a select company at dinner, on Saturday night, at Twickenham.

His Excellency Mr. Van de Weyer, the Belgian Minister, was honoured by the presence of the Duke de Brabant at dinner, on Tuesday evening, at the Belgian Legation, in Arlington-street, Piccadilly. A select circle was invited to meet his Royal Highness.

The Archbishop of York and Mrs. Thomson entertained a select party at dinner, on Saturday evening last, at their residence in Portman-square.

* The Duke and Duchess of Sutherland gave an entertainment, on Monday night, at Stafford House, in honour of the Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales. The Prince and the Duke de Brabant dined with the noble Duke and Duchess previously to the evening party. Their Royal Highnesses returned to meet their Royal Highnesses. The Princess of Wales, attended by the Countess of Morton, arrived from Marlborough House shortly after ten o'clock. The Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary, the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and the Countess of Dudley, and upwards of 400 of the Corps Diplomatique and of the élite of society were present at the ball.

The Duke and Duchess of Manchester entertained a select circle at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at their residence in Stanhope-street.

Lord Ashburton gave a dinner party on Tuesday evening, at his family residence in Grosvenor-square. The reunion was attended by nearly forty distinguished guests.

The Earl and Countess of Carlisle entertained a large party at dinner on Monday.

The Earl of Wilton entertained a distinguished company at dinner, on Monday night, at their residence in Grosvenor-square.

The Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue and Frances Countess Waldegrave were married by special licence, on Wednesday last, at the residence in Carlton-gardens of the bride's father.

Viscount Palmerston resumed his receptions, on Saturday evening last, in Cambridge House. The reception was attended by the Duke of Cambridge, the Duke of Brabant, by the principal members of the Corps Diplomatique, and by a large circle of the élite of society.

Lord and Lady Colchester had a dinner party, on Tuesday evening, at their residence in Eaton-square.

Lady Molesworth entertained Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, the Countess of Dudley, and a distinguished company at dinner on Monday evening.

Lord and Lady Londesborough received a select circle at dinner, on Wednesday night, at their residence in Arlington-street.

The Bishop of London and Mrs. Tait entertained a large party at dinner, on Monday, at their residence in St. James's-square.

The Speaker entertained the Archbishop of York, the Archbishop of Dublin, and a large party at dinner, on Monday evening. Lady Charlotte Denison had his official residence in the New Palace Yard, Westminster, on Wednesday night, at an assembly in the evening, at the Speaker's residence.

The Lord Chief Justice of England received Her Royal Highness the Duke of Brabant, and a distinguished company at dinner on Tuesday evening.

The Duke of Brabant, by the principal members of the Corps Diplomatique, had a large choice of the élite of society.

Lord and Lady Colchester had a dinner party, on Tuesday evening, at their residence in Eaton-square.

Lady Molesworth entertained Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, the Countess of Dudley, and a distinguished company at dinner on Monday evening.

Lord and Lady Londesborough received a select circle at dinner, on Wednesday night, at their residence in Arlington-street.

The Bishop of London and Mrs. Tait entertained a large party at dinner, on Monday, at their residence in St. James's-square.

The Speaker entertained the Archbishop of York, the Archbishop of Dublin, and a large party at dinner, on Monday evening. Lady Charlotte Denison had his official residence in the New Palace Yard, Westminster, on Wednesday night, at an assembly in the evening, at the Speaker's residence.

The Lord Chief Justice of England received Her Royal Highness the Duke of Brabant, and a distinguished company at dinner on Tuesday evening.

The Duke of Brabant, by the principal members of the Corps Diplomatique, had a large choice of the élite of society.

The annual ball in connection with the Yorkshire Society took place, on Monday night, at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's, and was attended in a very numerous party.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Rev. C. A. Swainson, D.D., Norrisian Professor, has been appointed Lady Margaret Professor of Divinity, in room of the late Dr. Jeremie.

The Government has consented to the consecration of a Bishop of Rupert's Land, notwithstanding the recent decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. The Rev. Robert Machray, M.A., late of Jesus College, Cambridge, has been appointed Bishop.

A beautiful stained glass window, intended as a memorial of the late Prince Consort and the other founders of the church, is being placed in the north aisle of St. Mary's, Bryanston-square. It is expressly designed, and will be lights, and will form the east window of the edifice facing High-street. The work is executed by Messrs. Warrington, O'Connor, and Company.

A temporary church for a new ecclesiastical district in South Lambeth was opened for public worship, and service will be performed there until the permanent church is finished. It is to be dedicated to the Holy Trinity, and is situated in Vauxhall-walk. The Rev. Richard Robert Cope, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford, formerly Curate of Upton Cheyney, Bristol, has been appointed Minister of the new district.

The Church of St. Stephen, which has been erected in one of the most populous districts of Carlisle, at the cost of Miss Burdett Coutts, was consecrated on the 18th inst. by the Bishop of Carlisle. The edifice is in the Early and Decorated style. The Rev. Thomas James Carwell, M.A., Rector of St. Margaret's, Lothbury; Canon Trevor, M.A., Hulme; H. Brocklehurst, M.A., Rector of Somerby, Lincolnshire, reader at the Rolls Chapel; and Canon Dobinson, Vicar of Lowther, preached. The Rev. Henry Frederick Temple, D.D., Head Master of Rugby, and Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen.

A new east window and reredos, from the designs of Mr. Butterfield, of this city, architect, was opened in St. Mary's Church, Upper Spring-gardens. The window has been executed by Messrs. Lavers and Barraud, and contains three early subjects:—the Nativity, the Crucifixion, and the Ascension—surrounded by the emblems of the Passion. The reredos is formed of a mosaic of many different colours and is very elaborately worked. It rests in a compound of different coloured marbles, the centre being a pure white, and the whole is surmounted by a cornice of alabaster. The cost of the work was executed by Messrs. Burke and Co.

The annual meeting of the friends of the Additional Curates Society was held, on Wednesday, at Willis's Room. The Archbishop of Canterbury presided, supported by the Bishop of Oxford, the Bishop of Ely, Mr. Beresford Hope, and others. The annual report of the committee, read by the secretary, the Rev. W. Cadman, stated that the receipts of the society during the past year amounted to £34,039, showing, as compared with the previous year, an increase on the total income of £6,000. The grant for the year amounted to £27,000, given by the Bishop of London's Fund. The number of grants had been 1,000, and the number of parishes in which curates had been placed 1,000, or one grant for every parish having a further increase of 25.

The annual meeting of the National Society was held on Tuesday, at Willis's Rooms. The Archbishop of Canterbury presided. The report stated that the income during the past year was £1,000 less than in the year since 1861, the jubilee of the society. There was a great falling off in the Lenten collections, and some of them would have to be given up. Mr. Hubbard, M.P., moved a resolution approving of the opposition of the committee to the Government scheme for the education of pauper children in workhouses, which, if carried out, would have the effect of withdrawing the children from the influence of the Church to maintain her paternal care over the people, and that the clause in the scheme sanctioned a lesson last of ordinary Christian morality.

Both Houses of the Convocation of Canterbury assembled yesterday week. In the Upper House the Bishop of Oxford proposed an address to the Queen on the occasion of the Episcopate, which was agreed to and ordered to be sent down to the Lower House. In the Lower House the report of the committee on the Burial Laws was presented and read. Some discussion followed on the recommendations of the report, and the House adjourned.

Testimonials have recently been presented to the following clergymen:—To the Rev. Horatio Spurrier, M.A., of Orlel College, Oxford, by the parishioners of New Shoreham, on the occasion of his resignation of the vicarage thereof, on the termination of his duties in that parish, where he presided for upwards of twenty-five years. To the Rev. Thomas Dutton, by the parishioners of St. Paul's, Bridgwood, Dulston, on his attaining his canonical birthday—a complete set of Bishop Jeremy Taylor's sermons, bound in morocco, with gilt edges, and a purse containing £100 in gold, in recognition to the virtues of Godliness by the Bishop of Winchester. To the Rev. Hugh Reginald Haweis, M.A., of Oxford, a new set of robes, by the churchwardens and some of the leading parishioners of Bermondsey.

The following preferments and appointments have recently taken place:—The Rev. H. G. W. Aubrey to be Rector (Dominical) of Hoby, Leicester; Rev. G. G. Hoole, Rector of Hedcorn, to be Rector of Boxley; Rev. G. H. Moises to be Rector of Great Munden; Rev. S. G. Reid to be Rector of Barton St. Mary's, Norfolk; Rev. R. S. Poldrean to be Vicar of Chudleigh; Rev. T. K. Tolan to be Incumbent of Belgrave Chapel; Rev. R. B. Mortimer to be Incumbent of All Souls' Church, Hampstead; Rev. W. Agricola to be Chaplain of the Convict Prison, Wakefield; Rev. J. Francis Bateson, Chaplain of the Convict Prison, Pentonville, to be Rector of Bates to be Perpetual Curate of Wantenden, Suffolk; Rev. G. L. De Carey to be Perpetual Curate of Bromley; Rev. C. T. Maurice to be Minister at King's College School, London, and Assistant Minister at St. Mark's, Notting-hill, to be Assistant Preacher at the Temple.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Several Roman urns have been dug up from a railway cutting at Ashford, near Ferdinghedge, in Kent.

A great fire occurred at the Tyne Docks, Newcastle, on Monday night, destroying about 3,000 tons of Spanish grass. The entire damage done is estimated at £10,000.

The Hampshire Telegraph states that the "honey harvest" began at Alton, in Hants, on the 25th ult.—earlier than was ever known before.

The ninth annual meeting of the Incorporated Association for the Protection of Social Science will be held at Sheffield, under the presidency of Lord Brougham, from the 4th to the 11th of October next.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has consented to lay the first stone of the building to be erected near Dartford on the Church of England Female Penitentiary, which is to be established at Kent on Tuesday next.

A great fire broke out at Nottingham, on Thursday se'nnight, in a warehouse belonging to one of the leading manufacturers there, by which upwards of 100 pieces of valuable lace were destroyed.

Colonel Frank Foster, 4th Dragoon Guards, has been appointed Governor of the Horse in her Majesty's Household, and Colonel Masters will become Comptroller of the Household.

Mr. Andrew Gilmore, a gentleman of Belfast, who lately came into possession of a splendid fortune, invited a few friends to a feed and at the festive board he announced his intention to wash a bucket of notes to be cleaned. By some means not clearly known the yacht sank, and all on board, six in number, were drowned.

Mr. J. A. Russell, barrister-at-law, of the Northern Circuit, has been appointed Q.C. Mr. Armytage, Q.C., as Recorder of Bolton, in Lancashire; Mr. Bray Wrightson, Q.C., as Recorder of Beverley, in Yorkshire; and Mr. Thomas Worthington, of Manchester, Mr. Watt is Recorder of Scarborough, Attorney-General of the Island of Jamaica, and one of the revising barristers for South Lancashire.

At Brasted Park, near Sevenoaks, a waterspout burst close to the mansion, on Tuesday morning, and flooded the lower part of the building, the water rising to the depth of several feet. The basement story of the house was flooded, and the kitchen, pantry, and pleasure-grounds were completely deluged. The damage done to the property is very great. The waterspout also burst on the Kent and Surrey hills, on Tuesday, and other parts of the country report serious floods caused by heavy rains which fell on Monday and Tuesday.

The report of the Irish Commissioners of Education for 1864, which has appeared in the form of Parliamentary papers, states that the average number of children in daily attendance at the 5,000 schools connected with the Board was 515,376, or 54 per cent. In 1863 it was 52 per cent, and the number of schools paid only 26. About 37,000 of the pupils belong to the Established Church, 47,000 to the Presbyterian, and 430,000 to the Roman Catholic. The total of the number is 8462, and in Munster 2943. During the year 1864 the sum of £278,447 was voted by Parliament for the use of the Board. The apparatus cost more than £27,232; the cost of the official establishment at Tyrone House was £5,000; and the cost of the Model Farm and Agricultural Establishment £200 in operation. The model and school farms cost £6793, and the receipts from produce sold £1,000. The cost of the Normal School establishment was a little of about £3500 a year. In the case of the Glasnevin farm, the cost was £1,000 and the receipts £1,000. The cost of the Metropolitan schools was £1,000.

William Darling, father of the celebrated Grace Darling, died at Bamburgh, Northumberland, on Saturday last, in his seventy-second year. He has several years the keeper of the Longstone Lighthouse, Farne Islands, where, some time prior to the year 1838, he and his family lived in the greatest solitude by his days in quiet and repose. It was while living at the Longstone light that the circumstance occurred which has given to the name of Grace Darling a world-wide celebrity. A portion of the wreck of the Forfarshire steamer was discovered on the rocks, and the crew, nine in number, were found on it. Grace, who was then twenty-two years of age, and her father, put off in a boat to the wreck. He stood in the old blue coat with brass buttons which was subsequently presented to him by the Northumberland Humane Society, while Grace remained in the boat. "Are you willing for the service to begin, you will be obliged to go alone," said her father to her, as he was about to leave the boat to go to the wreck. He stood in the old blue coat with brass buttons which was subsequently presented to him by the Northumberland Humane Society, while Grace remained in the boat. "Are you willing for the service to begin, you will be obliged to go alone," said her father to her, as he was about to leave the boat to go to the wreck. "Yes, father, I will go," was the reply. "Then, but that is not the reason why I call your attention to him. You old men have a name to lose, but you young women have not." The passengers are easily impressed, and which once was famous in the farthest corners of the earth.

Arthur George Macpherson, Esq., barrister-at-law, has been made a Queen's Counsel for the county palatine of Durham, by patent.

The Governments of Bavaria and Saxony have resolved to issue a fifth loan amounting to 10,000,000 florins, and have purchased for political offenses in the year 1847.

The ancient Castle of Pontefract, of Popocatepetl, the highest point of land on the North American continent, has recently been made by the Government of Mexico a present to the British Legation.

The following advertisement appears in a Shanghai paper, the Friend of China, of March 7:—"Good Friday.—His Cross Bens.—Orders for these splendid Cheroots can be executed by the Agents of the Firm in the Corinthian, only a faint echoed in England is agitation with the proper men of character to fill the office of Governor of Australian Colonies.

A Stockholm letter states that the Park Theatre of that city was destroyed by fire on the night of the 15th inst. The conflagration attracted almost entirely of wood, the efforts of the firemen to arrest the progress of the flames were unavailing. The Royal Opera House and the theatre before the fire was discovered, and the only person injured was an old man, who broke his leg in jumping from a window. The Royal Theatre, the Royal Academy of Music, and the Park Concerts have announced performances for the benefit of the sufferers.

The second National German Rifle Meeting will take place in Bremen, on the 25th inst., and will last for a fortnight. Like the first meeting, which took place in Frankfort, in 1862, a building has been erected by the Bremen Committee for the reception of the rifles and the shooting of the prizes. The building, which is in the Gothic style of architecture, is described to be distributed as prize, from Zurich, 1000 gulden; from Hamburg, 1000 thalers; and from Bremen, a Cathedral Window, value 1000 thalers.

The Scientific Association, of which M. Le Verrier is the president and the founder, numbers so many members that, at the last meeting, it was found that the Salle Gerson, in the Rue de Lille, was too small to contain them. The meeting was therefore held in the Palais du Corps Législatif, before an overcrowding example, as the magistrates at the Police Courts say, is not infrequently the cause of accidents. The meeting was opened by a speech by M. Le Verrier, who was favourable on the occasion, and the electric light was employed to throw on a screen the various very discoloured objects. M. Le Verrier explained that the planet in question is about 800 times the size of the earth, and at a distance from the sun which is to that of the earth as 39 is to 10; and next, after an interval of 792 hearers, comes the second ring, 7,916 leagues wide; and then, after another interval of 7,916 leagues, comes the third and nearest ring in a rather observer interval of 3116 leagues. The planet Saturn has eight satellites, and the ring is inclined to the ecliptic at an angle of 28 deg. that bottom at present occupies the same position in the heavens as when it was discovered by the astronomer Galileo, in the year 1610.

The Queen has been pleased to appoint the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos one of the commissioners for the Great Exhibition of 1862; by Right Hon. Sir John Pakington, Bart., G.C.B., president of the Institute of Naval Architects; Sir Antonio Brady, Knt., president of the Royal Academy for the time being; William Hosea Ivay, chairman of the council of the Society of Arts; Sir Charles Fox, president of the Institution of Civil Engineers, or the president of the Institute of Mechanical Engineers for the time being; Lord Wrottesley, president of the Royal Astronomical Society; Chamber of Commerce of Bristol, or the chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of Bristol for the time being; and the chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, together with the commissioners appointed on the 27th of April, 1861, to promote the success of the Universal Exhibition to be held in Paris in the year 1867.—Her Majesty's commissioners for the Paris Exhibition held their first meeting at the Foreign Office, Downing-street, Whitehall, on Wednesday last day. The Prince of Wales presided as chairman. There were also present Earl Granville, K.G.; Lord President of the Council; the Duke of Buccleuch and Chandos; the Duke of Sutherland, K.G.; the Marquis of Salisbury, K.G.; the Earl of Derby, K.G.; the Earl of Devon, K.G.; Lord Stanley, M.P.; Lord Wodehouse, K.C.B.; Lord Overstone, G.C.B.; Lord Taunton; Lord Elcho, M.P.; R. Cardwell, M.P.; the Right Hon. Sir Charles Wood, Bart., G.C.B., M.P.; the Right Hon. Sir Stafford Northcote, Bart., C.B., M.P. The ministers decided to divide themselves into twelve or more sub-committees to take charge of the various groups into which the exhibition will be classified.

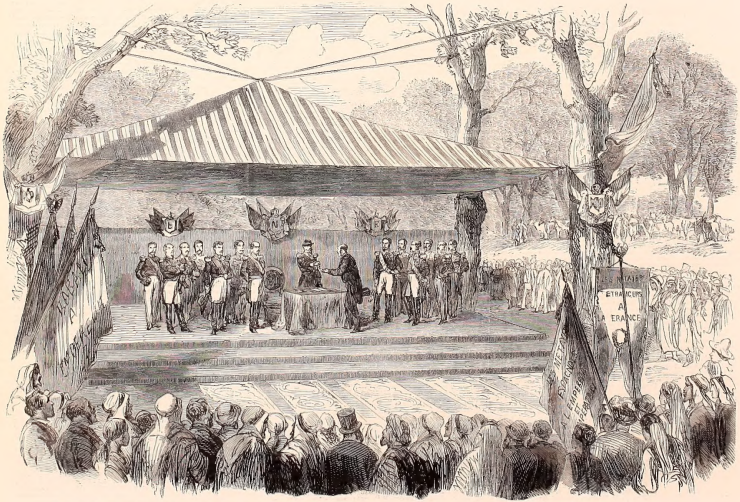
THE VISIT OF THE EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH TO ALGERIA.

The agricultural show at Bou-Farik, on the 6th, and the excursion to Blidah and Medeah, on the 11th ult., were among the most interesting events of the Emperor's sojourn in the Algerine provinces, and are well illustrated by the Engravings in this Number, from the sketches furnished by our Special Artist who has accompanied the Emperor's movements and so far set apon upon Africa soil. Boo-Farik is a railway station, but a few miles from the city of Algiers, and situated in the midst of a fertile plain, which is now well cultivated. Blidah, before the French conquest of Algeria, was, like the Roman Campagna, a pestilential and desert tract of country, infested by malaria and fever. The agricultural settlers in this district are encouraged by the French Government authorities with a yearly distribution of rewards for the best samples of stock and crops and for the highest skill in various farming operations. Upon this occasion the expected presence of the Emperor had brought together a larger assemblage than the lords of the European and of the African population of the district. His Majesty, on arriving at the show-yard of Boo-Farik, was met by the Mayor, M. Ribouleau, with a loyal address of welcome. The platform of the railway station was had with rich carpets and was decorated with an abundance of flowers. The Emperor first went to look at the church, and then passed through the Exhibition, paying minute attention particularly to the collections of agricultural implements and machines. He next ascended the dais, beneath a canopy of tent or marquee, for the reception, where the addresses of the committee were presented, the prize-list was read, and several of the successful competitors were called up to take their rewards from his Majesty's own hands; the remainder of the prizes were sent away on a later period of the day. Around the showyard were drawn up several enormous waggons, the tilts removed and heaped high with men, women, and children, the peasants of the district. An immense crowd flocked a large number bearing the following inscriptions:—"The Farmers of Bab-Ali to the Emperor." "The Farmers of Douera to the Emperor and the Empress!" "The Foreign Farmers to France." Two of the more distinguished inhabitants of the district, Ben Bidah, which is accessible by railway in three quarters of an hour, the Emperor and his suite proceeded to the entrance of the Chiffa, through a narrow gorge of Alpine character, where the road, cut along a sort of cornice half way up the side of the mountain, is overhanging above the torrent Chiffa, which took down upon it from an immense elevation. It was by this wild path that the Emperor passed to Medeah. Here an address was delivered by the Mayor, who was supported by the Municipal Council, the members of the Society of Agriculture, the troops and military authorities, and the populace. His Majesty made his entry into the town under a triumphal arch, of tasteful construction and ornamentation. Our Engraving shows the Emperor passing by the line of troops and corps passing by, and a troop of the irregular Arab cavalry bringing up the rear. The town is seen on the hills in the background, a short distance from the town. The Place Napoleon and the Place d'Armes were admirably decorated. The houses were hung with flags and variegated drapery, and the façades of the houses where there were no flags were covered with green tissues, brilliant carpets and damask stuffs, of which the dresses of the female portion of the native population are usually composed. The balconies of the new hotel and the hotel of the district government, and placed themselves at one of the first windows. The troops here defiled before his Majesty, and after the Spahis came the Chasseurs d'Afrique, with their red burnous, mounted on richly and brilliantly caparisoned horses. Then took place the presentation of the civil and military authorities. The Emperor afterwards took a walk in the town, visiting the public buildings. At eight o'clock the banquet-hall was again the place. All the streets were illuminated, a quadruple line of variegated lamps being suspended from the roofs of the houses. The Arab cavalry were radiant with Bengal lights. His Majesty left Medeah early on the 12th, in the midst of fresh demonstrations of welcome. Before the same afternoon, after visiting, on the road, the copper-mines of Oued Medeha, he arrived at Blidah, which had been decorated with a triumphal arch, at the foot of which were ranged specimens of different productions of metallurgical industry.

THE CITY OF ALGIERS.

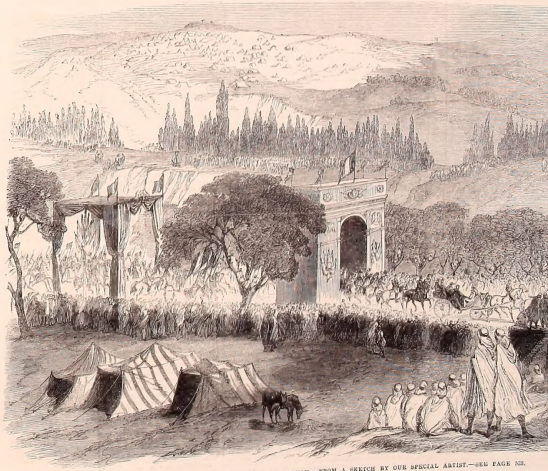
The View of Algiers, which extends across the upper part of the two double pages of this Impression, shows the present aspect of that place, with the buildings most recently erected, and especially the new terrace, called the Boulevard de l'Impératrice, raised upon a series of lofty arches along the sea-front of the city, from the entrance to the sea-wall pier, to the Fort de la Marine of Bab-Azoun on the left. This colossal structure has been executed in the last few years by an English company, of which Sir S. Morton Peto is one of the principal members, but which is represented at Algiers by an ex-Minister of the Interior of the French Republic. The terms of their arrangement, we understand, with the municipality are so favourable, that they may expect to be well remunerated for the cost of the great work they have performed by the sale of the building sites along the new boulevard, which are to remain the property of the contractors. The boulevard, with the entire appearance of Algiers may, perhaps, be comprehended more readily from the accompanying Plan, which is engraved from the annexed descriptive. The modern European part of the city will at once be distinguished, as occupying the lower ground, and all the white old Moorish town, with its dark and narrow streets, and dull white-washed houses, lies upon the slope of the steep hill, crowned with the old citadel or Kesbah, now used as barracks for the French troops, but formerly containing the palace of the Dey. The fortress which stands upon the highest point of the city, to the left hand in our View, is the Fort de l'Empereur. The palace of the French Governor adjoining the Cathedral of St. Philip—originally a mosque, of which we have already spoken—is situated in the Place Malakoff, in the centre of the city, and the Arab quarter here near the meeting-point of the French officials, both civil and military, be found, though each of them probably has a villa in the suburbs. The Arab theatre office—a wooden building upon the landing-stage at the water's edge, below the entrance to the Fort de la Mer, at the head of our View—is a place of disembarkation for travellers upon their arrival in the harbour of Algiers. Just above we see the square tower of the great mosque rising amidst the French roofs, and from which the muezzin used to, and this mixture of Arabic with European styles of architecture, as well as of costume, is most characteristic of the present aspect of the city—about 100,000 souls—is pretty equally divided between the two races.

Sir Charles G. Young, Garter, accompanied by Mr. Courthope, Somerset Herald, left London on Tuesday for Darmstadt, where, on Tuesday next, they will invest his Royal Highness the Grand Duke of Hesse and Rhine, K.G., will invest his Royal Highness the Grand Duke with the badge and insignia of the Most Noble Order of the Garter.



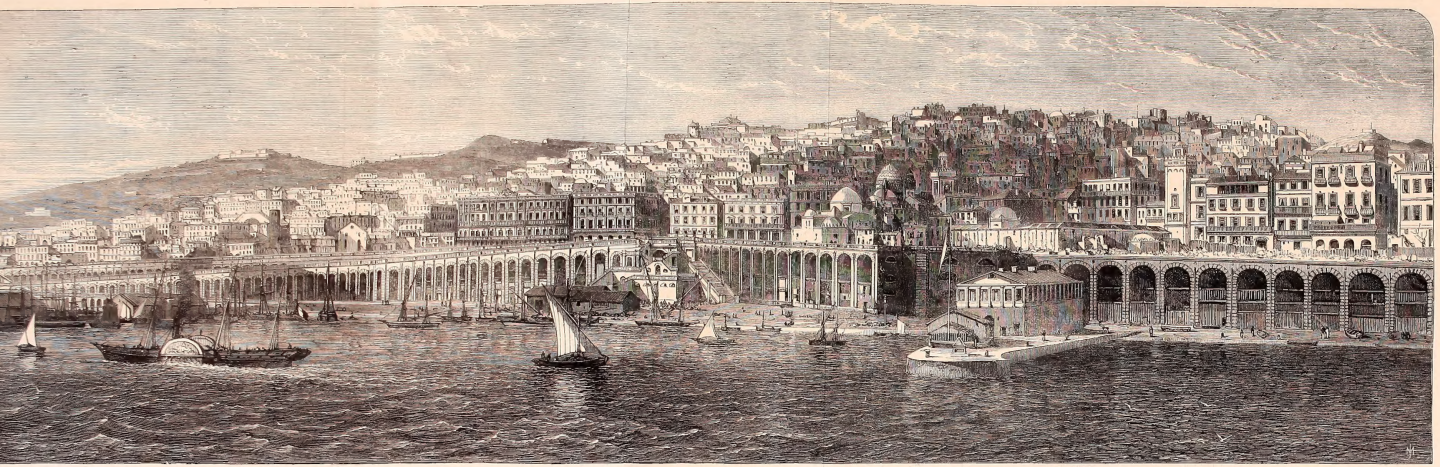
A letter from Mogador, in Morocco, states that a large walled enclosure is now being constructed to serve as an asylum for European intriguers, for additional security to merchants, for whose benefit the British Vice-Consul, with numerous warehouses, shall be erected within the inclosure.

A modern story reaches us from Vienna:—"A wretched-looking old woman applied at a certain inn that city to pledge the only article of value left her—a small gold locket. The clerk coarsely insisted that he acted for the owner when he refused to take it, and the poor woman went away. It soon came out that the old woman found in the clerk her long-lost son. Many years ago, when this woman was keeping a farm of her own at Pumkirchen, in Hungary, her son was carried off by a band of gipsies. He remained unfortunately ever that his mother's cottage had been burnt down, that she had left the village on account of the misfortune they had met with, and had lived in Vienna without meeting, and it was only the locket that led to a recognition.



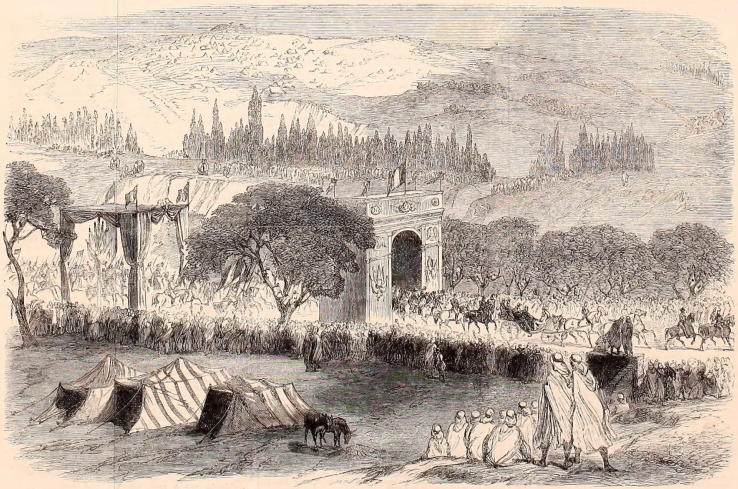
VISIT OF THE EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH TO ALGERIA.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE CITY OF ALGIERS FROM THE SEA.



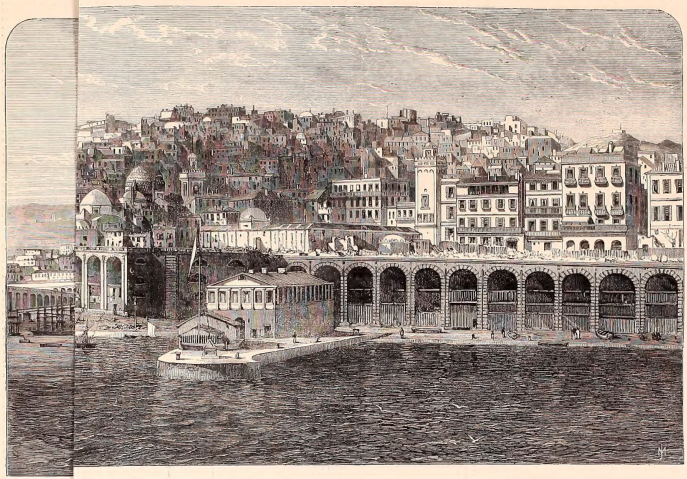
THE EMPEROR DISTRIBUTING THE PRIZES AT THE AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION OF BOU-FARIK, NEAR ALGIERS.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

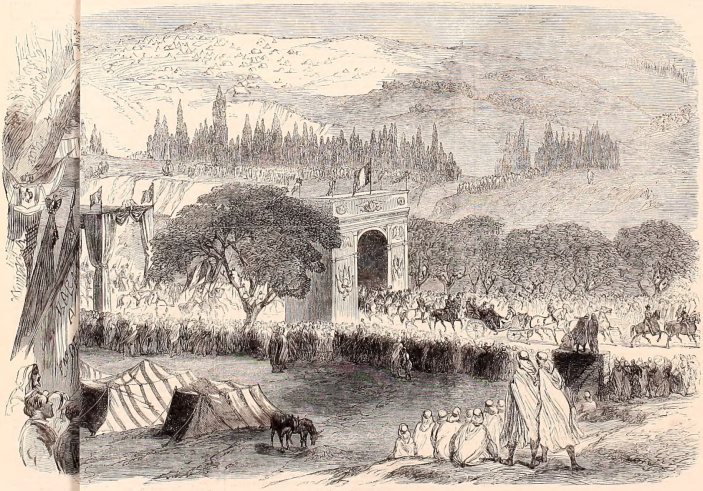
THE CORTEGE OF THE EMPEROR ARRIVING AT MEDEAH.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 525.



VISIT OF THE EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH TO ALGERIA.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE CITY OF ALGIERS FROM THE SEA.





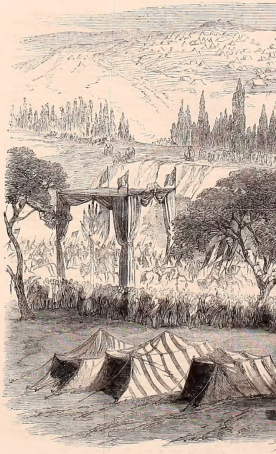
...NG THE PRIZES AT THE AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION OF BOU-FARIK, NEAR ALGIERS.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

THE CORTEGE OF THE EMPEROR ARRIVING AT MEDEAH.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 523.

H TO ALGERIA.

THE CORTEGE OF THE EMPEROR ARRIVING AT MEDEAH.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 523.

THE E



VISIT OF THE EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH TO ALG

GENERAL VIEW OF THE CITY OF ALGIERS FROM THE SEA.

HE AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION OF BOU-FARIK, NEAR ALGIERS.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

THE CORTEGE OF THE EMPEROR ARRIVIN

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

Ten measures of garrulity, says the Talmud, were sent into the world, and the women took nine. In the present generation and in this kingdom of England the tenth is unquestionably in the possession of Mr. Darby Griffith. As everyone knows, he has by an accident recently achieved a very advantageous position in the House as the champion of Colonel Dawkins, inasmuch as he had a case which would ensure his being listened to; but his measure of garrulity, as usual, brimmed over and swamped him. On that night, happily for Mr. Griffith, no matter whatever the result, since he had a long spell of talk, which, with ordinary tact, he might have made uninterrupted, there was a great and unusual gathering of members, it may be partly drawn thither by a question which was to be put to the Prime Minister, involving British diplomacy in relation to the United States; but the main motive was the "affaire Dawkins," with its tone of personality, to say nothing of the not inconsiderable issue in dispute. Everything was so arranged that the least self-complacent of men and members might have been excused if he felt that a sort of heroic halo was spread around him; but who shall describe the beaming countenance, the grand air of condescension, akin to that with which Elliston, as a mock monarch, used to utter to the applauding pit his benediction, "Bless you, my people!" with which Mr. Darby Griffith rose and surveyed his audience? His stature was increased, his form expanded; and the laughing cheers with which he was received were acknowledged with what was intended to be a Louis Quatorze bow. He minced out half-meant apologies for occupying so proud a place; and justified the reception which had been awarded to him—taking it all without qualification—as a proof that he was recognised as a representative of the character and power of the House; and then he went on, pointing out that his opinion on the principle involved was only in accordance with that of the very highest authorities, and therefore he could indorse those persons; and, in short, from first to last so contrived to treat a subject which the House was prepared to accept, even at his hands, seriously and judicially, that he was accompanied all through by laughter which at times, and those when he was putting what he appeared to think his best points, broke out loud and continued long. Unhappy Colonel Dawkins! it needed not the stern, almost contemptuous, argumentation of the Marquis of Hartington, and the ingenious reasoning of General Peel, to drive your case out of the house—it was drivelled out long before.

It may not have been unobserved that once and again, in this column, allusion has been made to certain members who seem to have a fancy for finishing their evenings in the House of Commons in those small hours into which the sittings are often driven, and whose elaborate dinner costume marks them out distinctly. Foremost in this faction is always to be found Mr. Lygon; and he may well be described, looking to the peculiar line he takes, as the leader of the Conservative party after one o'clock in the morning. On this evening a good deal of talk had been got through and not much work done, so that the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who was in temporary leadership, and for some reason was singularly excited, got furious, and set about to sweep away all peddling interposition to the passing of a bill through a stage, by a torrent of words and a whirlwind of gesticulation. While he was in the midst of one of his denunciations, there glided into the house Mr. Lygon, "neatly and trimly dressed, like to a bridegroom," and, reaching the front Opposition bench just as Mr. Gladstone ceased, dropped on the seat just so as to seem to rise, and, without having heard a word of the previous discussion, instantly proceeded to controvert those of Mr. Gladstone's assertions which he had caught as he passed up the floor, and set about, in a fashion common with him, to bait that right honourable gentleman. Now, generally, Mr. Gladstone treats these attacks much as a war-horse would treat a gadfly. Of course he is annoyed by them, but he does not make a fuss about it. This time, however, Mr. Gladstone was just in Hotspur's humour when he too "was pestered with a popinjay which made him mad to see him shine so brisk and smell so sweet," and, above all, "to talk so like a waiting gentlewoman;" and so he turned savagely, and so mauled, and taunted, and ridiculed the honourable—twice honourable, be it understood—member, that it is probable that Mr. Lygon will for the future forego his attempts at such pastime as roasting a Chancellor of the Exchequer at unhallowed hours.

There has been a good deal of the dead level in Parliamentary proceedings; and, in truth, all the proceedings are in a manner spasmodic. There is generally a full house at question time, when there are interesting interpellations on the paper; but during the busy hours of the night, through which debates are carried on very much pro formâ, the attendance is an average of twenty members. When there is anything which is enjoyable, in a Parliamentary sense, there are always plenty to enjoy it; but the dull duty of sitting out prosy discussions, never very adequately performed, is quite ignored just now. There was, therefore, as may be supposed, a disappointment when it was announced, almost at the end of the sitting on Monday, that a sort of party demonstration which had been insinuated by Mr. Disraeli on the Roman Catholic Oath Bill would be neutralised because that right hon. gentleman, who had promised to reveal one of his special mysteries, was indisposed—in fact, had taken another degree in the school of statesmanship by having the gout. Ever since the time of Chatham it has been a peculiarity of statesmen of the highest pretensions to be subject to fits of gout. Everyone knows how the great commoner, after he had sunk into a Peer, used to be martyrised by this malady at critical junctures, and when he and his colleagues could not agree on a question of policy. Can it be that the pseudo-Protestantism of Sir J. Pakington, Mr. Whiteside, and Sir Hugh Cairns prevented Mr. Disraeli from delivering himself of that uniform oath which could be taken by members of all creeds, and that the result was one of those peculiar arthritical affections which were the invention of Chatham. To be sure, Mr. Disraeli now gives Parliamentary dinners frequently, and the access of gout is by no means an illogical result. However, the effect was obvious on the House next day; for, at its inception, there was scarcely anyone there; and Mr. Newdegate, who had precedence, was allowed for more than an hour, without a shadow of interruption, to vindicate his right to the character of head of the moral police of Protestantism, detective especially, and to splash about judgments, and prophecies, and denunciations as though he were the only conduit through which pure theological belief could flow into the House of Commons. Pale and languid at first, having it all his own way, he warmed up, and was declamatory and full of those tricks of gesture which are traditional in effect on the stage, but which are the very antipathy of debating. Still, there was scant audience when Mr. Gregory rose to address the electors of Galway in a speech which showed that a Protestant Irishman could be bitterly, waspishly severe on those who wished to trifle with the consciences of his Roman Catholic colleagues; and it is probable that the electors of Galway will understand that he is as good or a better representative of them than even a Papistical member could be. The speech of Sir John Pakington was, perhaps, taken as the revelation of the real cause of Mr. Disraeli's absence, and, supported as it was by Sir Hugh Cairns (who, by-the-by, has rather swerved lately out of his judicial calmness of manner into petulance) in a close and earnest argument, and approved by the assenting smiles and cheers of Mr. Whiteside, it exhibited the last standfast of that Protestantism which is based on oaths whose meaning can be wrought out in two ways, and which it was supposed to have been the intention of Mr. Disraeli to have given up. As it is not likely that Mr. Horsman is going to stand for an Irish constituency, it can only be supposed that his "thorough" speech on this question was intended as a vindication in the eyes of the somewhat dissatisfied electors of Stroud of that liberalism which he had apparently thrown to the winds when he made his speech on the Borough Franchise Bill. At any rate, it was a most admirable speech, full of humour, point, ready retort, and crushing argument, and, above all, it was brief as compared with Mr. Horsman's usual discourse, and contained only one peroration instead of seven, as is usually his habit. Nothing could have been more admirable in tone, manner, voice, and spirit than the few observations from Lord Edward Howard, the sole Roman Catholic representative of an English constituency in the House. The battle on this bill yet remains to be fought out; it is, however, safe in the Commons. But, then, the Lords! ay, there's the rub!

Here is the very latest instance of injustice to Ireland—the adjournment over the Derby Day, when the only order which had been put on the paper, by mistake no doubt, being a bill for the protection of sheep in the sister country—and therefore objection made by an Irish member, who probably had been unable to go to Epsom himself.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Monday.

The War Department Tramway (Devon) Bill, the Parsonages Bill, the County Voters Registration Bill, and the County of Sussex Bill passed through Committee.

The Police Superannuation Bill and the Pilotage Orders Confirmation Bill were read a third time and passed.

On the order for considering the report of amendments to the Companies' Workmen's Education Bill, Earl Granville proposed to omit the clause requiring that in the schools established under the bill the children should be compelled to learn the Church Caterhism. The motion was opposed by the Archbishop of York and the Earl of Carnarvon, and supported by the Bishop of London and Earl Grey. Upon a division the clause was confirmed by 53 to 38, and the report of amendments agreed to.

It was agreed, on the suggestion of the Duke of Richmond, that a standing order be established, by which, on divisions in the house, an interval of two minutes should occur after the house was cleared before the division was taken.

On the order for going into Committee on the Clerical Subscription Bill, the Archbishop of Dublin moved as an amendment that it was not expedient, without the concurrence of the convocation of the Irish provinces of the united Church, to proceed with the bill so far as it might set aside and supersede the canons of those provinces, and that an address be presented to the Queen, praying her to convene the convocation of the Irish provinces for the purpose of amending those canons which relate to the subscription of the clergy and to the oaths against simony, so as to assimilate the law of the Church of England and Ireland in relation thereto, and best to secure the united action of the provinces of the Church.—Earl Granville said that after careful consideration the Government had not thought it desirable to summon the convocation of the Irish Church.—The matter was discussed by the Archbishop of York, the Bishop of Killaloe, Lord Lyttelton, the Bishop of Oxford, and the Bishop of London, the two latter prelates expressing their willingness to consider the point, but objecting that it would impede the progress of the bill. Eventually the amendment was withdrawn, and the bill passed through Committee.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Monday.

Upon the motion of Lord C. Paget, the following bills were brought in and read a first time:—A Bill to Make better Provision respecting Wills and Intestacies of Seamen and Marines of the Royal Navy and Marines; A Bill to Regulate the Disposal of Money and Effects, under the Control of the Admiralty, belonging to deceased Officers, Seamen, and Marines of the Royal Navy and Marines; and A Bill for Regulating the Payment of Naval and Marine Pay and Pensions.

Mr. Peel obtained leave to introduce a bill to amend the Acts relating to the harbour of Kingstown. The bill was subsequently read a first time.

Upon the motion of Mr. Fortescue, a bill to remove doubts as to the validity of the colonial laws was brought in and read a first time.

The Colonial Governors (Retiring Pensions) Bill, the Piers and Harbours Orders Confirmation (No. 2) Bill; the Crown Suits, &c., Bill; the Drainage and Improvement of Lands (Ireland) Bill, and the Harwich Harbour Bill were read a second time.

The Smoke Nuisance (Scotland) Acts Amendment Bill and the Inclosure (No. 2) Bill were read a third time and passed; as also were the following private bills:—The Aberdeenshire Roads, Busby Railway, Croesor and Portmadoc Railway, Highbridge Markets and Gas, Hoylake Railway, Lancashire Union Railways, London and North-Western Railway (Additional Powers, Wales); London, Chatham, and Dover, and London and South-Western Railway Companies; Manchester and Milford Railway; Midland Railway (New Lines, &c.), School for the Indigent Blind Act Amendment; and the Sevenoaks, Maidstone, and Tunbridge Railway.

Mr. Cardwell, in reply to Sir E. Grogan, said measures were being taken with a view to induce Canada to take the government of the Hudson's Bay territories. There was no intention of disputing the right of the Hudson's Bay Company to the territories.

On the motion for going into Committee on the Constabulary Force (Ireland) Act Amendment Bill some discussion was raised in consequence of a proposition by Mr. W. O. Gore to refer the measure to a Select Committee. The suggestion, however, was ultimately withdrawn. In Committee the various clauses, which were mostly of a local character, were discussed, amended, and agreed to.

GREENWICH HOSPITAL.

Lord C. Paget moved the second reading of the Greenwich Hospital Bill, and expressed a hope that the House would consent to the bill being committed pro formâ, with a view of introducing several amendments.

Sir J. Pakington doubted whether the indoor pensioners would be willing to go out of the hospital unless their allowance, which they now had in addition to food, clothes, and lodging, was increased. He regarded with serious doubt the proposal to put the hospital on the same footing as Haslar. He regretted, too, that it was proposed to change the management, and should strongly oppose anything in that direction which should prevent the benefits of the establishment from being given to naval officers. He did not approve of the proposed allotment of small pensions. He objected generally to the bill, and more particularly to the part which proposed to make the cost of the hospital voted in the Navy Estimates.

Mr. Ayrton approved of the bill as striking at the root of evils which had long disgraced the hospital. He urged that some accommodation should be provided in the hospital for merchant seamen.

Mr. Liddell denied that merchant seamen had any claim on the hospital. At some length he criticised the management of the hospital estates.

Mr. J. J. Powell objected to the granting of pensions out of the funds of the hospital to officers who were not disabled.

Admiral Walcott did not think the measure satisfactory.

After a few words from Mr. Howard, Mr. Ingham, Mr. Angerstein, and Mr. Hennessy,

Mr. Childers explained at some length the provisions of the bill, and defended it from the criticisms which had been made upon it.

The bill was read a second time and committed pro formâ. Several amendments were introduced, and the bill was ordered to be reprinted.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Tuesday.

The report of amendments on the Clerical Subscription Bill was brought up and agreed to.

The Parsonages Bill passed through Committee.

The Commissioners of Supply (Scotland) Bill and the Dogs Regulation (Ireland) Bill were read a second time.

The Companies' Workmen Education Bill, the County Voters Registration Bill, and the County of Sussex Bill were read a third time and passed. The following private bills were also read a third time and passed:—Dublin, Clontarf, and Dollymount Tramway; Belfast Central Railway; Limerick and North Kerry Junction Railway; Whitehaven Junction Railway; Glasgow Corporation Water; Sunderland Corporation; Ilfracombe Railway; London and South-Western Railway (Kensington, &c.); London, Blackwall, and Millwall Extension Railway; King's Lynn Docks and Railway; and London and South-Western Railway (Pirbright, Aldershott, and Farnham Junction).

Earl Russell, in answer to a question from Lord Chelmsford, said that the date of the latest intelligence at the Foreign Office relating to the English captives in Abyssinia was the 28th of April, when it appeared that they were suffering no additional hardships. It was the intention of her Majesty's Government to send another mission with presents.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Tuesday.

The Cheshire Lines Transfer Bill; the Chesterfield, Newbold, and Dunstone Road Bill; and the St. Philip and Jacob's Parish (Bristol) Bill were read a third time and passed.

The adjourned debate on the order for going into Committee on the Roman Catholic Oath Bill was resumed by Mr. Newdegate, who, in moving as an amendment that the bill be committed on that day six months, insisted that, before proceeding to effect such a fundamental change in the conditions upon which Roman Catholic members occupied their seats, a preliminary inquiry was necessary, and that, in the advanced period of the life of Parliament, legislative action on the question was precipitate. The oath which the bill proposed to amend was the result of a solemn compact, and he contended that if it were dealt with at all, it should be upon the responsibility of the Government. He therefore moved the postponement of the further consideration of the bill until an inquiry had been made similar to that which preceded the alteration of the Protestant oath in 1858, and until notice had been put upon the paper showing to what extent the Government were prepared to sanction the provisions of the bill. After a long debate, the House divided, and there appeared—for going into Committee, 193; for the amendment, 126.—The House then went into Committee pro formâ, and the Chairman reported progress.

Mr. Cardwell stated, in reply to Lord R. Cecil, that there was no intention on the part of the Government to encourage the proposal to separate the northern from the southern portion of the colony of New Zealand.

Lord Palmerston, replying to an inquiry of Mr. Lefevre, repeated his statement of a former night, to the effect that communications had been going on for a considerable time between the United States and British Governments with regard to the captures made by the Alabama and other Confederate vessels of war. The tenour of these communications was of the same kind as the tenour of those which had already been laid on the table. The latest of these had been received since the accession of Mr. Johnson to the presidency; but whether the instructions on which it was made were issued by President Lincoln or President Johnson he could not say.

Mr. Moffat called attention to the report of the Select Committee on the Bankruptcy Act of 1861, and the existing state of the laws in regard to debtor and creditor; and moved "That, in the opinion of this House, the report of the Select Committee on the Bankruptcy Act of 1861 deserves the prompt and serious consideration of her Majesty's Government."—The motion was seconded by Mr. Ball; and, after a few words from Mr. Ayrton, Mr. Beecroft, and the Attorney-General, was agreed to.

Mr. Neate rose to call attention to some defects in the law relating to lunatics, but his address was cut short by the House being counted out at twenty-five minutes past seven o'clock.

The House adjourned to Thursday, on account of Wednesday being the Derby Day.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Thursday.

On the order of the day for the third reading of the Metropolitan Sewage and Essex Reclamation Bill, Lord Denman moved that the bill be read a third time that day six months. He thought the scheme proposed for the utilisation of the sewage would be very expensive, and the object it was desirable to carry out would not be attained by means of the bill under consideration.—The Earl of Hardwicke said the proposal to reclaim Maplin Sands, or any other sands, by such means as those suggested by the promoters of the bill had been deemed by Baron Liebig, the greatest agricultural chemist in the world, fallacious.—After a few words from Lord Churston the House divided, when the third reading was carried by a majority of 49 to 4. The Prince of Wales voted with the "Contents" in this division.

The Public-houses Closing Act (1864) Amendment Bill was, after a short discussion, read a second time.

The Sewage Utilisation Bill passed through Committee.

The Inclosure (No. 2) Bill was read a second time.

The Commissioners of Supply Meetings (Scotland) Bill passed through Committee.

The War Department Tramway (Devon) Bill was read a third time.

The Clerical Subscription Bill was read a third time and passed.

The Lancaster Court of Chancery Bill was read a second time.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Thursday.

Mr. Tite moved the second reading of the Hyde Park-gate Estate Bill, the object of which was to make certain alterations in the roads near the Marble Arch.—After a short discussion the House divided, when the second reading was carried by a majority of 83 to 47.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in reply to Mr. Bentinck, said, in consequence of the state of opinion out of doors, he had determined to withdraw the Bank Notes Issue Bill; but he would reserve to himself the right of dealing with this subject at the earliest opportunity—not, he thought, in the present Session—upon a broader basis.

Mr. Monsell, in reply to Mr. Whiteside, named Monday, the 12th of June, for the consideration of the provisions of the Roman Catholic Oath Bill, as, he said, the Government had kindly consented to give him that day.

The House soon afterwards went into a Committee of Supply upon the remainder of the Civil Service Estimates.

On the vote of £518,017—the remainder of the grant for Public Education—Mr. H. Bruce stated that the total expenditure on this account during the past year amounted to £655,041, of which £23,305 was for building grants and the enlargement and improvement of schools; £451,000 for elementary education, £96,000 for training-schools, and £74,000 for costs of inspection and establishments in London. The average daily attendance of scholars had been 791,000; the number of schools inspected, 7891; and the number of children inspected, 1,133,000, as against 1,092,000 in the previous year by an increase of 40,000. The number of scholars presented for individual examination was 523,713, equivalent to two presented for every three attending school. The number of failures amongst those examined was, in reading, 12 per cent; in writing, 14 per cent; and in arithmetic, 24 per cent. This was a slight improvement as compared with the percentages for the preceding year. The estimate for the current year included £73,000 for Scotland, £430,000 for England, £30,000 for building grants, £80,000 for normal schools, and £76,000 costs of inspection and management.—Mr. Selwyn expressed his surprise at the omission by the right hon. gentleman of all reference to the question raised by the innovations of the Committee of Council with respect to grants made to schools in connection with the National Society.—Mr. Bruce explained that he had omitted to refer to this subject because it was still under the consideration of the Committee.—The vote was then agreed to.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THE DERBY DAY.

What seemed at one time likely to go down to posterity as the "Young Rapid," will be now emphatically remembered as "The Frenchman's" year. The announcement that the Brighton line—of whose Epsom station we give an Engraving at page 533—would be extended nearly up to the Grand Stand, made London resort more earnestly than ever to its great al fresco festival. The adjournment of Parliament gave a precedent to the Nisi Prius Courts, which they were only too eager to follow, and weeks ago the regimental drill had been set for another day. The Royal Agricultural Society altered their lecture arrangements, and even schoolmasters ceased in the case of day boys to scan too closely very shady letters of excuse from Paterfamilias. The railways and the road have kept pace in their freights. Getting next to the cords between the winning and the T.Y.C. post is now almost an impossibility, unless a spectator is in position two hours before the Derby, and drawing the hill is quite a labour of Hercules. The drags hoist their initial flags as a token to guide the luncheon pilgrims; but he is a wise and a lucky man who can thread his way through alleys, to which the maze at Hampton is as nothing. From the starting-post to the furzes is also lined thickly with people, and "the infantry" have spread to such an extent all over the back of the downs that they quite hold it in command, and the wild Bashi-Bazouks of other days are powerless for mischief.

The close of last week produced the wonted amount of wild betting. Middleham, on the strength of a trial with The Tartar, late Baktschi Serai, alias "Back-kitchen Sarah," was just as sanguine about Oppressor as it was about Honeywood twelve years ago. On Monday afternoon the hapless Chattanooga was struck out, and the "Special Commissioner's" hopes and assurances vanished into thin air. He is now "credibly informed that Godding received a telegram not to send the horse after he was actually in the box." Be this as it may, Mr. Naylor's tactics stand in such unfortunate contrast to the prompt action of Lord Hastings and Mr. Merry, that nearly every turfite, from whatever quarter he had received his betting blight, did nothing, in the words of Mad Tom, but "wreak my woes upon the cowslip or the pale primrose," and has hardly finished yet. While coughing, roaring, and blood-vessel-breaking favourites, whose names have induced such devotion all the winter, were falling right and left out of the ranks, Gladiateur rose slowly and surely, and his position at last became impregnable. Lord Stamford bore up for Archimedes with a daring which seemed inexplicable to those who did not see how the horse could have run such a high trial with Cambuscan and had a rush in him at the finish of such a strongly run Two Thousand, if he were "10 lb. below what he can be made." Christmas Carol looked dangerous for a year when the great mass of the horses were in "a heap;" and although some of the Yorkshiremen, especially the "Blair Athol Jack" of last year, stuck like grim death to Broomielaw, and called the chestnut "a cart-horse," not one of the opposition, save "Argus," had the temerity to breathe a word on paper against him. Some Maltonians declared that, if Borealis and Caller Ou were what they had been, he was tried to be as good as Blair Athol. Longdown was held in respect despite the assertion that he had grown "coarse." There was much mourning over Zambesi, and Wild Charley danced about so much in the betting that it seemed pretty certain that Mr. Merry's faith was nil.

John Scott's three were very early in the paddock, preceded by Perren on a chestnut, and those who wanted to study Longdown's shapes had ample time afforded them. He was one of the first saddled, and for some time he was led round and round behind Hesper. The chestnut is so big that Drewitt's crack was rather drowned, but the general verdict upon him was that he was "a great, fine, standstill horse." Christmas Carol held a large levée, and many were loud in their praises of the dark brown son of Rataplan. He is a colt of considerable quality, but straight in his top, and the setting on of his hind legs is by no means consistent with the general notions of high speed. The next rush was one of much greater intensity, and the cheering told that something special was in the wind. A vast surging mass was seen moving across the paddock, with one or two mounted police hovering round it, and seemingly quite uncertain how to act. First we thought it was a congratulation to Tom Sayers on his recovery. Then the truth came out that the Prince was in the midst, and that an enraptured but ticketless posse comitatus had broken through the dozen foot and the five mounted policemen, and had dashed in with his Royal Highness, whom they were fairly smothering with their vulgar "loyalty." Hats were not tossed mid air, but some peripatetic philosopher, in the enthusiasm of the moment—or, rather, the railway interest—threw up a large heap of blue handbills notifying the best mode of reaching Uxbridge races by the Great Western. At last Martin Starling, with red coat and face to match, came to the rescue; and it was gradually settled that the Prince and party should "receive" the horses under the hedge (rather a significant place, if they fancied Breadalbane). A small half-moon circle was made accordingly, and his Royal Highness and the Duke of Brabant, the Earl of Derby and Lord Alfred Paget, got "fixed," and had a good look at the candidates as they filed before them.

Archimedes was a small but very neat colt, not unlike Diophantus, and very fit, though it was said he had suffered from cracked heels. In point of condition, there was nothing to beat Wild

Charley, who is very elegant, but very light in his bone. Still, it did not look like "a boy-in-yellow" day, as "Mat" was not at his head. Oppressor was a common-looking one, cut up in the flank, and rather weak in his couplings. He was weak in his temper as well, and the stable did not deem it advisable to let him canter. Eltham we did not scan very narrowly, as he was at 1000 to 8. The Whitewall three, Rifle (one of "the tight uns by Barbatus"), Farewell, and Ariel, claimed very little remark. Todleben was narrow and common, and a great contrast to the deep, well-knit Kangaroo, who was coughing hard enough to pull little Grimshaw almost out of his saddle, and confirming the ominous quotation of "100 to 1" on the card. King Charming was chubby and useful, and Zephyr a very nice filly. Bramah was very pretty but "nothing more;" First Born, a stiff little brown, reminding us of the Prince Arthur of last year; Friday was very common, but still Mr. Parr declared, and, as it seems, with truth, that wherever Wild Charley was he was bound to be; and for beauty there was nothing superior to little Olmar, the only Saunterer among them, and bearing Snowdon, the lucky jockey of last year, in the once lucky harlequin of Bishop Burton. Bedminster was such a mere handful that Wells looked far too big for him; and Audax, like so many of his tribe—strong in the neck and light behind the saddle—had very few admirers as he was saddled in the old "Caractacus corner," under the spreading thorn.

Just as the Prince's party were quitting the hedge for the Stand, the French and English champions, the former led by Tom Jennings, were seen approaching from two separate gates, on the Durdans side of the paddock. Le Mandarin, a light-boned horse, but second in the French Derby of the Sunday before, led the way for the favourite, who came on "to avenge Waterloo" with his neck arched, mane flying, and as fit as man could make him. He has a good head, a strong neck, and beautiful shoulders, and is deep in the girth and through the heart, and rather flat-sided, drooping towards the tail, and not especially lengthy or tight in "the corn chamber," as the Clydesdale men call it. He must measure fully sixteen-one, and is, therefore, on the verge of racehorse size; but he is so well put together and furnished that he does not seem a hair's breadth above sixteen. A mere stranger meeting him in a loose box and hazarding a guess over him would call him a very useful five-year-old hunter. There is a maturity of look about French-bred horses to which English cannot attain. His trainer has consistently asserted that he had never been able to give him half enough work before the Two Thousand, and since then he has not spared him. Some mornings his preliminary canters have been pretty long ones; then came a mile and three quarters of fast work; and then he would be "slipped through the Belt," and finish with another fast thing the whole length of the tan gallop. No wonder that he started at only 5 to 2! Breadalbane's large white face prophesied of him plainly enough, and Broomielaw's temper was already beginning to show itself. "Nephew" and "uncle" were a remarkable contrast; the former so quiet and idle that he hardly seemed to take the trouble to walk; and the other with his head up, and all excitement and sweat. The chestnut bears a strong likeness to his double, first-class brother; but we really could not see why one party should have raved about him as "the most perfect gentleman" ever seen on The Turf, and the other declared that he had "all grown the wrong way." He seems a quiet, steady-looking sort of cup-horse; but, when we thought of "the Kettledrum bloom" which we had seen in that paddock, and looked at his dull coat and gait, he seemed to be out of it altogether by the side of "the Frenchman." However, those who saw his canter, and Aldcroft in the saddle wearing "the red, red rose," did not lose faith; and as the Royal party left the paddock the Prince beckoned Mr. Chaplin, and shaking him cordially by the hand, wished him the fortune of the day.

Broomielaw was at his pranks again when they took their last paddock parade, and Archimedes and another had very nearly a succession of sharp exchanges with their heels. They were in the dell more quickly than usual, Wells lingering to the last, as Job was once wont to do in the dangerous cherry, and Frank Butler in the all black. The paddock has, however, quite lost that "last out and first in" winning charm of 1851-3. Wild Charley and Broomielaw seemed to enjoy the false starts amazingly; and at intervals the "uncle" might be seen on his hind legs, to the high delight of the spectators and the jeopardy of James Mann. Thirty were coloured on the card, and Jupiter, No. 1, was the only absentee. After nearly a dozen breaks away, they streamed up the hill, just at two minutes to four, Wild Charley and Christmas Carol right in front, and Archimedes last. Tilt then took up the running, and the first half mile, which was done "full tilt" in 57 secs., disposed of Wild Charley, and left Breadalbane well forward, and Broomielaw coming with Zephyr, Archimedes close up, and Gladiateur shut out. Eltham then led, with Broomielaw, Oppressor, and Todleben handy. When they were well into the straight Broomielaw was still going very fast, but those light back ribs could do no more; and, as he shut up, the two "magpie jackets," Eltham and Christmas Carol, shot out together along the bottom side, while the blue and red sleeves of the Frenchman came stealing away on the top, and nothing else was in it. Harry Grimshaw had got rid of all mischief behind him, and had nothing to do but sit and watch the pair tire themselves, bring his horse away at the distance, and just win as he liked. For the sake of English feeling he made it two lengths; but one of the jockeys said afterwards, "it might have been ten if he liked."

There was very little cheering, as it was too grim a thought for the English masses that their Epsom glory had departed from them, and that, bar accidents, the St. Leger seemed so likely to cross the Channel. Harry Grimshaw sat as impassive as the turbaned Hindoo on the box-seat of his master's carriage in the Durdans-lane (whom no offer of cigars or feathers could rouse to vengeance or enthusiasm), and let the Frenchmen kiss his horse or do just what they liked. There is no doubt that the defeat cut very sharp and deep. Moet did much towards restoring peace to the British bosom on the hill-side; and, as the afternoon wore on, every carriage containing Frenchmen was loudly cheered, and our patriots sawed the air and made sadly long-winded orations on the subject. Some declared themselves "glad it had happened;" but many of the very finest passages on "all stuff! grandsire and granddam bred in England," "ridden and trained by Englishmen," "wholesome spirit of rivalry," "cordial alliance," were lost to posterity in the new Parliamentary shouts of "Sing! Sing!" with a vigorous key-bugle, pea-shooter, and "shut-up" accompaniment.

The race was run in 2 min. 45½ sec., the same as Caractacus's year, but 2½ sec. more than Blair Athol's. Tom Jennings, the trainer of the winner, is said to have won far more heavily than Count Lagrange, the owner, and Newmarket generally has had a very great pull. In the last six years the Two Thousand winner has furnished two firsts, three seconds, and a third to Epsom, and both firsts were trained in their town. Mr. Jackson is also on the right side, although he had such an Oppressor mania. Eltham and Kangaroo were, strange to say, claimed in the same Selling Plate for which they ran first and second the day after the Cambridgeshire; and it is said that Mr. Robinson won heavily upon the former by backing him for a place, and rewarded his jockey, S. Adams, with a very handsome percentage. Adding in the "repurchased" Archimedes (who came to grief, like Cambuscan), four horses in the race cost 20,000 guineas, and not one of them ran in the first five. It might be hazardous to compare even Blair Athol with Gladiateur; but when we remember that General Peel, Scottish Chief, Cambuscan, and Ely were in the first six last year, there seems a fearful falling off. When Kangaroo has lost his cough, we shall not doubt see his running quite altered. Breadalbane, upon whom Aldcroft was hard at work after Tattenham Corner, finished about twelfth; and thus the War of the Cheque-books, over which gossips and papers have waxed so facetious, had a most lame and impotent conclusion. From the moment that the Spring Cottage pair became Mr. Chaplin's, things seem to have gone crooked with them, till at last the contradictions and paradoxes have become quite laughable. Still, one thing is certain, that this is not even Breadalbane's Two Thousand running, or anything like it. Somehow or other, Yorkshire, The Corner, owner, "confederate," trainer, and jockey and colt have been all "knocked into pie." The paper which gazetted the first trial and did not own to the second has had quite the best of it, and the tremendous Downs demonstration which was preparing for Blink Bonny's second son, of whose fame the public were as jealous as Mrs. Trimbush of her baby's when Mr. Rumbelow abuses it, has died away to nothing. Both of Mr. Chaplin's horses (the chestnut with a 7 lb. maiden allowance) are in the Prince of Wales Stakes at Ascot, with Kœnig, The Duke, Liddington, Kangaroo, Archimedes, and Longdown; and, barring the last, they are all in the St. Leger, and Siberia, Araucaria, Oppressor, Zambesi and Christmas Carol with them.

The following is the return of the running:—

EPSOM SUMMER MEETING.—TUESDAY.

Craven Stakes.—Gemma, 1. Breeze, 2. Sidewind, 3.
Brighton Stakes.—Gownsman, 1. Idler, 2. Indigestion, 3.
Horton Stakes.—Knight of the Whistle, 1. Relic f., 2. Juneaton, 3.
Woodcote Stakes.—Janitor, 1. Mazeppa, 2. Redan, 3.
Heathcote Plate.—Queen of Trumps, 1. Cranbury, 2. Hesper, 3.
Rous Stakes.—Tartar, 1. Camellia, 2. Soumise, 3.
Tadworth Stakes.—Jack o' Lantern, 1. Reinfrid, 2. Blackbird, 3.

WEDNESDAY.—THE DERBY DAY.

Bentinck Plate.—Vixen, 1. Ethelred, 2. Leoville, 3.

THE EIGHTY-SIXTH DERBY STAKES.

Gladiateur	1
Christmas Carol	2
Eltham	3
Longdown	4

Manor Plate.—Guardsman, 1. Troublesome, 2. Soapstone, 3.
Epsom Town Plate.—The Warrior, 1. Bavarde, 2. Under the Cloud, 3.
Burgh Stakes.—Flageolet, 1. Lady Avon f., 2. His Royal Highness, 3.

THURSDAY.

Stand Stakes.—Boleno, 1. Battaglia, 2. Veluti, 3.
Walton Stakes.—Squaw f., 1. Relic f., 2. Irish Mail, 3.
Two-year-old Stakes.—Fleurette, 1. Mistletoe, 2. Czarewitch, 3.
South-Western Stakes.—Filbert, 1. Eland, 2. Juliet, 3.
Epsom Cup.—Christmas Carol, 1. Brahma, 2. Soumise, 3.
Her Majesty's Plate.—Breeze, 1. Caller Ou, 2.
Four-year-old Stakes.—Gownsman, 1. Triumpher, 2.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, May 29.—There was only a moderate supply of English wheat on offer in to-day's market; yet, owing to the prevailing fine weather and the favourable accounts at hand in reference to the growing crops, the demand ruled heavy, at a decline in the quotations, compared with the late highest point, of from 1s. to 2s. per quarter. Foreign wheat was very dull, and fully 1s. per quarter cheaper. In barley and malt very little was passing, at barely stationary prices. Oats were heavy, and 6d. per quarter lower. Both beans and peas, however, were quite as dear as last week. In the value of flour no change took place.

May 31.—All kinds of produce met a heavy inquiry, and the quotations were almost nominal.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 39s. to 43s.; ditto, white, 41s. to 48s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 39s. to 43s.; rye, 25s. to 28s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 25s.; distilling ditto, 26s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 30s. to 33s.; malt, 47s. to 62s.; oats, 16s. to 21s.; beans, 35s. to 45s.; peas, 34s. to 40s. per quarter; town-made flour, 33s. to 40s.; country marks, 26s. to 29s. per 280 lb.

Arrivals this Week.—English and Scotch: Wheat, 2080; barley, 210; malt, 970; oats, 1470; flour, 1220. Foreign: Wheat, 6080; barley, 1610; oats, 9530; flour, 740 sacks.

Seeds.—Scarcely any business is doing in seeds, at nominal currencies. The demand for cakes is heavy.

Linseed, English, sowing, 68s. to 70s.; Calcutta, 54s. to 55s.; hempseed, 44s. to 46s. per quarter; tares, 9s. 0d. to 10s. 0d. per bushel; white mustard seed, 10s. 0d. to 12s. 0d.; brown ditto, 10s. to 11s. per bushel; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt.; red clover seed, 65s. to 90s.; white ditto, 62s. to 75s. per cwt.

Metropolitan Cattle Market.—Thursday, June 1.—About an average supply of beasts was on sale here to-day, yet the demand for all breeds was steady, at an advance in the quotations compared with Monday of 2d. per 8 lb. The best Scots and crosses sold at 5s. 2d. per 8 lb. The show of sheep was tolerably good. The mutton trade was firm, at 2d. per 8 lb. more money. Downs and half-breds realised 6s. 2d. to 6s. 4d. per 8 lb. Prime lambs moved off freely, at very full prices. Inferior lambs were dull, and rather cheaper. In some instances the best breeds produced 8s. per 8 lb. Calves—the supply of which was good—ruled steady, at late currencies. Pigs were rather dearer, and there was an improved demand for milch cows, at from £16 to £22 each.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 8d. to 4s. 0d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 6d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 8d. to 4s. 10d.; prime Scots, &c., 5s. 0d. to 5s. 2d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 10d.; second quality ditto, 5s. 0d. to 5s. 6d.; prime coarse-woolled ditto, 5s. 8d. to 6s. 0d.; prime Southdown ditto, 6s. 2d. to 6s. 4d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; prime small ditto, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 2d.; large hogs, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 4d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 6d. to 5s. 0d.; lambs, 6s. 4d. to 7s. 8d.; suckling calves, 19s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 21s. to 27s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1020; cows, 140; sheep and lambs, 11,360; calves, 620; pigs, 370. Foreign: Beasts, 570; sheep and lambs, 3500; calves, 150.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—The supplies of meat are only moderate, and the trade rules steady, at very full prices.

ROBERT HERBERT.

FESTIVAL OF THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE RHENISH PROVINCES OF PRUSSIA.

THE King of Prussia has lately made a tour through the chief cities of the Rhenish provinces of his kingdom, for the purpose of attending the festivals which were got up—more especially at Aix-la-Chapelle and Cologne—to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the union of those provinces with Prussia, after the downfall of Napoleon I. At Aix-la-Chapelle, on the 15th of May, his Majesty laid the first stone of a new Polytechnic School. At Cologne, where he arrived on the next day, the first stone of a monument to King Frederick William III. was laid in the Haymarket. The King, who was accompanied by the Queen and several members of the Royal family, having reached Cologne at eleven o'clock in the morning, was received by the municipal authorities and by the committee of management, and conducted to a tent set up for the occasion. Our Engraving shows the aspect of the scene. After a cantata, sung by the Cologne Männergesang-verein, President von Möller addressed a long speech to the King, to which his Majesty returned the following reply:—"It is a great pleasure to me to be among you to-day in order to witness the gratitude shown by this province to the King who united this country with the mighty Prussian State. This gratitude is true and deeply felt in the heart of every Rhinelander who looks back to fifty years ago. I acknowledge this gratitude, and thank the province for entertaining it. This memorial will be dedicated to the future. May this future conduce to the welfare of the province and the prosperity of the country!" His Majesty then laid the foundation-stone of the monument in the customary manner, the following document being deposited in the cavity of the stone:—"In glorious and everlasting memory. The foundation-stone of this monument in commemoration of his departed Majesty King Frederick William III. was laid in the Haymarket at Cologne this 16th of May, 1865, in the presence of King William I. of Prussia, Queen Augusta of Prussia, his Royal Highness the Crown Prince Frederick William, &c., the Councillors of the Crown, the clergy, military and civil authorities of the Rhine province, the committee of management, and numerous guests. This monument is intended now and for all time to display the thanks of the Rhinelanders, that through that Monarch their country, after an heroic struggle, was united with Prussia under the mighty sceptre of the House of Hohenzollern, and was restored to German freedom, German manners, and German habits; as also that under the wise, mild, and just rule of Frederick William III. and his Royal successors they have attained a happiness and prosperity never before reached." Although the name of the Crown Prince is mentioned in the above document, his Royal Highness was not present, being engaged at the time in opening the Industrial Exhibition at Stettin.

The memorial will consist of a statue of King Frederick William III. on horseback, surrounded on the pedestal by the generals and statesmen who conspicuously aided in the liberation of North Germany from the French domination. A fresco in relief will represent the spiritual and material development of the Rhine provinces under the Prussian sceptre. The entire work will be executed in cast bronze, after the designs of the sculptors, G. Blaeser and H. Schilvelhein. The amount of its costs, estimated at 180,000 thalers, has been collected by many thousands of patriotic gifts from all classes in the Rhine provinces.

In the evening the city and bridge of Cologne were beautifully illuminated, a view of which brilliant scene is given in our second Illustration of this subject.

THE PRINCE OF WALES LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF A NEW WING OF ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL.

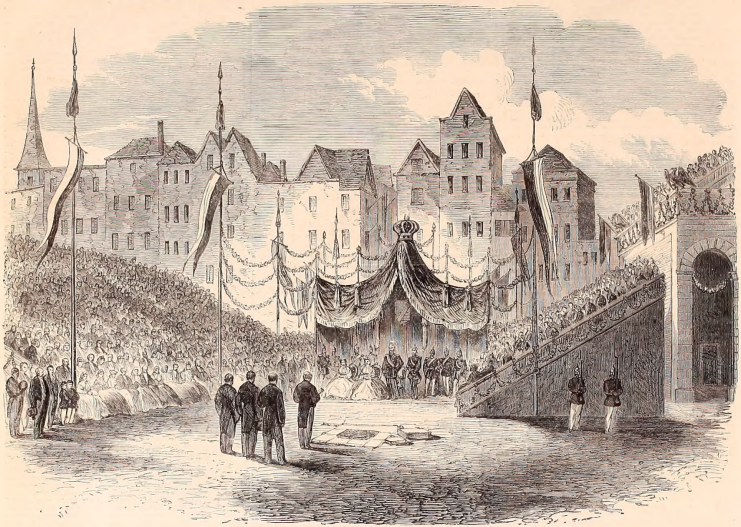
THE first stone of the intended new wing of St. Mary's Hospital, at Paddington, was laid by the Prince of Wales, on Tuesday week, as stated in our last Impression; and we now give an Illustration of this ceremony, which derived additional interest from the remembrance that his father, the lamented Prince Consort, laid the foundation-stone of the principal building of the hospital on the 28th of June, 1845. The enlargement of the hospital has become necessary in consequence of the great demand for the accommodation and relief which it supplies. The plot of ground on which the new building will rise is situated at the rear of the hospital. On the day we have named it was covered with an extensive spread of canvas, under which a gallery was erected for the accommodation of a number of visitors and friends of the hospital, and well filled with ladies and gentlemen. The gallery was decorated with mottoes and appropriate scriptural texts and some verses composed for the occasion. Much praise is due to the committee of ladies who, under the presidency of Mrs. Cadman Jones, arranged all these decorations. In the centre of the reserved space was a chair for the Prince of Wales, and on his Royal Highness's left hand was the foundation-stone, a large block of granite, suspended by ropes and pulleys, ready to be lowered on to its bed. Three hundred and fifty children, selected from the national schools of Paddington, formed a choir, and were placed at one side of the gallery, at the top of which was the band of the Victoria Rifles. Outside the hospital was a guard of honour of the 36th Middlesex Rifles, with the band of the regiment, and also a small force of the metropolitan police, under Mr. Superintendent Walker, of the A division, assisted by Inspectors Eccles and Bradstock and other officers. Precisely at half-past three o'clock, the hour at which it was announced the proceedings would commence, loud and hearty cheers from the people assembled in the streets announced that the Prince of Wales had arrived, and immediately the head of a long procession entered the marquee. First came the band of the Paddington rifle corps and the guard of honour, which were ranged at the back, opposite the gallery; and in a few minutes afterwards came, all in processional order, the steward of the hospital, Mr. James P. Catherwood; the architect, Mr. Witherden Young; the secretary, Mr. J. G. Wilkinson; the chaplain, the Rev. S. Brewer; the treasurer, Mr. Thomas William Budd; the members of the medical staff, the committee of reception, some of the vice-presidents, and some of the clergymen of the district; after whom walked the Bishop of London and his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, followed by Earl Spencer, Lieutenant-General Knollys, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, and Major Teesdale. The Prince of Wales bowed repeatedly to the large assemblage of ladies and gentlemen opposite him, in the front row of whom were many prettily-dressed children, and the Indian Princes who have recently arrived in this country, Mirza Syud Hussun Ali, Mirza Syud Hoosein Ali, and Mirza Syud Mahommed Ali. Amongst the noblemen and gentlemen present were the president of the hospital, Earl Manvers, the Duke of Grafton, the Marquis of Exeter, Lord Llanover, Sir Walter Stirling, Mr. Hervey Lewis, M.P., and others. That popular effusion of loyalty, "God Bless the Prince of Wales," was sung by the children at the opening of the proceedings, and immediately afterwards the Rev. Canon Boyd, Incumbent of Paddington, and chairman of the reception committee, read an address to his Royal Highness, explaining the circumstances under which this enlargement of the building had been resolved upon. It was stated that the new wing would contain sleeping apartments for the sisters and nurses, beyond the range of the hospital atmosphere; it would also contain a chapel for Divine worship. The name of the "Albert Edward Wing" was to be given to this portion of the hospital, and two of the wards were to receive the names of "Alexandra" and "Albert Victor" wards—the latter being destined to form a new feature in the hospital, as it is to be exclusively appropriated to the reception of children under the age of five years. When this proposal was read by the reverend Canon his Royal Highness bowed his assent. He then replied, thanking them for allowing him to carry on so good a work commenced by his father, and trusting that neither himself, nor the Princess of Wales, nor his own infant son, after whom one of the new wards was to be named, would ever neglect the cause of the sick and poor. Here the cheering was renewed, and the children sang the National Anthem. Prayers were then offered by the Bishop of London, and the ceremony of laying the stone was proceeded with, coins of the realm and the report of the institution for the present year having previously been deposited in a cavity of the block. A silver trowel was handed to the Prince of Wales by Mr. R. L. Trollope, of the firm of Trollope and Sons, the builders of the new wing, and the Prince assisted in spreading the mortar, which having been duly accomplished, the block was lowered, and, having been proved to have been duly adjusted, the spectators applauded with much zeal and warmth. When the Prince of Wales had returned to the station he had previously occupied, the children sang the Old Hundredth Psalm, a prayer and benediction by the Bishop of London succeeded, and then there was a presentation of purses. Firstly came a number of young ladies of ages ranging from, perhaps, six to fourteen, all of whom, as they timidly handed their contributions to the Prince, were received with a pleasant smile. Having bowed gracefully and delivered their purses to his Royal Highness, they retired. A few young gentlemen succeeded, and then a few ladies, many of whom, known to be warm friends of the hospital, were much cheered as they approached with their offerings. The aggregate number of purses was fifty-five, and the contents amounted to £279, including a purse of £18 17s. from the medical students of the hospital, presented by Miss Wood. The Prince himself gave a donation of fifty guineas. Mr. J. Crawshay has given £600, his second donation of that amount. The total collection hitherto amounts to above £4800. The Danish National Hymn and "God Save the Queen" were performed by the band of the Victoria Rifles, and the ceremony concluded.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR JUNE.

THE Impératrice Régente has revived the taste for plain dresses, with paletots to match, for outdoor wear; and, in accordance with the example set by her Majesty, the foulard again occupies the first rank for summer toilets: it is employed for dresses, for jupons, and even for chemisettes. The entire plain white costume, with coloured silk trimmings (as depicted in our first Illustration) is very elegant; but the trimming may be dispensed with by the selection of a foulard with black, blue, or rose spots. The same designs in muslin, already published, will furnish agreeable wear for June and the succeeding warm months. For walking dress the system of tirettes has been almost abandoned; but, where still persevered in for the promenade, the skirt should be let down and allowed to train before entering a salon.

Two descriptions of bonnets, the chapeau empire and the chapeau fanchon, are now struggling for supremacy: a design of each will be found in our Engraving. The latter enjoys the vogue at present; but its simplicity, and the facility with which it is procured by all classes of the community, threaten the duration of its success, and pave the way for the triumph of the chapeau empire, which is more complicated, and better suited to persons of regular features. For the moment, both styles are accepted, and both are in accordance with the actual taste for very small bonnets. Some very pretty ornaments for chapeaux have just been brought out: long sparkling grass in the place of bavolets for the fanchon bonnets and crystal ornaments for those of the empire. The ribbons behind have completely gone out of fashion, and are replaced by a small scarf in white or black tulle, forming, as it were, a sort of double veil, falling a little below the neck, thus hidden as by a long bavolet.

White jupons, with white stockings, are gradually returning into favour, except when coloured bottines are worn; in the latter case the stockings should form a contrast as to colour. Another excellent mode, when dresses are made to draw up, is to wear a jupon of the same material. The effect is somewhat less showy certainly, but the object sought to be attained, the preservation of the robe, is thereby assured, without necessitating that appearance of coquetry which is disagreeable to many ladies.

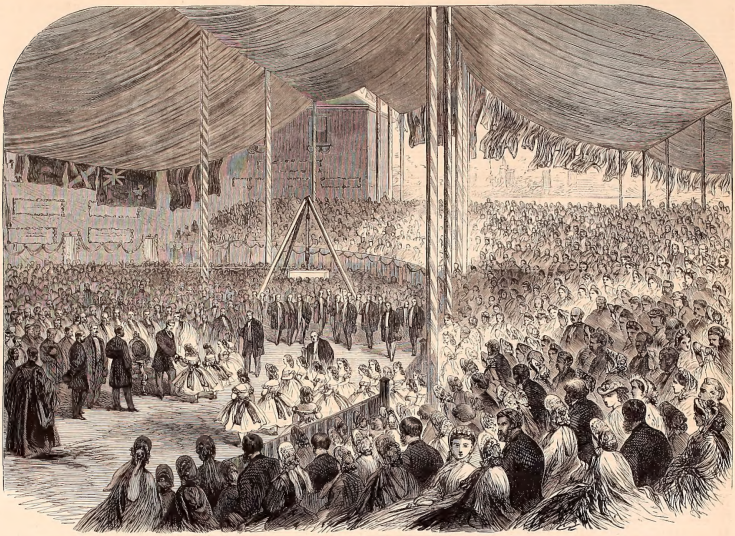


THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Fig. 1. Carriage Dress.—Robe of white foulard, ornamented throughout with violet silk trimmings, which contrast admirably with the dull white of the foulard. The small paletot is trimmed with the same design, but necessarily in a lesser proportion. White tulle chapeau empire, decorated with hedge-roses and rose-leaves, and provided behind with a large bow and two wide bands of white tulle.

Fig. 2. Evening Dress for a Young Lady.—Nankeen-coloured silk robe, simply trimmed with deep-red silk cording round the skirt, on the shoulders, and in two rows on the sleeves in the guise of bracelets. The corsage is plain, buttoning in front, and fastened at the waist with a narrow red velvet band attached by a rosette. In the coiffure a few red velvet ornaments are introduced, and, with the frisure above the forehead and the bunch of curls behind, produce a very pleasing ensemble.

Fig. 3. Walking Dress.—The principal feature of this costume is the elegantly-cut, sleeveless, black silk mantle, edged throughout its entire outline with lace trimming. The upper part of the mantle is so designed as to show a portion of the corsage in front and behind. Worn over a violet dress (as in our Engraving), the effect is very graceful. Violet crape chapeau fanchon, trimmed with white lace behind, and in front with one white and two violet flowers.



FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE RESTORATION OF THE RHENISH PROVINCES TO GERMANY.

THE KING OF PRUSSIA LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF THE MONUMENT TO KING FREDERICK WILLIAM III., IN THE HAYMARKET, COLOGNE.

ILLUMINATION OF THE BRIDGE AND CITY OF COLOGNE ON THE EVENING OF THE FESTIVAL.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

THE PRINCE OF WALES LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF THE NEW WING OF ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL, PADDINGTON: HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS RECEIVING PURSES FROM LADIES AND CHILDREN.—SEE PAGE 527.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR JUNE.—SEE PAGE 527.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

Owing to a large influx of the precious metals, and the recommencement of purchases of Stock for the reduction of the National Debt, the market for Home Securities has ruled steady, though far from active, and, in some instances, prices have ruled a shade higher than in the previous week. The Unfunded Debt, however, has commanded very little attention.

The supply of money for discount purposes has continued to increase, and the demand for accommodation has not increased to any extent.

On Thursday the Directors of the Bank of England reduced their minimum rate of discount to 3½ per cent.

Very little change has taken place in the value of capital on the Continent.

Nearly £1,000,000 in bullion has arrived from various quarters, and several large parcels of gold have been sent into the Bank of England. As the Continental exchanges are favourable, and as we are now drawing gold from India, there is every prospect of a further addition to the stock of gold now held.

On Monday Home and Indian Stocks were steady. Consols, for Money, were done at 91½ ¾; Ditto, for Account, ex div., 89⅝ ¾; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89 to 89½; Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem.; India Bonds, 15s. to 20s. prem. Bank Stock was 240 to 242; India Stock, 215 to 218; Ditto, New, 106½; Rupee Paper, 100 to 101, and 107 to 109. Prices were well supported on the following day. Consols, for Transfer, closed at 91¼; Ditto, for Time, 89⅝ ¾; Bank Stock, 241 to 243; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89¾; India Stock, 215 to 218; Ditto, New, 106¼ ¾; Rupee Paper, 100¼ to 101¼, and 107 to 109; India Bonds, 15s. to 20s.; and Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem. On Wednesday, Consols, for Money, marked 91⅛ ⅜; Ditto, for Account, 90 to 90¼; Bank Stock, 241 to 243; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89¾ ⅞; India Stock, 215 to 218; Ditto, Five per Cents, 106¼ ⅜; Rupee Paper, 100¼ to 101¼, and 107 to 109; India Bonds, 15s. to 20s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 5s. prem. On Thursday the market was slightly firmer:—Consols, for Money, sold at 91⅝ ¼ ⅜; for Account, 89⅞ 90; Reduced Three per Cents, 89¼ ⅜; New Three per Cents, 89¼ ⅜; Long Annuities, 1885, 14¼; India Five per Cents, 106⅜ ½; and Exchequer Bills, par.

All American Securities have been very firm.

Very few changes of importance have taken place in the value of Foreign Securities. The total amount of business transacted is very moderate; nevertheless, there has been a better feeling in the market, and, in several instances, the tendency of prices has been in a favourable direction.

The Market for Joint-stock Bank Shares has been very inactive, and prices have given way:—Agra and Masterman's have realised 114¼; Ditto, New, 57; Alliance, 29½; Australasia, 70; Ditto, New, 64½; Bank of Queensland, 20⅝ ex div.; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 24; Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China, 46; City, 109; Consolidated, 10¼; English Joint-stock, 12½; Hindustan, China, and Japan, 18; Imperial Ottoman, 16½; Land Mortgage of India, 4½; London and Brazilian, 44¼; London, Buenos Ayres, and River Plate, 47¼; London and County, 75½; London Joint-stock, 49¾; London and South African, 18¼; London and Westminster, 96; Metropolitan and Provincial, 16½; Scinde, Punjaub, and Delhi, 6¼; and Union of London, 52⅞.

Colonial Government Securities have been in very moderate request. Canada Six per Cents have sold at 95; Ditto Five per Cents, 82½; Cape Five per Cents, 91½; Natal Six per Cents, 102½; New South Wales Five per Cents, 92½; Nova Scotia Six per Cents, 97; Queensland Six per Cents, 104¼; and Victoria Six per Cents, 109¼.

Miscellaneous Securities have commanded but little attention.

The Railway Share Market has ruled steady, with but limited fluctuations in prices. The "calls" for the present month amount to £609,444. Annexed are Thursday's official closing quotations:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Bristol and Exeter, 95; Great Eastern, 47; Great Northern, 132; Ditto, "A Stock, 117¾; Great Western, 73⅞; Ditto West Midland—Oxford, 61½; Ditto, Hereford, 104¼; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 122¼; London and Blackwall, 89; London and Brighton, 107; London, Chatham, and Dover, 39⅞; London and North Western, 123⅞; London and South Western, 99¼; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 63; Metropolitan, 140; Ditto, New, 7⅞; Metropolitan District, 100; Midland, 135⅞; North British, 54¼; North Eastern—Berwick, 111; Ditto, Leeds, 70½; Ditto, York, 103; Shropshire Union, 61½; South Devon, 60; South Eastern, 86; Vale of Neath, 106.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 103; Cape Town and Dock, 74; East Indian, 104⅞; Great Indian Peninsula, 104⅞; Ditto, New, 4⅞; Great Western of Canada, 10½; Ditto, New, 7⅞; Madras Five per Cent, 102⅞; Scinde, 101⅞; Punjaub, 101⅞.

Foreign.—Recife and San Francisco, 14; San Paulo, 17⅞.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET. Mr. SOTHERN and his immense success in BROTHER SAM. MONDAY, JUNE 5, and Every Evening, at Seven, the popular Operetta of THE MILLER'S DAUGHTER—Miss Louise Keeley. After which, at Eight precisely, BROTHER SAM—Mr. Sothern, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Compton, Miss Snowdon, and Miss Nelly Moore. Concluding with Planché's revived GREEN-EYED MONSTER—Mr. Chippendale, Mr. Howe, Mr. W. Farren, Mr. Compton, and Miss Louise Keeley.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER.—MONDAY, and during the Week, THE IRISH TIGER. At Eight, LEAH—Miss Bateman, Mr. Jordan; and THE STEEPLECHASE—Messrs. J. L. Toole and P. Bedford. Commence at Seven.

MUSICAL UNION.—FOURTH MATINÉE. JAELL'S LAST PERFORMANCE.—TUESDAY, JUNE 6, Half-past Three.—Quartet, D minor, Mozart, Pianoforte; Quartet, E flat, Schumann; Grand Quintet, B flat, Mendelssohn. Solo, "The Harmonious Blacksmith," Handel, founded on a French Song; historically explained in the programme. Artists—Joachim, Ries, Webb, Hahnn, and Piatti. Pianist, Jaell. Tickets, Half a Guinea each, to be had of Cramer and Co., Chappell and Co., Ollivier and Co., Ashdown and Parry, and Austin, St. James's Hall. Members can pay for visitors at the door.
J. ELLA, Director, 18, Hanover-square.

MR. SIMS REEVES and Mr. SANTLEY in ISRAEL IN EGYPT, EXETER HALL, JUNE 14. Commence at Half-past Seven. NATIONAL CHORAL SOCIETY. Conductor—Mr. G. W. Martin. Tickets, Numbered and Reserved seats, 21s., 10s. 6d., 5s.; Unreserved Seats, 3s., 2s.—14, 15, Exeter Hall.

GENERAL TOM THUMB and his LITTLE PARTY at ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.—Positively LAST WEEK BUT ONE, as they close June 10. We advise our friends not to delay coming, as their last few levées are always crowded. Three Grand Entertainments daily, at Eleven, Three, and Half-past Seven. Admission, Day Entertainments, 1s., 2s., and 3s.; Evening, 1s.; Children under Ten half price to all parts of the house; a few Reserved Seats, 2s.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, with Mr. JOHN PARRY, in their NEW ENTERTAINMENT Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight. Wednesday and Saturday at Three. Last Representations of MRS. ROSELEAF AT THE SEASIDE, by Mr. John Parry.—ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s., and 5s.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY.—EVERY EVENING at Eight o'Clock (except Saturday); Saturday Afternoon at Three o'Clock. PARIS PORTRAYED and MRS. BROWN AT THE PLAY.—EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Box-office open Eleven to Five.

MUSICAL SOCIETY OF LONDON. ST. JAMES'S HALL, WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 7. Conductor—Mr. Alfred Mellon. Beethoven's Symphony in A; Spohr's Ninth Concerto for Violin; Overtures by Mendelssohn ("Athalie"), Sterndale Bennett, and Cherubini ("Anacreon"). Vocalists, Mdme. Parepa and Mr. Santley; solo violinist, Herr Ludwig Straus. Numbered Stalls, 10s. 6d. each; Gallery Tickets, 3s. 6d. Cramer and Co., and Austin's, St. James's Hall.
CHARLES SALAMAN, Hon. Sec., 36, Baker-street.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL EXHIBITION IS NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 53, PALL-MALL (near St. James's Palace). Daily from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d.
JAMES FAHEY, Sec.

FRENCH GALLERY, 120, PALL-MALL. The TWELFTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION of PICTURES, the contributions of Artists of the French and Flemish Schools, to which has been added Rosa Bonheur's New Picture of "A Family of Deer Crossing the Summit of the Long Rocks (Forest of Fontainebleau)," IS NOW OPEN. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d.

HYDE PARK in 1864, by HENRY BARRAUD, Esq., containing 220 Portraits of the Frequenters of Rotten-row, NOW ON VIEW, at 230, Regent-street (opposite Hanover-street). Admission 1s. Open from Ten till Dusk.

NATIONAL PORTRAIT GALLERY, 29, Great George-street, Westminster, will be OPEN to the public on WHIT MONDAY and TUESDAY, from Ten to Five. Admission free. By order,
GEORGE SCHARF, Secretary and Keeper.

WEST LONDON WORKING CLASSES INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION, FLORAL HALL, Covent-garden.—Wonderful Works of Art, Industry, and Invention, by 1100 Exhibitors. "Acknowledged by the press to be the best yet held." Open Daily, from Ten to Five, 6d.; Six to Ten, 3d. Friday, 1s.; Evening, 6d.

THURTON'S "ODD FOLKS."—Mr. Thurton respectfully announces that his TOUR for the Summer will TERMINATE, at Stamford, on Friday Evening next. All communications addressed to Cumberland Lodge, Woodbridge, Suffolk, will be forwarded to Mr. Thurton, in Paris.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, REGENT'S PARK. The SECOND GENERAL EXHIBITION of PLANTS, FLOWERS, and FRUIT, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 14. Tickets to be obtained at the Gardens, and of the Society's Clerk, Austin's Ticket Office, St. James's Hall, on vouchers from Fellows of the Society, price 5s.; or on the day of exhibition, 7s. 6d. each.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—THIS DAY, SATURDAY, Grand OPERA CONCERT and Afternoon Promenade. Terrace Fountains at Two. The Rhododendron Valley in Perfection. Concert at Three, when the following eminent artistes will appear:—Mdlle. Ilma de Murska, Mdlle. Moya, Mdlle. Rosalie Goldhamer, and Mdlle. Grossi; Mons. Joulain, Signor Foli, Mons. Wollrath, and Signor Scalese. Solo Pianoforte—Herr Alfred Jaell. Conductor—Mr. A. Manns.
Admission, Five Shillings, or by Guinea Season Tickets free.
"A more agreeable means of passing an afternoon can hardly be imagined than is now provided every Saturday at the Crystal Palace."
"These Concerts fully bear out the high expectation of pleasure which pleasure itself begets. The entertainment was altogether excellent."—Vide Newspapers.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—WHITSUNTIDE HOLIDAYS.—Four Days only.—MONDAY, TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and FRIDAY. Endless amusements by Mr. Nelson Lee, the Leclerque family; Brothers Segundo and Malloe, the great Spanish Gymnasts; Lingard, in his clever impersonations; and the laughable Pantomimic Ballet, "Love in a Tub," by the entire Lauri family, which excited so much laughter at Easter.
Exhibition of Coxwell's new Great Balloon, "Coxwell's Research," inflated in the Centre Transept, and (at Seven o'clock) on Monday, Ascent by Mr. Coxwell in his Military Balloon, "Mars."
Pulleyn's New Hippodrome (300 feet in circumference), situated at the north end of the Terrace Walk, opens on Whit Monday.
The Rhododendron Valley, with its 10,000 plants in bloom, and the Plantations round the Lakes in the fullest beauty.
Shakspere House, Fine-Art Courts, Picture Gallery, Skating Hall, Chimpanzee, Archery, Boats on the Lake, Bowls, Cricket, Rifle-shooting, Roundabouts, &c. Doors open at Nine. Extra trains from London Bridge, Victoria, Kensington; and from Ludgate-hill, Elephant and Castle, and Victoria, to Sydenham-hill, by the Chatham and Dover Railway. Come Early. One Shilling; Children Sixpence.

WHITSUNTIDE HOLIDAYS.—CRYSTAL PALACE.—One Shilling.—Extraordinary Special Attractions.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—WEDNESDAY NEXT.—GREAT CHORAL DEMONSTRATION.—FIVE THOUSAND VOICES.—Metropolitan Schools Choral Society.—Concert at Three o'Clock, on the Great Handel Orchestra. Conductor, Mr. John Hullah. Organist, Mr. E. J. Hopkins.—Programme includes, "Now, pray we for our country;" "Sleepers, wake;" "Come unto these yellow sands;" and various anthems, choruses, and part-songs.
Admission, Half-a-Crown, or by the new Guinea Season Tickets.

GREAT HANDEL FESTIVAL—CRYSTAL PALACE.—REHEARSAL, FRIDAY, JUNE 23. MESSIAH, MONDAY, June 26. SELECTION, WEDNESDAY, June, 28, ISRAEL IN EGYPT, FRIDAY, June 30.
Plans, and Programmes, and Tickets on sale at the Palace, or at 2, Exeter Hall.
Stalls 3 and 2½ Guineas the set. Reserved Stalls and admissions Rehearsal Day, Five Shillings each. The second issue of Rehearsal Admission Tickets will be at Seven Shillings and Sixpence. Those now out at Five Shillings should be secured at once, as after Wednesday next, June 7, the price will be increased to Seven Shillings and Sixpence.
NOTE.—A limited issue of Half-guinea Reserved Seats, including Admission for each of the three days of the Festival, has commenced. Early application is requisite.

GREAT HANDEL FESTIVAL.—ONE and THREE DAYS' EXCURSIONS to the GREAT FULL REHEARSAL, including Admission, at Low Rates. Also, Return Tickets, extending over the Three Days of the Festival, will be issued by nearly all the principal Railway Companies. Particulars of the extraordinary facilities which will thus be afforded for witnessing this GREAT MUSICAL CELEBRATION will be issued by each Company in a few days. By order,
Crystal Palace, June 1, 1865. GEO. GROVE, Secretary.

HANDEL FESTIVAL.—HALF-GUINEA RESERVED-SEAT TICKETS, including Admission on either of the Three Days of the Festival, 2, Exeter Hall, and Crystal Palace. These tickets are issued at 28s. 6d. the set for the Three Days. They are limited in number.—Cheques or Post Office orders payable to George Grove.
NOTE.—Carte de Visite Photograph of the Orchestra of Four Thousand Performers sent on receipt of two postage-stamps.

HANDEL FESTIVAL.—GRAND FULL REHEARSAL.—WEDNESDAY NEXT is the LAST DAY for FIVE SHILLING Admission Tickets. The next Issue will be at Seven Shillings and Sixpence.—Crystal Palace; 2, Exeter Hall; and of the usual agents.

JUNE 9.—Mr. JAQUES BLUMENTHAL'S ANNUAL GRAND MATINEE MUSICALE, in the Picture Gallery of DUDLEY HOUSE, PARK-LANE (by kind permission of the Right Hon. the Earl of Dudley), on FRIDAY, JUNE 9, at Three o'Clock.—Programmes and Tickets to be had of Cramer's, Chappell's, Ollivier's, and Mitchell's; and of Mr. Blumenthal, 14, Cambridge-terrace, Hyde Park, W.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Mr. SIMS REEVES' BENEFIT, on MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 12. Pianoforte, Mdme. Arabella Goddard; Violin, Herr Joachim; Violoncello, Signor Piatti; Vocalists, Mdme. Joachim, Miss Edmonds, and Mr. Sims Reeves; Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s, 201, Regent-street; Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s, 48, Cheapside; and at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly. No Concert on Monday Next, June 5.

MADAME SCHUMANN will perform Mendelssohn's Sonata in B Flat, with HERR LIDEL at his MATINEE MUSICALE, at COLLARD'S ROOMS, on MONDAY NEXT. Also solos by Schumann, Chopin, &c. Vocalists—Miss Banks and Mdme. Berger Lascelles. Tickets half a guinea each, at Ollivier and Co.'s, 19, Old Bond-street; and Herr Lidel, 9, Osnaburgh-terrace, Regent's Park.

MISS ELLICE JEWELL has the honour to announce that her FIRST MATINEE MUSICALE will take place on SATURDAY, JUNE 10, by kind permission of Mrs. Charles Butler, at No. 3, CONNAUGHT-PLACE, HYDE PARK. Tickets, 10s. 6d. each, to be had of Mis Ellice Jewell, 16, Fulham-place, Maida-hill.

MRS. JOHN MACFARREN and Miss POOLE, NEXT WEDNESDAY, at Three, EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. MORNING at the PIANOFORTE. Selections from Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Weber, Mendelssohn, Chopin, Thalberg, Brissac. Pianist, Mrs. John Macfarren; vocalist, Miss Poole. Stalls, 5s.; Tickets, 3s., 2s., and 1s.

51, PORTLAND-PLACE.—By the kind permission of Henry Alers Hankey, Esq.—Mr. AUGUSTUS L. TAMPLIN begs to announce that his first GRAND MORNING CONCERT will take place on THURSDAY, JUNE 8, commencing at Half-past Three, p.m. The following artists will have the honour of appearing:—Mdme. Parepa, Miss Taylor (pupil of Mdme. Sainton-Dolby), Miss Eleonora Wilkinson, Mr. Wilbye Cooper, Mr. Patey. Harp, Mr. J. Balsir Chatterton, who will perform a new Grand Concertante for Harp and Organ, composed expressly for this occasion by Mr. Tamplin. At the Piano, Mr. Li Calsi, Mr. George Russell, and Mr. Benedict. Mr. Tamplin will perform on the new great Orchestral Organ, built under his immediate direction by Henry Wedlake, London, being the most complete chamber instrument in existence. The pedal organ alone contains twelve sounding stops, of which two are of 32 ft. Each manual has Mr. Tamplin's solo action applied. Tickets, One Guinea each, at Chappell's, New Bond-street, W.

WHITSUNTIDE HOLIDAYS.—The SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM open FREE during the Week. The North-Western Entrance, opposite the Horticultural Gardens, will be opened. The Collection of Animal Products in the South Arcades of the Horticultural Gardens will be exhibited on Monday and Tuesday. The Loan Collection of Portrait Miniatures will be open.—By order of the Committee of Council on Education.

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES honoured the Corporation of the SONS of the CLERGY by being a Steward of the 211th Festival, on the 17th May last, and attended the Service at St. Paul's Cathedral and the Dinner in Merchant Taylors' Hall, contributing on the occasion the munificent sum of £105.
Donations and Annual Subscriptions for assisting poor Clergymen, Pensioning their Widows and aged single Daughters, and providing Education and Outfits for Clergymen's Children will be gratefully received by Messrs. Hoare, Bankers, Fleet-street, E.C.; or by Charles John Baker, Esq., Registrar, No. 2, Bloomsbury-place, W.C., London.

GEOLOGICAL EXCURSION.—Professor TENNANT will accompany some of his Students from King's College on Monday next to Dover, to examine the Geology of the District. He will be glad to see any former Student. Trains leave Victoria and Ludgate-hill stations at 8.30, returning from Dover at 6.50. Return tickets, second class, 5s. 6d.; third, 3s. 6d.

LOOK HERE!—FROM NORWAY. ROLFSHUUS INN, parish of Gol, at Hallingdal, in Norway, about 119 English miles from Christiania, 105 miles from Drammen, and 91 miles from Lærdalsøra. Tourists and travellers, visiting Norway, will find the above inn delightfully situated in the centre of Hallingdal on their trip between Christiania and Bergen. The beauties of this district are well known, and the proprietor of the inn, Mrs. BRUUN, trusts that the strictest attention to the comfort of those who may honour her with their favours will ensure her a liberal share of public patronage. Mrs. Bruun has had the pleasure to see most respectable English gentlemen in her house.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

WILKINSON and KIDD, Saddlers to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, have REMOVED their Establishment from the corner of Park-street, Oxford-street, to 5, HANOVER-SQUARE, W. (adjoining the Queen's Concert Room).

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

ALEC FORBES OF HOWGLEN. By GEORGE MACDONALD, M.A., Author of "David Elginbrod."
VIOLET OSBORNE. By LADY EMILY PONSONBY, Author of "The Discipline of Life," &c. 3 vols.
A FAITHFUL WOMAN. By the Author of "Cousin Geoffrey," &c. 3 vols.
LISABEE'S LOVE STORY. By the Author of "John and I," "Dr. Jacob," &c. 3 vols.
CHRISTIAN'S MISTAKE. By Author of John Halifax.
ROSE AYLMER'S HOME. 3 vols.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Now ready, at all the Libraries,

BRIGAND LIFE IN ITALY. By Count MAFFEI. 2 vols.
HISTORIC PICTURES. By A. BAILLIE COCHRANE, M.P. 2 vols. 21s.
YACHTING ROUND THE WEST OF ENGLAND. By the Rev. A. G. L'ESTRANGE, R.T.Y.C. Illustrated. 15s.
IMPRESSIONS OF LIFE AT HOME AND ABROAD. By Lord EUSTACE CECIL. 14s.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

DEDICATED TO THE RIGHT HON. W. E. GLADSTONE.
Now ready, Vol. I., with above 100 Illustrations, 21s.,

THE LIFE OF JOSIAH WEDGWOOD. From his Private Correspondence and Family Papers in the possession of Joseph Mayer, Esq., F.S.A.; Francis Wedgwood, Esq.; C. Darwin, Esq., M.A., F.R.S.; Miss Wedgwood, and other original sources; with an Introductory Sketch of the Art of Pottery in England. By ELIZA METEYARD.
"This is 'The Life of Wedgwood,' to the expected appearance of which I referred at Burslem."—Extract from a letter to the author by the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.
"A very beautiful and valuable work."—Examiner.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Just ready, 8vo, cloth, with numerous Illustrations, from Original Sketches, drawn on Wood by R. P. Leitch, and engraved by J. D. Cooper and W. J. Linton, price 21s.,

THE NORTH-WEST PASSAGE BY LAND; being the History of an Expedition from the Atlantic to the Pacific, through British Territory, by one of the Northern Passes in the Rocky Mountains. By VISCOUNT MILTON, F.R.G.S., F.G.S., &c., and W. B. CHEADLE, B.A., M.B. Cantab., F.R.G.S.
CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN, London, E.C.

MR. HENRY KINGSLEY'S NEW NOVEL.
This day is published, Second Edition, three vols., crown 8vo, cloth, price £1 11s. 6d.,

THE HILLYARS AND THE BURTONS. A Story of Two Families. By HENRY KINGSLEY, Author of "Austin Elliot," "Ravenshoe," &c.
MACMILLAN and CO., London and Cambridge.

PHOTOGRAPHY.
Seventh Edition, with Engravings, fcap 8vo, cloth, 7s. 6d.,

HARDWICH'S PHOTOGRAPHIC CHEMISTRY.
JOHN CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

BOTANY.—With nearly 1200 Engravings, fcap 8vo, cloth, 12s. 6d.,

A MANUAL OF BOTANY. By ROBERT BENTLEY, Professor of Botany, King's College, London.
JOHN CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

CHEMISTRY.—Ninth Edition, with 187 Engravings, fcap 8vo, cloth, 12s. 6d.,

FOWNES' MANUAL OF CHEMISTRY. Edited by H. BENCE JONES, M.D., F.R.S., and A. W. HOFMANN, Ph. D., F.R.S.
JOHN CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

MICROSCOPE.—Third Edition, with 400 Plates and Engravings fcap 8vo, cloth, 12s. 6d.,

THE MICROSCOPE AND ITS REVELATIONS. By W. B. CARPENTER, M.D., F.R.S.
JOHN CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

With Engravings, 8vo, cloth, 5s.,

ASTRONOMICAL INVESTIGATIONS. The Cosmical Relations of the Revolution of the Lunar Apsides, Oceanic Tides. By HENRY F. A. PRATT, M.D.
JOHN CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

LONDON.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.
PARIS.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.
KENT and SUSSEX.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.
Contain Maps, Plans, and numerous Wood Engravings. One Shilling each.
W. and R. CHAMBERS, London and Edinburgh.

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK. Price 7s. 6d. Seventy-sixth Thousand, revised and enlarged, and fully Illustrated. "The best book of its class yet produced."—Illustrated London News.—London: LONGMAN and Co.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR JUNE.
Just published, price 2s. 6d., the June Part of LA MODE ILLUSTRÉE, Journal de la Famille, containing more than One Hundred Designs, Four Coloured Plates, and One Pattern, full working size, with most amusing and entertaining matter.

ASHER and Co., 13, Bedford-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

Second Edition, now ready, post-free 32 stamps,

BARR MEADOWS ON ERUPTIONS: Their Successful Treatment, without Arsenic or Specifics.
T. ROBINSON, 10, Mitre-street, Aldgate, E.C.

Tenth Thousand, price 2s. 6d., post-free, 32 stamps,

HUNT on the SKIN; a Guide to the Treatment and Prevention of Diseases of the Skin and Hair, with Cases. By THOS. HUNT, F.R.C.S., Surgeon to the Dispensary for Diseases of the Skin, 21A, Charlotte-st., Fitzroy-sq. "Mr. Hunt has transferred these diseases from the incurable class to the curable."—Lancet.—London: T. RICHARDS, 37, Gt. Queen-st., W.C.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES, Small and Large; Rich, Elegant, Durable; at all the principal Booksellers'; and at 15, Paternoster-row, London.

IMPORTANT TO EVERY ONE.—JUST COMPLETED,

A VALUABLE INDEX, containing the Arms of nearly every Family in England, Ireland, and Scotland. The result of thirty years' labour, extracted from public and private records, church windows, monumental brasses, county histories, and other sources throughout the kingdom. Families desirous of knowing their proper Crest or Coat of Arms are requested to send name and county. Mr. CULLETON, having devoted many years to the study of Heraldry, is enabled to answer all questions connected with that beautiful science, explaining how arms should be borne by the head of each family, and all the different branches thereof—how the arms of man and wife should be blended together—the various marks of cadency to be placed on each coat—the proper heraldic colours for servants' liveries—what buttons to be used—and how the carriage should be painted, according to the rules of heraldic etiquette. Plain Sketch of any person's Arms, 3s. 6d.; Coloured Ditto, 6s.; Arms, Crest, and Family Motto, 12s.; Arms of man and wife, blended together, 18s. Arms quartered and emblazoned in the most elegant style. Family pedigrees traced from authentic records at the College of Arms, British Museum, Record Office, and other places. Correct information how to obtain a new grant of Arms, the cost of same, and how to add or change one's name. Pedigrees Illuminated on parchment. Wills searched, and every kind of genealogical information obtained from parish records. "The Manual of Heraldry," four hundred Engravings, 3s. 6d., post-free, by T. Culleton, Genealogist, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane), London, W.C.

CHROMO-LITHOGRAPHS.—A large variety of these popular facsimiles of water-colour drawings by the great masters, varying in price from 5s. to £3 3s., framed and unframed, ready for delivery in town or country. Packing-cases lent free of charge.—At EDWIN JERRARD'S, 95, New Bond-street.

PERMANENT PHOTOGRAPHS are obtained by the new patent process of WOTHLYTYPE on Ivory. Those interested in the advance of the art are invited to view the specimens. Full information and card of prices by post.
"The pictures are printed with wonderful delicacy."—Times.
The UNITED ASSOCIATION of PHOTOGRAPHY (Limited), 213, Regent-street, W.

MR. CLAUDET.—CARTES DE VISITE PORTRAITS. 12 Copies for £1 1s.; 30 for £2 2s.
Several positions are taken and a proof of each submitted to the sitter, who has the option of selecting from either or all negatives. If the proofs are not approved of another sitting is granted. The only way to give entire satisfaction. Children taken by Mr. Claudet's Instantaneous Process.
107, Regent-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

FRANZ ABT'S LA JOYEUSE GALOP, sent for 18 stamps. This Galop is dansante in the highest degree. The elegance of its melody, with its brilliant and sparkling passages, renders it one of the most effective and delightful morceaux de salon of the day.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-st.

MDLLE. ILMA DE MURSKA.

LA MURSKA VALSE. By C. GODFREY, Bandmaster Scots Fusilier Guards. Solos and Duets sent for 24 stamps each.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

TO LOVERS OF MUSIC.—The choicest Stock of Musical Boxes in London, by Stauffer, at £1 per air; Snuffboxes, 7s. per tune.—At T. W. NEILSON'S, 232, Strand (four doors west of Temple Bar).

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOTS, 56, Cheapside, and 32, Ludgate-street.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, £1 per air; Snuffboxes, 7s. to 10s. per tune. Catalogues of tunes and prices gratis and post-free on application to WALES and CO., as above.

CHEAP FRAMES (Gold Bead), for Art-Union and "Illustrated News" prints, 2s. 6d. A variety in stock, Oak, Maple, Rosewood, or Gold. Pictures cleaned and frames re-gilt.—At EDWIN JERRARD'S, 95, New Bond-street.

PICTURE FRAMES for "HAPPINESS," given with this Paper. Handsome gilt frame, glass and back, 1s. 6d.; maple and gilt, 3s.; ornamented, gold oval frame, 4s.—At GEO. REES, 57, Drury-lane; and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

JAQUES'S PRIZE MEDAL CROQUET, 15s. to £5 5s. per set. Sold at all the leading Fancy Repositories throughout the Kingdom. Wholesale, Jaques and Son, 102, Hatton-garden. Caution: Observe the name "Jaques and Son" on each box, without which none are genuine.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.—OPERA-GLASSES in every variety of form and mounting, matchless for their great magnifying power and sharpness of definition, at CALLAGHAN'S, 23A, New Bond-street (corner of Conduit-street), W. Sole Agent for the celebrated Field and Opera Glasses made by Voigtländer, Vienna.

THE NEW DERBY RACE-GLASS, price 50s., with sling-case complete. Will show distinctly the entire race, from "the start" to "the coming in." Guaranteed the cheapest and best glass (a new model) ever offered to the public. Sent carriage-free to any part of the kingdom. Post-office orders payable to WILLIAM CALLAGHAN, Optician, 23A, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Conduit-street).

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE. Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street). Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Six. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

M. F. DENT, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker to the Queen and to the principal Courts of Europe.
M. F. Dent, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, London.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, WATCHMAKERS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Bank). First-class Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements and maintaining power to continue going whilst being wound, recommended for accuracy and durability.

PRICES OF SILVER WATCHES.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds	4	14	6
Ditto, jewelled in four holes and capped	6	6	0
Ditto, the finest quality, jewelled in six holes	8	8	0

Silver Watches, in Hunting Cases, 10s. 6d. extra.

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR LADIES.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled	11	11	0
Ditto, with richly-engraved case	12	12	0
Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes	14	14	0

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR GENTLEMEN.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, seconds, and capped	13	13	0
Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold balance	19	19	0

Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, £3 3s. extra.
List of prices with remarks on Watches, gratis and post-free.

A FACT.—An Elegant POCKET DIAL, with gold appendages, warranted to denote correct time, in handsome gilt case, One Shilling; by post, 14 stamps.
PAUL RANSOM, 91, Brunswick-street, Haggerstone, London, N.E.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, DINING-ROOM, consisting of vases, figures, groups, candlesticks, inkstands, obelisks, inlaid tables, &c., in Alabaster, Marble, Bronze, Derbyshire Spar, &c. Imported and Manufactured by J. TENNANT (late Mawe), 149, Strand, W.C.

SLACKS' FENDERS and FIREIRONS.
Every New Design always on Show.
Black Fenders, 3s. 6d. to 6s.
Bronzed Fenders, 10s. to 30s.
Bright Steel and Ormoulu, 65s. to 120s.
Bed-room Fireirons, 3s. to 5s. 9d.
Drawing-room do., 10s. 6d. to 60s.
Improved Coalboxes, 4s. 6d. to 30s.
Dishcovers, the set of six, 18s. to 70s.
Catalogues, containing 350 Engravings and Prices, gratis, or sent post-free. Orders above £2 sent carriage-free, per rail.
Richard and John Slack, 336, Strand, London.

THE BURLINGTON FURNITURE GALLERIES, 38, Conduit-street, Bond-street, W.—A. SEDLEY and CO. have the honour to direct attention to the following—viz., the beautiful TAPESTRIES of ST. MAUR and NEUILLY, for curtains, portières, covering furniture, &c. These elegant productions are now in price within the reach of all who desire to furnish economically and in good taste. Also a Superb Collection of High-class Carved Oak DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY FURNITURE, at very moderate prices.—A. Sedley and Co., 38, Conduit-street, W., Upholsterers, and Patentees of the celebrated Equilibrium Chairs.

CONVERTIBLE OTTOMANS for centre of rooms, to form two settees and two easy-chairs—a great improvement.—T. H. FILMER and SON'S, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, Oxford-street. An Illustrated Priced List post-free.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requring no calendering, is peculiarly adapted for curtains or furniture-coverings, being durable, elegant, and inexpensive. HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, have all the new patterns.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, solicit the gentry to inspect their new Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all reception-rooms. An indispensable luxury to every lady's boudoir.

FURNISH your HOUSE with the best ARTICLES: they are the cheapest in the end.—DEANE and CO.'S priced FURNISHING LIST, gratis and post-free, enumerates the leading articles from all the various departments of their establishment, and is arranged to facilitate purchasers in the selection of goods. It comprises table cutlery, electro-plate lamps, baths, fenders, fireirons, iron bedsteads, bedding; Britannia metal, copper, tin, and brass goods; culinary utensils, turnery, brushes, mats, &c. Deane and Co., 46, King William-street, London Bridge.—Established A.D. 1700.

WENHAM LAKE ICE for Town or Country. Refrigerators, Ice-cream Machines, Saltzogenes, Freezing Powders, and everything connected with freezing, of the most reliable character. Illustrated Price-lists. Order direct from THE WENHAM LAKE ICE COMPANY, 140, STRAND, W.C.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-paid. It contains upwards of 600 Illustrations of his illimited Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia-metal Goods, Dish Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimneypieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gaseliers; Tea Trays, Urns, and Kettles; Clocks, Table Cutlery, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-room Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices, and plans of the twenty large Show-rooms, at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard.

WHIT SUNDAY, WHIT MONDAY, and WHIT TUESDAY.—CHEAP EXCURSIONS by RIVER and Rail from Victoria, London Bridge, and Kensington at 8 a.m.; Fare for the Double Journey, 5s. 6d. Children under 12, 3s. 6d. Victoria to Chatham, 2s. 6d.

First Class, 3s.; Second Class, 2s.; Third Class, 1s. 6d.

SINGLE JOURNEY.
First Class, 2s. 6d.; Second Class, 2s.; Third Class, 1s. 6d.

HASTINGS, ST. LEONARDS, EASTBOURNE, FOLKESTONE, and DOVER, by the BRIGHTON LINE.—On WHIT SUNDAY, Trains from Victoria at 8.40 a.m., 10 a.m., 11 a.m., 12 noon, 1.30 p.m., 2.30 p.m., 3.30 p.m., 4.30 p.m., 5.30 p.m., 6.30 p.m., 7.30 p.m., 8.30 p.m., 9.30 p.m., 10.30 p.m., and 11.30 p.m. Fare to Hastings, 4s. 6d. p.p.; St. Leonards, 4s. 6d. p.p.; Eastbourne, 5s. 6d. p.p.; Folkestone, 7s. 6d. p.p.; Dover, 8s. 6d. p.p. On WHIT MONDAY and TUESDAY Trains for London Bridge will leave Hastings at 8.15 p.m.; St. Leonards, 8.30 p.m.; Eastbourne, 8.55 p.m.; Folkestone, 9.30 p.m.; Dover, 9.45 p.m.

PARIS THERE AND BACK IN ALL STATIONS.
First Class, 60s.; Second Class, 40s.; Third Class, 30s.
These Tickets will run on every subsequent Sunday until further notice.

PORTSMOUTH, HAVANT, CHICHESTER, BOGNOR, and BRIGHTON and ARUNDEL for the ISLE of WIGHT.—On WHIT SUNDAY Trains from Victoria at 8.40 a.m., 10 a.m., 11 a.m., 12 noon, 1.30 p.m., 2.30 p.m., 3.30 p.m., 4.30 p.m., 5.30 p.m., 6.30 p.m., 7.30 p.m., 8.30 p.m., 9.30 p.m., 10.30 p.m., and 11.30 p.m. Fare to Portsmouth, 5s. 6d. p.p.; Havant, 4s. 6d. p.p.; Chichester, 4s. 6d. p.p.; Bognor, 5s. 6d. p.p.; Brighton, 3s. 6d. p.p.; Arundel, 4s. 6d. p.p. On WHIT MONDAY and TUESDAY Trains for London Bridge will leave Portsmouth at 8.15 p.m.; Havant, 8.30 p.m.; Chichester, 8.45 p.m.; Bognor, 9.15 p.m.; Brighton, 8.15 p.m.; Arundel, 8.30 p.m.

First Class, 6s. 6d.; Second Class, 4s. 6d.; Third Class, 3s. 6d.
These Tickets will run on every subsequent Sunday until further notice.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.—SUBURBAN SERVICE VALUABLE FOR GLADSTONE, MOSTYN, and NEW HOUSES in the Neighbourhood of Paddington, Kensington, and other principal stations on the Great Western Railway, to be disposed of by WATERING PLACE and Investment Householders, Shrewsbury, Cirencester, Cornwall, and Yorkshire Coasts, North Wales, Bristol, Bath, Clifton, and Exeter.

Tenants Wanted for Land for Circular Carriage Drive and Villa Sites.

The Station, Malvern, the Valley of the Wye, the Cathedral Lake District, Leamington, Highfield, the Valley of Kilburney, Limerick, &c., and the Channel Islands via Weymouth.

Cheap Return Tickets to Malvern are now issued by the Great Western Railway, available for return by any train up to the evening of the following day.

Programmes, Plans, Leases and full particulars, dates, &c., may be obtained at all the Company's Offices and Stations.

Paddington, 1st May, 1865. G. H. ROBINSON, General Manager.

JUNE 14, 15, and 16, FANCY BAZAAR in AID of EXTENSION of DEBT on the CONGREGATIONAL CHAPEL, Kentish Town. The Bazaar, which is kindly promised to be held in the Queen's Building (ROYAL HOLLOWAY COLLEGE, Egham Works). To be opened by WM. AGNEW, Esq., M.P. The Right Hon. the EARL of WATERFORD will preside at the Organ. Tickets to be open from Two till Ten, and to be lighted up at Dusk. Admission, in each case, at the door, 1s. each day. Open-air Concert, Saturday afternoon.

THE CONSERVATIVE LAND SOCIETY.

The Thirteenth Year.—Prospectuses and Forms of Application, any place, explanatory of the Shares, Deposit, Land, or Borrowing Societies, may be had at the Society's Offices, 33, Parliament-street, Westminster, 33, Norton-street, Strand, London, W.C.

ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL, Paddington, W.—An ELECTION of the Weekly Board, held on Friday, the 26th of May, 1865, by the governors.

That the next Sunday of the Weekly Board of Governors of this Hospital, to be held on the first Friday in the month of June next, and with each succeeding office, stand in rotation next after the election of the reception of R.B.H. The Prince of Wales upon the occasion of his laying the foundation-stone of the New Wing of the Hospital, the Governors be authorised to distribute in three morning papers, and that a copy of the same be sent to each of the Governors, and that the same be published in the sermon of the Governors.

May 27, 1865. JOS. G. WILKINSON, Sec.

HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W.—Sea-air, Inhalation, Medical Treatment, and Nourishing Diet. Patients are now admitted. Liberal and Continuous SUPPORT is RESPECTFULLY SOLICITED. Street improvements of the Hospital.

PHILIP SOMS, Hon. Sec.; HENRY DOBSON, Sec.

BANK of NEW ZEALAND.—The Court of Directors in the General Government of New Zealand, the Provincial Government of Auckland, Canterbury, Otago, and Nelson.

CAPITAL, £500,000. RESERVED FUND, £200,000.

Head Office—Auckland.

Auckland	Nelson	Dunedin	Melbourne
Russell	Onehunga	Invercargill	Sydney
Kawakawa	Napier	Queenstown	Melbourne
Onehunga	Napier	Dunedin	Sydney
Christchurch	Napier	Queenstown	Melbourne
Lyttelton	Napier	Dunedin	Sydney
Timaru	Napier	Queenstown	Melbourne
Kaiapoi	Napier	Dunedin	Sydney
Akaroa	Napier	Queenstown	Melbourne

This Bank grants Drafts on and for the disposal of the above Branches every description of banking business connected with New Zealand may be transacted.

The London Office receives deposits at interest for fixed periods, and sells bills which may be learned on application.

E. LEAVEY, Manager.

No. 70, Old Broad-street, London, E.C. Managing Director.

£2000 in ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE for 1s. 6d.—See the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Broad-street and Threadneedle-street. J. W. GRAHAM, Secretary.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, 33, corner of Sackville-street, Piccadilly, W., for the practice and theory of writing. Persons of all ages carefully taught and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. Terms—No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate Rooms for Ladies, in which they can be taught by Mr. Smart, or by one of his assistants. Private instruction, daily or apply to Mr. Smart, as above.

N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

CULLETON'S PATENT LEVER LETTERING PRESS, for corking paper with name, address, or device. Any person can use them. Carriage-paid—7s. Cullerton, 32, Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

SOLID GOLD SIGNET RINGS, 42s. 9d. Silk, Bloodstone, Cornelian, Agate, and Jasper Seals, 21s. each. Hall-marked, carriage-paid. The Hall mark is the only guarantee for Gold. Arms, Crests, Initials, Rings, Seals, Dies, Cards, and Steel Plates, at the lowest price ever known. Illustrated Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

NO CHARGE for Engraving Die with Crest. Monograms or Initials as charged by the artist. Steel Plates, an order be given for a Golden Box of Stationery, containing a Quire of Note, Thick Cream Wove Envelopes to match, and all stamped in Colour. J. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 32, Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

VISITING CARDS.—A Card Plate engraved, and Fifty Cards printed, in gent-line, Fifty Black-bordered Cards, in Wedding Cards, fifty each for lady and gentleman; fifty Embossed Cards, fifty Cards with Monogram, Crest, or Address, 4s. 6d. Arms, Crests, &c. The above post-free. J. CULLETON, 32, Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

CULLETON'S PLATES FOR MARKING LINEN, Hall-marked, Initials, 1s.; Name, 2s. 6d.; Set of numbers, 2s. 6d.; crest, 5s.; with directions, post-free.—J. Culleton, 32, Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane, London.

CULLEN'S BAND OFFICE, 27, 28, Essex-street, Strand, Westbourne-grove, W., removed from 91, Newman-street, Oxford-street.

STAMMERING.—Dr. HUNT begs to announce that he successfully cures Stammering, Stuttering, or other affections of the articulating organs that he has made a special study for many years. Dr. Hunt's system is free from the Pallas' system, and superior education is required for the treatment of the defect. A few Adult Pupils. Dr. Hunt, 6, Argyll-street, Regent-street, W.

The Medical Authority.

ORIGINAL AND SUPERIOR ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES, SAUCES, PICKLES, &c., pure and good, supplied by JOHN BURGESS and SON since more than a Hundred years.—107, Strand corner of Savoy-street, London.

The Only Shop Retailed.

HOMNIMAN'S TEA is EIGHTPENCE per LB. CHEAPER.—Agents: Confectioners in London, Chemists, &c., in the Country, to sell Homniman's Tea, Cocoatina, genuine packets one shilling "Homniman and Co."

TEA.—STRACHAN and CO., 12, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, London, E.C., have REDUCED the PRICE of TEA to 3s. 4d. per lb. Good and Serviceable, from 4s. to 5s. 6d. Carriage to all parts of London paid daily. Samples and Cir. gratuitous and direct from importers.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., Invisible Gossamer Wove Wire Hair Pins, sent on receipt of Stamps. Address—RAKER and CRISP, 199, Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.

Patterns free.

Last year's Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks	£1 5s. 6d. Full Dress.
The Rustling Silks	£1 15s. 6d.
The New Rich Fancy French Silks	£2 2s. 6d.
Neat, useful, and reclaimed Silks for Young Ladies, from £1 7s. 6d.	Full Dress.

199, Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.

Patterns free.

Rich Corded Silks (same both sides), £1 19s. 6d. Full Dress.
199, Regent-street, London.

MOHAIRS, Cambels, Mexican Glacés, &c.

Patterns free.

The New Mohairs, and Cambels, 9s. 9d. to 18s. 6d.;
Mexican Cloths, Fashionable, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. per yard.
BAKER and CRISP, 199, Regent-street.

WOOL BAREGE ROBES, 10s. 6d. each.—Full Dress, 14 yards.—BAKER and CRISP have now selling a Manufacturer's Stock of Rich and Elaborately Worked Muslin Dresses at the above price; every Dress worth double. Patterns free.
199, Regent-street, London.

15,000 YARDS PURE ALPACAS, 6½d. per yard.—Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

HUMCHUNDER and TUSSORE SILKS, Rich Striped and Checked Tussore Silks, from 9s. 6d. to 21 guinea the Full Dress. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

MUSLINS! MUSLINS! MUSLINS! MUSLINS! The best Muslins in the trade, and the cheapest in London. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

MUSLIN JACKETS, 4s. 9d. BAKER and CRISP have now selling Muslin Jackets are now ready in great Variety, from 4s. 9d. to 10s. 6d. each.
198, Regent-street, London.

FOULARDS! FOULARDS! FOULARDS! PATTERNS FREE.

We have just purchased the Entire Stock of the parts of the best Silk Manufacturers in Lyons, which we are now selling under the regular prices. Very best goods 10s. 6d. extra Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

OSTRICH FEATHERS, ROMAN PEARLS, and JEWELLERY.—The Stock of a Manufacturer of Ostrich Feathers, now selling at 3s. 9d., worth 9s. 6d. each. Also, Roman Pearls, Diamonds, Opals, Rubies, Emeralds, and Gold Jewellery at BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

GLOVES! GLOVES! GLOVES!

The best Alpine Kid, 3s. 6d. pair, Black, White, Scarlet, Grey, Tan, Slate, Lavender, and Mauve.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

GLOVES! GLOVES! GLOVES!

The world-wide Kid Gloves, 3s. 6d. pair, any size or colour, for Ladies or Gentlemen.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

GLOVES! GLOVES! GLOVES!

Ladies' Kid Gloves, 1s. 6d. pair, from Paris. Patterns of the Gloves are well adapted for the hot Weather, and are now selling at BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street, London.

FÊTES, &c.—200 Embroidered in Wool Cloth Scarves, 1s. 6d. each, worth 3s. 6d. Fifty dozen Fancy Cloth Caps, 1s. 6d. each, worth 3s. 6d. Fifty dozen Fancy Cloth Hats, 1s. 6d. each, worth 3s. 6d. Also, Flags, Banners, and Ribbons.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

FOR WEDDING, EVENING, or WALKING WEAR.—The NEW GRENADINE MUSLINS, in White and Coloured Grounds, 10½d. per yard.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW EMBROIDERED BLACK WIRE-GROUND SILK GRENADINES, from 10s. 6d. to £2 2s. Full Dress. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

FRENCH ORGANDIE MUSLINS, 6s. 6d. Full Dress.—FRENCH CHINTZES, 10½d. per yard.—Patterns free.—The New Striped Muslins in great variety equally cheap.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE UNTEARABLE BLACK GRENADINES.—Patterns free. 10 yards wide, from 6s. 6d. Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

1500 BLACK SPANISH LACE SHAWLS and SCARFS.

VAK LACE RONTONDES.—The whole of Mr. Montague Black's Stock of these beautiful and valuable articles, which will be sold at 1 quarter each. Unprecedented.
Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, and 25, Wells-street, London.

MOIRE ANTIQUES.—The most beautiful Moire Antiques, in all the new colours, at 4½ to 5½ guineas the Full Dress. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street, 5, 6, and 7, Wells-street.

FOULARD SILKS.—A Great Variety of New Foulard Silks, from 1½ guinea to 2½ guineas the Full Dress. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street, 5, 6, and 7, Wells-street.

FANCY SILKS.—Patterns forwarded of new and beautiful Fancy Silks from 2½ guineas the Full Dress. Also, Fancy Checked Silks, very good, from 1½ guinea the Full Dress. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street, 5, 6, and 7, Wells-street.

MADE-UP DRESSES and COSTUMES for MORNING and SEASIDE wear, in a variety of new and beautiful Materials, from 1½ guinea. Also, a large and elegant Organdie Muslins in immense variety.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street, 5, 6, and 7, Wells-street.

NEW MANTLES and SHAWLS.—The Mantle and Shawl Departments are fully supplied with a most extensive NEW and CHOICE STOCK of Spring and Summer novelties. An immense Stock of LACE SHAWLS and HOODINGS, many of these being Manufacturer's Samples, and marked at about half-price.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street, 5, 6, and 7, Wells-street.

FRENCH KID GLOVES.—CALVAT'S BEST FAIR SIZE GLOVES, 3s. 6d. per pair, usual price 4s. 6d. Sample pair by post.
GRANT and GASK,
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street, 5, 6, and 7, Wells-street, London.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
By appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales,
127, 128, and 127, Regent-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweeds, Shooting Suits, Trousers, Waistcoats, Hats, Boots, and Waterproof Coats, Aberdeens. Shetland Shawls, Veils, and Hose. Scotch Fire Tweeds, and Lisney Woollens, for Indoor Travelling and Seaside Dresses.
Patterns forwarded free.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE, 5, Wellington-street, Strand, Leicester, and 127, Regent-street, London.
Entrance at the Corner of Vine-street only.

LYONS LEVANTINE is a perfectly flexible Silk, made expressly for our office, and very suitable for Ladies' Morning Costumes, in most brilliant colours, at 2s. 6d. the Full Dress. A parcel, by post, 2s. 6d., or any sample forwarded.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

LYONS FOULARDS of all-the-most improved manufacture, the name of which cannot be surpassed. The most fashionable article for the present season for ladies' morning dress, including black and coloured grounds.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

CHÊNE SILKS.
Patterns free. 17s. 6d. a dress of rich French Chêne Silk.
42s. 6d., or any length over.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR SUMMER.
Patterns free. Rich Glacé Silks, including our well-known make of Gloria, Pearl de Soleil, and Drap de Lyonne.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

450 PIECES MOZAMBIQUE (colours warranted) and Embroidered Silk Striped, the whole of which are now being sold at 1s. 9d. per yard.
In every variety of style.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

Also on Sale a very large Purchase of
MEXICAN CLOTH DRESSES, consisting of Chenie grounds with silk embroidery.
In Grey, Black, Violet, and Mode colours.
Being one half their value.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

PLAIN STRIPED OR SPOTTED
RICH SILK GRENADINES, adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses, at 1 guinea the Full Dress.
These very superb fabrics, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

ALL THE CHOICE DESIGNS IN NEW ORGANDIE MUSLINS,
In Spots, Bouquets, and Satin Stripings,
At 10½d. per yard, usual price 1s. the entire Full Dress.
An immense variety of patterns post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF
LAST YEARS PRINTED MUSLINS,
At 6d. per yard, usual price 10½d. and 1s.
An extensive variety of patterns post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

Now ready, at Reduced Prices, all the New Patterns in PRINTED GLOVES and MITTS, for Ladies' Morning Dresses.
An extensive variety of patterns post-free.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

ARABIAN GLACÉS, in Checks and Jacket Spots.—A most useful and fashionable fabric either for Walking or Morning Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

A Choice Assortment of the
NEW PRINTED ARABIAN GLACÉS,
in every variety of style, suitable to reduced grounds.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

GINGHAMS and COLOURED LAWNS, for Ladies' travelling, morning, and seaside Dresses, in a large and choice assortment of new and fashionable colours, at 10½d. per yard.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

A CAREFULLY SELECTED VARIETY OF
CHALLIE BAREGE DRESSES,
A new series of colours in the Plain Mexican Cloth,
Also Striped, Checked, and Chené Cloths, 10s. 6d. to 16s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

NEW SUMMER PETTICOATS, Trimmed and Untrimmed, in the Crinoline Shape, New French and Hollies Lawns, for Morning Dresses.
In a large and choice assortment, from 10s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

FOR THE SEASIDE.—A Large Purchase of Silk Tartan Plaid Poplins, Cut and Trimmed in the most correct and approved taste, may be obtained only at the Manufacturer's Depôt,
at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.
Goods are the Property of the Manufacturer.
Patterns free.
Also a large Purchase of Tartan Plaid Ribbons and Patterns in all parts of the world.
The Court and Mourning Warehouse,
103 to 105, Regent-street, London.
Patterns free. Mourning Orders by Post or Telegraph.

BLACK SILKS.—Patterns free, Good useful Black Silks, from 2s. to 90s. the Dress.
Rich Black Gros Grains, from 2½ guineas the Dress.
At PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

MILLINERY for MOURNING.—Paris Fashions.—New Shapes and great Novelties in Bonnets, Hats, and Millinery, at Regent-street.

PARIS FASHIONS.
MANTLES and JACKETS for MOURNING WEAR.
Now Ready, a large and elegant Assortment of Mantles, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

JUST RECEIVED FROM PARIS.
WHITE and BLACK and WHITE and BLACK, of new and very reclerché character, in Bonnets, Hats, and Millinery.
At PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

NUTSHELLE
WIRE-GROUND BLACK GRENADINES and SATEENS.—The improved nutshelle introduced by PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street, is the most elastic, and will endure for strength and beauty of finish, by far the most durable wire ever used in Plain Skirts.
Patterns free.
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
103 to 105, Regent-street, London.

THIS SEASON'S FASHIONS IN DRESS.
LADIES and the PUBLIC visiting London are respectfully invited to inspect the NEW and ELEGANT STOCK of Dress, consisting of all the Novelties of the Season, Parisian, British, and French Manufactures.
PARIS FASHIONS in JACKETS and MANTLES for the Present Season.
Paisley, Cashmere, and Lace SHAWLS in all the latest Designs.
Patterns and Prices Current forwarded free by Post.
PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.
A choice assortment of Embroidered and Braided HAND-KERCHIEFS, Gloves, Hosiery, and Fancy Goods.
BROADBENT.
A large assortment of FOREIGN DRESSES, from 8s. 11d. to 3 guineas the Dress.
Ribbons, Gloves, Hosiery, Trimmings, Haberdashery, and Fancy Goods.
BROADBENT'S CONTINENTAL WAREHOUSE,
Drapers, Milliners, and Dressmakers supplied with cut lengths at Wholesale Prices.
Patterns on Application to Peter Thom,
JAMES SPENCE and CO., Manufacturers and Silkmercers, 76, 77, 78, and 79, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!
Patterns post-free.
RICH CHENE SILKS, 17s. 6d. to 42s. 6d. the Dress of 14 yards.
Wide-width STRIPED SILKS, New Colours, 42 in. wide, 2½ guineas the Dress of 14 yards.
The New Colours in FANCY CHECK SILKS, 42 in. wide, 2½ guineas the Dress of 14 yards.
These are worthy special attention.
Good wide-width BLACK GLACÉ, at 2s. 6d., and 2s. 11d., Also, SOME GRENADINES, at 1s. 6d. per yard, in a most extensive variety.
Patterns and purchase to be sent abroad.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., Silkmercers, &c.,
76, 77, and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.
Close on Saturdays at Four o'clock.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with guarantee and cost, at moderate prices.—JAMES TAYLOR, 69, Fleet-street.
CAFFYN and WATLEY, 29, Regent-street, London, S.W.

KING and CO., SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, W., have pleasure in announcing that their Stock of SUMMER DRESSES is now replete with every Novelty suitable for the present Season, and that it will be forwarded post-free on application.

FANCY DRESS DEPARTMENT.
Brocaded Wool Grenadines ... ... 10s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Satin Cloths ... ... 21s. 6d. ,,
Brocaded Chêné Grenadines ... ... 12s. 6d. ,,
Rich Striped Silks ... ... 21s. 6d. ,,
Brocaded Silk Grenadines ... ... 21s. 6d. ,,
Last Season's best French Printed Muslins ... 10½d. per yard.
Rich Brocaded Grenadines ... ... 10s. 6d. the Dress.
Patterns sent post-free.—Address to KING and CO., Regent-street.

READY-MADE DRESS DEPARTMENT.
French Lawn Dresses, with Jackets to match, £1 7s. 6d.
Another Elegant Dress, with Jacket, £1 19s. 6d.
A large variety of elegantly-trimmed Dresses, in Lawn and Organdie Muslins, from 21s.
Patterns and descriptive List post-free.
Address to KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

MANTLE and SHAWL DEPARTMENT.
Mantles and Jackets of the best makes in Lyons Velvet and Silk Cloths, in the Paletot, Zouave, and Jacket Shapes, at 1 guinea.
Opera Mantles, at the Extraordinary Low Price of 1 guinea.
An immense Stock of Shawls, from 10s. 6d. to 5 guineas.
Some, 6d. to 1 guinea.
Patterns and Descriptive List post-free.
Address to KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

THE "ARIEL" MANTLE, SHAWL, and DRESS EMPORIUM.—These Goods are the present season can be purchased only at FARMER and BOGGIS, 171, 172, 173, Piccadilly, and 1, Regent-circus, Piccadilly. Patterns sent free. Every Shawl is stamped "Ariel."

MUSLIN, LACE, and LENO CURTAINS.—ATKINSON and CO. beg to acquaint their customers and the public generally that they have COMMENCED their ANNUAL STOCK, and that they have made extensive purchases of the newest, richest, and cheapest Goods in the Trade.
Nos. 256, 260, 262, 264, 266, 268, and 270, Westminster Bridge-road.

BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELL have the honour to announce that they have received the Latest Parisian Novelties in Bonnets, Hats, and Millinery (no shop), at Regent-street (four doors from Swan and Edgar's).

BONNETS, ONE GUINEA, at MRS. HOWARD'S, 29, Conduit-street, Regent-street, Bromley. Wedding orders, outfits, and country orders punctually attended to. Private visits in town.

CROQUET SEASON.—The registered CROQUET COMBINATION and CROQUET BOOT enables Children to be real only of Messrs. SUTTON and WELLS, Makers, Inventors, Discoverers, and Patentees, 4, Leicester-square, Soho-square, 199, Regent-street.

NORTH and HEARE BROWNE respectfully invite ladies and gentlemen to an inspection of the Stock of Waterproof Goods, which for quality, variety, and style of design, united to the greatest fashion, at the well-known Establishment, 49, Cornhill, corner of Lombard-street. Waterproof Garments supplied to the Army and Navy. Per-staff-commissioned are Patent. Hair brushed by machinery.

A. FORBER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 20, Regent-street, Haymarket.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair, Gold Gold Lockets, for Hair, from 3s. 6d. Hair Bracelets, from 5s. 6d. Hair Brooches, from 6s. 6d. Illustrated Catalogues free.
213, Regent-street, London.

TO LADIES.—GREEN'S TISSUE IVY LEAVES, for Decorating Chimney-pieces, Tables, &c., set of 72 Leaves. Flower for Brave Aprons, 4 stamps per packet; 1 set, 12 stamps. Wholesale and for Exportation.

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—Miss ROSE, Professor of Dress, Dressmaker, and Milliner to England, Paris, and Spain, will forward, on receipt of thirty stamps, a Model of the Newest Fashion for the present Season, the Model to be returned. Miss Rose's Instructions for the Toilette, standing unrivalled. Address, Miss Rose, 3, Hamilton-terrace, London.

MILK of ROSES—PIESSE and LUBIN. This exquisite Emulsion has been a favourite preserver of the Complexion for many years. Sold by Piesse and Lubin, 2, New Bond-street, Perfumers by Appointment to the Queen and Ladies's Milk of Rose. Sold by Fashionable Druggists and Perfumers. Sent by Piesse and Lubin, 2, New Bond-street, London.

EPSOM and ASCOT RACES.
PARASOLS AND SUNSHADES.
W. and J. SANGSTER'S Stock is the largest collection of their extensive assortment of Sunshades and Parasols, prepared expressly for these occasions, and marked at their usual moderate prices.
10, Regent-street, Piccadilly.

N.B. Parasols adapted for Promenade and Dress in great variety, at 10s. Regent-street.

THE RACES and FÊTES.—LADIES visiting the Races and Fêtes should not forget to bring a sailing and refreshing to the face and skin; alleging all heat and irritation, and rendering the skin soft and delicately clear. It is perfectly harmless, and is strongly recommended by the faculty as far better. Sold at 24, Hatton-garden; and by Chemists and Perfumers. Ask for ROWLAND'S KALYDOR. Beware of spurious imitations under the name of "Kalydor."

FURNITURE by APPOINTMENT to HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, Awarded the First Prize Medal, 1851, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

TO MOTHERS AND INVALIDS.
ROBINSON'S PATENT GROATS, for Infants, Invalids, Invalids, &c., of superior construction. Directions for self-measurement and prices sent free by post. Robinson and Sellers, 41, Piccadilly, London.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY, on the Mechanical Principle, by MR. HOWARD, Surgeon-dentist, 52, Fleet-street, Temple-bar, and 52, Ludgate-hill, Ludgate-street, Oxford-st., and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Terminus). Mr. Howard's system of Dentistry is entirely free from pain, and is guaranteed to restore perfect mastication, articulation, and appearance. Consultation free. Fee for efficacy, utility, and economy, 5s. 6d. Mr. Howard's Treatise on the Teeth, 19th edition, 1s. Also, Mr. Howard's Treatise on Nervous Affections, Hysteria, Indigestion, Tic Douloureux, Deafness, Noises in the Head, Paralysis, and Neuralgia, 1s. Consultations daily.

TEETH.—By Mr. ESKELL'S INVENTION. (Patent granted July 17, 1860)—Sets or partial sets of teeth, supplied on entirely new principles, fitted in a few hours without pain, and the extraction of stumps or giving the slightest pain. The success of this method of fixing teeth is such that the inventor feels confident in recommending it to the public as the most perfect, comfortable, and satisfactory system of mechanical dentistry yet introduced. Consultations free. Fees moderate. Mr. Eskell, fully explains the above, free for inspection, and may be had gratis at the Establishment, 61, Ludgate-hill, London.

CONSUMPTION.—DR. CHURCHILL'S Successful Treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Chest, Throat, Stomach, Liver, and Nervous System, by Inhalation, Medicine, and Hygiene, prepared by H. E. Sweet, of Paris. This preparation, which is entirely free from Opium, Chloroform, Prussic Acid, Belladonna, Tobacco, Arsenic, and Mercury, is unfailing in its effects, and is consequently superior to every other existing.

SOLE AGENT—MR. CHURCHILL,
Medical Officer, 22, Leicester-square, London.

"R. H. Churchill has successfully administered that fine Remedy Light-brown Cod-liver Oil, prepared by Mr. Sweet, of Paris, in cases of consumption, I have no doubt of its being a pure and valuable tonic."

DR. LANCASTER.

Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.

"I invariably prescribe Dr. de Jongh's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, as I consider it to be the most unobjectionable, genuine article, and one which can be confidently prescribed in which the efficacy of this invaluable medicine is destroyed."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in Imperial Measures, capsuled and labelled with his stamp and signature, "SIR ANTHONY HULME CLARKE, Physician to the Queen," without which NONE CAN PRONOUNCE OR GENUINE, by respectable Chemists and Druggists. Sole Consignees, ANSAR, HARWOOD and CO., 77, HATTON-GARDEN, LONDON, W.C.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music from the last and greatest work of Meyerbeer is published by Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street, where the following are now to be had:—
All the Vocal Music with French words.
The Overture for Pianoforte, Solo, 3s.; Duet .. 4s.
Grand Indian March .. 4s.
Religious March .. 3s.
Bouquet de Mélodies. By Cramer .. 5s.
Quadrille. By Coote .. 4s.
Waltz. By D. Godfrey .. 4s.
Favourite Airs in 3 Books. By W. H. Callcott. Each 5s.
The Italian and English versions are in the press, together with Pianoforte arrangements by Kuhe, Osborne, Richards, &c.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE. The favourite airs from Meyerbeer's greatest Opera arranged for the Pianoforte, in Three Books, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 5s. each.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S AFRICAINE WALTZ. On favourite melodies from Meyerbeer's successful Opera, arranged for the Pianoforte by D. GODFREY (B. M. Gren. Guards), and performed for the first time, on her Majesty's birthday, by the united bands of the Guards. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE. On favourite Airs from Meyerbeer's New Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by E. F. RIMBAULT. Price 1s. each.
No. 1. The Guards' Waltz. | No. 4. The Hunt Quadrille.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz. | No. 5. The Jockey Galop.
No. 3. The Orpheus Galop. | No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS.

The Lost Star	Wallace	3s. 0d.
The Sails are Spread	Brinley Richards	2s. 6d.
The Cottage Window	G. Russell	2s. 6d.
Syr Tankarde	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
White-Wings	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
Again I wander	R. Haking	2s. 6d.
I will not wander	Schumann	2s. 6d.
My lost youth	Walter Maynard	2s. 6d.
Part with forgiveness	Florence	2s. 6d.
The Cloister'd Nun	Louis Emanuel	2s. 6d.
Cantilène (for two voices)	Gounod	2s. 6d.
In Youth's Season	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Versar nel mio cor	Gounod	2s. 0d.
Our Starry Home	Ascher	2s. 6d.
Only thee	Linley	2s. 6d.
The Life Clock	J. Barnett	2s. 6d.
A life of love with thee	J. Barnett	2s. 6d.
La Naiade	Gounod	2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new Edition of this justly celebrated work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," including the Soldiers' Chorus, Valse, &c.; "The Guards' Waltz," and numerous other airs, arranged as progressive exercises, thus rendering it the cheapest and best Tutor extant. Price 4s., post-free.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S BROOKLET. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S GRAZIELLA. Romance Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "TWO BUDS." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S "ROLAND." A celebrated French War Song. Transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S TWO HUNGARIAN MELODIES for the Pianoforte.
No. 1. ELEGY. Price 2s. 6d.
No. 2. THE GIPSIES' MARCH. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SERA. Venetian Gondola Song, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GIBSONE'S BEAUX JOURS. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

J. F. BARNETT'S PASTORAL SCENE. A characteristic Piece for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 6 are now ready, price 3s. each; or the six numbers in one volume, bound in cloth, 12s. Vol. II. is in the press. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, played by the Composer with immense success. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Stabat Mater"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY—Handel's celebrated Song, sung by Santley—transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE VALSE. On Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE QUADRILLE. A new and charming Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE POLKA. On Airs from Offenbach's Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. A new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will eventually become as popular as the celebrated "Guards' Waltz," by the same Composer. Price 4s., Solo or Duet. Illustrated by Lynch. Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. A new Quadrille on favourite Nautical Melodies. Arranged by D. GODFREY, Composer of the "Guards'" and "Mabel" Waltzes. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's popular Opera, "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. GODFREY, Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 4s. Illustrated.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop, from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s. Illustrated. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—Now ready, the complete Opera, with French Words, 20s.; also, the following PIANOFORTE ARRANGEMENTS, published by
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CALLCOTT'S AFRICAINE.—Meyerbeer's last great Opera. The favourite Airs, in three books, Solos and Duets arranged for the Pianoforte by W. HUTCHINS CALLCOTT.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE, on Meyerbeer's new Opera, performed for the first time at Her Majesty's State Ball, May 17. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

GODFREY'S AFRICAINE WALTZ, on Meyerbeer's New Opera. Price 4s. Illustrated.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CRAMER'S AFRICAINE BOUQUET DE MELODIES, on Meyerbeer's Opera. Price 5s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S AFRICAINE. Grande Marche Indienne, from Meyerbeer's New Opera, arranged for the Piano by Brinley Richards. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S NEW SONG, "I cannot sing the old songs." Composed expressly for her by CLARIBEL, and introduced for the first time, with remarkable success, at Mdme. Sainton-Dolby's concert, May 15.
"I cannot sing the old songs,
I sung long years ago,
For heart and voice would fail me,
And foolish tears would flow."
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. CLARIBEL'S new Song, composed for Mdme. Sainton-Dolby. Published this day by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

KUHE'S LINDA. New Fantasia on Donizetti's popular Opera "Linda di Chamonni." Revived this season at both the Opera Houses. Published this day, price 4s., by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ARDITI'S L'OROLOGIO, New Scherzo, with Italian words, 3s., or English words, "Tic tic," 3s.; also for the Pianoforte, 3s. This charming polka movement promises to become as popular as "Il Bacio." It will be sung by Miss Laura Harris at the Author's Concert, Friday, June 9.
BOOSEY and Co.

M. BLUMENTHAL'S New Song, THE CHILDREN'S KINGDOM. Composed for Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, and sung by her for the first time at her concert, May 15. Two editions may be had, with the original and a simplified accompaniment. It is also in the press for the pianoforte.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S SCOTCH PIECES.
Souvenirs d'Edinburgh, 6th Edition. 4s.
Souvenirs d'Ecosse. 12th Edition. 4s.
Auld Robin Gray and Bonnie Dundee. 4th Edition. 4s.
Annie Laurie. 2nd Edition. 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE AUTHOR OF "SALOPIA."

HIBERNIA. By Miss HAWLEY. A new, fanciful, and elegant transcription of "The Last Rose of Summer," for the Pianoforte. Published this day. Price 3s. Also, by the same Author,
SALOPIA. "Home, Sweet Home." (20th Edition.) 2s. 6d.
IVANHOE. "Auld Robin Grey." (3rd Edition.) 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MELVIL CASTLE. Old Scotch Ballad. Newly arranged by Mrs. CAMPBELL, of Drimnamuchloch.
"Willie's gane to Melvil Castle, boots and spurs, an a',
To bid farewell to the leddies fair, afore he gaed awa."
Price 2s. 6d. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MELVIL CASTLE.—Notice.—The only correct Edition of this very popular old Ballad, with the genuine Music, is that edited by Mrs. CAMPBELL, and just published by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

New Edition of

MARION'S SONG by CLARIBEL. This highly-popular Song will in future be published exclusively by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

FOR OPEN AIR SINGING.

MENDELSSOHN'S 26 FOUR-PART SONGS (Op. 41, 48, 49, 50), with English words complete, price 1s., cloth gilt. Also, for Choral Societies, in 12 Numbers, One Penny each.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW SONG.

THE MESSAGE OF LOVE. Valse Ariette. 3s. Also, with Italian words, "La Messaggier a d'Amore." 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BEETHOVEN'S "FIDELIO." 8s. Complete vocal score in German and English. 8s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

TAKE BACK THE HEART. A New Song, but already an immense success. By CLARIBEL. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bound works excepted).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

STATE BALL, Buckingham Palace.—Played by command, by Coote and Tinney's Band:—
COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE .. 4s.
STRAUS'S MENESTREL VALSE .. 4s.
COOTE'S CADIZ QUADRILLE .. 4s.
FREWIN'S FAIRY FOOTSTEPS VALSE .. 4s.
COOTE'S NEW LANCERS .. 4s.
COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP .. 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED.

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Watercresses," "Have you seen the Ghost?" "Polly Perkins," &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ALWAYS ENCORED.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE, price 4s., on the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Bedford.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. No dance programme complete without them.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF

OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! The great Christy Song. Price 2s. 6d. (Creating a perfect furore.)—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG,

THE WEEPIN' WILLER; or, The Miller's Daughter, price 2s. 6d., is the best comic song published.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A MOST AMUSING COMIC SONG.

HAVE YOU SEEN HER LATELY. Price 2s. 6d. Sung by Albert Steele.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS.

J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS.
Bob Simmons's Courtship .. 3s.
He, She, and the Postman .. 3s.
A Norrible Tale .. 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A COMIC VERSION OF

THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by BALFE, price 3s., causes shouts of laughter.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S SONGS. For contralto. Price 3s. each, post-free at half price.
THE LIST'NING MOTHER. Sung by Mdme. Sainton-Dolby.
WHEN SPARROWS BUILD. Words by Jean Ingelow.
CORRA LINN. Sung by Miss Palmer.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SONGS FROM SHAKSPEARE. Set to Music by ARTHUR S. SULLIVAN.
O Mistress Mine. Sung by Mr. Santley .. 2s. 6d.
Orpheus with his lute .. 3s. 0d.
The Willow Song, and Sigh no more, Ladies .. 2s. 6d. each.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MDME. OURY'S NEW PIECES.
Lara. Fantasia .. 4s.
Orphée aux Enfers. Fantasia .. 4s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S TRANSCRIPTIONS.
The Arab Song, from "Lara." 3s.
The List'ning Mother. Miss Gabriel's popular Song. 3s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SWING SONG. By CH. FONTAINE. Second Edition of this very popular Pianoforte Piece. Price 3s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

PLAYED AT THE STATE BALL.

LARA QUADRILLE. By COOTE. Piano Solo or Duet, 4s. each. Post-free for 25 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE VALSE OF THE SEASON.

LARA VALSES. By COOTE. Piano Solo or Duet, 4s. each. May be had for Orchestra.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SINGING BIRD'S VALSE. J. P. CLARKE. Played by all the Regimental Bands. With a beautiful and novel Illustration. Price 4s. post-free.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

HATTON'S MOST SUCCESSFUL NEW SONG.

FAIR AND FALSE. 2s. 6d. Post-free for sixteen stamps.
EWER and Co.'s Musical Library, 87, Regent-street, London.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S NEW MUSIC, ALL AT HALF PRICE.

THE MERRY DAYS OF YOUTH. Song. Music by S. W. NEW. 2s. 6d.

JENNY OF THE MILL. For Pianoforte. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. 3s.

O YE TEARS! For Pianoforte. By GEORGE F. WEST. 3s.

THE LIQUID GEM. For Pianoforte. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. 3s.

WARBLINGS AT DAWN, WARBLINGS AT NOON, and WARBLINGS AT EVE, all for the Pianoforte. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. 3s. each.

O YE TEARS! Made so Popular by Mdme. Lemmens' Singing. See the Press, May 27. Solo, 2s. 6d.; Duet, 2s. 6d. Each free for 16 stamps. For Piano, by G. F. WEST, 3s.; free for 19 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.
Agents for India, Messrs. BURKINYOUNG and Co., Calcutta.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. The High Price of Music. All full-price Music of every publisher forwarded immediately on publication to any part of the kingdom on receipt of stamps to half the price. Catalogues gratis.
OETZMANN and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, London.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded).—A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Yachts, Boudoirs, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 26 guineas. A great variety may be seen at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the pure English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as the above makers', and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in every respect to other instruments at 50 guineas, price 35 guineas; in walnut, 40 guineas.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side (and hired, with option of purchase) at the new Show-rooms of
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. Messrs. Chappell strongly recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte at or about the same price, whether new or secondhand.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 60 guineas; other varieties at 25 and 35 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues of Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and in oak case. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak case, 32 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted for hot climates and to keep well in tune, from Two guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARMONIUMS at BOOSEY and CO.'S.
The 8-guinea Harmonium, in polished oak case, one stop. The 10-guinea or School Harmonium, also in oak case, has a powerful tone suitable for class-singing, &c. Harmoniums for churches or drawing-rooms, from 18 to 100 guineas. Any of the above may be had with Dawe's patent melody attachment, which gives a pure and defined melody as if produced by another instrument. Catalogues upon application.
24, Holles-street, W.

PIANOFORTES at BOOSEY and CO.'S.
The Miniature, price 17 guineas; the check-action Pianette, price 25 guineas, in an elegant walnut case; the model Cottage Piano, price 35 guineas, &c. Catalogues upon application.
24, Holles-street, W.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE, 14s. per Month. Seven octaves. No hire charged if purchased in six months. The most economical and judicious mode of obtaining a really good pianoforte is to hire one (with the option of purchasing it if approved) of the Manufacturers, OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, opposite Mdme. Tussaud's.

THE PARLOUR PIANOFORTE, 25 guineas. OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, manufacture these very excellent Pianofortes with metallic plates, registered keyboard, full compass of seven octaves, and every recent improvement, and guarantee them, for tone, touch, and durability, to excel others usually sold at a much higher price. Drawings sent post-free.—Oetzmann and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1837, under Royal Patronage), 17, Waterloo-place, London, S.W.
ARTHUR R. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

ACCIDENTS to LIFE or LIMB.—£1000 in case of death, or £6 per week while laid up by injury, secured by a payment of from £3 to £5 5s. per annum to the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY, 64, Cornhill; and 10, Regent-street. W. J. VIAN, Secretary.

LADIES' SCHOOL, 40 and 50 Guineas Yearly for Board and Education—Laundress, Seat in Church, Musical Pieces, Drawing Materials, and use of Books included. No extras. Masters attend daily. References, H. S., Mr. LIMBERD'S, 344, Strand, W.C.

MESSRS. MAYALLS' PHOTOGRAPHS. Every size and style of PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, from the carte-de-visite to the lifesize, from the plain, tinted, or highly-finished miniature to the full-sized oil painting, taken daily. Copies, Reproductions, &c. 224, Regent-street (corner of Argyll-place), London; and 91, King's-road, Brighton.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN AND RICHARD COBDEN.—Lifelike Card Portraits of either of these honoured Statesmen, sent post-free for 1s. 1d. List of Album Portraits and Pictures forwarded gratis. Address, ALFRED WILLIAM SMITH, Dealer in Photographs, 25, Kingsmead-terrace, Bath.

THE FIVE-SHILLING ILLUMINATING COLOUR BOX contains twelve superfine Colours, body, white, gold, aluminium, and brushes.—J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st., London; and all Artists' Colourmen, &c.

THE PHOTOCHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to colour photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with twelve colours, all materials, specimen, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

THE £5 DAY and ASTRONOMICAL TELESCOPE.—From F. Dundas, Esq., M.P., 21, Brunswick-square, Brighton, Oct. 13, 1864:—"Gentlemen,—Since my interview with you on the subject of the telescope I have heard from Lord Rosse, and will thank you to send one similar to that supplied to his Lordship."—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians to the Government, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. High-power pocket telescopes.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Weighs three ounces, and occupies less room than a card-case. Price 21s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the combined purposes of the opera, race, and general outdoor use.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE ACHROMATIC SPECTACLE LENSES, registered by S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians to the Government, 24th December, 1863, No. 4610.—"The great advantage and benefit derived from the use of these lenses need no comment."—Vide "Sir David Brewster on Optics," page 57; and Sir William Herschel, page 22.—39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. Copies of testimonials from the principal ophthalmic hospitals sent post-free.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING VIEWS. The £5 Set of Magic, Microscopic, and Phanta Apparatus comprises a 3½in. improved Achromatic Lantern, producing 12 ft. figures; a microscope, throwing upon a screen animalculæ; ten slides, containing forty subjects; eight movable comic slides; one panorama, with shipping in motion; one photograph; and one chromotrope, with view and revolving watermill. S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

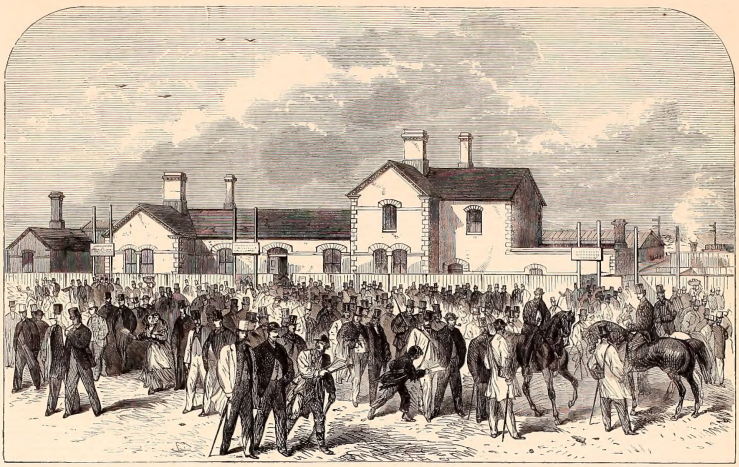
NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and the RECONNOITERER GLASS, 10s. 10d., sent free.—This "Tourist's Favourite" distinctly shows small windows ten miles off, landscape at thirty miles, Jupiter's moons, &c.—The Marquis of Carmarthen: "The reconnoiterer is very good." Earl of Breadalbane: "I find it all you say, and wonderfully powerful for so very small a glass." Lord Garvagh: "Remarkably good." Rev. Lord Scarsdale "approves of it." Lord Gifford, of Ampney: "Most useful." Sir Digby Cayley: "It gives me complete satisfaction, and is wonderfully good." Major Starkey, of Wrenbury Hall: "Quite as powerful as that for which I gave £5 5s." Captain Sendey, Royal Small-arms Factory, Enfield: "I have found it effective at the 1000 yards' range." F. H. Fawkes, Esq., of Farnley: "I never before, although I have tried many, met a glass combining so much power for its size with so much clearness." The Field: "We have found it fully equal to others which had cost more than four times its price." Notes and Queries: "What tourist will now start without such an indispensable companion?" The celebrated "Hythe" Glass shows bullet-marks at 1200 yards, and men at 3½ miles. Price 31s. 6d. All the above, respectively bearing the registered trade marks, "Salom," "Reconnoiterer," and "Hythe," are only to be had direct from SALOM and CO., 98, Prince's-street, Edinburgh.
No agents of any kind anywhere.

CAMDEN STEAM-PRINTING WORKS. Good work, prompt attention, and extensive facilities for the execution of large orders. Every description of book-work or music undertaken. Machining for the trade. For estimates apply to BERRY and CO., 1½, Gloucester-street, Regent's Park.

NEW STYLE of CARRIAGE, to OPEN and CLOSE at pleasure. Invented and Patented by LAURIE and MARNER, Carriage and Harness Manufactory, Oxford-street, Union-street, and Tenterden-street, Hanover-square.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., Silversmiths, Cutlers, &c., pre-eminent for their
Electro-Silver Plate, for Dinner à la Russe,
Electro-Silver Plate suitable for Presentation,
Electro-Silver Christening, Wedding, and Birthday Presents,
Sterling Silver ditto ditto,
Sterling Silver Volunteer and Rifle Prizes,
Electro-Silver ditto ditto,
Electro-Silver Cups and Tankards,
Sterling Silver Cups and Tankards,
Electro-Silver Tea and Coffee Services,
Electro-Silver Side Dishes and Dish Covers,
Electro-Silver Breakfast, Luncheon, and Dinner Cruets,
Electro-Silver Egg Frames,
Electro-Silver Fish-eating Knives and Forks,
Electro-Silver Fish Carvers, in case,
Electro-Silver Dessert Knives and Forks, in cases,
Table Knives of unsurpassed excellence,
Canteen-Cases completely fitted for Officers,
Plate Chests for partial or entire Outfits.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory—The Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.
Illustrated Catalogues and priced list free on application.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Celebrated DRESSING CASES / DRESSING BAGS } completely fitted with every article of convenience and luxury.
DESPATCH BOXES, fitted with Cutlery and Stationery.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and at 71 and 72, Cornhill.

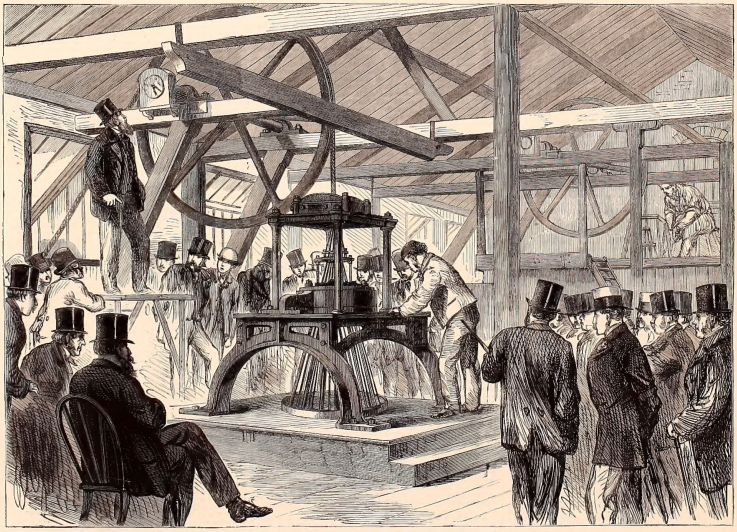


ORNAMENTS for the MANTELPIECE, &c. Large and Choice Selection, including, among other articles, Groups, Statuettes, Vases, &c., in Parian and English and foreign Porcelain; Clocks (bronze, marble, and gilt), first-class Bronzes, Lustres, Candelabra, Candlesticks, and Bohemian Glass.
Novelty, Beauty, and Art.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 23, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

GARDNERS' LAMPS ARE THE BEST.—MODERATOR and PARAFFIN TABLE LAMPS, from 5s. 6d. each. Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality. Illustrated Catalogues post-free.—Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (4 doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING MACHINES.—Prize Medal 1862.—These machines, made by the original Patentees and Introducers of the Invention, stand foremost and unrivalled for all practical purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with exceeding rapidity, regularity, and durability, and give no trouble. The stitching (alike on both sides of the material) is without cord or ridge, and the thread cannot be pulled out.—66, Newgate-street, and Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.



GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. One hundred thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.C.

THE NEW RAILWAY STATION AT THE RACE-COURSE, EPSOM DOWNS.

COMPLETION OF THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH CABLE, AND VISIT OF THE PRINCE OF WALES TO THE GREAT EASTERN.

THE work of manufacturing the Atlantic telegraph cable, 2300 miles in length, was brought to an end, literally speaking, by the passing of the last inch of cable through the machinery of Messrs. Glass and Elliott, at Morden Wharf, East Greenwich, about five o'clock on Monday afternoon. The greater part of the cable already lay safely coiled up in the huge iron tanks where it is stowed on board the Great Eastern steam-ship, off Sheerness, when his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales went to look at it on Wednesday week. An Illustration of each of these two notable incidents in the progress of one of the mightiest and most laudable undertakings that we have ever witnessed is given in this Number of our Journal. The Engraving on the front page, showing the scene presented by the arrival of his

FINISHING OF THE MANUFACTURE OF THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH CABLE, AT MORDEN WHARF, EAST GREENWICH.

Royal Highness, amidst the greetings of a crowd of gentlemen, sailors, and workmen, under the side of the Great Eastern, to which he had been conveyed by the Admiralty tender Wildfire, from Chatham, accompanied by Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, the Duke of Sutherland, the Duke of Manchester, Lord Sidney, Lord Alfred Paget, Lord Lyons, Lord Torrington, four of the Canadian Ministers—namely, the Hon. Mr. Cartier, the Hon. Mr. Brown, the Hon. Mr. Galt, and the Hon. Mr. Macdonald—with some other gentlemen. His Royal Highness, as soon as he came on board, sat down to lunch, with the whole company of visitors, in the state saloon—Mr. Pender, M.P., chairman of the Telegraph Construction Company, presiding at the table. He then went to that part of the ship where the cable was being wound in from the smaller vessel alongside, which had brought it from the works at East Greenwich. From this point his Royal Highness was conducted to the tank which contains the midship coil, an Illustration of which, and of the process of winding the cable, appeared in our Journal some weeks ago. He saw how the cable was coming slowly down through a hole in the deck and was being stowed away by the men and pressed carefully down in regular circles, while the men have to watch that one portion does not stick to and lift another and make a "kink" that would be as fatal, if it once occurred, to the "conductivity" of the cable as if it were broken. From the midship coil his Highness went to see the manner in which the great weight of the foremost mass of cable was supported and shored up from underneath. A message was then sent through one of the coils, which represented in its length the distance from the Great Eastern to Valentia. The signals transmitted were only four words, "God save the Queen," yet they were received at the other end of the coil in the course of a few seconds, a speed which speaks as highly for the "conductivity" and insulation of the cable as it does for the commercial prospects of the company, if they can only maintain the same high rate of signalling throughout the wire for any length of time. A section-drawing of the Great Eastern was laid before the Prince showing the position of the coils in regard to the structure of the ship, the place where the paying-out machines were to be fixed, and the construction and working of those machines, which particulars were explained to his Royal Highness either by Captain Anderson or some one among the many scientific gentlemen to whom the different branches of the great enterprise have been intrusted. Among other things, it was stated that the shore ends were to be sent round in different vessels, the end required for Valentia being about twenty-five miles long, that for Newfoundland only ten, the length being in proportion to the depth of the water, which off Newfoundland is as shallow and still as that off the west coast of Ireland is deep and stormy. These shore ends are the strongest and heaviest ever made, weighing no less than eighteen tons per mile.

According to present arrangements it is believed that the Great Eastern will start in the very early part of July, and certainly, if possible, not later than the 10th. With her will also sail her Majesty's ship Terrible, and another paddle-steam frigate of great power, not yet chosen, but which, like the Terrible, will give towing aid to the Great Eastern in case of mishaps to her machinery, either screw or paddle. Besides Captain Anderson, all the officers connected with the ship, with the exception of the chief engineer, have been chosen from the Cunard service. With ordinarily fair weather, and steaming at the rate of six knots, it is expected that the voyage from Valentia to the Bay of Hearts' Content, in Newfoundland, will occupy from twelve to fourteen days, during every hour of which regular communication will be kept up with England.

After the Prince had visited every part of the ship, and accepted specimen pieces of portions of the cable in various stages of manufacture, his Royal Highness went on board the City of Rochester, one of the steam-boats of the South-Eastern Railway Company, which had been placed at his disposal by Mr. Eborall, the manager, and at once returned to Stroud. From Stroud to London the distance was accomplished within an hour, and at Charing-cross station the Prince drove away as quietly as he came, and the party separated after a pleasant and interesting day.

On Monday afternoon, as we have stated, the completion of the manufacture of the cable, in the works at East Greenwich, presented rather an interesting scene, as the directors of the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company had invited a number of gentlemen to witness the process of twisting the last foot and inch. Among those present were John Pender, Esq., M.P., chairman of the company; R. A. Glass, Esq., managing director; directors—Lord John Hay, A. H. Campbell, Esq.; D. Gooch, Esq., C.E.; John Smith, Esq.; G. Elliott, Esq.; the Right Hon. James Stuart Wortley, chairman of the Atlantic Telegraph Company; C. W. Field, Esq.; Samuel Gurney, Esq., M.P.; W. E. Forster, Esq., M.P.; H. Moor, Esq., M.P.; The Knight of Kerry; Commander Noddall, R.N.; Captain Richards, R.N.; Sir T. H. Brassey; Captain J. Anderson, commander of the Great Eastern; Captain D. Gal on, F.R.S.; Admiral Evans, Captain Hamilton, Sir Macdonald Stephenson, Colonel Simmonds, Lord Torrington; J. A. Turner, M.P.; Joseph Whitworth, Esq.; Professor Wheatstone, Professor Thomson; W. Fairbairn, F.R.S.; Charles Edwards, Esq., and others. Having inspected the various processes by which the telegraphic cable is prepared, the gentlemen present stationed themselves in the apartment where the iron rope, now completely prepared, is laid down in tanks preparatory to being shipped on board the vessel which conveys it to the Great Eastern. No sooner had the signal been given that the last inch of the cable had really and positively passed through all the machines, than a simultaneous cheer and waving of hats announced the completion of the new Atlantic telegraph. There was a scampering hither and thither; a rush up stairs to see the final coil placed in the large tank; a friendly gossip about the probabilities of its successful lodgment in the deeps of the Atlantic, and the ceremony was over. It was not to be expected that such a propitious occasion should be allowed to pass without a dinner, and therefore, towards evening, the gentlemen who had visited the works of Messrs. Glass and Elliott proceeded to the Ship Tavern, where a handsome entertainment had been provided. Mr. Pender was in the chair; and among the toasts which were proposed during the evening were some which augured the best results to the prosperity, peace, and mutual benefit of England and America from the scheme which has so far been carried, for the second time, into actual execution.

The annual Swiss Federal rifle festival takes place this year at Shaffhausen. No less than 400,000f. will be distributed in prizes. The number of targets erected will be 150.

All the new buildings erected in the town of Simbirsk, Russia, since the fire which almost destroyed the town last year, were again burned down a short time ago. The fire began during the celebration of a funeral service for the late Hereditary Grand Duke.

It is reported by a telegraphic despatch from Calcutta that the Nemesis, one of the steamers belonging to the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Company, running between Calcutta and Suez, went ashore in the Hooghly River soon after leaving Calcutta on Thursday week, and on the next day was in a dangerous state.

The colony of Moravian Brothers at Kœnigsfeld, near Wellinger, in the Black Forest, comprises 400 inhabitants, and forms a model State in miniature. During the fifty years it has existed not one of its members has had any affair with the police or the judicial authorities, and not a crime or offence has been committed. There has never been a trial or sale by order of justice, nor are any beggars ever to be found at Kœnigsfeld.

The Courrier de Cronstadt, dated May 22, announces that M. Taletmikoff, who undertook to raise the vessels sunk in the Bay of Sebastopol during the Crimean War, has succeeded in recovering part of the Gawril Silistria, of the frigate Flora, and the sloop Pilad. Active endeavours are being made to recover the vessels Douze Apôtres, Paris, Rostislow, Yagoudioul, Constantine, Kagoul, and Midia—the three latter of which are deeply embedded in mud at the bottom of the bay.

The Governor-General of Netherland India resolved last year that a telegraphic communication should be established between Anjer (west of Java) and Jelong Betong (Sumatra). The electric cable will be enveloped with threads of goemocty (Indian flag). It is rumoured that it is the intention of the Netherlands Government to extend this line to Palembang, with a view to reach Muntok or Siak, and to come in nearer relation to Singapore.

The bronze spur of the iron-plated ram Taureau, building at Toulon, has been cast in that port with complete success. This huge weapon weighs 11,132 kilogrammes. It has been conveyed to the dockyard at the Mourillon, where it is to be fixed. The deck of the Taureau is plated with iron. The iron plating is not to be fixed on the sides of the ship until she is launched. She is not to carry any guns. It is expected that she will sink any vessel she can succeed in striking with her spur.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

So the Fenians have not gathered fern seed and become invisible, but even in the beautiful city of Cork, and doubtless in many other cities, are really to be counted by hundreds. Sim Tappertit has enrolled his apprentices, and, if by any sad chance this silly quarrel should come to a head, we shall have to mourn another '98 and a repetition of those brutal scenes which W. H. Maxwell and the pencil of George Cruikshank have, in the "History of the Irish Rebellion," so graphically portrayed. "Wait and see the lesson we'll read yez before the summer is out, and I'll be the first to pike you when the time comes." These are not pleasant words to be employed from man to master, nor from Celt to Saxon, and the relater of these begs for the presence of an English gun-boat, or of a company or so of English soldiers, to prevent "another St. Bartholomew's, for Protestantism is the head and front of the offending." Perhaps a decent stock of English revolvers, carried by the non-Fenians, would be no bad protection: a "pike" could be well met by a barrel. Let us hope that the lurid glimpse which this and other letters give of the state of Ireland is untrue. If there be anything like truth in it, then "Sing, Whalley, sing!" indeed. The most laughed-at man in the House of Commons will have been the most truly prophetic, and the fate of Cassandra will, alas! have accompanied the only one ready to warn us of our fate.

America and England are soon to be again linked together, the Atlantic telegraph cable of 2600 miles being this week completed. If successful, let us hope that, as English money has made the cable, an English ship has taken it out; as it has been made upon English ground, designed by an English firm, and has owed its construction to English inventors, our Transatlantic friends will let us have a little more credit in the matter than they did some years ago, when the junction was made complete for one moment and then failed. How many ardent English souls felt bitter disappointment then! Mr. Thackeray was one who lost a thousand pounds in that adventure for the partial success and incipient boldness of which Mr. Cyrus W. Field and the Americans took all the credit, and gave the blame of non-success to the elements. It may seem to some of little moment if, while we know whose the true merit is, we allow others to take away the praise; but in reality this weakness does re-act upon us. The unthinking flock to the most prominent and powerful or prominently powerful, and eventually a mass of such people become of weight. If his own country really knew America as well as the Hon. D'Arcy M'Ghee, England would be saved some sad, sad trouble in Ireland. It is because impulsive Paddy believes that the Yankee pays better, talks louder, does greater things, stoops lower, jumps higher, dives deeper and comes out drier than any one else in the world that he is attracted by thousands to his shores.

Everybody knows that Mrs. Crowe and some few dozens of demented persons believe in ghosts—real, bonâ fide, chain-rattling, somewhat noisy, and, of course, tangible, ghosts; for, if a ghost be not in some sort tangible, how does he make a noise—noise being the production of matter brought in contact with matter? There was a good ghost story last week in the Irish police trials which should settle the matter for ever, and relegate the ghost to its own proper domains—an excited mind and, consequently, diseased retina. The story is that of a man who, with more or less of the usual brutality, had murdered his wife and had buried her. The man was arrested; but, on explaining that his wife had emigrated, was let loose. Emigrated she had, abiit ad plures, to those vastly populated shores of the next world; but her body was lying in an Irish bog of some extent, and the grave so cunningly concealed that the guilty wretch had to be taken to the spot to point it out. When there, he cried out in terror to the magistrate, with a terrific adjuration, "There she is! there she is!" and they who were with him had not the slightest moral doubt that he saw the ghost of his wife standing above her grave. Here, then, is a precisely similar case to the "Spectre of Tappington" and the "Drummer of Tedworth," well-known ghost legends. The only thing wanted is that the priest, the policeman, and the stipendiary magistrates, or anyone and everyone who passed that way, should have seen the ghost. When the ghost can only act upon the conscience of the man who beforehand knows all about the ghastly circumstance, the "deep damnation of the taking off" of the victim, it may be as useful to justice, but it certainly cannot put in a claim to be recognised as an existing entity, in spite of Mrs. Crowe, the Hon. Dale Owen, and all other ghostseers to boot.

John Bull has just had to submit to a severe lecture upon his hypocrisy from the pen of a well-known essayist in the Pall Mall Gazette, which has been reproduced by the Times. Although a contemptible old pharisee, his self-knowledge is improving, and scale by scale is falling from his eyes. Sir Cresswell Cresswell and his successors have proved that the English lady is no better than she should be. In Paris they "talk of the open profligacy of several English matrons of rank and respectability." The English merchant, the British man of business, and the British lay saint are taken in hand and fare no better; "the public schools of England are as bad as they well can be; and the records of Tattersalls' and Newmarket daily supplement this branch of self-knowledge; whilst the purity and disinterestedness of the British statesman have been aptly illustrated by the Edmunds' scandal. Altogether, the tone of public morals is certainly lower than it was twenty years ago." Are we to put on sackcloth, or are we to look upon the essayist as one who, having brought a brick from Babylon for us to judge of the whole buildings, has happened to select from a few of the very worst which he could possibly choose?

Mr. Tom Hughes, of "Tom Brown's Schooldays," having taught his young friends to be manly, is now about to teach the world, and notably the Lambeth electors, the art of politics. Let us wish him success in his attempt. He appears to be a thorough Liberal, and his notion of reform is not a bad one, because it has the virtue of being strictly tentative. A certain number of large boroughs are to be handed over to the very widest suffrage. If they return philosophers and statesmen, the experiment is to be considered as a success; if not, then the Liberals are to withdraw. But has not this experiment really been made? Is it not now in course of trial? Will Westminster, a very wide constituency, return John Stuart Mill; Lambeth, Mr. Hughes; Finsbury, Mr. Torrens? Of other election intelligence it suffices to say that medical science will have an opportunity of being represented by Sir Charles Locock, the Queen's physician, who has written a long address to the electors of the Isle of Wight, from which it appears that he is a Liberal-independent-Conservative; and that the Liberal-Radicals of Norwich openly accuse Lord Palmerston's Administration with weakening and disheartening the Liberal cause, and of "driving back important questions," and that while they are dissatisfied with the Government they "insist upon a more honest and decided policy being adopted for the future."

Of general Echoes silence must be taken as the antithesis to the Irish echo, which repeated more than it heard. There is a "monster" meeting of teetotallers on Hampstead Head on Whit Monday for the purpose of promoting the Prohibitory Bill. Lord Fermoy and the borough and county members have been invited to attend. Pleasant irony, is it not? The representatives of the press will be "accommodated." In France M. Montalembert has declared that the victory of the North is one of virtue over vice, liberty over slavery; and the medallists of Paris—who, by-the-way, cut some of the finest medals ever seen to commemorate the Russian defeat of Napoleon—will issue a gold medal to the memory of Abraham Lincoln. Ex-President Davis languishes in the casemates of Fortress Monroe; a letter in cipher has been brought as witness against him; and Governor Brown, of Georgia, Governor Smith, of Virginia; and Governor Magrath, of South Carolina, will be produced (the latter when caught) as witnesses against him. Even the journals which defend him are, according to the Daily News, "taking a course calculated to diminish whatever chances there may be of saving him from the scaffold." Mr. Davis may meditate upon the treatment of Richard II., for, like him, he is in that position that "none are so poor as to do him reverence." We wait to hear two things from America—the first is the effect of the Queen's letter and English condolence; the second a denial or a confirmation of the astounding statement that the counsel appointed for political prisoners have, with one exception, that of Mr. Reverdy Johnson, refused to defend the accused.

A Pacific Pearl Company has been formed at New York, the capital of which is 1,000,000 dols. The company purpose fishing for pearls and pearl shells on the Pacific coast. Their operations will be carried on by means of a submarine explorer. Pearl oysters abound in the Gulf of California, and it has been fished by the natives for 300 years.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

The Life and Times of Sir Joshua Reynolds: with Notices of Some of his Contemporaries. Commenced by C. R. Leslie, R.A.; continued and concluded by T. Taylor, M.A. With Portraits and Illustrations. (Murray.) A life of a painter written by a painter, or even a fragment of such a life, may be expected to have special interest and value. Yet persons acquainted only with the pictures of the late Mr. Leslie might possibly think that some other painter whose practice revealed different predilections would probably be a more fitting biographer of Reynolds. Exquisite as are Leslie's pictures, they do not prominently display that respect for art-traditions, reverence for the great masters, and scientific study of their technical qualities, which are found alike in the paintings and writings of Reynolds. All, however, who have read Mr. Leslie's Handbook will know that he could not labour under the smallest disqualification from narrowness of sympathy. They will know that in it there is a thorough appreciation of painting—not in its merely imitative, but in its most mature, ideal, and generalised form—as we see it in the hands of the greatest "masters," Reynolds among the rest. The portion of the present biography written by Mr. Leslie shows, in fact, besides the knowledge of a distinguished proficient, the same conservative esteem for what in painting was the growth of centuries, and has received the sanction of other centuries. It is much to be regretted that Leslie did not live to give his opinions on the art of Reynolds more fully, as he would probably have done had he completed his task. Authoritative statements of the only true and unvarying principles of painting are surely much needed just now. The kindly and genial artist seems, however, to have proposed chiefly to vindicate the character of Reynolds from the aspersions of Allan Cunningham, and, at the same time, to present more particulars from private and published sources than had appeared in one account. So much, in fact, Mr. Leslie hardly fell very short of doing, although he did not live to finish his labour of love. Notwithstanding, however, that much was done, for anyone else to carry out an unfinished design such as this, and, in addition, to render that design on a far larger scale and finish it much more minutely than was contemplated by its original author, was an undertaking which, as it would certainly be difficult and onerous, might reasonably conciliate impartial, and even indulgent, consideration. This last, however, is not needed. Mr. Tom Taylor has performed his large share of this work—if with some diffuseness as regards the "Times"—with great carefulness, tact, skill, and industry. To him, in great part, we owe the accumulation of a mass of material illustrative of Reynolds, his times, and the host of eminent personages whose friendship he enjoyed, and who still live on his canvases, which (especially when supplemented with the promised catalogue of the painter's works) will be of most essential value to all admirers of the great master of the British school. In default of a continuator with the experimental knowledge which an eminent painter and academic "professor" must have, we have one of the most esteemed art-critics of the day; one who, though we may not always subscribe to his particular estimates, has a knowledge of art-principles and a largeness and liberality of view which, unfortunately, seem very rare among merely literary writers on art. The sources whence the large stores of new material accumulated in these volumes were derived are various. Mr. Leslie introduced some anecdotes related to him by several eminent patrons of art and artists personally acquainted with Reynolds; and also used, of printed material, the Cotton "Collections" and the accounts given of Reynolds in Mdme. D'Arblay's "Memoirs," and in the "Memoirs" of her father, Dr. Burney. Mr. Taylor, in taking up and completing Mr. Leslie's unfinished task, found it necessary to make a thorough examination and extensive use of the papers and memorials in the possession of Reynolds's representatives, the Gwatkin family. Mr. Cotton has in no case given full lists of the sitters, as recorded in the pocket-books; he has used a very inaccurate copy of Sir Joshua's (so-called) "Venetian Notes," and has made no use of the note-books in the Soane and British Museums. Moreover, the series of pocket-books has, since Cotton's publication, been made much more complete by the discovery of missing volumes; and a second account-book has been discovered. Besides gaining access to all in the possession of the Gwatkin family that Sir Joshua left behind of letters and written memoranda, Mr. Taylor has had other unpublished letters of the painter placed in his hands by various noblemen and gentlemen, together with an unpublished autobiography of Northcote's (Reynolds's pupil and biographer), a record of Northcote's conversations with Mr. Ward, a north-country painter; and a commonplace book of Sir Joshua's, formerly in the possession of the Gwatkin family. Other sources of original information and evidence have been the archives of the Royal Academy; Horace Walpole's Catalogues of the Royal Academy Exhibitions, containing his notes and names; the note-books of Sir Joshua in the British Museum and the Soane Museum; the books of "the Club," and the records of the Dilettante Society.

Brigand Life in Italy. Edited from original and authentic documents. By Count Maffei. (Hurst and Blackett). Two interesting, startling, horrifying, sickening volumes, telling a tale of the brigandage which has plagued fair Naples from the time when all frequenters of the Môle at Naples left their sport or their occupation to crowd round the Improvisatore who would sing them the wonderful adventures of Agostino Avossa, to these later days when the "brilliant expeditions" of General Pallavicini "into the most infested parts of the Southern provinces" have not rendered it safe for visitors to take a drive even during broad daylight in the neighbourhood of Salerno. Mr. Murray Aynsley will, no doubt, bear witness to this fact, and he and his friends are likely to be not the least eager amongst the inquirers, whom we expect to be both numerous and urgent, after Count Maffei's book. Count Maffei traces brigandage to mis-government, the confessional, and Bourbon reaction. Francis II. and Pius IX. are, of course, held responsible for the outrages of the more recent notorious brigands; but, though there are many cases in which the worst malefactors appear to have received direct encouragement from the ex-King of Naples, there are many also in which it would not be too much to suppose that mere miscreants had, without any grounds, claimed the title of Royalists and the sanction of Royal and Pontifical commission. "Francis II.," said an inhabitant of Sora, "is the pivot of brigandage, and the Pontifical Government, is its open protector;" but when royalism and brigandage have been made convertible terms, it would be difficult for either ex-King or Pope to draw so accurate a line as to make it clear that they favour only those who are faithful to Divine rights, and not those also who perpetrate inhuman wrongs. What a glut of horrors whoever is greedy of them may obtain from Count Maffei's two volumes the following extract from a report drawn up by General Pallavicini will show:—"Caruso trusted to no other hands than his own the office of executioner. It is calculated that in the month of September, 1863, alone, he put to death 200 persons with his own hands! It has been said, too, that he ate the flesh and drank the blood of his victims; but this is not the fact. Not that such acts would have disgusted him, but he would not have done them, he said, because they seemed to him nothing but vain ostentation. And when one of his men, thinking to gain credit with his chief, wished by smilar cannibalism to parade his ferocity, Caruso simply smiled scornfully, as if to signify that such boastings had little weight with him." It has been said, untruthfully, "les Italiens ne se battent pas;" but it seems as if one might say, truthfully, "les Italiens se mangent," whereas the savage New Zealanders confine their cannibalism to aliens and missionaries.

The Holy Land. By William Hepworth Dixon. (Chapman and Hall.) Though there is no longer a Peter the Hermit, with the ardour of a devotee and the rhapsodies of a madman, to call good Christians to be up and doing for the defence of the Holy Sepulchre; though kings no longer summon their hosts, and knights no longer buckle on their armour to win salvation for themselves by sending infidels to perdition; and though palmer's staff and hat with scallop-shell are nowadays heard of only in poetry, yet the pilgrimage to Palestine is very commonly performed. Juvenal complained that in his day so much was written about Mars's grave and Vulcan's cave that he was as well acquainted with them as most people were with their own houses; and in our times so many books of travel in the Holy Land have been published that an attentive reader would probably be able to find his way on the darkest night from Jerusalem to Jericho without a guide. Indeed, the improvements which science has introduced of late years into the means of travelling are so great that the grand tour has been extended at least to Asia, if not to central Africa; and no man of fashion and society considers himself even the ghost of a lion if he have not something to say about the Holy Land. It is not surprising, therefore, that Mr. Dixon should have "done" his Palestine, and should have issued his experiences, his theories, and his comments in two more than usually readable volumes, illustrated by several excellent woodcuts. His style is, for the most part, graphic and pleasing; sometimes it appears pretentious, sometimes theatrical, sometimes florid; but, on the whole, it is decidedly pleasant. He fills a great deal of space by the questionable plan of quoting long extracts from the Bible, as if it were a book to which others besides himself would not find easy access, or with which he himself, and he consequently presumed others also, had only within the last few months begun to make acquaintance; his comments, to a great extent, read as if he had lately been a strict attendant at Sunday school; and his maps remind one of the meagre productions characteristic of the aforesaid place of learning. Some of his allusions are a little too general, as, for instance, when he says (vol. i., p. 271), "Socrates sacrificed a fowl to the gods in whom he put no trust;" for there is nothing in the context to show that Mr. Dixon was aware of the ironical sense in which Socrates made his famous remark, just before his death, that he owed a cock to Æsculapius. It is suggestive, too, of the notorious Jenkins, when Mr. Dixon calls the woman taken in adultery (vol. ii., p. 252) "the fair offender;" and it shocks one's notions of propriety, for there are occasions when it is far more proper to speak of a woman as an adulteress than as a fair offender. With the exception, then, of a few faults such as have been pointed out, it seems to us that Mr. Dixon has succeeded admirably in his aim, which was "to afford the untravelled reader a little help in figuring to himself the country and the events which occupy so many of his thoughts." Moreover, justice would not be done if we failed to mention the handsome manner in which Mr. Dixon acknowledges the assistance he has received from others more learned than himself. It is a pity that the second volume (p. 337, seq.) is disfigured by the mistake of repeating certain pages.

Milton's Poetical Works. By Charles Dexter Cleveland. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) Many a one can say of Milton as Adam, in the blind bard's words, replied to Raphael:—

> While I sit with thee, I seem in heaven;
> And sweeter thy discourse is to my ear
> Than fruits of palm-tree pleasantest to thirst
> And hunger both, from labour at the hour
> Of sweet repast; they satiate, and soon fill,
> Though pleasant; but thy words, with grace divine
> Imbued, bring to their sweetness no satiety.

Whoever thinks thus of John Milton will hold that Mr. Cleveland, of Philadelphia, U.S., has wrought a good work. Mr. Cleveland has taken great pains in the selection of his text, in the choice of his notes, and in the preparation of his copious verbal index; and the result of his labours is exhibited in such fashion, so far as paper, type, and binding are concerned, that a volume, elegant enough for the opulent, and not too costly, one would imagine, for others, has been added to former editions of our greatest epic poet.

Heads and Hands in the World of Labour. By W. G. Blaikie, D.D., F.R.S.E. (Alexander Strahan.) A deeply interesting book, written with a purpose which is beyond praise. The author deserves the thanks of all who would have "strikes" and "lock-outs" cease for ever; who would banish strife and bitterness from scenes of industry; who would have employers and employed go hand in hand, with mutual esteem, in a Christian spirit, to their daily tasks; and who can see no reason why he who hires should slight the hired, or he who is hired should hate the hirer. Dr. Blaikie shows how much we have improved of late years; how great progress has been made in bridging over the gulf between employers and employed; and yet how large a portion of the bridge is still unconstructed! He points out that the best materials for the construction are kindness and consideration; that a grasp of the hand, a friendly nod, a kindly word, a thoughtful inquiry, will bind the average workman to the workmaster by hoops of steel. And surely richesse oblige may be as truly said as noblesse oblige: the more worldly advantages a man has the more ready he should be to unbend himself to him who bears the burden and heat of the day. No doubt, there is your surly, ill-tempered, sneering workman, on whom kindness and urbanity would make as much impression as oil upon a flint; but let no man with the recollection of what Lancashire bore patiently during the late "cotton distress" dare any longer to quote against the majority of men the obsolete expression once used by Bias of Priene. How far it is advisable to try upon large bodies of workpeople the effects of daily chapel-service or family prayers is a difficult question. Dr. Blaikie, though he seems himself to advocate it, gives some cases in which it must have done more harm than good. One shudders to think that employers should (and do they not sometimes?) put religion on their workpeople merely as they would put a martingale on a rearing horse; and one recollects with bitter contempt the pious banker who had his clerks into prayers every morning, who retired to his private room to rob the widow and the fatherless, and who, when he was detected, sanctimoniously begged that all he had might be taken for his creditors—except his Bible. It is written, "when thou prayest, enter into thy closet; and, when thou hast shut the door, pray to thy Father which is in secret;" and let actions bear witness to the sincerity of prayer.

People, Places, and Things. By the Author of "Lost Sir Massingberd," &c. (S. O. Beeton.) A collection of five-and-twenty very pleasant contributions to popular periodicals. "The sympathies of the public," says the author, in his preface, "are earnestly requested on behalf of these twenty-five Little Ones, who have never until now been acknowledged by their parent." And the sympathies of the public, it is sad to relate, are often bestowed upon less worthy objects. If an easy style, if flow of spirits, if variety of subject, if genial humour, and if sprightly dialogue be sufficient to command readers, readers of this neat volume will not be wanting.

Araki the Daimio. By Mona B. Bickerstaffe. (Jackson, Walford, and Hodder.) A fresh, nicely-written, semi-religious story, in which scenes of Japanese life are, either from personal experience or from book-acquired knowledge, pleasantly interwoven with a tale of the persecutions to which Christians were in the olden time subjected in Japan. Would that ladies would have more respect for their relatives (i.e., relative pronouns) than is shown by writing (p. 105), "who he represents as a Christian."

Pictures of the Periods. By William Francis Collier, LL.D. (Edinburgh: William P. Nimmo.) Six stories, intended to illustrate "the social and domestic life of our forefathers during the six great periods of our national history." We have, therefore, tales illustrative of the early Roman Period, of the Saxon Period, of the Norman Period, of the Tudor Period, of the Stuart Period, and of the early Brunswick Period. They are pleasantly and elegantly written, and are quite as interesting as under the circumstances could be expected; for the author's object, which seems to us to have been to a considerable extent attained, is to do for English antiquities what Becker, by his "Charicles" and "Gallus," attempted to do for the antiquities of Greece and Rome; and the difficulty of both attempts is so enormous that even a more moderate degree of success than one aspirant has achieved and the other is likely to achieve might be regarded with satisfaction.

A Familiar History of British India. By J. H. Stocqueler, Esq. A Familiar History of the United States. By J. H. Siddons. (Darton and Hodge.) Two smart little volumes in scarlet (or some similar colour) and gold, of which the former is merely a new edition of a very useful and not unknown work, with additions, bringing the history down to the durbar held by Sir John Lawrence at Lahore; and the latter is a creditable attempt to give in small compass an epitome of the history of the United States from the discovery of the modern Hesperia to the fall of Richmond.

Black's Guide to the Channel Islands. Edited by David Thomas Ansted. (Edinburgh: Adam and Charles Black.) But a few short weeks and the jaded "season" keepers will be wooing sea breezes for new health and fresh complexions. The Channel Islands will then no doubt receive their quota of visitors, and so this little, useful book is sent out at an opportune time. It is "in some respects an abstract of a larger volume published by the editor and his friend, Dr. R. G. Latham, F.R.S," but "it is intended more especially for the tourist," and to his notice, therefore, we commend it.

MUSIC.

Mdlle. de Murska goes on from triumph to triumph at Her Majesty's Theatre. Her last and greatest was achieved on Tuesday last when she appeared as Amina in "La Sonnambula," and charmed an overflowing audience by a performance of this most interesting character which may perhaps have been equalled, but certainly has never been excelled. It was not less remarkable for its dramatic truth, nature, and pathos, than for the exquisite beauty and refinement with which the tender and expressive music of Bellini was sung. Amina is said to be the part in which Mdlle. de Murska has gained her greatest Continental triumphs; but no foreign triumph can have been greater than that which she has now achieved on the boards of Her Majesty's Theatre. Cherubini's "Medea," the master-work of one of the greatest musicians of the present age, was to have been produced at Her Majesty's Theatre on Thursday, but its first representation has been postponed till this (Saturday) evening.

At the Royal Italian Opera Mdlle. Lucca appeared, on Saturday last, as Valentine, in "The Huguenots," the character in which she first gained the favour of the English public. By this repetition of the part she more than confirmed the impression she had already made, and was received with still greater enthusiasm than she had previously excited. She deserved such a reception, for she gave one of the most truthful and beautiful pictures of Meyerbeer's most interesting heroine that have ever been presented on the stage. Mario, as Raoul, acted with his unrivalled force and energy, and sang with all the power and beauty of his most palmy days. The part of Marcel, the stalwart Huguenot soldier, was well sustained by Herr Schmid; Gassier was a good Saint Bris, and the music of the part of Margaret of Valois was sung with a musician-like style by Mdlle. Liebhardt. As a whole, the opera was splendidly performed and much applauded.

The fifth Philharmonic Concert took place, at the Hanover-square Rooms, on Monday last. As will be seen from the following programme, the concert presented several features of peculiar interest.

PART I.

Symphony (No. 2) in D minor (composed expressly for the society)	Spohr.
Aria, "Gli angui d'inferno" ("Il Flauto Magico"), Mdlle. Ilma de Murska	Mozart.
Concerto in A minor, Mdme. Schumann	Schumann.
Aria, "D'amor sull' ali rosee" ("Il Trovatore"), Mdlle. Ilma de Murska ..	Verdi.
Overture in C, MS. (composed expressly for the society)	Mendelssohn.

PART II.

Symphony in F (No. 8)	Beethoven.
Aria (with variations), Mdlle. Ilma de Murska	Proch.
Overture ("Die Zauberflöte")	Mozart.

Conductor—Professor Sterndale Bennett, Mus. Doc.

Spohr's symphony and Mendelssohn's overture were written for the Philharmonic Society by their respective composers at early periods in their career. The symphony of Spohr is one of the most beautiful of his orchestral works, having a simplicity and freshness not to be found in his later and more elaborate productions. Mendelssohn's overture is a most interesting specimen of his earliest style. Perhaps the thing that made the greatest impression on the audience was Mdme. Schumann's performance of her late husband's concerto. In the work itself there is much genius and originality; and Mdme. Schumann's performance of it was a marvel of fire, energy, and executive power. Mdlle. de Murska's vocal pieces were well chosen with a view to the display of her rare qualities, and the applause she received was more than usually vehement. The rooms were crowded to the doors.

Miss Madeline Schiller's concert, at St. James's Hall, on the evening of Friday last week, was one of the most remarkable of the season. It was the first concert given by a most accomplished young pianist, who is evidently advancing rapidly to the highest distinction. She was already, in some measure, known to the public, especially by her performance at a concert last year of the Musical Society of London of Mendelssohn's concerto in G minor, a performance which made such an impression that it is still kept in remembrance. Hence the concert now given by her was eminently successful. The hall was crowded to the doors by a musical as well as fashionable audience, and the entertainment provided for them was calculated to gratify the most refined taste. Miss Schiller played various choice pieces, particularly Beethoven's celebrated pianoforte quartet in E flat, Mozart's sonata in B flat, for the piano and violin, Liszt's transcription of Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," and several solos of Chopin and Weber, in all of which she manifested the qualities and attainments of an accomplished artist. In the concerted pieces above mentioned she was accompanied by Herr Carl Rose (violin), Mr. Colchester (viola), and Herr Lidel (violoncello). Several vocal pieces were sung by Mdme. Parepa, Mdlle. Florence de Courcy, Herr Reichardt, and Miss Emily Berry. This last-named lady is a young debutant, who, after pursuing her studies at the Paris Conservatoire, now appeared for the first time before the London public. Her début was interesting and completely successful. She is lady-like and agreeable in appearance; has a fresh, youthful voice of considerable power and fine quality, and (young as she is) the style and method of a sound musician. She sang the well-known English song, "Cherry ripe," with brilliant variations, and one of the sweetest of Moore's Irish melodies. She was received with much applause, and promises to take a distinguished place among our English singers.

Among the musical performances given by eminent professors which abound at this season special notice is due to the concert of Mr. Harold Thomas, at the Hanover-square Rooms, on Tuesday. Mr. Thomas is not only one of the most accomplished pianists of the day, but a vocal and instrumental composer of great merit. His matinée on Tuesday drew a crowded audience, and was of an elegant and classical description. He played (with Mr. Sainton) Beethoven's sonata for the piano and violin, op. 12; Mendelssohn's andante and rondo capricioso, for the piano alone; and solos by Bennett, Thalberg, and Mr. Thomas himself. A new song, entitled "Winter and Spring," composed by Mr. Thomas, with words by Mr. Chorley, was sung for the first time by Miss Edith Wynne, and warmly encored. It is a charming composition, and must become popular. Signor Piatti played a pretty nocturne of his own; and several vocal pieces were sung by Mdme. Sainton, Miss Moss, Mr. Weiss, and Mr. Cummings.

On Monday last, Mr. W. G. Cusins, the distinguished pianist and composer, gave a musical matinée at his residence in Nottingham-place, which was attended by a large and fashionable assemblage. The music—a selection of pieces for the pianoforte—was of a recherché character. It included several curious and interesting specimens of the ancient composers for keyed instruments, taken from the works of Couperin, Handel, and Arcadelt; together with pieces of Beethoven, Schumann, Field, Schubert, Weber, Thalberg, Sterndale Bennett, and other masters of the more modern school. The performers were Mr. Cusins himself, and his young and gifted pupil, Miss Marian Buels, of whose genius and attainments we have recently had occasion to speak with due admiration.

Miss Clinton—the daughter of the late eminent and respected musician whose death last year, at a comparatively early age, caused general regret in our musical world—gave her first benefit concert at the Hanover-square Rooms on Friday morning, May 26. There was a crowded audience, and the entertainment was entirely successful. Miss Clinton, who is a pupil of Mr. W. H. Holmes, is an accomplished pianist; and was assisted by Miss Louisa Pyne, Mdme. Lascelles, Mdme. Parepa, Mr. Cummings, Herr Joachim, Mr. Lazarus, Mr. Nicholson, and other distinguished vocal and instrumental performers.

The success of Meyerbeer's posthumous work, the "Africaine," surpasses all expectation. According to the Paris journals, the receipts of the first nine representations amounted to 100,191f., or £4000 sterling. We do not yet hear a word about its production at Covent Garden.

THE THEATRES.

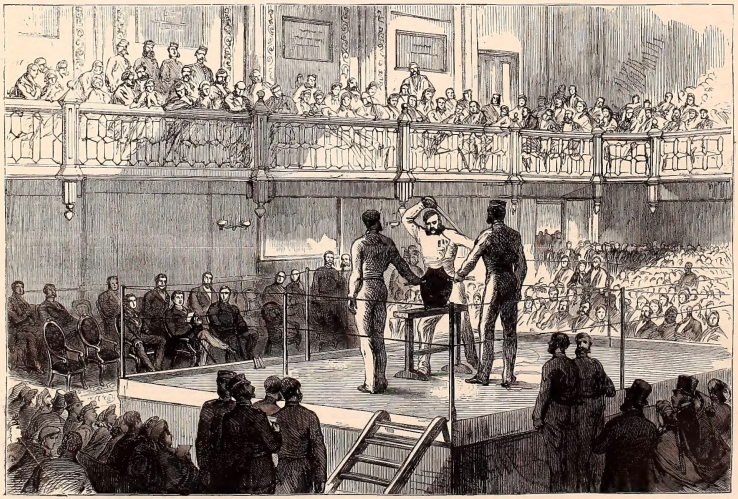
The summer dramatic season is now in such progress that scarcely an interval of unproductiveness has been interposed. Many theatres not only remain open, but signalise their existence by the representation of new pieces, more than one of extraordinary merit. The Haymarket has made itself conspicuous by the production of a pendant to "The American Cousin," under the title of "Brother Sam," which has been received with the greatest favour. The character has been created by Mr. John Oxenford, who has most adroitly inserted it in a story and drama familiar to playgoers; but owing to the prominence of the part the vehicle interferes but little with the originality of the conception. The real difficulty was to produce a fop who should be different in his peculiarities from Lord Dundreary, and yet bear a certain family likeness. Sam suffers under a similar fatuity—his intellect is weak, his selfishness strong, and his sense of honour perverted; but he is good-natured, appreciates "the jolly," and means no harm to anyone. The Hon. Sam Slingsby (Mr. Sothern), not having been brought up in habits of pecuniary responsibility, will, in moments of difficulty, resort to any ruse that promises extrication. He has, accordingly, informed his uncle, Mr. Jonathan Rumblelow, that he is married and has a child, as a reason for his wanting money; and is, at the opening of the drama, in a fix because the old man is about to visit him. He thinks nothing, therefore, of appropriating a friend's villa to his use for three days, and requesting the loan of his friend's wife for the same term. The lady refuses to consent; but Alice, her sister, sees an advantage in complying, and readily agrees to the arrangement, passing herself off as Sam's wife. In this capacity, much to Sam's annoyance, she makes herself so agreeable to Mr. Jonathan Rumblelow (Mr. Buckstone), that he takes a great liking to her, and Sam in the end is compelled to marry her, and thus secures the continued support of his honoured relative, who can conceive nothing better than a perpetual residence with such a niece-in-law. These are indeed slender materials for three acts; but they serve the purpose, Mr. Sothern filling the scenes with his eccentricities and keeping the audience in incessant laughter. The absurd is the prominent element in the part as in the plot. Both partake of broad farce, though arranged in the form of a comedy. Two scenes, representing the interior and exterior, with garden, of Mr. Trimbush's villa at Scarborough, have been painted in excellent taste for the production, which is so well acted that it must become extremely popular.

Mr. Oxenford also appears this week at the St. James's. Here he figures as an adapter of Miss Braddon's novel, "Eleanor's Victory"—a difficult subject to deal with on the stage, but which he has treated with an amount of cleverness altogether singular. He has bestowed most attention on the parts of Major Lennard and his wife, which he has written up for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matthews, who support them with immense humour. Great skill is shown in the disposition and concentration of the subject, and within the limit of each act a large sum total of incident and interest is compressed with a degree of completeness seldom attained in adaptations of this kind. The argument is comprised in four acts. The first, passing in Paris, is concerned with the circumstances of Mr. Vane's death, which are skilfully represented. The second deals with the action in Tolldale Park, where Eleanor confronts Darrell and raises the suspicions of her husband. The third, at De Crespigny's villa, shows Bourdon (Mr. F. Robinson) and Darrell (Mr. H. J. Montague) engaged in substituting the forged will for the real document. They are observed by Eleanor, who, indeed, for a time gets possession of the latter, but is again deprived of it by Bourdon. Her astonishment and confusion are grandly interpreted by Miss Herbert. The last act presents Eleanor under the protection of the Lennards in Paris, and afterwards visiting Bourdon in his garret where, misled by wrath and remorse, he so stultifies himself with brandy that she is able to secure the will. Eleanor has now Darrell in her power. But her real victory is to come—that over herself. She has secured her long-desired vengeance, only to resign it, and thus gain an elevation of character which makes of her indeed a tragic heroine. Miss Herbert has secured a great reputation by her excellent performance of this part. Mr. Robinson, too, as Bourdon, manifested great power, and Mr. Montague, as Darrell, great skill. The scenery by the Messrs. Grieves is new and remarkably picturesque.

GERMAN GYMNASTIC FESTIVAL IN PARIS.

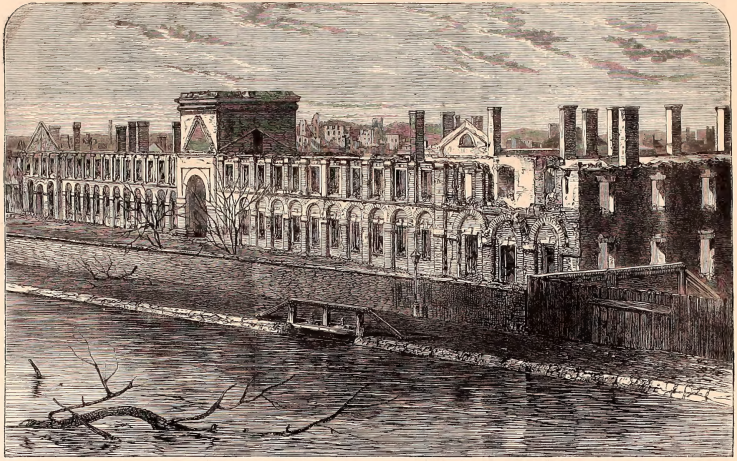
THE institution of the Turn-Verein, or society for the mutual encouragement of the physical self-education of its members, dates among the German people from the period of the great efforts made to revive their spirit of nationality and to cast off the yoke of Napoleon subsequently to his disasters in the Moscow campaign. After the deliverance of Germany by the events which took place in 1812 and the two following years, those who cherished the brightest hopes of future liberty and prosperity for the fatherland continued to urge upon the young men of all classes the practice of gymnastic exercises, as well as of all the manly virtues and accomplishments, both of mind and body. Hence it has been sometimes remarked that the associations of this kind, especially when formed by the Germans resident in a foreign country, are apt to be tinged with a certain hue of political Liberalism which has given their proceedings more significance than would belong to a mere club for the enjoyment of athletic pastimes. They also partake in some instances of a literary character, furnishing occasions for the recital of speeches and poems on any theme conducive to the moral and æsthetic improvement of the members. Upon the whole, the German Turn-Verein is, in the most comprehensive sense, a mutual-improvement society, based on a philosophical as well as practical recognition of the truth, that to take care of their bodily health and vigour is not only a duty of all brave young men, at home or abroad, who would be ready to answer the call of patriotism whenever their voluntary service is required, but that it is also a necessary accompaniment of the soundest mental culture.

Our Illustration shows a part of the proceedings at a Turn-Fest, or gymnastic festival, which took place on Thursday week (Ascension Day) in the Pré Catalan, Bois de Boulogne, under the auspices of the Turn-Verein, or German Gymnastic Society, of Paris, assisted by the musical societies of that nation, in the presence of a large mixed assembly of spectators—German, French and English—who enjoyed this lively scene. There was first a speech—in German, of course—delivered by Dr. Zoeppritz, the director of the exercises, whose sentiments were heartily cheered. Then a chorus was sung by the whole of the gymnasts, after which they commenced a series of combined evolutions, which to the uninitiated appeared of the most intricate and puzzling character, but, from the precision with which they were executed, must have been very simple in principle, or else the performers must have been exceedingly well drilled, as they were all gone through "at the double." Then followed a variety of marvellous exhibitions of skill, strength, and courage, performed with the aid of the mechanical apparatus. An interval of rest in the middle of the performances, which was very much needed, was most agreeably occupied by the singing, in very good style, of some concerted music by the German choral union of Paris, "Die Vereinigten Deutschen Sänger von Paris." The selection comprised, of course, "Was ist des Deutschen Vaterland?" and the national enthusiasm evoked by this chorus, in which the whole company joined, while the tricolor of black, yellow, and red was raised and waved over the heads of the singers, gave a very good proof that the sentiment was most sincerely entertained, that the German Fatherland is in no particular State of the federation, but is to be found wherever the German tongue is spoken, and wherever they raise their hymns of Protestant worship to God.



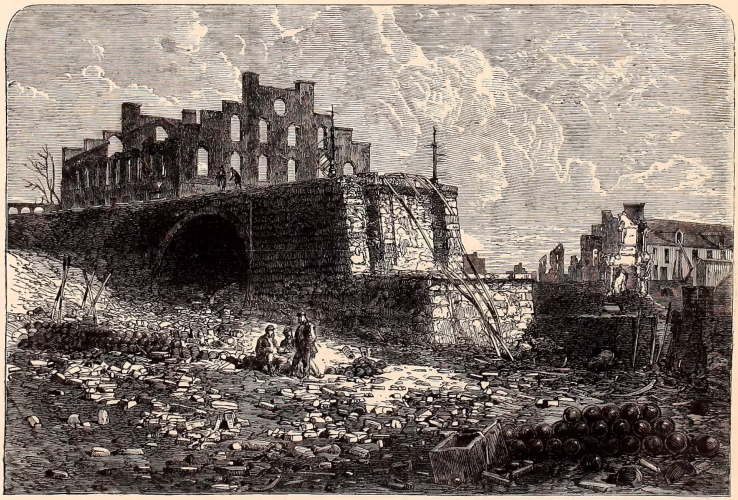
ASSAULT OF ARMS PERFORMED BY THE CORPORALS OF THE GUARDS AT ST. JAMES'S HALL.

ON Thursday week the non-commissioned officers of the several regiments of Guards, who last year performed for the benefit of the Soldiers' Daughters' Home, gave another entertainment at St. James's Hall in aid of the funds of the Royal Caledonian Asylum, in which many children of soldiers are maintained and educated. The Prince of Wales was among the spectators, or rather was one of them, sitting on a dais, which had been handsomely fitted up for his accommodation by Mr. Nosotti, of Oxford-street. On the right hand of the Prince sat the Duke of Buccleuch, and on the left the Marquis of Tweeddale, Colonel of the 2nd Life Guards. Sir John Heron Maxwell was also present, representing the society for the benefit of which the performance was given. A raised and roped platform in the centre of the hall was the arena in which the competitors exhibited their prowess; and on the floor of this platform was traced in chalk and colours a colossal Prince of Wales plume, which served the purpose of ornament and secured a firm footing. Single-stick, fencing, boxing, sabre-combats, sabre v. bayonet, formed the staple of the entertainment, and served to show the proficiency of the men who took part in the various bouts. In single-stick the competitors were Corporal Bee, of the Royal Horse Guards, and Corporal Maddox of the 1st Life Guards Corporal-Major Waite, 2nd Life



GYMNASTIC FESTIVAL OF THE GERMANS, IN THE PRÉ CATALAN, BOIS DE BOULOGNE, PARIS.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

Guards; and Corporal Wordsworth, Royal Horse Guards; Corporal-Major Waite and Corporal Dibb, 1st Life Guards; also Corporal Boe and Corporal Dibb. The sabre was used by Corporal Butt, 2nd Life Guards, and Corporal Wordsworth. In fencing, Corporal-Major Learmont, Royal Horse Guards, and Corporal Cornish, 1st Life Guards; Corporal Dean, 1st Life Guards, and Corporal Butt; Corporal-Major Waite and Corporal Cornish; Corporal Wordsworth and Corporal Dean showed their skill. The respective advantages of the sabre and bayonet were displayed by Corporal-Major Learmont and Corporal-Major Sheffield, 2nd Life Guards, with varying skill, until, finally, the swordsman disarmed his antagonist by beating the rifle out of his hands. Boxing, or "the noble art," as it is termed by its professors, was shown by Corporal Boe, Trooper Otterway, Corporal-Major Learmont, Corporal Cornish, Corporal Butt, and the renowned American pugilist, J. C. Heenan, alias the "Benicia Boy." Some interesting sword feats were exhibited by Corporal Dean, who severed a handkerchief and several coils of ribbon, by a swinging cut, in a very dextrous manner. Corporal-Major Waite also performed some of the sword feats for which he is so famous. He cut an apple suspended in a handkerchief without injuring the texture of the latter, cut in two an apple held on the palm of a comrade, and cut through a sheet of note-paper standing on its bottom edges. He failed in severing a bar of lead as it descended through the air, but succeeded perfectly with a bar placed upright on a stand. A new feat, showing how even armour cannot resist the full force of a sword-cut, was the last the Corporal-Major exhibited, and, with a downward cut, one of Wilkinson's trustworthy blades cleft a breastplate to the depth of about six inches. The entertainment concluded with an exhibition of the cavalry-sword exercises by Corporal-Major Sheffield, Corporal Cornish, Corporal Honeybone, and Corporal Bentley—the two latter of the Royal Horse Guards. The bands of the 2nd Life Guards and Royal Horse Guards contributed to the entertainment of the visitors by playing during the afternoon.



ASSAULT OF ARMS AT ST. JAMES'S HALL, BY NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS OF THE HOUSEHOLD BRIGADE, FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE ROYAL CALEDONIAN ASYLUM.

THE CITY OF RICHMOND, VIRGINIA, AFTER ITS SURRENDER.

RUINS OF THE ARMOURY.

A GENERAL View of the city of Richmond, Virginia, the late capital of the Confederate States, showing the immense havoc made by the conflagration of April 3, is being engraved for publication in this Journal. We give in the mean time a couple of Illustrations, which show the ruins of two of the principal buildings occupied for the storing of military implements and munitions by the War Department of the fallen Government, and which were consigned to the flames by order of their own General, Breckenridge, when their army evacuated the city, early on the Monday morning of the above date. The fire, which thus began with the destruction of the Government offices, workshops, and storehouses, was raging unchecked a few hours later, when General Weitzel, of the Federal army, entered the city with his detachment of negro troops; and, in spite of all his efforts to preserve the city, whole streets were consumed, including many of the shops, warehouses, factories, and flour-mills, with one of the railway stations and several public edifices, which were not, like the armoury and arsenal, appropriated to warlike uses.

RUINS OF THE ARSENAL.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE HON. THOMAS STONOR.

The Hon. Thomas Stonor, a D.L. of Oxfordshire, eldest son of Thomas, present Lord Camoys, by his wife, Frances, daughter of Peregrine Edward Towneley, Esq., of Towneley, Lancashire, died, from smallpox, on the 28th ult., at his town house, 11, Stratton-street, Piccadilly. The hon. and lamented gentleman was born Oct. 29, 1824; and married, April 22, 1863, Catherine, eldest daughter of the late James Coulthurst, Esq., of Gargrave Hall, Yorkshire. Of this marriage it is said there is likely to be posthumous issue, and until that event is decided the heirship-apparent to the ancient barony of Camoys remains in abeyance.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL THE HON. GILBERT ELLIOT.

The Hon. Gilbert Elliot, who died, on the 25th ult., at Hastings, after a long illness, was the youngest son of Gilbert, second Earl of Minto, by his wife, Mary, eldest daughter of Patrick Brydone, Esq. He was born Feb. 23, 1826; and entered the British Army in July, 1843, and served with the Rifle Brigade in the Kaffir War of 1852 and 1853, during which time he was Aide-de-Camp to General the Hon. Sir George Cathcart, and was present at the Battle of Berea. He afterwards was with his battalion in the Kaffir eastern campaign of 1854 and 1855, and was for a time on the Staff as Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General to the 4th Division. He had received the Kaffir War medal and a medal and clasps for the Alma and the siege of Sebastopol; also the Sardinian and Turkish medals, and the decoration of the fifth class of the Order of Medjidie. He got his commission as Lieutenant-Colonel April 3, 1862. He married, Aug. 17 1858, Katherine Anne, sixth daughter of the Right Rev. Ashurst Turner Gilbert, D.D., Bishop of Chichester. The Hon. Gilbert Elliot was brother of William Hugh, present Earl of Minto; of the Hon. George Elliot, British Envoy to the King of Italy; of Rear-Admiral the Hon. C. G. J. Brydone Elliot, R.N., C.B.; and of the Countess Russell.

CHARLES WATERTON.

Charles Waterton, Esq., of Walton Hall, in the county of York, the celebrated naturalist and traveller, died on the 27th ult., at his seat, Walton Hall, near Wakefield, from the effects of an accidental fall while crossing a rustic bridge that spans the small stream which runs into the upper end of the lake around the mansion of Walton. This distinguished gentleman had repute not only as a naturalist and traveller; he was a man of varied genius and of much worth, and was everywhere popular. In his own neighbourhood he was familiarly and affectionately known as "Squire Waterton." He was the eldest son of Thomas Waterton, Esq., of Walton Hall, by his wife, Anne, daughter and eventually sole heiress of Edward Bedingfield, Esq., of Oxton. He was born June 12, 1782, and received his education at Stonyhurst, the celebrated Jesuit College in Lancashire. There he remained until nearly twenty-one years of age, and there he became an accomplished scholar, and particularly a great adept in the Latin language. He in his youth renounced the use of wine and spirituous liquors, and kept to that renunciation through life. His love of natural history often led him into playing truant, but eventually his instructors gave him more liberty to pursue his favourite study. Soon after leaving Stonyhurst the young squire made a tour into Spain. There he met with many strange adventures, including fever and earthquakes. He, in 1804, went out to superintend his uncle's (Christopher Waterton's) estates in Demerara. That uncle and his own father being dead, in 1812 Charles Waterton delivered up his Demerara trust and came as squire to Walton. All subsequent visits which he paid to South America were undertaken with no other object in view than the pursuit of natural history. The famous book he published "The Wanderings in South America," bears testimony to his wonderful adventures during these visits. The vivacity with which his narratives abound render them the most charming production of the kind in the English language. "The Wanderings," now a standard work, created on its first publication a furore; and, particularly, the author's account of his ride on a cayman's, or crocodile's, back caused quite an amusing sensation. It was made the subject of a ludicrous caricature, with which no one was more entertained than Mr. Waterton himself. He preserved a copy of it, and used, among the manifold curiosities and rarities at Walton Hall, to show it with much glee to his visitors. Mr. Waterton latterly made frequent journeys to Belgium and Italy. His "Essays on Natural History" have been collected from Loudon's Magazine, and edited by himself, in a handsome volume, to which he prefixed a most amusing autobiography. This work is as sarcastic and racy as "The Wanderings," and full of interesting and acute observation. It should be added of Mr. Waterton that he was the first bird-stuffer in the world, and his collections in that way at Walton are magnificent. Charles Waterton, with all his many eccentricities—written, spoken, and enacted—was of a truly gentle spirit. He was benevolent to all—benevolent, it may be literally said, to man and brute; he ever enjoined and practised the kindest treatment of animals, evincing a generous sympathy towards them and the greatest horror of any wanton persecution of them. One of the squire's well-known traits was never to allow a shot to be fired on his grounds except to keep down the rabbits, whose impudent invasions were too much even for him. The result was that in Walton Park many a rare bird and animal has made its haunt in safety, and the curious circumstance may be therein seen of herons and other equally shy members of the feathered tribe remaining unmoved at the report of a gun. Walton Hall, with its wide acres, is a lovely spot. The mansion stands on an island in the centre of a lake, and has the honour of having successfully resisted an attack from Oliver Cromwell. A musket-ball, fired by Cromwell's own hand, lies embedded to this day in its wall, and used, with some pride, to be pointed out by the squire. He liberally threw open the park, and it was the resort, during the summer months, of numerous pleasure-parties. Squire Waterton was a devoted Catholic; but even his religious fervour was of a friendly nature, and could only be remarked by the more pungent and playful manner he adopted towards those of different creeds to his own. The Squire has left behind him singular instructions concerning his funeral. A mausoleum for the reception of his body had long been erected near the top end of the lake. This sepulchre rests beneath the overhanging shade of two venerable oak-trees. The body is not to be carried to this last earthly home by land, but is to be conveyed over the lake in a boat, the mourners following in the wake. Mr. Waterton has written his own epitaph; it is in Latin. The translation runs thus:—"Pray for the soul of Charles Waterton, born June, 1782; died 18—, whose weary bones rest here." Mr. Waterton married, May 11, 1829, Anne, second daughter of Charles Edmonstone, Esq., of Cardross Park, Dumbartonshire, by whom (who died April 27, 1830) he leaves an only child, Edmund Waterton, Esq., J.P., D.L., F.S.A., now of Walton Hall, who was born April 7, 1830, and married, Aug. 20, 1862, Margeret Alicia Josephine, second daughter of John Ennis, Esq., M.P., of Ballinahown Manor, in the county of Westmeath, and niece of Sir Thomas Henry, chief metropolitan police magistrate. The family of Waterton is one of the oldest in the realm; its name is in Domesday Book; and its crest of a bear was given by Richard Cœur de Lion to the crusader Sir Robert Waterton in reward of his valour at the Battle of Ascalon, in 1191. In 1415, Thomas Waterton fought with no less distinction at Agincourt. Another Waterton was on the side of the King at Marston Moor. From Waterton, in Lincolnshire, their original seat, the Watertons removed to Walton, in Yorkshire, some centuries ago, and there they have continued to flourish in high position and general estimation; but through the whole extent of their time-honoured line there has certainly not appeared a worthier or more remarkable lord of Walton than the gentle and gifted squire just deceased.

CAPTAIN CRISPIN, R.N.

Captain William Crispin, her Majesty's naval Aide-de-Camp, who died on the 20th ult., was for several years second in command of the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert. He was born in 1803; and, after the usual course of education at the Naval College, entered the Royal Navy as Midshipman in November, 1818. As Mate in the Lion, he was most effective against the pirates of Cuba in 1822 and 1823; and, in consideration of his services at that time, he received his commission as Lieutenant. After service in the Coastguard, he was appointed, in January, 1845, Commander to the Victoria and Albert Royal yacht, then under the command of Lord Adolphus Fitzclarence, and since under that of the Hon. Rear-Admiral Denman. In July, 1858, Captain Crispin was appointed to command the Hawke, in the Coastguard service. After acting for the usual term, he was made a naval Aide-de-Camp to her Majesty in 1864.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of the Hon. Edwin Lascelles, D.C.L., formerly of Belgrave-square, but late of Upper Eccleston-street, was proved in the London Court under £120,000 personalty, the sole executor and trustee being his brother, the Hon. Arthur Lascelles. The testator was the fourth son of the second Earl of Harewood; was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple, 1826; was M.P. for Ripon, 1846-57; and a Deputy Lieutenant for Yorkshire; and died at Wighill Park, Yorkshire, April 25 last, at the age of sixty-six, having executed his will in 1851, and two codicils 1856 and 1858. He has bequeathed a legacy of £500, free of duty, to the Warden and Fellows of All Souls College, Oxford, of which he was elected a Fellow (B.A. 1826, D.C.L. 1831). He also bequeaths the sum of £10,000 to the Right Hon. Louisa, Dowager Countess of Harewood, the relict of his late brother Henry, Earl of Harewood; a like sum of £10,000 to his sister Harriett, wife of the Right Hon. George Argustus Frederick, Earl of Sheffield; a like sum of £10,000 to his sister Lady Louisa, wife of Lord George Henry Cavendish, M.P. He leaves his residence and furniture to his said brother Arthur, to whom he also leaves a moiety of the residue, bequeathing the other moiety to Lady Lascelles, widow of his late brother, the Right Hon. William Sebright Lascelles.

The will of Sir George Nicholls, K.C.B., of Hyde Park-street, was proved in London by the Rev. Henry G. Nicholls, his son; Georgiana Elizabeth Nicholls, his daughter; and William W. Willink, Esq., his son-in-law, the executors and trustees. The personalty was sworn under £80,000. Sir George was formerly in the naval service of the Hon. East India Company, afterwards a Commissioner of the Poor Law in England and Ireland, and latterly Secretary to the Poor-Law Board, and retired from public service in 1851; and died, on the 24th of March last, at the age of eighty-four. Sir George executed his will in 1858, and a codicil in 1862, and has made certain specific bequests in favour of his son, Henry, and his daughter, Georgiana, leaving to his wife, Lady Nicholls, a life interest in the residue of his property, and, after her decease, he bequeaths to his son-in-law, the said W. W. Willink, also to the children of his deceased daughter, Jane Owry, and to his daughter, Charlotte Wingfield, certain portions of his property, appointing his son, Henry, and his daughter, Georgiana, residuary legatees.

The will of William Hollins, Esq., of Over-Wallop, Hants, was proved in London, on the 10th of May, by W. J. Brownjohn, of Bath, and C. P. Titt, of Old Jewry Chambers, the joint acting executors. The will is dated 1849, and there are ten codicils, the last dated March 28, 1865. He died on the 2nd of April. The personalty was sworn under £50,000. He has bequeathed the bulk of his property to charitable institutions, of which we are able to give only the most prominent:—£2000 to Winchester Hospital, £2000 to Salisbury Infirmary; these two institutions will also take any surplus residue. £1000 to each of the thirteen following institutions:—Brompton Hospital, Bethlehem, St. Luke's, Westminster Ophthalmic Hospital, Refuge for the Destitute at Dalston, London National Benevolent Institution, Deaf and Dumb Children's Asylum, Infant Orphan, Church Missionary, Bible Society, Strangers' Friend Society, Accident Relief Society, and Indigent Blind Visiting Society. £700 to the Royal Free Hospital. £500 to each of the following:—The London Hospital, Middlesex Hospital, Seamen's Hospital (Dreadnought,) Irish Society of London, King's College Hospital, Queen Adelaide's Fund, Colonial Church and School Society, St. Mark's Hospital, Royal Infirmary for Children, St. Mary's Hospital, London Fever Hospital, Small Pox Hospital, St. George's Hospital, London Ophthalmic Hospital, Religious Tract Society, Indigent Blind School London City Mission, Sailors' Home, Great Northern Hospital, Westminster Hospital, University College Hospital, and a like sum of £500 to the National Life-boat Institution. He also bequeaths £500 to rebuild the tower of Over-Wallop Church; and £1000 stock to the children of Ann Rogers, afterwards Liversedge, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, whose maiden name was Hollins. There are a few legacies to private individuals. The testator has made a liberal provision by way of annuity for his man-servant, and leaves to the daughter of the latter his farm with the stock and growing crops. The legacies are to be paid at the expiration of twelve calendar months.

The will of William George Prescott, Esq., banker, Threadneedle-street, and of Clarence Lodge, Roehampton (of which some imperfect account has been published), was proved in the London Court, on the 17th of May, by the executors and trustees, Edward Parker Wolstenholme (his brother-in-law), and the testator's partners Charles Cave, Joseph Grote, and Charles Andrew Prescott (his cousin). The personalty was sworn under £250,000. The will and first codicil bear date the 30th of March last, and a second codicil the 20th of April, and the testator died on the 29th of the latter month. Each document was attested by H. H. Barnes, solicitor, and another witness. He leaves to his wife Arabella (only daughter of the Hon. Arabella Catherine and Edward Wolstenholme, Esq., of Kildare) his estate and residence, Clarence Lodge, with the furniture, plate, carriages, &c., and appoints her residuary legatee absolutely. He has settled the sum of £35,000 on his only son, William Wolstenholme Prescott (born 1844), and his issue, and, in default, to the testator's only daughter. To his said daughter Arabella, wife of Captain Decie, he leaves a legacy of £5000, and to her husband £300; to testator's sisters Harriette Maria, wife of the Rev. G. Phillimore, M.A.; and Amelia, wife of Sir Jacob Preston, Bart., each a legacy of £200; and a life bequest to his brothers the Rev. G. E. Prescott, M.A., and Colonel Arthur Prescott; and also to his brother-in-law Thomas Preston, and cousin and partner Warner Prescott, each £200; and to each of his executors £250. The testator was the eldest son of William Willoughby Prescott, Esq., of Hendon, and grandson of Sir George William Prescott, Bart. Mr. Prescott was the head of the well-known banking firm of Prescott, Grote, and Company, which has been handed down from father to son for four generations.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

2nd Dragoons: Cornet Sir H. C. Pelly, Bart., to be Lieutenant; J. B. Deacon to be Cornet.

Royal Artillery: Col. J. Maitland to be Colonel; Capt. A. Stewart to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Second Capt. G. C. M. Martin to be Captain; Lieut. I. Ketchen to be Second Captain; Second Capts. E. C. Griffin, R. Pope, and H. M. Finlay to be Adjutants.

Royal Engineers: Cadet J. Broun to be Lieutenant, with temporary rank.

2nd Foot: Staff Assist. Surg. W. W. Tomlinson to be Assistant Surgeon. 3rd: Lieut. J. F. Whitworth to be Instructor of Musketry. 11th: Ensign F. N. Callwell to be Lieutenant. 12th: Quartermaster F. Luttrell to be Quartermaster. 15th: Lieut. W. J. Franks to be Lieutenant. 24th: Staff Assist. Surg. G. F. Duffy to be Assistant Surgeon. 25th: Lieut. R. W. T. Dawson to be Instructor of Musketry. 36th: Lieut. W. Neal to be Captain; Ensign L. G. O. Stucley to be Lieutenant; H. W. Pride to be Ensign. 45th: Ensign R. Garnett to be Lieutenant. 52nd: Lieut. H. A. Adair to be Instructor of Musketry. 53rd: Lieut. H. Elmhirst to be Captain; Ensign J. K. Kirkwood to be Lieutenant; the Hon. A. Hood to be Ensign. 60th: Ensign D. Bingham to be Lieutenant; R. C. Davies to be Ensign. 68th: Ensign W. H. F. Palmer to be Lieutenant; S. W. Tyndall to be Ensign. 79th: Ensign H. F. Rowley to be Lieutenant; J. D. K. M'Callum to be Ensign. 86th: Lieut. T. Davies to be Lieutenant. 92nd: Ensign H. F. Cotton to be Lieutenant; C. F. Massy to be Ensign. 97th: Ensign A. Lynch to be Lieutenant; R. A. Swetenham to be Ensign.

Rifle Brigade.—Lieut. H. M. Moorsom to be Captain; Ensign R. W. Ormerod to be Lieutenant; Ensign and Adjutant G. Rogers to have the rank of Lieutenant.

4th West India Regiment.—Lieut. J. J. Osborne to be Lieutenant.

Depot Battalions.—Capts. G. W. Northey and J. M'Queen to be Instructors of Musketry.

Medical Department.—Assist. Surg. H. J. Rose to be Staff Assistant Surgeon.

Brevet.—Lieut.-Cols. D. B. Muter, F. J. Travers, E. H. Fisher, R. F. Mountain, and G. J. Brown to be Colonels.

ADMIRALTY.

The following promotions have been made in consequence of the death of Capt. T. D. A. Fortescue:—Commander I. N. T. Sanley to be Captain; Lieut. H. L. Perceval to be Commander; Sub-Lieut. W. G. Le Cocq to be Lieutenant.

Mr. J. Jones and Mr. A. Martell to be Engineers in her Majesty's Fleet; Mr. G. G. Smith and Mr. F. M. C. Richards to be First-class Assistant Engineers.

The next examination for direct commissions will take place on the 31st of July, and the number of candidates is limited to a hundred.

The Miranda, recently from New Zealand, is ordered to be paid out of commission.

The Maori, sailing-transport, arrived at Spithead, last Saturday morning, from New Zealand, with military invalids.

The Racoon has arrived at Spithead from the Mediterranean. She has brought a few military invalids.

Tuesday's Gazette announces that Captain and Lieutenant-Colonel William Gregory Dawkins, of the Coldstream Guards (whose case has been before the House of Commons) has been placed upon half pay.

The Charybdis has arrived at Spithead from the Pacific. She left Valparaiso seven weeks ago, and brings home supernumeraries and invalids. This ship was commissioned at Sheerness in November, 1860. She will be dismantled and paid off.

A return was furnished to Parliament last Saturday, by the Marquis of Hartington, showing that the expenses incurred on all classes of Armstrong guns, their fittings, projectiles, &c., including the 100-pounder smooth-bore guns, since the date of the return furnished to Mr. Monsell's Committee in May, 1863, amounted to £285,418. The changes and alterations in the same period have cost £15,527; while the extra cost in providing projectiles, &c., in consequence of alterations has been £5032. The return is made up to the date of the last balance-sheet (March 31, 1864).

The annual general meeting of the friends of the Royal Naval School was held in the theatre of the United Service Institution, last Saturday, under the presidency of Admiral Sir William Bowles, K.C.B. Various sanitary and other improvements have been made since last report. There are now 220 boys in the school. Letters are continually received from those whose children have been educated here, as well as from former pupils themselves, all of whom are warm in their praise of the benefits of the establishment. The election of officers of the institution concluded the business.

From a return recently published relating to the military knights of Windsor it appears that every knight pays a fee on his patent of appointment to the lower foundation of £4 7s. 6d., and has to give 17s. 10d. in fees to the youngest choristers of St. George's Chapel. The same amount is paid on removal to the Royal foundation, the £4 7s. 6d. in each case being paid to the secretary of the Chancellor (the Bishop of Oxford) "for correspondence, drawing, and engrossing (on vellum) the letters patent, and the expense of the seal, in a tin case, &c." The knights on the lower foundation receive annually about £35 17s. 6d., and those on the Royal foundation about £39 9s. 4d., together with £60 (more or less) from the suppressed canonry.

The Duke of Cambridge, Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, paid a visit of inspection to the camp at Aldershott yesterday week. The infantry, which was drawn up in line on Cove-common, received the Duke with the customary honours. Each regiment was subjected to a close inspection, after which they marched past the saluting-point in open column of grand divisions in quick time. Some few manœuvres by brigades followed, and this portion of the division returned to quarters. Meanwhile the cavalry, horse artillery, and Royal Engineers' train, with pontoons (which had been ordered to turn out at a moment's notice), had formed up near Claycart Ridge. The Duke minutely inspected the whole. After this they marched past by squadrons, trotted past by fours, and galloped past left in front, the horse artillery leading, bringing the manœuvres to a close by forming line and advancing in parade order.

The splendid iron-cased ram the Lord Warden was launched at Chatham last Saturday. It is computed that 12,000 persons assembled to witness it, while the party surrounding the lady who named the vessel—Lady Ernestine Edgcumb—was of the most distinguished character. The Lord Warden was begun on Dec. 24, 1863. When laid down, from the design of Mr. E. J. Reed, Chief Constructor of the Navy, the principal dimensions were:—Length between the perpendiculars, 280 ft.; length of keel for tonnage, 234 ft. nearly; extreme breadth to outside of armour, 58 ft. 9 in.; extreme breadth, moulded, 56 ft. 4 in.; depth in hold, 20 ft. 9 in.; burden in tons, 4057 26-94ths; when launched her extreme length over all was 295 ft., and her tonnage 4080. At present the Lord Warden has only a portion of her armour-plating attached, on her broadside, about 400 tons in all. She was designed as a thirty-six gun ship; but her armament will be twenty-four guns, of course of much greater weight.

THE MILITIA.

The West Suffolk were reviewed, on Thursday week, by Colonel Farren, from the camp at Colchester. At the close of various evolutions the regiment formed square, and was addressed in complimentary terms by Colonel Farren. The gallant Colonel also inspected the barracks and regimental property. The training period terminated last Saturday. The Suffolk Militia Artillery have returned to head-quarters from Harwich redoubt, where they had completed a period of twenty-seven days' training and exercise to the satisfaction of Colonel Knox, R.A., inspecting officer. During its period of training the regiment fired 200 rounds 68lb. shot, fifty diaphragm shell, and fifty common shell, and had the usual proportion of carbine and foot drills for recruits. The regiment was disembodied last Saturday.

The Isle of Wight Militia Artillery, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Percy Scott, were inspected, on Wednesday last, by Colonel Wodehouse, C.B., Aide-de-camp to her Majesty, on the tilting-ground of Carisbrooke Castle, the head-quarters of the regiment. Colonel Wodehouse was entirely satisfied with the way in which the men acquitted themselves.

The Royal North Gloucestershire Militia, having been out for permanent duty, at Cirencester, for the last fortnight, terminated their yearly drill last Saturday. The annual review took place—before Colonel Bruncker, the inspecting field officer of the district—in Earl Bathurst's park, near Cirencester. The movements executed by the men gave the highest satisfaction to the inspecting officer. After the review the officers gave a déjeûner and ball. The South Gloucestershire Militia, who have been on permanent duty at Gloucester, had their review on the day before that held in Earl Bathurst's park. About 600 men were on the ground, under the command of Major Surman, and the inspecting officer (Colonel Bruncker) spoke favourably of their drill.

The enrolled pensioners of the Bristol district, under the command of Major Meek, having completed their eight days' training, were inspected yesterday week, at the head-quarters of the Bristol volunteer artillery, by Colonel Daniel, of the 28th Regiment of Foot, who came from Plymouth for the purpose. At the close of the inspection, the gallant Colonel expressed himself highly gratified with the result, and stated that he should have to make a satisfactory report.

The 2nd Somerset completed their annual twenty-eight days' drill, at Bath, last Saturday. On the previous day they were reviewed by Colonel Mann, of Plymouth, the Government Inspector. After being put through a variety of evolutions, the inspecting officer addressed the regiment and expressed himself well satisfied with the conduct of the men in the field.

The Royal Wilts, commanded by Lord Methuen, having completed their period of training for the present year, were officially inspected, at Devizes, on Friday last, by Colonel Shadwell, Deputy Quartermaster-General of the South-West Military District. The regiment mustered 528 rank and file on the field, under arms, exclusive of band, pioneers, &c.; and at the close of the inspection Colonel Shadwell warmly complimented Lord Methuen and his officers on the efficiency of the regiment and its fine appearance on parade.

The annual inspection of the 3rd Staffordshire, which has concluded its annual training of twenty-seven days, took place, on Wednesday week, at Newcastle-under-Lyme. The regiment mustered 700 strong, and made an excellent appearance. During the inspection the rain fell in torrents, and the movements were limited in number and simple; but the whole of them were effected with remarkable precision and smartness. The inspecting officer (Colonel Bingham, of Manchester) dispensed with the usual custom of addressing the men, but he afterwards expressed to the officers his entire satisfaction with the appearance and efficiency of the regiment.

The various Yorkshire corps have mostly, if not all, completed their annual training for the present year. There have been good musters of each regiment, and, according to the expressed opinion of the respective reviewing officers, officers and men have acquitted themselves better than in any previous year. The 5th West Yorkshire, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Kaye, had their training at Knaresborough, and were inspected there by Colonel Campbell, C.B. The corps is about 720 strong, and only eight were absent. The East Yorkshire, about 600 strong, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Thompson, were trained and inspected at Beverley. The inspecting officer was Colonel Hankey, of the 83rd, stationed at Sheffield. The North Yorkshire, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Wade, were trained and inspected at Richmond. The inspecting officer was Colonel Ingall, C.B. The East and North Yorkshire Artillery Militia were inspected at Scarborough by Colonel Anderson, C.B., of the Royal Artillery. The 1st West York, 645 in number, were trained and inspected at Pontefract. The inspecting officer was Colonel Hankey. The 4th West York, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Cairns, were trained and inspected at Leeds. They were about 700 strong, and the inspecting officer was Colonel Campbell, C.B.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The final competition for the Inland Revenue challenge cup took place recently at the Civil Service range, on Wimbledon-common. The following are the scores of the five companies who, having made the highest scores in the preliminary competitions, were entitled each to send five men to shoot for the absolute possession of the cup:—Civil Service Audit Office Company, 69; Queen's (Westminster), twelfth company, 69; Victorias, first company, 65; twelfth Herts (Barnet) company, 64; Queen's (Westminster), thirteenth company, 60. It will be seen that the Civil Service were tied by the Queen's No. 12, but the former became the winners under the conditions attached to the cup, they having made the greater number of hits. The Inland Revenue companies have instituted another challenge cup.

A match between No. 14 Company, Captain Wallington, Queen's (Westminster) and the 30th Middlesex, or Ealing corps, Captain Tyrrell, took place on Saturday last, at Wormwood-scrubbs. The total scores were, fourteenth company Queen's, 401 marks; Ealing corps, 374 marks. On the side of the Queen's the highest score was 54 marks, made by Private C. Godfrey; and Sergeant Montgomery, with 51 marks, won the highest on the side of the Ealing corps.

A rifle-match was fired last Saturday at the Over Range, Gloucester, between the City of Bristol and the 1st Staffordshire Battalions, which from the high reputation that each corps has earned for itself, excited an unusual amount of interest. The 1st Staffordshire could boast of having engaged in thirteen battalion matches and never having been beaten; while the Bristol corps had defeated the Gloucester (city) corps in three out of four matches, had beaten Birmingham once, and had attained the proud position of being second in both the simultaneous Enfield and the International small-bore competitions. Both corps were represented by thirty men. The contest proved an exceedingly close one, the Staffordshire leading up till the last few rounds, when the splendid firing of Messrs. Baker, Bingham, and Marsh "landed" the Bristol men the victors by five marks At 200 yards Bristol made 345 marks, Staffordshire 358 marks, showing a majority for the latter corps of thirteen marks; and this majority they increased at the 500 yards' range to seventeen, the score there being—Bristol 300, Stafford, 304; but at the 600 yards' range the score was—Bristol 338, Staffordshire 313: the total score being—Bristol 983, Staffordshire, 978. Sergeant Bingham made four bull's-eyes and one centre, and Private Baker three bull's-eyes and two centres, at 600 yards.

Last Saturday, which was a grand gala day at Cambridge, a distribution of prizes took place to the University Volunteer Corps, of which the Prince of Wales is honorary Colonel. The distribution, by Mrs. Cookson, the wife of the Vice-Chancellor, took place in King's College, on the lawn in front of the Rev. the Provost's lodge, in the presence of a large assemblage of spectators. At the conclusion, Captain Hubbard, stepping to the front, stated that this was the last occasion on which the corps would be commanded by Colonel Baker, to whose exertions in the maintenance and elevation of the corps he paid a warm tribute, presenting him with an elegant épergne, as a proof of the warm esteem in which he is regarded by the Cambridge University volunteers.

The 19th Lanark (2nd Glasgow) was inspected on Saturday week by Lieutenant-Colonel Young, the district inspector. Between 500 and 600 members were present. After the performance of evolutions of the usual character, Colonel Young congratulated the regiment upon the strong muster and excellent drill, and expressed his particular satisfaction with the skirmishing. In that respect both officers and men had shown great intelligence in their work. He promised a most favourable report to the War Office.

Lieutenant-Colonel W. M. Dixon, R.A., and Mr. Edmund St. John Mildmay, secretary of the National Rifle Association, having been appointed by the council to conduct the trials of the rifles supplied by Mr. Rigby, of Dublin, for the successful competitors in the second stage of the Queen's prize at Wimbledon this year, have issued their report, which is dated May 25, 1865, Royal Small Arms Factory, Enfield. The report describes the method adopted for testing the accuracy of the arms submitted to them, after which fifteen of the rifles were selected for trial at the target, Mr. Rigby himself being present, and superintending the firing of the arms from his own mechanical rest. The result of the shooting, the report says, "was highly satisfactory;" and Lieutenant-Colonel Dixon and Mr. Mildmay add, in conclusion, "We can safely congratulate the council of the National Rifle Association upon the excellent arm which has been selected by them this year for the sixty best shots at Wimbledon." Appended to the report is the result of the experiments at a range of 1000 yards with the fifteen rifles of Mr. Rigby, giving a mean of total number fired of 1·57. In 1862, 1863, and 1864, in the experiments made by the Whitworth rifles, the mean was 1·98.

The several Acts by which the reductions set forth in the Budget for 1865 become law and take effect were issued on Tuesday. The reduction of the tea duty from the old rate of 1s. per lb. to 6d. per lb. began on Thursday. The new rate of income tax (4d. in the pound) begins from the 6th of April last. The reduced duty of 1s. 6d. per £100 on fire insurances will begin on and after the 25th of June next.

THE FARM.

The abundance of grass in the meadows has put the farmers in heart, and we have seldom seen so many "young men from the country" ready to follow the fortunes of Breadalbane and Wild Charley from the paddock to the post. The Yorkshire men tell us that Mr. Wetherell and Mr. Torr went last week to value over the Warlaby herd to Mr. Thomas Booth, but that they "met with closed doors." The herd at present consists of fifty-five, of which thirty-two are females. Both this valuation (which no one seems to put under £200 a head) and the price which the Grand Dukes and Grand Duchesses are to fetch in the lump at Willis's Rooms are the subject of boundless speculation. The Warlaby valuers do very rightly to keep their's back; it would only be bringing about an invidious contrast between it and the result of the above sale, and prove nothing, after all. It seems that Mr. Bolden made a very handsome offer for the whole of the "Grands" to the late Mr. Hegan, last autumn, but that he would not accede to it. Selling them in one lot, if possible, was the wish the old man left behind him; but we have no doubt that when they are knocked down the purchaser will put up some of the bulls then and there. Two or three breeders are hinted at as likely to join in the fray, but it is not thought that it will rise beyond "a triangular duel." Who one of the contending parties will be was pretty plainly intimated by Mr. Strafford, in his "Kentish fire" opening at Penshurst, on Thursday. This was a very pleasant day, and prices for really good lots were satisfactory. The Rosa tribe, crossed with Prince Imperial, was the making of Mr. Wells's part of the sale. Mr. Waldo had some good ones among his sixteen, which averaged £35 1s.: Fathom made 71 gs. (a great drop from her Holm Pierrepont price), and Merry Andrew, a very promising yearling, 60 gs. The Stettin Show was only attended by four English representatives. Lord Walsingham and Lord Sondes were first and second in the Southdown tup and ewe classes; Mr. Taylor, of Harptree, brought Devon bulls, &c.; and Mr. Crisp made a pretty clean sweep with shorthorns, pigs, and Suffolks. The English implement houses were well represented, and Fowler got the steam-ploughing prize of £75.

There was a great market for cobs at Tattersalls' on Monday. Mr. Branwhite's sold well, and one of them, "which was said to have trotted three miles in nine minutes," made 115 gs. The sixteen-stall stable was entirely filled with Mr. Milward's, of which thirteen were "ponies" and three small hunters. There is no doubt that this gentleman never brought up such a quality lot before, and Estate (100 gs.) and Copper Plate (130 gs.) headed the poll, as we last week hinted they would. The Duke of Grafton and the Earls of Dudley and Cardigan were all purchasers, and the Marquis of Hastings bought a pair of roans, Composure and Retort. Pattern, the smallest of the lot and true to the name, was knocked down to Mr. Tod Heatly for 80 gs. Sparta and Venetia were bought in; and if we reckon in it the fourteen three Little Miss (84 gs.), the average was just 71½ gs. for the dozen. Still fourteen two is the outside height for a "pony," and upon this point England and Scotland seem to be agreed. Putting her out, the average is upwards of 70 gs., the best that Mr. Milward has ever had.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

A new fossil reptile, discovered in South Africa, and named, on account of its numerous affinities and its fine-pointed teeth, Mesosaurus tenuidens, was described by M. Paul Gervais in a paper read at a recent meeting of the French Academy of Sciences. It was found by M. Alexis Verreaux, in the territories of the Grigas, a Hottentot family living to the north of the Orange River. The peculiarities of this reptile distinguish it from any known species. The length of the head is 0·066m., and the breadth 0·008m. in the anterior region, and 0·020 above the occiput. The jaws resemble those of the crocodile and plesiosaurus. The neck is more elongated than most saurians, and the sides of the animal are thicker than those of most reptiles, ancient or modern, except the pachypleura. The anterior limb, from the scapular extremity of the humerus to the point of the third phalange of the middle toe, measured 0·054m.

Mr. Alfred Newton's notes on the zoology of Spitzbergen, which were read some time back at a meeting of the Zoological Society, appear in the Annals of Natural History. His voyage was made in Mr. E. Birkbeck's yacht Sultana. He describes the white porpoises in Ice Sound as having the colour and consistency of a good spermaceti candle, gliding through the water with an easy and almost graceful roll. The birds of Spitsbergen are few in species, but the number of individuals is past computation—the most wonderful sight which the ornithologist can behold. The deer (smaller than the Lapland rein) are tolerably abundant, and the Arctic fox is pretty numerous along the coast of Ice Sound. A remarkable species of seal, termed "the springer," led to a conjecture respecting the sea-serpent. The springer is of a sociable disposition, and herds of not less than fifty individuals swim together in a line, their heads alone above water, as if engaged in a game of "follow my leader." On the first seal making a roll over each seal in the whole procession does the same in course. Mr. Newton thinks that any person, not an unromantic naturalist, seeing these movements, might readily imagine the mythical monster to be before his eyes.

Lieutenant-Colonel Strange has reported to the Royal Astronomical Society the result of his continued investigations into the applicability of aluminium bronze as a material for the construction of certain parts of astronomical and surveying instruments. He has no reason for doubting this adaptation of the metal, with one exception. The metal tarnishes more than was expected, and absolute soundness of surface is not easily attainable: it is thus not well fitted to receive graduation. The first experiments in casting large masses resulted in the production of internal airholes. This difficulty, however, has been overcome. In proof of this, Colonel Strange exhibited the axis of a transit instrument, 33½ in. between the bearings; the central cube, 9½ in. by the side; the thickness of the metal averages about 0·15 in.; the entire axis is cast hollow, and in one piece; and the weight is only 56 lb. It is intended for a telescope of 5 ft. focal length. Owing to its large general size and its thinness of metal, and to the system of interior strengthening webs, it is of a form peculiarly difficult to cast in any metal. This piece of scientific founding is from the works of Messrs. Cooke, of York; and Colonel Strange stated that he had little hesitation in expressing his belief that it is the stiffest transit axis in existence.

At a recent meeting of the Geological Society three papers were read. In the first, Mr. G. F. Matthew gave a brief history of the geology of the southern part of New Brunswick. In reference to the adjacent country, he stated that it is now a well-established fact that throughout palæozoic time the centre of the North American continent was comparatively stable, the whole series of formations being found in continuous and conformable succession, from the base of the Salurian to the summit of the Permian. The second paper, by D. F. Sandberger, contained the results of his observations of the palæozoic, triassic, and jurassic beds of Baden and Franconia, which will help to a more accurate knowledge of the geology of those regions. In the third paper, Dr. D. N. Rubidge considered the changes which were necessary in the geological map of South Africa in consequence of the recent discovery in certain rocks of Devonian fossils, specimens of which were laid before the meeting.

At a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences at Paris Dr. Blondlot's researches on black phosphorus were reported. It was stated that crystallisable phosphorus present three allotropic varieties, according to its colour, which may be white, yellow, or black. The last form, discovered by Thenard, has since been only reproduced accidentally, and its existence has been doubted by many chemists. Dr. Blondlot, after devoting himself successfully to the discovery of the secret of this preparation, has arrived at the conclusion—in conformity with the opinion of Thenard—that the colour of phosphorus depends upon its degree of purity and the method of cooling it after it has been melted. He gives details (for which see Comptes Rendus, vol. lx., No. 17) of his experiments, which lead him to state that, as yellow phosphorus is impure, and white phosphorus only a transitory state in its passage to the black, the last, as being much more stable, ought to be considered no more as an anomaly, but as the true type. He also laid before the academy specimens of the three kinds of phosphorus referred to in his memoir, the most remarkable being two large tubes filled with the black phosphorus prepared by his process. At the following meeting of the academy, Baron Seguier reported some singular experiments relating to the action of projectiles. When a bullet is sent through a plate of glass a circular hole is produced without much disturbing the neighbouring molecules. The effects are different if the ball pass through a different medium, such as water. When the lower part of a tube of glass, half of which is plunged in water, is struck by a bullet, it breaks at the surface of the water as sharply as if cut with a diamond. The part not in the water is unaffected, but the immersed part is split up, following numerous lines in the direction of the axis of the tube. At the same meeting M. Henri Ste.-Claire Deville reported some remarkable experiments which have led him to a long expected result—viz., that at a temperature, about 1200 degrees centigrade, carbonic acid begins to decompose into carbonic oxide and oxygen, and that this dissociation increases in a direct ratio with the temperature. He also made a gas flame and a jet of water approach each other. The phenomenon of dissociation which manifested itself between 1500 and 1800 degrees presented a perfect analogy with the total vaporisation of the water at 100 degrees, and the partial vaporisation of the liquid at lower temperatures.

Colonel Edward Stanton, C.B., her Majesty's Consul-General at Warsaw, has been appointed her Majesty's Consul-General in Egypt.

CHESS.

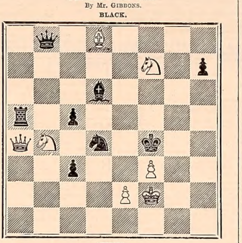
TO CORRESPONDENTS.

CARLO; T. R., of Burton.—The volume of the late "I. B., of Bridport's," Problems, which is published for the benefit of the author's family, may be had direct from his widow, Mrs. I. Brown, Chard's Mead, Bridport: or of the publishers.

TIMOTHY.—There is no set rule upon the subject of publishing games. To simplify matters, it might be well for players to agree that every game should be the property of the winner, so far as publication is concerned.

VERITAS, SIGMA.—The suggestion shall be attended to; the defence in question may have been overlooked or misread.

EDWARD.—You will find, on reference to the article on "False and Illegal Moves and Captures" in "Chess Praxis," p. 55, that it was the rule in Italy at one time for a player who moved a man falsely to forfeit the man; in Germany the offender forfeited, not the man, but the move.



DUBLIN CHESS CONGRESS.—The preliminary programme of this scheme reached us too late for more than an acknowledgment of its receipt this week.

SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM NO. 1109 by D. C. L., Carlo, B. C., Conrad, E. L. M., George, Prospero, A.B., Sigma, F. I. R., Larry, Box and Cox, Percy, I. T. L., Warwick, Delta, I. W., R. G. B., Etonensis, O. P. Q., Q. E. D., L. S. D., Coleman, Omega, Try-again, Beppo, Indiana, John Willis, Ernest, T. Curtis, A Swede, R. M., Fidèle, M. P., Rifleman, Oriental, P. C. D., Wolfgang, A Clerk, Julio, Pip, Water-baby, Violet, Andrew, E. G., Fanny, Manxmann, Cosmos, Tribus, Iota, B. H. C., Charley, Verdant, Mrs. Harris, F. C. S., N. C., Simon, Nimrod, Dryad, Target, E. R. E., Adam Bell, Templar, Volunteer, T. M. D., Manfred and Man Friday, Launce, Bion, Clericus, Civis, T. Bostock, G. T. O., A Farmer, Charlotte, I. Simpson, Tiro, Presis, T. V. K., Rook, Victoria Stanley, W. E. D., C. Giles, Farfax, Abingdon, Lex, Anne, Peregrine, C. Athenæum, Patty, Nereus, Romola, E. B., T. Danby, Alpine Stock, Keith, Silas, W. N., S. M. G., Harry, Old Joe, Rugbeian, Sindbad, I. Norris, Dr. Fould, Snooks, Leopold, Egmond, W. G., I. H., Bath Club, Dereron, Josiah Bugby, Gavino, S. J. T., Volpone, Omicron, Felix, are correct. All others are wrong.

PROBLEM No. 1110.

By Mr. GIBBONS.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

 The second Problem, dedicated by Mr. Schonmoff to the Grand Duke Konstantine (See Problem No. 1109), will be published shortly.

CHESS IN LONDON.

The following Games were contested some time ago between Mr. BARNES and the Rev. G. A. M'DONNELL.—(Sicilian Game.)

WHITE (Mr. M'Donnell.)	BLACK (Mr. Barnes.)
1. P to K 4th	P to Q B 4th
2. B to Q B 4th	P to K 3rd
3. Kt to Q B 3rd	P to Q R 3rd
4. P to Q R 4th	Kt to Q B 3rd
5. P to Q 3rd	P to K Kt 3rd
6. P to K B 4th	B to K Kt 2nd
7. Kt to K B 3rd	K Kt to K 2nd
8. Castles	Castles
9. B to Q R 2nd	P to Q 4th
10. P to K 5th	P to K B 3rd
11. P takes P

(Instead of making this capture, had White played the natural-looking move of 11. Q to K sq., Black might have rejoined with 11. Q to Q B 2nd.)

11.	B takes P
12. Kt to K 2nd	B to Q 2nd
13. P to Q B 3rd	Kt to Q R 4th
14. P to Q 4th	P to Q B 5th
15. Kt to K Kt 3rd	P to Q Kt 4th
16. P takes P	P takes P
17. B to Q 2nd	Kt to Q Kt 2nd
18. Kt to K 5th	Kt to Q 3rd
19. Q to Q B 2nd	K Kt to K B 4th
20. Kt takes Kt	Kt P takes Kt

(This looks hazardous at first sight; but, on examination, we believe it will be found preferable to retaking with either King's Pawn or Knight.)

21. P to Q Kt 3rd	Kt to K 5th
22. Q R to K sq	B takes Kt
23. K B P takes B	Q to Q R 4th
24. B to Q Kt sq	P takes P
25. Q to Q sq	P to Q Kt 5th
26. P takes P

(If 26. B takes Kt, Black does not retake the Bishop immediately, but rejoins with 26. P takes Q B P.)

26.	Q to Q Kt 3rd
27. B takes Kt	Q takes Q P (ch)
28. B to K 3rd	Q takes Q
29. R takes Q	K B P takes B
30. R takes R (ch)	R takes R
31. B to Q B 5th	R to Q R sq

WHITE (Mr. M'Donnell)	BLACK (Mr. Barnes.)

(From this point the end-game becomes extremely difficult and interesting, the play on both sides being of the highest order.)

32. R to Q Kt sq	B to Q R 5th
33. K to K B 2nd	K to K B 2nd
34 K to K 3rd	K to K sq
35. K to Q 2nd	K to Q 2nd
36. R to K B sq	B to Q Kt 4th
37. R to B 7th (ch)	K to Q B 3rd
38. K to Q B 3rd	B to Q B 5th
39. R to K 7th	R to Q R 7th
40. R takes K P (ch)	K to Q Kt 4th
41. R to Q Kt 6th (ch)	K to Q R 5th
42. P to K 6th	R to Q B 7th (ch)
43. K to Q 4th	R takes K Kt P
44. P to K 7th	R to Q 7th (ch)
45. K to K 5th	P to Q Kt 7th
46. P Queens (ch)	K to Q Kt 6th
47. R to K R 6th

(After long examination, we are unable to discover any better move for White in this extremely critical situation.)

47.	P Queens
48. P to Q Kt 5th	P to K 6th
49. K to Q 6th	P to K 7th
50. R to K 6th	Q to K 5th

(A singularly beautiful stroke of play, and as sound as it is brilliant, for the young player will observe that, if White take the Queen, Black will retake with Pawn, discovering check, and then Queen his King's Pawn.)

51. P to Q Kt 6th	P Queens
52. P to Kt 7th	Q to K B 5th (ch)
53. R to K 5th

(The only available reply.)

53.	Q takes R (ch)
54. Q takes Q	Q takes Q (ch)
55. K takes Q	R to K 7th (ch)
56. K to B 4th	R to K sq
57. B to Q 6th	P to Q 5th
58. P Queens	R takes Q
59. B takes R	P to Q 6th

and White resigns.

Between the same Players.—(Sicilian Game.)

WHITE (Mr. McDonnell.)	BLACK (Mr. Barnes.)
1. P to K 4th	P to Q B 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K Kt 3rd

(The move usually adopted at this point is 2. P to K 3rd.)

3. P to Q B 3rd	B to Kt 2nd
4. P to Q 4th	P to Q Kt 3rd
5. B to K 3rd

(White might have won a Pawn at this moment, by 5. P takes P; but the move in the text retards more effectually the development of Black's game.)

5.	Q to Q B 2nd
6. B to Q 3rd	B to Q R 3rd
7. Castles	B takes B
8. Q takes B	Kt to K B 3rd
9. Q Kt to Q 2nd	Kt to K Kt 5th
10. Q R to Q B sq	Kt takes B
11. P takes Kt	Castles
12. P to Q 5th	P to Q 3rd
13. P to K R 4th

(This attack may be ventured with perfect safety, the Black Queen being so far from the scene of action).

13.	Kt to Q 2nd
14. P to K R 5th	Kt to K B 3rd
15. P takes P	R P takes P

WHITE (Mr. McDonnell.)	BLACK (Mr. Barnes.)

(Had he retaken with the Bishop's Pawn, White would have rejoined with Kt to K Kt 5th, threatening to win the exchange.)

16. Kt to K Kt 5th	Kt to K Kt 5th
17. Q Kt to K B 3rd	B to K R 3rd

(We should have preferred 17. Kt to K 4th.)

18. P to K Kt 3rd	K to Kt 2nd
19. K to Kt 2nd	P to Q B 5th

(This seems scarcely judicious, as it only drives the adverse Queen to a more advantageous position than that which she at present occupies. It would, we believe, have been better for Black to play his own Queen to her 2nd, since she is at present terribly out of play.)

20. Q to Q 4th (ch)	K to Kt sq

(Better, perhaps, to have interposed the Knight.)

21. P to K 5th

(The winning move. After this advance of the King's Pawn, Black appears to have no resource. If he were now to take the Pawn with Knight, White wins at once by Q to K R 4th, &c.)

21.	B takes Kt
22. Kt takes B	Kt to K R 3rd
23. Q to K R 4th	K to Kt 2nd
24. R takes K B P (ch)

and wins.

WEST YORKSHIRE CHESS ASSOCIATION.—The tenth annual meeting of this association was held in the saloon of St. George's Hall, Bradford, on Saturday, under the presidency of Mr. Benjamin Broughton. Members from Leeds, Huddersfield, Sheffield, Wakefield, Holmfirth, Dewsbury, and other places—in all about sixty gentlemen—were present, including some of the most accomplished amateurs in the Riding. The room was opened for play at noon, and during the day two tournaments of eight players each were contested. The pairs were in the first instance determined by lot, and the winners of each round were divided in a similar manner. It may be observed, however, that several of the best players held back from the tournament in order that the competitors might be more equally paired. Among these were Mr. Watkinson, of Huddersfield, and Mr. Rhodes, of Leeds, who entered the lists against each other. A very fine game was the result, which ended in favour of the Huddersfield player.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Professor Frankland began his tenth lecture on organic chemistry (delivered on Thursday, May 25) with further experimental illustrations of the formation and properties of organo-metallic compounds, produced by union with an organic radical in the nascent state with a metal (such as zinc-ethyl); by the action of metals alloyed with potassium or sodium upon the iodides of the alcohol radicals (such as mercury-ethyl); by the action of the zinc compounds of the organic radicals upon the chlorides of the metals; and by the displacement of a metal in an organo-metallic compound by another more positive metal. Specimens of these bodies were shown, and their remarkable properties exhibited. It was stated that mercury-ethyl is the heaviest liquid known, except mercury, and that various mercury compounds are extremely dangerous on account of their slow yet sure poisonous character, fatal cases having recently occurred. In the latter part of the lecture the chemistry of food was introduced. The saccharine and amylaceous group of organic compounds—sugars, starches, and gums—contain oxygen and hydrogen in the proportions requisite to form water, joined with carbon, and are termed respiratory or heat-giving food, as not being sufficient alone to form blood and muscle. Many of these substances differ from each other only in the proportion of water elements they contain, and are frequently transformed into each other under chemical influences. When treated with nitric acid, most of them yield oxalic acid; and with a mixture of nitric and sulphuric acids they form most explosive compounds, such as gun-cotton, nitro-mannite, and nitro-glycerine, as was shown. Plants and fruits with acid juices contain "grape-sugar;" and those with neutral juices—viz., sugar-cane, beetroot, maple, date, palm, maize, carrots, turnips, pumpkins, and chestnuts—contain "cane-sugar." The latter possesses five times more sweetening power than grape-sugar, but must pass into the condition of grape-sugar (by chemical action) before it can ferment. Among other interesting experiments performed were the method of testing for grape and cane sugar by their different action on salts of copper and Dr. Bence Jones's mode of determining the quantity of sugar in a solution by means of polarised light, the principle of the apparatus having been previously explained and illustrated.

Dr. Bence Jones gave the evening discourse on Friday, the 27th ult., "On the Chemical Circulation in the Body." After alluding to the absorbent system, he stated that the experiments of Dr. Dupré and himself convinced him that there are good grounds for believing that there exists within us, in addition to the mechanical animal circulation of the blood, another, a greater, and a more chemical circulation, resembling that which exists in vegetables and the lower animals, and which is carried on by diffusion from the blood into the textures. After explaining and illustrating Mr. Graham's law of diffusion in gases, liquids, and semi-solids, and Kirchhoff's mode of chemical analysis by the spectrum (by which even the 195-millionth of a grain of sodium is detected), he stated that he had applied this method to the determination of the rate of passage of crystalloid substances into and out of the tissues of the living body. He selected lithium, as giving a very characteristic spectrum, giving it to guinea-pigs, in whose bodies no lithium is found. The experiments showed that three grains of chloride of lithium may diffuse into the cartilage of the hip-joint and the aqueous humour of the eye in a quarter of an hour, and pass out of the system in about six days. The experiments made on human beings produced corresponding results. Twenty grains of carbonate of lithium in two hours and a half passed into every part of the circulating system, and in three hours and a half lithium was distinctly visible in the spectrum of a portion of crystalline lens. Lithium did not pass quite out of the system till seven or eight days had elapsed. The existence of lithium on specimens of cartilage, liver, kidney, &c., was proved by their spectra projected on the screen, by Dr. Tyndall, by means of the electric light. In conclusion, Dr. Bence Jones considered the chemical action of alkalis on the animal system, and the probability that their presence with oxygen conduces to combustion, and illustrated this hypothesis by various experiments. The president, Sir Henry Holland, Bart., was in the chair.

Mr. Alexander S. Herschel's second lecture on meteorology, given on Saturday last, May 27, began with an explanation of rain and snow. The periodical tropical rains were ascribed to the abundance of aqueous vapour at the equator causing a more copious and continuous precipitation on water in the upper part of the air there than in any other part of the globe. Aqueous vapour becomes snow at the temperature of 32 deg. Fahrenheit, and the snow-line is the height above the sea-level at which 32 deg. is the mean summer temperature. The peculiar properties of ice were referred to as, appearing in perpetual snow, due to vegetation, and in the remarkable phenomena connected with glaciers. The remainder of the lecture was devoted to wind, the motions of the atmospheric ocean surrounding our globe. Mr. Herschel said that wind does not affect the barometer, as is generally supposed. The trade winds are due to a polar current setting towards the equator and an equatorial current setting outwards from the equator into the upper region of the air; and the anti-trade winds he ascribed to these currents modified by the motion of the waves. The Gulf Stream of Mexico was fully described, and its influence in the production of hurricanes and in raising the temperature of our western coasts fully considered. Mr. Herschel then explained what is termed the annual and daily tide of the barometer in different parts of the globe, the phenomena of the monsoons, the wind-charts published by the Board of Trade; and the law of the gyration of the wind, discovered by Doré, illustrated by Mr. Osler's annemometer. The production of hail was ascribed to ascensional currents reaching to the height of cirrus, deposit snow, and sleet. These collect, as they fall, into hailstones, weighing sometimes from 6 oz. to 12 oz. Halos and mock suns were stated to be formed in cirro-stratus clouds, which consist of small cups of ice. Mr. Herschel concluded with noticing some of the ordinary weather portents, the aurora, and luminous meteors.

Professor Frankland began his eleventh lecture on organic chemistry, on Tuesday, with illustrations of the processes of the sugar manufacture—viz., the refining the solution of raw sugar by combining it with the albumen of blood at a moderate heat, and the more effectual but more dangerous mode by the action of acetate of lead. The bleaching the liquor, and, finally, its crystallisation by boiling in vacuum-pans were also explained. Other forms of sugar were also noticed—barley-sugar, caramel, the sugars of milk and of flesh, &c. The starches from wheat, potato, arrowroot, and the gums were next considered, and their structure and combinations explained. Dextrin, or British gum, so much employed in the calico manufacture, is produced by heating wheat starch, and is always found in toasted bread. The important proteine bodies formed the next subject, being albumen, casein, and fibrin, all contained in the liquid and solid parts of both animals and vegetables. They all contain the same elements in nearly the same proportions—viz., the composition of albumen is carbon 72, hydrogen 112, nitrogen 18, sulphur, 2, oxygen 22. In a series of experiments Dr. Frankland showed that albumen (e.g., white of egg) is soluble but coagulable by heat; casein is soluble but incoagulable by heat, and fibrin is insoluble. He stated that when finely-chopped beef is infused in cold water about 20 per cent dissolves, leaving a white fibrous residue, which becomes hard when boiled. In this cold, aqueous solution is contained all the nutritious, savoury ingredients of the meat necessary for the formation of the blood. The lecture was concluded with some examples of the action of chlorine upon organic bodies in replacing a portion of their hydrogen, which is the case in the bleaching processes in calico-printing, and in its disinfecting and deodorising powers upon sewage by suspending the progress of putrefaction.

Next week (on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday) Mr. Edwin Chadwick, C.B., will give three lectures on the Physical and Moral Condition of the English Wage-Classes.

The last evening discourse of the season will be given by Professor Frankland, on Recent Researches in Organic Chemistry, on Friday, the 9th inst.

The Committee of the House of Commons upon the South Wales and Great Western Direct Railway Bill has decided, after a lengthened investigation, that the preamble of the bill has been proved. The Committee suggests that the promoters of this bill should take the necessary steps for effecting a junction with the Midland Railway at Malmesbury. The practical result of this decision will be that two of the great railway companies—the Great Western and the Midland—will compete in carrying coal from South Wales to London by a direct line across the River Severn.

At the last meeting of the Archæological Institute of Great Britain and Ireland it was arranged that the annual meeting for this year should be held at Dorchester from Tuesday, Aug. 1, to Tuesday, the 8th, inclusive, and the local committee and presidents of sections were nominated. Dorchester is comparatively new ground for the archæologist; but Corfe Castle, Wimborne Minster, Sherborne Minster, and the Roman remains which abound in the county will be included in the programme of the excursions. Professor Willis will read a memoir of Sherborne, and afterwards illustrate his remarks by reference to the minster itself.

The home accounts of the Government of India were issued on Monday morning. The total receipts of the Home Treasury of the Government of India from the first of May, 1863, to April 30, 1864, were £23,504,123; the total expenditure having been £18,907,849. The "estimated account" of receipts and disbursements by the Home Treasury for the year ended the 30th of April last shows a total of receipts of £15,770,906, against an expenditure of £11,856,015. An account of the debts and credits in England of the Home Government of India on the 1st of the present month shows a total of £29,397,537 debts and £14,558,871 credits. This is exclusive, on the one hand, of the amount owing to proprietors of India Stock for their capital, and, on the other hand, of the Guarantee or Security Fund, formed under the provisions of the Act 3 and 4 William IV., cap. 85. The salaries and allowances payable on the 1st of May to members of the establishment of the Secretary of State in Council for India amounted to £118,301, due to 342 persons. In addition to this there were allowances payable to persons temporarily employed amounting to £4863. The new pensions granted in the year ended the 30th of April last amounted to the annual charge of £3670 18s. 6d. They include £1000 per year to the Countess of Elgin and Kincardine, "as a mark of the high sense entertained by the Secretary of State for India in Council of the valuable services of the late Earl of Elgin and Kincardine, Viceroy and Governor-General of India, and in consideration of his premature death;" and the like sum to Sir Henry Hayes Lawrence, Bart., "as a mark of the sense entertained by the Secretary of State for India in Council of the eminent services of his grandfather, the late Sir Henry Lawrence, K.C.B., during his long career in India, and especially in the defence of the residency of Lucknow."

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "LADY AUDLEY'S SECRET," &c.

Third Edition, in all Libraries, in 3 vols.,

ONE OLD.

JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "ROLAND, THE PARTNER."

This day, in 2 vols., in all Libraries,

WHO WAS TO BLAME?

JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

ANECDOTICAL MEMOIRS OF THE EMPEROR.

This day, in 1 vol., at all Libraries,

NAPOLEON III. AND HIS COURT.

JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

NOVEL BY STEPHEN MARTINDALE.

This day, in 1 vol., at all Libraries,

CHARLOTTE PERALE.

JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

This day, in 1 vol., at all Libraries,

CRUEL FORTUNE.

By the Author of "Milly Mon." "Queens of Song," &c.

JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

CHEAP EDITION OF "HERRY DUNBAR."

This day, in picture boards, uniform and Vignette Engraving, 1s. each, post 6d. extra, the Seventh Edition of Mrs. Hungerford's Work,

HERRY DUNBAR.

"Is the most powerful piece of literary artifice in the language."—Spectator.

BROKEN TO HARNESS. By EDMUND YATES.
SACKVILLE CHASE. By C. J. COLLINS.
SIR VICTOR'S CHOICE. By ANNIE THOMAS.
JOHN MAXWELL and CO., 122, Fleet-street.

NOW READY.

New Edition, enlarged, price 3s. 6d., 1 vol., cloth, uniform with "The Queen's English," by the Dean of Canterbury,

THE DEAN'S ENGLISH. Fourth Edition.

By G. W. KITCHIN, D.D., Dean of DURHAM, F.R.S.L.

"It is one of the most delightful books of present-day criticism we have chanced to meet with for many a day."—Morning Advertiser.

"It is one of the smartest pieces of criticism we have ever read."—Journal of Sacred Literature.

"Dr. Kitchin has successfully pieces of literary criticism in the language."—Newcastle Chronicle.

THE DEAN'S ENGLISH. Fourth Edition. 3s. 6d.

"Regarded in itself, and without any immediate reference to its subject, is a model of what a lecture ought to be."—Spectator. "Such a book as this is a real boon."—Saturday Review.

"Written in pure, forcible, elegant, and classic English—perfect models of composition, which every one who wishes to write well should commit to his daily, half-hourly readings."—Public Opinion.

"Dr. Kitchin is the admiration of all students of our tongue."—English Journal of Education.

"Even practised writers may here learn a lesson or two in the art of writing English."—Manchester Examiner and Times.

"Full of scholarly lessons."—Literary World.

London: HATCHARD and CO., 187, Piccadilly.

MILITARY LIFE IN INDIA.

In post 8vo, with Frontispiece, price 10s. 6d. cloth,

CAMP AND CANTONMENT: A Journal of Life in India in 1857-1859 with some Account of the Mutiny in Oude. By HENRY MANSFIELD PARKES, C.S.I., late Political Agent and a Short Narrative of the Pursuit of the Rebels in Central India. By Lieutenant-Colonel PEAT.

London: W. H. ALLEN and CO., Publishers to the India Office.

Fourth Thousand.—Complete in 1 vols., fcap 8vo, cloth, price 10s.

A MANUAL OF BRITISH BUTTERFLIES

AND MOTHS. By R. T. STANDFUSS, F.L.S.

This Work contains descriptions of nearly 2000 species, interspersed with observations on their habits and localities, and is copiously illustrated, and is illustrated with more than 500 Woodcuts.

London: REEVE, BENHAM, and REEVE, 5, Farringdon-street.

BY THE RATE DAVID BORRETT, B.A.,

SKEPTICISM OF THE HOLY LAND, SYRIA, IDUMEA, ARABIA, EGYPT, and NUBIA. From the Unbeliever in the Bible. With Historical and Topographical Notes and an Introductory View of Jewish History, by the Rev. DAVID BORRETT, B.A. Two vols., illustrated in the highest style of art, and elaborated throughout.

6 vols. in Parts, paper wrappers, 12 lbs., pub. at £7 7s.
6 vols. in 3, cloth, gilt edges, 42 lbs., pub. at £8 8s.
6 vols. in 3, half-morocco, 42 lbs., pub. at £9 9s.
6 vols. in 3, half-morocco, gilt, 42 lbs., pub. at £10 10s.

Warranted perfect in every respect, and precisely the same as when published. Handsome, and usually as good as if the full price were paid.

N.B. Last carriage-free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of Postal Order for the above amount.

London: and 37, Chancery-lane, and 57, Ludgate-hill, Successors to the Firm of England, E.C.

Now ready, price 6d.,

THE SOLAR THEORY OF MAN His Creation and Reconstruction, deduced from Revelation and the Science of Nature.

WILLIAM REEVES, 185, Fleet-street, Publisher; and all Booksellers.

Ninth Edition, with 20 Plates, price 1s., postage-free,

STAINED GLASS, by the Improved Transfer Process. Full particulars, lately patronised by our Royal and Imperial visit.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

New Edition, with Drawings in Colour, price 8s. 6d.; post-free, 8s. 9d.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON PAINTING IN WATER-COLOURS. By HENRY HARRIS, R.A.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st.

Price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,

MONOGRAMS and CYPHERS, Modern and Gothic (Handbooks of), by VICTOR COUCHE.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Third Edition, price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,

ALPHABETS and DESIGNS of DIFFERENT PERIODS. By JAMES WILLCOCK. Illustrated by F. E. WOOD.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 6d., postage-free,

PHOTO-CHROMOGRAPHY; an Easy Method of Printing Photographic pendwork, beautifully enamelled appearance, which may be practised by any person unacquainted with photography.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,

PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, Draperies, Backgrounds, &c. A guide to Painting in Water-Colours to which is added Instructions for Painting in Oil Colours. By A. P. BENNETT.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

POSTAGE-STAMPS.—A priced Catalogue of Foreign Postage-Stamps sent post-free for 2 stamps, by W. LINCOLN, 4, Bedford-row, Gateshead-on-Tyne, England.

A packet of 100 foreign, all different, sent post-free for 6d.

FOOD INFANTS.—Highly recommended by Dr. W. H. SMITH and SONS' Food Analyses, which contains numerous lists of Wines of the best Authors for the first time offered at Reduced Prices.—166, Strand, London.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DESIGNS designed and engraved on steel or brass dies, and stamped in relief on paper, or impressed and executed in the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', 45, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, 6s. to handsome antique morocco and russia bindings; also in crests, enamel, and monogram. Albums for monogram, crests, and photographs.—At Rodrigues', 45, Piccadilly, W.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Best Programme and Ball Programme and Menu Cards, and Monograms and Address Dies of Fine Quality and Elegant Style. Specimens and Price List free.—CULLETON'S, Engravers and Printers, 2, Long-acre, London.

NEW MUSIC.

NEW TENOR SCENA.

LADY HILLDERD. Expressly composed for Mr. Charles Knowles. By M. W. BALFE.
In G (original key); in F (transposed). Price 4s.

For large melody and captivating refrain this song from 29 Song Birds fitted the throat. Close into the middle. Brava.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street, W.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR.
By S. GLOVER. Price 4s. Sung by Madame Patey. Each succeeding one of the leading favourites of the season; may be had to Vocal Duet, 4s.; Pianoforte Duet, 4s.; Violin and Piano, 4s.; Vocal Duet, 4s.; and Harmonium, 4s.—CRAMER and CO., 201, Regent-street.

E. L. HIME'S PARFAIT AMOUR.
Recreara for Piano. Played by Madame Wilde. Free before the Public and Pictures of the Day. The above celebrated Romances has already run through fourteen editions. Sent for 19 stamps.
E. L. HIME, 2, Montpelier Row, Blackheath, S.E.

E. L. HIME'S ROSE LEAVES. Ballad. Without words. With steel-like sentential Romance, Played by Madame Wilde. Free before the Public and Pictures of the Day. The above celebrated Romances has already run through fourteen editions. Sent for 19 stamps.
E. L. HIME, 2, Montpelier Row, Blackheath, S.E.

E. L. HIME'S GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR
Sent for 19 stamps. This is an elegant and effective Contralto or Tenor Song. Sung by Mrs. Beresford Hindley.
DUFF and HODGSON, 26, Oxford-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S PIANETTES.
Cramer and Co.'s Pianettes, Cramer and Co.'s Pianettes, Forte Gallery, 207, Regent-street, in the following variety of case and compass:—

	Guineas.
In Ash	22
In Rosewood	25
In Walnut and Rosewood	28
In Rosewood	28
In Walnut	30
In Oak, to resemble Elsop	30
In Rose Walnut, with Albert Veil	34
Ditto, with Tambour Front	36
In Fulford Oak, ditto	42
In Walnut, with Albert Veil and Trusses	42
In Figured Oak, with Trusses	45
In Ditto, with do. do.	45
In Walnut, with Tambour Front, with do. do.	45
In Rosewood, with Trusses, with do. do.	45
In Amboyna and Gold, with do. do.	52

(The following are fitted in their top of those instruments at an extra charge of 5 guineas.

	Guineas.
In Solid Rosewood or Walnut and Chippendale	42
Ditto, with Fretting-up Keyboard	45

CRAMER and CO.'s Pianettes have been tested from the very extensive popularity attained by their Pianettes, in manufacture from the various styles of instruments, and the great ease, ornamentation and patterns of the cases are varied admirably, to suit the requirements of the day. The Pianettes are fitted with Cramer and Co.'s Patent Check Repeater Action, and have received the most perfect instruments in tone, touch, and durability ever made in the pianoforte manufacture. Cramer and Co.'s Pianettes are fitted with the improved check action. The cases are now applied to offer an instrument starting in quality without being capacious, and elegant in shape and ornamentation without being expensive.

CRAMER'S THREE YEARS' SYSTEM, by which the term of payment for a Pianoforte is extended to Three Years, applies to ALL the above MODELS.

THREE YEARS' SYSTEM may be ORDERED through County Families; but if any difficulty be experienced, CRAMER and CO. will forward them direct.

PIANOFORTE GALLERY, 207 and 209, Regent-street.
Cramer and Co.'s Pianettes, Cramer and Co.'s Pianettes.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited)—Their THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM OF HIRE, by which an Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of Three Years, is applicable to Pianettes, at £2 10s. per quarter; Pianettes, at £3 10s. per quarter; Cottage Pianofortes, at £4 4s. per quarter; Grand Pianofortes, at £6 6s. per quarter. Cramer and Co.'s Three-Years' System of Hire Instruments are of the very best manufacture.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. HIRE OUT HARMONIUMS on the three-years' system.

CRAMER and CO. EXTEND their THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE to any part of the Kingdom.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to BOUDOIR GRANDS by BROADWOOD.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to SEMI-COTTAGE PIANOFORTES by BROADWOOD.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to BOUDOIR GRANDS by BRARD.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to BOUDOIR GRANDS by KIRKMAN.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to GRANDS by KIRKMAN.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to COTTAGE PIANOFORTES by KIRKMAN. Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to SEMI-COLOSSUS by PLEYEL.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S Three-years' System applies to GRANDS by PLEYEL.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. LET on HIRE all kinds of PIANOFORTES, by all makers.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) exhibit the 7½ octaves Grand PIANOFORTE of the highest class. This new model is specially adapted for the Tropics, and will stand the very driest instruments.

Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

MUSICAL BOXES by NICOLE FRÈRES. A Selection of these Masterpieces of the newest description, with Tunes to suit the present season, may be heard at CRAMER and CO.'S, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

STAINED-GLASS WINDOWS for CHURCHES and DWELLINGS.
HEATON, BUTLER, and BAYNE, Stained-Glass Painters, executing designs for Windows suitable for Churches and Mansions, in the highest character, also Church Decorations and Memorial Brasses and Tablets. 56, Mortimer-street, Cavendish-square, London, and New King-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

SILENT LOCOMOTIVE, to carry two persons, 25 miles on one gallon of petroleum, need for no coals, no ashes, no steam, no fire, no boiler, no engineer, no complicated machinery, statement, 6d., nett free.—J. BARKER, 6, Lillie-road, Fulham, S.W.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The Full Pamphlet Printing Press, price from 5s. to £4 4s., for Letterpress, Copperplate, or Lithographic Printing. "Art of Printing," by HENRY BISHOP, 1s., post-free, 1s. 2d. Specimens of Work Improver and Instructions in her Majesty's Post Office, St. High Holborn, London, W.C.

A FACT, 1d.—AN ELEGANT POCKET-DIAL, 1d.—Both Accurate, Portable, and Durable. Sent free, 1d. and 2d. extra.—J. SAMUEL, 7, cross-rd., London, N., Islington.

ARTHUR GRANGER, Publisher, 324, High Holborn, London. Agents wanted.

PALE SHERRY at 30s. per Dozen, fit for a gentleman's table. Bottles and Cases included. Terms Cash. Post Orders payable Piccadilly.
CHARLES WARD and SON.

Established upwards of a century), 1, Chapel-street West, Mayfair, W., London.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, free from acidity or heat, and much approved for invalids, 30s. per dozen. Terms cash. Direct from Sicily. Sent free on receipt of Post Office Order, payable at Piccadilly.—W. S. WATSON, Wine Merchant, 71, Great Russell-st., corner of Bloomsbury-sq., London, W.C.—Established 1841.

PORT and SHERRY, 12s. per Dozen; Claret and Sauternes, 16s. per Dozen.—VICTORIA WINE COMPANY, 21, Victoria-street, S.W. Price-list and Testimonials post free for 12 stamps.

KNAHAN'S LL WHISKY v. COGNAC BRANDY. Established 1779. Sole Proprietors, Cork Distillery Co. And 34s. per dozen. Terms cash. Three dozen paid.—W. S. WATSON, Wine Merchant, 71, Great Russell-st., corner of Bloomsbury-sq., London, W.C.—Established 1841.

A LSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The MARCH A BREWINGS of the above Ales are now being BOTTLED, and can be obtained of all Wine Merchants throughout the Kingdom.
MACKIE and CO., 30, Shaftesbury-street, Strand, W.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE,
pronounced by Connoisseurs
"The Perfection of Sauces."
Wine proprietors and Oilmen universally use Lea, Perrins, and Sauce, and Sold by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Purveyors to the Queen and Sauce, and by Dealers throughout the World.

THE TEA ESTABLISHMENT,
4 and 5, King William-street, City, E.C.
Tea Merchants to the Queen and Royal Family.
THE FINEST OLD CHINA TEAS REDUCED to FIFTY-FOUR SHILLINGS per Pound.
Our Customers should order 7 lbs. at 54s. per pound less than the Fifty-guinea Chest.
Sent free to Country Purchasers.
Price List and Sample Packet free.

BIRTHDAY and COMPANY.

MENIER'S PERFECT CHOCOLATE defies all honest competition. The healthful and most delicious Cocoa-nibs, Cocoa-nib Dust, Cocoa-nib Extract, and Cocoa-nib Essence, are concentrated cocoa in 6,000,000 lb. Menier, 21, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden, London. Sold by all respectable houses.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic Cocoa, Chocolate, and the medical profession generally, recommend COCOA ESSENCE as the most nutritious, perfect, and economical Cocoa or Chocolate yet introduced into this country. They warn you to be cautious of preparations of cocoa either attractive in price or in name, as they are generally mixed with sugar, starch, &c., and in the place of nourishing cocoa are converted as a rule into useless, J. EPPS, of London, Homœopathic Chemist, was the first to call the public's attention to this subject, and he would again caution you, with the assistance of chemists' machinery, to grind the finest cocoa, and to mix with it only the finest sugar, and to put it in packets with his name. It is necessary to use a spoon large enough as to be most acceptable to the delicate stomach. Expressed Cocoa Nibs, Cocoa Nib Extract, Cocoa Nib Dust, Cocoa Essence, Chocolate Essence, Chocolate Nibs, Cocoa Nibs. Dr. Hassall, in his work "Food and its Adulteration," says "Cocoa contains a large amount of nitrogenous matter, and is therefore a highly nutritious article. It is also a powerful nervous tonic, and is especially suitable for persons of sedentary habits." Dr. Hassall's Analytical Chemist, 112, Great Russell-street, 179, Piccadilly; 45, Threadneedle-street; and 60, Mincing-lane.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAMS are an exceedingly delicious sweetmeat. Sold everywhere in 1 lb. boxes.
FRY'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE is prepared with scrupulous regard to purity, and, being considerably reduced in price, is now within the reach of all.
CHOCOLATE ESSENCE is universally approved.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, in Sticks and Drops, &c.
The increasing popularity of FRY'S Pure Cocoa and Sons' Chocolate is the best proof of its superiority over other kinds of concentrations.
FRY'S PURE CONCENTRATED COCOA.
Guarantee to analysis—Starch, 0; Sugar, 0. It is very delicious and nutritious, and is thus peculiarly adapted for persons who require light refreshment at all times.
A POSTAGE AND CONVENIENCE FORM.

THE NEW MIDDLE-CLASS TOOTH PASTE.
ALIENA
Is Reported by the Lancet to be "Exceedingly excellent for food." Cease or more than inferior articles.

BROWN AND POLSON'S PATENT FLOUR
recommended for use with Brown and Polson's Yeast.

OSWEGO
PREPARED CORN,
Manufactured by Hominy, Illinois, U.S.A.
Manufactured and Protected by
THE OSWEGO MANUFACTURING CO.,
Of Oswego, State of New York.
It is the original Corn Flour of the United States, established 1848, universally known and appreciated for its delicacy of flavour, excellent for making pudding, and has long been used with great success in the nursery and sick room.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

KEEN'S MUSTARD.
First Manufactured A.D. 1742.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

ROBINSON'S PATENT GROATS is the most valuable food for nursing and delicate children and the aged. Modern chemistry has proved that the whole of the nutritious properties of the grain are preserved in ROBINSON'S PATENT BARLEY make a delicious nourishing beverage for Breakfast, Luncheon, or Supper. It is the best natural food for the skin, and is a non-inflammatory drink. It excellent for mothers nursing, and has long been used with great success in the nursery and sick room.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

KEEN'S GENUINE MUSTARD.
First Manufactured A.D. 1742.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY YEARS.
This well-known Starch has been before the Public for the trade of Great Britain for upwards of one hundred and twenty years, and is in high estimation for its purity and gossamery of flavour. The qualities of this Starch are recommended for family use on the ground of purity and the Genuine, both of which may be obtained from most family Grocers, Oilmen, and Chandlers, in 1 lb. packets.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.
COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD
Is the only kind recommended by the Bulls Head, as non-injurious. It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1851.
Beware of imitations having their name so printed, "Colmans" or "Colmans" Mustard, as the qualities particularly "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 26, Custon-street, London.

COLMAN'S STARCH obtained
International Exhibitions, 1851, 1862.
Report:—"Excellent in quality, with large body."—Exhibition Jurors.

PURVEYORS TO HER THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry.
Sold everywhere, in packets.

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS
Give instant relief of Asthma, Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Influenza, and Bronchitis.
In Tins 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., per box, all Druggists.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Stomachic Disorders of every kind and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—178, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

A LL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief from using CLARKE'S EYE-SALVE; it clears all unhealthy action from and gives new vigour to the eyelids.—Sold in bottles, 1s. 3d., 2s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-street; Prout, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

LUDGATE-HILL RUSSELL
Has removed from
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, PARASOLS, LINENS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, £1 15s. 6d.
Rich Striped Glacés, 12s. 6d.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 yards, £1 5s.
Patterns free.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.
Fashionable Patterns.
A large assortment of Figured Glacés, 22s. 6d. the 14 yards.
Black Gros Grains, Black Gros de Suez.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

SUMMER CHALLIS.—Patterns free. Choice and Original Summer Mixtures, a large variety of useful Dress Materials.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

LENO and MUSLIN CURTAINS.
Double Borders, four yards long, 1in. 3d. per pair.
A variety of Patterns in Lace Curtains, from 1s. 6d. per pair.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
Table Damasks, Huckaback Towels, Sheetings, Shirtings, Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips.
Made and Marked Pocket Handkerchiefs, Hemstitched Per Year.

BLACK SILKS.
Patterns free.
Duchess and Chiffon (Bright Imperial Black).
Black Silk Poult de Soie (1 yard wide).
Gros Grains, Gros de Rhein, Drap de Lyon.
Black Satins.
Gros de Vienne, Gros d'Alsace (warranted dye), 42 in. the Full Dress (14 yards).
Coloured Silks for Evening Dresses, and Sheets.
In the newest combinations for this season.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at
JAMES LINDSAY and CO.
will forward, carriage paid, to any part of the kingdom, Sheets and Shirts, Cambric, Linen, Napkins, Diapers, Huckaback, Linen Drapery, Flannels, Blankets, Quilts, Linsey, Tablecloths, Dinner Services, Tea Services, Toilet Covers, Ladies' and Gents' Underclothing, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs, and Shirts. Patterns and Price-lists free.—Donegall-place and Linen Hall-buildings, Belfast.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 2s. 6d. the yard, made of bright Italian silk, and guaranteed to wear well. Patterns of the entire range of colours and black sent free by return of post. All the newest and most useful productions. Patterns sent free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103, Oxford-street, London, W.

FORD'S NEW JACKETS FOR LADIES, at 38, Oxford-street, opposite the Pantheon, London, W., recommended for their elegance of style, perfect fit, and moderate price. Cloth, silk, and velvet jackets in every style, all of which are arranged in stock to fit ladies without delay.

FORD'S HALF-GUINEA JACKETS, in cloth and velvet, are unequalled for their value. Ladies should write for patterns of these at once. Although exceedingly cheap, they are made in the most perfect manner, and are of the very latest fashion.—Ford, Mantle Maker, 38, Oxford-street, opposite the Pantheon, London, W.

FORD'S GUINEA JACKETS, to wear open or closed, are recommended for their elegance of style, perfect fit, and extraordinary variety of colour. Send New Jacket Patterns, Fashion Plates, and Price-list free.—Ford, 38, Oxford-street, opposite the Pantheon, London, W.

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas. Superfine and fit guaranteed. Riding-trousers, 21s. per pair. Illustrations of the new Riding-habits, Patterns of Cloth, and Price-list and Directions for Self-measurement, post-free.—W. Ford and Co., 38, Oxford-street, opposite the Pantheon, London, W.

MARRIAGE TROUSSEAUX and LAYETTES.—PETER ROBINSON has the honour to solicit an inspection of their extensive and recherché Stock, comprising every requisite for India, Home, or Continental use, at moderate prices. Ladies are invited to write for Patterns and Price-lists.—PETER ROBINSON, Outfitters and Habiliers, 11, Wigmore-street, W.

LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING of best make and finish. Chemises, 4s. each and upwards; Night-dresses, Petticoats, Morning Robes, &c. Price-books by post. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103, Oxford-street, London, W.

INDIA OUTFITS and WEDDING TROUSSEAUX. Ladies' Outfits for India, Home, and Abroad, at moderate prices. Price-books by post.—WHITELOCK and SON, 166, Strand.

SEWELL and CO.'S NEW SILKS, in every Shade, Bright, Rich, and Useful, at 2s. 6d. per yard. Micro Analyses, in all the new Colours, 42 inches the Full Dress. Patterns free.—Sewell and Co., 14, Cheapside.

FRENCH PRINTED MUSLINS.—SEWELL and CO. have received from the Continent by Special Train, upwards of 1000 Printed Muslin Dresses. The high reputation of their goods needs no comment. Patterns free. In all the past; original price, 2l. and 2l. 10s.; per dress.
Also, Fancy Printed Muslins, Swiss-square.
SEWELL and CO., 14, Cheapside.

SANSFLECTUM CRINOLINES.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
ADDLE'S Sans Pareil Crinoline, 4s. 11d.

ONDINA or WAVED JUPONS, 10s. 6d.
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
ADDLE SQUARE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

PICCADILLY CORSETS, 10s. 6d.
"An unfashionable wrinkle is impossible."—Art-Journal.
ADDLE SQUARE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

THOMSON'S CRINOLINES,
Sans Steel, Elastic, Flexible, Durable.
ADDLE SQUARE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

CRINOLINES AND CORSETS.
Illustrations
with name-plate "Remarks," post-free.
ADDLE SQUARE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS.
G. W. JONES, 101, Oxford-street.
"Choice Assortment of Novelties and other Flowers, Bridal Sprays, Favours, Fans, &c., at great variety.

LACE.
E. T. S.
E. T. S. JONES, of 101, Oxford-street, has, in addition to his Regent-street Establishment, opened a Branch at 101, Oxford-st., and invites an early inspection of his assortment, which cannot fail to command general admiration.

VERY IMPORTANT TO TAILORS.
TAILORS' UNIONS, the very best article that can be made for Tailors' Linings, Canvas, Hair-cloths, and every thing else only to be had at James Field and Co., 78, St. Martin's-lane, W.C. Patterns and Prices sent post-free. Cash Prices. Terms net. Only Tailors' trade supplied.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest prices in Cash or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. E. HYAM, 16, Bow-street, Regent-street, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash immediately remitted. Established 1760.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. A. DAVIS, 9, Crawford-st., Baker-st., attends at gentlemen's residences daily. Ladies waited on by Mrs. Davis. Bullfinches, Canaries, Linnets, Parrots, &c. Parcels being sent, Post-office orders remitted the same day. Est. 84 years. Terms cash.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY JUNE 3, 1893.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1319.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, JUNE 10, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE NEW PRINCE.

THE unaffected pleasure with which the announcement of the safe accouchement of the Princess of Wales and the birth of another Prince was greeted by all classes on Saturday last has a special significance, as well with regard to the past as to the future, and speaks volumes as to the cordial relations which subsist between the Royal family and the people of the United Kingdom. The tidings of that event, which were flashed along the telegraphic wires to every part of the country, might, one may imagine, under other circumstances, and at a different stage of our national history, have excited feelings of quite another kind. Had the present birth, for example, obviated any apparent danger of a break in the direct line of succession to the Throne, it might unquestionably have stirred the loyalty of the Queen's subjects into a more demonstrative effusion of joy. Happily, no such danger is within ken; and hence the gladness inspired by the event was of a quiet, genial, domestic type. Or, as those who can look back over the last half century are aware, there have been times when a similar announcement would probably have been received with any feeling but that of affectionate satisfaction, and when the prospect of a slight addition to the Civil List would have blotted out from the public mind all the considerations which usually conduce to make a Royal birth a matter of general congratulation. Our circumstances are more fortunate. The views, the temper, the wishes of the people in the present day harmonise completely with the continued dignity and happiness of the Court; and whatever is a source of legitimate gratification to the latter yields its proportionate measure of joy to the former.

The nature of the "welcome" given to the "little stranger" throws light upon much that would probably present a curious and perplexing problem to foreigners. There is something about the loyalty of the British people which renders it unique. An exact resemblance of it can be found nowhere else; we question, indeed, whether it existed in these islands at any former period. There was a time when the sentiment of loyalty to the Throne consisted mainly of the two elements of traditional veneration and unreasoning superstition; and, no doubt, it served a purpose of high importance during the somewhat turbulent times during which it flourished. At any rate, it constituted a strong living barrier of protection to existing institutions from the encroachments of violence. It served in troublous days to invest the Crown, the supreme representative of the majesty of law, with that same sort of mysterious sanctity which guarded the Altar from the intrusions of brute force. As the necessity for it passed away, and reason gradually took the place of superstition, there was some danger lest the true spirit of allegiance might flit with it. That it has not done so is owing to a series of unexpected causes, which it is no part of our immediate design to review. It suffices our object to call attention exclusively to the character of the result—a result which, in our opinion, enters very largely into the orderly freedom, the vitality, and the stability of our political constitution.

English loyalty, then, as it operates and manifests itself in the present day, derives its chief strength from the predominant elements of English domestic life. It is a perfectly sober sentiment, able to give a perfectly good account of itself. It not only co-exists, but it blends with the highest intellectual enlightenment. It is not abject, although doubtless, in individual and exceptional cases, it may be made so. It is not romantic, although it is capable of being so far superheated by passion as to pass into that shape. There is in it a full proportion of that reverence which ancient tradition everywhere excites. But it is essentially manly, and is the more unstintingly rendered, because it is rendered by choice and not of an overpresent necessity. There is a tinge of religion in it; but religion does not give to it its pervading hue. The principal strength of it consists in the intense and ever-active sympathy which obtains between family life at Court and family life all over the realm. The people are at one with their Sovereign and with her descendants precisely within those limits which bound all that they hold most dear. The institution which they prize above all others of an earthly kind, that under shelter of which they rear their best virtues, that in which they seek repose and sustenance for their deepest and tenderest affections, that in the description of which they can soothe but grim irremedial ruin to their fondest hopes and purest enjoyments, is also the one institution which now for many years past has received its fullest commendation and illustration in the case of the Royal Family. The yearnings of her Majesty and of her children commingle with those of her subjects on that most sacred of all areas, the domestic hearth; and out of this unity of feeling in regard to home ties, home responsibilities, home trials, and home delights, has grown a type of loyalty of the most trustworthy kind. It is more an affection than a sentiment. It takes a real personal interest in everything which touches, whether for weal or woe, the circle which includes the throne of the Sovereign. All the anniversaries of deaths within it are regarded with a sympathetic feeling unstrained and deep; and it needs not the aid of political forecast to infer that people with their beloved Queen in its interest excited by whatever affects the condition of the Royal family.

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH TO ALGERIA: ALGERINE IRREGULAR CAVALRY FORMING THE ESCORT OF NAPOLEON AT MEDEAH.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

Two or three circumstances have contributed to deepen the sense of satisfaction which this nation now feels in the fact that Her Apparent has occasioned. The Prince of Wales is extremely popular. The course of life he has pursued ever since he came to man's estate has been in thorough accord with English notions of what becomes his exalted position. He has carefully abstained from mixing himself up with political party. He has followed the example of his revered father in patronising and lending hearty encouragement to whatever is best adapted to relieve the pleasures, and improve the character evoke the responsibilities of social life. He tempers the dignity which belongs to his state relations with the ease, the bonhomie, and the frankness of a thorough English gentleman. The Princess has still more firmly set than in the affections of the people which was given her with wonderful enthusiasm on her first public introduction to her adopted country. All men speak well of her, think highly of her, feel tenderly towards her. She is loved of her, and all are sensibly interested in the happiness of her home. They feel that in every expression of that domestic circle there is a fresh guarantee for the culture of the best and purest affections in their future Sovereign, and for the mature development of those virtues which are closely identified with the stability of the Throne.

The event, moreover, has been regarded as one certain of opening another source of pleasure to the Queen. It is new life which does most to soften the memory of death and to beautify with verdure the grave of the departed. The vacant place in the heart of widowhood and bereavement is not wholly filled; but at least it may be divested of its dreariness by an overgrowth of fresh affections, as a ruin may be hidden by the ivy which creeps over it. That her Majesty has been blessed with a new object of care, and, we trust, joy, is a cause for real thankfulness to her subjects, who devoutly desire that her thoughts and sympathies may be gradually diverted from a loss which is inevitable to those gifts from Heaven which are best suited to alleviate it.

Blessings on the Royal youngster! May it live to minister growing delight to its parents, to comfort the Queen, to honour its illustrious lineage, and to shed upon the country as bright a lustre by its future career as the gladness it has unconsciously awakened by its birth!

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH TO ALGERIA.

OUR last Impression contained a notice of the entry of the Emperor Napoleon into the town of Medeah; and it may be remembered that the troops formed part of the military escort upon which the Arab irregular cavalry in the local service of the French Government, the tents of their encampment on the neighbouring plain, and the picturesque feature in the scene which our Special Artist had sketched. The figures and accoutrements of these half barbarous soldiery are picturesque enough to form the subject of a particular illustration, which will be found on the front page of our present Number. Two other Engravings in this week devoted to the Emperor's visit to Algeria, in a view of Fort Napoleon, in the mountain district of Kabylia, or Djurjura, visited by the Emperor on the 23rd of May last, of which is distant about 120 miles from the city of Algiers, was built to oversee the valleys of the Isser and Sebaou, and was named after Marshal Randon's conquest of the Kabyle confederacy in 1857. The ground was attacked, and by storm, by the two-sided French soldiers, in twenty-five days, from Tizi-Ouzou, where the mountain country begins, to the platform of Souk-el-Arba, where the building of Fort Napoleon was commenced. It is the work of a native village, the inhabitants of the village being provided with lands and sites elsewhere. The fort is a massive construction of dressed stone walls, nearly 3000 yards in circumference. It is garrisoned by four battalions of infantry, and fifty artillerymen, and is well furnished with provisions for several months. The Kabyle population, which is very numerous in the fertile valleys of the mountains, for the last eight years been content to dwell peaceably under the French sovereignty, while being allowed to retain their own customs and laws, to manage its own affairs, paying only a gross annual tribute to the French Government, consisting in about seven per cent on the produce of seven. They are described as a thrifty and industrious people, having little resemblance to the Arabs of the rest of Algeria; they cultivate the soil, producing large quantities of olives and grapes which they bring to Algiers for sale. It was the opinion of Marshal Bugeaud that this district alone, when its resources were fully developed, would repay all the expenses of the French conquest of Algiers. The Emperor was received with acclamations by the people of Kabylia assembled along his route, as well as by the French authorities, with the usual forms of salutation, especially on his arrival at Fort Napoleon. Returning to the city of Algiers, the subject of our third Illustration is a curious example of the ordinary social life of the inhabitants, being the interior of a dreamdaker's shop, kept by Mahoc, Kaouli, in the Rue des Abderames. The closely-veiled Moslem women seated at their sewing-table, and the young girls, more lightly and airily clad, in the foreground, are contrasted with the European ladies whom we see inspecting some of Mme. Baroli's wares at the table behind. It is unnecessary to remark that gentlemen do not accompany their wives in shopping at Algiers.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor Napoleon arrived at Bona on Tuesday. His Majesty gave audiences to the Governor-General and to the Bishop of Constantine, whom he invited to dinner. The Emperor when at Constantine invited five Arab chiefs to dine with him, and took, it is announced, the opportunity to tell them that he intended to see Arabia in general become fitted by labour and education to enter into any positions now filled in Algeria by French subjects. He also stated that he desired every individual in the army to be free to rise, if his services, intelligence, and opportunities allowed him, to fill the highest grades. During his journey to Batna and Biskara the Emperor accepted an Arab horse, offered to him by one of the chiefs, named Ben Salem. Also came to meet him. His Majesty has issued a proclamation to the French army in Algeria, dated from Batna, on the 26th ultimo. The Empress's reception has been everywhere enthusiastic. He is said to be in perfect health, and all the better for the great fatigue he has undergone. The insurrection of the Babores is at an end, and the tribes have made their submission.

The Prince Solms Ambassador to the Court of the Tuileries presented his credentials to the Empress on Sunday. His Excellency stated that he had received most gracious instructions from the Sultan to devote all his efforts to strengthen the relations of friendship happily so long existing between the two empires. The Empress kindly thanked the Ambassador and expressed the same sentiments of friendship towards the Porte.

M. Drouyn de Lhuys has issued instructions similar to those contained in Lord Russell's despatch with their relative to the protection of Confederate vessels of war.

A penny subscription has been opened in Paris for the purpose of presenting a testimonial of condolence to the widow of President Lincoln. Certain legal formalities not having been complied with, the police stopped the subscription list which was being circulated, but the subscription may be proceeded with.

In the sitting of the Corps Législatif, yesterday week, the debate on the Budget was resumed. M. Thiers criticised the financial system of the Government, and declared that the public debt had increased in France. He did not wish to put a stop to public works, but desired that the labour should be distributed over a longer period than that during which were indispensable. Mexico, he said, should be evacuated, to survive a disaster which would be fatal to a loan. M. Thiers finally characterised the financial condition of the country as deplorable. M. Vuitry replied successively to each of the arguments brought forward by M. Thiers, and showed the financial situation of France to be satisfactory. M. Rouher then addressed the House, and the general debate closed for the session.

In Wednesday's sitting of the Corps Législatif, several deputies spoke against the Budget. M. Jules Favre, M. Ollivier, M. Garnier Pagès, M. Rivoli, and it was finally rejected.

Amongst the Government bills presented to the House is one authorising the Government to receive an advance of 100,000,000f.—in other words, a loan. The object of this loan is to pay the expenses in Paris, in six yearly payments, to be expended in "great public works in Algeria."

The Shah of Persia has nominated a commissioner to the Universal Exhibition to be held in London in 1862.

The funeral of Marshal Magnan at Paris, on Thursday week, was attended by 20,000 men.

The sale of M. Thiers's picture-gallery is over, and the total amount realised for the gallery, consisting of 128 pictures, is 1,686,820f. (more than £67,000).

The French Jockey Club was brilliantly illuminated on Wednesday week in honour of the Prince of Wales's birthday, and much enthusiasm was manifested on the occasion by almost all classes of French society.

ITALY.

A public fête, in commemoration of the grant of the Constitution, took place at Florence on Sunday last. The King reviewed the National Guard. An immense crowd was present, and his Majesty was received with enthusiastic cheers. The Minister of Public Instruction at Florence of a complete omnibus network, the fare being only one penny throughout.

According to a return just issued by the Minister for War at Florence, the Italian army consists of 2,344, 31, 1,000 officers, 21,785 officers and 80,000 men, had, on Dec. 31, 1864, increased to 15,927 officers and 327,109 rank and file.

A Royal decree has been published authorising the expenditure of 16,562,000 lire for the construction of two iron-clad frigates, two screw corvettes, and three iron-clad gun-boats. This sum is to be distributed over the budgets of the Ministry of Marine for the years 1865, 1866, 1867, and 1868. The Chamber of Deputies has already approved of the above expenditure.

Garibaldi, who has again gone to Rome, to complete, it is presumed, his negotiations with the Pope as to the Italian bishopric.

PRUSSIA.

In the Chamber of Deputies, on Saturday week, Herr von Bismarck made a speech on the Schleswig-Holstein question, in which he said:—"Our demands have for their object solely to place Germany in a condition to maintain a state-clad peace honourably. This is the reason of the necessity of another attack upon the Düppel fortifications. These fortifications are the key of the whole position of Germany. In my opinion, would be a better title to the duchies than our own, I do not know who should contest our possession. The duchies of Schleswig-Holstein and Lauenburg is vested in the Sovereigns of Austria and Prussia. If the Duke of Augustenburg should be King, and they will neither constrain that body nor allow themselves to be constrained by it. If no understanding be arrived at, no one-sided proceeding will be able to make us quit the duchies. If you doubt our right, make your vote of the supplies dependent upon the condition that we withdraw from the duchies, we say, 'Keep your money.'"

In the sitting of yesterday week the bill for the increase of the French Navy was passed by the Chamber of Deputies, notwithstanding the assertion that the Government had entered into negotiations with Denmark for the cession of Düppel. The Minister of War, M. Leboeuf, declared that the Government had entered into negotiations with Denmark for the cession of Düppel, but that the Government had also refused to agree to our conditions, it is indifferent to us what constitution they give themselves." Upon a division being taken, the Government bill was rejected by a large majority.

AUSTRIA.

The Emperor arrived at Vienna on Sunday, and, it is said, met with an enthusiastic reception. The Cardinal Primate, at the head of the Hungarian nobility, delivered an address to his Majesty, who expressed his thanks for the confidence therein manifested towards him. Of this (says the telegram) the Emperor said he should be able to judge from the composition of the Diet. His Majesty stated, in conclusion, that, in order to realise a mutual wish on his part and that of the country, he would submit to the ceremony of coronation as King of Hungary.

RUSSIA.

The Russian squadron, which is conveying home the remains of the Grand Duke Nicholas, arrived, on the 28th ult., in Danish waters, within view of Nyberg. King Christian IX., accompanied by the Prince Royal, Prince John of Glücksburg, the Russian Minister, and a numerous suite, landed immediately on board the Alexandre Newsky. His Majesty was present at a religious service in the chapelle-ardente, in which the remains of the late Grand Duke rest, and laid on the coffin a wreath of flowers—an act remembrance as Princess Dagmar to her affianced husband. The Prince Royal has embarked on board the Schleswig on his way to St. Petersburg to be present at the funeral.

The Northern Post of St. Petersburg announces that the arrangements between the landholds and peasantry on the great estates—that is, those inhabited by more than fifty male souls—are now settled. The conditions made refer to 109,738 estates, peopled by 9,776,917 male inhabitants. Of these number 4,781,502 peasants have contractually their former obligations towards their masters, while 4,994,939 are entirely freed. Of the latter number 2,638,783 peasants become the proprietors of their lands—437,163 by their own means, and 2,191,620 with the aid of the Government. The sums advanced by the State amount to 211,140,505 roubles (about 30l. 6s. each), of which 198,151,971 were for lands rented, and 8,283,496 for lands held for labour dues. Only 4,704,038 peasants are 139,005 peasants in the west who have purchased their houses.

TURKEY.

Nessim Pacha has been dismissed from the Ministry of Marine, and is succeeded by Halil Pacha, the Grand Master of Artillery, who retains the latter post.

Sir Henry Bulwer had an audience of the Sultan on his return from Egypt. His reception was most cordial.

The Porte is vigorously prosecuting measures against the traffic in Circassian slaves.

AMERICA.

The grand jury of the district of Columbia have found true bills of indictment against Jefferson Davis and Beverdge Cooper Thomas. They are indicted separately, the overt act being the raid, in July last, within the district, of Maryland, and abducting or having abducted in arms and Davis constructively.

The following is the Philadelphia Inquirer. Davis is manacled on both ankles, the connecting chain being 18in. long. He resisted manacling, and it became necessary to throw him down and hold him until the irons were clinched. The Herald denies this statement, and says that Davis is now allowed to walk about comprising two rooms. He is not in with him constantly, but he is not manacled, nor are his movements within the rooms restricted.

The story of Mr. Davis's attempt to escape in his wife's clothing is now discredited. Of the many accounts furnished no two are alike. The latest version is that of a correspondent of the Washington, who states that Colonel Pritchard has presented to the War Department the identical garments thrown off by Davis, as now said to consist of a waterproof cloak, used by Mr. Davis as a skirt, and a shawl, which he used as a hood. A correspondent of the petitioned that he had been purposely circulated by certain officials in order to heap ridicule upon the Confederate President. Garments representing Mr. Davis attire in a hoop-skirt, shawl, and bonnet, are sold all over the country. Also others representing him in the similar costume, brought to bay, bowieknife in hand. Few of the paragraphs bearing these features are genuine.

Governor Letcher, of Virginia, James A. Seddon, and Judge Campbell have been arrested. Mr. Alexander H. Stephens, ex-Vice-President of Vegas have been sent to Fort Delaware, and Wheeler and his Staff to Fort Warren. C. C. Clay has been released; he denies all privity in Lincoln's assassination.

It is positively reported that General Lee is to be arrested and indicted for treason.

The civil-military trials at Washington the evidence for the prosecution has been completed and the defence opened. The prisoners have set up an alibi. Their witnesses have been examined, and their testimony has been withheld. Witnesses in open court have testified that Jacob Thompson had heavy money transactions with the Ontario Bank at Montreal. The cipher message intercepted between Canada and Richmond make no allusion to the assassination of Mr. Lincoln. The cipher key of Secretary Davis was in Secretary Benjamin's office. A letter addressed to Davis, signed Alston, has been produced, in which he offers his services to the chief of some of his destitute enemies. The letter is indorsed:—"Referred, Secretary of the Treasury. By order of the Secretary of War, Richmond, Nov. 1864, for attention, by order, J. A. Campbell, A.S.W."

From Texas the last of the Confederate forces of any importance, General Hood and his staff are said to have got across the Mississippi. The report has it that Mr. Davis personally wished to remain with Hood and some of the generals under his command refused to go with him. The latest accounts from New York, to the evening of the 27th ult., state that communications with the Southern South, accompanied by Heron and Commander Foster, arrived at Baton Rouge on the 23rd ult., and it is reported that Kirby Smith has come to terms under terms of Smith's whole army.

President Johnson had issued a proclamation opening all the ports, except those of Texas, to foreign trade, and removing all trade restrictions east of the Mississippi.

The Tribune says that the Attorney-General has decided that the amnesty proclamation was a measure to secure the suppression of the rebellion. The rebellion ended, the amnesty is void. It does not restore citizenship to those to whom disabilities decree are in full force, and the exercise of executive clemency cannot extend to the future.

President Johnson is reported to have said that he will leave the question of granting the suffrage to the negroes to the decision of the loyal people of the individual States.

Five tons of archives of the Confederate Government had been captured in North Carolina.

The New York Herald has proposed a scheme to liquidate the national debt by the voluntary subscription of 200 persons at 10,000 dols. each. Upwards of a million dollars have been subscribed in two days in Cincinnati and other localities.

Grant and Sherman's armies, numbering 150,000 men, marched, on the 23rd and 24th ult., through the Capital at Washington, Pennsylvania avenue, past the White House, where Grant reviewed the troops in presence of Mr. Johnson and the Cabinet. An immense crowd witnessed the last of processions. Sherman was loudly cheered.

In the number of the Augusta Sentinel of May 2 was the last printed relic of slavery likely to be seen in that part of the South. It was the advertisement of "Thirty Negro Hay-wood, sanctioned," who proposed to sell at the "Lower market, on May 2, the coloured man here, a bachelor, and the boy, Sandy, and the coloured boy called Isaac." Upon reached the city next day and T. Savage Haynes was the auctioneer.

The Federal Government has given the best proof of its determination to maintain a strictly neutral line of policy towards Mexico by removing a large number of American emigrants which had sailed from an American port.

The Confederate ram Stonewall has been surrendered unconditionally to the Cuban authorities, by whom it will probably be handed over to the representatives of the United States.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

Dr. Blackburn has been committed for trial at the Toronto Assizes on the charge of conspiring to burn Montreal.

After a protracted dispute, the Canadian Government has come to a satisfactory agreement with the Grand Trunk Railway Company.

Some of the leading commercial men of Montreal are to attend the forthcoming conventions at Detroit and Chicago, to consult about the basis upon which the Reciprocity Treaty may be renewed. The Halifax Chamber of Commerce is also to be represented at the conventions.

The Times branch of the proposed Nova Scotia Railway is estimated to cost £500,000, thereby adding £20,000 per annum to the expenditure of the province. The line to connect the main line at Truro with the New Brunswick railways at Moncton will cost about £400,000, an increase of £24,000 to the annual expenditure. The Annapolis branch, to connect the Windsor line with the deep water of the Bay of Fundy, will add some £20,000 per annum additional.

INDIA.

By the arrival of the Bombay mail we have received advices from that presidency to the 15th of May.

Cholera has prevailed in various parts of the country, and in some districts it has proved very fatal.

Two severe shocks of an earthquake have been felt at Simla.

In order to develop the resources of the central provinces, the Supreme Government has made large grants for the construction of roads therein, so as to connect them with the principal ports.

Nagpore has been visited by an awful thunderstorm and considerable damage done. During a thunderstorm at Mohtoor, in Central India, General Shubrick, Major Ashburner, Major O'Connell, and some other officers were struck by lightning and seriously injured.

The Khyrpore Camel Corps is to be increased by 200 camels, which have been taken, it is not expected that any more serious difficulties will arise.

The Times of India gives some particulars in reference to the outbreak of cholera in the detachment of artillery leaving Mhow, which has been the subject of serious attention in the House of Commons. The paper mentioned says:—

It appears that the number of cholera among the route to Nagpoor was represented to the authorities at head-quarters by the telegraph. This reports the sickness from the Mhow line. The telegraph, however, only includes cases and, so far as we can learn, no preparations had been made to meet it. Assistance and medicines were called for after the arrival of the troops at Nagpoor in order to return through the infected districts is reported as most unwise, and the Government of India has ordered that the troops are to be encamped outside of the unhealthy and feeble behaviour of the troops afforded no comfort of the party. It is said his conduct and energetic work were everywhere remarked, and that great benefit was derived from his personal advice and continual association with the men. At one time it was hardly expected to have saved the detachment at all. Seven were buried in one day, and on the next day the very men was to go next. Amid the worst the Sergeant-Major worked vigorously, and was unhappy enough, on each occasion, to be called upon to do so every victim. The total number of deaths for which "somebody" is responsible is twenty-one men, one sergeant, and four children, out of some 120 souls.

CHINA AND JAPAN

We have news from Shanghai, by overland telegraph from Galle, to the 7th ult. We are indebted to the courtesy of Reuter's Agency for the intelligence in the presidency of the Foreign Board.

Advices from Japan state that Prince Satsuma is endeavouring to open a port in the Strait of Simonoseki, but the Tycoon withholds his consent. The American Ministers at Pekin and in Japan are returning home.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The ancient ceremony of singing upon the top of Durham Cathedral was observed on Whit-Sunday, being the anniversary of the Restoration.

Sermons will be preached at the Temple Church, to-morrow, the 11th inst., by the Dean of Westminster; on the 25th, by the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol; and on July 2, by the Bishop of Peterborough.

On Sunday afternoon the Archbishop of York preached in the nave of Bermondsey Abbey, in aid of the funds of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts.

Three good works were completed, on the 17th ult., at Tenbury, Worcestershire. The chancel was restored, after extensive repairs, an addition to the churchyard was consecrated, and new national schools were dedicated.

The Archbishop of York is to preside at the proposed public meeting of the new Diocesan Exploration Fund, on the 20th inst. Mr. Abel Smith, M.P., have accepted the office of treasurers, and Mr. Grove that of secretary.

The chapel of St. Mary Magdalen, Chatham Mundeville, in the parish of Bishop Middleham, near Darlington, was opened on the day of the festival of the Ascension. It is entirely through the energy and foresight of the Rector, the Rev. Thomas H. Greene, that this edifice is completed.

The Very Rev. Dr. Milman preached at St. Paul's Cathedral on Sunday morning. The following are the appointments announced by the Bishop of London to preach in St. Paul's on Sunday mornings in the present month:—June 7, Rev. Henry Melvill, Canon of Westminster and chaplain to the Queen; 11, Canon Jones; June 18, Rev. John Vidgen Povah, Rector of St. Anne and St. Agnes; June 25, Rev. Thomas Dale, Canon of Canterbury and Bishopsgate.

On Whit Sunday 294 children and young persons were baptised in Christ Church, Commercial-road, East, by the Incumbent, the Rev. G. H. Wilkinson, assisted by the Revs. A. Anderson and J. Gilmore. 128 were boys and 166 girls. In a house-to-house visitation of the district, which extends from the London Docks to Limehouse, and contains an old church-rate, the total population was 19,145.

On Tuesday night the Rev. W. M. Whittemore, donative Rector of the parish of St. James's Within, Aldgate, delivered, in accordance with a custom which has been annually observed in that parish for many years, "a town sermon" to the young. The quaint-looking old church was decorated with flowers as well as the pulpit and reading-desk, and the body of the congregation (which included the charity children belonging to St James' and St. Ethelburga's), and the number being estimated at about 1,000, were upon these occasions always floral, and that selected by the rev. gentleman on Tuesday was appropriate to the time, the Song of Solomon, ii. 11, 12, being follow:—"The flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land." The text for the choir service was the second.

On Tuesday the foundation-stone of a Church of England Female Penitentiary was laid at Stone, near Dartford, Kent, by the Archbishop of Canterbury, in the presence of the Bishop of Rochester and a large number of the clergy and the principal residents of the county. The Rev. Sydney Turner, Rector of Stone, has for some time had these charitable premises in contemplation, and has been limited to no expense in the purchase of four lunatics; but the proposed building, the estimated cost of which is about £5000, will absorb all the smaller sums which have been contributed or promised. Towards the expenditure subscriptions amounting to £2400 have been received or promised, and it is proposed to have the building ready for occupation by its usual yearly instalments. After the ceremony, a numerous company of ladies and gentlemen, invited under the auspices of Viscount Sydney, the Lord Lieutenant of the county, partook of a luncheon at the Bull Hotel, Dartford, over the chair of the latter nobleman, at which the clergy of the residents of Kent were urged by the Bishop of Rochester, Archdeacon Grant, and other speakers to seek a liberal support.

The village of Byfleet was the scene of great festivity, on Thursday week, on the occasion of the reopening of the parish church by the Bishop of Winchester. The church is of the date of Edward II. (who married Isabella de Byfleet), and has been restored at considerable expense by Mr. Bonnor. Towards the expenditure subscriptions amounting to £2400 have been received or promised, and it is proposed to have the building ready for occupation by its usual yearly instalments. After the ceremony, a numerous company of ladies and gentlemen, invited under the auspices of Viscount Sydney, the Lord Lieutenant of the county, partook of a luncheon at the Bull Hotel, Dartford, over the chair of the latter nobleman, at which the clergy of the residents of Kent were urged by the Bishop of Rochester, Archdeacon Grant, and other speakers to seek a liberal support.

The Bishop of Oxford has the name of great festivity, on Thursday week, on the occasion of the reopening of the parish church by the Bishop of Winchester. The church is of the date of Edward II. (who married Isabella de Byfleet), and has been restored at considerable expense by Mr. Bonnor. A company of Surrey Although a large portion of the original building has been preserved, the whole has been taken down and the present structure, of the Early English style, and is seated for about 500. The cost of the service was £1,000, of which £800 was raised. The collection for the number of persons present was £66, some contributions having been in a large marquee on the lawn opposite West Hill, the gentry and visitors occupying a large luncheon table, while two long tables and a side table were provided for the poor, who were all admitted at the same time. Amongst the guests were the Countess of Glengall, Viscountess Sydney, and Lord Sydney Buxton, M.P. Amongst the various contributions of church ornaments may be mentioned a handsome oak window, representing the Ascension, with a chancel window, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Murray; and three painted windows, presented by sisters of the parish.

The following preferments and appointments have recently been made:—The Archdeaconry of Lincoln, vice Hill, to Archdeacon Cases in Lichfield Cathedral; Rev. T. Barnes to be Rector of Loxton; Rev. J. Jones to be Rector of Bishopsbourne and Nonington; Rev. C. H. Child to be Rector of Rotherfield, Sussex; Rev. W. F. Crocker to be Rector of Bishop's Hull, Somerset; Rev. J. Hall, M.A., Vicar of Bolton, to be Canon of Carlisle, vice Bowstead, deceased; Rev. A. Fitzroy, Rural Dean of St. James, Clapham, Rev. G. O. Shakerville to be Curate of St. Mary Abbots, Kensington; Rev. R. F. Hemingway to be Curate of Bolton-le-Moors; Rev. St. Maur Meighall to be Curate of Forncett; Rev. G. Willy to be Curate of Cricket Malherbie and Combe-Raleigh.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—It is understood that the directors of the Great Western Railway Company intend to transfer their factories to Oxford, and thereby add a large manufacturing city to the list of those. They do this at the special request of the Prince of Wales, who sent them city land for the purpose. Mr. Goldwin Smith, in a letter to the Daily News, suggests that the same course be taken by the Queen to the University. A memorial, numerously signed by Heads of Houses, professors, fellows, and tutors, was on Monday presented to the Vice-Chancellor, praying him to induce, if possible, the directors of the Great Western Railway Company to suspend final arrangements for the transfer of their factories to Oxford until the interests of the University, as well as those of the city, should be fully considered. The establishment of a large artisan population is looked upon with much apprehension as likely to increase the difficulty of maintaining discipline, while it is felt that the presence of a large manufacturing industry may permanently disfigure the city.—The Rev. Arthur West Haddan, B.D., Rector of Burton-on-the-Heath, formerly Fellow and Tutor of Trinity, has been chosen Bampton Lecturer for 1866 by the Heads of Colleges. Mr. Haddan graduated in 1847, gaining a first class in classics and a second in mathematics. He gained the Chancellor's Classical Scholarship in 1849, and was Classical Examiner from 1844 to 1850. The subject he has chosen for his lectures is "Creeds."—The Oxford University boat race were brought to a conclusion on Thursday week, the prize being, hence, the first place on the river, falling to Brasenose, who wrested the laurel from Trinity after several severe struggles.——The Oxford Middle Class Exeter the first time they came together.——The Oxford Middle Class Examination, which commenced on Monday, in the Sheldonian Theatre. The Rev. L. Gilbertson, senior fellow of Jesus College, the superintending examiner, opened the proceedings, and in an appropriate speech explained the nature of the examination, which is conducted by the Public Schools. Simultaneously with the opening at Oxford, the examinations began at the other centres—Exeter, two of which, New College and Winchester, have been this year added to the list. The proceedings will, it is expected, not until October next.——The Rev. Dr. Jeune, Master of Pembroke, will not be made known until August or September next. It is exceedingly unfortunate that the Master of Pembroke should have been one of the aggregate of candidates shown an excess of money over and next year's expenses of the college, and the Master of Pembroke under examination at each place. The following are the numbers:—Oxford, 91; Bath, 21; Bedford, 21; Birmingham, 29 and 8; Brighton, 21 and 16; Exeter, 57 and 16; Hereford, 13; Leeds, 47; Liverpool, 40 and 11; Lincoln, 12 and 7; Liverpool, 103 and 35; Manchester, 168 and 49; Northampton, 12 and 10; Nottingham, 21 and 6; Oxford, 91 and 11; Shrewsbury, 21 and 6; West Bromwich, 18 and 12; and Windermere, 6 and 10. Total: 1,000, 197.

At Cambridge, in Congregation on Saturday last, an important Grace passed the Senate, the object of which is to remove the present limit of examination for those who are not candidates for honours. The following is a copy of the Grace:—"That in the Michaelmas Term examinations of 1865, 1866, and 1867, it be permitted for the "Little-go" in December, 1865, and March, 1866, and in the Michaelmas Term examination of 1867, a paper of questions in Euclid, Algebra, and Trigonometry, to be answered by any candidate for honours, by way, at the time of the "Little-go," instead of the usual paper of questions in Classics, Mathematics, the minor parts of algebra, trigonometry, and mechanics; and on having passed in four papers, that he may pass up to the Senate. A print will be affixed to the Bulletin Board, stating that from all further examinations will be present himself for his degree in the honour class he may select."——Lord Palmerston, M.P., has not yet present himself for honours unless he have passed in those three additional subjects; but he may present himself for examination in the ordinary subjects subsequent to the "Little-go." If the student also sit at an ordinary degree he will, after passing in the three additional subjects, be in the same position as the rest of the students of the University. Various provisions are made to meet the case of students who may wish to change their course from honours to ordinary degree.——At the same Congregation a Grace passed the Senate, on the recommendation of the Council of the Senate, to the effect that the examination of students not members of the University, to the effect that the Syndicate to authorised, by the Council of the Senate, to admit to examination persons whose age exceeds the present prescribed limit of eighteen years.

The Vice-Chancellor of Queen's College, Belfast, has presented to Lord Wodehouse his report for 1864. It shows that during the year 244 candidates for degrees and honours presented themselves for the examinations of the University, and who were examined by the commissions held in June at London, Belfast, and Cork.

Mr. Baylee Lewis has been appointed Professor of Architecture in University College London, vice Mr. Donaldson, resigned. The appointment is made by Dr. Donaldson, who, retiring by reason of his age, will assume the title of Emeritus Professor.

The "Fourth of June," as it fell this year on a Sunday, was celebrated on Monday with the customary ceremonies at Eton. The boats on the River Hall, concluding with a display of fireworks. The day was fine, and a large number of visitors, including many members of the Royal family, were present. Lord Elgin, Earl Spencer, Lord Ashburton, Lord Lyttelton, Lord John Manners, the Earl of Feversham, the Duke of Richmond and Marlborough, &c.——Mr. C. Bell, of Trinity College, Cambridge, has been appointed an Assistant Lower Master at Eton.

Cambridge University has been rather unsuccessful in its cricket-matches this year, gained a decided advantage last week, although the game is not quite over. The Gentlemen of Kent, on Thursday week, went in, while the boys, with the loss of only four bats, marked 276 runs—Bowes making 104, Hall 64, and Lyttelton 44 (not out).

Accession Day was observed as usual at Epsom College, and the beauty of the weather rendered the proceedings unusually interesting and successful. The college hymn, "Christe Rex Altissime," was duly chanted from the tower of quadrangle, and the boys assembled in their places in the chapel at eleven and half-past five, the Head Master preaching at the morning service. The rest of the day was spent by the boys in the usual manner—cricket, racquets, and gymnastics; followed in the evening by a concert, which was attended by numerous visitors, including the Lord Lieutenant of Surrey and parties, in addition to the thirty-two invited by Mrs. Thornton (the wife of the Head Master). A large number of visitors was present at the sports and exercises.

The governors of Dulwich College have determined to offer two exhibitions, tenable for two years, for competition at the approaching annual examination of the Upper School.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Last week Mrs. Mary Barton died, near Tralee, at the mature age of 109.

An industrial exhibition is about to be established at Portsmouth.

A large model of Stonehenge is to be presented to the Bridport Museum.

Fourteen Dorchester fishermen landed on that coast 10,000 mackerel on Wednesday week.

The foundation-stone of new waterworks, baths, and assembly-rooms was laid last week at West Worthing, in Sussex.

The city of Hereford is to be lighted with gas while being towed out of the harbour of Sunderland on Thursday week.

The Great Northern Railway Company opened on Thursday week. There were great rejoicings on the occasion.

An iron pleasure-yacht, for the Viceroy of Egypt, was launched on Saturday last from the yard of Messrs. Ditchburn and Mare.

Mr. Joseph Middleton, of Leeds, barrister-at-law, has been appointed Deputy-Lieutenant for the West Riding. He is also the honorary Recorder of Manchester.

The Queen has approved of M. Henri Bosselier as Consul at Birmingham, and of M. Jean Felix Jules Blanchet as Consul at Leeds, for the Republic of Ecuador.

The ratepayers of Naas have decided by a majority of thirty-four not to adopt the clause of the Towns' Improvement Act empowering them to light the town with gas.

The Rev. W. M. Hetherington, D.D., LL.D., Professor of Church History in the Free Church College, Edinburgh, died last week, after a lengthened illness.

Thomas Lee, a jockey, aged sixteen, died suddenly at Lenborne, a few days ago, from the effects of heat and over-exertion while riding his winning horse at Newbury races.

The charges for admission to the Dublin Exhibition have been reduced to one shilling on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays and half-a-crown on Thursdays and Saturdays.

A young man named Lawson, son of a working silversmith of Sheffield, has been left a fortune of £20,000 by the death of a relative, a merchant, horse, and harness, value 600 guineas.

The Rev. Edward Bell, one of the members of the Dublin Corporation, on Wednesday week, Alderman James W. Mackay was elected Lord Mayor for the ensuing year.

Prince Arthur will represent her Majesty at the inauguration of the Victoria Bridge over the river Severn at Quebec. It is believed that the inauguration will take place about the 15th of July.

The Earl of Enniskillen has issued an address, as Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ireland, advising most strongly all its members not to take part in the processions during the July anniversary.

The Great Eastern Railway Company's extension from Shefford to Haverhill was opened for traffic on Thursday week. The line will greatly facilitate communication between Cambridgeshire and North Essex, via the Colne Valley line.

Mr. Robert Wardell forwards to the Times office stems of wheat in the ear, gathered at Margate on Monday. He says, "The date is exactly a month from the time when I cut an ear from the same field that I have had in honour of sending to you."

The Sheffield Independent states that the amount of damage done by the bursting of the Bradfield reservoir is £127,000. Of this sum £14,252 is for loss of life and bodily injury, and the remainder, £370,748, is for injury to business and property.

A colliery accident took place on Monday, near Wigan, by which two men were killed and five severely wounded. The men were engaged in sinking a shaft when a portion of the brickwork gave way, and they were all buried in the ruins.

The Rev. E. Kell exhibited at a meeting of the Literary and Photographical Society, held at the Hartley Institution, Southampton, a photograph of the curious specimens of Bonum workmanship, dug up from the site of the old Roman station of Vindonis, near Ashley.

Mr. Smith Child, the High Sheriff of Staffordshire, has placed £100 in Messrs. Salt's bank, Stafford, for the purpose of forming a fund for the establishment of a reformatory, or industrial school, on the estate of Aqueduct, vesting, at the discretion of trustees, for the care of the juvenile offenders in the county.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted, on Monday, by the council of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce:—"That the council record their profound sense of the loss sustained by the enduring and memorable contributions of Mr. Cobden to the literature of the science of Political Economy, and of the benefits he has conferred upon it."

A forged will, by which Mr. Thomas Pigott has just been attempted to be perpetrated on the Bank of Ireland. Cheques, purporting to have been drawn by Sir Benjamin Guinness, have been forwarded from London, and when being so clandestine, it was thought a prudent precaution to communicate by telegraph with the Right Hon. Chief Baron. It was then found that the signature was a forgery.

A large excursion-train ran off the line near Rednal, on the Shrewsbury and Chester Railway, on Wednesday afternoon, owing, it is thought, to the train having passed over a displaced rail. The sixteen carriages were killed, and about fifty persons were seriously injured.——On Tuesday night a shocking accident occurred on the Great Western Railway. Four persons were severely injured.

The National Conference of Miners, held at Bloomfield, Staffordshire, was brought to a close on Thursday week, after a long discussion on strikes, which ended in the unanimous vote which gives to the men on strike. The substance of the debate and the form of the resolution adopted are thus reported:—"Mr. Burnett argued that as the object of strikes were most injurious to all parties," but that the association could not always refuse to support them.

The Rev. Dr. Boyd, who is known in literary circles as A.K.H.B., has been presented to the rectory and parish of St. Andrews, in the county of Fife. Dr. Boyd is a native of Auchinleck, in Ayrshire, and was educated at the University of Edinburgh, where he took his degree when twenty-six years of age, and has been incumbent successively of the parishes of Newburgh and Arbroath, Forfarshire, and Trinity Gallowgate, in Edinburgh. He is the author of the well-known work, "Recreations of a Country Parson," and other works.

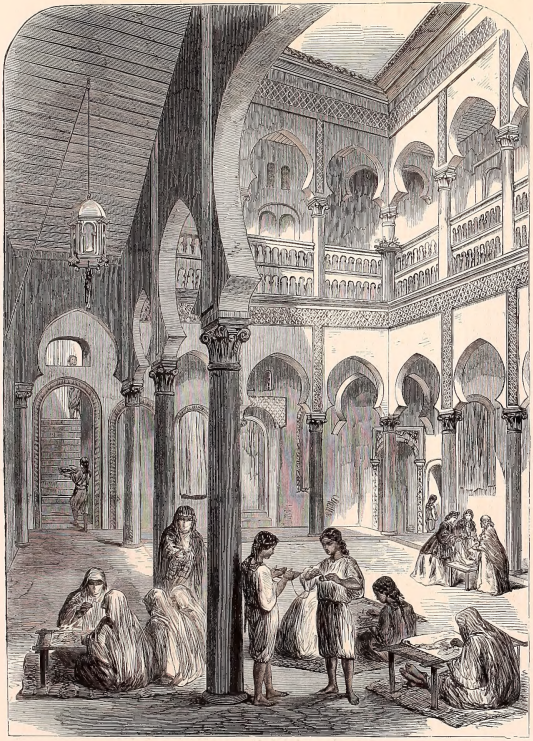
The Judges have chosen the following summer circuits:—Lord Chief Justice, the Lord Chief Justice of England; Mr. Justice Willes, Mr. Justice Keating; Mr. Justice Blackburn and Mr. Justice Mellor; Baron Martin, Baron Channell and Mr. Justice Byles; Baron Bramwell and Mr. Justice Montague Smith. Mr. Baron Martin remains in town to attend chambers.

The usual monthly meeting of the Central Relief Fund Committee of the Jews' Hospital, at Manchester, took the usual returns were made up, by which it appears that the number of persons receiving relief from the committee during the month of May was 1,168 than at any time since the cotton famine commenced. The total amount distributed was £1,200, and has since been so high as £6,922. The number of persons relieved by 9000 than it was in May, 1864. Three additional committees were established.

The annual meeting of the Leeds Medical Association was held on Monday, in the Philosophical Hall, the College of Surgeons, Brotherton's green, Dublin. Dr. Mackay occupied the chair. The chairman of the opening speech, referred to the great changes which had taken place in the profession because of the increased facilities which had been given to persons to obtain a diploma and the necessity of further agitation on the subject. Mr. Bowman, Mayor of Leeds, Mr. Hardy, Mr. Nicholson, Mr. Teale, and several other gentlemen addressed the meeting, in the course of which they drew attention to the resolutions recently passed by the College of Surgeons, resolutions in support of the views of the members of the profession were put into current.

A public park was opened at Bingley, Yorkshire, on Tuesday, amid great rejoicings and festivities. The site of the park is at Brown-hill, on the left side of the Aire, and consists of eighteen acres of ornamental ground. The park was presented to the town by the churchwardens and overseers of Bingley, for the benefit of the public, by the Inclosure Commissioners, and has remaining £2,000 of the money collected for the purchase. The first act of the new park, preparatory to commencing the work of laying out, was the planting of a tree, on the 16th of May, the 16th of that, the wedding day of the Prince of Wales, and the park bears the name of his Royal Highness, being designated the Prince of Wales Park.

During the past month thirty-six emigrant vessels left Liverpool, carrying a total of 9,859 persons. During the corresponding time of the steerage passengers 6859 were English, 936 Scotch, 8472 Irish, and 3391 foreigners. The number of emigrants who sailed from Liverpool in last as follows:—In May, 1864, the number of emigrants who sailed from Liverpool under the provisions of the Act of 1855; in May, 1865, 17,826—being a decrease of 76; the number not under the Act in May, 1864, was 9041; in May, 1865, 6239, during a decrease of 2802. In May, 1864, there were 1,000 steerage passengers, and in May, 1865, 1,000 steerage passengers. Four ships, 183 cabin passengers and 1,000 steerage—21 English, 162 Irish—to Queensland. Seven ships, 1,000 to Canada; two ships, 54 cabin passengers, 611 steerage—367 English, 66 Scotch, 246 Irish, and 13 foreigners—to New York. One ship, 14 cabin passengers, 296 steerage—321 English, 7 Scotch, 161 Irish—to Queensland. One ship, having on board 340 Welsh emigrants, sailed from Cardiff for Patagonia, where it is intended to form a Welsh settlement.



A procession of Sunday-school children in connection with the Church of England took place at Manchester, as usual, on Whit Monday. There were about 20,000 children, and apparently over 100,000 persons. It was the most numerous procession of the kind that has taken place, and occupied rather more than an hour and a half in passing a given point. It was, as usual, preceded by the clergymen and churchwardens of the church to which the children belonged, with their banners, and most of the schools had a band of music at their head. The weather was fine, and the number of people attracted to witness the procession was unusually large. Many of the children were generally well and neatly dressed, the girls wearing white frocks and blue sashes. The number of children who were not actually brought into Manchester and the number taken out by railway-trains was considerable.

Mr. Benjamin Riley, a manufacturer, of Dasborough, in Yorkshire, has been fined £50 and costs for causing a young woman named Mary Ann Pulse, employed in his factory. But having before his eyes the fear of the Almighty, the said Benjamin Riley did unlawfully and maliciously, intending a justification of his conduct to a local newspaper, write a letter, which was published in the Leeds Mercury, in which he asserted that he is anxious to do every thing in his power to which he could be fairly blamed, and all rights to ask his reasons for so flagrant a breach of the conventionalities. Accordingly they state informed that Mary Ann Pulse was a married woman, and that in the room time Mr. Riley will have his "undoubted," as he calls her, "in the house." He also says that he has no disparity and equality of rights, "of course, to unite myself to this young woman now would be very foolish indeed, I having been for a considerable time the unfortunate victim of an uncultured flurry girl." Mr. Riley has therefore advertised in the Leeds Mercury that he has no intention of marrying the above-named girl or to any other person, for "a lady, a member of a Christian Church, he believes he could not find." Mr. Riley, who is a widower, has a family of grown-up sons and daughters. Mr. Justice Lush, before whom the case came, said, he had already responded to this appeal, and no doubt others will share it. But what is to a great body of Christ's people is the duty of Mr. Riley, if nothing prevents, "have a very voluminous correspondence from myself." The result reported, by that by the sending the young lady all the world will informed in ordinary matters, have learned to play fairly on the harmonium, to speak French language with ease, to write it fairly, and to speak it with tolerable fluency.

Sir Henry Fulwer has sold to the Viceroy of Egypt a small rocky islet owned by him in the Sea of Marmora for £16,000.

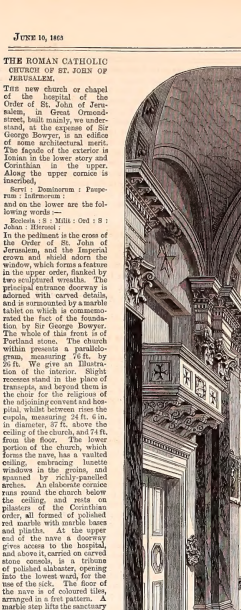
The celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of the Servian insurrection of 1815 was begun on Saturday night by the Illumination of Belgrade. On Sunday a grand religious service was performed, and afterwards Prince Michael made a speech, reviewed the troops, and distributed decorations.

A storm from the N.N.W. raged in the Baltic and other parts of the North throughout Wednesday and Thursday last week. A long list of ships have been reported as having been driven near Sarve, Frederickshave, Hirsten, and other places. The brig Queen, Captain Wurtz, and Sadan, is reported to have been wrecked near Gothenburg, and the whole of her crew to have perished. The Carrs, also coal laden, another British vessel, was lost near the same place. A number of small coasters have been cast upon the coast, and the fate of the crews is uncertain. The harvest at some of the ports has been fearful.

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH TO ALGERIA: A DRESSMAKER'S SHOP AT ALGIERS.

FORT NAPOLEON KABYLIA, VISITED BY THE EMPEROR.—SEE PAGE 542.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH OF ST. JOHN OF JERUSALEM.



THE new church or chapel of the hospital of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, in Great Ormond-street, built mainly, we understand, at the expense of Sir George Bowyer, is an edifice of some architectural merit. The façade of the exterior is Ionian in the lower story and Corinthian in the upper. Along the upper cornice is inscribed,

Servi : Dominorum : Pauperum : Infirmorum :

and on the lower are the following words :—

Ecclesia : S : Mihi : Ord : S : Johan : Hierosol :

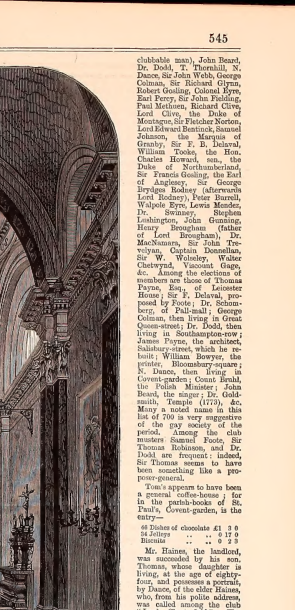
In the pediment in the cross of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, and the Imperial crown and shield adorn the window, which forms a feature in the upper order, flanked by two sculptured wreaths. The principal entrance doorway is adorned with carved details, and is surmounted by a marble tablet on which is commemorated the fact of the foundation by Sir George Bowyer. The whole of this front is of Portland stone. The church within presents a parallelogram, measuring 76 ft. by 26 ft. We give an illustration of the interior. Slight recesses stand in the place of transepts, and beyond them is the choir for the religious of the adjoining convent and hospital, whilst between rises the cupola, measuring 24 ft. 6 in. in diameter, 57 ft. above the ceiling of the church, and 74 ft. from the floor. The lower portion of the church, which forms the nave, has a vaulted ceiling, embracing lunette windows in the groins, and spanned by richly-panelled arches. An elaborate cornice runs round the church below the ceiling, and rests on pilasters of the Corinthian order, all formed of polished red marble with marble bases and plinths. At the upper end of the nave a doorway gives access to the hospital, and above it, resting on carved stone consoles, is a tribune of polished alabaster, opening into the lowest ward, for the use of the sick. The floor of the nave is of coloured tiles, arranged in a fret pattern. A marble step lifts the sanctuary floor above the nave level, and this upper floor is entirely composed of white marble. The high altar stands immediately beneath the centre of the dome, and is surmounted by a baldachino of marbles of various colours, with a panelled ceiling of wood. Two side altars, both ancient, stand on each side, in the small transeptal recesses of which we spoke above. The sanctuary, behind the high altar, is fitted up on three sides with stalls, in mahogany and pitch pine, with carved elbows, and inlaid crosses of the Order of St. John, all polished. Against the innermost wall of the church is a large tribune, carried on stone brackets, with a gilt lattice front, for the organ. This opens into the convent staircase, immediately adjoining. The whole of the interior is decorated with gilding and colour—the latter, however, very sparingly used at present. Mr. G. Goblie is the architect of the building.

TOM'S COFFEEHOUSE, GREAT RUSSELL-STREET, COVENT-GARDEN.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHAPEL OF ST. JOHN OF JERUSALEM, GREAT ORMOND-STREET.

AN OLD COFFEE-HOUSE IN COVENT-GARDEN.

COVENT-GARDEN is fast losing its houses "studded with anecdote and history;" and the mutations among what Mr. Thackeray affectionately called its "rich cluster of brown taverns" are sundry and manifest. Its coffee-houses proper have almost disappeared, even in name. Yet, in the last century, in one short street of Covent-garden—Russell-street—flourished three of the most celebrated coffee-houses in the metropolis: Will's, Button's, and Tom's. The reader need not be reminded of Will's, with Dryden, the Tatler and Spectator, and its wits' room on the first floor; or Button's, with its lion's head letter-box; and the young poets in the back room. Tom's, No. 17, on the north side of Russell-street, and of somewhat later date, has just been taken down. The premises remained with little alteration, long after they ceased to be a coffee-house. It was named after its original proprietor, Thomas West, who Nov. 26, 1722, hanged himself, in a delirium, from the second-floor window into the street, and died immediately ("Historical Register" for 1722). The upper portion of the premises was the coffee-house, under which lived T. Lewis, the bookseller, the original publisher, in 1711, of Pope's "Essay on Criticism." The usual frequenters up stairs may be judged of by the following passage in Defoe's "Journey through England," first edit., 1724:—"After the play, the best company generally go to Tom's and Will's coffee-houses, near adjoining, where there is playing at piquet and the best conversation till midnight. Here you will see blue and green ribbons, with stars, sitting familiarly and talking with the same freedom as if they had left their quality and degrees of distance at home; and a stranger tastes with pleasure the universal liberty of speech of the English nation. And in all the coffee-houses have not only the finest prints, but several English ones, with the foreign occurrences, besides papers of morality and party disputes." Such were the aristocratic delights of a memorable coffee-house of the reign of Queen Anne. Of this period is a recollection of Mr. Grignion, who, having seen the "balcony of Tom's crowded with noblemen in their stars and garters, drinking their tea and coffee exposed to the people." We find an entry in Walpole's "Letters," 1745—"A gentleman, I don't know who, the other night, at Tom's coffee-house, said, on Lord Baltimore refusing to come into the Admiralty because Lord Vere Beauclerc had the precedence, 'it put him in mind of Finkerman's petition in the Spectator, where he complains that formerly he used to sit second chair in "Diocletian," but now he was reduced to dance fifth flower-pot.'"



In 1764 there appears to have been formed here, by a guinea subscription, a club of nearly 700 members—the nobility, foreign Ministers, gentry, and men of genius of the age; the large front room on the first floor being the card-room. The club flourished, so that in 1768, "having considerably enlarged itself of late," Thomas Haines, the then proprietor, took in the front room of the next house westward as a coffee-room." The front room of No. 17 was then appropriated exclusively as a card-room for the subscription club, each member paying one guinea annually; the adjoining apartment being used as a conversation-room. The subscription-books are before us, and here we find in the long list the names of Sir Thomas Robinson, Bart., Samuel Foote, A. Murphy, D. Garrick (though Garrick was not a clubbable man), John Beard, Dr. Dodd, T. Thornhill, N. Dance, Sir John Webb, George Colman, Sir Richard Glynn, Robert Gosling, Colonel Eyre, Earl Percy, Sir John Fielding, Paul Methuen, Richard Clive, Lord Clive, the Duke of Montague, Sir Fletcher Norton, Lord Edward Bentinck, Samuel Johnson, the Marquis of Granby, Sir F. B. Delaval, William Tooke, the Hon. Charles Howard, son, the Duke of Northumberland, Sir Francis Gosling, the Earl of Anglesey, Sir George Dryden Rodney (afterwards Lord Rodney), Peter Burrell, Walpole Eyre, Lewis Mendez, Dr. Swinney, Stephen Lushington, John Gunning, Henry Brougham (father of Lord Brougham), Dr. MacNamara, Sir John Trevelyan, Captain Donnellan, Sir W. Wolseley, Walter Chetwynd, Viscount Gage, &c. Among the elections of members are those of Thomas Payne, Esq., of Leicester House; Sir F. Delaval, proposed by Foote; Dr. Schomberg, of Pall-mall; George Colman, then living in Great Queen-street; Dr. Dodd, then living in Southampton-row; James Payne, the architect, Salisbury-street, which he rebuilt; William Bowyer, the printer, Bloomsbury-square; N. Dance, then living in Covent-garden; Count Bruhl, the Polish Minister; John Beard, the singer; Dr. Goldsmith, Temple (1770). As Many a noted name in this list of 700 is very suggestive of the gay society of the period. Among the club musters Samuel Foote, Sir Thomas Robinson, and Dr. Dodd are frequent: indeed, Sir Thomas seems to have been something like a proposer-general.

Tom's appears to have been a general coffee-house; for in the parish-books of St. Paul's, Covent-garden, is the entry—

46 Dishes of chocolate	£1	3 0
54 Jellyes	..	0 17 0
Biscuit	..	0 2 2

Mr. Haines, the landlord, was succeeded by his son Thomas, whose daughter is living, at the age of eighty-four, and possesses a portrait, by Dance, of the elder Haines, who, from his public address, was called among the club "Lord Chesterfield." The above lady has also a portrait, in oil, of the youngest Haines, by Grignon.

The coffee-house business closed in 1814, about which time the premises were first occupied by Mr. Willis as Tull, the numismatist. The card-room remained in its original condition; and here, wrote Mr. Tull, many years since, "the tables on which I exhibit my coins are those which were used by the exalted characters whose names are extracted from books of the club, still in possession of the proprietress of the house." On the death of Mr. Tull, Mr. Webster succeeded to the tenancy and collection of coins and medals, which he removed some few years ago to No. 6, Henrietta-street, shortly before the old premises in Russell-street were taken down. He possesses, by marriage with the grand-daughter of the second Mr. Haines, the old club books, as well as the curious memorial which we engrave—the snuffbox of the club-room. It is of large size and fine tortoiseshell; upon the lid, in high relief, is Mercury, and the portraits of Charles I. and Queen Anne; the Boscobel oak, with Charles II. amid its branches; and at the foot of the tree, on a silver plate, is inscribed Thomas Hinton. At Will's the small wits grew conceited if they but dipped into Mr. Dryden's snuffbox; and at Tom's the box here engraved may have enjoyed a similar shrinelike reputation. It is nearly all that remains of the old coffee-house in Covent-garden save the recollection of the names of the interesting personages who once thronged its rooms in stars and garters, but who bore more intellectual distinctions to entitle them to remembrance.

LEG OF THE DINORNIS, OR GIGANTIC BIRD OF NEW ZEALAND.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE DINORNIS, OR GIGANTIC BIRD OF NEW ZEALAND.

In our account a few weeks since of the New Zealand Industrial Exhibition at Dunedin, Otago, it was mentioned that one of the curiosities shown there was the thigh-bone of a singular extinct bird, the Moa of New Zealand, which is called by our naturalists the Dinornis, and very few specimens of it have been discovered. We have since received from Major J. Michael, of the Madras Staff Corps, who was for some time in New Zealand, a photograph of a more remarkable specimen which he has obtained and placed in the Madras Government Museum. This consists of the leg-bones—namely, the femur, tibia, metatarsus, and toe-bone (unidentified) larger than those at Dunedin. They were found at Glenmark, about forty miles north of Christ Church in the Canterbury province of New Zealand. Major Michael says:—"Dr. Hector, the eminent explorer of New Zealand, who has charge of the museum at Dunedin, in Otago, showed me some Moa bones of far inferior size, and he has reluctantly come to the conclusion that the bird is extinct in New Zealand; but that it has only recently died out is clear from the freshness of the remains which are found. In one instance a head was found with the lower mandible adhering to the upper." The following are the dimensions of the bones brought to Madras by Major Michael :—

	Maximum circumference at joint.	Minimum circumference.
Femur . . 1ft. 6 in.	1 ft. 8½ in.	7 in.
Tibia . . 2 ft. 3 in.	1 ft. 9 in.	8½ in.
Metatarsus . 1 ft. 8 in.	1 ft. 3 in.	7½ in.
Toe . . 0 ft. 9½ in.	. . .	. . .

The Queen has approved of Mr. Alfred Watts as Consul in South Australia for the King of Sweden and Norway; and of Mr. Heinrich Schubert as Consul at Port Elizabeth for the Hanseatic city of Lubeck.

In our notice of the sculpture at the Academy exhibition the bust of Cupido spoke—one of the best of the works of Mr. Papworth, sen.—was by a clerical error assigned to Mr. H. R. Stephens. The question will be finally decided in the Academy Catalogue. The bust of Blake and Locke, also by Mr. Papworth,—Mr. Thornycroft's bust (No. 894) is incorrectly named in the catalogue: it should be "Mr. D. Brakefield," and Drakefield.

BIRTHS.

On the 2nd inst., at Crawley, Sussex, the wife of Robert Rosser, Esq., of a son.

On the 23rd ult., at Candilli, on the Bosphorus, the wife of Henry Rumbold, Esq., of a son.

On the 31st ult., at the Deanery, Christ Church, Oxford, Mrs. Liddell, of a son.

At Gloucester-terrace, Hyde Park, the wife of Lieutenant-General Sir R. Napier, K.C.B., of a son.

At Ilbow, Bombay, the wife of Major the Hon. C. W. Thesiger, 6th (Inniskilling) Dragoons, of a daughter.

The Viscountess Feilding, of a daughter.

At Pau, the Countess Sydney Clinton, the wife of G. W. Caine, Esq., H.B.M.'s Consul, of a son.

At Cowes, the wife of a son.

At Malvern Link, the Hon. Mrs. F. Peel, of a daughter.

At Hillsborough, Warwick, Lady Conyers, of a daughter.

At Brompton Ash Rectory, Market Harborough, the Hon. Mrs. S. Smith, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 31th of March, at Valparaiso, according to the civil code of the country, and on the 28th by the Rev. Richard Bennett, British Chaplain, Edward Hamilton, Esq., of Valparaiso, to Catalina, second daughter of Joseph Edwards Banner, Esq., of Santiago.

On the 6th inst., at St. Peter's Church, Eaton-square, by the Rev. Alfred H. Williams, Nott, B.A., Anderson, to Cathie Angela, daughter of John de Freitas d'Albuquerque, of Madeira.

On the 31st ult., at St. James's Church, Paddington, by the Rev. Canon Boyd, Henry Cecil, Esq., of Torrey, Bridfordshire, to Mary, eldest daughter of James Taylor, Esq., of Tottenham Hall, Tottenham, and of Gilston Park, Bumphield, Berkshire.

At Little Isaham, Surrey, F. P. M. Baddeley, Esq., Royal Artillery, son of Dr. Baddeley, late of the Indian Army, to Katherine, daughter of the late Captain R. B. S. Jones, and granddaughter of the late Admiral Sir P. Bisshett, Bart., of Fulmerse, Pitt.

At Bath, Lieutenant-Colonel A. D. Dent, son of the late D. Dent, to Elizabeth, daughter of the late W. A. Bromhead Church, of Hemsby, and granddaughter of the late Admiral the Hon. Sir C. Paget, G.C.B.

At Bellenden, Cape of Good Hope, Agnes, wife of Colonel Todd, late 3rd Prague Guards, and grandson of the late Sir R. Brydges, Bart., to Susan Margaret, daughter of Geert, Baron Van Van Tuchtenhorst, Civil Commissioner of the district.

At St. George's, Hanover-square, R. Marker, Esq., of Combe House, Devon, to the Hon. Victoria Alexandrina Digby, daughter of Lord and Lady Digby.

In Dublin, at Booth, Esq., late Captain, 1st Life Guards, to Miss Hon. Frances Erlice, daughter of Lord Erlice.

At Cowden, Sussex, Rear-Admiral H. F. Stopford to Lucy Horner, daughter of Admiral Sir F. Horsby, G.C.B., of Lottisgrove, Sussex.

DEATHS.

On the 22nd ult., at 4, Grosvenor-square, after a few days' illness, Edward Frederick, eldest surviving son of the late Colonel Spiller, Royal Artillery, in his 54th year.

On the 29th ult., at 11, Clarendon-crescent, Leamington, Mary Ann, the infirmity of Bonnor Ayres, in the 83rd year of her age.

In Cumberland-street, Portman-square, Lady Langston, in her 56th year.

At Norfolk-square, Hyde Park, Annette Sidney, daughter of the Hon. G. Percy.

At Lucan, in the county of Dublin, Eliza Katherine, daughter of the late Sir R. Kingscott, Bart., of Sidmouth Park, Devonshire, and widow of Sir J. Kingscott, of Hermitage Park, Lucan.

At Kilmorgan, Ireland, Harriette Maria, wife of the Rev. R. Patcheam, Rector of Kilmorgit, and daughter of the Right Hon. D. Browne, aged 57.

At Bath, Louisa Elizabeth, daughter of the late Rev. J. Chamberlain, of Bedford, Devon.

At Banes Pyrenees, Count d'Albani, aged 50.

At Tunbridge Wells, the Right Hon. Sir J. C. Gray, G.C.H., aged 78.

At Chatham, Lieutenant St. V. D. Lake, R.N., son of the late Sir J. S. Lake, Bart., aged 30.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 29′ 0″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.			WIND.		Rain in 24 hours, ending 10 a.m.	Mean Ozone.
	Barometer reduced to 32° Fah.	Dew Point in Degrees of Fahr.	Humidity in Parts of 100	Ozone in Parts of 10	Maximum in the Sun.	Minimum on the Grass.	General Direction.	Velocity in Miles per Hour.
May 23	Inches 29·902	°F 8	% 65	6·30	° 69·7	° 47·6	W. SW.	Miles 277	Miles 1·6	Inches ·000	6·0
24	29·836	56·2	87·4	·79	8	49·3	64·6	ESE.	256	·050	·000
25	29·620	55·9	87·4	·93	10	49·3	69·4	SW. WSW.	345	·710
26	29·862	56·6	82·7	·93	7	51·9	67·4	SW. W.	219	·165
27	. . .	. . .	. . .	. . .	. .	51·5	69·7	. . .	271	·000
28	30·223	61·1	83·4	·72	2	49·9	72·7	W. WSW.	126	·000
29	30·262	55·8	82·7	·75	9	52·9	73·3	NW. WSW.	. . .	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m. :—

Barometer in inches corrected	29·755	29·864	29·918	29·928	29·866	29·548	30·203
Temperature of the air	55·9°	56·9°	56·8°	59·8°	61·9°	55·8°	53·8°
Temperature of Evaporation .	51·0°	52·0°	52·0°	54·0°	55·0°	51·0°	51·0°
Direction of Wind . .	W.	ESE.	W.	SW.	SW.	W.	S.W.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 17.

SUNDAY, June 11.—Trinity Sunday. St. Barnabas, apostle and martyr. Death of William Robertson, historian, 1793; of Dugald Stewart, moral philosopher, 1828.

MONDAY, 12.—Act of Settlement on behalf of the Brunswick family passed, 1701. Death of William Collins, poet, 1759; of Dr. Thomas Arnold, of Rugby, 1842.

TUESDAY, 13.—St. Anthony of Padua, confessor, died, 1231. The New Metropolitan Cattle-market inaugurated by the Lord Mayor, in the presence of the Prince Consort, 1855.

WEDNESDAY, 14.—Battle of Basil the Great, confessor, died, 975. Battle of Naseby; King Charles I. and the Royalists defeated by Fairfax and Cromwell, 1645. Opening of the London Orphan Asylum, 1825.

THURSDAY, 15.—St. Vitus or Guido. Vitus, or Guy, slain in Smithfield and his followers dispersed, 1381. Death of Thomas Campbell, poet, 1844. Trinity Term ends.

FRIDAY, 16.—Acquittal of the Seven Bishops, tried for a libel, 1688. Death of John Gay, poet, 1732. Death of Thomas Moore, poet, 1852. Moon's last quarter, 11h. 53m. a.m.

SATURDAY, 17.—St. Alban, the British protomartyr. Birth of John Wesley, founder of Methodism, 1703. The Turks-it 3 constituted themselves the National Assembly of Greece, 1821.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 17.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
A. M.	A. M.	A. M.	A. M.	A. M.	A. M.	A. M.
3 10	3 53	4 34	5 14	5 54	6 34	7 15
P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
3 30	4 13	4 54	5 34	6 14	6 54	7 35

WHOLE-SHEET SUPPLEMENT.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS for SATURDAY NEXT, June 17, consisting of Two Whole Sheets, will contain the following

ILLUSTRATIONS :—

The Foreign Picture-Gallery at the Dublin Exhibition.
The Prince of Wales Opening the Central Hall of the Royal Dramatic College.
The Emperor Napoleon's Visit to Algeria: Triumphal Arch on the Road; the City of Constantine; the Emperor's Arrival at Constantine; the Court of the Government Palace at Constantine.
Funeral of the Late Mr. Waterton in the Grounds of Walton House, now Wakefield—Procession of Boats on the Lake; the Grave by the Yew Avenue.
The Exhibition Palace of the Floral Society at Cologne.
The Town, Port, and Railway Station of Arica, Peru (Two Illustrations).
Testimonial to Messrs. Pocock and Godwin, the Honorary Secretaries of the Art-Union of London.
The Fatal Accident at Redhall, on the Shrewsbury and Chester Railway.

With the same Number will be given a Special Supplement of Sixteen Pages, containing the following

FINE-ART ILLUSTRATIONS :—

PICTURES.

"The Lost Found." By W. S. Herrick. In the Exhibition of the Royal Academy.
"An English Pastoral." By F. W. Holmes. In the Exhibition of the Royal Academy.
"Gleaners Returning Home." By D. E. Lange. In the Exhibition of the Works of French and Flemish Artists.
"Rustic Courtship." By W. Lucas. In the Exhibition of the Institute of Painters in Water-colours.
"The Sisters." By C. Baxter. In the Exhibition of the Society of British Artists.
"The Cutaspaw." From the Exhibition of French and Flemish Artists.

SCULPTURE.

Statue of the late Prince Consort, to be erected at Sydney, New South Wales. By W. Theed, R.A.
Monument to the late General Bruce. By J. Foley, R.A.
Group of Two Children. By A. Monroe. In the Exhibition of the Royal Academy.

Price of the Number and Whole-sheet Supplement, Fivepence; stamped, to go free through the post, Sixpence.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 10, 1865.

THE "entries" for the political race are now being rapidly made and are exciting a kindred interest to that which was so largely manifested in reference to the equine contests of the past week. Day by day the list increases, and an occasional "scratching" adds to the excitement. Sir John Shelley, for instance, has been scratched by himself, and will not run for Westminster. This event alters the chances considerably. It may be matter of opinion whether some of Mr. Mill's ideas are not in advance of the constituency, not to say of the toleration, of the day, but when such a man announces himself as willing to represent a place, his election should be matter of course. The Conservative interest in Westminster is very large and very respectable, and those who think that important minorities ought to be represented will gladly see the success of Mr. Smith, the rather that a business member for such a constituency is absolutely necessary, and the Government will command a very powerful part of the work. Mr. Thomas Hughes, the author, offers himself to our neighbours across the water, and has been much applauded for the manly frankness of his addresses. He declares that he has no sympathy with the working classes to entertain the slightest apprehension that they will misuse the franchise should it be conferred upon them. But the people of England ought, by this time, to be sufficiently advanced in political knowledge to understand the worth and to give calm consideration to all proposals for improving what is really, as the artisan, of all people, should best understand, mere machinery for procuring a result.

Among electoral incidents which command attention is the retirement of Sir Charles Wood, the Indian Minister, from Halifax. He is opposed by a gentleman whose father expired in promoting the election of Sir Charles, and the latter declares that it is impossible he should stand in antagonism with the son. The latter seems to think that, as Sir C. Wood has already obtained high prizes, and might be a peer if he liked, there is no hardship in his being compelled to seek other constituents than those on whom Mr. Akroyd has the hold of a rich and useful neighbour. In one of the Irish contests the candidates manœuvre in a large and splendid manner, each proposing to do a great and useful local work. If this be a sort of bribery, it is, perhaps, hardly one of which very stern notice need be taken, and we own that we should feel very strongly inclined to think a candidate a wise and good man who should sweep Holywell-street from the Strand, or erect twenty handsome foot-bridges across it. The Isle of Wight is laughing, a candidate having offered himself in the person of Sir Charles Locock, an aged medical man, whose peculiar practice has been of the most interesting character to the land and not less to himself, only known that he had given study to the science of politics. He comes out as ultra-Protestant, as becomes one who has so usefully assisted in maintaining a Protestant dynasty among us.

The sacred Conservatism of the proud Salopians is to be ruddy assailed. In the old days Shropshire returned twelve members, at the dictation of Powis Castle. Then came reform, and the number of members was the same: but the county was divided, and one of the most desperate struggles in the history of elections took place in the north, Mr. John Cotes beating Mr. Ormsby Gore by seventy-two only in a constituency of some 8000. The married and retired, and the representation again became wholly Conservative. Now a Liberal is to be started, Lord Alexander Leveson Gower, brother of the Duke of Sutherland, and the battle will be fierce, and, if the attorneys do not neglect the advantages which are set before them, the election bills will come at least to the respectable figure of the Cors and Cotes struggle—viz., about £20,000. Then at Stafford we have Mr. Hardman, by no means sure of re-election. Mr. Brown, of the great works where the armour-plates are made for the ships, would have come in, but his health bids him decline a contest. We do not think that England will be at all sorry to see Mr. Roebuck, after so many years of service, cashiered; for, with all his petulance and frequent injustice, he is regarded as honest, and he frequently forces public men out of circumlocution and into plain speech. He is therefore an intelligible man that ought to be maintained.

It is gravely alleged that some of the Conservatives of Whitby have resolved on bringing forward Mr. George Hudson, the ex-railway king. A statement of the fact will probably be sufficient. It is rather suggestive, and will no doubt prompt some odd reminiscences. Great as is the reverence of a certain class of Englishmen for money, and willing as they are to believe that a rich man must have been sinned against rather than sinning, we own that Sir Hugh Shee, M.P. for Kilkenny, at Edinburgh, has given dissatisfaction to a portion of his constituents by his vote and speech on the franchise, and he may be defeated. It may be rather an honour than a discredit to be defeated by combined opposition as rejected Lord Macaulay's favour of a local trader; and Mr. Black will doubtless bear his fortune like a man, be it what it may. Whether the election of Finsbury will be carried by Mr. Cox's declining age, his curious conduct in regard to Mr. Stansfeld remains to be seen. A great constituency like Finsbury should have no difficulty in obtaining a member who has more weight with the House than Mr. Cox. Nevertheless, Finsbury will again return Lord Fermoy and Mr. Lewis, and appears to like them all the better that they have the courage occasionally to declare point-blank against certain conventional whims of the 'nth-party. The pledge to abolish the rights of primogeniture, for instance.

These are among the features of the "entries" of which we have spoken, and we note them because, in a short time, it will be impossible to do more than schedule the candidates. We do not perceive in the election addresses which we have had the happiness of perusing any marked departure from the ordinary forms. The franchise question is the only one which has taxed the brains of the solicitors and agents who write the addresses. All parties concur in believing that the representation may be amended, and the only difficulty has been to find neat and guarded words, which shall satisfy the elector without committing the candidate. We are happy to say that the difficulty has, generally speaking, been gracefully surmounted, and that the Conservatives are quite willing to consider the subject, keeping in mind, of course, the safety of our beloved Constitution; while the Liberals are equally ready to assist in admitting new men to the franchise, provided that there be no disturbance of the necessary balances of interests. "When they go apart," says Puff, in reference to mainsail or foresail, "says Puff, in "The Critic;" "and as both parties are entirely agreed as to their object—the good of the country—they can now fly at each other with a clear conscience, and afterwards—why, alors comme alors.

The mother of Prince Cousa, Sovereign of Roumania, died suddenly a few days ago.

The Bey of Tunis has been presented with the decoration of a Civil Grand Cross of the Bath.

Dr. Edward Smith, F.R.S., Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, London, has been appointed Poor-Law Inspector.

"Princess Dagmar," says the Independance Belge, "has received the order of St. Anne of Russia, with a yearly donation of 40,000 roubles. The Princess is expected at the end of the month at St. Petersburg."

The following specimen of mixed metaphor is, according to the Reader, taken from an American paper:—"The sword is now fairly in our midst, and, if not nipped in the bud, it will burst forth in a conflagration of political war, which will shake an earthquake of heroism."

Lord Harris writes to the Times to explain that the operations of the Canning Testimonial Committee have been delayed by the difficulty of obtaining a site for the statue. This has now been obtained, in place of a fine statue of Lord Canning in Westminster Abbey, near to that of his father; and Mr. Foley has been instructed to furnish designs.

A return has been issued of the cases in which the Educational Department of the Privy Council has objected to make a grant towards the building of a National or Church-of-England school between the 1st of January, 1861, and the 31st of December, 1864, on the ground that children of Dissenters might be excluded from such a school, specifying in each case why the objection was taken, and whether the promoters removed it by inserting a conscience clause in their trust deed. The number of applications refused was seventy-one. Of these, the promoters removed the objection by inserting a "conscience clause" in forty-one instances, in twenty-two instances they declined to do so, and in eight cases no answer was returned.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, with the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Balmoral Castle, in good health.

On Tuesday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Louisa, drove out. Later in the day the Queen, accompanied by Prince Arthur and Princess Beatrice, drove in the neighbourhood of the castle. The Duke of Argyll had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Wednesday week the Queen, attended by the Duchess Dowager of Athole, drove out. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Louisa and the Hon. Mrs. A. Gordon, went to Aberarder.

On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, drove in the grounds of the castle. Subsequently her Majesty, accompanied by Prince Leopold and the Hon. Mrs. A. Gordon, drove out.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa and Princess Beatrice, drove out. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Prince Arthur and Princess Beatrice and attended by the Duchess Dowager of Athole, drove in the vicinity of the castle.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in the neighbourhood of the castle. Subsequently her Majesty, attended by the Duchess Dowager of Athole, drove in the castle grounds. Prince Arthur, Prince Leopold, and Princess Beatrice went to Loch Muick. The Queen received the unexpected but gratifying intelligence of the safe confinement of the Princess of Wales and of the birth of a Prince.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa attended Divine service in the parish church of Crathie. The Rev. A. Anderson officiated.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, drove in the vicinity of the castle. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by Miss Bowater, drove beyond Invercauld.

THE LEVÉE.

By command of the Queen, a Levée was held, on Wednesday, by the Prince of Wales, on behalf of her Majesty, at St. James's Palace. Presentations to his Royal Highness at this Court are, by the Queen's pleasure, considered as equivalent to presentations to her Majesty. The Prince, escorted by a detachment of the Royal Horse Guards and attended by his gentlemen in waiting, arrived at the palace from Marlborough House at two o'clock, and was received by the great officers of state of the Queen's household.

The Duke of Cambridge and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar were present at the Levée.

The Queen's body-guard of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms was on duty in the state saloons, under the command of the Lieutenant.

The Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel C. Patterson.

The Prince entered the Throne-room, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and attended by the Earl of St. Germans, Viscount Sydney, the Marquis of Ailesbury, Lord Cremorne, Earl Spencer, Colonel the Hon. A. Liddell, Colonel H. F. Ponsonby, Lord Proby, the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, Mr. C. L. Wood, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel.

The Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers having been introduced in the order of their precedence, the following presentations took place in the Diplomatic Circle:—By the Turkish Ambassador—Aristarchi Bey, Prince of Samos. By the Belgian Envoy—Mons. Charles Donna dey Casteau. The Circle Diplomatique was attended by the Turkish, Austrian, Prussian, and French Ambassadors, with their councillors, secretaries, and attachés; by the Ministers of Belgium, Bavaria, Italy, the Netherlands, Portugal, Saxony, Denmark, Honduras, the United States, Sweden and Norway, Spain, Salvador, Mexico, the Hanse Towns, and Columbia, with their secretaries and attachés, by the Hanoverian Chargé-d'Affaires; by the Right Hon. Sir George Grey, who officiated in the unavoidable absence of Earl Russell; and by Lieutenant-General the Hon. Sir Edward Cust.

The Russian Ambassador was absent from the Court in consequence of the funeral of the late Grand Duke Cesarewitch.

The general circle was numerously attended and the presentations were also numerous, a principal feature in the company being the number of naval and military gentlemen who were presented on their promotion.

COURT ARRANGEMENTS.

The Prince of Wales held an investiture of the Order of the Bath, on Thursday, at St. James's Palace.

The Queen will hold a Court on Saturday next, the 17th inst., at Buckingham Palace.

Princess Helena will, by command of the Queen, hold a Drawing-room, on behalf of her Majesty, on Tuesday, the 20th inst., at St. James's Palace.

A state concert will be given on Wednesday, the 21st inst., at Buckingham Palace.

A state ball will be given on Tuesday, the 27th inst., at Buckingham Palace.

ACCOUCHEMENT OF THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales was safely delivered of a son shortly after one o'clock on Saturday morning last, at Marlborough House. The Prince of Wales, the Lord Chamberlain of the Queen's Household, and the Lady of the Princess's Bedchamber were in attendance at the birth. The Secretary of State for the Home Department arrived at Marlborough House immediately after. Information of the happy event was telegraphed to the Queen at Balmoral and to the Danish Court at Copenhagen. Congratulatory replies were received shortly afterwards.

The Lord Mayor received a communication from the Secretary of State for the Home Department announcing the birth of a Prince. According to custom on such occasions, the Home Secretary's letter and the official bulletin which accompanied it were immediately posted in front of the Mansion House.

A large number of the members of the nobility called at Marlborough House during Saturday to make inquiries after the health of the Princess and the infant Prince.

The intelligence of the auspicious event was everywhere received with pleasure. The bells of many of the churches were rung, and Royal salutes were fired from the guns in St. James's Park and the Tower. At Windsor the bells of the parish church of St. John and of St. George's Chapel were rung throughout the day, and a Royal salute of twenty-one guns was fired by the town bombardiers from the artillery in the Long Walk.

The health of the Princess is as satisfactory as can be desired, and the young Prince is quite well.

The Countess of Macclesfield has succeeded the Countess of Morton as Lady in Waiting to the Princess.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Marlborough House.

Yesterday week the Princess, attended by the Countess of Morton, the Hon. Mrs. E. Coke, and Lord Harris, was present at M. Hallé's concert, at St. James's Hall. In the evening the Prince entertained at dinner the Duke of St. Albans, the Duke and Duchess of Wellington, the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, Count and Countess Gleichen, the Danish Minister, Count F. Lagrange, Count Knuth de Knuthenborg, the Earl and Countess of Derby, the Earl of Dunmore, the Countess of Morton, the Countess of Tankerville, Viscountess Palmerston, Lord and Lady Walsingham, Lord and Lady Alfred Paget, Lord Henry Lennox, the Hon. Julian Fane, Vice-Admiral the Hon. Sir Henry Keppel, Lieutenant-General and Mrs. Knollys, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel. The band of the Scots Fusilier Guards (conducted by Mr. C. Godfrey) was in attendance. The Princess was too unwell to be present at the dinner.

On Saturday last the Prince presided at a meeting of the Council of his Royal Highness, held at the office of the Duchy of Cornwall, Buckingham-gate. There were present at the council Lord Portman, Sir William John Alexander, Colonel the Hon. Sir C. B. Phipps, and Lieutenant-General Knollys. Mr. Bateman, the secretary, attended as Clerk of the Council. Subsequently the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out.

On Sunday the Prince attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Rev. the Sub-Dean, the Rev. T. C. Haden, and the Rev. Dr. Jelf, were the officiating clergymen. In the afternoon his Royal Highness, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, visited the Zoological Gardens, Regent's Park.

On Monday the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. Subsequently his Royal Highness, accompanied by the Duke of St. Albans, and attended by the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, Lieutenant-General Knollys, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, went to Woking and inaugurated the Royal Dramatic College, the foundation-stone of which was laid by the Prince Consort. His Royal Highness left the Nine Elms station at a quarter past three and travelled by the South-Western Railway to the temporary stations, erected for the occasion, adjoining the college grounds. The Prince was received on his arrival by Mr. B. Webster and various members of the dramatic profession. A guard of honour of the Hon. Artillery Company, of which his Royal Highness is Colonel, lined the approach from the station. A detachment of the 24th Surrey Volunteers, with its band, was present, as was also the band of the Duke of York's School. Upon arriving at the hall, Mr. Webster presented the Prince with a golden key, with which the door was opened, and his Royal Highness was conducted to a dais in the hall. The Prince received an address, to which he gracefully responded. At the conclusion of the proceedings the Prince returned to town. In the evening his Royal Highness dined with the Duchess of Cambridge, at Cambridge Cottage, Kew.

On Tuesday the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. Later in the day his Royal Highness drove to Lord's Cricket-ground. In the evening the Prince honoured Earl and Countess Spencer with his company at dinner at Spencer House.

On Wednesday the Prince, accompanied by Count Gleichen and attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. His Royal Highness held a Levée at St. James's Palace, an account of which is given above. In the evening the Prince honoured the Strand Theatre with his presence.

Mr. G. F. Harvey, late Commissioner at Agra, on Thursday week, presented a chess and a console table of inlaid-work as offerings to the Princess from the European and native inhabitants of Agra.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Samos has arrived at Claridge's Hotel from Paris.

Their Highnesses Prince and Princess Taxis have arrived at Claridge's Hotel from Paris.

His Highness Mustapha Pacha has arrived at Claridge's Hotel from Paris.

His Excellency the Italian Minister (the Marquis d'Azeglio) has arrived at the Italian Legation, in Lower Grosvenor-street, from Turin.

His Excellency Sir Henry and Lady Howard and the Misses Howard have arrived at Brown's Hotel from Hanover.

The Duke and Duchess of Newcastle have left London for the Continent.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Lansdowne have arrived at Lansdowne House, Berkeley-square, from Paris.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Ailsa have arrived at the Burlington Hotel, Old Burlington-street, for the season, from Culzean Castle, Ayrshire.

Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston have returned to town from Brockett Hall, Herts.

The Bishop of London and Mrs. Tait have left London House, St. James's-square, for Fulham Palace.

Lord Brougham arrived at his residence in Grafton-street, yesterday (Friday) week, from Paris, in which capital the noble Lord made a brief stay on his way home from Cannes.

Count Fréderic de Lagrange has left the Clarendon Hotel for Paris.

The Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer has arrived in town from passing the Whitsun recess at Cliefden, on a visit to the Duchess Dowager of Sutherland.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

The marriage of Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild, second son of Baron Anselm de Rothschild, of Vienna, and Miss Evelina de Rothschild, daughter of Baron Lionel de Rothschild, took place, on Wednesday, at the house of Baron Rothschild, on the Terrace, Piccadilly. The ceremony was performed by the Chief Rabbi, Dr. Adler, assisted by the Dr. Kalich and the Rev. Mr. Greene. Baron Lionel de Rothschild gave a dinner in the evening. Covers were laid for 126. The bride and bridegroom sat at the principal table. Baroness Rothschild afterwards gave a ball in celebration of the wedding. The Duke of Cambridge, the Duchess d'Aumale, the Duke de Chartres, the Prince de Condé, the principal members of the Corps Diplomatique, and a very large number of the élite of society were present. The bride and bridegroom left Piccadilly at half-past eleven o'clock, en route for Wentmore, Bucks, for the honeymoon.

Marriages are arranged between Miss Mary Blackett, youngest daughter of Sir Edward Blackett, Bart., and Mr. George Egerton, eldest son of the late Rev. Thomas Egerton, and formerly of the Rifle Brigade; between Miss Liddell, eldest daughter of Colonel the Hon. George and Mrs. Liddell, and Mr. Charles Balfour, of Newton-Don; and between Miss Duncombe Shafto and Captain Robert Vyner, Grenadier Guards.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Cambridge entertained the Prince of Wales and a select party at dinner, on Monday, at Cambridge Cottage, Kew.

His Excellency the Prussian Ambassador and Countess Bernstorff entertained the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, the Countess of Dornberg, and a distinguished circle at dinner, on Thursday week, at the Prussian Embassy, on Carlton House-terrace. After dinner Countess Bernstorff had an assembly. The réunion was attended by a large number of the élite of society.

His Excellency Prince de la Tour d'Auvergne, the French Ambassador, gave his second ball for the season, on Thursday week, at the Embassy, Albert-gate. A very large and distinguished company was present.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Donegall entertained the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, the Countess of Dornberg, and a large party at dinner on Saturday last.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Westminster entertained a select family circle at dinner, on Saturday last, at Grosvenor House.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury had an afternoon party at Hatfield House, Herts, on Tuesday, from two to seven o'clock. A very numerous company assembled.

Countess Spencer had a dancing party, on Tuesday evening, at Spencer House, St. James's. The company was invited to meet his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. Princess Mary of Cambridge, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, the Countess of Dornberg, and a distinguished circle were present. Previously to the evening party, Earl and Countess Spencer received the Prince of Wales and a select party at dinner.

The Countess of Home gave her first ball this season, yesterday week, at her residence in Grosvenor-square. A brilliant company assembled.

Viscount and Viscountess Sydney entertained their Royal Highnesses the Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, and a distinguished circle at dinner, yesterday week, at their residence in Cleveland-square, St. James's.

Lord and Lady Egerton of Tatton entertained the Count and Countess de Paris and a select company at dinner, on Monday evening, at the family mansion in St. James's-square.

Lord Hotham, M.P., had a dinner party, on Monday evening, at his house in Grosvenor-street.

Lord and Lady Foley had a dinner party, on Wednesday evening, at their residence in Grosvenor-square.

Lady Rendlesham gave her first ball, on Tuesday night, at her residence in Grosvenor-square. Nearly 300 of the leading members of the fashionable world were present.

The Hon. Mrs. Ashley had a ball, on Tuesday evening, at Hyde Park-gate, Kensington. A numerous company assembled.

The Lord Chief Justice entertained Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and the Countess of Dornberg and a select circle at dinner yesterday week.

Mrs. W. E. Gladstone gave her first dancing party this season, yesterday week, at the Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer's family mansion on Carlton House-terrace. Above 300 persons of rank were present.

Miss Burdett Coutts gave her second afternoon party, on Saturday last, at Holly Lodge, Highgate. A numerous company assembled.

Mrs. Monk gave a matinée musicale, on Monday, at her residence in Eaton-square.

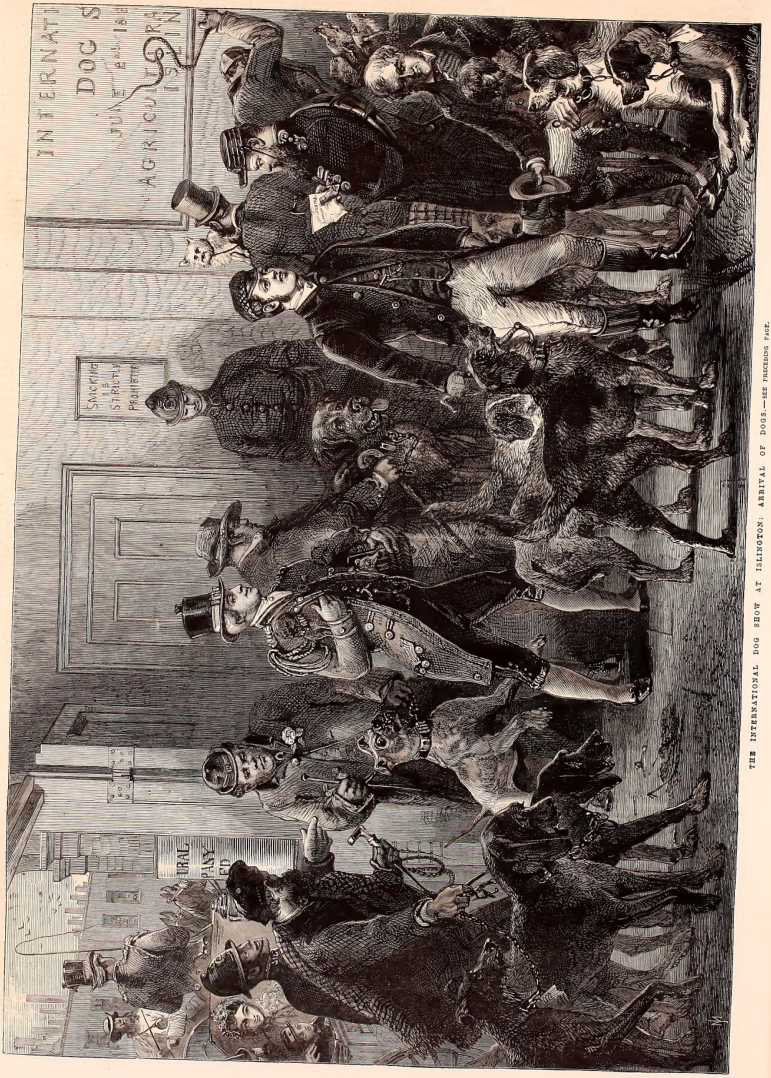
The annual regimental dinner of the Royal Artillery took place at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's, on Monday. The chair was taken by Field Marshal the Duke of Cambridge, K.G., Commanding-in-Chief, Colonel of the Royal Regiment of Artillery. Covers were laid for eighty.

The annual regimental dinner of the 10th (the Prince of Wales's Own) Hussars took place on Saturday evening last at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's.

Sir Joseph Paxton died on Thursday morning, in his sixty-second year.

THE FARM.

A ROMAN Emperor is said to have found Rome brick and left it marble, and Mr. Strafford can claim to have raised shorthorn sales out of their plain Saxon accompaniments of beer, beef, and sherry into champagne, pineapple, and ice-cream latitudes. In fact, a perfect bridal lunch greeted the congress of about 120 leading shorthorn men—peers, M.P.s, clergymen, and laymen—who attended to see the great battle at Willis's Rooms, on Wednesday, over the eighteen Grand Dukes and Duchesses. Lord Feversham was in the chair, supported by General Hood (who came, like several other members of council, direct from Hanover-square), and the Bates men made up a most imposing array; while Mr. Torr and Mr. Thomas Booth, &c., were at the head of the great rival house of "the red, white, and roan." The sale of the first lot of females (one of which is considered "very doubtful") for 1900 gs. reflected no faint lustre upon the Booth cause, as Prince Imperial, the sire of the three, was a son of Bridecake by Crown Prince, from Bridget, and therefore of pure Warlaby blood. As soon as lunch was over, and the noble chairman had given the usual loyal toasts, Mr. Strafford responded to his own health in the most practical way, by shutting the windows to get rid of the street roar, mounting a table, and proceeding to business, and, we may add, without repeating the new sale creed, which, by-the-by, seems most searching, and nearly half a foot long. The herd were at Dawpool, where they have had some crowded levées for several days past. It was their late owner's wish that they should be sold in one lot, and it was understood that the Hon. Colonel Pennant, M.P., had made an offer of £6000 for the twelve females. Aided by Mr. Drewry, agent to the Duke of Devonshire, who was said to be bidding on behalf of an eminent City merchant somewhat anxious to begin a herd, and Captain Oliver, who was in at 1800, the biddings fairly flew for the first lot; but Mr. Betts's agent was always there, and it fell to him for 1900 gs. The second lot followed suit at 1300 gs.; and then the opposition made another rally, but at 1800 gs. Mr. Betts covered them again; and, when it was seen that he was so determined, no one would bid against him for the fourth, and his 1200-guinea bid remained unchallenged. Thus the twelve females fetched £6510, being an average of £542 10s. Their new owner was sent merrily along for Imperial Oxford up to 450 gs.; and then Grand Duke 6th (130 gs., Mr. Bland), Grand Duke 13th (310 gs., Mr. T. Walker, of Birswell Hall, near Coventry), and Grand Duke 10th (600 gs., Duke of Devonshire), were recorded in Mr. Thornton's little handbook of fate. The waiters, whose ideas did not go beyond milch cows standing among ginger-beer bottles in the Mall, stared with amazement again; and the trainer of the Duchesses was so delighted at the last price, that he rose and asked the auctioneer, "how much for the depreciation in shorthorn prices?" an allusion which was caught up and highly relished. Grand Duke 9th and Grand Duke 15th were confessedly rheumatic; but Captain Gunter gave 100 gs. for one, and the other, which is said to be a hopeless case, was left unsold. The average for the five bulls was £333 18s.: and the total average of the sale, which made £8179 10s., was £481 3s.



The Bath and West of England Society have wisely lengthened their cords, and visited Hereford. Weather, entries, and company have combined to make the meeting a success, and 119 "white-faces" were entered, as against forty-two at Bristol last year. Messrs. Farthing, J. A. Smith, and Bodley were the principal Devon winners. Mr. R. Sharpe was first in the old class of shorthorn bulls with Lord Chancellor, bred by the late Mr. Jonas Webb; but both in the cow and yearling heifer classes he took second honours to Mr. Stratton's two roans, Diadem and Garland. Mr. Holling's Chieftain 2nd was the head of the old Hereford bull class; but in the crack contest of the meeting, for the "bull, cow, and offspring," victory was Mr. Baldwin, for his Battersea, Duchess of Bedford, and their daughter, Rose of Bedford. The editor of "The Herd-book," who has quite out-Duckhamed Duckham in his exertions, has again found the first-prize blue ribbons on his young bull The Commodore, a very noted winner, and first at Bristol last year, as well as at the Newcastle Royal. He also took another first with his yearling pair of heifers, Lucy and Florence, both of which are also by Cato. Mr. Roberts, with his Sir Thomas blood, and Mr. Taylor, of Showle, also took double firsts; Mr. Perry was supreme, as he often is, in the cow class, with Beauty; and Mr. Baldwin's unbeaten double Royal winner, Miss Hastings 2nd, went down, for the first time in her life, before a heifer of Mr. Pitt. A sheep-shearing competition excited much interest in the yard. The winner clipped his two sheep in twenty-four minutes, and the second (a son or relative, we believe) in 21 min. 11 sec.

The Royal English Agricultural Society have so far adjudged two of their £25 prize essays for the year. That upon the "Increase of Sheep Stock on Strong as well as Light Land" has been won by Mr. John Coleman, of Wandsworth; and the "Short History of the Rise and Progress of Shorthorns," by Mr. Henry H. Dixon of Kensington. Seven essays and reports still remain to be decided. There is said to be every prospect of an excellent meeting at Plymouth; and the Cornishmen have carried their great point of having a dinner, "one and all," at which we shall no doubt have a most finished sample of "Cornish cheers," which, according to them, are far more satisfactory and intense in their volume than even "Kentish fire." The great Devon guns, with the exception of Mr. James Quartly, who bore the county banner so manfully at Exeter, will be found in the classes of which the local form a very prominent feature. Such has been the zeal of the "west countrie," that it gives £502 in local prizes and has got together nearly £5000 in all to meet its liabilities. In the Devon classes, "the South Hams," a tall, pale yellow, growthy beast, and famous as fill-pails, will come out in great force as a local breed, which is spread over some thousands of acres on the sea side of the railway. The mountain districts of Dartmoor and Exmoor will have prizes for their sheep and pony produce respectively; and Mr. Robert Smith comes out with his last crop of "Bobbies."

Cumberland, which astonished the shorthorn world so much a few years since with its Gwynnes and Princesses at Blencowe, has just placed another excellent sale on its herd records at Mr. Bowstead's, of Beck Bank, near Penrith. Seven of the Barmpton Rose tribe averaged £77 17s.; and another of them, Third Duchess of Lancaster, second to Mr. Mitchell's Mistletoe at the last meeting of the Highland Society, was reserved at 250 gs. The oldest of the lot, Lancaster Belle, goes, with ten years and 160 gs. on her head, to France, with her daughter, the Fourth Duchess; and the Second and the Seventh Duchess have found a new home with that stanch admirer of the Barmpton Rose blood, Mr. Eastwood, of Thorneyholme.

THE INTERNATIONAL DOG SHOW AT ISLINGTON.

THE Engraving on the next page will give some notion of the scene at the doors of the Agricultural Hall, Islington, on the eve of the opening of the third great International Dog Show, which began on Friday week and ended on Tuesday last. It was under the immediate patronage of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who sent some of his own dogs to be exhibited, and himself visited the exhibition, as did many of the aristocracy. The fact is, however, that all ranks and classes both of dogs and men were fairly represented in this grand assemblage of the canine fancy. The specimens which are delineated in our Illustration are of various kinds and degrees, from her Ladyship's tiny toy couched upon a velvet cushion and carried in a basket by the genteelest Tyburnian footman to the grim and ugly bulldog which a sporting publican of Whitechapel has sent up, raging with ferocious envy amidst the sleeker and nobler forms of the pointers, fox-hounds, and setters, with other privileged companions of the nobility and gentry of England. The whole exhibition comprised between 1400 and 1500 animals, British and foreign; about forty greyhounds, more than a hundred pointers, fifty setters, and as many retrievers, a great number of spaniels, many fine Newfoundlands, St. Bernards and other large dogs, blood-hounds, deer-hounds, otter-hounds, fox-hounds and harriers, sheepdogs, and terriers of various species. It was, both in numbers and in quality, the best show yet held. A few of the prize dogs are portrayed in another page. There were about 150 prizes, ranging from £20 to £3, among the sixty classes entered. On Saturday, the second day of the show, among the more distinguished visitors were Earl Russell, who accompanied Sir G. Grey; the Dukes of Rutland, Beaufort, St. Albans, Cleveland, Buckingham; the Marquises of Tweeddale, Salisbury, Hastings; the Earl and Countess of Cardigan; Earls Sefton, Norbury, Chesterfield, Caledon, and Spencer.

THE INTERNATIONAL DOG SHOW AT ISLINGTON: ARRIVAL OF DOGS.—SEE FREEDOG PAGE.

1. Mr. E. Laversch's English Setter Fred, aged 1 year and 8 months.
2. Mr. J. H. Whitehouse's rind Pointer, Hamlet, aged 4 years 1 month.
3. Mr. J. Custer's foreign dog, Rover, aged 7 years.
4. Mr. J. N. Fleming's Setter, Dandy, aged 2 years.
5. Mr. G. M'Pherson's King Charles Spaniel, Blair Athol, aged 3 years.
6. Mr. D. James's King Charles Spaniel, Duchess, aged 20 months.
7. Mr. C. Colman's toy dog, Boy, aged 11 months.
8. Mr. Miss Lee's toy dog, Topsy, aged 18 months.
9. Mr. S. T. Holland's foreign dog (Cuban Bloodhound by St. Bernard), Hector, aged 2 yrs. and 3 m.

THE INTERNATIONAL DOG SHOW AT ISLINGTON: PRIZE DOGS.—SEE PAGE 547.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

AUTHORITY somehow, having suddenly got something more than an inkling that Ministers have doomed the existence of the present Parliament to four weeks or so, had dispersed to please into the "grand pumps" of electioneering, the incidents of the two last sittings before the adjournment for a brief Whitsuntide recess were not unamusing. For instance, on notices solemnly given, Mr. J. B. Smith, who is an Evangelical reformer, inquired, with the utmost demureness, whether it was proposed to bring forward any Indian Budget this year. Certainly, from the reply of Sir Charles Wood, there would not; it have been mere reason for the interjection than might have been supposed, for he made what remarks very much like a statement that, probably, if the business of the Government did not intervene, he would bring forward his financial scheme before the Session closed. As Sir Charles spoke with difficulty—the time from the chair, and the heat of the weather, difficulty always oils enthroned—owing to evident bronchial affection, it is to be hoped that he will delay until the cooler temperature of the normal faculty of speech (that's not much) for other wise that which he always continues will be severe enough to tax his lungs. Already, or fifteen British gentlemen who sleep, nod, or yawn through an Indian Budget, may have voted the nuisance of the Session, and be laid on the table in a printed form like an unopposed return. Some of these who would be the loudest in the House of Commons to cry out are every Session privileged also to witness certain defects which he has to undergo, and for certain unremedied which he is obliged to make. This time it was on his Bank-Notes Issue Bill, which, in the manipulating it in all directions, pressing here and expanding there, contrived to push through its stages by the third reading, when it was suddenly stuck fast, was found to be immovable in bulk, and so had to be broken up and its fragments removed piecemeal. It was not to be withdrawn in the face of an opposition which numerically or personally in the House did not much exceed a dozen, for it had the support of Mr. Gladstone, stern and jolly as the King of Men, when he gave up Ephigenia to the altar, and publicly expressed his views in favour of it against the fiat of necessity. Happily, Mr. Disraeli was still goutbound, and the Lobby-loungers opened the ears of their minds to any say of his pet fiscal schemes collapse, always fits over the countenance of his rival; and it was cut without muddiness of stern retribution hereafter on his opponents that the Session of adjournment should be probably cut not mean to be gracious.

That sober spirit of business-like reform of administrative circumlocution was brought to light by Mr. Baillie Cochrane. With merciless circumstantiality he showed that for many years the sum voted for money had been voted annually for the erection of a lighthouse off Ceylon, while the only erection that had been made was that of a flag-staff on which it was not easy to hoist a flag without special naval preparations. He proved to be denial of fact as he stood, so Mr. Gibson, in that hesitating, frightened, looking-over-the-shoulder manner which has characterised him since he has been a Minister, except when he is defending the repeal of the paper duty, answered and heaved over that he was not quite aware of what occurred: no doubt the money had been spent somehow, but he had not examined it by rote; there was, to be sure, a flag-staff, there had been surveys; in fact, the scheme was not a failure; and, from the way in which he whipped, and nobody knew where the money had gone, no more could be said, except that the whole had been a job of the most unmitigated kind, as a private individual might. Some one might have fortunately suggested that, perhaps, Sir Edmund Head, who was governor there about it. Any way, it was a curious exhibition, and remarkably illustrative of Mr. Gladstone's statement that he was the most desperate wants no real check on the expenditure of public money.

The evening was not altogether unlively in the annals of the Civil Service Estimates, for severely odd votes were taken, and Mr. Layard made a pure and witnessing, practically, say impediment. The administrative reformers, now by no means so meander dreadful as they were, were all absent; and Mr. Dodson, the chairman of Committees, who, whatever he does, does it small, seems to view the Civil Service Estimates like a hurricane, no number guanoying him. Ah! but then there is the Edmund to be always brought on when there is a job—and there were not twenty members present, notably the critics of national education anywayy of course they will be present on the 30th of July, at the right moment Mr. Bruce glided in quietly, and in a pick-tooth manner sprinkled a few words about the new grant for the Irish spring that was not worth while to be elaborate on this occasion, transacted his affairs considerably and sat down. Up rose, reluctantly, Mr. Selwyn; offers a few general observations, and more than the usual number of a single sentence, and then he read the laps of the Committee of the Privy Council for Education. On, on, like the wind, they have gone, "very fast," over hedge and ditches, ploughrushes Mr. Dodson, getting more impetuous as he sees no obstacle before him; until the sudden rise from him, after the reading of each of the vote for science and art; for the chief sharpshooters who intench themselves around the Education Committee had financial matters to be seen; Mr. Gregory's place knows him not; Mr. Ayrton is absent with his own; Lord Ashley, Augustus Smith is feeling his way towards the Scilly Isles, preparatory to testing the affections of the people of Truro; Mr. Henley Seymour's voice is silent; and so even Mr. Cowper, who is responsible for the Board, was, or was not, there, for a long while to show. Perhaps with a knowledge that the house telegraph was at work, Mr. Vincent Scully was induced to intervene to prolong a rather dull passage between Mr. Cox and Mr. Layard, the latter appearing in the character of champion as a metropolitan member, and at length Mr. Gregory comes in a hurry, and Mr. Layard is enabled best—insanely best—to show that he is a true of him—and Mr. Dunby Seymour appears, with his excuse on his bosom in the shape of a white waistcoat, for it was of no use; the unpreparedness was too complete, the surprise too obvious, and the vote—science and art—like the body of Patrocles—escaped its manual mauling this time. It is to be hoped that the present Paymaster of Mr. Frederick Peel will take care to record that he protested on the part of the greatest fact that ever existed in the Civil Secretary to the Treasury—for he superintended, and so, by implication, united in the passage of the Estimates that, probably, are the Estimates that, probably, ever were got through in a single sitting, and this when he was expecting that consideration would have been worked officials are wont to take on the Treasury bench for three fourths of the period during which the system has existed.

It was under odd and rather undignified circumstances that the House of Commons met about, on the morning before the recess, to vindicate one of its high privileges. All persons Parliamentary meaning the word in a very wide sense—know all about the forged signatures to petition against Arnott's Bill and Locke's Bill, the proper machinery having been wound up, Mr. Charles Foster brought forward a motion to send one of the Sergeants-at-Arms, and to commit the others to the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms, which latter meaning being there in spacious and airy apartments in the Victoria Tower. Whereupon Mr. Hennessy, having the whole House to himself, for there was nobody of consequence present save Mr. Cox, always excepting the Attorney-General, who does not fly at such poor quarries as the member for King's Lynn, rose to speak. On his side, this unquiet atomy of a member of Parliament was going in for a dozen things on the liberty of the subject, and got into a squabble with Sir James Fergusson, who, in the absence of the usual way with the criminals, which, in the days when members were sold themselves outside of the House for what they said in the House, ought to have ended seriously. Nevertheless, all the shrill protests which were made were in vain against the sense of the small House present, which, having imprisoned three persons, of course thought itself qualified to proceed to one sway more inflicted on the public money. But Mr. Dobson's fiery speed was checked at once by a dreary, roundabout discussion of Irish education; and when the next vote—that for the National Gallery—was about to be put there came a cry as of a stricken deer from Mr. Dunby Seymour, who, single-voiced, protested against the attempt to spoil the sport of his confrères on the subject. And so the Estimates were stopped there, and the Session thereby prolonged for a fortnight.

A triple alliance has been signed between Brazil, Uruguay, and the Argentine Republic.

There are 236 educational colleges in the United States, eighty-seven theological seminaries, and fifty medical colleges.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

The House reassembled at four o'clock after the Whitsuntide recess.

Lord C. Russell, the Sergeant-at-Arms, appeared on the bar of the house and said that, in accordance with a warrant intrusted to him, he had arrested Fessell Marshall and Henry Whitehead, and they were now in his custody.

Mr. Serjeant Wilkins the apprehension of Jones and Cuddon had been unable to execute.—Mr. Hennessy presented petitions from Limerick and Cheltenham against the Bankers' Issues Bill.—Mr. Cox, in a few words, especially explained the money to pay the fees.—Mr. C. Forster, as Chairman of the Committee, moved the resolutions, which were agreed to.

THE RISING OF A PARLIAMENT.—Sir G. Lewis said that in consequence of a happy event which had occurred since the House met after the recess—the birth of a Prince, assuring her Majesty of their devoted attachment to her person and family—he should, on Monday next, move that the House do adjourn till Tuesday.—Mr. Disraeli concurred.

SUPPLY.

The House then went into Committee of Supply on the Civil Service Estimates.

On the vote of £26,566 for the National Gallery, Mr. KINNAIRD adverted to the number of petitions that had been presented in favour of the opening of the National Gallery on Sundays, and he trusted that the hon. Mr. Cox, who had lately recognised the strength of the claims urged, thought that the time had arrived when the House should express an opinion on the subject. He was sure that the House would be aggrieved as to demand further inquiry prior to such a result being agreed to.—Mr. Cox said he should be glad to see the vote for the National Gallery agreed to.

On the vote of £750 towards the salary of her Majesty's Consul at St. Petersburg, Mr. Layard called attention to the propriety of carrying out a portion of the salary by a charge on British shipping, arguing that the Consular service ought to be put on the same footing as the consular establishments in other parts of the world. He moved the rejection of the vote.—Mr. Bruce said that the vote was merely formal, and that it involved no change in principle of the payment of Consular abroad, and he trusted that the hon. gentleman would not persist in opposing it.—Mr. Layard withdrew his motion, and the resolution was then agreed to.

A question put by Mr. H. SEYMOUR, relative to the British captives in Abyssinia, led to an explanation by Mr. LAYARD, who stated that upon the decision at all on that subject, as calculated to imperil the safety of the captives, presently their fate. The Government would, from time to time, communicate such information as to the progress of the negotiations to procure the release of the captives as might be consistent with the public interest. The Foreign Office, always, however, bearing in mind the effect which might be produced on the minds of the captives themselves by the communication of any intelligence. Mr. Layard concluded by expressing his confidence that the Government would not relax their efforts until they had succeeded in effecting the release of the captives.

The vote was ultimately agreed to.

A great number of votes were agreed to in the course of the night.

The House resumed at a late hour, when several bills amongst the orders of the day were advanced a stage.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

The Philosophical Magazine for June, besides various papers on profound mathematical subjects, contains papers by Professor Piazzi Smyth, Professor Clerk Maxwell and Mr. Fleeming Jenkins, "On the Specific Heat of Saturated Vapours, and the Internal Work in Expanding Liquids Heated Above Their Boiling Point." The number includes also a note by Mr. Carrington, "On Sunspots," in which he states that the solar spots appear to be connected with the magnetic storms which affect the earth's magnetic needle; and also contains the results of some calculations by Mr. E. J. Stone of Greenwich Observatory, "On the Temperature of the Earth at Different Depths," and "On the Limit to the eccentricity of the earth's orbit, in a letter sent to the editor by Sir Charles Lyell.

M. Charles Matteucci, who has been engaged in organising a meteorological observatory for Italy resembling the department in our Board of Trade and the latter establishment in France, has published a letter addressed to the Minister of Public Instruction, in which he states his investigations, more especially in regard to the origin and propagation of storms. He has found that the storms which have visited Europe during the last few years, from the 21st of December, 1852, to the 21st of December, 1857, have had their origin in the Atlantic, in the neighbourhood of the Azores, and have travelled, especially in regard to fine weather and violent storms, from the Atlantic to the different ports of the Mediterranean and Adriatic, thirty-five in number, and to the Black Sea, and have proceeded from west to east. In the year 1857 the hurricanes were retarded, especially in regard to fine weather and violent storms, from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean, and Black Sea, and Adriatic for Leghorn, Naples, Sicily, and Cagliari. Among those seventy-nine fortunate storms which have proceeded from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean, the fourth of Gascony and Lyons; from the centre of Germany, Russia, and the Black Sea; the fifth of Switzerland, Germany, and Austria; the sixth of Switzerland, Germany, and Austria; and Ireland, spread in Italy from west to east, after traversing France, Switzerland, and Germany. The Mediterranean storms have very rarely and very feebly attacked the coasts of the Mediterranean from the north of France, have proceeded from the south-west, and have spread from their centre in the north, and principally those which attack Europe by the Mediterranean, and have been called by the Italian meteorologists the storms of intensity in the Mediterranean. It is, then, to the north—especially in the direction of the Mediterranean—that the observations of most especially directed, in regard to the seaports of Italy.

CRICKET AND GAMES OF THE BALL.

AMONG the games of "Merrie England," few, if any, have become so popular among all ranks as cricket. Whether it is of native origin, or whether it is derived from the chuaan of the Persians, we know not. Suffice it to say that in England alone and in her colonies it was reared and matured; and wherever our active countrymen have met abroad, bats, balls, and wickets are invariably been introduced. Under the burning sun of India, in the wild bush of the Cape, amidst the sandy breezes of Italy, on the rugged slopes of the Crimea, on many a palmy plain in Africa, under the mountains of Gibraltar, across the Atlantic, on the prairies of Canada, within a short distance of the mighty cataract of Niagara, on the deserted shores of the Pacific Islands, on the islands of the Mediterranean Sea, amidst the diggings of California, near the spicy groves of Ceylon, close to the ice-bound mines of the irregular mountains of the Ural, in the valleys of the Andes, in the fair plains of Columbia, and under the scorching clime of the Celestial Empire, cricket has flourished. Indeed, the number of cricketers is on the increase. This is as it should be, for we look upon this manly game as likely to be the means of doing away with the present unwholesome strength, grace, quickness of eye and hand, activity and skill, and much of the courage, which are the characteristics of cricketers, come in corpore save. It is, moreover, one that can be played by high and low, rich and poor, old and young, "any" and may at every scene be termed a game for the million. It excites no envy by its circumstances; it equally suits the rich and the poor; and is sociable and universal. Indeed, we ourselves have seen the Royal wicket of the Prince Consort bowled down by a well-directed "long hop" of a plebeian player, and the "Iron Duke" himself, the Duke of Clarence, caught out by the brawny hands of a humble cricketer.

As a general exercise unobjectionable and encouraged, the humbler classes desert the beerhouse and public-houses; it brings them into friendly contact with their betters, and teaches them more valuable lessons than looking with envy and discontent at the enormous wealth of the Cup, amidst the noisy hosannas of dukes or ploughboys, at the same nuisances and curses to a country. How far better, then, is it to encourage a game which is free from all these objections, and of which all take a fair part, and which for fairness, manliness, and healthfulness cannot be surpassed by any recreation we know—and we speak from a tolerably long experience—have we ever witnessed the slightest flaw to the rank, wealth, or position of the highest degree lessened. If the stumps of a local magnate fly out of the ground by the swift and steady bowling of the humble tiller of the soil, his Grace, good-humouredly, compliments the bowler on his skill, and the latter, in his turn, whether he run out through the indirection of his colonel, he is equally respectful to him in private life. If a rich young man hits a catch, the eye of "hatter fingers" that escapes from the lips of some laborious farm servant is not resented by the former as an insult to his position, but as a "cropper," when acting as long field on the outside, he bears the laughter of "chaff" of his cricketing mates with the utmost composure.

In bygone days cricket was principally confined to the metropolis and a few aggressive counties, but Kent and Sussex carrying off the palm. At the present time it has extended to the dark and murky precincts of Lancashire, Sheffield, Rochdale, Bradford, Newcastle, Stockton-on-Tees, Whitehaven, Carlisle, Glasgow, Edinburgh, and has become on with the greatest success at the seats of learning—Oxford, Cambridge, Rugby, Shrewsbury, Harrow, Westminster, Harrow, Rugby, Winchester, Cheltenham, Marlborough, and Charterhouse. At Westminster we find a corpse named Westminster Scholars, which plays matches with freemasons instead of bats, and the second eleven with bats. It was also by the former at a recent meeting, that they have got a new run in their record, which they did with no wicket down. This was effected by the two contestants that took place during the early part of the present century, and which created no small sensation at the time. The first was for a thousand guineas, and came off at the Montpelier Gardens, Walworth, between the two celebrated one-legged pensioners of Greenwich Hospital, and which ended in favour of the "Commodore" by the other two between the Chelsea Boer, a ran of the Marquis of Lothian, and J. Cock, Esq., to play a game of cricket, the latter to receive the odds of the first innings and his water spaniel Drake against Mr. Cock with Mr. Wetherell. The match, which was played on a side, was played at Bridge Road the cricketing-ground, near Fareham. The post assigned to Drake was that of fielder at point, for which he was fitted by nature, and his services could be rendered available, but, as he always caught it at the wicket, he was not allowed to change, as a good a fieldsman as many a biped would have done. The following was the result of the match:

In the first innings Bridger scored fifty, and was caught out; J. Cock scored six, caught by Drake; and Mr. Wetherell was not put to the wicket, without making a run. Mr. Cock then gave up the match. The way in which the dog caught out Bridger and Wetherell was as follows: Wetherell hit the ball smartly for a run, but "Drake," who was fielding at point, much better than the former, instantly stopped it so well, and delivered it so quickly to his partner, Bridger, that the batsman's wicket was knocked down completely.

Much attention has been called to the modern practice of throwing instead of bowling the ball, a practice not only truly dangerous, but one that in a great measure destroys the science of the game. Lords Harris and Sondes, Messrs. Ward, Drummond, Hamilton, and Bedford; the Earls of Winchilsea, Uxbridge, and Darnley; Lords Frederick Beauclerk, Bligh, Upton, and others, did not think it necessary to excuse themselves for bowling underhanded, round-handed, but appeared in summer garments, with no other protection against the ball than a thin flannel jacket. Accidents have since gave them, and the game was quite as well played as it is at the present time. Within the last five-and-twenty years many improvements have taken place in the cricket-field, attributable solely to the velocity with which the ball is now delivered, as the modern bowler takes up by many yards the practical and experienced men, we trust ere long to see the evil got rid of.

In addition to cricket, the ball presents itself in many varied forms. In early youth we have single and double wicket matches, hockey, trapball, and "rounders" (which) as we remember it delights us in the old-fashioned bowling green, flies over the smooth, level turf of the lawn, and in the less exciting pastimes of hand-ball, golfing, rackets, and tennis, diversifying the amusement; and in every form the ball is the same. Nor is it in this universal satisfaction as one of the games of old England. China is famed for its "Tsoo-Kew," a favourite summer song of the Celts, as it was played by the maidens of Corcyra; and from very early times in Great Britain handball was a favourite amusement, being sometimes played both sexes; and in many parts of the kingdom it was customary for the boys to play at the game during Easter-cakes during the Easter holidays. According to an ancient MS. of the time of the time of Edward the Confessor, greens are referred to as having been in vogue early in the thirteenth century; and from the fact that at one time golfing was a fashionable game patronised by royalty. A celebrated bon vivan who wrote nearly a century and a half ago, under the name of Cotton, gives a description of several games of ball played by the ill-fated Mary, Queen of Scots, at the Castle of Loch Leven, one of the numerous keys of London. But we must let the literary lady speak for herself—

"During this time the Queen's chamberlain, Douglas Sheffield, Esq., a Turkish merchant, was an antique building of a castellated form, situated at the gate of the entrance of king, now a town of that name. Here Mr. Shute made one of the prettiest and most commodious bowling greens in the country at that time. Mr. Shute was the best proprietor that the shortness of the time would allow, and so well pleased was the King with the entertainment that he would frequently renoir thither, with only two or three attendants. They generally played high; and, though Mr. Shute often won, yet the King would at one time bet higher than usual, and, having lost several games, gave over. "And, if it please your Majesty," said Mr. Shute, "one thousand pounds, some rubbers more; perhaps luck may turn." "No, no," replied Charles, laying his hand gently on his sword's shoulder; "thou hast won the day, and much good may it do thee; but I must remember I have a wife and children." How happy would it have been for many a family in this country if all gamblers had followed this Royal precept! In conclusion, bowls was a favourite amusement of the "Merry Monarch" during his residence at Tunbridge Wells.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Mr. Beresford Hope, the new President of the Institute of British Architects, will hold his first evening reception on the 30th ult.

The Bank of England has been assessed at the gross annual value of £47,000 by the assessment committee of the City of London Union.

The secretary to the London Hospital says that in twenty-three years more than 2000 cases from the bites from dogs have been brought to that hospital alone.

The Exhibition of Old Masters and Deceased British Artists, at the British Institution, opened on Monday. Our review of the collection is unavoidably postponed till next week.

The Danish residents in London dined together at Radley's Hotel, Blackfriars, in commemoration of the anniversary of the Danish free constitution granted by King Frederick VII.

On Tuesday a testimonial, consisting of a library timepiece and a purse containing 160 guineas, was presented to the Rev. William Foster, founder and minister of the Free Church, Kentish Town.

During the first three days of the present week 1901 persons visited the National Portrait Gallery. On Whit Monday the number of visitors amounted to 1036, being an excess of 583 beyond that of the preceding year.

The All-England and United Elevens met at Lord's ground on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday last. The former made 393 runs, and beat their opponents by 66. About £260 was taken at the gates.

The band belonging to the corps of Commissionnaires began its performances in St. James's Park this year on Monday, and continue them daily, beginning each day at 6.30 pm., weather permitting.

At the evening meeting of the Royal Geographical Society, on Monday next, the following papers will be read:—1, "Journey to the Wahabee Capital, Interior of Arabia," by Colonel Lewis Pelly; 2, "On the Korea," by Captain Allen Young.

An Act of Parliament has been printed to enable Government to acquire additional land for improving the site of the new public offices in Downing-street and the approaches thereto; and one of the last public acts just issued is to enable the Secretary of State in Council of India to acquire additional land for improving the site of the office at Westminster.

On Tuesday morning there was a flower show on an extensive scale in the grounds of Finsbury-circus, attended by persons from the whole of the surrounding districts. The show was an excellent one, and it is intended to continue the experiment in future years. The proceeds are to be handed over to a fund for the relief of aged and disabled gardeners.

The Canadian Ministers and delegates, Messrs. Brown, Galt, Cartier, and M'Gee, were entertained at a splendid banquet given by Sir Morton and Lady Peto, at the Star and Garter, Richmond, on Tuesday night. About 150 ladies and gentlemen were present, and they included representatives of the Grand Trunk and Great Western Railway of Canada and Atlantic and Great Western Railway of the United States, and many of the leading merchants, bankers, and others connected with the trade and commerce of London and Liverpool.

Whit Monday is always a national holiday. The weather on Monday morning was brilliant, and the humbler classes made their way—by van, boat, and rail—to the suburbs of the metropolis by tens of thousands.

At the Architectural Exhibition, Conduit-street, on Tuesday evening, Mr. E. B. Lamb delivered a lecture, entitled "An Architect's Thoughts." The lecturer dwelt upon the necessity of founding architectural criticism upon the great principles of form, harmony, and congruity, rather than upon a learned or antiquarian knowledge of the art, and in illustration gave a critical analysis of St. Martin's Church.

At a meeting of the Court of Common Council, held yesterday week, the architectural improvements going on at the Guildhall were discussed. A report was brought up from the committee who had them in charge, which recommended that £15,000 more than the sums already voted should be spent on further improvements. A member of the Court complained that the original estimate had already been exceeded by £6000, but the Court determined by a large majority to spend the £15,000 more.

The Act of Parliament to make the Metropolitan Houseless Poor Act "perpetual," which received the Royal assent yesterday week, has been printed. It is recited that it is expedient that the provisions of the Act of 1864 "should be made perpetual." The Poor-Law Board is empowered to have the reception-wards inspected, and make, revoke, and renew a certificate. The board may make an allowance for providing wards "instead of a sum in respect of each pauper." The police are to take any destitute person, wayfarer, wanderer, foundling, or other destitute person within the metropolitan district or the city of London, and obtain admission if there be room in a ward. The reception-wards are to be opened for admission between six in the evening and eight in the morning from October to March, and from April to September from eight o'clock in the evening to eight o'clock in the morning; and the guardians are to be reimbursed for all relief administered in conformity with the Act during the hours mentioned.

The birth of 1860 children—969 boys and 891 girls—were registered in London last week. In the corresponding weeks of ten years 1855-64 the average number (corrected for increase of population) was 1871. The deaths registered in London were 1187. The average number for the 22nd—that is, the corresponding week in ten years (corrected for increase of population)—is 1183. The mortality from diarrhœa increases, as is usual with that disease under summer heat; but the increase is not rapid, the deaths from it in the last four weeks having been 22, 25, 27, and 38. Its development assumes more formidable dimensions at a more advanced period of the summer; but at any time it may be controlled by due regard to the wholesome condition of houses and localities, and by the judicious management of young children, to whom the complaint is chiefly fatal. The deaths from typhus in the week were 44. This disease has been less fatal since April.——In the week that ended last Saturday the births in London and ten other large towns of the United Kingdom were 3839; the deaths, 2542. The annual rate of mortality in the week in those eleven towns was 23 per 1000 persons living. In Liverpool the births were 380, the deaths 252; in Manchester—births 232, deaths 206; in Salford—births 82, deaths 43; in Birmingham—births 239, deaths 126; in Leeds—births 144, deaths 104; in Bristol—births 110, deaths, 64; in Hull—births 78, deaths 42; in Edinburgh—births 128, deaths 94; in Glasgow—births 375, deaths 255; and in Dublin—births 211, deaths 169. The rate of mortality last week was 21 per 1000 in London, 28 in Edinburgh, 28 in Dublin, 28 in Liverpool, 30 in Manchester, 20 in Salford, 20 in Birmingham, 24 in Leeds, 21 in Bristol, 21 in Hull, and 31 in Glasgow.

The Dramatic College at Woking was formally opened by the Prince of Wales on Monday. The day was brilliantly fine, and a large company had assembled. At the door of the central hall the Prince received the key from the master, Mr. Webster; and when the door was formally opened his Royal Highness proceeded to the dais, where the company had well settled themselves. The master presented the Prince with an address, to which his Royal Highness made the following reply:—"It is truly gratifying to my feelings to find myself this day called on to take part in the final completion of a building the foundation of which was the work of my lamented father, and it was also a work the success of which he had very much at heart. My satisfaction is increased by finding his beneficent plans carried out in a manner worthy of the cause and of the profession for the benefit of which the Dramatic College has been instituted, and by their being assured that, when the inevitable term approaches, he who has so often administered to you amusement blended with instruction will here find a retreat open for age and its infirmities, in grateful recognition of the debt due to him by the world at large. I am happy to hear that the funds are progressively increasing, and that the council will soon be able to confer the inestimable boon of education on the children of men who, whether by their performances or their writings, have themselves laboured so well in the cause of literature and so justly earned this provision for their offspring. The inauguration of the building we are now in completes the three purposes we have enumerated as forming the general design of the institution. After having provided for the material wants and comforts of those who are entitled to seek shelter in this asylum, the last object is to cheer their evening of life and embellish its closing scenes with the books, memorials, and records of their art, so as to enable them again to live in the past and make their final exit in a spirit of thankfulness to God and to their fellow-creatures." Several ladies having laid purses in aid of the funds of the college on a table in front of his Royal Highness, the Prince said, "I declare this hall now open." The ceremony was concluded with music, when Miss Goddard played "Home, sweet home!" and Mdme. Grisi sang "The last rose of summer."

After a considerable interval, the City Committee intrusted with the distribution of the Lancashire Relief Fund held a general meeting at the Mansion House, on Tuesday—Mr. W. J. R. Cotton acting as chairman. From a financial statement submitted to the meeting it appeared that since April, 1862, when the fund was set on foot, the subscriptions received amounted to £523,964 17s. 6d., which had been further augmented by £4371 12s. 3d. accruing as interest on sums placed with the bankers at call, to £528,336 9s. 9d. The whole sum remitted to Lancashire amounts to £508,806 3s. 11d.; besides which £4836 15s. had been granted for emigration purposes, making the total expenditure towards relief £513,642 18s. 11d. The total disbursements from the beginning amount to £4347 15s. 3d., including advertisements, stationery, and salaries of officers, the advertisements forming the principal item under that head. It was noticed as a gratifying circumstance that the £4371 odd which had accrued at interest on the part of the fund that had been put out at interest at call when it was not wanted for purposes of relief had more than counterbalanced the whole disbursements, so that the fund had throughout been managed and distributed without the loss of a single shilling of the actual subscriptions. A synopsis of the donations, prepared by Mr. Pickering, the cashier, showed that they had come from every quarter of the globe, thus proving the universal sympathy which the calamity evoked. The money so subscribed had been administered, to the amount stated above, through the medium of 260 local relief committees from time to time, in addition to large supplies of blankets and clothing during the winter months in the first two years of the distress. The committee have still a sum of £9220 odd remaining undisposed of, and that they propose to invest, on Government security, until their next meeting in October next, the interest, of course, going on, as it has always done, to increase the fund itself. The distribution of the fund has extended over the time of three Lord Mayors and half way into that of a fourth, every one of whom has, from the first, gladly placed the Mansion House at the disposal of the committee as a place of meeting, and shown them many other courtesies. The committee themselves are all merchants of repute in the City, and they have from the first cheerfully devoted themselves to the work of charity. At their rising, on Tuesday, they stood adjourned until the 3rd of October.

A meeting of the Royal National Life-boat Institution was held, on Thursday week, at its house, John-street, Adelphi. A reward of £13 was voted to the crew of the institution's life-boat at Whitby for putting off through a heavy sea and rescuing nineteen persons from the barque Maria Somes, of London, which was totally wrecked on the rock off Whitby on the night of the 9th ult. A reward of £4 was voted to the crew of the institution's life-boat at Moelfre, Anglesey, for saving a man from a ship's boat which had been carried far out to sea during a strong wind, in Redwharf Bay, on the 16th ult. Rewards amounting to £12 10s. were granted to the crews of the life-boats of the institution at Cahore and Scarborough for putting off, in reply to signals of distress from vessels which did not ultimately need the services of the life-boats. Various other rewards were granted to the crews of shore boats for saving life from shipwreck on the coast of the United Kingdom. A report was read from the institution's inspector of life-boats on some comparative trials which had been recently made at Cherbourg with three life-boats. One of the boats was built in London, under the superintendence of the institution, for the Paris Shipwreck Society; the two others were the inventions of French persons, and were built at Havre. The English life-boat, which is the result of great experience, had the advantage. It was reported that the subscribers to the Dundee People's Journal had, through its proprietor, W. D. Latto, Esq., contributed £800, to pay the cost of two new life-boats and transporting carriages, which the institution is about to station at Peterborough and Arbroath. The Rev. E. S. Corrie has also forwarded to the institution £2 15s., being the sum collected for it by an invalid boy from friends visiting him.——Miss Florence Nightingale has sent to the institution £20, accompanied by an encouraging letter, in which she says that she herself had been so happy as to see with her own eyes the noble endurance—"obedience unto death"—of an army in which every man was a hero, and expresses a hope "that God will continue to bless as He manifestly has blessed the Life-boat Institution."——A fine new life-boat and transporting carriage have this week been forwarded by the National Life-boat Institution to North Sunderland, Northumberland, in lieu of a smaller boat and carriage previously stationed there. The cost of the boat and its equipment, together with its transporting carriage, amounting in all to £400, has been presented to the institution by Mrs. Anstice, of Tynemouth, Northumberland, and her life-boat is named the Joseph Anstice. The National Institution has now nine life-boats on the Northumberland coast, on which it has spent nearly £5000. Altogether, the institution has now 148 life-boat stations under its management, which require the annual income of about £7400 to keep them effective. ——The Herbert Ingram life-boat was launched at Skegness, on the Lincolnshire coast, one day last week, with much festive ceremony; the Spilsby rifle corps forming a guard of honour.

Law and Police.—In the case "Everett and Another v. the London Assurance Company," argued in the Court of Common Pleas on Thursday week, an important decision was given. The plaintiffs had insured their premises with the defendants against fire. Those premises were damaged by the gunpowder explosion at Erith, and the plaintiffs sued the company for £20, the amount of the damage. The company denied their liability. The Court decided in favour of the defendants. They held that the damage did not come within the terms of the policy of insurance.

Mr. Tidd Pratt refused to certify some alterations in the rules of the United Temperance Sick and Burial Society of St. Patrick, in Liverpool, on the ground that the circumstances under which the alterations were made appeared to him to be illegal. Application was on Monday made to the Court of Queen's Bench for a mandamus to compel him. The Court refused the rule.

At the Mansion House Police Court, on Saturday last, the Lord Mayor delivered judgment in the case of the Messrs. Hadley, millers, of Thames-street, who were charged with being in unlawful possession of sacks not their own. His Lordship held that the offence was fully proved, and he fined the defendants £15 and costs. His Lordship also convicted and fined Messrs. Kitchen and Turnbull, hop merchants, £27 each, for having put on some pockets of hops a false description of the place where they were grown.

In the course of the last few months several attempts have been made to break into the house of Mr. Debenham, a surgeon, residing in Commercial-road East, London. On Monday night Mr. Debenham was aroused by a noise in the rear of his house, and on looking out he saw a man near the kitchen-window. He challenged him, and, having received no reply, fired—intending, as was afterwards explained, to frighten rather than to hurt the intruder. The bullet, however, entered the man's head, killing him on the spot. Mr. Debenham at once informed the police of what had occurred, and on Tuesday he was taken before the Thames magistrate, and remanded on bail. The man who was shot has been identified. He is not a burglar. He was holiday-making with some friends at a house in Heath street, adjoining Mr. Debenham's garden, on Monday night, and was the worse for liquor. He climbed over a wall, reached Mr. Debenham's garden, and was shot. A coroner's inquest was held on Thursday. The jury returned a verdict that the deceased had been shot by Mr. Debenham, but that the pistol was fired only with the view of frightening the deceased.

At the Middlesex Sessions, on Wednesday, Ann Ross was charged with cruel treatment to her son, a boy in his eighth year. This unnatural parent had burnt her child on his lips and cheeks with a skewer made red-hot for the purpose. The boy deposed to other acts of cruelty. The jury found her guilty of a common assault, and Mr. Bodkin sentenced her to three months' imprisonment with hard labour.

Suicides are taking place in London with great frequency. At the Guildhall, on Wednesday, three persons were charged with attempting to drown themselves in the Thames. In the other courts there were two other cases. Four of the unfortunate creatures who had thus abandoned themselves to despair were women.

M. Rupffer, the eminent director of the Observatory of St. Petersburg, died on Sunday.

Herrings have been caught in such numbers off the Gulf of St. Lawrence that they have been sold at 3d. per hundred.

Thalberg has settled down into a quiet cultivator of the vine at Pausilippa, where he has inherited from Signor Lablache a picturesque and productive vineyard.

Mr. Elphinstone Jackson, of the Bengal Civil Service, has been appointed a Judge of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William, in Bengal.

Mrs. Cobden has gratefully declined a proposal made by Government to grant her a pension of £1500 per annum, in recognition of Mr. Cobden's distinguished public services.

Tuesday's Gazette contains an official letter from Earl Russell, formally withdrawing belligerent rights from the ships of "the so-called Confederate States." Any such vessels that may now be in British ports are forthwith to depart, and, for the last time, United States vessels that may be watching them, will be prohibited from doing so before the lapse of twenty-four hours. If the commanders of Confederate vessels wish to divest them of their warlike character they may do so, but at their own risk.

President Johnson commences his presidential career with an intimation that he declines to receive any presents. To some wealthy citizens who sent him a splendid carriage and a "span of horses," he writes:—"While I fully appreciate the purity of your motives in thus tendering to me such substantial evidence of your regard and esteem, I am compelled, solely from the convictions of duty I have ever held in reference to the acceptance of presents by those occupying high official positions, to decline the offerings of kind and loyal friends. The retention of the parchment conveying your sentiments, and the autographs of those who were pleased to unite in this manifestation of regard, is a favour I would ask; and I assure you, gentlemen, I shall regard it as one of the highest marks of respect from any portion of my fellow-citizens. Trusting that I shall continue to merit your confidence and esteem in the discharge of the high and important duties upon which I have but just entered, and with the best wishes for your health, &c., individually, I am, gentlemen, yours truly, Andrew Johnson."

The friends of General Grant in Philadelphia have presented him with a new house, completely furnished. The arrival of the General, with his family, last week, was (says the Boston Congregationalist) characteristic of the man. He made special request of the committee of presentation that there should be no reception or public announcement of his coming, and so careful were the gentlemen of the committee of the General's wishes that, outside of their own number, not twenty persons in the city knew of his coming till he landed at Walnut-street Wharf. The General's Staff for this peace movement consisted of his wife and three children, and maid, and Lieutenant-Colonel Parker, an Indian, who has accompanied General Grant since the beginning of his Mississippi campaign. Before a crowd could gather, the party were welcomed within the doors of 2009, Chestnut-street, by the committee of presentation and a few ladies from their families. George H. Stuart, chairman of the committee, in a brief greeting, that touched all hearts by its allusions to the General's bright career, and the nation's joy and love, presented the deed and the keys of the house. The General's response was briefer still, and he broke down with emotion in the attempt to express gratitude for so generous a recognition of humble service for country. After the introduction to the house in all its apartments, the family were invited upstairs to a collation spread by ladies. The house is one of a block of brick, with brown stone dressing, on Chestnut-street, above 20th. It is now and neat, and, like its occupant, without pretension, and eminently adapted for service. It cost, with the furniture, not far from 50,000 dols.

UXBRIDGE RACES.—Tuesday.

Uxbridge Plate.—Jupon, 1. Mrs. Somerville, 2. Chiquot the Jester, 3.
Selling Plate.—Vicksburg, 1. Mazaguzo, 2. Frileuse, 3.
Welter Handicap.—Mrs. Somerville, 1. Lisette, 2. Zara, 3.
Volunteer Cup.—Ephemera, 1. Vision, 2. Diana, 3.
Selling Handicap Hurdle Race.—Ephemera, 1. White Stockings, 2.
Handicap for Beaten Horses.—Betsy Copeland, 1. Thais, 2.

CHELMSFORD SUMMER MEETING.—Wednesday.

Trial Stakes.—Menace, 1. Camillus, 2. Truant, 3.
Great Baddow Two-year-old Stakes.—Cecrops, 1. Cesarewitch, 2. Pinchbeck, 3.
Galleywood Stakes.—Usher, 1. Lady Avon f., 2. The Leader, 3.
Chelmsford Handicap.—Lucky Star, 1. The Eland, 2. Quarantine, 3.
Marks Hall Stakes.—Maid of Usk, 1. Catherine, 2. Frileuse, 3.
Town Plate.—Sir Roger, 1. Vigil, 2. Walloon, 3.

THURSDAY.

Essex Handicap.—Dawdle, 1. Veluti, 2. Dolphin, 3.
Gentlemen's Plate.—Vigil, 1. Camillus, 2. Freestone, 3.
Member's Plate.—Gem, 1. Bella, 2. Eugenie, 3.
Nursery Handicap.—Mother-of-Pearl, 1. Mdlle. Cleopatra, 2. Arethusa, 3.
Queen's Guineas.—Sir Roger, 1. Quarantine, 2.
Maiden Plate.—Catherine, 1. Master Strutt, 2.

MANCHESTER SUMMER MEETING.—Wednesday.

Trial Handicap.—Success, 1. Lady of Coverdale, 2. Lady Bohun, 3.
Sapling Stakes.—Black Jacket, 1. The Dannebrog, 2. Lady Constance, 3.
Union Cup.—Moulsey, 1. Wild Poppy, 2. Gemma, 3.
Chesterfield Handicap.—Wynnstay, 1. Danaus, 2. Breffni, 3.
Phillips Handicap.—Jig, 1. Cutaway, 2. Skylark, 3.
Maiden Plate.—Sahara, 1. Madras, 2. Pas de Extase, 3.

THURSDAY.

Trafford Handicap.—Moulsey, 1. Persuasion, 2. Breffni, 3.
Two-year-old Stakes.—X I, 1. Belmont, 2. Oracle, 3.
Tradesmen's Cup.—Cathedral, 1. Helen, 2. Nemo, 3.
Selling Handicap.—Sweetness, 1. Well Done, 2.
City Handicap.—Lady Bohun, 1. Lady Abbess, 2. Creme Vanile, 3.
Queen's Plate.—Helen, 1. Sprite, 2. Asthore, 3.

VERSAILLES RACES.—June 4.

Prix du Conseil-General.—Meli-Melo, 1. Prince Regent, 2. Girouette, 3.
Prix de la Société d'Encouragement.—Le Bearnais, 1. Quaker, 2. Tourmalet, 3.
Prix de l'Empereur.—Joli Cœur, 1. Yamuna, 2. Misterton, 3.
Grand Prix de la Ville de Versailles.—Canotière, 1. Brioche, 2. St. Jean-d'Acre, 3.
Prix de Satory.—Lothaire, 1. Tilly, 2.

An American paper states that the cemetery at Richmond contains 60,000 new graves.

A butcher at Lyons has been fined 16f. and costs for weighing with a piece of meat the paper in which it was to be enveloped.

Porpoises are sold in the San Francisco fish market—the tongue, brains, and liver of the porpoise being considered delicacies by the San Franciscans.

A woman, in country costume, entering Rome a few days ago, was stopped and examined at the gate, when a letter was found on her containing a human ear. She was a brigand messenger sent in for a ransom.

The Royal Agricultural Benevolent Society held their fifth anniversary dinner on Wednesday—Earl Spencer, K.G., in the chair. In 1861 £455 was appropriated to twenty pensioners, whereas now sixty are supported on £1326. The annual subscriptions have reached £2944 3s. 6d., being an increase of £620 12s. Exactly £12,600 have been invested in five years, and the bankers' balance is £655 1s. 4d.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

Friday, June 2.

BANKRUPTS.

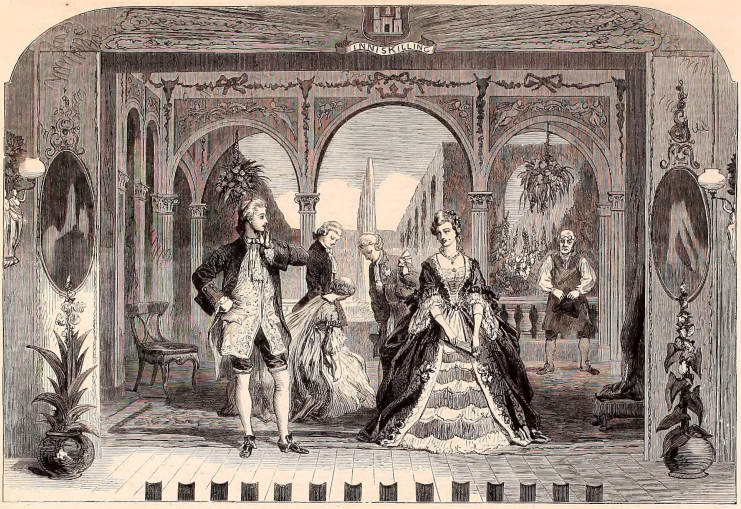
H. FEATHERSTONHAUGH, Duke-street.—R. G. BROWN, Islington, general dealer.—J. LAINSON, Pimlico, plumber.—H. MARCHANT, Old Brompton, farrier.—B. TOWNER, Southover, Sussex, butcher.—G. E. PREECE, Chancery-lane, commission agent.—J. P. CORNFORTH, City, shipowner.—W. C. ELLIS, Chenies, Dissenting Minister.—E. WILTSHIRE, Harwell, licensed victualler.—I. ABLETT, Basinghall-street, attorney. S. AINSWORTH, High Holborn, seedsman.—W. T. JEWELL, Long-acre, publican.—A. B. ASHFORD, Maida-hill, surgeon.—W. HOLLINSHEAD, St. Neots, gas engineer.—W. LINFIELD, Pulborough, grocer.—J. JONES, Shrewsbury, provision-dealer.—J. WILSON, Old Necke, farmer.—B. CHERRINGTON, Donington, chemist.—S. KUTTNER, Cardiff, provision merchant.—J. and B. TAYLOR, Halifax, woollen manufacturers.—J. HARRISON, Leeds, plumber.—L. HARRIS, Leeds, cap manufacturer.—J. FAWCETT, West Ardsley, publican.—E. HALLER, Kingston-on-Hull, currier.—J. ROBERTS, Flintshire, farmer.—T. BRYNING, Liverpool, packing-case maker.—R. EVANS, Llanerchymedd, grocer.—H. W. ANSDELL, Liverpool, merchant.—W. TAYLOR, Wigan, grocer.—T. TOMKINSON, Salford, wood-turner.—W. CAMPBELL, Bolton, cabinet-maker.—E. WORSEY, Liverpool, commission agent.—P. LEAHY, Bristol, carpenter.—C. AINSWORSH, Hereford, yeoman.—T. SCHORAH, Brotherton, bootmaker.—W. SMITH, Leeds, machinist.—W. CORSER, Chorlton-on-Medlock, grocer.—J. ROBINSON, Leeds, fishmonger.—J. MARSON, Sedgley, grocer.—L. LEECH, Aldmondbury, German yeast dealer.—J. ROSTRON and M. FARNWORTH, Radcliffe, waste bleachers.—B. PURTON, East Peckham, baker.—E. J. UDALL, Southampton, painter.—T. HARRIS, Oxford, builder. T. P. HARRIS, Chorlton-on Medlock, warehouseman.—H. FOLLOWS, Stafford, licensed victualler.—N. HAUGHTON, Stafford, builder.—J. MASSEY, Oldham, chemist.—J. E. CLARKE, Canterbury, stationer.—W. GWYNNE, Monmouthshire, farmer.—J. MANUEL, Canterbury, dealer.—C. DOWDING, Houghton, shoemaker.—W. HOWMAN, Field Dalling, collar-maker.—J. SPARKES, Purbrook, carpenter.—W. SAVAGE, Forton, tailor.—J. DOVER, Milborne Port, tailor.—E. EMERY, Stow-on-the-Wold, schoolmaster.—J. PADBURY, Upper Oddington, shoemaker.—G. TERRANT, Sittingbourne, carpenter.—G. BUTTON, Christchurch, butcher.—T. ARDERN, Middlewich.—R. J. LOVEGROVE, Liverpool, cartowner.

Tuesday, June 6.

BANKRUPTCIES ANNULLED.

J. MAIDLOW, Chepstow-place, Bayswater, builder.—J. H. CHALLENGER, Upper Cleveland-street, Fitzroy-square, journeyman pianoforte manufacturer.—W. HATCH, Brighton, dealer in boots.—M. POUND, Leather-lane, Holborn, wholesale and retail chemist.—E. WOLLHEIM, Charles-street, Westbourne-terrace, merchant.

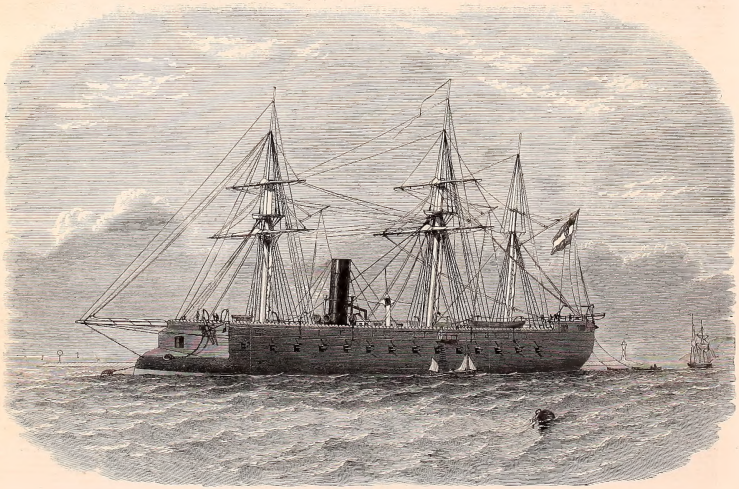
BANKRUPTS.



H. STONEHAM, Bedhampton, miller.—B. A. HYETT, Lambeth, machinist.—W. D. JONES, City, merchant.—R. S. BLADES, Hounslow, tailor.—T. HEYWOOD, Bloomsbury, commission agent.—S. CASWELL, Pimlico, baker.—J. MAJOR, Hampstead, farmer.—J. J. BISHOP, Poltsea, timber merchant.—W. CAKEBREAD, South Mimms, mason.—W. A. SMITH, Haverstock-hill, builder.—J. H. WATSON, Norwich, tailor.—J. WILLIAMS, Birmingham, grocer.—J. MOYSE, Crutchedfriars, merchant.—W. NICE, Stratford, cutler. W. J. TERRY, Broadstairs, publican.—W. ADAMS, Kentish Town, carpenter.—H. B. OAKLEY, Bromyard, hotel-keeper.—S. J. KING and W. ELLIS, Nottingham, boxmakers. C. L. BROOKE, Bristol.—W. BIDMEAD, Cheltenham, builder.—S. TRAVIS, Weston-super-Mare, butcher.—S. PHILLIPS, Tavistock, bookseller.—J., D., and W. SLACK, Batley, woollen manufacturers.—A. WHITAKER, Ossett, ragdealer.—T. WOOD, Pickering, builder.—W. ROBSON, Sheffield, grocer.—W. FOREMAN, St. Helens, printer.—G. PRYOR, Liverpool, sailmaker.—J. HOLMES, Liverpool, boiler-maker.—M. H. WRIGLEY, Liverpool, horsedealer.—M. WATSON, Liverpool, hosier.—W. L. HUGHES, Holyhead, attorney.—T. NEALE, Audenshaw, commission agent.—T. BOOTH, Manchester, leather-factor.—J. J. JACKSON, Bayswater, wine agent.—J. MARSHALL, Bradford, silk and cotton waste dealer.—J. DOOEL, Framsden, steam-engine thrashing proprietor.—A. M. DEAN, Birmingham, civil engineer.—C. READ, Birmingham, ironmonger.—G. T. CASSON, Williton, saddler.—E. GREEN, Meanwood, oil extractor.—J. COCKSHOTT, Manchester, butcher.—T. RYLES, Cheadle, innkeeper.—J. ELDER, Longhoughton, blacksmith.—W. WALTERS, Trallong, bootmaker.—W. COUPE, Chesterfield, butcher.—T. TOPPING, Birkenhead, pork butcher.—C. AINSWORTH, Much Marcle, yeoman.—W. TESTER, Eastbourne, dairyman.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

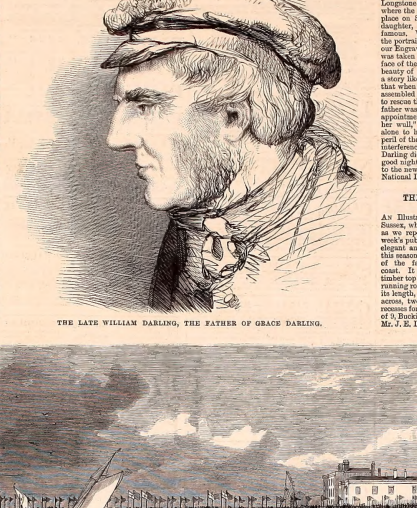
J. U. and Mrs. E. U. HARVEY, Ayr, painters.—W. WYLIE, Glasgow, builder.—J. MITCHELL, Elgin, merchant.



PRIVATE THEATRICALS OF THE INNISKILLING DRAGOONS AT MHOW.

The unhappy dissensions which lately made the social life of the officers of the Inniskilling Regiment of Dragoons the subject of an extraordinary judicial inquiry, and of a vast amount of public comment, seem now to have given place to a much more agreeable state of feeling at the Mhow station, where this regiment is still quartered. We have much pleasure, therefore, in publishing the Illustration, sent us by the last Indian mail, of a clever performance of amateur theatricals in the regimental theatre at Mhow, in the presence of the General commanding at that station, of Colonel and Mrs. Crawley, and all the officers of the Inniskilling Dragoons, who, with their families, occupied the dress boxes, while the pit and second tier of boxes were crowded by the non-commissioned officers and men of that regiment. The gentlemen and ladies who had volunteered to appear in this entertainment selected "The Wonderful Woman" and "Betsy Baker" for the two pieces to be played. In the former piece, the character of the Marquis de Frontignac was sustained by Major the Hon. C. Thesiger; that of the Viscount de Millefleurs by Captain Weatherby; that of Rodolphe by Mr. Cottle; and that of Crépin by Mr. Malone. As for the female characters, that of Mdme. Hortense was played by Mrs. W——; and Cecile by Mr. Clarke, of the 103rd Regiment. The following was the cast in the farce of "Betsy Baker":—The part of Mr. Mouser was taken by Colonel Gage, Royal Artillery; and that of Mr. Crummy, by Major the Hon. C. Thesiger; while Mrs. Mouser was played by Mr. Clarke; and the part of Betsy Baker fell to Mrs. W——. Our correspondent says:—"Nothing could have been more beautifully put upon the stage than the comedy of 'A Wonderful Woman.' The first scene (which is shown in our Illustration) represented a boudoir of the time of Louis XIV., opening on to an old-fashioned garden. This scene and the second, which was a landscape with a cobbler's-stall in the foreground, were painted by Mr. Cottle, of the Inniskilling Dragoons, and would really have done credit to any professional scene-painter.

PRIVATE THEATRICALS OF THE INNISKILLING DRAGOONS AT MHOW, INDIA.

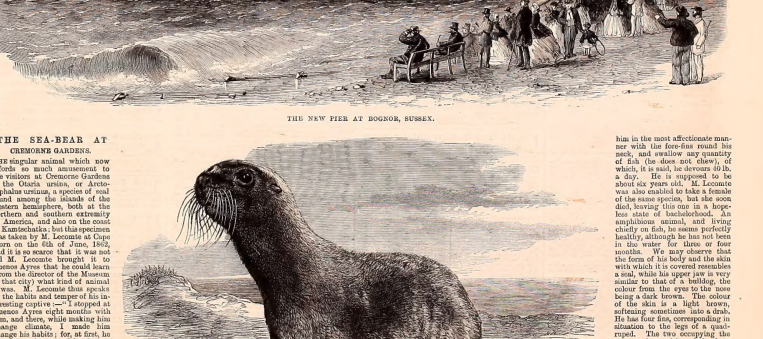


The acting was as good as the scenery which is saying a great deal. Mrs. W., as the Wonderful Woman herself, was admirable. She acted most naturally and most gracefully; and she was well supported by Major the Hon. C. Thesiger; while Captain Weatherby made a capital exquisite; and Mr. Malone, as Crispin, the cobbler, was so perfectly natural, that one might have imagined a cobbler's stall had been his abode all his previous life. The small parts of Cecile and Rodolphe were also well acted. At the close of this piece there was a unanimous call for all the performers. Between the two pieces Mr. Ingo, in the character of 'the Broken-hearted Milkman,' sang 'Polly Perkins' with great success. In the performance of 'Betsy Baker' Mrs. W——, Colonel Gage, and Major Thesiger kept the audience in a roar of laughter. We were, indeed, at a loss whether to admire the lady most in the powder and patches of the first piece or in the gingham and pattens she wore in the second; but I have preferred, for the subject of my sketch, to take a group of the characters in 'The Wonderful Woman,' showing the Marquis de Frontignac and Mdme. Hortense in the foreground."

THE KAISER MAX, AUSTRIAN STEAM-RAM, IN PLYMOUTH SOUND.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE AUSTRIAN IRON-CLAD STEAM-RAM KAISER MAX.

OUR Illustration represents the Austrian vessel of war lately arrived in Plymouth Sound. The Kaiser Max was built at Trieste and launched about two years since. She is a wooden vessel, plated with iron, having very thick timber sides, covered with plates 4½ in. in thickness. Her length is about 260 ft. Her stern is somewhat sharp, and in front of her bow she has a heavy ram, which projects considerably beyond the cutwater. This ram is roofed over with thick plates, and on the roof stands a wooden building, usually used as a workshop, but which is removed on going into action, disclosing a thick iron-plated partition, through which two rifled cannon fire straight forward over the ram. On her fighting-deck, which is plated throughout, she carries sixteen 48-pounder smooth-bore muzzle-loaders and twelve 24-pounder rifled breech loaders. On her sailing-deck she has three more of the same kind, making thirty-one guns in all. The rifling is rather slight, somewhat resembling that of the Enfield small-arms, the grooves being about three times the width of the Armstrong breech-loader. In loading, the breech is withdrawn horizontally, thereby allowing of the opening of a breechpiece, which is hinged on to the rear of the gun. The charge is introduced through the aperture thus made; the breechpiece is then closed, the massive breech is replaced, and the whole secured by half a turn of a handle about double the size of that of a railway carriage. The shot is precisely similar to that of the Armstrong gun. The back wheels of the gun-carriages are hung on excentric axles, so that the gunner, by means of a small lever, can take the weight of the gun off the skids and throw it on the wheels, thus facilitating the running out of the gun. The crew of the Kaiser Max consists of 600 men, of whom 100 are marines. Her engine-power is 600 horse. Her propeller as well as her steering apparatus is completely under water, so that her becoming disabled in that parts seems next to impossible. She draws 24 ft. aft and 18 ft. forward, turns readily, and attains a maximum speed of fourteen knots. The Austrian Government have one other vessel of this class. The design seems, in many respects, well worthy of attention.



THE LATE WILLIAM DARLING, THE FATHER OF GRACE DARLING.

THE FATHER OF GRACE DARLING.

IN our last week's Paper was recorded the death, at Bamborough, Northumberland, on Sunday week, of old William Darling, for many years keeper of the Longstone Lighthouse, Farn Islands, off that coast, where the wreck of the Forfarshire steamer took place on Sept. 6, 1838, which the heroism of his daughter, Grace Darling, has made historically famous. We are indebted to Sir Walter James for the portrait—a slight pencil drawing—from which our Engraving of the old man's likeness is made. It was taken in September last, when the venerable face of the brave octogenarian preserved that serene beauty of expression which became a character and a story like his: for it must always be remembered that when Grace Darling had in vain implored the assembled boatmen of the shore to make one effort to rescue the drowning people from the wreck, her father was moved by the girl's tears of pity and disappointment. He exclaimed, "She's much shall has her wull," and launching his own boat, with her alone to help him at the oar, went forth, at the peril of their lives, to save those who, without their interference, would certainly have perished. Grace Darling died of consumption a few years after that good night's work. Her name has just been given to the new life-boat established at Holy Isle by the National Life-boat Institution.

THE NEW PIER AT BOGNOR, SUSSEX.

AN Illustration of the new pier at Bognor, in Sussex, which was opened on the 6th of last month, as we reported at the time, is engraved for this week's publication. This structure, which is both elegant and convenient, will doubtless be admired this season by an increased number of visitors to one of the favourite watering-places of the south coast. It consists of iron screw-piles supporting a timber top framing, with an ornamental hand railing running round it. The width of the pier is 18 ft.; its length, 1000 ft. It has an octagonal head 60 ft. across, two landing-stairs for pleasure-boats, and recesses for seats. The engineer is Mr. J. W. Wilson, of 5 Buckingham-street, Strand; and the contractor, Mr. J. E. Dowson, of Victoria-street, Westminster.

THE NEW PIER AT BOGNOR, SUSSEX.

THE SEA-BEAR AT CREMORNE GARDENS.

THE singular animal which now affords so much amusement to the visitors at Cremorne Gardens is the Otaria ursina, or Arctocephalus ursinus, a species of seal found among the islands of the western hemisphere, both at the northern and southern extremity of America, and also on the coast of Kamtschatka; but this specimen was taken by M. Lecomte at Cape Horn on the 6th of June, 1862, and it is so scarce that it was not till M. Lecomte brought it to Buenos Ayres that he could learn (from the director of the Museum in that city) what kind of animal it was. M. Lecomte thus speaks of the habits and temper of his interesting captive:—"I stopped at Buenos Ayres eight months with him, and there, while making him change climate, I made him change his habits; for, at first, he refused fresh-water fish; but, a little later, I got him to eat it. As to his education, I never employed but kindness, although he often bit me, and even maimed my right hand. I never struck him, I never kept him from his food; but then, I have made of him a true friend. He has so much love for me that when I want to leave him he opposes himself to it. He likes to caress me, and likes to be caressed. The ferocity he had in his wild state has altogether disappeared, and given place to kindness. He likes society, and if I leave him alone longer than usual he cries."

This curious marine animal, which is nearly 6 ft. in length, will stand on his hinder fins, sit on a chair, climb up a ladder, make audible sounds to his owner, kiss him in the most affectionate manner with the fore-fins round his neck, and swallow any quantity of fish (he does not chew), of which, it is said, he devours 40 lb. a day. He is supposed to be about six years old. M. Lecomte was also enabled to take a female of the same species, but she soon died, leaving this one in a hopeless state of bachelorhood. An amphibious animal, and living chiefly on fish, he seems perfectly healthy, although he has not been in the water for three or four months. We may observe that the form of his body and the skin with which it is covered resembles a seal, while his upper jaw is very similar to that of a bulldog, the colour from the eyes to the nose being a dark brown. The colour of the skin is a light brown, softening sometimes into a drab. He has four fins, corresponding in situation to the legs of a quadruped. The two occupying the comparative position of the fore-legs are fins; but the posterior fins have each five phalanges, resembling, in a crude manner, the human hand, but webbed like the feet of a duck. He has, also, the germ of a tail, about an inch and a half in length. He has very long teeth and powerful jaws. The animals of this kind off Kamtschatka and the Kurile Islands are described as living in large families, each male being surrounded with a harem of from fifty to eighty females, whom he guards with the utmost jealousy. They remain on shore for about two months at a time, in the season when the females bring forth their young. Other species of the seal kind, called the sea-elephant and sea-lion, differ materially from the sea-bear.

THE SEA-BEAR AT CREMORNE GARDENS.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, June 5.—The supply of English wheat here to-day was only moderate, and nearly the whole of the samples were disposed of at last week's prices. There was a fair inquiry for fine foreign wheats, on former terms; but other descriptions met a heavy sale, at barely late rates. Floating cargoes of grain were dull, and rather cheaper. Barley—the show of which was tolerably good—moved off slowly, and in some instances the currencies had a drooping tendency. In malt very little was passing. Prices, however, were supported. Good sound oats were firm. Heated qualities met a dull inquiry. Beans and peas were held at full quotations. The flour trade was inactive.

June 7.—Most kinds of produce met a slow inquiry to-day; yet, compared with Monday, no change took place in prices.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 39s. to 43s.; ditto, white, 41s. to 48s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 39s. to 43s.; rye, 26s. to 28s.; grinding barley, 22s. to 25s.; distilling ditto, 26s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 30s. to 33s.; malt, 47s. to 62s.; oats, 16s. to 21s.; beans 35s. to 41s.; peas, 34s. to 40s. per quarter; town-made flour, 33s. to 40s.; country marks, 26s. to 29s. per 280 lb.

Seeds.—The demand for agricultural seeds is heavy, at barely late rates. Linseed, rapeseed, and cakes are very dull.

Linseed, English, sowing, 68s. to 70s.; Calcutta, 54s. to 55s.; hempseed, 44s. to 46s. per quarter; tares, 9s. 0d. to 10s. 0d. per bushel; white mustard seed, 10s. 0d. to 12s. 0d.; brown ditto, 10s. to 11s. per bushel; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt.; red clover seed, 60s. to 90s.; white ditto, 62s. to 75s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 41s. 11d.; barley, 29s. 1d.; oats, 22s. 6d.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 70,443; barley, 2873; oats, 2932 quarters.

Tea.—There is about an average business doing in all kinds, at full quotations. The stock is still very large.

Sugar.—The transactions in raw qualities have not increased, yet prices have been well supported. Stock, 84,780 tons, against 78,631 tons in 1864. Refined goods move off slowly, at late rates.

Coffee.—Prices are firm, and the market generally is steady. The stock consists of 10,500 tons, against 8710 tons last year.

Rice.—Most kinds are in fair request, at full quotations. Stock, 23,930 tons, against 38,563 tons in 1864.

Provisions.—The butter market is steady, and the quotations are fairly supported. Bacon moves off freely, at 70s. per cwt. for Waterford on board, and 60s. to 62s. for Hambro'. Hams and lard continue very firm. In other provisions very little is doing.

Tallow.—The market is tolerably firm. P.Y.C., on the spot, 41s. 6d. per cwt. Stock, 51,890 casks, against 44,862 ditto last year. Rough fat, 2s. 0½d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil is selling at £32 15s. to £33; rape, £42 to £45; and fine palm, £36 to £36 10s. French turpentine, 55s. per cwt.

Spirits.—There is a fair demand for rum, at full quotations. In brandy, however, very little is doing. British spirit, 11s. 8d.; malt spirit, 12s. 6d. to 13s. 6d.; and English gin, for export, proof, 2s. 3d. to 2s. 6d. per gallon.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 4s. to £5 15s.; clover, £5 5s. to £6 12s. 6d.; and straw, £1 6s. to £1 13s. per load.

Coals.—Newcastle, 13s. 3d. to 17s.; Sunderland, 16s. to 18s.; other qualities, 16s. 6d. to 22s. per ton.

Hops.—Selected qualities are in fair request, at full prices. All other kinds move off slowly, at late rates. The quotations range from 100s. to 200s. per cwt.

Wool.—Privately, very little is doing; but at public sale large quantities of wool continue to change hands, at the opening decline.

Potatoes.—The supplies are large, and the trade is heavy, at from 45s. to 110s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, June 8).—The supply of beasts in to-day's market was tolerably good, and all breeds moved off slowly, at prices barely equal to Monday. The best Scots and crosses sold at 4s. 10d. to 5s. per 8 lb. With sheep we were fairly supplied. Good and prime Downs and half-breds were in steady request, at full quotations—viz., from 6s. to 6s. 2d. per 8 lb. Otherwise, the mutton trade was inactive, at late rates. We have to report a good demand for lambs, at extreme currencies. The quotations ranged from 6s. 4d. to 8s. per 8 lb. Calves were in good supply and steady request, at 2d. per 8 lb. more money. The top figure was 5s. 4d. per 8 lb. The demand for pigs and milch cows was inactive, on former terms.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 6d. to 3s. 10d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 4d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 8d.; prime Scots, &c., 4s. 10d. to 5s. 0d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 10d.; second quality ditto, 5s. 0d. to 5s. 4d.; prime coarse-woolled ditto, 5s. 6d. to 5s. 10d.; prime Southdown ditto, 6s. 0d. to 6s. 2d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 10d.; prime small ditto, 5s. 0d. to 5s. 4d.; large hogs, 3s. 8d. to 4s. 4d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 10d.; lambs, 6s. 4d. to 8s. 0d.; suckling calves, 19s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 25s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1110; cows, 138; sheep and lambs, 12,100; calves, 470; pigs, 313. Foreign: Beasts, 520; sheep and lambs, 4600; calves, 427.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—The supplies of meat are limited, yet the trade is heavy, on rather lower terms.

ROBERT HERBERT.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

NOTWITHSTANDING that the purchases of Stock on account of the public have been by no means extensive, the market for most Home Securities has ruled firm, and in some instances the quotations have had an upward tendency. The Unfunded Debt has commanded very little attention; but Indian Stocks, &c., have been dealt in to a fair extent.

The supply of money on offer in the Discount Market is very large. The demand for accommodation is by no means active, at the annexed rates for the best commercial paper:—

Thirty days' bills	3½ ¾ per cent.
Sixty days' bills	3¾ ,,
Three months' bills	3¾ ⅞ ,,
Four months' bills	4 ,,
Six months' bills	4½ ,,

The joint-stock banks are giving 2½ per cent for money at call, 2¾ with seven, and 3 per cent with fourteen days' notice of withdrawal.

Capital is gradually declining on the Continent. The quotations in the leading cities are:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	3	2¾ 3
Vienna	5	5¼
Berlin	4	3¾
Frankfort	4	3
Amsterdam	3	3
Turin	5	4¾ 5.
Brussels	3	3
Madrid	8	9
Hamburg	—	2½
St. Petersburg	5½	7

The imports of the precious metals have been on a fair average scale, and several parcels of gold have been sold to the Bank of England. £75,000, however, has been withdrawn for Portugal. Mexican dollars have found buyers at 59¾d. per ounce.

The Council for India have disposed of £300,000 in bills on the various Presidencies. The minimum prices on Calcutta and Madras was 1s. 10⅞d.; on Bombay, 1s. 10⅞d.

On Monday Home Stocks were steady in price:—Consols, for Money, realised 89⅞ 90; Ditto, for Account, 90⅛; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89¾ ⅞; India Bonds, 15s. to 20s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 4s. prem.; Bank Stock was 241 to 243; India Stock, 215 to 218; Rupee Paper, 100½ to 101½, and 107 to 109. Very little change took place in the quotations on the following day:—Consols, for Transfer, closed at 89⅞ 90; Ditto, for Time, 90⅛; Bank Stock, 242 to 244; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89¾ ⅞; India Stock, 215 to 218; India Five per Cents, 103⅞ to 104⅛; India Bonds, 15s. to 20s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 4s. prem.; India Five per Cent Rupee Paper, 101; Ditto, Five-and-a-Half per Cent, 108¾. On Wednesday Consols, for Money, were done at 90 to ⅛; for July, 90¼; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89¾ ⅞; New Two-and-a-Half per Cents, 73¾; Exchequer Bills, par to 3s. prem.; India Five per Cents, 101¾; Ditto, Debentures, 100; Bank Stock was 242½ to 244; India Four per Cent Rupee Paper, 99. On Thursday the market was firmer:—Consols, for Money, sold at 90¼; for Account, 90⅜ ½; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89⅞ ¾; India Five per Cents, 101; India Bonds, 18s. to 21s. prem.; and Exchequer Bills, par.

The transactions in American Securities have been on a fair average scale:—Erie Shares have been 49½ to 50; Illinois Central, 76 to 76½; United States Five-Twenties, 67 to 67½.

Only a moderate business has been transacted in the market for Foreign Securities. On the whole, however, prices have ruled firm. The chief fluctuations have been in Spanish Securities:—Turkish Scrip has realised 2 to 1½ dis; Italian ditto, 3½ to 2⅞ dis. Egyptian Seven per Cents have been done at 96; Ditto, 1864, 94⅞; Greek, 21½; Mexican Three per Cents, 25; Peruvian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 80½; Portuguese Three per Cents, 49¼; Russian Five per Cents, 1862, 91¼; Spanish Passive, 31¼; Ditto, Certificates, 15½; Turkish Old Six per Cents, 92; Ditto, 1858, 73½; Ditto, 1862, 74¾; Venezuela Six per Cents, 38; Ditto, 1864, 39¼. The Confederate Loan is quoted at 7 to 9; whilst Turkish Consolidés have marked 49½ ⅞.

Joint-stock Bank Shares have ruled inactive, and prices have had a drooping tendency:—Agra and Masterman's have sold at 112½; Alliance, 26⅞; Anglo-Egyptian, 12¼; Anglo-Italian, 11½; Bank of British Columbia, 16; Brazilian and Portuguese, 8½; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 22⅞; Consolidated, 10⅞; Continental, 22; English Joint-stock, 12¼; European, 11⅞; Hindustan, China, and Japan, 17; Imperial Ottoman, 16¼; London and County, 75; London and South African, 18¼; London and Westminster, 96; Merchant, 26½; Oriental, 47; and Union of London, 52¾.

The demand for Colonial Government Securities has been rather limited. Canada Six per Cents, 91¾; Ditto Five per Cents, 83½; Cape Five per Cents, 92; New South Wales Five per Cents, 92¾; and Victoria Six per Cents, 109½.

The Miscellaneous Market has ruled heavy. Ceylon Company, 11½; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 9¼; East India Irrigation and Canal, 7; Ebbw Vale, 9; General Credit, 6; Hudson's Bay, 15⅞; International Financial, 6¾; Italian Land, 9; London Financial, 23¼; National Discount, 15⅞; Ottoman Financial, 8¼; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 78½; Ditto, New, 56; Scottish Australian Investment, 126; Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance, 7⅞; and Universal Marine Ditto, 6¼.

The Railway Share Market has been far from active; nevertheless, the quotations have been well supported. The following are Thursday's official closing prices:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Bristol and Exeter, 96; Caledonian, 133½; Cambrian, 96; Great Eastern, 47½; Great Northern, 133; Great Western, 72⅞; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 122⅞; London and Brighton, 108¾; London, Chatham, and Dover, 41½; London and North-Western, 124; London and South-Western, 99¾; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 63½; Metropolitan, 141½; Ditto, New, 8¼; Metropolitan District, 100; Midland, 136⅞; North-Eastern—Berwick, 112½; Ditto, Leeds, 70⅞; Ditto, York, 101¾; North Staffordshire, 79; South Devon, 59½; South-Eastern, 86⅞; Vale of Neath, 106½.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 101; Eastern Bengal, 103¼; East Indian, 105; Great Indian Peninsula, 105¼; Ditto, New, 4⅞; Great Western of Canada, 10¾; Indian Branch, 1¼; Madras Five per Cents, 103½.

Foreign.—Antwerp and Rotterdam, 9⅞; Bahia and San Francisco, 14; Dutch Rhenish, 72⅞; Great Luxembourg, 14¼; Paris, Lyons, and Mediterranean, 34¼; South Austrian, 19⅞.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending June 7 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

A decrease of circulation of	£213,206
A decrease of public deposits of	752,667
A decrease of other deposits of	562,318
A decrease of Government securities of	1,000,000
A decrease of securities of	110,710
An increase of bullion of	22,124
An increase of rest of	13,133
A decrease of reserve of	231,285

The total circulation is £21,635,494. Public deposits amount to £7,954,181; private ditto to £13,357,083; and securities to £30,289,555. The stock of bullion is £15,860,615; and the reserve of notes and coin, £9,346,611.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET. Mr. SOTHERN and his immense success in BROTHER SAM. MONDAY, JUNE 12, and Every Evening, at Seven, the popular Operetta of THE MILLER'S DAUGHTER—Miss Louise Keeley. After which, at Eight precisely, BROTHER SAM—Mr. Sothern, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Compton, Miss Snowdon, and Miss Nelly Moore. Concluding with Planché's revived GREEN-EYED MONSTER—Mr. Chippendale, Mr. Howe, Mr. W. Farren, Mr. Compton, and Miss Louise Keeley.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER.—MONDAY, and during the Week, THE IRISH TIGER; at Eight, GERALDINE—Miss Bateman, Messrs. Jordan, Swinburne, R. Phillips, Miss Denvill; and THE STEEPLECHASE—Mr. J. L. Toole. Commence at Seven.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—THIS DAY, SATURDAY, Grand OPERA CONCERT and Afternoon Promenade. Terrace Fountains at 2.15. Concert at Three, when the following eminent artistes will appear:—Mdlle. Lucca (her first and only appearance this season), Mdme. Caroline Duprez, Mdlle. Honoré, Mdme. Rudersdorff, Mdlle. Carlotta Patti, Herr Schmid, Signor Neri Baraldi, Signor Ciampi, and Signor Wachtel. Solo Pianoforte—Mdlle. Goyrard. Conductor—Mr. Manns. Admission, Five Shillings, or by Guinea Season Tickets free.

SEE the LAUGHABLE PANTOMIME BALLET and the other HOLIDAY AMUSEMENTS. MONDAY and TUESDAY ONLY. Must then be withdrawn, as the platform and Shakspeare House will be at once removed to provide extra seats and private boxes for the Great Handel Festival.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—MONDAY and TUESDAY.—In consequence of the great success of the Holiday Amusements, they will be continued for two days more. Endless amusements by Mr. Nelson Lee, the Leclerque family; Brothers Segundo and Mallos, the great Spanish Gymnasts; Lingard, in his clever impersonations; and the laughable Pantomimic Ballet, "Love in a Tub," by the entire Lauri Family, which excited so much laughter last week.

Performances by the Orchestral Band of the Company, and by Mr. Coward on the Great Organ.

Exhibition of Coxwell's new Great Balloon, "Coxwell's Research," inflated in the Centre Transept.

Pulleyn's New Hippodrome (300 feet in circumference), situated at the north end of the Terrace Walk, is open daily.

Shakspere House, Fine-Art Courts, Picture Gallery, Skating Hall, Chimpanzee, Archery, Boats on the Lake, Bowls, Cricket, Rifle-shooting, Roundabouts, &c. Doors open for admission from Ten till Seven. Extra trains from London Bridge, Victoria, Kensington; and from Ludgate-hill, Elephant and Castle, and Victoria, to Sydenham-hill, by the Chatham and Dover Railway. Come Early. One Shilling; Children Sixpence.

Wednesday.—Great Concert of Tonic Sol-fa Association. One Shilling.

Saturday.—Grand Opera Concert by Artistes of her Majesty's Theatre. Half a crown. Admission tickets now ready at the Palace, 2, Exeter Hall, and usual agents.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—WEDNESDAY NEXT.—GREAT CHORAL CONCERT by the Children of the Tonic Sol-Fa Association on the Handel Orchestra. No extra charge. One Shilling. Children, Sixpence. Come early. Extra trains from all parts.

GREAT HANDEL FESTIVAL—CRYSTAL PALACE.—REHEARSAL, FRIDAY, JUNE 23. MESSIAH, MONDAY, June 26. SELECTION, WEDNESDAY, June, 28, ISRAEL IN EGYPT, FRIDAY, June 30.

Plans, and Programmes, and Tickets on sale at the Palace, or at 2, Exeter Hall.

PERFORMANCES.—Stalls, 3 and 2½ guineas the set; Single Stalls, 25s. and one guinea; 10s. 6d. Reserved Seats each day, or 28s. 6d. the three days.

REHEARSAL.—Numbered Stalls, 5s.; Admission Tickets, 7s. 6d. Only a limited number will be issued at this price; the next issue will be at 10s. 6d. each.

GREAT HANDEL FESTIVAL.—ONE and THREE DAYS' EXCURSIONS to the GREAT FULL REHEARSAL, including Admission, at Low Rates. Also, Return Tickets, extending over the Three Days of the Festival, will be issued by nearly all the principal Railway Companies. Particulars of the extraordinary facilities which will thus be afforded for witnessing this GREAT MUSICAL CELEBRATION will be issued by each Company in a few days. By order,

Crystal Palace, June 1, 1865. GEO. GROVE, Secretary.

HANDEL FESTIVAL.—HALF-GUINEA RESERVED-SEAT TICKETS, including Admission for either of the Three Days of the Festival, 2, Exeter Hall, and Crystal Palace. These tickets are issued at 28s. 6d. the set for the Three Days. They are limited in number.—Cheques or Post Office orders payable to George Grove.

NOTE.—Carte de Visite Photograph of the Orchestra of Four Thousand Performers sent on receipt of two postage-stamps.

UNDER THE PATRONAGE OF H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES.—Mr LEIGH MURRAY.—Complimentary BENEFIT, on Tuesday Morning, June 27, at the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane. The opinion of his physicians, that by means of a sojourn in a warmer climate Mr. Leigh Murray's health may be sufficiently re-established to allow him to resume his profession, has induced a large number of eminent and influential gentlemen to arrange a complimentary benefit for him previous to his proceeding to the south of France. H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge has been pleased to forward a handsome donation towards the object. Drury-lane Theatre has been most liberally placed at the disposal of the Committee by Messrs. Falconer and Chatterton, and numerous celebrated artists have already tendered their valuable services.

COMMITTEE.

J. R. Anderson, Esq.	Jonas Levy, Esq.
Andrew Arcedeckne, Esq.	Major R. Drury Lowe.
Colonel Henry P. de Bathe.	Theodore Martin, Esq.
Robert Bell, Esq.	Charles Mathews, Esq.
George Cavendish Bentinck, Esq., M.P.	Frank Matthews, Esq.
	Horace Mayhew, Esq.
W. R. Beverley, Esq.	Drinkwater Meadows, Esq.
J. V. Bridgeman, Esq.	Marsh Nelson, Esq.
Shirley Brooks, Esq.	Morgan John O'Connell, Esq.
Leicester Buckingham, Esq.	Lieut.-Col. Cecil Peel.
J. B. Buckstone, Esq.	Captain C. P. Pemberton.
F. C. Burnand, Esq.	J. R. Planché, Esq.
Henry J. Byron, Esq.	Hon. Frederick Ponsonby.
Ben. Bond Cabbell, Esq., F.R.S., F.S.A.	Hon. Spencer Ponsonby.
	Charles Reade, Esq., D.C.L.
Edwin Canton, Esq., F.R.C.S.	Robert Roxby, Esq.
Charles J. Coleman, Esq.	H. Hyde Salter, M.D., F.R.S.
Henry Compton, Esq.	Leonard F. Simpson, Esq.
J. Stirling Coyne, Esq.	A. Sargood, Esq.
Herbert Davies, M.D., F.R.C.P.	Palgrave Simpson, Esq.
J. W. Davison, Esq.	E. A. Sothern, Esq.
Lieut.-Col. Charles du Plat.	Thomas Spinks, Esq., D.C.L.
Joseph Durham, Esq., F.S.A.	Captain H. H. D. Stracey.
Lieut.-Col. Cuthbert Ellison.	Lieut.-Col. Napier Sturt.
Marshall Hall, Esq.	Tom Taylor, Esq.
James Hannay, Esq.	John Tenniel, Esq.
R. P. Harding, Esq.	J. L. Toole, Esq.
Thomas Knox Holmes, Esq.	Benjamin Webster, Esq.
T. J. Jerwood, Esq.	Horace Wigan, Esq.
Robert Keeley, Esq.	Thomas Wood, Esq.
Walter Lacy, Esq.	H. H. Wombwell, Esq.
Mark Lemon, Esq.	Edmund Yates, Esq.

Honorary Secretary, Mr. Edward Murray.

Prices—Private Boxes, £3 3s. and upwards; Stalls, £1 1s.; Dress Circle, 10s. 6d.; First Circle, 7s.; Upper Boxes, 4s.; Pit, 2s. 6d.; Galleries, 1s.—N.B. It is respectfully requested that applications for private boxes, stalls, dress circle, and first circle seats (all of which will be numbered and secured) may be addressed to Mr. Edward Murray (Hon. Sec. to the Committee), Stage door, Theatre Royal, Drury-lane; or to Messrs. Mitchell, Royal Library, 33, Old Bond-street; Sams, St. James's-street; and Keith, Prowse, and Co., 48, Cheapside.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, with Mr. JOHN PARRY, in their NEW ENTERTAINMENT, with (first time) a few Musical Memoranda by Mr. John Parry, Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight. Wednesday and Saturday at Three.—ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. Admission, 1s., 2s., 3s., and 5s.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY.—EVERY EVENING at Eight o'Clock (except Saturday); Saturday Afternoon at Three o'Clock. PARIS PORTRAYED and MRS. BROWN AT THE PLAY.—EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. Box-office open Eleven to Five.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL EXHIBITION IS NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 53, PALL-MALL (near St. James's Palace). Daily from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d. JAMES FAHEY, Sec.

HYDE PARK in 1864, by HENRY BARRAUD, Esq., containing 220 Portraits of the Frequenters of Rotten-row. NOW ON VIEW, at 210, Regent-street (opposite Hanover-street). Admission 1s. Open from Ten till Six.

EXETER HALL, JUNE 14.

EXETER HALL, JUNE 14. Mr. SIMS REEVES—Mr. SANTLEY. ISRAEL IN EGYPT.

EXETER HALL, JUNE 14. Mdme. SHERRINGTON—Miss EMILY SOLDEN. ISRAEL IN EGYPT.

EXETER HALL, JUNE 14. Mr. SANTLEY and Mr. LEWIS THOMAS in the Duet, THE LORD IS A MAN OF WAR.

EXETER HALL, JUNE 14. THE HAILSTONE CHORUS—THE HORSE AND HIS RIDER. Band and Chorus, 700. Conductor, Mr. G. W. MARTIN.

EXETER HALL.—ISRAEL IN EGYPT. NATIONAL CHORAL SOCIETY, NEXT WEDNESDAY, 14th. Commence at Eight. Organist, Mr. JOHN G. BOARDMAN. Tickets, numbered and reserved, 21s., 10s. 6d., 5s.; unreserved, 3s., 2s.—14, 15, Exeter Hall.

EXETER HALL, JUNE 14.

MR. BRINLEY RICHARDS'S CONCERT, HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, JUNE 19. Mr. Sims Reeves and other eminent artistes.

THE LONDON GLEE AND MADRIGAL UNION (Established 1859, director, Mr. LAND), in compliance with urgent requests, respectfully announce an EXTRA SERIES of THREE AFTERNOON GLEE and MADRIGAL CONCERTS, TUESDAYS JUNE 13, 20, and 27, at Three o'Clock, at the DUDLEY GALLERY, EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. T. Oliphant, Esq., Literary Illustrator. Solo Pianist, Mr. Walter Macfarren. Conductor, Mr. Land. Numbered Stalls 5s; Unreserved, 3s.; Ticket to admit Three, 7s. 6d.; Subscription Stall to Series, 12s.; Double Ticket, 21s., at Mr. Mitchell's Royal Library, Old Bond-street.

MUSICAL UNION.—Mdme. SCHUMANN, on TUESDAY NEXT, JUNE 13, will play the Grand Duet in D, Mendelssohn, with Signor Piatti; also, Solos by various composers. Lauterbach will play in Quintet, G major, Spohr, and Beethoven's 6th Quartet in B flat. Tickets, Half a Guinea each, to be had at the usual places. Members can pay for visitors at St. James's Hall. J. ELLA, Director. 18, Hanover-square.

MRS. JOHN MACFARREN NEXT WEDNESDAY, at Three.—EGYPTIAN HALL.—MORNING AT THE PIANOFORTE.—Mozart, Beethoven, Weber, Hummell, Mendelssohn, Chopin, Schumann, Brissac. Vocalists—Mdme. Gilardoni, Miss Marian Walsh, Miss Emily Pitt. Tickets, 1s., 2s. and 3s.; Stalls, 5s.; at the Hall.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY, HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS.—Conductor, Professor Sterndale Bennett. SIXTH CONCERT, MONDAY, JUNE 12. The programme will comprise Wagner's Overture to "Rienzi," Molique's Flute Concerto (MS.), Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in E flat, Mozart's Symphony in D, and Beethoven's Overture to "King Stephen." Pianiste, Mdme. Arabella Goddard. Solo Flautist, Mr. Svendsen. Vocalist, Mdlle. Tietjens. Tickets of Messrs. Addison and Lucas, 210, Regent-street.

MASTER FREDERIC H. COWEN'S ANNUAL CONCERT, under the patronage of the Right Hon. the Earl of Dudley, will take place (by permission) at Dudley House, Park-lane, on THURSDAY, JUNE 22, 1865. Artistes—Mdme. Parepa and Mdme. Trebelli; Mr. Santley, Signor Gardoni, Herr Joachim, Signor Pezze. Piano, Master Frederic H. Cowen. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Tickets, one guinea each, to be obtained at the principal Libraries and Musicsellers', and of Master Cowen, 11, Warwick-crescent, Maida-hill, W.

MR. SIMS REEVES'S BENEFIT at the Monday Popular Concerts, St. James's Hall, on MONDAY Evening, JUNE 12, when he will sing "Adelaida," accompanied by Mdme. Arabella Goddard, "Deeper, and deeper still," "If with all your hearts," and "The Message" (Blumenthal). Tickets and Programmes at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

JUNE 21.—Mr. BENEDICT'S THIRTIETH ANNUAL CONCERT.—WEDNESDAY MORNING, JUNE 21, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—To commence at Half-past One precisely.—The full Programme is now ready. Area and Back Balcony Unreserved Seats, 5s.; Gallery, 3s.; Reserved Seats, 10s. 6d. Early application for the few remaining Sofa and Balcony Seats is solicited.—2, Manchester-square, W.

CONCERTINA CONCERT, Myddelton Hall, 142, Upper-street, Islington.—The MDLLES. LACHENAL'S CONCERTINA CONCERT will take place, at the above room, on WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 14, commencing at Eight o'Clock. Vocalists—Miss Rose Hersee, Miss Emma Jenkins, Mr. Leigh Wilson, and Mr. Henry C. Sanders. Pianoforte—Mr. Sydney Smith. Concertina—Mdlle. Marie Lachenal, Mdlle. Eugénie Lachenal, Mdlle. Josephine Lachenal, Miss Ellen Attwater (niece of Mr. Richard Blagrove), and Mr. Richard Blagrove. Accompanyist—Mr. Zerbini. Tickets—Stalls, 5s.; Reserved Seats, 3s.; Unreserved Seats, 2s.; Back Seats, 1s.—to be had of Messrs. Wheatstone and Co., 20, Conduit-street; Messrs. Cramer and Co., 201, Regent-street; Messrs. Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street; Messrs. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street; Messrs. Keith, Prowse, and Co., 48, Cheapside; Mr. Morley, 70, Upper-street; Mr. Layton, 150, Upper-street; Mr. Ford, 179, Upper-street; Mr. Chard, 7, Rufford's-row, Upper-street; Mr. Horwood, 57, Holloway-road; and at Myddelton Hall.

MR. W. G. CUSINS'S ANNUAL GRAND ORCHESTRAL MORNING CONCERT, under the immediate patronage of H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES and H.R.H. the PRINCESS of WALES, on FRIDAY, JUNE 16, at HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS. Artistes—Mdmes. Louisa Pyne, Parepa, Messent, S. Pyne, and Joachim; Dr. Gunz, Signor Agnesi, Mr. Renwick, and Signor Delle-Sedie; the Orpheus Glee Union, Herr Joachim, Mdme. Schumann, Mr. Benedict, and Mr. W. G. Cusins.—Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Tickets, 7s.; may be had at the principal Music Warehouses; at the Rooms; and of Mr. Cusins, 33, Nottingham-place, York-gate, Regent's Park.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, REGENT'S PARK. The SECOND GENERAL EXHIBITION of PLANTS, FLOWERS, and FRUIT, WEDNESDAY NEXT, JUNE 14. Tickets to be obtained at the Gardens, and of the Society's Clerk, Austin's Ticket Office, St. James's Hall, on vouchers from Fellows of the Society, price 5s.; or on the day of exhibition, 7s. 6d. each. Gates open at Two o'Clock.

ILLUMINATION.—PRIZES of £12 12s. to encourage female employment. LAST WEEK BUT THREE of the SECOND PRIZE EXHIBITION of ILLUMINATIONS by FEMALE ARTISTS, at Mortimer House, 16, Charles-street, Middlesex Hospital (corner of Wells-street). Admission One Shilling, including catalogue. Open daily from 11 to 7.

JUNE 14, 15, and 16, FANCY BAZAAR in AID of EXTINCTION of DEBT on the CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, Lewisham High Road—Rev. G. MARTIN, Pastor—will be held on the ground adjoining STONE HOUSE (late Alderman Wire's). To be opened by WM. ANGERSTEIN, Esq., M.P. The Band of the Coldstream Guards will be in attendance each day. To be open from Two till Ten, and be lighted up at dusk. Admission, 1s. each day, or 2s. 6d. for the three days. Children Half price.

THE SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE GOSPEL IN FOREIGN PARTS.—Arrangements for the 164th anniversary, 1865.—TUESDAY, JUNE 13, Morning, at Eight o'Clock, the Holy Communion, at St. James's Church, Piccadilly; Afternoon, at Four o'Clock, festival in St. Paul's Cathedral—Sermon by the Lord Bishop of Rochester.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 14—Dinner at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, at Half-past Six o'Clock—the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol in the Chair. Tickets, 7s. 6d. each (Wine not included).

THURSDAY, JUNE 15—Annual Meeting for the City of London, in the Egyptian Hall, Mansion House. Chair to be taken, at Two o'Clock, by the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor. The Lord Bishop of London, the Right Hon. J. Napier; Sir R. J. Phillimore, the Queen's Advocate; J. G. Hubbard, Esq., M.P.; the Rev. H. Rowley; J. S. Gilliatt, Esq.; the Common Serjeant, and others, will address the Meeting.

FRIDAY, JUNE 16—Festival Service in the Nave of Westminster Abbey. Divine Service to commence at Seven o'Clock in the Evening. The Choir will number upwards of 200 Voices.—Tickets of Admission may be had at 79, Pall-mall, and 4, Royal Exchange.

NEW BOOKS.

NEW BOOKS FOR JUNE.

UNDER THE WAVES; or, the Hermit Crab in Society. A Delightful Book for the Seaside. 3s. 6d.; gilt edges, 4s.

THE CRUISE OF THE FROLIC. A Book for Yacht-loving People. By W. H. G. KINGSTON. Four Illustrations. 5s.

London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Milton House, Ludgate-hill.

NEW BOOKS TO ASK FOR AT THE LIBRARIES.

THE GREAT SCHOOLS OF ENGLAND. By HOWARD STAUNTON. With Illustrations. 8vo, price 12s.

SIR FELIX FOY, BART. A Novel. By DUTTON COOK. Three volumes, post 8vo, 21s.

A WINTER IN ALGERIA. By Mrs. GEORGE ALBERT ROGERS. 2s.

HELEN FELTON'S QUESTION. 1 vol. 8s.

DR. BEECHER'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY. 2 vols. 21s.

London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Milton House, Ludgate-hill.

CHEAP EDITIONS OF CELEBRATED NOVELS. This day, at all Booksellers' and Railway Stations,

HARD CASH. By CHARLES READE. Cloth. 6s.

THE WOMAN IN WHITE. By WILKIE COLLINS. 2s. 6d.

LOST SIR MASSINGBERD. 2s. 6d.

ANTONINA. By WILKIE COLLINS. 2s. 6d.

THE QUEEN OF HEARTS. By the Same. 2s. 6d.

London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, Milton House, Ludgate-hill.

THE NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "LADY AUDLEY'S SECRET," &c. Third Edition, at all Libraries, in 3 vols.,

ONLY A CLOD. JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "ROLAND, THE PAINTER," This day, in 2 vols., at all Libraries,

WHO WAS TO BLAME? JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

ANECDOTICAL MEMOIRS OF THE EMPEROR. This day, in 1 vol., at all Libraries,

NAPOLEON III. AND HIS COURT. JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

NEW NOVEL BY STEPHEN MARTEGRES. This day, in 2 vols., at all Libraries

CHARLOTTE TRALE. JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street,

This day, in 3 vols., at all Libraries,

CRUEL FORTUNE. By the Author of "Milly Moss," "Queens of Song," &c. JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

MR. PALGRAVE'S BOOK OF TRAVEL. "A stirring tale of adventure in an absolutely new and virgin country." Immediately, to be had at all the Libraries, 2 vols., 8vo, cloth, with Portrait of the Author, Maps and Plans illustrating the route,

A NARRATIVE OF A YEAR'S JOURNEY THROUGH CENTRAL AND EASTERN ARABIA, 1862-3. By WILLIAM GIFFORD PALGRAVE, late of the 8th Regiment Bombay N.I.

"A stirring tale of adventure in an absolutely new and virgin country, hitherto unvisited except under conditions which reduced the traveller to the category of a mere senseless corpse in a coffin. He told his tale, too, more as Herodotus would have recited at Olympia than like a commonplace voyager of the nineteenth century. He spoke with all the spirit and picturesqueness of the old Greek combined with the careful eloquence of a trained orator, and his crowded audience admired and applauded the accomplishments of the speaker no less than they appreciated the interest of the primeval Eastern country thus brought before their eyes."—Quarterly Review, on Mr. Palgrave's Paper read before the Royal Geographical Society.

MACMILLAN and Co., 16, Bedford-street, Covent-garden, London.

CHEAP EDITION OF "HENRY DUNBAR." This day, in one vol., with Frontispiece and Vignette Titlepage, in cloth, price 6s., uniform with the Author's previous Works,

HENRY DUNBAR. By the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," &c. Also ready, uniform with above, price 6s. each,

BROKEN TO HARNESS. By EDMUND YATES.

SACKVILLE CHASE. By C. J. COLLINS.

SIR VICTOR'S CHOICE. By ANNIE THOMAS.

JOHN MAXWELL and Co., 122, Fleet-street.

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK. Price 7s. 6d. Seventy-sixth Thousand, revised and enlarged, and fully illustrated. "The best book of its class yet produced."—Illustrated London News.—London: LONGMAN and Co.

LONDON.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.

PARIS.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.

KENT and SUSSEX.—CHAMBERS'S HANDY GUIDE-BOOK.

Contain Maps, Plans, and numerous Wood Engravings. One Shilling each. W. and R. CHAMBERS, London and Edinburgh.

Just published, price Sixpence, or 25s. per hundred,

REFORM. The Debate on Mr. Baines's Bill in the House of Commons, on May 3 and 8, 1865. London: BRADBURY and EVANS, 11, Bouverie-street.

PERMANENT PHOTOGRAPHS are obtained by the new patent process of WOTHLYTYPE on Ivory. Those interested in the advance of the art are invited to view the specimens. Full information and card of prices by post. "The pictures are printed with wonderful delicacy."—Times. The UNITED ASSOCIATION of PHOTOGRAPHY (Limited), 213, Regent-street, W.

THE TURNER PICTURES in the NATIONAL GALLERY PHOTOGRAPHED by THURSTON THOMPSON, mounted on fine cardboard, size of photo 14 in. by 10 in. The above on view, and catalogues to be had, at 22, Soho-square.—A. MARION, SON, and CO.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.—For FAMILY ARMS, send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in Colours, 6s. Arms, Crest, and Family Motto, beautifully painted, 12s. Pedigrees traced. A valuable Index is now ready, which contains the arms, crests, and mottoes of nearly every family in the kingdom, the result of thirty years' labour. "The Manual of Heraldry," 400 Engravings, 3s. 6d., post-free, by T. Culleton, Genealogist, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane), W.C.

IF you want a MASSIVE GOLD SIGNET RING send to CULLETON'S; 18-carat, Hall-marked, engraved with crest; Ditto, large size, for arms, crest, and motto, all solid. Book Plates, Seals, and Dies engraved in the most elegant style of perfection. Livery Button Dies and Harness Crests, Monograms for Paper.—T. Culleton, Seal Engraver to the Queen, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane), W.C.

NO CHARGE FOR ENGRAVING CREST and MOTTO, MONOGRAM, or ADDRESS, if an order be given for a Ream of the very best Paper and 500 Envelopes to match, at 21s. all stamped free of charge. By T. CULLETON, Practical Diesinker, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane), W.C.

JUST PUBLISHED, the ARMS, CROWNS, and MONOGRAMS of the QUEEN, all the Royal Family, every Duke, Marquis, and Earl; the Monograms and Crests of Bishops, Barons, and British Commoners; the Crests and Monograms used by Regiments and British Navy. This extraordinary selection of arms and crests is printed in rich colours in relief, price 1s. each sheet; or 12 different sheets for 9s.—T. CULLETON, Compiler of Crests, 25, Cranbourn-street, London.

CULLETON'S PLATES FOR MARKING LINEN.—By means of this useful invention any kind of linen, silk, or stockings can be beautifully marked without any fear of its washing out. Initial-plate, 1s.; name, 2s. 6d.; set of movable numbers, 2s. 6d.; crest, 5s.; with directions, post-free for stamps. T. Culleton, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE. Established 25 years. For Family Arms send name and county. Sketch, 3s. 6d., or stamps. Arms painted and quartered and engraved on Seals, Rings, Dies, &c. Monograms designed. Pedigrees of Families, 21s.—PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, London, W.C.—Manual of Heraldry, 3s.

CORPORATE and OFFICIAL SEALS and PRESSES, Hatchments, Monumental Brasses, &c.; Diplomas and Votes of Thanks; Bookplates, Wedding and other Cards.—PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn.

NEW MUSIC.

ENGEL'S AFRICAINE for HARMONIUM and PIANOFORTE.—Just published, a grand Duet for Harmonium and Pianoforte on favourite Airs from Meyerbeer's "Africaine." By Louis Engel. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MDME. RUDERSDORFF will Sing Franz Abt's Song, "O Rosy Morn," at the Crystal Palace on Saturday Next. Programmes at ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S. The Song, 2s. 6d.; free by post for 16 stamps.

THE SONGS OF THE SEASON (all at Half price in stamps).
GOD BLESS THE PRINCE OF WALES. 3s.
THE LIQUID GEM. W. T. WRIGHTON. 2s. 6d.
THE DAY ITS LAST GOOD NIGHT. Miss M. LINDSAY. 2s. 6d.
O YE TEARS! F. ABT. 2s. 6d.
THE CUCKOO SONG. By F. ABT. 3s.
THY VOICE IS NEAR. W. T. WRIGHTON. 2s. 6d.
TOO LATE! TOO LATE! Miss M. LINDSAY. 2s. 6d.
HER BRIGHT SMILE. W. T. WRIGHTON. 2s. 6d.
JENNY OF THE MILL. 3s.
THEE ONLY I LOVE. F. ABT. 2s. 6d.
WHEN LOVING ONES ARE PARTED. F. W. KUCKEN. 3s.
London: ROBERT COCKS and CO., New Burlington-street.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR. By S. GLOVER. Sent for 18 stamps each. This beautiful Song, one of the leading favourites of the season, may be had in the key of C for mezzo-soprano, and in E flat for tenor. Also, as a Vocal Duet.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales. This celebrated Romance has already run through fourteen editions. Sent for 15 stamps.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

E. L. HIME'S GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR sent for 18 stamps. This is an elegant and effective Transcription for Piano of Stephen Glover's beautiful Melody.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

FRANZ ABT'S LA JOYEUSE GALOP, sent for 18 stamps. This Galop is dansante in the highest degree. The elegance of its melody, with its brilliant and sparkling passages, renders it one of the most effective and delightful morceaux de salon of the day.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-st.

LA MURSKA VALSE. By C. GODFREY, Bandmaster Scots Fusilier Guards. Solos and Duets sent for 24 stamps each. This Valse will be found in every way worthy the celebrated name of Mdlle. Ilma de Murska.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE GIRL WITH THE GOLDEN HAIR. Sung by Vance nightly, with immense success, at the Strand Music Hall. Post-free for 15 stamps.—THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN MUSIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, 14, Charles-street, Soho-square.

R. COOTE'S VICE VERSA GALOP, the favourite of the season, danced at all the nobility's balls. Post-free for 18 stamps.—THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN MUSIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, 14, Charles-street, Soho-square.

HATTON'S MOST SUCCESSFUL NEW SONG.
FAIR AND FALSE. 2s. 6d. Post-free for sixteen stamps.
EWER and CO.'S Musical Library, 87, Regent-street, London.

Just published, ready at all the Musicsellers, Illustrated Title,
GOD BLESS THE FIRE BRIGADE. Words by George Douglas Phillips.
Music composed expressly by HENRY RUSSELL.
A soul-stirring melody, with a capital chorus.
Free from the Author for eighteen stamps.—1, Stangate, S.
The trade supplied by H. D'ALCORN, 12, Rathbone-place.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS POLKA. 3s. Galop, 3s., on the universally popular tune, "Slap, Bang! here we are again." The most successful ever published. Played everywhere. Danced everywhere. Inimitably Illustrated. May be had of every musicseller in the United Kingdom.
London: ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. The High Price of Music. All full-price Music of every publisher forwarded immediately on publication to any part of the kingdom on receipt of stamps to half the price. Catalogues gratis.
OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, London.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE, 14s. per Month. Seven octaves. No hire charged if purchased in six months. The most economical and judicious mode of obtaining a really good pianoforte is to hire one (with the option of purchasing it if approved) of the Manufacturers, OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, opposite Mdme. Tussaud's.

THE PARLOUR PIANOFORTE, 25 guineas. OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, manufacture these very excellent Pianofortes with metallic plates, registered keyboard, full compass of seven octaves, and every recent improvement, and guarantee them, for tone, touch, and durability, to excel others usually sold at a much higher price. Drawings sent post-free.—Oetzmann and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

BUTLER'S BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS.—CORNETS, Saxhorns, Circular Vibrating Horns, Drums, Flutes, Clarinets, &c., are now in general use in Military and Amateur Bands in all parts of the Kingdom and the Colonies, and are giving universal satisfaction. Every instrument made on the premises, and guaranteed first class. Prices much below those usually charged. Cornets from £2.—Manufactory, Haymarket, London. Prices, with drawings, post-free.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

TO LOVERS OF MUSIC.—The choicest Stock of Musical Boxes in London, by Stauffer, at £1 per air; Snuffboxes, 7s. per tune.—At T. W. NEILSON'S, 232, Strand (four doors west of Temple Bar).

THE NEW DERBY RACE-GLASS, price 50s., with sling-case complete. Will show distinctly the entire race, from "the start" to "the coming in." Guaranteed the cheapest and best glass (a new model) ever offered to the public. Sent carriage-free to any part of the kingdom. Post-office orders payable to WILLIAM CALLAGHAN, Optician, 23A, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Conduit-street).

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—OPERA GLASSES, in every variety of form and mounting, matchless for their great magnifying power and sharpness of definition. At CALLAGHAN'S, No. 23A, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Conduit-street), sole agent for the celebrated opera and field glasses by Voigtländer, Vienna.

THE PLANET JUPITER, when magnified 250 times with the new £5 TELESCOPE, appears seven times as large as the moon is to the naked eye; and the other planetary bodies proportionately. It will also distinguish the face of a sheep and features of a man four miles, shot marks upon a target two miles, and time by a church clock ten miles. This instrument is guaranteed, in writing, to perform the whole of the above, and to be equal in the most important respects to telescopes costing £70. It has a 3-in. superior achromatic object-glass, two eyepieces, &c., with portable metal tripod stand with jointed claw feet. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by book post.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. High-power small pocket Telescopes, opera, race, field, and general outdoor glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Weighs three ounces, and occupies less room than a card-case. Price 21s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the combined purposes of the opera, race, and general outdoor use.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

POCKET BAROMETER, COMPASS, and THERMOMETER, all in one, the size of a watch, for telling the weather, the heights of mountains, direction of winds, and temperature of the air. Guaranteed for twelve months. Price £4 15s., sent free.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

SPECTACLES.—TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including Viscount Palmerston. They give extraordinary relief to weak, dim, and defective vision. The adaptation of spectacles to imperfect vision by experienced persons is, indeed, of vital importance. One of the Firm, who has had great experience and practice, attends to this branch only.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

MECHI TESTIMONIAL.
PRESIDENT OF THE COMMITTEE.
His Grace the Duke of Sutherland.
VICE-PRESIDENTS.
The Right Hon. the Earl of Essex.
The Right Hon. Lord Houghton.
The Right Hon. the Earl of Lonsdale.
TREASURERS.
Richard Garrett, Esq., Carlton Hall, Saxmundham, Suffolk.
George Moore, Esq., Bow-churchyard, London, E.C.
HONORARY SECRETARY.
Donald Nicoll, Esq., Oaklands Hall Kilburn, N.W.
Gentlemen willing to join the Committee and to subscribe are requested to address to Donald Nicoll, Esq., "Mechi Testimonial Office," 55, Charing-cross, London, S.W. The following bankers have consented to receive subscriptions:—

London and County.	Imperial Bank.
London and Westminster.	Messrs. Barnett, Hoares, and Co.
London and Joint-Stock.	Messrs. Coutts.
Agra and Masterman's.	Messrs. Drummond.
Union Bank of London.	Messrs. Brooks and Co.

Amount subscribed at the first meeting of the committee, £2000.

SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.
MONTHLY FAMILY TICKETS are now issued by the SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY from Charing-cross and London Bridge, or Reading, to Boulogne, Calais, Dover, Folkestone, Ramsgate, Margate, Deal, Canterbury, and Tunbridge Wells.
For fares, &c., see programmes and time-books.

SATURDAY to MONDAY at the SEASIDE, &c.—SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.
Cheap Saturday to Monday Return Tickets are now issued from Charing-cross and London Bridge, every Saturday, by certain trains, to Ramsgate, Margate, Hastings, St. Leonards, Tunbridge Wells, Dover, Folkestone, Herne Bay, Canterbury, Deal, &c.
Weekly Return Tickets to Boulogne.
For time of trains, fares, &c., see programmes and time-books.

SUNDAY and MONDAY EXCURSIONS. SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.
CHEAP EXCURSIONS every SUNDAY and MONDAY from Charing-cross and London Bridge to Ramsgate, Margate, Canterbury, Deal, and Sandwich at 7.35 a.m.; to Dover, Folkestone, Hythe, and Shorncliffe at 8.20 a.m.
On SUNDAYS only to Hastings and St. Leonards at 8.10 a.m.
On MONDAYS only to Whitstable Harbour and Herne Bay at 7.35 a.m.

FARES THERE AND BACK.

	Third class.	Second class.
To Whitstable and Herne Bay	2s. 6d.	4s. 6d.
To the other stations named	3s. 6d.	5s. 6d.

CHEAP FARES also to Gravesend, Stroud, Chatham, and Sheerness every Sunday.
Children under Twelve half price. Tickets available for the day only and by the Excursion-trains.
C. W. EBORALL, General Manager.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate Rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

STAMMERING.—Dr. HUNT begs to acquaint persons having children suffering from Stammering or other affections of the articulating organs that he has made special arrangements to RECEIVE JUVENILE CASES, who will in future receive a superior education in conjunction with his system for the treatment of the defect. A few Adult Pupils. Private Pupils received for defective speech only.
Ore House, near Hastings.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. W. ORAM, Secretary.

PICTURE FRAMES for "HAPPINESS," given with this Paper. Handsome gilt frame, glass and back, 1s. 6d.; maple and gilt, 3s.; ornamented, gold oval frame, 4s.—At GEO. REES, 57, Drury-lane; and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Six. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE.
Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK,
31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street).
Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

ROYAL HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY. On SATURDAY, JUNE 10, the First Great FLOWER SHOW. Drawing-room Plant Cases will be exhibited in great variety, furnished with the choicest Exotic Fern and Foliage Plants, arranged by BARR and SUGDEN, of 12, King-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, DINING-ROOM, consisting of vases, figures, groups, candlesticks, inkstands, obelisks, inlaid tables, &c., in Alabaster, Marble, Spar, &c.—J. TENNANT, 149, Strand, W.C.

TOSELLI'S FREEZING-MACHINES produce Transparent Ice, Dessert Ices, &c., in Fancy Moulds, in six minutes. Price from 15s.—BROWN BROTHERS, 43, Cranbourn-street, W.C. Prospectus post-free.

WENHAM LAKE ICE for Town or Country. Refrigerators, Ice-cream Machines, Saltzogenes, Freezing Powders, and everything connected with freezing, of the most reliable character. Illustrated Price-lists. Order direct from THE WENHAM LAKE ICE COMPANY, 140, STRAND, W.C.

BATHS.—DEANE'S DOMESTIC BATHS. The bath department of Deane and Co.'s warehouses contains an extensive stock of shower, hip, plunging, sponging, nursery, and every description of bath for family use. Each article is of the best material and workmanship, and at the lowest possible prices. Patent gas baths, simple, efficient, and economical. Bath-rooms fitted complete. Deane and Co.'s Pamphlet on Baths and Bathing, with engravings, gratis and post-free.—Deane and Co., 46, King William-street, London Bridge. Established A.D. 1700.

FURNITURE, Carpets, and Bedding. See our Illustrated Furniture Catalogue, 380 engravings, with prices 30 per cent less than any other house. The most unique and complete guide ever published. Gratis, from LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO., 73 and 75, Brompton-road, Knightsbridge. Country orders carriage-free.

THE NEW SHUTTER WARDROBES. Ladies should see these before deciding, at A. SEDLEY and CO.'S, Patentee of the Equilibrium Chairs so celebrated for comfort and economy, of which more than 3000 have been sold.—The Burlington Furniture Galleries, 38, Conduit-street, Bond-street, W.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-paid. It contains upwards of 600 Illustrations of his illimited Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia-metal Goods, Dish Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimneypieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gaseliers; Tea Trays, Urns, and Kettles; Clocks, Table Cutlery, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-room Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices, and plans of the twenty large Show-rooms, at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard.

PORT and SHERRY, 12s. per Dozen; Claret and Sauterne, 10s. per Dozen.—VICTORIA WINE COMPANY, 63, Lower Thames-street, E.C. Two samples sent for 12 stamps.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

SELECT PLANTS.—100 Bedding Plants for 10s., carriage-paid to London, comprising Dahlias, Fuschias, Geraniums, Verbenas, &c.—From B. W. KNIGHT, Florist, 67, High-street, Battle, Sussex.

Just purchased from France,
450 PIECES MOZAMBIQUE (otherwise Wool Grenadines, Silk Broché), the whole of which are now being sold at 12s. 6d. the Full Dress, in every variety of style.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE
RICH SILK GRENADINES, adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses, 18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALL THE CHOICE DESIGNS IN
NEW ORGANDIE MUSLINS, British, French, and Swiss Printing, 6s. 9d., 10s. 9d., 12s. 6d. to 35s. the extra Full Dress.
An immense variety of patterns post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF
LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS. Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new.
An endless variety of patterns (at the reduced price) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Now ready, at Reduced Prices, all the New Patterns in
PRINTS, BRILLIANTS, and PIQUES, for Ladies' Morning Dresses.
An endless variety of patterns post-free.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

EVERY NEW COLOUR IN THE
ARABIAN GLACÉS, for Ladies' Dresses and Jackets complete.
A most useful and desirable fabric either for Walking or Travelling Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A Choice Assortment of the
NEW PRINTED ARABIAN GLACÉS, in every variety of style, either in white or coloured grounds, from 14s. 6d. to 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

GINGHAMS and COLOURED LAWNS, for Ladies' travelling, morning, and seaside Dresses, 12s. 6d. the Dress, in plain colours, checks or stripes.
A large collection of Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A CAREFULLY SELECTED VARIETY OF
CHEAP SUMMER DRESSES. A new series of colours in the Plain Mexican Cloth, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Also Striped, Checked, and Chéné ditto, 12s. 6d. to 18s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NEW SUMMER PETTICOATS. A choice assortment made, unmade, and by the yard.
New French and Sicilian Lawns, for Morning Dresses, in Plain, Striped, and Checked, all colours, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

REAL INDIAN TUSSORES and RUMCHUNDAH CORAHS.
Just received, a perfectly new Stock of the above, which are recommended as the fashionable Dress for Morning and Seaside Costume.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

JUST IMPORTED, A new Collection of FRENCH SILKS, comprising many designs in Chénés, Stripes, and Checks, of the most brilliant Colours, and suitable for every degree of wear. Price from 2½ to 4½ guineas the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOR YOUNG LADIES. Beautifully bright, Checked, and Striped SILKS, in perfectly new Colours, made expressly to our order, price from £1 15s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

LYONS LEVANTINE, a perfectly new Twilled Silk, made expressly to our order, and very suitable for Ladies' Morning Costumes, in most brilliant colours, £2 6s. 6d. the Full Dress, 14 yards, 25 in. wide; or any length cut.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS FOULARDS of the most improved manufacture, the wear of which cannot be surpassed. The most fashionable article for the present season for ladies' morning suits, including black and coloured grounds.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

CHÉNÉ SILKS. Now selling, 100 Pieces of rich French Chénés, £2 19s. 6d., or any length cut.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR SUMMER. New Colours in Rich Plain Silks, including our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, from £2 19s. 6d. to 5 guineas extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free, Invisible HAIR NETS, in any colour; the new Floss Silk Hair Nets, 1s. 6d.; Chenille ditto, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.

Last year's Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks at	£1 5s. 6d.	Full Dress.
The New Spring Silks	£1 13s. 6d.	"
The New Rich Fancy French Silks	£2 2s. 0d.	"

Neat, useful, and recherché Silks for Young Ladies, from £1 7s. 6d.
198, Regent-street, London.

WOOL EMBROIDERED MUSLINS, 8s. 9d. Full Dress.—BAKER and CRISP are now selling a Manufacturer's Stock of White and Coloured Embroidered Muslin Dresses at the above price; every Dress worth double. Patterns free.

15,000 YARDS PURE ALPACAS, all at 1s. 0½d. yard; worth 1s. 6d. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

FRENCH ORGANDI MUSLINS, 6s. 6d. Full Dress; beautiful CHINTZES, ditto, 10s. 6d. to 15s. 6d. Patterns free. Also, MOURNING MUSLINS in great variety, equally cheap.—BAKER and CRISP, 118, Regent-street.

THE UNTEARABLE BLACK GRENADINES, BAREGES, &c., ¾ to 2 yards wide, from 12s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

1500 BLACK SPANISH LACE SHAWLS at Half Price.
12s. 9d., 18s. 6d., and 1 guinea each.
BAKER and CRISP.

THE NEWEST DESIGNS in hand-made HAIR-NETS, richly ornamented with gold or silver spangles, crystal, steel, black and other beads, 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d., post-free for stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

SANSFLECTUM JUPONS, 17s. 6d.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

ONDINA or WAVED JUPONS, 18s. 6d.
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

PUFFED HORSEHAIR JUPONS, 25s.
"Adapted for the promenade."—Queen.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

THOMSON'S CRINOLINES, 12s. 6d.
Illustrations post-free.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE, London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

KING and CO., SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, beg to announce that their New Stock of SUMMER DRESSES is now replete with every Novelty suitable for the Season, and Patterns of all will be forwarded post-free to any part of the world.

FANCY DRESS DEPARTMENT.

Broché Wool Grenadines	10s. 6d.	the Full Dress.
Satin Cloths	12s. 6d.	"
Broché Chéné Grenadines	14s. 6d.	"
Chéné Poult de Soie	16s. 6d.	"
Broché Silk Grenadines	17s. 6d.	"
Last Season's best French Printed Muslins, Organdies, and Jaconets	3s. 11½d.	"

Patterns sent post-free.—Address to KING and CO., Regent-street.

READY-MADE DRESS DEPARTMENT. French Lawn Dresses, with Jackets to match, £1 7s. 9d.
Arabian Glacé Alpaca, ditto, ditto, £1 7s. 9d.
A large variety of elegantly-trimmed White and Buff Alpaca Dresses and Jackets, from 31s. 6d.
Patterns and descriptions sent post-free.
Address to KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

MANTLE and SHAWL DEPARTMENT. A large collection of the best designs in Lyons Glacé and Gros Grain Jackets and Mantles, commencing at 1 guinea.
Opera Mantles, of the newest fashion, 15s. 9d.
An immense stock of Spanish, Brussels, and Yak Lace Shawls, from 10s. 6d. to 5 guineas.
Spanish, Brussels, and Yak Mantles, commencing at 1 guinea.
KING and CO., 243, Regent-street, London.

FAMILY MOURNING, MADE UP and Trimmed in the most correct and approved taste, may be obtained ready for instant wear, at the most reasonable prices, at PETER ROBINSON'S
General Mourning Warehouse.
Goods sent for inspection "free of charge" (with dressmaker if desired) to all parts of England, and Patterns of the new Mourning Fabrics to all parts of the world.
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse.
Peter Robinson's,
256 to 262, Regent-street.
The largest Mourning Warehouse in the Kingdom.
Peter Robinson's Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

BLACK SILKS.—Patterns free. Good useful Black Silks, from 35s. to 50s. the Dress.
Superior and most enduring qualities, from 3 to 6 guineas.
At PETER ROBINSON'S
Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

MILLINERY for MOURNING.—Paris Fashions.—New Shapes and great Novelties in Bonnets, at PETER ROBINSON'S
Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street, W.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PARIS FASHIONS.
MANTLES and JACKETS for MOURNING and otherwise.
New Shapes, in elegant and graceful Novelties, at PETER ROBINSON'S
Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

UNTEARABLE
WIRE-GROUND BLACK GRENADINES and BAREGES. The improved makes introduced by PETER ROBINSON, at the Mourning Establishment, 256 to 262, Regent-street, excel all others for strength and beauty of finish.
May be obtained by the yard, or made up into Skirts.
Patterns free.
Peter Robinson's.
N.B. The Establishment for Coloured Goods is at 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE "ARIEL" MANTLE, SHAWL, and SWISS MANTILLA.—These elegant Novelties for the present Season can be purchased only of FARMER and ROGERS, 171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street. India, China, French, Paisley, Norwich, and Fancy Shawls, from 1 guinea to 200 guineas.

BONNETS, ONE GUINEA, at Mrs. AXFORD'S, 51, Maddox-st., Bond-st., Milliner and Dressmaker. Wedding orders, outfits, and country orders punctually attended to. French Corsets, 12s. 6d. The small Crinoline, 10s. 6d.

MUSLIN, LACE, and LENO CURTAINS. ATKINSON and CO. beg to acquaint their customers and the general public that they have now COMPLETED THEIR ANNUAL STOCK, the largest they have ever yet held—unequalled for variety, extent, and cheapness. An early inspection is respectfully invited.
Nos. 198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, and 210, Westminster Bridge-road.

GOOD TASTE NOT INCOMPATIBLE WITH ECONOMY.
UNIQUE and ELEGANT CABINET FURNITURE for Dining-room, Drawing-room, Bed-room, and Library.
CARPETS—FELT, KIDDER, BRUSSELS, VELVET, and TURKEY—adapted for cottage and mansion.
For nearly half a century the house has been famous for BLANKETS, SHEETINGS, and HOUSEHOLD LINENS.
BEDS and MATTRESSES of the best materials, manufactured on the premises, and under special supervision.
CURTAINS of every description in DAMASK, REP, and PEKIN CLOTHS.
LACE, and MUSLIN LENO CURTAINS for the Season.
SILKS, SHAWLS, MANTLES, and every variety of GENERAL and FANCY DRAPERY.
Estimates given. Contracts taken. Illustrated Catalogues free.
ATKINSON and CO., WESTMINSTER-BRIDGE-ROAD,
Nos. 198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, and 210.

RIMMEL'S EXTRACT of LIME JUICE and GLYCERINE cleanses and cools the head, and gives the hair a beautiful gloss without greasing it. 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 5s.—E. Rimmel, 96, Strand; 128, Regent-street; and 24, Cornhill.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN and SIMEON MOSELY and SONS, 30, Berners-st., Oxford-st., and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Station). Established 1830. These teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet." Daily attendance at 15, Whitefriargate, Hull; 10, Norfolk-street, Sheffield; 4, East-parade, Leeds; and 14, St. Nicholas-st., Scarbro'. No connection with anyone of the same name.

TO MOTHERS AND INVALIDS. ELAM'S ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, for debility, corpulency, &c., of superior construction. Directions for self-measurement sent free. Price 20s. and 27s. 6d.—Elam, 196, Oxford-street.

DR. DE JONGH'S (Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium) LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed by the most eminent medical men throughout the world as the safest, speediest, and most effectual remedy for CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, RICKETS, INFANTILE WASTING, AND ALL SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS, is incomparably superior to every other variety.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.
DR. LETHEBY,
Medical Officer of Health to the City of London.
"It is, I believe, universally acknowledged that Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil has great therapeutic power; and, from my investigations, I have no doubt of its being a pure and unadulterated article."

DR. LAWRANCE.
Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
"I invariably prescribe Dr. de Jongh's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, feeling assured that I am recommending a genuine article, and not a manufactured compound in which the efficacy of this invaluable medicine is destroyed."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s.; labelled with his stamp and signature, WITHOUT WHICH NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE, by respectable Chemists and Druggists.
Sole Consignees,
ANSAR, HARFORD and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

HEADACHE, Languor, Pains in the Back, Costiveness, Biliousness and Indigestion, are immediately relieved by DR. LOCOCK'S EXCELSIOR WAFERS. They taste delightfully. Sold by all Druggists at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per box.

NEW MUSIC.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—The whole of the Music from the last and greatest work of Meyerbeer is published by Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street, where the following are now to be had:—

All the Vocal Music with French words.
The Overture for Pianoforte, Solo, 3s.; Duet ..	4s.
Grand Indian March	4s.
Religious March	3s.
Bouquet de Mélodies. By Cramer	5s.
Quadrille. By Coote	4s.
Waltz. By D. Godfrey	4s.
Favourite Airs in 3 Books. By W. H. Callcott. Each	5s.
Marche Indienne. Brinley Richards.	3s.

The Italian and English versions are in the press, together with Pianoforte arrangements by Kuhe, Osborne, Richards, &c.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE. The favourite airs from Meyerbeer's greatest Opera arranged for the Pianoforte, in Three Books, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 5s. each.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S AFRICAINE WALTZ. On favourite melodies from Meyerbeer's successful Opera, arranged for the Pianoforte by D. GODFREY (B. M. Gren. Guards), and performed for the first time, on her Majesty's birthday, by the united bands of the Guards. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE. On favourite Airs from Meyerbeer's New Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S FAVORITES, easily arranged for the Pianoforte, by E. F. RIMBAULT. Price 1s. each.

No. 1. The Guards' Waltz.	No. 4. The Hunt Quadrille.
No. 2. The Mabel Waltz.	No. 5. The Jockey Galop.
No. 3. The Orpheus Galop.	No. 6. The Marguerite Waltz.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

N E W S O N G S.

The Lost Star	Wallace	3s. 0d.
The Sails are Spread ..	Brinley Richards	2s. 6d.
The Cottage Window ..	G. Russell ..	2s. 6d.
Syr Tankarde	R. Haking ..	2s. 6d.
White-Wings	R. Haking ..	2s. 6d.
Again I wander	R. Haking ..	2s. 6d.
I will not wander	Schumann ..	2s. 6d.
My lost youth	Walter Maynard	2s. 6d.
Part with forgiveness ..	Florence	2s. 6d.
The Cloister'd Nun	Louis Emanuel ..	2s. 6d.
Cantilène (for two voices) ..	Gounod	2s. 6d.
In Youth's Season	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Versar nel mio cor	Gounod	2s. 0d.
Our Starry Home	Ascher	2s. 6d.
Only thee	Linley	2s. 6d.
The Life Clock	J. Barnett ..	2s. 6d.
A life of love with thee ..	J. Barnett ..	2s. 6d.
La Naïade	Gounod	2s. 6d.
The Child and the Nosegay	J. Barnett ..	3s. 0d.
Le Chant d'Eurycléo ..	Gounod	2s. 0d.
L'âme d'un ange	Gounod	2s. 6d.
La Rondinella	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Souvenir	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Les Champs	Gounod	2s. 6d.
Winter and Spring	Harold Thomas	2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR.—A new Edition of this justly celebrated work is now published, containing the favourite airs from "Faust," including the Soldiers' Chorus, Valse, &c.; "The Guards' Waltz," and numerous other airs, arranged as progressive exercises, thus rendering it the cheapest and best Tutor extant. Price 4s., post-free.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BY THE SAD WAVES. Benedict's Favourite Song arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S BROOKLET. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S GRAZIELLA. Romance Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "TWO BUDS." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SERA. Venetian Gondola Song, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LA BELLE HÉLÈNE, a Fantasia on Favourite Airs from Offenbach's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE WALTZ, STRAUSS. 4s.
LA BELLE HELENE QUADRILLES, STRAUSS, 3s.
LA BELLE HELENE POLKA, STRAUSS, 3s.
LA BELLE HELENE, complete, for Voice and Pianoforte, 16s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

M. FAVARGER'S NEW PIECE.

DON GIOVANNI. Fantasia on Airs from Mozart's Grand Opera, for the Pianoforte. By RENE FAVARGER. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE CLOISTER'D NUN. Words by Carpenter; Music composed by LOUIS EMANUEL. Price 2s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

HAROLD THOMAS'S NEW SONG, WINTER AND SPRING. Poetry by H. F. Chorley; Music by Harold Thomas. Compass D to F. Just published. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., New Bond-street, W.

J. F. BARNETT'S PASTORAL SCENE. A characteristic Piece for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 6 are now ready, price 3s. each; or the six numbers in one volume, bound in cloth, 12s. Vol. II. is in the press. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, played by the Composer with immense success. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Stabat Mater"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY—Handel's celebrated Song, sung by Santley—transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. A new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will eventually become as popular as the celebrated "Guards' Waltz," by the same Composer. Price 4s., Solo or Duet. Illustrated by Lynch. Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. A new Quadrille on favourite Nautical Melodies. Arranged by D. GODFREY, Composer of the "Guards'" and "Mabel" Waltzes. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's popular Opera, "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. GODFREY, Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 4s. Illustrated.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop, from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s. Illustrated. CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYERBEER'S AFRICAINE.—Now ready, the complete Opera, with French Words, 20s.; also, the following PIANOFORTE ARRANGEMENTS, published by
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

CALLCOTT'S AFRICAINE.—Meyerbeer's last great Opera. The favourite Airs, in three books, Solos and Duets arranged for the Pianoforte by W HUTCHINS CALLCOTT.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

COOTE'S AFRICAINE QUADRILLE, on Meyerbeer's new Opera, performed for the first time at Her Majesty's State Ball, May 17. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

GODFREY'S AFRICAINE WALTZ, on Meyerbeer's New Opera. Price 4s. Illustrated.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

CRAMER'S AFRICAINE BOUQUET DE MELODIES, on Meyerbeer's Opera. Price 5s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S AFRICAINE. Grande Marche Indienne, from Meyerbeer's New Opera, arranged for the Piano by Brinley Richards. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S NEW SONG, "I cannot sing the old songs." Composed expressly for her by CLARIBEL, and introduced for the first time, with remarkable success, at Mdme. Sainton-Dolby's concert, May 15.

"I cannot sing the old songs,
I sung long years ago,
For heart and voice would fail me,
And foolish tears would flow."

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

I CANNOT SING THE OLD SONGS. CLARIBEL'S new Song, composed for Mdme. Sainton-Dolby. Published this day by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

KUHE'S LINDA. New Fantasia on Donizetti's popular Opera "Linda di Chamouni." Revived this season at both the Opera Houses. Published this day, price 4s., by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

ARDITI'S L'OROLOGIO, New Scherzo, with Italian words, 3s., or English words, "Tic tic," 3s.; also for the Pianoforte, 3s. This charming polka movement promises to become as popular as "Il Bacio." It will be sung by Miss Laura Harris at the Author's Concert, Friday, June 9.
BOOSEY and CO.

THE CHILDREN'S KINGDOM. By BLUMENTHAL. New Song, sung at the Author's Concert, with unprecedented success, by Mdme. Sainton-Dolby.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE CHILDREN'S KINGDOM. By BLUMENTHAL. This new and highly successful Song, arranged for the Pianoforte by the Author.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MELVIL CASTLE. Old Scotch Ballad. Newly arranged by Mrs. CAMPBELL, of Drimnamuchloch.
"Willie's gane to Melvil Castle, boots and spurs, an a',
To bid farewell to the leddies fair, afore he gaed awa."
Price 2s. 6d. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

New Edition of

MARION'S SONG by CLARIBEL. This highly-popular Song will in future be published exclusively by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW SONG.

THE MESSAGE OF LOVE. Valse Ariette. 3s. Also, with Italian words, "La Messaggier a d'Amore." 3s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BEETHOVEN'S "FIDELIO." 8s. Complete vocal score in German and English. 8s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

TAKE BACK THE HEART. A New Song, but already an immense success. By CLARIBEL. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bound works excepted).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

STATE BALL, Buckingham Palace.—Played by command, by Coote and Tinney's Band:—

COOTE'S FOREST FLOWER VALSE	4s.
STRAUS'S MENESTREL VALSE	4s.
COOTE'S CADIZ QUADRILLE	4s.
FREWIN'S FAIRY FOOTSTEPS VALSE	4s.
COOTE'S NEW LANCERS	4s.
COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP	3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED BY ALL THE BANDS.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED.

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Watercresses," "Have you seen the Ghost?" "Polly Perkins," &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ALWAYS ENCORED.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE, price 4s., on the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Bedford.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. No dance programme complete without them.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF

OH, WOULD I WERE A BIRD! The great Christy Song. Price 2s. 6d. (Creating a perfect furore.)—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG,

THE WEEPIN' WILLER; or, The Miller's Daughter, price 2s. 6d., is the best comic song published.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A MOST AMUSING COMIC SONG.

HAVE YOU SEEN HER LATELY. Price 2s. 6d. Sung by Albert Steele.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS.

J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS.

Bob Simmons's Courtship	3s.
He, She, and the Postman	3s.
A Norrible Tale	3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A COMIC VERSION OF

THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME, by BALFE, price 3s., causes shouts of laughter.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S SONGS. For contralto. Price 3s. each, post-free at half price.
THE LIST'NING MOTHER. Sung by Mdme. Sainton-Dolby.
WHEN SPARROWS BUILD. Words by Jean Ingelow.
CORRA LINN. Sung by Miss Palmer.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SONGS FROM SHAKSPEARE. Set to Music by ARTHUR S. SULLIVAN.

O Mistress Mine. Sung by Mr. Santley ..	2s. 6d.
Orpheus with his lute	3s. 0d.
The Willow Song, and Sigh no more, Ladies ..	2s. 6d. each.

METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MDME. OURY'S NEW PIECES.

Lara. Fantasia.	4s.
Orphée aux Enfers. Fantasia	4s.

METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S TRANSCRIPTIONS.
The Arab Song, from "Lara." 3s.
The List'ning Mother. Miss Gabriel's popular Song. 3s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SWING SONG. By CH. FONTAINE. Second Edition of this very popular Pianoforte Piece. Price 3s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

PLAYED AT THE STATE BALL.

LARA QUADRILLE. By COOTE. Piano Solo or Duet, 4s. each. Post-free for 25 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE VALSE OF THE SEASON.

LARA VALSES. By COOTE. Piano Solo or Duet, 4s. each. May be had for Orchestra.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SINGING BIRD'S VALSE. J. P. CLARKE. Played by all the Regimental Bands. With a beautiful and novel Illustration. Price 4s. post-free.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W

MADAME OURY'S ECHOES OF THE LAKES.—The first Number, a Fantasia on Moore's Irish Melodies, is now ready, price 4s., and will be performed by the Composer at her Matinée, June 22, for the first time in public. Free for 25 stamps from EVANS and CO., 77, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded).—A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Yachts, Boudoirs, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 26 guineas. A great variety may be seen at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the pure English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as the above makers', and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in every respect to other instruments at 50 guineas, price 35 guineas; in walnut, 40 guineas.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side (and hired, with option of purchase) at the new Show-rooms of
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. Messrs. Chappell strongly recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte at or about the same price, whether new or secondhand.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 60 guineas; other varieties at 25 and 35 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues of Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and in oak case. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S. 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak case, 32 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

H A R M O N I U M S at BOOSEY and CO.'S.
The 8-guinea Harmonium, in polished oak case, one stop. The 10-guinea or School Harmonium, also in oak case, has a powerful tone suitable for class-singing, &c. Harmoniums for churches or drawing-rooms, from 18 to 100 guineas. Any of the above may be had with Dawe's patent melody attachment, which gives a pure and defined melody as if produced by another instrument. Catalogues upon application.
24, Holles-street, W.

P I A N O F O R T E S at BOOSEY and CO.'S.
The Miniature, price 17 guineas; the check-action Pianette, price 25 guineas, in an elegant walnut case; the model Cottage Piano, price 35 guineas, &c. Catalogues upon application.
24, Holles-street, W.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted for hot climates and to keep well in tune, from Two guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MUSICAL BOXES by NICOLE FRÈRES. A Selection of Two Hundred lists of the newest descriptions. Æolian Harps, vibrating with the slightest breeze, 12s. to 26s. KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside.

LONDON and RYDER, Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, and Diamond Workers, 17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street), have NOW ON VIEW a new and recherché Stock of first-class JEWELLERY, in best possible taste, of original design, and sterling quality, as wedding souvenirs.
London and Ryder, 17, New Bond-street (corner of Clifford-street). Prize Medal at the International Exhibition for "General good taste and merit."
A large variety of Diamond Ornaments. A liberal discount for cash always deducted.

NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and the RECONNOITERER GLASS, 10s. 10d., sent free.—This "Tourist's Favourite" distinctly shows small windows ten miles off, landscape at thirty miles, Jupiter's moons, &c.—The Marquis of Carmarthen: "The reconnoiterer is very good." Earl of Breadalbane: "I find it all you say, and wonderfully powerful for so very small a glass." Lord Garvagh: "Remarkably good." Rev. Lord Scarsdale "approves of it." Lord Gifford, of Ampney: "Most useful." Sir Digby Cayley: "It gives me complete satisfaction, and is wonderfully good." Major Starkey, of Wrenbury Hall: "Quite as powerful as that for which I gave £5 5s." Captain Sendey, Royal Small-arms Factory, Enfield: "I have found it effective at the 1000 yards' range." F. H. Fawkes, Esq., of Farnley: "I never before, although I have tried many, met a glass combining so much power for its size with so much clearness." The Field: "We have found it fully equal to others which had cost more than four times its price." Notes and Queries: "What tourist will now start without such an indispensable companion?" The celebrated "Hythe" Glass shows bullet-marks at 1200 yards, and men at 3½ miles. Price 31s. 6d. All the above, respectively bearing the registered trade marks, "Salom," "Reconnoiterer," and "Hythe," are only to be had direct from, and by written application to, SALOM and CO., 98, Prince's-street, Edinburgh.
No agents of any kind anywhere.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1837, under Royal Patronage), 17, Waterloo-place, London, S.W.
ARTHUR R. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

LADIES' SCHOOL, 40 and 50 Guineas Yearly for Board and Education—Laundress, Seat in Church, Musical Pieces, Drawing Materials, and use of Books included. No extras. Masters attend daily. References, H. S., Mr. LIMBERD'S, 344, Strand, W.C.

LOOK HERE!—FROM NORWAY. ROLFSHUUS INN, parish of Gol, at Hallingdal, in Norway, about 119 English miles from Christiania, 105 miles from Drammen, and 91 miles from Lærdalsœrn. Tourists and travellers, visiting Norway, will find the above inn delightfully situated in the centre of Hallingdal on their trip between Christiania and Bergen. The beauties of this district are well known, and the proprietor of the inn, Mrs. BRUUN, trusts that the strictest attention to the comfort of those who may honour her with their favours will ensure her a liberal share of public patronage. Mrs. Bruun has had the pleasure to see most respectable English gentlemen in her house.

ARTISTIC PROFESSION FOR LADIES, in Town or Country, and employment guaranteed. The Proprietors of the Royal Albert Press Lithographic Printing and Publishing Company, established solely to promote female employment, are now prepared to EMPLOY a number of educated WOMEN at their own homes. Remuneration liberal. A knowledge of drawing not necessary. The occupation most successfully carried on through the book post. Full particulars will be sent on receipt of a stamped directed envelope. Offices, Mortimer House, 16, Charles-street, Middlesex Hospital; and 42, Wells-street, Oxford-street, W.

MR. CLAUDET.—CARTES DE VISITE PORTRAITS. 12 Copies for £1 1s.; 30 for £2 2s.
Several positions are taken and a proof of each submitted to the sitter, who has the option of selecting from either or all negatives. If the proofs are not approved of another sitting is granted. The only way to give entire satisfaction. Children taken by Mr. Claudet's Instantaneous Process.
107, Regent-street, W.

MESSRS. MAYALLS' PHOTOGRAPHS. Every size and style of PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, from the carte-de-visite to the lifesize, from the plain, tinted, or highly-finished miniature to the full-sized oil painting, taken daily. Copies, Reproductions, &c. 224, Regent-street (corner of Argyll-place), London; and 91, King's-road, Brighton.

JAQUES'S PRIZE MEDAL CROQUET, 15s. to £5 5s. per set. Sold at all the leading Fancy Repositories throughout the Kingdom. Wholesale, Jaques and Son, 102, Hatton-garden. Caution: Observe the name "Jaques and Son" on each box, without which none are genuine.

THE FIVE-SHILLING ILLUMINATING COLOUR BOX contains twelve superfine Colours, body, white, gold, aluminium, and brushes.—J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st., London; and all Artists' Colourmen, &c.

THE PHOTOCHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to colour photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with twelve colours, all materials, specimen, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.,
Silversmiths, Cutlers, &c., pre-eminent for their
Electro-Silver Plate, for Dinner à la Russe,
Electro-Silver Plate suitable for Presentation,
Electro-Silver Christening, Wedding, and Birthday Presents,
Sterling Silver ditto ditto,
Sterling Silver Volunteer and Rifle Prizes,
Electro-Silver ditto ditto,
Electro-Silver Cups and Tankards,
Sterling Silver Cups and Tankards,
Electro-Silver Tea and Coffee Services,
Electro-Silver Side Dishes and Dish Covers,
Electro-Silver Breakfast, Luncheon, and Dinner Cruets,
Electro-Silver Egg Frames,
Electro-Silver Fish-eating Knives and Forks,
Electro-Silver Fish Carvers, in case,
Electro-Silver Dessert Knives and Forks, in cases,
Table Knives of unsurpassed excellence,
Canteen-Cases completely fitted for Officers,
Plate Chests for partial or entire Outfits.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory—The Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.
Illustrated Catalogues and priced list free on application.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Celebrated DRESSING CASES } completely fitted with every article
DRESSING BAGS } of convenience and luxury.
DESPATCH BOXES, fitted with Cutlery and Stationery.
77 and 78, Oxford-street; and at 71 and 72, Cornhill.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, opposite the Bank. The best wrought SILVER SPOONS and FORKS, fiddle pattern, 7s. 4d. per ounce. Queen's pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Many other patterns recently finished, plain or highly ornamented.

Fiddle Pattern.	Oz.	£	s.	d.	Queen's Pattern.	Oz.	£	s.	d.
12 Table Spoons	30	11	0	0	12 Table Spoons	40	15	0	0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	7	6	8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	9	7	6
12 Table Forks	30	11	0	0	12 Table Forks	40	15	0	0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	7	6	8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	9	7	6
2 Gravy Spoons	10	3	13	4	2 Gravy Spoons	12	4	0	0
1 Soup Ladle	10	3	13	4	1 Soup Ladle	11	4	2	6
4 Sauce Ditto	10	3	18	4	4 Sauce Ditto	12	4	16	0
4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		1	0	0	4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		2	2	0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)		2	10	0	1 Fish Slice (pierced)		3	5	0
12 Tea Spoons	10	3	18	4	12 Tea Spoons	14	5	12	0
1 Pair Sugar Tongs		0	15	0	1 Pair Sugar Tongs		1	5	0

A pamphlet is published, with 300 Engravings, as a guide to the stock in the Show-rooms. It contains the weights and prices of silver spoons, forks, tea and coffee services and table plate, with particulars of ornamental plate for private use or presentation; also, of the best silver-plated manufactures, gold and silver watches, clocks, and jewellery. Gratis on application, and post-free to any part of the British dominions.
For the use of committees, a work is printed with large lithographic drawings of plate kept ready for presentation.

DINNER, DESSERT, BREAKFAST, TEA, and TOILET SERVICES.—A large assortment of new and good patterns. Also a beautiful variety of every description of Cut Table Glass. The stock is well selected, and admirably suited for parties furnishing to choose from.
First-class quality, superior taste, low prices.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

GARDNERS' LAMPS ARE THE BEST.—MODERATOR and PARAFFIN TABLE LAMPS, from 5s. 6d. each. Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality. Illustrated Catalogues post-free.—Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (4 doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C.

OSLER'S Crystal Glass CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c.
Glass Dinner Services, for 12 persons, from £7 15s.
Glass Dessert Services, for 12 persons, from £2.
All articles marked in plain figures.
Ornamental Glass, English and Foreign, suitable for presents.
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders, promptly executed.
London—Show-rooms, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Show-rooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Moderator Lamps, in Bronze, Ormolu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Vases, and other ornaments.—OSLER, 45, Oxford-street, W.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. One hundred thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.C.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING MACHINES.—Prize Medal 1862.—These machines, made by the original Patentees and Introducers of the Invention, stand foremost and unrivalled for all practical purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with exceeding rapidity, regularity, and durability, and give no trouble. The stitching (alike on both sides of the material) is without cord or ridge, and the thread cannot be pulled out.—66, Newgate-street, and Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.

THE NEW ROMAN CATHOLIC ARCHBISHOP OF WESTMINSTER.

THE Most Rev. Henry Edward Manning, whom the Pope has appointed to succeed the late Cardinal Wiseman in the Roman Catholic archiepiscopic of Westminster, was born at Totteridge, near Barnet, on July 15, 1808, being the son of Mr. William Manning, a London merchant, who was for some time a member of Parliament. He was educated at Harrow School, and at Balliol College, Oxford, where he entered as an undergraduate in 1827; he took a first class and his degree of B.A. in Michaelmas Term, 1830, and was soon afterwards elected a Fellow of Merton College; he was also for some time one of the select preachers in the University of Oxford. He resigned his fellowship in 1833, and took the vicarage of Lavington, near Midhurst, in Sussex, to which was added, in 1840, the appointment of Archdeacon of Chichester, and he held these offices in the Protestant Established Church of England till 1851, when he announced his conversion to the Roman Catholic system. Having received ordination as priest from the hands of Cardinal Wiseman, Mr. Manning went to Rome and became a student of theology in the college of the Academia, where he remained till 1854. He then returned to England, and undertook an active propagandist mission in this country. The degree of D.D. was conferred upon him by the Pope, who also, in 1857, appointed him Provost of Westminster and of St. Mary's, Moorfields. In the same year, by the desire of Cardinal Wiseman, he took charge of the establishment of the congregation of the Oratory of St. Charles, in the diocese of Westminster. In 1860, Dr. Manning was appointed one of the Pope's domestic prelates and a Protonotary Apostolic, since which he has borne the title of Monsignor Manning. He is the author of many published sermons, a treatise on the Unity of the Church, and another on the Temporal Power of the Pope. His consecration as Archbishop took place last Thursday, with the usual pomp and ceremony, in the Church of St. Mary Moorfields. Our Portrait is from a photograph by Messrs. J. and C. Watkins of Parliament-street. It represents Archbishop Manning in the costume of his new office. It is said he will be made a Cardinal.

THE MOST REV. DR. MANNING, THE NEW ROMAN CATHOLIC ARCHBISHOP OF WESTMINSTER.

THE LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY STATION.

THE new station of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway, and of the Metropolitan Extension Railway, near the bottom of Ludgate-hill, was opened for traffic on Thursday, the 1st inst., but is yet in a very unfinished state. A View of the principal front, in New Bridge-street, Blackfriars, is given on this page. The architecture of the façade has no great pretensions to dignity of style, but it presents rather a lively appearance, with its turrets at each corner and its decorations of parti-coloured brickwork above the arched doorways. The interior is convenient enough for the accommodation of the large passenger traffic, which may be expected to increase considerably upon the completion of the High-Level Crystal Palace Railway and Upper Norwood station, to be opened next month, in connection with the Metropolitan Extension line of this company at Camberwell. The booking-offices at the Ludgate-hill station are situated within a circular inclosure which stands in the middle of the spacious hall on the ground floor, one side being allotted to the Metropolitan Extension Railway (Brixton, Clapham, Battersea, and Pimlico), while the other is devoted to the business of the main line, as well as of the Margate and Ramsgate portion, and through Continental traffic. The passengers, on alighting from the trains, may either descend the stairs to the doors opening into New Bridge-street, or, by another staircase, may emerge into a narrow lane which offers, at present, the readiest access to Ludgate-hill. When the houses yet remaining at the corner of Ludgate-hill shall be removed a more suitable approach may be provided on that side, but it is likely that many of the passengers for the City will not alight at Ludgate-hill, but will go on by the line now under construction which is to join the London, Chatham, and Dover with the Metropolitan Railway at Smithfield, thence passing on to Aldersgate and Liverpool-street. Most of the heavy goods traffic of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway stops at their more capacious establishment on the Surrey side of Blackfriars Bridge, where there is a vast amount of room for storage, in the vicinity of the warehouses and factories of the borough of Southwark. The Ludgate-hill station is for passenger traffic.

THE LUDGATE-HILL STATION OF THE LONDON, CHATHAM, AND DOVER RAILWAY.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

While we are elevating the dog into a domestic deity, as the Egyptians worshipped the cat; while we pet him in Belgravia, delight in him at St. John's-wood, make a show of him at Islington, establish a hospital for him at Paddington, and a "home" for him—poor wanderer!—in the New-road, the Times and the police are about to make a martyr of him. "Death to the dogs!" He is found running about the streets with his tongue ten inches out of his mouth; therefore let him die. He may look pretty, my friends, delicate as a lady, pearly as to his toe-nails; and sleek as silk, as to his hair; as that Pomeranian dog of blue blood and high rank which lolls on a crimson velvet cushion, up at the Agricultural. But, oh! he is gruesome in his danger. He bites you, or he bites your cat, or your horse, and straight-way you are afflicted with water madness, spinal meningitis, a furious desire to bark, a distress and anguish of mind; you are death stricken, with no cure. Bites of dogs are common enough; but, thank good-ness, this hydrophobia is yet so rare that hardly has any doctor been able to take a complete and thorough diagnosis of it. But that these wandering minstrels, these vagabond and houseless dogs, these erratic curs who live upon the charity of beggar boys, the good-nature of butchers, the easy temper of bakers, and the soft-heartedness of those who deal in sheeps' trotters and tripe, are plentiful in London no one can doubt. We have not a mendicity society for dogs, with Sir Edwin Landseer as president and Mr. Ansdell as V.P.; but the former has made historical a scene wherein a jack-in-office of a well-fed dog, sitting on a barrow-full of horseflesh, keeps at bay a numerous and hungry retinue of down-looking, homeless, rib-staring, unkempt, and moneyless curs, which would have made fit companions for Lazarus in his last necessity. It is these dogs, forming a ragged fringe of canine society, that are to be extirpated. We all know what Goldsmith sung about a dog which, "to gain some private ends, went mad and bit the man," and we are now told by the secretary of the London Hospital that 2000 cases of dog bites have been brought into one hospital during twenty years; and, in good truth, there must be plenty of dog-mischief in London if this be true. So all wandering dogs,

> As many dogs there be,
> Both mongrel, puppy, whelp, and hound,
> And cur of low degree,

are to be "dealt with by the police," and the dog tax is strictly to be enforced, so that the owners of snapping, snarling, and viciously-minded dogs shall be held responsible.

And this talk of hydrophobia naturally brings me to certain teeto-tallers, who, estimable fellows, made their appearance in great force on Hampstead-heath, on Whit Monday, and whose leaders talked with forcible feebleness on the "Permissive Bill." I don't think many of us have yet mastered the meaning of the Permissive Bill, because we believe that "the tyranny of the majority" as to forbidding a glass of wine, or regarding old port as a deadly poison, is yet far distant; and I am sure that, as a body, the teetotallers do not carry out their boast that their mode of life produces health of mind as well as of body. A worn, scared, and somewhat dazed-looking crew toiled up Hampstead-hill on Monday. Some juvenile mem-bers, future sprigs of the Bands of Hope, were tightly and perspiringly packed sixteen in a cab, with a bouquet of children and grown persons in Whitsun finery outside; for in their eagerness to damn that sin of spirituous or alcoholic imbibation which they were not at present inclined to, many of them, I am afraid, were guilty of much cruelty to animals. An offshoot of this "monster meeting" expended what extra steam had been generated by water and heat on Tuesday, in the lower hall, Exeter Hall, Mr. John Abel Smith holding the safety-valve. But here an opponent put in a striking rejoinder. We all know that, according to the epistles of teetotalism, alcohol causes murder, war, fire, theft, lock-jaw, and convulsions. Now we were told that drink-ing is the cause of poverty, which assertion a Mr. Turley blocked by asserting, with more truth, that poverty is the cause of drinking.

The Premier of the future, Mr. Gladstone, will scarcely be so liberal as to debar us from the cup which cheers and sometimes inebriates, since he prides himself so much on the results of the French treaty. His speech in aid of his son at Chester was noticeable, not only on account of its eloquence, but also because it gave no uncertain sound. Whatever Mr. Disraeli and the Conservatives may mean, the Liberals mean to come into office again, and to hold it. Mr. Gladstone was wise when he appealed to the electors to trust the working man, and to extend the suffrage; but he was hardly Liberal when he said that the Conservatives feared the working men. No one gains by mis-representing his opponents, and the only fear the Conservatives have seems to be that the really working, thinking, and taxpaying middle classes shall be swamped.

Why is not the suffrage held forth as a prize to those who like to win it? Why, in large boroughs, are the rich and cultivated always absent from the polling-booth? Why do we have members only elected who appeal ad populum, and why are those members, as a rule, so unworthy? Simply because the working man predominates, and is easily tickled, and does not judge. Mr. Gladstone is evidently one of those "flattering painters who make it their care to draw men, working men, as they ought to be, not as they are;" but he is, never-theless, a power in the country, trusted by many, beloved by more, mistrusted by more still, but admired and followed by most. By-the-way, in relation to the French treaty, which Mr. Gladstone alleges has made up for the whole deficiency of trade with America, and which has done England so much good, we must not forget the great merit lay with Mr. Cobden, and it is pleasant to record the fact that his widow has declined the pension of £1500 a year offered by the Government, since Mr. Cobden's family are left in circumstances that render any provision on the part of the Govern-ment unnecessary." It is gratifying to add that the Guild of Litera-ture and Art, having built two houses for "decayed authors," cannot find authors to put in them. So much the better for the authors. Let us hope that the ragged livery of letters, of which too much has been said, is being gradually replaced by a coat which is bran new, serviceable, and, at the same time, "genteel." Blacks are made free, negroes are to be admitted to the franchise; why should not those slaves of society, authors, be, at the same time, emancipated?

If the stories about the treatment of Mr. Davis at Fortress Monroe be true, so much the worse for American humanity. If they be un-true, the authors of them should be at once punished. The bitterest opponents of that successful Republic, which has now an Ireland—nay, a Poland—of its own, and which holds an enemy who has been far less bitter, less expensive, more courteous, and less abusive and virulent than Napoleon was to us,—her bitterest opponents can wish nothing better than she should iron her enemy, throw him down on his back, and rivet his manacles, while he is begging to be shot rather than thus insulted. To be treated worse than we should treat a furious burglar—to be debarred from book and candle, pen or paper, and to be shut up ironed and alone—is surely beyond the bitterness of death. Really the old country, that "stoopid old grandmother England," comes out brightly in her treatment of Napoleon fifty years ago. He was too shifty and too expensive an enemy to be let loose; but he had an island given to him, he was still Emperor, still waited on by his devoted friends. We did not call in the smith and the manacles. Do, pray, Mr. Johnson, permit the New York press to deny these charges. Slay the victim, if it is to be so; but do not torture him before he be slain.

A suggestion of much importance has been made by a gentleman who is far-seeing enough to tell us that meat, next year, will reach from 14d. to 20d. per lb.—a price which will place it beyond the reach of the poor and make many of our working classes vegetarian and granivorous, per force. It is that all fathers and heads of families should abstain from lamb and veal until our stock be replenished. A republication of old Burton's fulminations against these meats, which, as well as hare, be "very melancholy meats," would convince all people that it as unwise as it is cruel to eat either. If only one or two dozen of the families of our readers will not only abstain from veal and lamb, but during the summer will abstain from meat as much as possible, they will benefit themselves and the poor to some extent. We are getting very rich, very luxurious, and very free with our money here; but we have little right to use it to the hurt of others.

A new theatre is to be built in Holborn, almost opposite the grand hotel which will look over Lincoln's-inn-fields. Mr. Sefton Parry is to be the manager, and Mr. Sothern the coryphæus, of the new band of histrions. It will not be very large, but, built upon the most approved principles, will possibly attract—at least, whilst it is a novelty.

THE COMING ELECTION.

It having been thoroughly understood that the dissolution of the present Parliament will take place within a period which can be counted by a few weeks, candidates all over the country are busy in issuing manifestoes to those whose suffrages they seek, and are per-sonally canvassing and addressing electors; in short, election-eering is at high tide. A cursory examination of the proceedings of candidature is sufficient to show that attempts are in progress which will very considerably change the personnel of the House of Commons; that in numerous cases where the same men are returned they will sit for places different from those which they have hitherto occupied; while several well-known names, long fixtures on the list of members, are likely to disappear from it.

Obviously, in contemplating immediate proceedings and specu-lating on future results, one turns in the first instance to the foremost men now in the House, and at once Mr. Gladstone arrests attention. It may be, stimulated by the early action of Mr. Disraeli, who, in addressing the electors of Bucks and asking for a renewal of their confidence, took occasion to issue a declaration of the policy which he holds as leader of the Opposition, Mr. Gladstone, who is so generally designated as the proximate chief of the Liberal party, was moved to seize an opportunity of publicly pronouncing his programme. Hence it probably was that he took the somewhat singular but decisive step of appearing before a constituency almost as the electioneering agent of his son, and speaking through the constituency of Chester to the country at large. Of course, looking to the peculiar character and customs of the constituency of the University of Oxford, Mr. Gladstone has no personal exertion to make in regard to his own election, for the electors permit neither written nor spoken addresses, nor even the personal presence of can-didates at the actual election. It seems that, notwithstanding Mr. Gathorne Hardy's positive statement to the electors of Leominster that he proposes to renew his claim to their suffrages, he is to be put into opposition to Mr. Gladstone at Oxford; the fact that a com-mittee for the purpose having been formed, of which his brother, Mr. John Hardy, is chairman, being conclusive on that point. The only other Minister to whom public attention has as yet been directed in connection with the elections is Sir Charles Wood, whose sudden an-nouncement of retiring from Halifax, which he has represented since the borough was enfranchised by the Reform Bill, caused surprise to most people, except perhaps to the initiated at the place. It would seem that, for some reason or other, the electors of Halifax have grown tired of Sir Charles; and it is believed that at the last election it was mainly through the Stansfeld influence that he was returned. But circumstances connected with the retirement of Mr. Stansfeld from office have tended, rightly or wrongly, to weaken that influence as regards the Government member for the borough; and Sir Charles deemed it wise not to risk the chances of the defeat of a Cabinet Minister, and so he left the ground clear to Mr. Akroyd, whose local claims on the constituency will, doubtless, be acknowledged by an unopposed return along with Mr. Stansfeld. It is believed that Sir Charles Wood proposes to try his chance of obtaining one of the two new seats which have been apportioned to the West Riding of York-shire, and, if possible, to essay the representation of the southern division before accepting the alternative of a peerage.

A fitting starting-point for a brief examination of the condition of electioneering generally may well be the metropolitan boroughs; and foremost amongst them should be placed the city of London. At present no symptom of any contest is visible in that direction from a Conservative point of view, the vacancy caused by the retirement of Sir James Duke being sought only by a Liberal, Mr. Alderman Lawrence, the late Lord Mayor. Nothing has yet been heard of any intention of retiring on the part of Baron Rothschild, the state of whose health might suggest some idea of the kind; but if he does not offer to vacate his seat it is believed that he will be again returned; while as regards Mr. Crawford and Mr. Göschen there is little or, indeed, no doubt that they will have a quiet walk over. Much interest attaches to the elec-tion for Westminster, where Mr. John Stuart Mill seems likely to be unchallenged in his candidature for the seat which Sir De Lacy Evans resigns; while Sir John Shelley, with some tact and consideration for his party, has refused to divide the Liberal interest, and retired, leaving the real contest between Captain Grosvenor, who may be sup-posed to be a Whig, if nothing more, and the mild Conservative, Mr. W. H. Smith. It is probable that Sir J. Shelley's political virtue will be rewarded by his return for Greenwich, where a seat is vacant by the transference of his services by Mr. Angerstein to West Kent, and where there is no very threatening opposition to him. Of course, Mr. Aldermen Salomons's seat for Greenwich is secure. In Lambeth there will be a contest, but it will be between advanced Liberals; for Mr. Thomas Hughes (known popularly as Tom Brown) is in the field, and the electors will have to consider, if he is accepted, whether Mr. Doulton, or their newest member, Mr. Alderman J. Lawrence, is to receive his congé. Of the Tower Hamlets and of Southwark we hear nothing; Mr. Ayrton and Mr. Butler in the former, and Mr. Layard and Mr. Locke in the latter, having every prospect of an un-disturbed renewal of their lease. Finsbury is a little more agitated. Supposing Mr. Cox to retain the affections of the electors, and it is on the cards that he will do so; there is a vacant seat to be struggled for, owing to Sir Morton Peto going to Bristol. The candidature is all Liberal in its character, and is divided between Mr. M'Cullagh Torrens, who has been canvassing for the last two years; Mr. Alderman Lusk, and Mr. Phillips; so that there is no lack of choice for all but the Conservative electors, if there are any in Finsbury.

Amongst notable men who are on the move may be mentioned Lord Stanley, who, without any formal address, has intimated his intention of renewing his claim on the electors of King's Lynn, on the score of that very Liberal Conservatism which he professes. In a desultory way, as is a necessity, for all the election intelligence comes in a desul-tory way, it may be noticed that Mr. Samuel Whitbread, a little while ago Civil Lord of the Admiralty, and, of course, a supporter of the so-called Liberal Government, again puts in his claim—an hereditary one of long standing—to the confidence of the electors of Bedford; nor does there appear to be any obstacle to his return in conjunction with his present colleague, Colonel Stuart, who is the representative of the Conservative section of the constituency. At Cambridge town the Conservative members, Mr. Macaulay and Mr. Francis Powell, are threatened with a contest, the Liberal candidates being Mr. W. D. Christie, late British Minister at Brazil, who formerly sat for Weymouth before he deserted Parliament for diplomacy, but who seems now to be recurring to his original vocation, and with whom is associated Colonel Torrens. It was generally supposed that Mr. Adam Black would not stand again for Edinburgh, especially as, having been returned in almost the extreme Liberal interest, he has of late shown tendencies which brought on him a suspicion, and something more, of being a retrograde Reformer. It seems, how-ever, that he intends to dare the chances against him, and has come forward, strengthened by an alliance with his colleague, the Lord Advocate, who, of course, asks re-election. Some dissatisfaction which has been exhibited by the Liberal party in the city has taken the palpable shape of the setting up of two opposition candidates, in the persons of Mr. M'Laren and Mr. J. Miller; and there seems a prospect of an internecine contest.

Rapidly traversing the electioneering map, it may be said that the "Conservative Ten," in Essex county, are menaced by Mr. Wingfield Baker, a Liberal. At Exeter, Mr. Gard, who has sat since 1859, representing the Conservative interest, retires, and there will be a division of political influence between Lord Courtenay, Conservative, and Mr. J. D. Coleridge, Q.C., Liberal, who fought an election not long ago for that borough. At Nottingham there is civil war amongst the Liberals—Mr. Samuel Morley, a new candidate, and Mr. Paget, one of the sitting members, having apparently coalesced in antagonism to Mr. Marten, the Conservative candidate, leaving Sir Robert Clifton, the other Liberal member, to his own devices and to what seems the popular support, in the extended sense of that term; while, at Worcester city, the retirement of the present member, Mr. Osman Ricardo, Liberal, and the declining of Mr. Allsopp to test the Conser-vative strength of the borough, leave Mr. Laslett, a former member, to seek the Tory suffrages; so that, as Mr. Padmore, the existing Liberal member, is not to be disturbed, the representation will be divided. The accounts from Berkshire are interesting, supposing them to be exact; for we hear that Mr. Walter, the present Liberal Conservative member, is likely to secede, and that Viscount Uffington, son of the Earl of Craven, will, in conjunction with Mr. P. Pleydell Bouverie, one of the sitting members, fight the Liberal battle against a formidable Conservative array in the persons of Mr. Benyon, now holding a seat for the county, and two new postu-lants—Colonel Loyd Lindsay and Sir Charles Russell. From Brighton we hear that Mr. Fawcett, well known in politico-economic circles, will endeavour to restore the borough to pure Liberalism by ejecting Mr. Moor, the Conservative; while to the House there will be pre-served the services of the great, in more senses than one, Liberal, Mr. James White. There is to be a contest, probably sharp, at Coventry, whence Sir Joseph Paxton departs; for Mr. Treherne, the present representative, and Mr. Eaton are to stand for Conservatism against the advanced opinions of Mr. Osborne Stock and the stupendous eloquence of Mr. Mason Jones. Having received notice to quit the Wick Burghs, for which Mr. Samuel Laing is again a candidate, and too potent to be opposed, Viscount Bury, in company with Mr. Eustace Smith, asks the suffrages of Dover in the hope of setting aside the Conservative ascendancy which has been upheld in the present Parliament by Sir Henry Leeke and Mr. W. Nicoll. There is every probability of strong efforts to shift the situation in Gloucestershire, the seat of Mr. Rolt, the eminent Chancery Q.C. for the Western Division, having been challenged, though not yet formally. It is mentioned that one of the present members for Gloucester city (Mr. Charles Berkeley) will be asked to contest the county with Mr. Rolt; and, if so, there will be less con-fusion in the borough, where the seats of Mr. Berkeley and Mr. J. J. Powell are threatened by candidates of cognate (Liberal) politics—namely, Mr. W. Price and Mr. C. J. Monk, who were returned for the borough at the last general election, but unseated on petition for alleged bribery and corruption. If it be true that the seat of Mr. Collins, the jolly and good-natured Conservative member for Knaresborough is threatened by the advent of Mr. Isaac Holden, a Liberal, probably many per-sons familiar with Parliament will be found, even amongst his political opponents, who will hope that the attempt will not be suc-cessful as against him personally. The tenure by which Mr. Horsman has held his seat for Stroud has long been very slender, and it is stated that his recent denunciations against Parliamentary reform have created a resolve to oppose his return, if an eligible candidate can be found; and it is said that overtures will be made to Mr. J. J. Powell to desert Gloucester—which he is not likely to do—or to induce Mr. W. P. Price to forego his candidature for that city and come to Stroud. East Surrey has received its invitation to renew its favours to Mr. Locke King, and to mark its sense of his quiet but earnest, steady services in the cause of Parliamentary reform; and, although there are Conservatives in the field, there is little doubt that he will be returned and have for his colleague Mr. Charles Buxton, who, leaving Maidstone, comes, with many claims, as a public man and an advanced Liberal, to ask the votes of the county in which he resides, and to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of Mr. Alcock. There is a stir amongst the Conservatives of West Norfolk, who, with Mr. Bentinck at their head, are moving to attempt the Parliamentary remodelling of the whole county—that is, an endeavour will be made to oust the Liberal members, Colonel Coke from the eastern division, and Mr. Gurdon from the western, while the re-election of Mr. Bentinck for the western and Mr. Howes for the eastern division would complete the political homogeneity of the county representation. From amidst the labours of his politico-economic mission at Vienna, Mr. Hutt has issued his address to the electors of Gateshead, who, no doubt, for personal reasons, as well as to secure the honour of being repre-sented by a member in the Ministry, will respond favourably.

THE MAGAZINES.

The Cornhill this month maintains its character as a pleasant miscellany of light reading. Even Mr. Collins has for once relaxed a little into the humorous, and his picture of the water party on the Norfolk "broad," with the factotum, the wet blanket, and the other stock dramatis personæ of a well-regulated picnic, is sufficiently entertaining to put us entirely out of sympathy with the moody Midwinter and the deadly Gwilt when they return to assert their exclusive possession of the stage. "Wives and Daughters" con-tinues to be graceful, observant, and pathetic. The story hardly moves rapidly enough, and, like most magazine-fictions nowadays, threatens to become wearisome by inordinate length. "How We Did Mont Blanc" is a very agreeable and candid narrative, which conveys a much better idea of what an ascent really is like than any other we have seen. "Ralph Grueby's Ghost" is an entertaining story, of which, however, fully as much is made as it deserves. From sundry indications we are inclined to surmise that it is really founded on tradition, and is seriously credited by the writer or the person from whom he has obtained it. Readers will be disappointed who expect to find the names of Kent and Wagner figuring in the article on "Confession." It does not even relate to the question as it concerns the clergy, but is entirely written from the judicial point of view. "Provincialism" discusses the gradual concentration of intellect and influential opinion in the metropolis—one of the many changes silently effected by the railway system. The critic of the Elizabethan dramatists renders good service to the objects of his panegyric by his picture of the social conditions under which their works came forth into the world. When, however, he speaks of some of them as hardly inferior to Shakspeare, it is plain that his hobby is running away with him.

Macmillan commits the mistake of giving three articles on President Lincoln, at least two too many. Mr. Dicey and Professor Goldwin Smith must each have their say, and the trio is completed by a very poor copy of verses. An undisguised puff of Miss Meteyard's "Life of Wedgwood" is also worthless in itself and below the dignity of a first-class periodical like this. With these exceptions, the contents are very interesting. Mr. Henry Kingsley's paper on salmon is the model of a light magazine article, full of good fun and good sense, with beautiful passages of description interspersed. The inferiority of women in the arts and the hereditary transmission of character and genius are two subjects of great interest and difficulty very ably treated by Mr. Palgrave and Mr. Galton respectively. Both the fictions continue interesting. Mr. Blackmore's style reminds us more than ever of Mr. Henry Kingsley's, but his charac-ters and incidents are entirely his own. Miss Yonge's story has taken a totally unexpected turn, and promises more dramatic power and variety of incident than we had looked for. It is frequently written with great eloquence, and abounds with graphic delineations of mediæval life. The paper on New Zealand is written by an authority on the subject, and, perhaps for that reason, seems to presuppose an amount of knowledge respecting it which will hardly be found among the generality of readers. It is extremely difficult to follow this intricate affair, perplexed by interested representations and envenomed by the virulence of party. Our prescription would be the dispatch of a Commissioner armed with full powers, on the pattern of Lord Elgin's mission to China; and, if possible, equally distinguished with Lord Elgin for his talents and his freedom from embarrassing antecedents.

Blackwood follows the stream of taste, and allots a continually in-creasing portion of its space to fictitious literature. Of the three stories which now occupy its pages, "Piccadilly" is the most amusing and "Miss Marjoribanks" by far the first in literary and artistic power. We seem to trace the hand of Charles Lever in "Sir Brook Fosbrooke," which is not as yet very interesting as a narrative, but commands attention from the evident veracity of its delineations. Most of the characters are clearly taken from life. The letter of Italy is clever and worthy of perusal, as is almost always the case with similar communications to this magazine. A history of New Zealand without a single mention of E. G. Wakefield is almost as deficient as a performance of "Hamlet" minus the Prince of Denmark. Other-wise, the neat little summary here given is very satisfactory. A long and laboured attack on Mr. Gladstone's welcome remissions of taxation only proves that the writer would have been much better pleased if the Budget had been less successful. Nothing, it is evident, can exceed the animosity with which the Chancellor of the Exchequer is regarded by his old political allies. Another Chancellor meets with fairer treatment, the writer substantially acknowledging that the relentless persecution of Lord Westbury is due in a much greater measure to political spite than to any serious belief in his alleged delinquencies.

Fraser opens with a masterly analysis of Dr. Wiseman's and Dr. Manning's recent deliverances on the subject of science, in which the utter confusion of thought of these eminent theologians is exposed with equal humour and urbanity. Dr. Wiseman's notions of evidence are further illustrated by an examination of his attempt to rehabilitate the exploded legend of St. Ursula and her 11,000 virgins. Mr. Conway has already told us nearly all he had to say of President Lincoln, but his paper contains some interesting speculations on the probable march of events. Mr. Rossetti's critique on the Academy embodies what are probably the most refined views on art likely to find public expression in England. His intimate acquaintance with foreign schools is a great source of strength. An article on "Atalanta in Calydon" is genial and, in the main, sound. We cannot, however, agree with the writer that Mr. Swinburne's previous dramatic attempts were in any way comparable to this. Whatever passion and poetry they may have possessed were utterly disfigured by a diction more successful than we should have deemed possible in combining the extreme of floridness with the extreme of harshness. Mr. Swinburne has still great advances to make before he can be entirely acceptable to a pure taste, but the way before him is nothing to that which he has already traversed in four years. The principal scene in "Gilbert Rugge" this month is the reading of a will. This is an incident which rarely disappoints in skilful hands, and which has rarely been more skilfully treated than now.

The Shilling Magazine is still hardly up to the mark, though there are some shrewd observations in the paper on the "Manners of the Stage," and some useful information in that on "Iron Ships." "The Wild Flower of Ravensworth" is decidedly the best thing in the number—a graceful story, singularly fresh and unconventional. "Phemie Keller" drags somewhat, but may yet develop into a powerful fiction. Miss Rossetti's poem is good, and we have no doubt that the accompanying illustration was very good as it came from the pencil of Mr. Sandys; but it is one of a class which cannot be translated into a wood engraving. We must suppose that the editor is by this time heartily ashamed of the silly postscript in which his mortified vanity has found vent; we shall, consequently, say no more about it.

We take great interest in the success of the Fortnightly Review, the plan being so good, the conductors' aims so high, and the difficulties so serious that success would be a genuine triumph of merit over circumstances. The best papers in the second number are those by the editor and Mr. Amos; three of the others are sufficiently able, but all marred by a certain perversity. Lord St. Maur twists a lucid account of Spanish finance into an attack on the extravagance of Constitutional Government, as if Constitutional Government really existed in Spain. Professor Beesly's attempted vindication of Catiline is as unsuccessful as Mr. Buchanan's vindication of Thorvaldsen is superfluous; the former attempts more than he can perform, and his arguments, closely examined, resolve themselves into mere assertions; the latter sets up an antagonist of straw, and brings his powers to bear against cavils unworthy of any attention. Mr. Trollope's fiction does not display him at his best; we prefer his unprecedented appearance as a critic in a review distinguished by all his cordiality and homely sense. Mr. George Meredith's poem is a little too much in Browning's manner for originality, but supremely felicitous as an imitation.

The Dublin University is chiefly devoted to fiction, "Guy Deverel" alone occupying nearly a fourth of the number. Both stories are clever and entertaining. The Victoria contains nothing worthy of note. Temple Bar is as good as usual, and we have as much reason as ever to admire Mr. Yates's graphic observation and the pungent originality of Mr. Wills. The scene where David Chantrey reads the review of his mother's book is one of unusual power; and Mr. Yates, too, appeals powerfully to our sympathies in the eloquent narrative of the proscribed artist. Mr. Sala's genius has a natural affinity with the tropics, and he has rarely appeared to greater advantage than in his glowing description of Havannah. Mr. Wilberforce makes a pleasant addition to the many entertaining papers he has written on Munich. The St. James's has some good papers, and London Society is as rich as ever in light reading, while the illustrations are even better than usual. We are glad to congratulate the Churchman's Magazine on a decided improvement. Most of the papers are good—that by Mr. Isaac Taylor on the religious movement in Italy eminently so. He will, no doubt, find that the anticipated reformation, if carried out at all, will go much further than he expects or desires at present. Many of the other papers are of a very practical and really useful character; and Mr. Plumptre's translation from St. Clement is really beautiful. We cannot, as yet, congratulate the conductors either of the Englishman's Magazine or the Watch Tower on having obtained the success for which they are, no doubt, conscientiously striving.

Our Mutual Friend. By Charles Dickens. No. 14. (Chapman and Hall.) This is, on the whole, a good number, though the characters which constitute the strength of the book do not appear till near the conclusion. As usual, when Mr. Dickens makes a good point, he rather overdoes the internal economy of "Pubsey and Co.;" but the situation is founded in truth, and very telling. His best strength returns with Wegg and Venus, and his works contain few more comically-grotesque pictures than that of Mr. Boffin overhearing the confederates from his lurking-place behind the stuffed alligator—"a little dusty, but very like him in tone."

MUSIC.

The production of the "Médée" of Cherubini at Her Majesty's Theatre, on Tuesday last, is to be recorded as one of the most interesting musical events of the present century. Since the first performance of this opera at the Théâtre Feydeau, seventy years ago, it has been recognised as the master-work of the greatest dramatic musician that has lived since the days of Mozart. But, though it has gained a world-wide celebrity, and may almost be said to have become naturalised on the musical stage of Germany, yet it has remained, down to the present time, as unknown to the English public as if it had never existed. When it is observed how our opera-house managers strive with each other in their efforts to supply the incessant craving of the public for novelty, we cannot but wonder that they should have so entirely overlooked a work which is undoubtedly the greatest opera seria, or lyrical tragedy, in existence. The subject, taken from the "Medea" of Euripides, is of the most intense and terrible interest; the drama is a model of clearness and classical simplicity; and the music is of incomparable grandeur and beauty. Many of our readers will remember an opera on the same subject—the "Medea in Corinto," of Mayer—which, though the work of an inferior composer, gained great success, both here and on the Continent, through the merit of the drama and the scope it gave to the genius of Pasta, one of the greatest tragedians on the lyric stage. The "Médée" of Cherubini is of earlier date than the "Medea" of Mayer; but, both being founded on the ancient Greek tragedy, they are nearly identical in plot and incidents. Between the music of the two, however, no comparison can be made. The music of Mayer is pretty, but weak; it derived its effect from the dramatic interest of the subject and the tragic power of Pasta. Since her death it has fallen into oblivion, from which it can never be recalled; while the sublime work of Cherubini, now happily revived, will live on our Italian stage in perennial splendour. For this revival the English public are much indebted to Mr. Mapleson, to whose energy and judgment we owe what may be truly called the creation of a work which (we repeat) is the greatest lyrical tragedy in existence. The original French libretto has been well translated into Italian; and, as a considerable portion of the French dialogue is simply declaimed, without music, this spoken dialogue, to meet the exigencies of the Italian stage, has been turned into recitativo parlante—a task which has been executed with great skill and success by Signor Arditi. Every schoolboy and schoolgirl (now that classical learning is so diffused) knows the story of Medea, the terrible sorceress of Colchis, her cruel wrongs and terrible revenge. The character of the heroine—the powerful enchantress and the weak and impassioned woman, that matchless compound of all that is feminine and tender with all that is relentless and bloody—demands an actress such as appears but once in an age. Thirty or forty years ago we had Pasta, the Siddons of the lyric stage. She is gone, but is succeeded by one to whom the same epithet is equally due. Titiens, in this character as in others, stands alone and unrivalled. This illustrious tragedian is the Melpomene of the time; and, should a greater star appear on our horizon, it must be one that has not yet risen. The acting of Titiens, on Tuesday, we cannot attempt to describe. All that the highest genius can do in embodying the wonderful conception of the Grecian poet has been done by this incomparable performer. Passing through every phase of passion—from melting tenderness to fierce and vindictive fury—she electrified her audience and roused them to the utmost enthusiasm. In witnessing a great dramatic performance on the musical stage we are apt, while carried away by the flood of sympathetic feeling, to overlook its vocal portion. Engrossed by the pity or terror excited by the scene, we forgot that Titiens was singing, even at the moment when she was displaying the greatest wonders of her art. From the lips of a truly great singer melody becomes a language, of all languages the most eloquent; and it is in the moments when we are most under its spell that we become unconscious of its very existence. In short, during the whole of her career, this incomparable artist has never gained a greater triumph than that which she has now achieved. But the triumph was not hers exclusively: it was shared by the manager, for his magnificent production of the work; by Signor Arditi, for his admirable chorus and orchestra; and by the principal performers, for their excellent acting and singing. Jason was personated by Dr. Gunz; Creon, King of Corinth, by Mr. Santley; Dirce by Miss Lauri Harris; and Nevis by Mdlle. Sinico. All merited the warm applause which was liberally bestowed upon their merits. We conclude, as we began, by saying that the production of "Medea" is one of the most interesting musical events of our time.

At the Royal Italian Opera, Adelina Patti has appeared in a new character—Linda, in Donizetti's well-known opera, which was performed on Tuesday. We need scarcely add that she was eminently successful; that she personated the Swiss maiden with captivating grace and sweetness; sang the very florid music with wonderful brilliancy; and was received with the enthusiasm to which she is so well accustomed. The opera was got up with due care and completeness; but there was nothing in its performance that calls for any special remark.

There is to be a grand concert at the Hanover-square Rooms on Thursday next, the 15th inst., in aid of the fund for building parochial schools for St. Mark's, Regent's Park. We notice this concert by anticipation, not only on account of its excellent object, but of its uncommon attractiveness as a musical entertainment. A host of vocal and instrumental talent is announced, many of our principal performers having generously given their services. Among the singers are Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mdme. Weiss, Miss Louisa Pyne, Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Miss Poole, Mr. W. Harrison, Mr. L. Thomas, and Mr. Weiss. Among the instrumentalists are—piano, Mdme. Rous, Mr. Carroll, and Mr. Walter Macfarren; harmonium, Mr. Lemmens; and harp, Mr. F. Chatterton. Messrs. G. Allen, Emile Berger, and Harold Thomas are to act as conductors, and the selection of music is tasteful and varied.

AN OLD SNUFFBOX FORMERLY BELONGING TO TOM'S COFFEE-HOUSE
SEE PAGE 545.

Herr Coenen's matinée musicale, on Wednesday, last week, at the Hanover-square Rooms, was an excellent and successful entertainment. Herr Coenen, we need scarcely tell our readers, is a young pianist of great merit and rising reputation, and his performance of several classical works of the great masters was much applauded by a large and musical audience. A young lady, Miss Strickland, a pupil of Herr Coenen, made her first appearance in London, and had a highly favourable reception.

The third subscription concert of Mr. Henry Leslie's choir took place on Thursday week at St. James's Hall, which was crowded to the doors, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. Our musical readers are well acquainted with this now celebrated choir, and it is sufficient, therefore, to say that the concert was made up of the usual materials—an admirable selection of ancient and modern glees, madrigals, and part-songs, intermingled with airs and instrumental pieces. Among the novelties was a part-song, "The Flax-spinner," by Mr. Leslie, which was loudly encored, and a glee for male voices, "By the dark rolling waters," by Mr. M'Murdie, Mus. B., Oxon, a striking composition, which was warmly applauded. It is a dirge, or funeral song, in which the strain of a single bass voice is echoed by the responsive voices of the choir, producing a deeply solemn effect. The greatest vocal achievement of the evening was Wilbye's "Sweet honey-sucking bees," the most beautiful but difficult madrigal extant, which was sung by the choir with faultless precision and exquisite effect. Mr. Sims Reeves sang Bishop's fine song, "The Pilgrim of Love." He was in full possession of his vocal powers, and, of course, was applauded to the echo. The fourth and last of these concerts will take place on the 29th inst., when Mendelssohn's unaccompanied psalm for a double choir, "Judge me, O God!" will be included in the programme.

Master Willie Pape, whose performances before the Royal family and nobility we have previously noticed, gave a concert at Southsea, on Tuesday, to a large and fashionable audience.

THE THEATRES.

The season of Whitsuntide has commanded only one piece, an operatic burlesque, at the Strand, founded on and named after Mr. Harrison Ainsworth's historical romance of "Windsor Castle." This piece is distinguished by original attributes, and is illustrated by original music, for the merits of which Mr. Musgrave, the musical director, is to be credited. We miss, therefore, those parodies, and many of those puns, which are wont to add piquancy to burlesque action. The performance is eminently spectacular, and owes much to Mr. C. Fenton for its scenery, and to the Misses Gunniss for an excellent ballet in the style of "Comus." Mr. Ainsworth's romance is so well known that we are spared the detail of the plot, in which Henry VIII. (Miss Raynham) is found vacillating between the attractions of Mabel Lyndwood (Miss Ada Swanborough) and Anne Boleyn (Mr. Thomas Thorne), the latter being likewise persecuted by the attentions of Sir Thomas Wyatt (Miss Maria Simpson). The main action, which is partly inexplicable, belongs, however, to Morgan Fenwolf, the Gamekeeper of Windsor Forest (Mr. James Stoyle), and Herne the Hunter (Mr. C. Fenton), who constantly occupy the foreground, and by their grotesque dancing and athletic exercise in connection with Will Somers, the Court Jester (Mr. D. James), keep the audience in perpetual excitement. The merits of the piece as a spectacle are considerable, and those of Mr. Musgrave, as a musical composer, deserve instant and decided recognition. He was summoned by the audience, but was too modest to accept the intended ovation. The costumes and scenery are superb. The originality of this drama, whatever may be the amount of its other attractions, ought to ensure it a prolonged success. It is not only splendidly mounted, but capitally acted. Miss Swanborough's Mabel, Mr. Thorne's Boleyn, Mr. Stoyle's Fenwolf, Mr. Fenton's Herne, and Mr. James's Jester, stand out as powerful embodiments of the author's ideas. For the rest, it is truly a wonder how such mechanical effects and such scenic illusions can be produced on so small a stage.

At the Polytechnic we find an entertainment of a dramatic character peculiarly interesting. Professor Pepper, in undertaking to lecture on the Holy Places, combines those of Islam with Christianity, and represents by dissolving views the leading incidents in the life of Mohammed. This is rendered more attractive by the manner in which it is concluded. The new optical illusion, which we have already described, is added; and Mr. Pepper and Mr. Tobin perform real marvels, with which the conjuring tricks of the Davenports can bear no comparison. The new Proteus in the wonderful cabinet appears and disappears by means of a scientific apparatus, which is as neat as it is new. It is the joint invention of Mr. Pepper and Mr. Dircks.

Three of the principal New York hotels breakfasted one morning 2500 persons.

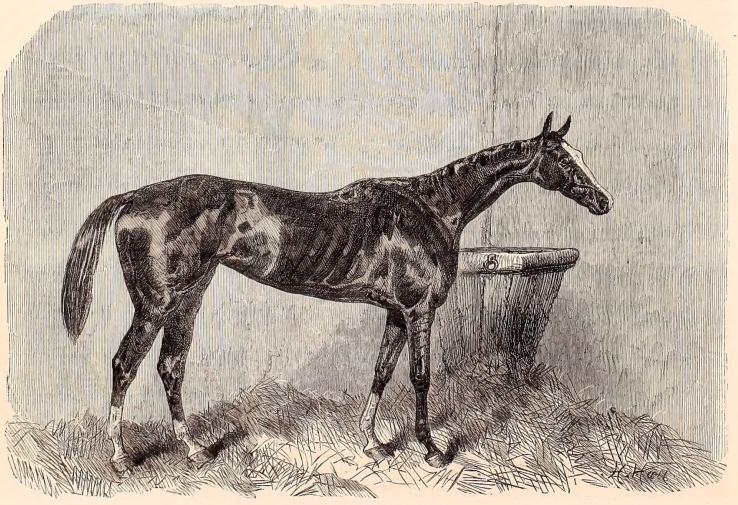
A considerable number of volunteer artillerymen have become deaf owing to the firing of heavy guns.

A letter from Catania, dated the 28th ult., says that the eruption of Mount Etna continues. In fact, it had broken out with renewed violence a few days previously, and had done some damage.

THE MAY FESTIVAL AT WYMERING, HAMPSHIRE.

The village of Wymering, near Portsmouth, is yearly made the scene of a pretty social festival, which the Vicar of the parish, the Rev. George Nugee, has devised for the innocent pleasure of his neighbours, both poor and rich, inviting them all, after morning service in church, to the grounds of Wymering House, where they are entertained all day with a variety of sports and shows. We give an Illustration of the late festival. A procession of the school children, with their banners, headed by the clergy and choir, having led the way from the church to the pleasure-grounds, Mr. Nugée addressed a brief speech to his assembled parishioners and visitors, amongst whom were Admiral Sir Michael Seymour and family, Sir Francis and Lady Blackwood, the Mayor of Portsmouth, and many of the gentry resident in that district. Altogether, about two thousand persons were present. At the conclusion of the Vicar's speech a hymn was sung; the choir then retired, and the amusements of the day commenced, the "crowning of the May Queen" being the first on the programme. After some little delay, during which the crowd was more or less impatient, "the Queen," attended by her maids of honour and other functionaries, arrived, and the coronation proceeded with the usual formalities, the Vicar addressing "the Queen" in humorous terms, and declaring that A. Butler had been "the best girl in the school for the past year." "Her Majesty" having taken her seat, and the crown having been placed upon her head amidst some merriment, the part-song, "May Day," was sung by the Wymering and Porchester Philharmonic Society, under the direction of Mr. Hewitt, and the ceremony of "dancing round the Queen of May and paying homage to her Majesty" was duly performed. The distribution of the Prince and Princess of Wales's prizes by the Vicar followed. The origin of these prizes may be learned from the following announcement, made by Mr. Nugée last year in an address to the parishioners:—"It is with pleasure I intimate to you my intention to establish two annual prizes of five guineas each—one to be called the Prince of Wales's prize for the best boy of the year, either as a reward or a premium towards his apprenticeship; and the other to be called the Princess of Wales's prize, for the best girl, either as a reward or a payment towards her outfit on going into service. These prizes will be adjudged in May, 1865, the qualifications for candidates being proficiency (especially in the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures), general good conduct, and sufficiently long standing in the school." The successful candidate for the Prince of Wales's prize was George Sparrshott, and the Princess's prize was taken by A. Butler, the May Queen, although it was for some time doubtful whether another candidate was not equally deserving. Upon this, a deputation of six children from the infant school presented a petition to the May Queen, praying that the infant school-room might be rebuilt. "Her Majesty" promised that she would give it her gracious consideration, and added that she "would consult the Prince and Princess of Wales on the subject." The winner of the Prince of Wales's prize of five guineas—a fine lad, dressed as a Roman soldier in the character of Cassius—was then called to the front, and presented with his prize by the Vicar. A dramatic scene followed, in which the boys of the school took part. The scene was entitled "Burlesque-Tragedy of Napoleon the Little." Napoleon the Little, or Napoleon III., presents his book to the Queen—"The Life of Julius Cæsar," by himself; Napoleon the Great, or Napoleon I., interrupts him, protests against the book, and appeals to Cæsar for his opinion, when Cassius enters, and knocks down Napoleon III. The boys displayed as much dramatic or comic talent as could have been expected; quite enough to excite the merriment of the audience. At one o'clock the school children partook of refreshment in a tent on the grounds; at two the visitors were entertained in an adjoining pavilion; and at a later period the villagers sat down to dinner or supper. During the afternoon the band of the Royal Marine Artillery played in excellent style; the performances of the Philharmonic Society were also creditable. Sports and games of various kinds were introduced during the afternoon, including a "Punch and Judy show," which amused the majority of the children; while many of the older visitors preferred a quiet stroll in the grounds.

REGALIA, WINNER OF THE OAKS STAKES AT EPSOM.



The Oaks has been invariably a race of "surprises," and the eighty-seventh anniversary of it was no exception, as the very "hot" One-Thousand favourite Siberia was only seventh, and, in fact, quite out of the race a quarter of a mile from home. Regalia, the winner, is named and trained by Mr. Harlock, of Newmarket, the trainer of Stockwell (whose stock have now won an Oaks, a Derby, and four St. Legers), and was ridden by Norman, who rode that celebrated horse both in the St. Leger and all his other races. She was bred by Mr. Cookson, whose small stud of from ten to twelve mares has thus produced, in 1854-65, Kettledrum, a winner of the Derby, and two winners of the Oaks—to wit, Mincemeat and the heroine of Friday. The latter was sold as Lot 1 of the Neasham Hall yearlings at Doncaster for 720 gs., and, much to Mr. Cookson's surprise, Bedminster out-topped her by 80 gs. Her name is rather apropos of the first Oaks race that the Prince of Wales has ever seen, as well as a reassertion of our racehorse sovereignty, just when Gladiateur has given it such a heavy blow. She is of that Stockwell and Touchstone cross which proved so successful both in the case of The Marquis and Asteroid. Her dam is The Gem, by Touchstone, grand-dam by Bran, great grand-dam Pantaloon's dam; so that no breeding could be more unexceptionable; but, unfortunately, The Gem was sold to the Austrian Government the year this filly was born. It is stated, in a quarter generally well posted up in these matters, that the real ownership of Regalia is a mystery, albeit a gallant Colonel connected with an old racing family, as well as a young Cantab at present at the University, have been mentioned as the "real Simon." Others divide her ownership between a relative of a deceased baronet and a wine merchant.

Eighteen started for the race, of which eleven were in the St. Leger; but the victory could never be said to be in doubt, and Regalia won easily by six lengths from Wild Agnes; Zephyr next, four lengths behind her; and then Cobweb, White Duck, La Fortune, Siberia, Grace Darling, &c.; but all completely scattered. The pace was pretty fair—2 min. 51½ sec., or 6 sec. more than the Derby; and the nett value of the stakes £5225, or £1600 less than that race. The winner has only run twice. She was nowhere in the Criterion, and beaten away in the Two Thousand, so that 20 to 1 was very easily obtainable about her at starting. She is engaged in the Stockton St. Leger and the Great St. Leger, which has thus both the Derby and Oaks winner in its ranks. In height she is fully fifteen-three, with two white hind stockings and a broad blaze on her face. She has short legs for her size, is good in her couplings, and full of quality and muscle. The race seemed a mere hand canter for her, and she went right into the paddock again before she could be stopped. At all events, Gladiateur will now have an opponent of some calibre at Doncaster. It is worthy of note that both Derby and Oaks winners were trained at Newmarket, whose heath has thus furnished three winners—Fra de Joie, Fille de l'Air, and Regalia—all of them chestnuts, in the last four years.

MAY GAMES AT WYMERING, HAMPSHIRE: THE MAY QUEEN.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

REGALIA, THE WINNER OF THE OAKS.

BLOWING-UP OF THE JOHORE, IRON PADDLE-STEAMER, OFF SINGAPORE.

BLOWING-UP OF THE STEAMER JOHORE, AT SINGAPORE.

THE same correspondent at Singapore, Mr. John Lawrence Kirby, to whom we were indebted for a sketch of the wreck of the French mail-steamer Hylaspe upon a reef of rocks off that coast, towards the end of last year, has sent us an Illustration of the blowing-up of the iron steam-vessel Johore, belonging to his Highness the Tumongong, or native Prince of the independent Malay territory of Johore, at the extremity of the Malayan peninsula. This vessel, which was of 150 tons burthen, schooner-rigged, a paddle-wheel steamer, armed with a ram and a Blakeley gun, had visited Singapore with two of the Tumongong's brothers on board to pay a compliment to the English Governor, who had, with a party of the European residents at that port, been invited to join in a pleasure-trip round the island. The steamer had been lying there for some days when this disaster took place. Among the persons who happened to be on board were Captain Clegborn and Mr. Bain, engineer, in the service of the Singapore

SAILING-MATCH OF THE THAMES YACHT CLUB ON SATURDAY LAST.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

Dock Company; with Mr. Henry Sanders, boiler-maker; and three, as well as Mr. Ellis, under the engineer, the gunner, and the boatswain of the Orkney, were killed. One of the Tumongog's brothers, Harvey, was also killed, with twenty-two other natives; and the second brother, Tunku Abdulrahman, had a narrow escape, being thrown overboard, but not hurt. Two Europeans and five or six natives were badly scalded. With regard to the cause and manner of this terrible accident, it seems that Mr. Miller, the engineer of the steamer, had found some difficulty in starting his engines, and had sent for Mr. Bain to come and see what was amiss. While these gentlemen were looking after the engines, the boilers exploded, sending the fore, without taking care to keep up the quantity of water in the boiler; so that the fires, unprotected by water, soon got red-hot; water was pumped in, the boiler burst, and the vessel was blown to pieces, as above described, like fireworks. The large boiler, which was lying indicated by the neighbouring landmarks. On the night is like small isle of Pulo Brani, Hantu (Ghost Island), which is a small wooded island about 600 yards long, with two white houses on the side facing Tumah. There is a passage between it and another island to the left, where we observe a ship's masts. The passage is 200 yards wide. Under the island is the Henriette, deck company's tug-steamer. The land on the left is the east end of an island called Pulo Tumah (or Back of Death), which is covered with pineapple plants and slightly wooded on the ridges. Pulo Sakeh, Pulo Bukum, and Pulo Sambu Under it is the French transport Orne, of about 2000 tons, full-ship rigged, and all the Pulo Sakeh group, like its forerunners, is in the position of the Dock Company's wharf. The water was quite smooth at the time of the explosion.

ROYAL THAMES YACHT CLUB.

The yachting season has now fairly set in, and the race of the Royal Thames Yacht Club on Saturday last, 3rd inst., seems the subject of one of this week's illustrations. The prizes were, £100 for the first boat and £50 for the second, for vessels of whatever rig, not under 40 nor above 70 tons, club measurement, and over. The course was from Erith to round the Sheerness Buoy, and thence to the Nore Light, and back to Erith, being wind enough to reach the Nore. Five yachts contended—namely, the Vindex, 70 tons, Burgess; the Volante, 70 tons, Chrisshead, 52 tons, Mr. H. H. Kennard; the Glance, 50, Mr. S. Johnson; the Gleam, 50, Mr. J. E. Johnson; and the Christabel, 52, Mr. Herbert Maudslay. They started at a quarter past eleven, with a light south-west wind. The Vindex took the lead and kept it till the tide turned in Sea Reach, when she, who was unsteering with the Christabel, against the flood, on the Essex shore, the Glance shot to the front, leaving the Nore Light to the starboard hand, and the Vindex level with her, wide to leward, making good way. The race between the Avelon Corinthian Yacht Club was well maintained, and all were at one time level; the Volante and Christabel had a pretty tussle for the second position, which the first beat, the Glance, in 3h 13 min. 20sec., and by the Vindex 20 sec. later. The Glance and Vindex rounded at the same moment, but the Vindex was inside, and so got to windward of her opponent. The wind had now freshened, and, assisted by each, crowded up under the boats, they had to beat up. The Vindex and Glance stood over to the north shore, the Volante and Christabel to the south, directly after rounding the Nore Light. The Vindex was now a long way ahead, a long board, and when the Christabel and Volante came about the Avelon had got well to the front, but soon after passed her. The Glance shifted topsails for smaller ones, and the race all the way up was contested with great spirit. The Volante appeared to have the best of it, Christabel had passed the Glance and came upon the leading boat. Ice Yacht, and the Glance with her board and boom, but in the finishing, as shown in our illustration, with the yachts in the following order :—

				P.	M.	S.
Vindex	...	...	...	7	7	20
Christabel	...	...	...	7	21	23
Glance	...	...	...	7	21	53
Volante	...	...	...	7	20	18

In consequence of the time allowance of half a minute per ton, the Glance was the winner, the Vindex taking the second prize. Lord Alfred Paget was present on board the Vindex, and the Queen's pilots were in charge of the vessels. Amongst the spectators were the commodore, Admiral Sir Frederick de Ivie, Seymour, Le Breu, Anzano, Marcus, Isabel, Dodo, Iris, the Mosquito, Lively, Chichester, and the commodore's steam launch and dressed guns), Albatross, Circe, Whirlwind, Brunette, Shadow, and Night Thought, cutter.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THE eighty-sixth anniversary of the Derby has come and gone, and the Gallic cock can crow over waggon-load of grumess, and glory in a Derby, as he did in Sadowa, Solferino, Cambridgeshire, and the Goodwood Cups. The public have found the money without grumbling, and a squarer setting has perhaps never been known, although a great many were shut out from the Corner of the hedge, owing to the enormous which could not be got off about Liddington. The Duke, and the ubiquitous Mr. Chaffingcross. The Marquis of Hastings is about to have got well on Gladiateur, and neither he nor Mr. Merry can have a tithing of evidence of their having done so. Indeed, with a double shot-cut, Gladiateur might be said to have won with almost a stone in hand. The Volante was the worst of the starters, and was touched him with his whip at the stand indicated a reserve of power to which even the Derby winner had hardly arrived in his best days. Even at Christmas Coral's quarters stamps the former as no flyer; and certainly his hind does not betaken it, and on the flat we may very probably see Longbourn before the end of the year. He declined the cup (carving, as some said, to his having sprung a cark), and therefore a very handsome testimonial to "The Lord" in Lord Archimedes looks too small and delicate to do anything in great company, save and a ball; and Will Chifney, Jun., the rider, likewise was neutralised by his cough, although we never heard it in the paddock. Longbourn does not look like a stayer, and his sire proved it, but the prize paid for him is said to have been something so great, with contingencies, &c., that both parties may be glad of the bargain. Broomclose went as fast, if not faster, than anything for a mile, although he ran the wrong side of the post. It is now, of course, the fashion to run down Broadbalsse and say he is built upon the wrong all that sort of thing, "yellow cox," &c.; but is it impossible that he can have run without a cough? Lord Clifden is the idol of the paddock beforehand as much. It was only just, both to owner and trainer, that a change of luck should be sent to the one or the two men whether the chestnut will be more fortunate at Findon than he has been at Malton. Lord Clifden is entered for the Ascot Cup and other races like a Spanish miracle, both in man and horse; but still, Broadbalsse looks bad, and he would pay 5 to 1 on the field any thing more, when it is his day.

At present there is no Leger betting, as every one is afraid to be against "The Frenchman;" and it is no comfort to remember that Stockwell was only eighth to Newminster, the Knight of St. George "squandered" at Epsom. The Duke will no doubt make a bit of a talk for it; but we cannot expect to hear of Cleveages, although, from his spring proclivities, he may be "coloured" on the card and not go, or "appear considerably upset" on the previous Sunday. Even the flying style in which Regalia won the Oaks he not tempted a St. Leger investment, as she met a very poor field. Dewitt's stable, which had been fourth for the Derby, ran a very middling second with Wild Agnes, whose condition was superb; and Scottish Cure, as in the Derby, made very little out. Siberia was as leggy and weak-loined a creature as ever jockey bestrode; and Wild Duck, a clever-looking filly, but with soft blood on both sides and said not to be up to the mark, reversed the Newmarket running with her. Sephyr can only a poor third, although the day before her trial mare Bewley had beaten Caller Ou easily enough in Lord Clifden's Plate. Forerea did not look worth the stable pad for her, while Sister to Gemma Di Vergy was not even to be in the saddle again, at least at Sat. 10lb. Ely and Cambuscan, those ancient rivals, are both entered in the York Cup; and Caller Ou has accepted at 9-6, for the Northumberland Plate, which she has won two successive years, viz. 8st. 8lb. and 8st. 12lb. So far, nothing but Underhand has accomplished a win of this or any other handicap three years running, although Vampyre very nearly did it in the Ascot Stakes.

Some excellent hack work was to be seen at the Islington Horse Show. Mr. Gilbert's idea grows apace, as £910 is to be given in prizes. Of these the most important value are the following—for coaching sires, £70; riding and ladies' horses, £120; hunters (two classes), £210; cobs (two classes), £40; harness horses (three classes), £80; ponies (three classes), £85; and extra class, £50. The entries are very numerous, and close on the 20th inst. Mr. Sutton is in his class on account of inferior work in the field test, but one of his pupils, Mr. Bell, is a clever winner. Canardon, the winner of the Waterloo, had also to be content with second place. As a Leger horse it was a failure.

Captain Newman's lot of nineteen yearlings only averaged 111 gs. A Newminster filly, Florican (380 gs.), saved the average. Mr. Blenkiron's lot of eight fetched 1,000 gs. exactly, and the only one of them fetched above 100 gs. Breeders have every opportunity of judging the value of their produce, as the sales are one of the most popular pleats of the new Tattersalls'. Twenty of Mr. Naylor's progeny are to be sold there on July 10, but only eight of them are by Stockwell.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

1st Regiment of Life Guards: Cornet and Sub-Lieut. W. Thomas, Viscount Adare, to be Lieutenant, vice Hon. R. H. Dutton, who exchanges.

4th Dragoon Guards: Lieut. F. R. Hewitt to be Captain; Cornet P. B. Gay to be Lieutenant.

Royal Artillery: Lieut.-Colonel Hon. A. Abercrombie, from Half-pay, Unattached, to be Military Train: Regius R. Robertson to be Knight.

Grenadier Guards: Ensign and Lieutenant Fenton J. Crow-Best to be Lieutenant and Captain, vice Hon. Augustus Anson, who exchanges; Ensign and Lieut. A. J. C. Gill to be Ensign, vice Hon. Evelyn E. H. H. Boscawen to be Lieutenant; Ensign and Lieut. Hon. Evelyn E. H. H. Boscawen to be Lieutenant, vice Gill; Ensign and Lieut. C. B. Walker to be Lieutenant; C. B. Walker to be Ensign. 2nd: Capt. C. G. C. Norton to be Major, vice Hon. A. Anson, who exchanges; Capt. Hon. A. Anson to be Lieut.-Colonel; Lieut. J. K. Lees to be Captain, vice Norton; Ensign T. Wyndham to be Lieutenant, vice Lees. 3rd: Capt. T. W. Lawrence to be Captain; Ensign J. Macfarlane to be Ensign; Colour-Sergt. Sergt. Major Instructor of Musketry, Chatham, Thomas Hall to be Ensign, vice Macfarlane. 4th: Lieut. Hon. Edward Cadogan to be Captain, vice Lieut.-Colonel Hon. Edward Cadogan, who retires; Ensign A. B. Davies to be Ensign, vice Hall. Lieut. R. G. Worthington to be Captain, vice Lieut.-Colonel Hon. Edward Cadogan, who retires; Ensign A. B. Davies to be Lieutenant, vice Worthington; Ensign and Lieut. Hon. Edward Cadogan to be Lieutenant, vice Davies; Ensign and Lieut. Hon. Edward Cadogan to be Ensign. 5th: Lieut. R. G. Marshall to be Lieutenant, vice Lieut.-Colonel Hon. Edward Cadogan, who retires; Ensign and Lieutenant J. H. King, T. Cassidy, Lieut. A. Gallagher to be Lieutenant, vice Marshall.

ADMIRALTY.

Commanders J. R. F. Bick, F. D. W. Bowden, J. L. Perry, and A. H. J. Johnstone to be Captains. Lieuts. H. A. Channing, H. Rogers, H. N. Knox, J. Nott, R. Seaton, W. F. Wyatt, and Mate W. Wilson to be Commanders.

Royal Marine Artillery: First Lieut. G. W. Coffin to be Captain; Second Lieuts. G. P. Hall, and J. Hall to be First Lieuts. Royal Marine Light Infantry: Capt. J. C. Ellis to be Major; First Lieut. J. Hall to be Captain; Second Lieut. J. Hall to be First Lieut. Royal Marine Light Infantry: First Lieut. A. Donelan to be Captain; Second Lieut. J. Hall to be First Lieut.

Mr. Thomas Hall, Master of the Orkney, to be Knight Companion of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath, in recognition of his conduct on the occasion of the explosion of the Tumongog in Singapore Harbour.

The half-yearly examination of the gentlemen cadets at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, will take place on Monday next.

Captain William R. Mends, C.B., has been appointed Aide-de-Camp to Lieutenant-General Sir Hastings Doyle, K.C.B.

The Alnwick Castle arrived at Spithead on Tuesday week, from Calcutta, with passengers and invalids.

The Channel Fleet is at present trying experiments with reference to the expenditure of fuel. According to present arrangements it will be engaged during the summer months.

The second report of the Council of Military Education, which has recently been issued, contains the examination papers and the progress of the general and scientific education of officers of the Army.

The Duke of Cambridge, Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, held a levée, on Thursday afternoon, at the Horse Guards. Upwards of two hundred officers of the Army were present at the levée.

The following telegram has been received :—"Calcutta, May 29.—The Nemesis went on shore on the 19th, on Rangoolush shoal. She is expected to be got off. The Pluto is at Port Blair."

By the death of General Sir James Shaw Kennedy the seniority of the 47th Regiment of Foot devolves upon Lieutenant-General the Hon. Augustus Anson, who was gazetted to the 47th in 1808.

The annual inspection of the cadets at the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, and the distribution of prizes by the Duke of Cambridge, Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief of the Forces of the Army, is fixed to take place on Thursday, the 22nd inst.

The memorial to the late Field Marshal Lord Seaton is to consist of a statue not less than 8ft in height, which is to be placed at Devonport, in connection with the barracks there, and is to be erected at the disposal of the committee under the sanction and authority of the Secretary of War.

There are at present in her Majesty's service, exclusive of the Indian army, 78 sentient surgeons. In the years ending March 31, 1863, 1864, and 1865, the number of candidates for admission into the service as surgeons were, respectively, 16, 18, and 26.

Major-General Sir Thomas Hall Hodgson has been appointed to the command of the troops in Ceylon, in the room of Major-General Byrne, whose term of service in that command has expired, and who is to return home.

The whole of the available troops in Woolwich garrison, comprising the batteries of Royal Horse Artillery, the field batteries, and the Artillery, and the 1st battalion of the Royal Scots Fusilier Infantry, assembled on the common last Saturday, in heavy marching order, to carry out the combined movements of the day's drill, during which considerable action having been served out to each troop and company for this purpose. The latest regiment to be inspected by the Duke of Cambridge, as Colonel of Royal Marines, under the command of Colonel Lambrick. This force, in the aggregate, consisted of 1,000 men, and was commanded by Major Irving, who formed the attacking force, which was opposed to the Royal Marine Light Infantry, under the command of Major Bramley, it being intended as a flank movement upon an imaginary enemy's position. The movements were executed in the most perfect order and presented arms to the Commander-in-Chief, Major-General Wade, C.B., and staff. The proceedings were brought to a close by the troops marching past in line, and then light, which is shortly to take place at Woolwich in the presence of several distinguished visitors.

THE MILITIA.

The militia regiment of the united counties of Stirling, Dumbarton, Clackmannan, and Kinross, under the command of Major Findlay (on the absence of Colonel Sir Archibald Edmonstone, Bart.), assembled for the Adjutant, were reviewed in the Queen's Park, at Stirling, on the 23rd ult., by General Gardiner, Commanding the Forces in Scotland, and staff officers of Scotland. At the close of the review, which embraced marching past in slow and quick time, and in line and quarter-distance columns, and various movements and manœuvres, both in close and open order, the inspecting officer said his report would be expressed in a few words—namely, it was the counter of his experience, seen a regiment more efficient than the 1st.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

Three of the North London corps—namely, the 20th, 37th (Hounslow), and 38th (Middlesex Rifle Battery)—reviewed each last Saturday by Colonel Erskine in Regent's Park. The muster of each of the corps was not so strong as it ought to be, but those present generally went a very satisfactory inspection. At the conclusion of the drill the inspecting officer made a short speech, in which he expressed his pleasure at viewing the good feeling shown by corps representing districts meeting together. There should be no local jealousy among volunteers, he said, for they were all banded together for one honourable purpose, and they should only strive to excel in military efficiency.

Colonel Wright, the Deputy Inspector General of Volunteers, officially inspected the 3rd City of London, on Monday, at Hounslow, Chiswick-lane. Of the corps, which numbers altogether 1500, somewhere about 600 appeared on parade, including officers and men. The marching, 220 were absent on leave. After some preliminaries the corps were put through the usual evolutions, after which the inspecting Colonel complimented them on the manner in which they had conducted themselves. Although this was the first occasion on which he had an opportunity of inspecting them, he had had ample opportunity of judging of their efficiency from the manner in which they had met at Brighton, when the soldierly manner in which they conducted themselves was the subject of remark between himself and other officers in the Army. After the inspection, the members of the corps and some invited guests, numbering altogether about 600, dined together. Lieutenant-Colonel Richards presided.

The first competition for the F company's silver challenge cup of the London brigade took place, on Saturday last, at the rifle ranges at Finsbury, and, after a sharp contest, the prize was won by Colour-Sergeant Allchorn, Corporal Kelly second, and Private Ash third. Nineteen men subscribed by Captain Frobisham and Lieutenant Richmond; the third and fourth competitors had to shoot off a tie, which resulted in favour of Ash.

The North-east London was inspected in Regent's Park, on Saturday last, by Lieutenant-Colonel Colomb, Colonel Edmonstone, who has recently been gazetted to the corps. Eight strong companies were mustered, and served out with ball cartridge. The battalion was under the command of Colonel Money, and a large concourse of spectators assembled around the ground to witness the operations. Colonel and Mrs. Edmonstone were present on the ground in a handsome barouche, and a special train from the City drove down the line set apart for the accommodation of visitors. The marching past, which was very creditably performed, was followed by a march to the front, and presented by Colonel Money to Colonel and Mrs. Gardner. A series of evolutions followed, which, although very creditably, from the volleys being repeatedly good, square having been formed, the corps was addressed by Colonel Edmonstone in a complimentary speech on the state of regiment in so complete a state. Refreshments were afterwards provided by Mrs. Colonel Money, at Cumberland-terrace. On Monday all the officers dined with Colonel Gardner at his private residence.

The 3rd Essex Light Infantry, commanding Stratford, West Ham, and other outlying districts, have erected a very commodious drill-shed, which was opened a short time since by Lord Kenyon. In the presence of a number of M'Mordo and many officers and private gentlemen interested in the volunteer forces. The statements made on the occasion prove that the volunteer spirit in this district is gaining ground.

The Surrey Rifle Association lately held its annual rifle meeting at the butts of the London Scottish and Cyril Service, on Wimbledon-common, when prizes to the value of £60 were competed for.

The annual prize-shooting of the several corps of the Kent Volunteer Association took place on Monday on the Government ground, range, Milton-next-Gravesend, on the 29th and 31st inst.; and the annual review of the whole of the Kentish volunteers will be held on the Monday following with the regular troops—at Chatham Lines on the 22nd inst. The prizes will be distributed on the ground immediately after the review by Viscount Sydney, Lord-lieutenant of the county, previous to the review.

At Panshanger, the seat of the Right Hon. Earl Cowper, the Herts volunteers went through their annual inspection by Colonel Loftus, and with the usual success. The battalion, the Queen's (Volunteers), St. George's, and the North Middlesex rifle brigades, fought a sham fight against an imaginary enemy on Saturday last. The manœuvres and field round were present, and, the weather being fine, the day was passed most pleasantly. The prizes were competed for by 36 men, the aggregate of the Earl Cowper forming an excellent spot for manœuvring a body of men sustaining, as they did on this occasion, the attack. The various movements of the movements had concluded.

The names of the winners at the Hereford all-comers' rifle-match have been published. In the first competition, five shots at 500 and 600 yards, Lieutenant-Colonel Lawrence, of the 2nd Herefordshire, £15; second, £10, Captain Suttor, 1st Hereford; third, £8, Private Lane, Bristol; fourth, £6, Captain Phillips, Devon; fifth, £5, Captain Sanderson, 1st Hereford; sixth, £4, Mr. Holloway, Stroud; seventh, £3, Private Hoare, Devon; eighth, £2, Drum-Major Hughes, 1st Hereford; ninth, £1, Private Hall, Manchester. In the second competition, five shots at 500 yards, Mr. G. Roberts, of Hereford, £10; second, £8, Mr. Holloway, £6 8s. 8d.; second, £4 4s. 4d., Private Phillips, 1st Shropshire; third, £3 6s. 8d., Corporal Saunders, 3rd Monmouth; fourth, £2 13s. 4d., Private Hall, Manchester; fifth, £2 6s. 8d., Lieutenant, 2nd Hereford; sixth, £2 2s. 2d., Private Hall, Manchester; seventh, £1 6s. 8d., Lieutenant Bott, Birmingham; eighth, £1, Colour-Sergeant Taylor, 1st Hereford; ninth, £1, Corporal Lewis, 1st Herefordshire; tenth, £1, Private Phillips, 1st Shropshire; second, £5, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; third, £2, Sergeant Lewis, 1st Herefordshire; fourth, £1, Private Lane, Bristol; fifth, £1, Mr. Gloucester; fifth, £1, Private Bell, 8th Lancashire; eighth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; ninth, £1, Private Bell, 8th Lancashire; tenth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eleventh, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; twelfth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; thirteenth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fourteenth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fifteenth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; sixteenth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; seventeenth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eighteenth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; nineteenth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; twentieth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; twenty-first, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; twenty-second, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; twenty-third, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; twenty-fourth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; twenty-fifth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; twenty-sixth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; twenty-seventh, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; twenty-eighth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; twenty-ninth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; thirtieth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; thirty-first, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; thirty-second, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; thirty-third, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; thirty-fourth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; thirty-fifth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; thirty-sixth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; thirty-seventh, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; thirty-eighth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; thirty-ninth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fortieth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; forty-first, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; forty-second, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; forty-third, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; forty-fourth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; forty-fifth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; forty-sixth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; forty-seventh, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; forty-eighth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; forty-ninth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fiftieth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fifty-first, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fifty-second, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fifty-third, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fifty-fourth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fifty-fifth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fifty-sixth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fifty-seventh, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fifty-eighth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; fifty-ninth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; sixtieth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; sixty-first, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; sixty-second, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; sixty-third, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; sixty-fourth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; sixty-fifth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; sixty-sixth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; sixty-seventh, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; sixty-eighth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; sixty-ninth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; seventieth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; seventy-first, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; seventy-second, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; seventy-third, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; seventy-fourth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; seventy-fifth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; seventy-sixth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; seventy-seventh, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; seventy-eighth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; seventy-ninth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eightieth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eighty-first, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eighty-second, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eighty-third, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eighty-fourth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eighty-fifth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eighty-sixth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eighty-seventh, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eighty-eighth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; eighty-ninth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; ninetieth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; ninety-first, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; ninety-second, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; ninety-third, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; ninety-fourth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; ninety-fifth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; ninety-sixth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; ninety-seventh, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; ninety-eighth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; ninety-ninth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford; one hundredth, £1, Private Adams, 1st Hereford.

An American paper says that the New York police uniform is made of blue flannel, and blouses are worn instead of coats.

The Madrid journals state that Queen Isabella has granted a full pardon to a notorious bandit, named Mil-Basios, who had been condemned, for numerous murders and robberies, to "110 years' hard labour" in the convict establishment at Ceuta. No explanation is given as to the motives for this exercise of the Royal clemency, but the fact is certain that Mil-Basios has returned to his native village, Villaviciosa in Tuscan, in the province of Toledo, the scene of his former exploits. The history of the atrocities committed by this bandit would, the Madrid journals state, fill a volume. He was the chief of a band of robbers in the mountains of Toledo, and lived many years in a cave, often murdering the persons whom he despoiled.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE RIGHT HON. SIR C. E. GREY, G.C.H.

The Right Hon. Sir Charles Edward Grey, G.C.H., F.C., who died on the 16 inst., was a scion of the Greys of Horton Castle, and was son of Ralph William Grey, Esq., of Backworth, Northumberland, by his wife, Elizabeth, third daughter of Charles Brandling Esq., of Gosforth, in the same county, and was uncle of Ralph William Grey, Esq., of Chipchase Castle, Northumberland, formerly M.P. for Tynemouth and Lichfield. He was born in 1785, and was educated at University College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. in 1805, obtaining a fellowship in the following year. He was called to the bar shortly after taking his degree, elected a Bencher of Gray's Inn, and practised for many years on the Northern Circuit. In 1830 he was called to the Bar by the Society of Lincoln's Inn, and in 1831 was appointed a Bankruptcy Commissioner. In 1839 he was knighted, on being made Judge of the Supreme Court of Madras. In 1843 he was transferred to the chief positionship of the Supreme Court of Bengal. In 1848 he was made Commissioner for the affairs of the Court of Sattara, in which capacity that State was named a Privy Councillor, and received the Bhauvieer Order in 1857. He was Governor of Northumberland, Vincent, Grenadines, and Trinidad, from 1846 to 1860, when he was appointed Governor of Jamaica. He from 1838 to 1841 represented the borough of Tynemouth in Parliament, and was re-elected in 1841, Elizabeth, second daughter of the Rev. Sir Samuel Clarke Jervoise, Bart. Baronet, of Jervoise Park, Hants, by whom he had issue.

MARSHAL MAGNAN.

Bernard Pere Magnan, a Marshal of France and a member of the French Senate, Knight Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour, and Chief Huntsman of the Emperor, who died on the 29th ult., was a remarkable instance of a common soldier having carried a Marshal's baton in his knapsack. He was born at Paris, Dec. 17, 1791, and his military career dates from 1809, the first session of the line; but, when eighteen years of age, he entered as a private the 14th Regiment of the Line, on Dec. 17, 1810. He was promoted in 1813, made the campaigns of Portugal and Spain. He was Sub-Lieutenant in 1831, and Captain in 1813, and was present at the siege of Antwerp, Almeida, as well as at the battles of Busaco, Fuentes d'Onor, and Vittoria. His military conduct earned him the decoration of the Legion of Honour. Entering the Imperial Guard, he continued to take part in the campaigns of Spain, and was present at the siege of Burgos, and received at Cronne he received the Cross of an officer of the Legion of Honour. He also fought at Waterloo, but clung to France after the return of the Bourbons. He was, in 1830, appointed to the Royal Guard, and became Aide-de-camp to Marshal Gerardon de Saint-Cyr, who had remarked his sterling military ability on several occasions. He was, in 1831, made Major on the formation of the Princes during the war in Spain in 1823, and he became a Colonel in 1830. While Colonel, during the Polish insurrection, he received secret to march upon Lyons, where a dispute about wages had caused an insurrection. Having received the order to start at once, and to avoid an effusion of blood, commenced treating with the workmen; and by his tact and moderation succeeded in restoring order. He remained in the enthused town to serve, remaining his rank. He was made General in the Belgians, who appointed him General of Brigade in 1832, and charged him with the organisation of Maestricht, but returned to France to take up the 2nd Army division of Ghent. In 1839, when war was on the point of recommencing with Holland, Magnan commanded at the camp of Beverlee the reserve corps guard, composed of 17,000 men, being one half of the Belgian army. Peace having been signed that same year, the command was given to him in the most favourable impression, and returned to France. He was again admitted into active service, and obtained the rank of Lieutenant-General. He commanded the North, and retained it nearly seven years. After the Revolution of 1848, Magnan was appointed commander of the 1st Military division of the army of Paris, and from that time he was constantly employed. He was, after the coup d'état of December, 1851, made Senator, and received the order of Grand Aigle. He was also made Commander of the Legion of Honour. He had obtained a seat in the Senate on 1852. He was given the title of Grand Huntsman in 1854, in place of Marshal de St. Arnaud. He was of late years at the head of the First Military Division, including Paris. The funeral of the Marshal took place on the morning of the 1st inst. The service for the dead was celebrated in the chapel of the Invalides, and the coffin was then removed to the family vault at St. Germain-en-Laye, where already repose the mortal remains of the Marshal's wife, Madame Magnan, who died some years ago.

VICE-ADMIRAL HACKETT.

Vice-Admiral John Studdy, D.C.L., who died a short time ago at Bray, in the county of Wicklow, was born in December, 1785, and entered the Royal Navy on Dec. 16, 1796, as A.B., on board the Resistance, in which he served after participating at Midshipman in the Battle of Copenhagen, he cruised on the Downs station till January, 1805. He in 1805, on board the Defence, witnessed the capture of the islands of Marie, Galante, and Desirade. After much further service, and after attending the funeral of Nelson in Walcheren, he, on May 11, 1811, conceded in obtaining his first Admiralty commission. He then served as a lord period in the Excellent, in the Channel Squadron, and was subsequently appointed, on Jan. 18, 1814, to the Spencer, 18 guns and 12 men, Captain Edward Walker Eyre, employed in the Mediterranean and on West Indian station. On Feb. 23, 1814, the Spencer effected the capture of the French privateer Le Grand Decide, of 16 guns and 120 men, after a fight. April 28, 1814, after a desperate engagement of an hour, in which Nelson being fearfully damaged and having twenty-three men killed and wounded, had the satisfaction of seeing the La Ste. Marie Pauline, of 22 guns and 185 picked seamen. Hackett was among the Reyerier's wounded on this occasion; he, about the middle of his action, received three wounds in the left arm, being shot in the finger, wrist, and having his arm shattered. His gallantry, however, never left him in his severest trials, and he was after further injured by a severe splinter wound in the hip. Hackett was promoted to the rank of Commander on Sept. 2, 1829; his long continued service at sea, in 1835, to the Scorpion, 16, which ship he paid off, on her return from the Mediterranean, in Dec. 1837. In 1839 he was appointed Commander to the portion of that period in Lord Ellenborough's Cabinet, and was vested with the first class of the Order of Charles III. of Spain. He attained the rank of Captain on Nov. 23, 1841, and had of Rear-Admiral on July 10, 1857, and of Vice-Admiral on March 28, 1864. Vice-Admiral Hackett was in receipt of a pension for his services. He was married, in 1815, to Miss Elizabeth Hall, Colonel John Hackett, now with his regiment, the 44th, in India, is the gallant Admiral's son.

MRS. HUBERDEEN.

This lady's lamented death occurred on the 26th ult., at Calverleigh Court, near Tiverton, just about two months after the death of her husband, James Wentworth Buller, Esq., of Downes, Devonshire, M.P. for North Devon. Mrs. Huberdeen was Susanna Catherine, second daughter of Admiral Buller, Esq., of Shillingham and Downes, M.P. for Exeter for more than thirty years, by his wife, Susanna, daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Hole, by William Baring of Exeter, and was the sister of the late Admiral Sir Edmund Belcombe, Vicar of Broadhembury, Devon, of the family of the famous Sir Redmond, physician to George III., and friend of Edmund Burke and Sir Johnson.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Sir Henry Dymoke, Bart., styled the Hon. the Queen's Champion, of Scrivelsby Court, Lincolnshire, and of Her Majesty's Court of Probate, on the 19th ult.—the executors appointed being Lady Dymoke, the widow, and the Rev. Charles Dymoke, the son. The personalty was sworn under £20,000. The testator was the hereditary champion of England, and was born in 1799, the eldest son of the late Henry Dymoke, Esq., by Mary Anne, daughter of Captain Edmondson, R.N., and succeeded his father in the family estates, with certain exceptions, and given him a power of appointment to charge the estate, by deed or will, with annuities of £400 to each of his brothers and the eldest, in accordance, acted thereon, trusting it will be carried out for their benefit.

The will of Captain J. M. Speke, a distinguished explorer of the Nile, on officer in her Majesty's Indian Army, Bengal Native Infantry, has been proved in the London Court. The personalty was sworn under £8,000. The executors appointed are his brothers, the Rev. Benjamin Speke, Rector of Hilton, Dorsetshire, and the Rev. William Speke, Vicar of Combe Florey, Somerset, who renounced the grant. This gallant and meritorious officer died in September last, at Box, Wiltshire, having made his will, on a printed form, dated April, 1860, which was attested by Captain J. A. Grant, of the Indian Army, and Lieutenant E. O. Haverland, 46th Bengal Native Infantry. The testator has bequeathed the whole of his property, of every description, to his said brother, the Rev. Benjamin Speke, for his own absolute use.

The will of Mr. Thomas Hilton, of Liverpool, Esq., late of The Albany, Piccadilly, and Lincoln's-inn-fields, Clerk of the Peace for the county of Durham, was proved in the London court, on the 19th of August, by his nephew, Matthew Ford, the sole devisee, legatee, and executor. The will, which is very short, is dated the 9th May, 1864, the personalty of which was £180,000. He died in Keppel-street, Russell-square, on the 27th of March, in the ninety-third year of his age.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

I. H. A., Quebec.—Your solution of Problem No. 1108 is correct.

CALCHAS.—A very pretty stratagem, but the mate requires too many moves. By capturing the adverse Knight with the Queen, you will be left with insufficient force to mate with.

B. C. I.—Your position affords an easy mate in three moves, beginning 1. Q to K B 8th (ch).

MAJOR DE ZARDAS.—Your problem No. 111. has not been sufficiently examined. It is incorrect, as Black can interpose his Q at Q B 4th on the first move.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1107.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Kt to B 6th (ch)	B to K 5th
2. Q to K 7th	Any move
3. Mates accordingly

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1110.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Q to Q 7th	Kt takes Q P
2. Q to K R 3rd	Kt to K 4th
3. Q to K 3rd (ch), and mates next move.	K moves

PROBLEM No. 1111.

The companion to Problem No. 1108 appeared in Mr. SCHOUMOFF to the Grand Duke Constantine of Russia. In the stratagem the men are arranged so as to represent a, the initial letter of the Grand Duchess's name.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White, playing first, to mate in five moves.

CHESS IN LONDON.

A clever Game between Mr. STEINITZ and Mr. G. GOSSIP. (Allgaier Gambit).

BLACK (Mr. G.)	WHITE (Mr. W.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P to K B 4th	P takes P
3. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K Kt 4th
4. P to K R 4th	P to K Kt 5th
5. Kt to K 5th	Kt to K B 3rd
6. B to Q B 4th	P to Q 4th
7. P takes P	B to Q 3rd
8. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K R 3rd
9. Kt to Q B 3rd	Q to K 2nd

(The eight earlier perhaps, to have given the Queen's Knight the best square in front of the king.)

10. B takes Kt	B takes Kt
11. P to Q 4th	P to Q 4th
12. P takes P	Castles

(Apparently he would have done better by playing P to K 5th, and then Castling.)

13. P takes P	P takes P
14. B to Q 3rd	Q takes R P
15. Kt to K 4th	B to K 4th
16. Kt to Q B 5th	Q to K Kt 3rd

(Having the Queen to K 2nd or Q 4th would have been alike ineffective. The replyed of the Kt to K 4th was obvious.)

17. Kt to K B 6th	P to K Kt 6th
18. Kt to K 4th	P to K B 7th (ch)
19. K to K 2nd	Q to K Kt 6th (ch)
20. K to K 3rd	Q to K R 6th (ch)
	and Black resigns.

CHESS IN BERLIN.

An interesting Game played by Messrs. HAU and GÖHLE in consultation against Messrs. KSCHIRE and CONDES.—(From Kryptic Games).

BLACK.	WHITE.
(Messrs. K and G.)	(Messrs. H. and G.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. P to Q 4th	P takes P
5. P to Q 3rd	P to Q 3rd
6. P to K R 3rd	P to K R 3rd
7. P takes Kt	P takes B
8. Q to Q 3rd	Q to Q 2nd
9. Kt to K 5th	Kt to K 5th
10. Q to Q 4th	Q to K 3rd
11. P to K Kt 4th	Kt to K B 3rd
12. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K Kt 3rd
13. Kt takes K P	B to Q 2nd
14. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 2nd

DUBLIN CHESS CONGRESS.—At a general meeting of amateur chessplayers, held in Dublin, on the 31st of March, 1865, Thomas Leop. Esq., in the chair, it was unanimously resolved that a congress was adopted, and it would be desirable to hold an international chess congress, tournaments, &c., in Dublin, in the month of August next, and that a committee be appointed. The meeting was influenced by several motives, the principal of which were, to do honour to the memory of Ireland, the cause of chess generally, and to draw to Ireland in particular, to hold such a congress; and, secondly, that in 1866 Ireland holds an International Exhibition, and it is anticipated that there will be metropolis visitors from every quarter of the globe, amongst whom it is certain that many chessplayers, Irish, English, and foreign, will be present; and it was therefore determined to take advantage of the occasion to organise an international chess congress, tournaments, &c. Accordingly, a committee has been appointed to seek the co-operation of chessplayers generally, and report to a future general meeting, to be called at a period as early as practicable, for the finalising of the project. The plan is to be regulated (hereafter) to the respective tournaments are to be separate and distinct from the subscription to the general list—that is to say, separate distance of competing in any tournament must pay the specified entrance fee to each tournament he enters his name for. Subscribers to the "general fund" to the amount of £1 1s. and upwards will be entitled to all the privileges attaching to membership of the congress, as at all times admissible to the rooms, accidents, &c., during the occupation of two days and two evenings reserved by the committee. If the amount of subscriptions and support be deemed sufficiently great to warrant the congress being held, a final programme, announcing the period of play, amounts of prizes, and further particulars, will be issued.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Professor Frankland's concluding lecture on organic chemistry attracted a large audience. He was principally occupied in the changes effected in organic bodies by heat, fermentation, decay, and putrefaction. He described the process of fermentation (having the control of yeast in the conversion of white into blue indigo, &c. In dry distillation, when organic substances are heated in close vessels, they are resolved into gases and assort their affinities, and the products are dependent on the heat to which it is subjected. The various kinds of fermentation were fully considered and illustrated with especial reference to the manufacture of vinegar and Patent. It was stated that vicious fermentation is essentially dependent upon the life and increase of the putrefactive organisms, and that the germs and germs of organisms be rigidly excluded; and that the lactic fermentation cannot take place without a peculiar organism. The process of putrefaction, the actions of ferments, and in the transformation of starch into grape-sugar by the diastase of malt; of amygdalin into the oil of bitter almonds by emulsin, and the formation of oil of mustard by myrosin; of alcohol by yeast; and of lactic acid by decaying cheese, were described. The lecturer also referred to the production of hydrocarbonaceous vapours and gases, but the principal part was occupied by a microscopic vitrix which can only live in an atmosphere where oxygen is completely excluded. The lecturer then described the phenomena of decay, preserving milk, meat, and other articles of food. It is thus seen then, without living organisms, putrefaction would not be almost impossible. The lecture was concluded with a brief examination of the facts relating to the question of the spontaneous generation of animal and vegetable organisms, and Dr. Frankland considered that hitherto the evidence brought by Pasteur against such an opinion was not materially shaken even by the results of the recent experiments of Dr. Child, based upon the new high powers given to the microscope.

Professor Huxley gave the evening discourse, on Friday, the 2nd inst., on Physical Basis of Mental Philosophy; which related to the science which relates to the persistent modifications of mankind, the extent and distribution of those modifications, and their causes. He began with an imaginary circumnavigation of the globe, starting from Australia, referring to the various races of mankind, including the physical aspect, structure of the state of civilisation of the various peoples, commencing with the lowest in the scale—Australians, Tasmanians, Andamanese, Bushmen, Hottentots, Negroes, Andaman, Australians, Tasmanians, Andamanese, Bushmen, Hottentots, Negroes, Andaman, Bushmen, and Andamanese; specimens of which were exhibited in a series of diagrams, illustrative of the lecture. In the systems of classification Professor Huxley examined the claims of the linguistic system, and concluded that language was not a safe guide to pure ethnology. He showed that the modifications of language has always been accompanied by a corresponding miscarriage substitution of ideas for the old ones. So language has not fundamentally changed, while the blood has remained wholly or partially unmixed (as in Cornwall, Wales, the Highlands, &c.). He then considered the physiological distinctions of races, such as the differing powers of resisting disease, the hybrid question, and the psychological, sociological, and moral differences. He concluded with reference relative to the antiquity and distribution of mankind, stating that the evidence was in favour of the view that there had been no material changes on the earth's surface since the appearance of man, and referred to explanations relating to the subject—viz., the monogenist hypothesis, which derives mankind from a single pair, the strength of which is illustrated by the anatomical unity of mankind; the polygenist hypothesis, which recognises the distinction of species, and the impossibility of the production of hybrid variations; and the Darwinian hypothesis, which, while recognising the monogenist hypothesis, considers the unity of mankind, although owing in addition to the influence of climate and other physical causes during a vast period of time, and then recognises the transmutation of species, which the lecturer takes into account the great geological change as affecting distribution. The president, Lord Wrottesley, F.R.S., was in the chair.

Mr. Alexander S. Herschel gave his concluding lecture on Meteorology on Saturday, the 3rd inst. He described the meteorological work which had already been derived by the study of this science, leading to the knowledge of the laws of storms, as explained by Mr. Redfield and Colonel Reid, which he illustrated by describing the phenomena of the West Indian hurricane of October, 1780, and the storm which, on the 14th of November, 1854, the British fleet, moored in Balaklava Harbour, was driven on shore, and which put an end to the destruction of the Royal Charter. The last part of this lecture was devoted to the practical application of the science to the case of telegraphing weather forecasts now adopted in this country and on the Continent. Mr. Herschel showed that the storm-warnings issued by the Board of Trade on July 31, 1861: but the first warning had been sent to the coast stations on the previous day. In this case a fleet was about to sail, by the storm-cone forecasts. The bulletin issued daily by the Imperial Observatory at Paris, under the superintendence of M. Leverrier, was referred to as a successful instalment service. Mr. Herschel concluded by stating that the Royal Life-boat Institution had rendered important service on our coasts, and that by its instrumentality since 1824, more than 14,000 lives had been saved. In consequence of the increased number of wrecks which had occurred during the present year, more than tripled number of life-boats would be required, a necessary that we should keep our attention alive to the interests of navigation.

Mr. Edwin Chadwick, C.B., gave the first of a course of three lectures on the Results of Sanitary Legislation, on Friday evening, Tuesday last. He began by referring to the superiority of the scientific knowledge of the present day, and the practical application of it by the personal exertions of the people, as illustrated by substituting gas and oil for tallow showing the injurious effects of low physical conditions upon the duration of life, and the necessity for the removal of persons from the overcrowded dwellings of the manufacturing classes, the mortality from which was greatly in excess of the population in premises of ampler, and the consequently low mortal tone which prevails among them.. In Westminster, a most healthy part of the metropolis, the mortality from fever, scarlet and passion is only seventeen; while in Lancashire, with the highest manufacturing purity and wages, it reaches the death-rate level of a similar proportion. Improved sanitary regulations had made military prisons more healthy than the ordinary dwellings of the poor. He referred to the fact that the British naval physical condition still maintains a higher standard of strength than a civil population. Mr. Chadwick then described the process of removing a large number of persons together in Liverpool, under a surveying to Crewkerne Hospital as an instance of failure, and he concluded by advocating physical education as a necessary element in the care of public health, and relevant to our volunteer system or productive of great social as well as economical benefits.

Mr. Jules Simonen, member of the Corps Législatif of France, will give three lectures on the moral and physical condition of workmen in France on June 18, 20, and 30.

The ship Wagnola, Captain Hay, recently arrived at the London Docks, from Hobart Town, has brought, in addition to her ordinary cargo, a large consignment of wool, and 1,000 tons of whale oil, in 15 casks. The present specimen was taken last year, off the south coast of Tasmania, and has been prepared by Mr. J. E. Gray, F.R.S., of the British Museum, and is added to the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons of England.

Dr. Livingstone, in a letter to Lord Clarendon, just published, states that an expedition is being prepared by Russia against Al Khan, chief of the mountainous district of Makran. The object of the attack is the suppression of the slave trade in Persia, and Turkey, and its situation renders it of strategic importance. "If Russia," says Dr. Livingstone, in a letter to The Levant Herald, "is not after a dangerous footing in the territory of both these latter countries."

The Royal Academy of Belgium, Section of the Fine Arts of Brussels has elected M. Louis Welewski, the eminent economist, member of the Academy, in the room of Alexandre Decamps, deceased. M. Welewski has obtained the same honour from several of the Academies of Europe, and is president of the Statistical Society of Belgium. Lately he has been elected also elected as members M. Thiers, of the French Academy, and M. Leon Faucher, of the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences.

The Levant Herald of the 24th ult. says:—"On Wednesday last (the 17th ult.) Turkey and Greece were on the point of being, for the first class of the Ottoman in brilliance, which the Sultan has conferred on the illustrious Queen of England. The first class of the Medjidie has been received by him from Abdul Medjid. During the past ten days the Emir has had several visits to the Greek Legation, where he was met by the Minister of Spain, who, with the Pope, were the only Christian Governments that failed to recognise the Greek revolution. Congratulations in favour of the Emir poured of all sorts, during the Ramazan season. From France, Russia, Prussia, Austria, Sardinia, Belgium, Holland, Sweden, Norway, and the United States, Manchuria presents were received by the Emir, and all were returned."

Yesterday week Messrs. Shaw, Savill, and Co., dispatched from Gravesend the clipper ship King of Italy (2700 tons), having on board 216 passengers, the major part of whom were members of the Albertina Association, forming the seventh detachment of that society dispatched by them to Australia. The vessel, which is one of the largest and most splendid ever of the best kind, her large size and great height between decks giving great facilities for the.— The ship Young Australia, 1050 tons burden, belonging to Messrs. T. M. Mackay and Co., sailed on the 27th ult. from Plymouth, for Queensland; Captain C. Gray, commander; Surgeon-Superintendent, Dr. Webster, assisted by Mrs. Spencer, matron. The Young Australia is the fifty-eighth vessel that has sailed on the land order system of emigration, and is one of the numerous fleet belonging to Messrs. Gravesend. She contains 304 souls, divided into paying, assisted, and free passengers, and consisting of 126 members of families, 141 single men, and 37 single females.

NEW BOOKS.

ELIOT GUEST-BOOK. Second Edition, now ready, with Facsimile Signatures by E. Bidwell, hand-printed on Japan Vellum, 7s. 6d. net.

BEAUTIES OF TROPICAL SCENERY. CYPRIAN SKETCHES AND LOVE-SONGS. With Notes. By CHARLES KINGSLEY.
"The most interesting volume; the poems are full of vitality, and each has a distinct character."—Morning Post.
"The late-consumer worthy of Thomas Moore."—Daily News.
"Full of life and colour."—Saturday Review. Illustrated Times.
London: Kegan Paul, Trench, & Co., 1, Paternoster-square.

MR. HENRY KINGSLEY'S NEW NOVEL.
This day is published, in Second Edition, three vols., crown 8vo, cloth, price 31s. 6d.,
THE HILLYARS AND THE BURTONS.
A Story of Two Families.
By HENRY KINGSLEY, Author of "Austin Elliot," "Ravenshoe," &c.
MACMILLAN and Co., London and Cambridge.

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT.
Illustrated by T. and G. Allom. Engraved by Edmund Evans. Uniform with "The Parables." With an Illustration to the most perfect little Gem of Art we have seen since the picture by Sir John Gilbert."—Spectator.
The Work contains "The Sermon on the Mount," 53 Miniature Chapters, 41 pp., 41 in a series of lovely pastoral Engravings; Initial Miniatures, gorgeously decorated in gold and colours, all of which are entirely different in design, and Tailpieces; with an Illustration from a picture painted expressly for the Work by one of the best Artists of the day. Price 5s. cloth gilt, gilt edges, 7s. 6d.
Arthur Pearls, on fine toned plate paper, with India proofs, extra superfine quality, gilt, 10s., published at £1 11s.
Large Paper, 21s., published at £2 2s., limited in extra cloth, richly gilt, £3 13s. 6d., published at £5 5s.
General Index, on thick paper, bound in extra cloth, gilt, £1 10s. 6d., published at £3 3s.
Warmest praise in every respect, and precisely the same as Illustrated Parables, Illustrations, and equality as good as if the first prices were given."
N.B. Send carriage-free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of Post-office Order for the above amount.
London: S. and J. FARMER and Co., Original Publishers of the Book of England, E.C.

Ready this day, with 16 Plates, price 1s., postage-free,
STAINED GLASS, by the Improved Transfer Process of Diaphanie; easily performed by any person, at small cost.—Address J. A. HARLAND and SON, 329, Oxford-street, W.

New Edition, with Drawings in Colour, price 8s. 6d., post-free, 8s. 9d.
A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON PAINTING ON PAINTED AND SKETCHING FROM NATURE. By JOHN CHASE, M.W.C.I. Edited by the Rev. J. BAYNE, M.A. London: J. HARLAND and SON, 329, Oxford-street, W.

Price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,
MONOGRAMS and CYPHERS, Modern and Gothic: Hints thereon. By VICTOR PROBERT.
London: J. HARLAND and SON, 329, Oxford-street, W.

Third Edition, price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,
ALPHABETS and DESIGNS of DIFFERENT PERIODS. By J. G. WARNE. With Introductory Remarks by F. C. WOOD.—London: J. HARLAND and SON, 329, Oxford-street, W.

Price 1s., postage-free,
PHOTO-CHROMOGRAPHY; an Easy Method of Colouring Photographs (producing a beautiful transparency), without any knowledge of Drawing or Painting, and no expensive Colouring and Apparatus of art. By M. C.
London: J. HARLAND and SON, 329, Oxford-street, W.

Fifth Edition, with 19 Illustrations and 3 coloured plates, 10s. 6d.,
PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, Draperies, Backgrounds, &c. A guide to Painting in Water Colours; with Practical Instructions in Retouching. By ALFRED H. WALL. Edited by E. KINTON.—London: J. HARLAND and SON, 329, Oxford-st., W.

This day, price 1s.,
ON HAY-FEVER, HAY-ASTHMA, OR SPASMODIC CATARRH. By W. ASHCROFT MARTIN, M.R.C.S. Lond., Physician to the Metropolitan Free Hospital and to the Hampstead General, late Senior Physician to the City Dispensary, &c.—London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

DOGS' DISEASES and their proper Treatment. Fifty-second Thousand, price 1s., post-free for 2 stamps. By LINCOLN. 7th edition, 400 pp. Illustrated. London, W.

A packet of 100 stamps, all different, sent post-free for 8s.

BAGSTER'S BLANK-PAGE BIBLE, 8vo, 24s. A most convenient size for Rt. Hons., Hons., Rev. Price 30s.
Of the principal Booksellers; and at 15, Paternoster-row, London.

120 SHEETS OF NOTE-PAPER for 6d.; 120 thick Cloth for 1s.; 120 sheets ditto, black-bordered, for 1s.; 120 sheets Cream Laid, 1s. 6d.; 120 sheets Blue Laid, for 2s. 6d.—J. PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Finnantie to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, and will take a fine polish. Is more durable than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 24, Oxford-street.

DANCE PROGRAMMES (Perfumed): Elegant and Artistic Designs; Novel Shapes; Fashionable Size-papers; Bronze Slips; Dainty Ink and Bouquet Pens; Illuminated Specimen Programmes sent POST-FREE.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, Oxford-street.

MONOGRAM, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES cut at half price, and remain the property of the purchaser. Steel Plate Engraving and Copperplate Printing executed in the highest style of elegance and first-class paper and Envelopes ready made to match at moderate prices.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street, W.

BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, WEDDING PRESENTS, CHRISTENING PRESENTS.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, and 26, Oxford-street.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, gilt and silk lined, to hold comfortably 12 Cartes-de-visite, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 1s. 6d.; Russia, 3s. 6d.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, Oxford-street, W.

PURSES, pocket-books, cigar-cases, cart-cases, wallets, open-plans, send-letter clocks and every description of Pocket-book and Case for the waistcoat or pocket. Best London, Paris, and Vienna make, and new and novel designs in every season's open paperwork.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, Oxford-st.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and HYMNALS, of the best manufacture, and fitted in the most complete manner for ladies or gentlemen. DESPATCH-BOXES, DIE-PLATES, and STATIONERY of every description.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, and 26, Oxford-street, W. The public are requested to observe that PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-st., London.

25 PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Ivory-handled Tools, Inkstands, Blotting-book, and Pocket-for-Paper complete, in Solid Morocco Leather, open ready for use. PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

THE NEW CROQUET DEPARTMENT at PARKINS and GOTTO'S, 24, 25, and 26, Oxford-st., W., includes Complete Sets of Rules, Marking Tablets, coloured wools, and neat carriage-paid to any railway station upon prepayment.—PARKINS and GOTTO, Oxford-street, W.

THE FAVOURITE SET of CROQUET, Full Size, for 30s., including Book of Rules, in strong box. Sent carriage-paid to any railway station upon prepayment. Price 7s. 6d. extra if with Iron Mallets and Iron Pegs.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, Oxford-street, W.

CROQUET.—Nice Present to Children. PARKINS and GOTTO'S 1st set of Croquet, the cheapest in the trade, consisting of 4 Mallets, 4 Balls, and 2 Hoops, 4s. 6d. Other.—Parkins and Gotto, 24, Oxford-street, London, W.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The Penny Printing Press, price from 9s. to £4 4s., for Letter-heads, Programmes, Cards, Circulars, &c. Catalogue, List of Letters, Set of Lithography, 1s., or 12 stamps each.—G. BEE, Engraver and Stationer to her Majesty's Post Office, 94, High Holborn, London, W.C.

WHAT WILL THIS COST TO PRINT? is a question often occurring to business men, public charities, and persons of theatrical inclinations. An immediate answer to the inquiry may be obtained. A Specimen Book of Types and information for authors sent, on application, by RICHARD BARRETT, 13, North-bank, London.

NICHOLSON and CO., Silkmercers, 50 to 56, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, beg to announce that they have purchased the entire patterns and printed silks. Messrs. S. and Co. have also bought in Lyons several lots of last year's patterns at about half their original prices, and Messrs. Nicholson and Co. have selected 12 pieces. No connection with any other firm.

300 PATTERNS POST-FREE. Messrs. NICHOLSON beg to state that they have greatly improved the system of sending patterns of SILKS, &c., by post. They now undertake to forward, post-free, 300 Patterns of Silks, Satins, Velvets, Velveteens, Plushes, Brocades, Dress Fabrics, and Serges now in Nicholson and Co.'s Paris and London warehouses, amounting in stock to £20,000 in value.
Nicholson and Co., 50 to 56, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS, Coloured Checks, 30 shades, from 2 guineas a Dress. Nicholson and Co., 50 to 56, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS, Checks and Stripes, from 1 guinea a Dress. Seventhly. 50 Patterns post-free.
50 to 56, St. Paul's-churchyard.

FOULARDS EXTRAORDINARY. A large parcel of these fashionable Dress Fabrics, in Checks, Stripes, and Spots, by this day's parcel post.
50 to 56, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS, Satin Luxors, Rich Brocades, and Brocade Silks, from 2 guineas. Nicholson and Co., 50 to 56, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S BLACK SILKS. Black Glacés, from Genoa, from 2s. 6d. to 5s. 11d. Drap de Paris, do., from 2 guineas a Dress. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 56, St. Paul's-churchyard.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN WELL DRESSED?—Buy Kaiserkrocker Suits in Cloth, from 10s. 6d. Trotteur Jackets, from 21s. 6d. Patterns of the Cloths, directions for measurement, and 41 Engravings of New Dresses, Hats, Underclothing, &c., free.—Kaiserkrocker, Manchester.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, for the present season, at Scott's Sale, Dunlop-house, 113, Cheapside. Purchasers are invited to call at this warehouse for facility of selection from all the richest and most costly productions. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., 113, Cheapside, London, E.C.

THIS SEASON'S FASHIONS IN DRESS, LADIES and the PUBLIC visiting London are respectfully invited to inspect the Stock of SILKS, Velvets, Satins, Velveteens, and all the LATEST NOVELTIES in Dress Fabrics and Foreign Manufactures.
JAMES ROBINSON'S JACKETS and MANTLES for the Present Season.
Paletot, Cashmere, and Loose SHAWLS in all the latest Designs.
Prices of Jackets, 1 guinea, 1½ guinea, 2 guineas, 3 guineas, and 10s. 6d. the Full Dress (new mesh in diamond).
A choice collection of the NEW FRENCH CRÊPE-DE-DENTELLE DRESSES, from 2 guineas the Dress, with jacket complete.
A large assortment of GRENADINE DRESSES, from 10s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Ribbons, Gloves, Hosiery, Trimmings, Haberdashery, Parasols, and Fans.
FAMILY AND COMPLIMENTARY MOURNING.
Despatch, Economy, and Moderate Charges are the leading features of the House.
Close on Saturdays at Four o'Clock.
JAMES ROBINSON and SON, 52, Wigmore-st., and 38, Wigmore-st., Nos. 1 and 2, Barrett-street, London.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!
RICH CHENE SILKS, 1 guinea, all the 64. the Dress of 22 yards; worth 30s.
Wide-width STRIPED SILKS, 1 guinea, all the 64. the Dress of 22 yards.
The New Colours in FANCY CHENE SILKS, at 64. the 64. the Dress of 22 yards.
Good wide-width BLACK GLACÉS, at 64. and 2s. 11d. Also, GOOD GLACÉS, from 1 guinea the Dress.
Patterns free.—JOHN HARVEY and SONS, Ludgate-hill.
Purchased parcels to the late sidrons.

LORD'S NEW JACKETS FOR LADIES, at 76, Fore-street, and 76, Fashion, London, W., comprise a large number of beautifully braided patterns in Silk, Cashmere, and Cloth, at 1 guinea, 1½ guinea, 42s. 52s. 6d., and 63s. to 5 guineas.

LORD'S HALF-GUINEA JACKETS, in cloth and cashmere, in tight-fitting Tenners, and loose shapes becomes unnecessary to describe them, although remarkable value they are good, and such as any lady may wear. Patterns and illustrations free.—LORD'S Fashion Establishment opposite the Pantheon, Oxford-street.

LORD'S GUINEA JACKETS, to wear open or closed, beautifully braided; materials rich Cashmere and Cloth; colours, Black, Navy, and Seal Brown. Lord's New Basket Bodice exhibit the largest and cheapest stock in Europe.—Thos. Lord, 76, Fashion-street, Spitalfields, London, E.

LORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas. Quality first guaranteed. Riding-habits, Jackets, and Skirts, Ulsters, Waterproofs, Hats, Boots, Gloves, Breeches, Whips, Spurs, Saddlery, Horse Clothing, &c., at Lord's Manufactory and Warehouse.—T. Lord and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, MERCERY, VELVETS, FANCY GOODS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Chenkel Glacés, 11 yards, £1 5s. 6d.
New Striped Glacés, 11 yards, £1 5s.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 11 yards, £1 5s.
New Checked Glacés, 11 yards, £1 5s.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.
A large assortment at 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d. to 21s. per yard.
Rich Coloured Silks, Moiré Antiques.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

SUMMER CHALLIS.—Patterns free. Checks and Striped Summer Muslins, a large variety of useful Dress Fabrics.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

LINEN and MUSLIN CURTAINS. Double Borders, four yards long, 12s. 6d. per pair. A large variety of Embroidered Muslins, 6d., 9d., 12d., 15d. per yard, long.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, Ludgate-hill.

FRENCH PRINTED MUSLINS.—SEWELL and CO. have purchased from the Compagnie Lyonnaise, Paris, a large lot of the above, comprising the newest designs and colourings, at 6½d. per yard. Patterns free. No. 1, to 14, Gt. per yard original price, 1s. and 1s. 3d. per metre.
Compagnie Lyonnaise, 15, Rue Caumartin, Paris.

SEWELL and CO.'S NEW SILKS, in every variety. Design and Colour, 2s. 3, and 3s. 6 patterns the Full Dress. Patterns free. Sewell and Co., 72 to 74, St. Paul's-churchyard.
Complete House, Fifth-street, Soho-square, W.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
By appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.
117, 119, and 121, Oxford-street, London, W.,
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Yachting Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Highland Shawls, Veils and Hose. Scotch Plaid Tweeds, and Linsey Woolseys, for Ladies' Travelling and Seaside Dresses.
Patterns forwarded free.

YAK LACE ROTONDES.—The whole of a Manufacturer's Stock of these Goods, in Black and Coloured, at Wholesale Prices.
GRANT and GASK.

50, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

MOIRE ANTIQUES.—The most beautiful Moire Antiques, in all the new colours, at 4s to 5 guineas the Full Dress, of the Celebrated Lyons Manufacture.
GRANT and GASK.

50, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FOULARD SILKS.—A Great Variety of New Designs and Colours, of high quality, from 29s. 6d. the Full Dress. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK.

50, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

FOULARD SILKS.—Patterns forwarded of new and beautiful designs, in Checks, Stripes, and Spots, from 1 guinea. Any length cut. Also Evening Lengths of rich Silks, from 2 guineas Full Dress, very cheap.
GRANT and GASK.

50, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

MADAPOLAM DRESSES and COSTUMES for Girls.—Patterns forwarded. A variety of new and pretty Designs, from 1 guinea Full Dress. Suits in quite new design. Organdie Muslins in immense variety.
GRANT and GASK.

50, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street.

NEW MANTLES and SHAWLS.—The largest Assortment of NEW and UNIQUE SHAPES at most moderate prices. Also a large Stock of BLACK SHAWLS, from 1 guinea.
GRANT and GASK.

50, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

FRENCH KID GLOVES.—CALVAT'S BEST FRENCH GLOVES, 4s. 6d. per pair, usual price 5s. 3d. Sample pair by post, 5s.
GRANT and GASK.

50, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

BLACK SILKS.
Duchesse and Chenes Brocade Imperial Black, 2s. 6d. to 5s. 11d. per yard.
Black Glacés, 1 guinea the Dress.
Gros de Naples, 2s. 6d. per yard.
Black Velvets, 2s. 6d. per yard.
Coloured Silks, Fancy Dresses, Moirettes, and Shawls.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON and COMPANY.
P. CATER and COMPANY, Finsbury-square, E.C.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at wholesale prices.
All forward, carriage paid on parcels of 20 and upwards, Sheets and Sheeting, Damask, Diaper, Huckaback, Napkins, Huckaback and Diaper Towels, Dusters, Tablecloths, Quilts, Counterpanes, Shirtings, Fine Linens, Dockings, Handkerchiefs, Linen Cambrics, Lawns, Muslins, Collars, Cuffs, Frillings, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Underclothing.
Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., 28, Donegall-place, Belfast.

BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELL have returned from Paris with their Elegant GUINEA BONNET, in Black and Coloured Crêpe Lisse and Tulle, trimmed with Jet and Spangled Gimps, Crêpe Lisse and Strings.
Marks and Gavell, 4, Regent-street, London, S.W.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, at moderate charges. Fitting Shirts kept in stock.
CAPPER and WATSON, 39, Regent-street, London, S.W.

VERY IMPORTANT TO TAILORS.
LEAVES from the Book in very best cloth, for sale for gentlemen's Rifling Trousers, are now ready, and can only be had of Messrs. Nicholson and Co., 50 to 56, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, who have sold and selected for cash. On and after July 1 all parcels will be prepaid.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair Jewellery, 19, Conduit-street, Bond-street, London. Hair Rings, from 8s. 6d.; Hair Alberts, from 25s. each, &c. Illustrated Guide, 1 stamp.—Regent-street, London.

A. FORBER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE IVY LEAVES, Natural Colours for Decorating Churches, &c., must not be out of Style. Guides for Stove Agents, 4 vlaamps per packet; 9 for 24 stamps.—Green Tissue Novel, Richmond.

FOR ASCOT RACES and FÊTES. LADIES, Requiring Dresses for the above, are most respectfully asked an inspection of their extensive assortment of Novelties now Exhibiting and prepared expressly for them for the season and most elegant designs.—16, Regent-street; and 75, Cheapside.

N.B. Parasols designed for Presents and Prizes in great variety at 14s., Regent-street.

H. WALKER'S NEW NEEDLES.—The Finest Needles ever made; eyes perfectly smooth, and of the true elliptical form. Two sizes, 60 for 1d. sample, of any Needle-woman. H. Walker, 4, Cross-street, Islington.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED CANDLES, the best and most economical candles, are the most extensive success for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Price 1s. 6d. per box. Napoleon Price, Perfumer to the Queen, Proprietor, 95, Gt. Russell-st., Bloomsbury, 54, 55, 56, & 57, Broad-st.

THE RACES AND FÊTES.—LADIES will find the application of ROWLAND'S KALYDOR both soothing and cooling to the skin, and most beneficial to the health and fertility; removing sunspots, freckles, and discolorations; and rendering the complexion clear, fair, and blooming. Ask for ROWLAND'S KALYDOR, 4s. 6d. per bottle. Beware of fictitious names. Ask for "Rowland's Kalydor," and beware of spurious and pernicious compounds under the name of "Kalydor."

TOILET VINEGAR.—VINAIGRE DE TOILETTE DE JEAN VINCENT ROLLET.—This celebrated Vinegar, which is highly recommended by the faculty for its refreshing, healthy, and reviving properties, has been for many years considered for it a universal reputation. Its hygienic properties render it indispensable to the toilet, as it removes all cutaneous affections, such as pimples, spots, &c., and by its use in washing the head soon restores the weakest hair, and renders the skin white and clear. In the bath, a few drops will be sufficient. It is also very agreeable to it a most agreeable perfume. It is an admirable lotion for the teeth, and for the mouth, and is a most powerful antiseptic, preventing decay, and rendering the breath sweet and pleasant. Sold by all chemists and perfumers throughout the world. Wholesale depôt, 6, Great Castle-street, Regent-street, London, W.

TEETH.—By Mr. ESKELL'S INVENTION. (Patent granted July 17, 1860.)—Nice or partial sets of teeth, fixed without springs or wires, and will remain firm for many years without the extraction of stumps or giving the slightest pain. They are constructed entirely of pure gum, and are the most natural and most perfect substitute for the loss of teeth ever introduced to the public. Attention, which fully explains the above, free for one stamp. Mr. Eskell, Surgeon-Dentist, 10, Berners-street, Oxford-street, London, W.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Heart and Stomach Disorders of every kind and as a mild aperient.—DINNEFORD and CO., 172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain immediate relief by using DR. SCOTT'S ELECTRIC EYE-SNUFF. It removes all inflammation, dimness of sight, and weakness. Sold by all chemists, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Barger, Oxford-street; Sutton, Bond-street; Bennett, Cheapside; Hannay, Oxford-street.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given for Ladies' and Gentlemen's Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Furniture, &c. BY MR. H. SOLOMONS, 68, Great Russell-street, W.C., opposite the British Museum. Ladies or gentlemen waited upon at their residences in any part of London. Established 1828.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. A. DAVIS, 5, Crawford-st., Baker-st., attends Ladies and Gentlemen privately, to purchase Wearing Apparel, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. Letters attended to. Note.—Post-office orders made payable the same day. Est. 40 years. Town and LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, No. 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Mary, Savoy, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY JUNE 10, 1882.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1320.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, JUNE 17, 1865. TWO SHEETS, FIVEPENCE

FIFTY YEARS OF PEACE.

TO-MORROW, Sunday, is the anniversary of an event to which we refer only for historical reasons. It has never been the habit of the English nation to dwell much upon recollections of battles; and it is a good national characteristic that, while we leave no energy unexerted that is necessary to win a fight, we take no great pleasure in talking of it afterwards. But fifty years of peace with the grandest and most powerful of the Continental peoples began with the close of the great Battle of Waterloo, and it would be less an act of consideration for the feelings of our allies than a childish fear and a bad compliment to abstain from a reference to that which we are quite ready to forget in the remembrance of its consequences. Where Englishmen and Christians shall be gathered together to-morrow they will not omit to note that the prayer, "Give peace in our time," has been abundantly answered, so far as regards the only antagonists whom we have ever really regarded as formidable.

For fifty years, while France has been rearranging her institutions and recovering from the earthquake shock of the Revolution which laid them all, good and bad, in the dust, England has been watching her with an interest in French history little inferior to the interest it demanded from France herself. But a few years after the crowning struggle, and a very few years from the death of Louis XVIII., came the Polignac Administration, the reconstruction of the Chamber of Deputies, the press ordinances, and the next Revolution. The great fight of three days occurred, the King retired, the Ministry fled, and fifteen years after Waterloo Charles X. was a refugee in England. The son of Egalité was placed on the French throne, a King of the French, not of France; and the nation showed a humanity in the hour of triumph which we hope may be imitated by another people, whose boast has been a successful imitation of France rather than of the race whence sprang the Sovereigns of the New World. Many of us are old enough to remember the series of events which marked the reign of the Citizen King. We recollect the various attempts on his life, some of them of so determined a character that his constant escapes are even now a theme of wonder. Fieschi, Alibaud, Meunier, Darmes, Lecompte, Henri, all tried, and in vain, to destroy the life of the elected King; and readers will recall the feelings with which we used to hear of these incessant attempts, and how darkly it was predicted that it would be impossible but that some resolute villain should at length succeed. We also remember that strange Berri story, and how a brave woman, who had shown more than manly courage in the hour of danger, showed that, in other morals, she was no better than her race; we recall the death of La Fayette, the overthrow of M. Thiers by Count Molé, the mission of Soult (who forgets the coronation of our Queen, and how the only feature of the procession was the gorgeousness of ambassadorial equipages ?), and the decree for the removal of the ashes of Napoleon.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AT THE OPENING OF THE CENTRAL HALL OF THE ROYAL DRAMATIC COLLEGE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

Then came the Man of Ghent, still an honour to France and to Protestantism ; and then came the grand plan for the fortifications of Paris. Few will forget the stormy military controversy of those days, when some English writers were so little advanced in the doctrine of non-interference in the domestic concerns of neighbours as to contend that this scheme of fortifications was an infraction of treaties, and that France ought to be invited by the rest of Europe to abstain from placing her capital out of reach of the destiny of a single battle. In 1844, our Queen, a three-years' wife, visited the Orleans family, at the Château d'Eu, and the old friendship of the old King was regarded as very touching, and was spoken of until after the King's return visit in 1844, and up to the Spanish marriages, when it ceased to think quite so much of the exceeding friendliness of King Louis Philippe. In 1846 the Boulogne attempt had been made ; and in the year of the Spanish match one who was, in later days, to make a Spanish match of his own escaped from Ham, and ready to prepare for a new attempt, despite that, in 1816, the family of Bonaparte had been excluded from French soil for ever.

On came the next Revolution. The great reform banquet was forbidden in 1848. Guizot was impeached, and in consigné ; fierce riots ensued ; the Tuileries were stormed, and Louis Philippe tried to do for his son, and with like ill-success. Let us not forget the heroism of the Duke of Nemours, and how nobly she claimed the rights of her child. Let us never forget the faithful devotion of the aged Queen who is still one of our esteemed, venerable guest, and who honours us by electing to live her life of peace and goodness among us. And then the Republic was proclaimed, the French Royal family sought our shores, and in March, 1848, settled at Claremont, ever since their exile. France was again, after forty-five years, a Republican. She disturbed us somewhat by the scare of Chartism and our special constables (amongst them her present Emperor) ; but we kept the peace, and soon afterwards turned all our attention towards the great engineering project, initiated by the Prince Consort, of an Exhibition for all Nations. We may say that from the beginning of 1850 we had two excitements—the approaching show and the Roman Catholic agitation. Between the two we contrived to prevent the establishment of a republic at our doors from exercising a very disturbing influence on our millions.

Perpetual banishment, which had been decreed against the family of Napoleon, was also decreed against the house of Louis Philippe. The Executive Commission was chosen by the Assembly, and the strange Government, which comprised Arago, Lamartine, and Louis Blanc, was erected. Among the elections was one which should have been fatal—that of Four constituencies chose him who had been the prisoner of Ham. But the blood of the Parisians was once more up, and the terrible fights and slaughter of June, 1848, Paris in a state of siege, the death of the noble Archbishop, the dictatorship of Cavaignac, and the tremendous chastisement inflicted upon the insurgents by the stern "Africans" are all within the remembrance of most of us. Louis Napoleon took his seat in the Assembly, and proclamation was proclaimed in front of the palace of the Tuileries, now his own.

Next, France chose a President, and more than six millions voted for the nephew of him whose family had been solemnly banished for ever. It was impossible that he would not be stationary and that Frenchmen would have again to pronounce. Some of them began to pronounce too early and the wrong way, and broad military hints were given that this would not do. The press was dealt with severely, but not as in later times. Changarnier was set aside, and all necessary preparations were made for the great blow of the 2nd of December. It was delivered, and the Napoleonic star again shone out brightly over a reddened sea. France came the appeal to the nation, without let or hindrance from those who but for a "strong" policy might have been in the way—a Prince President was elected for ten years, as he was installed in Notre Dame. Another Constitution was published. That year the victor of Waterloo died and was laid beside the victor of Trafalgar. Events were working which were to draw the old antagonists closer together and to unite them in the vengeances on a third Power. But before these culminated in the expedition of the Kay and the Vesuvius France had once more changed her form of Government. In December, 1852, the Prince President became Emperor ; but it was not until October, 1853, that the fleets of Victoria of England and of Napoleon of France sailed in friendship into the Bosphorus to defend the Turk.

Since that time, and the glorious triumph which, in spite of all official hindrance and military incompetency, crowned the war, France and England have been more intimately drawn together, and, in consequence, have learned to respect and admire each other. The great festivals of industry did much, the war did more, and the incessant and kindly intercourse of the people has done most, towards the forging the links which alone can hold nations together. Our Queen and her husband received the Emperor and the beautiful lady to whom the new Spanish match had united him, and the English people welcomed them cordially. A few months later the visit was returned, and France gave the kindliest reception to our Sovereign. There has been little since the Peace to disturb the friendly feelings of the nations ; and it is now hardly worth while to recollect how the foolish language of some silly French soldiers, answered, perhaps, with no great wisdom on this side of the water, for a few weeks caused some anger, which was speedily dissipated. The Emperor had a son, and liberated a thousand political prisoners in honour of the event ; but consequence was not crushed or subdued, and several attempts were made upon the life of Louis Napoleon, all as unsuccessful as those which we had remembered in the days of Louis Philippe. The new Emperor had his Fieschi, his Delmarre, his Grilli, his Orsini, and his Pieri ; but he lived and they died. We had our own wars to attend to ; we had China to civilise, Persia to punish, and, chief of all, we had the terrible Indian mutiny to deal with, and to make the Indian peninsula shudder at the thought of another treason to the English. And the work was done. Our Queen visited Cherbourg as the Emperor's guest, in 1858 ; and in the next year Lord Palmerston had been driven from office on the Conspiracy Bill, which was held to be a French measure. The Berrard trial followed, and but for the wisdom of rulers, even the good and sound understandings which had drawn the two nations more closely together, disasters might not have been able to prevent the violent from causing disruption. But all was managed well ; and then, when it was announced, in 1859, that the Emperor of the French was about to hurl the weight of his army against Austria, for the liberation of Italy, all English hearts went forth with the banners of France.

Such have been the principal events of the last fifty years of English and French history, in which even the good and wise could take the trouble to consider them accidents which can only unite to offer a hopeful future. For anything more disturbing, or more apparently calculated to cause severance and strife between two highly-spirited nations than a number of these events it would be difficult to imagine. But, as a result of them has in other times produced war. It is, therefore, lawful to believe that those who have had the wisdom to remain friendly under unfavourable circumstances will now, that calmer times have come, that a valuable commercial treaty gives us common interests, that intercourse has largely increased, that projectiles are vanishing, present and future generations of France and England, united, may dictate to the world ; but their hostility would be the very greatest disaster that could befal the human race. Bound, therefore, by their foremost position, no less than by their mutual interests, to the cause of peace, of progress, and enlightenment, it may be hoped that France and England have quarrelled for the last time, and that another fifty years of concord may bring a centenary jubilee of friendship. That such may be the decree of Providence, let all prayer be offered to-morrow.

THE FRANCE OF WALES AT THE ROYAL DRAMATIC COLLEGE.

The Engraving on our front page is an illustration of the ceremony which took place at the Dramatic College, Maybury, near Woking, on Monday week, and some account of which was given in our last Publication. The Prince of Wales laid the corner stone of the college, which already contains the nucleus of a library and gallery for the reception of works of art illustrative of the history of the English drama, on that day inaugurated by the Prince. The site of the College was presented Prince Consort, having laid the foundation-stone of the building on the 3rd of June, 1846. On the morning of the inauguration the grounds in front of the college looked bright and green, and the spring flowers peeped out in clusters, while hedges, trees, and bushes, the folds of which scarcely moved in the gentlest of breezes that swept over the romantic scene, had put on their freshest and prettiest summer aspect. The rural lane leading up to the pretty village of Maybury was crowded with carriages and spectators, for it was well known that by the special trains of the London and South-Western Railway passed immediately into the Royal Dramatic College Grammar School, played a series of lively airs. The procession, headed by the Prince, leading from the railway into these grounds, where several hundred gentlemen had assembled to receive him. During the proceedings twenty-one guns were fired and the Royal standard hoisted upon the tower of the central building, which was also crowned with the flag of the college all day. Hundreds of other flags, representing all nations, were displayed in the grounds, making a very pretty show. The Prince was accompanied by the Duke of St. Albans, the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, General Charlton, Colonel Keppel, and other friends. Upon the arrival of the party on the platform by Mr. Benjamin Webster, the master, and Mr. Cresswick, the deputy master, of the college ; the Duke of Yorkstone and Mr. Jervoed, the treasurers ; Mr. Compton, Mr. Cullenford, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Hollis, Mr. Archibees, Mr. J. L. Toole, Mr. Wigan, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Sams, Mr. Robert Keeley, and other members of the wardens : with Mr. Anson, the secretary ; Mr. Thomas Smith, the architect ; Mr. Lee, the surveyor ; and Mr. Bowyer, the clerk of the college. All these formed a procession and preceded his Royal Highness to the site of the new building, which was under the Hon. Artillery Company, of which the Prince is the Colonel, and under the command of Captain Keppel, and consisted of a guard of honour in front and beyond them each side of the road was lined by a detachment of the 49th Surrey Volunteers, under their lieutenant, the command of Captain Strong. The band of the Duke of York's School was also present, and the Prince was received up with military precision along the lines played the National Anthem, and his Royal Highness was very warmly cheered. On arriving at the site of the building Mr. Webster, the master, presented the Prince with a golden key, with which the Prince was requested to open the foundation-stone of the college hall, and to a seat on a dais tastefully draped with crimson velvet and ornamented with flowers and evergreens. Here the Prince, on the hall is a fine Gothic apartment, well lighted, and its walls are already partially covered with paintings and engravings having more or less reference to the dramatic profession. When the Prince was seated, Mr. Webster addressed his Royal Highness in a few words, which we have already reported. The ladies were then invited to come forward and deposit pieces on the table before his Royal Highness ; the response, however, were, we are sorry to say, not so numerous as they should have been. The first to step forward, and she gave her well-filled purse into the Prince's hand, was Miss Faucit, who placed their contributions upon the table. This ceremony being concluded, the Prince, with a silver trowel, declared the site to be open, and the announcement was received with loud cheering, the bands again playing the National Anthem. Miss Faucit then then sang in excellent style the air from "Lurline," "Sweet spirit, hear my prayer," and Madame Grisi, who followed her, sang the air from "Puritani," "Qui la voce." At the close of this air his Royal Highness left the hall, was conducted over the buildings, and returned to town by the Royal train. Madame Arebella Goddard and Mr. W. Harrison also sang during the proceedings, and Mr. Lindsay and the bands of the Hon. Artillery Company, of the 20th Surrey, and of the Duke of York's School, performed a pleasant variety of operatic music. After due attention had been paid to the refreshments departed, provided under neat and pleasant marquees, the majority of the company returned to town by special train at eight o'clock, well pleased with their visit to the homes of the poor actors.

The King of Portugal, on the occasion of the publication of the "Histoire de Jules César," has conferred upon the Emperor Napoleon the collar and grand cordon of the Order of Scientific and Artistic Merit—a distinction to which three individuals only have yet attained.

A new tariff, based on the commercial treaty between France and Switzerland, will come into operation on the first of July next. The same tariff will also be applied after that date to the commercial relations of Switzerland with England, Belgium, Germany, and the United States.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor, having finished his Algerian tour, returned to Paris last Saturday afternoon, after an absence of six weeks. The Empress and Prince Imperial joined him at the Fontainebleau station, and the whole party were enthusiastically received on their arrival in the capital. The streets were lined with multitudes of people from the Lyons railway to the Tuileries, and flags floated from almost every window. In the evening the public buildings were illuminated, as were also a great many private residences.

The ovation paid to the Emperor on Saturday was renewed with twofold enthusiasm at Longchamps, both before and after the second great victory of Count Lagrange's horse Gladiateur. The Paris correspondent of the Guardian states that "His Majesty, who is busied in a species of holiday, has returned to the aim of politics, looked remarkably well and extremely pleased and animated. The Empress was enveloped in a magnificent burnous, entirely of gold, the gift of the Emperor on his return. The Prince Imperial was also present, and the whole party, in the midst of the happy and festival air their reunion, the Emperor perpetually nodding and smiling to friends whom he saw in the crowd, left the course. The Imperial equipages five carriages-and-four on its way to the races. Never elapsed such an interval of the Empress's appearance seen on a similar occasion."

The Emperor presided, on Monday, at a meeting of the Privy Council and at a Council of Ministers. The Empress was also present. All the business of importance was thoroughly sifted by the functionaries, seniors, and deputies anxious to show their respect to the Sovereign after his long absence from them. On Wednesday his Majesty received the members of the Corps Diplomatique.

The Empress has closed her retreat mystery by two grand acts. By one decree she annuls all outstanding warnings given to the journals ; and by another she confers the decoration of the Legion of Honour on Mdlle. Rosa Bonheur.

A letter addressed by the President of the United States to the Emperor in relation to the appointment of the new French Minister at Washington has been published in the Paris papers prefatory to the text of the despatch from the Federal Government thanking the Emperor, the Senate, the Corps Législatif, and the nation for the numerous expressions of sympathy evinced for Mr. Lincoln's memory.

The resignation of Prince Napoleon of the vice-presidency of the Privy Council and the nomination of the Exhibition Commission has been accepted by the Emperor. The Prince met with an accident, on Saturday last, between Lyons and Paris, whereby his left hand, which were too spirited, overturned his carriage. He was flung out, and received some bruises. Prince Napoleon's Pavenue Montaigne, in the Avenue Montaigne, has been bought by M. Emile Girardin.

The Government has given orders for the immediate increase to the maritime prefects announcing that belligerents will soon be at liberty to fit out vessels to Confederate vessels entering French ports.

Arrangements are in progress for the reception in Paris of Prince Abd-el-Kader, whose arrival at Paris is fixed for the 26th inst. His visit of 10 days previous was to be on the right wing of the palace, which will be no longer, at that date, the residence of the Count, Montalivet, who is to occupy a house in the Rue d'Angoulême-du-Temple.

At the election of a Deputy to the Corps Législatif for the department of Marne, M. Goerg, the Opposition candidate, was returned by 17,177 votes ; that of his opponent, the former M. Dupont, the Government candidate.

The Government, on Wednesday week, suffered an important check in the Corps Législatif. The section of the Budget which proposed a credit of 4,000,000f. towards building a new post-office on the site of the Church of the Assumption, in the Rue Louvois-en-Ville, rejected by a large majority, in spite of a most urgent appeal on behalf of the project made by the Minister of Commerce, M. Forcade la Roquette. Yesterday week a debate was raised upon the Mexican expedition and its expenses. The Government defended the expedition against the Mexican Loan, and M. Rouher defended both. M. Jules Favre delivered a long and able speech against it. The Government had a majority of 252 against 13 votes. In Monday's sitting the Budget of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the first two sections of the Budget for the Ministry of the Interior were voted. The discussion of the Budget for the Ministry of the Interior was continued on Tuesday. The chamber also voted to the Ministry of the Budget for the Ministry of the Interior, and also to the two first sections of the Budget for the Ministry of Finance. The Council of Vice-Presidents of the Chamber for the next twelve months, and naming M. Hubert and M. Delisle Secretaries.

General Mellinet has been elected Grand Master of the Grand Orient Freemasons Lodges of France.

The report of the committee charged to examine the bill on the Universal Exhibition of 1867 has been distributed. M. de Montigneux, in the name of his colleagues, proposes the adoption of the report, at the same time limiting the expense of the undertaking to twenty millions of francs. He thinks the Champ de Mars is the site. A proposal has been made by assentment that the Exhibition should be open on the Sunday, and closed on the day in the week. That suggestion the committee does not think advisable to adopt, but the Government has announced that one out of the twenty-four days of each month would be reserved to treat with the towns and railway companies in order to ensure to the working classes the right that belongs to them all parts of France may be enabled to visit the great display.

The project adopted ship Government, and at London last Saturday with complete success. Trials are being made at Toulon last Saturday electric infernal machine, by which, it is affirmed, iron-clad vessels can be instantaneously destroyed.

Horse-racing is becoming as popular in the south of France as it is in Paris. The Gazette du Midi states that the arrangements for the races to be run this month are more numerous than during any preceding year. A meeting was ordered for one race to the next for another, all belonging to sportsmen in the neighbourhood. There are fourteen races announced for the month of June, the value of company, all lived in the south of France.

It is said that the Emperor, during his late stay at Biarritz, conferred the Order of the Legion of Honour on the lion-hunter Cassaing.

SPAIN.

The Government has issued a decree announcing that it ceases to extend belligerent right to Confederate war vessels.

Senor Antonio Benavides has been nominated by Royal decree Minister for Foreign Affairs, replacing Senor Benavides.

A conspiracy has been discovered at Valencia. The Regiment of Bourbon was to have declared against the Queen on the night of the 9th inst. Colonel Alemany, three superior officers, and one officer of a provincial regiment garrisoned at Valencia were arrested. Three precautions softened to prevent the outbreak.

Senor Marcoleta, the envoy from the South American Republic of San Salvador, has arrived at Madrid, in order to negotiate a treaty of friendship between Spain and the Republic.

ITALY.

Signor Vegezzi has had two conferences at Rome with Cardinal Antonelli, with the object of ascertaining if the Papal Government was likely to terminate successfully. The Pope astonished the Cardinals and informed them that the Austrian ambassador at Naples, Count Colloredo had been favourably received by King Victor Emmanuel, General Della Marmora, and Signori Rattazzi, but were opposed by Signor Natoli.

General Count de Montebello gave a military dinner yesterday week in honour of Omer Pacha, Commander-in-Chief of the Turkish army, who is in Rome. On Monday the Pope gave an audience to him.

A Neapolitan paper asserts that the Italian member of Parliament who fell into the hands of a brigand band has been put to death after having been cruelly tortured. The English gentleman who is held captive among brigands, and for whose ransom £10,000 is demanded, is a member of the Stock Exchange. Mr. W. J. C. Moens, who has been, with his wife, travelling in Sicily and Italy for the benefit of his health. A letter from his wife has been published giving a melancholy account of the sufferings he endures.

The military tribunal sitting at Potenza has condemned the brigands Normandro Pietro and Cirigliano Francesco Paolo, the first to be shot, and the second to twenty years' hard labour.

Letters received from Rome state that a detachment of French troops stationed at Ceprano has repulsed some brigands upon Neapolitan territory.

PRUSSIA.

An extraordinary sitting of the Chamber of Deputies was held yesterday week, at which the debate on the Naval Budget was continued. Herr Virchow proposed an amendment, according to which the sum asked for the works in the Bay of Jahde should be increased to 1,000,000 thalers. He also proposed that 750,000 thalers should be voted for the building of an iron-clad frigate, and 300,000 thalers for cast-steel guns, these amounts forming the first year's instalments of the whole credit to be granted for the increase of the Prussian navy. After a discussion, the amendment was put to the vote, and adopted by a large majority. The Naval Budget was finally passed in the form proposed by the Committee. The debate on the Naval Budget was throughout one of considerable excitement, and nearly led to a duel between Herr von Bismarck and Herr Virchow.

In the Chamber of Deputies, on Tuesday, the bill referring to the expenses of the war with Denmark was discussed. Herr Wagener proposed, as an amendment:—"That the Government be requested to endeavour to bring about the annexation of the duchies to Prussia, even by indemnifying, if necessary, any claimant to their possession." Herr Twesten, the reporter of the Committee on the bill, spoke against annexation. Herr von Bismarck said:—"The programme for the solution of the question of the duchies as proposed has been completely carried out, except the installation of the Prince of Augustenburg as Duke of Schleswig-Holstein. This can take place any day upon the Prince proving his hereditary right to the duchies, which he has up to the present time failed to do. In a conversation with me last year his Highness rejected the moderate demands of Prussia, and expressed himself as follows:—'Why did you come to the duchies? We did not call you. Matters would have been settled without Prussia.' Annexation to Prussia is the best thing for Schleswig-Holstein, but there is no prospect of its accomplishment on account of the large debts for which it would be necessary for Prussia to render herself liable. After the refusal of our moderate demands by the Prince of Augustenburg, we shall be justified in subsequently increasing them." The Government bill was rejected, and the proposals of the Committee were agreed to by a large majority. Herr Wagener's amendment was also rejected.

In Wednesday's sitting of the Upper House Herren von Bülow and von Waldow proposed that the Government should bring forward a bill, in consonance with existing laws, to provide that members of the Diet uttering injurious calumnies or other actionable expressions during the debates should be liable to punishment by the general laws of the land. The majority of the Ministers were present at the sitting, and Herr von Bismarck, in the name of the Ministry, combated the proposal, which, after an animated discussion, was nevertheless agreed to by a large majority.

AUSTRIA.

The Emperor has returned to Vienna from Pesth. His Majesty, in an autograph letter of thanks to Count von Palffy, Governor of Hungary, states that he has been greatly moved by the sincere proofs of affection afforded to him upon all sides. In conclusion, the Emperor expresses the hope of soon returning to Pesth to complete the pleasing task which all have at heart.

His Majesty has signed a decree ordering the suppression of military tribunals for the trial of offences committed by civilians in Hungary.

The health of Archduke Rudolph, the heir apparent to the throne, says the Vienna correspondent of the Times, is improving. Instead of taking four or five lessons a day, the child now does nothing but play and drive about in a donkey-cart, employments which seem more to his taste than the learning of languages.

GREECE.

The King opened the National Assembly yesterday week in a speech from the Throne. Among other matters, his Majesty announced that his Government was engaged in an arrangement for the payment of the loan of 1832, guaranteed by the Powers.

AMERICA.

The surrender of General Kirby Smith, which we were able to announce in a large portion of last week's Number, took place on the 26th ult. It is unofficially reported that the same terms have been granted to him as were accorded to Lee and Johnston. This surrender includes the whole of the Confederacy across the Mississippi, so that the Federal Government has not an enemy left in the field. On the receipt of this intelligence President Johnson ordered the immediate release of all the prisoners who have been sentenced by military tribunals to imprisonment during the war. The Government, notwithstanding the surrender of Smith, has dispatched an extensive military and naval expedition, fitted out at Fortress Monroe, to Texas.

The President has issued a proclamation of amnesty and restoration to the rights of property, except in slaves and cases wherein proceedings under the Constitution laws have been instituted, to all persons who have directly or indirectly participated in the rebellion, and who will subscribe to the oath to support the Constitution, the Union, and all emancipation laws and proclamations, except those included in fourteen clauses of exceptions:—All civil, diplomatic, judicial, and State officers, soldiers above the rank of colonels, sailors above the rank of lieutenants, prisoners of war, political prisoners, raiders from foreign territories, those implicated in the ill-treatment of Federal prisoners, members of the Federal Congress of 1861 who have aided rebellion, any persons from the loyal States, or those in the seceded States owning property to the value of 20,000 dols. who have voluntarily aided the rebellion, and those who, having once taken Mr. Lincoln's amnesty oath of 1863, have disregarded its obligations. The proclamation concludes with notice that to those of the excepted classes who shall make special application to the President for pardon such clemency will be extended as may be consistent with the facts of the case and the dignity and peace of the United States.

This proclamation bears the counter-signature of W. H. Seward, being the first official document which the Secretary of State has signed since the murderous attack made upon him on April 14.

Secretary Seward, in accordance with the direction of the President's amnesty proclamation, has issued a circular in regard to the administration of the oath of allegiance. The oath may be subscribed before any commissioned officer—civil, military, or naval—in the service of the national Government, or any civil or military officer of a loyal State or territory who by the laws thereof may be qualified for administering oaths.

President Johnson has also issued a proclamation appointing William W. Holden provisional Governor of North Carolina, with power to call an election by the loyal people who shall have taken the new amnesty oaths to appoint delegates to revise the State Constitution and restore the State to the Union under such a form of local government as will entitle its people to protection by the United States against invasion, insurrection, and domestic violence. The military in the State are ordered to assist Governor Holden in carrying out the provisions of the proclamation, and the different departments of the Federal Government are directed to take possession of the public property, and to forthwith put in force their respective laws applicable to the geographical limits of the State.

General Grant had arrived in New York, and had been received with great enthusiasm.

Messrs. Wendell Phillips and Amasa J. Parker, in speeches to the Anti-Slavery Convention in Boston, denounced President Johnson's plan for the restoration of North Carolina to the Union, and decided that construction without negro suffrage would be a practical surrender to the Confederacy and a gross fraud upon the people of the North. Mr. Sumner has addressed a letter to the coloured men of North Carolina telling them to insist on all the rights and privileges of citizens and declaring that whoever robs them of those rights is a usurper and an impostor.

Mr. Jefferson Davis has been transferred from Fortress Monroe to the Capitol prison at Washington. The reports that he had been manacled are somewhat conflicting; but they have not been officially, or even semi-officially, denied. Mr. Davis will, it is rumoured, be tried by the District Supreme Court, under the presidency of Judge Carter; but the trial will not take place until September.

The trial of the alleged conspirators at Washington is progressing. The prosecution had produced Mr. Lewis F. Bates, of Charlotte, North Carolina, whose house Mr. Jefferson Davis made his stopping-place during his flight from Richmond. Evidence was given that, on the 19th of April, Mr. Davis addressed an assemblage of persons in front of Mr. Bates's house, reading to them a telegram announcing the assassination of Mr. Lincoln and the probable killing of Secretary Seward, which he is represented to have supplemented by giving utterance to Macbeth's murderous soliloquy, "If it were done, when 'tis done, then 'twere well it were done quickly." On the next day, in Mr. Bates's house, during a conversation between Davis and Breckenridge on the assassination, in which the latter regretted the crime merely because he regarded the occurrence as unfortunate for the South, Davis is stated to have remarked, "Well, General, I don't know," and repeated his Shaksperean quotation. An employé at Ford's Theatre testified to the prisoner Spangler, carpenter to the establishment, having assisted the escape of Booth immediately after the assassination. Numerous witnesses have been examined, with the view of impairing the evidence for the prosecution. Insanity has been pleaded in defence of Payne and Atzeroth.

The Military Commission has sentenced Senator Harris, of Maryland, to three years' imprisonment and the forfeiture of political rights. President Johnson has approved this finding, but remitted the sentence and released Mr. Harris. The President has also commuted the sentence on the Indianapolis conspirators—Bowles, Mulligan, and Horsey—to imprisonment for life.

An abstract of General Sherman's report to General Grant animadverting in strong terms against the conduct of Halleck and Stanton towards him has been published. Halleck has been superseded by Thomas, and it was believed that Stanton would have to retire from the Cabinet. The Western troops of General Sherman's army have broken up their camps around Washington, and are being transported westward, to be mustered out of service in their respective States. General Sherman has arrived in New York. In his farewell address to the army he recommends the men to return to peaceful pursuits, and not to seek new adventures abroad, which would only lead to death and disappointment.

The scheme for the liquidation of the national debt by voluntary subscriptions is being followed up.

The Senate of Tennessee had passed a bill declaring that all voters in that State must be white male citizens, twenty-one years old, and excluding from the suffrage all persons more than twenty-one years old who had "aided the rebellion."

Some Southern papers report that the people are disposed to accept the new order of things, and to stand by the Government to re-establish order and industry.

The 1st of June, appointed by President Johnson for national mourning for the death of President Lincoln, was observed throughout the North by suspension of business and by religious services.

Secretary Seward has rescinded the order requiring persons entering the United States to be provided with passports.

The American Telegraph Company had announced that, with the termination of the war, telegraphic communication between New York and New Orleans and all the intermediate cities had been resumed.

Several persons have been arrested at San Francisco for complicity in a conspiracy to seize a steamer and put it to sea as a Mexican privateer.

The Ordnance Dépôt Magazine at Mobile exploded on the 25th ult. Eight blocks of buildings and 8000 bales of cotton were destroyed and 300 persons killed.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

Wednesday, May 24, the anniversary of the Queen's birthday, was observed as a holiday in the chief cities of the provinces. Reviews of the troops and of the volunteers took place; the public buildings were decorated with flags; fireworks were discharged in the evening; and, altogether, there was a good display of loyal feeling by the people.

Throughout a good portion of Western Canada the crops look well, and are particularly promising.

At Montreal, on Thursday, the 25th of May, Colonel Carter, of the 63rd Regiment, inspected the Chasseurs Canadiens under the command of Major Cinq Mars. Upwards of 300 men mustered. Several regular and volunteer officers attended, together with a number of cadets belonging to the military school. A close inspection was made of each company upon the regiment being formed into line. After a number of well-executed movements had been gone through, which elicited approbation, the officers of the regiment were summoned to the front, when Colonel Carter expressed his gratification at seeing the military spirit of efficiency manifested by the French Canadians.

It is said that the Ottawa buildings will be occupied by the Provincial Parliament in October.

The Mayor of Cherbourg has invited the Mayor, six Aldermen, and six Town Councillors of Poole to a grand banquet at Cherbourg, to celebrate the opening of a steam-packet communication between the two places.

Official despatches received in Paris from Mexico announce that the Juarist bands have been everywhere beaten by the Imperialists. In several States the inhabitants are organising for the defence of their persons and property.

Mr. Rodway, the solicitor at Trowbridge who is acting for the defence of Miss Constance Kent, writes to vindicate the Rev. Arthur Wagner in the matter of the money alleged to have been given by the young lady to St. Mary's Hospital. Mr. Wagner told Mr. Rodway that a large sum had been placed in the box of the hospital by Miss Kent, and was requested by the latter gentleman to retain it until its application should be determined on. Mr. Wagner subsequently paid the amount to Mr. Kent's order for the defence and benefit of his daughter. Mr. Rodway adds, "Mr. Wagner has never manifested any desire to retain this money for St. Paul's Church or St. Mary's Hospital; but, on the contrary, has from the first expressed his anxiety that it should be used for the benefit of Miss Kent, and be at the disposal of her family for that purpose."

The Ocean Race of the Royal Thames Yacht Club was sailed on Monday, from Sheerness to Harwich, and was in all respects a great improvement upon that of last year; for, although only fifteen vessels entered, the class of boats was of a far superior description. The prizes were £100 and £50, for the first and second boats, irrespective of rig, and the conditions of the race as follow:—To sail with the usual fittings in ordinary seagoing trim, the vessels to carry all their boats; a pilot, but no extra hands, allowed; no limitation as to friends or canvas; no time allowance; to anchor in line between the Nore Light and a flag-boat moored on the edge of the Cant Sand, in a line by Minster Church; to take stations by five o'clock; to sail from Sheerness, round the Kentish Knook Light-vessel to Harwich. The race closed in the following order and times:—Alarm, 4h. 24m. 36s.; Xantha, 4h. 40m. 10s.; New Moon, 4h. 58m. 10s.; Volante, 5h. 4m. 10h. The Christabel was fifth, and Marina sixth.

TESTIMONIAL TO MR. MARK LEMON.—The annual dinner of the Dramatic Authors' Society took place at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich, on the 11th inst., and there was an unusually large muster of the members, especially of the older ones, by reason that it had been arranged to make a recognition of the valuable services which Mr. Mark Lemon has rendered to the society. To make these generally understood, a few explanatory words are needful. After fierce battle with those who could not perceive that an author has as much right in the creations of his brain as a landowner has in his estate, or a fundholder in his stock, an Act was obtained recognising the dramatist's title to remuneration from all who should act his plays. The country theatres had previously subsisted on the plunder of the London authors' works. The dramatists organised a plan for obtaining payment from the provinces; but, from various causes, it never worked well; and the chairman at the dinner, Mr. Bayle Bernard, gave an amusing sketch of the mode in which the authors suffered, between the active or passive resistance of managers and the blundering or fraud of the agents for the authors. The latter were always at law with some manager or other, and proceedings probably ended in a manager's bankruptcy. One manager used to send up false playbills, manufactured for deception. There were many honourable exceptions to the rule; but the whole machine acted clumsily, and to the great loss of the authors. Mr. Mark Lemon appeared as the deus ex machinâ, and devised a scheme which put an end to all difficulties, satisfied authors and managers, opened the whole range of the new drama to the provincial public, and increased the revenue of the society from about £700 to £3700. It was therefore felt that a testimonial of the gratitude of the authors was his due; and this was presented to him on the above occasion, Mr. Tom Taylor felicitously expressing the feelings of the society. Mr. Mark Lemon returned thanks very humorously, and intimated his hope that out of the testimonial (a beautiful inkstand) he should be enabled to draw inspirations of a remarkable character. Mr. Shirley Brooks, in proposing the chairman's health, complimented him on having accomplished a most difficult duty—that of speaking well in the presence of six-and-twenty men whose business it was to make the best speeches possible. Messrs. B. Webster, Planché, and Buckstone returned thanks for the society in a most amusing trio speech. Among the party were Messrs. Balfe, Oxenford, Wigan, Harrison, Palgrave Simpson, Byron, L. Buckingham, Blanchard, and Sketchley.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of the Right Hon. Peter Robert, nineteenth Baron Willoughby de Eresby, second Baron Gwydyr, and joint Hereditary Great Chamberlain of England, has been proved in London by the executors, Peter Robert Burrell, Esq. (his nephew), Edgar Drummond, Esq., Reginald A. Warren, Esq., Lord Elphinstone, and Alexander B. Cochrane, Esq., M.P. The personalty was sworn under £120,000. The large estates in England, Scotland, and Wales are left in trust for the use of his Lordship's only son, the Hon. Alberic Willoughby (now Lord Willoughby de Eresby), and his issue. In the event of the present Lord Willoughby, who is unmarried, dying without issue, the estates are entailed on his eldest sister, Lady Aveland (to whom the female barony of Willoughby de Eresby would descend) and her issue; and an annuity of £5000 a year is bequeathed to the remaining sister, Lady Carington. The barony of Gwydyr would, in the above case, devolve on P. R. Burrell, Esq., of Stoke Park, Suffolk (nephew of the late Lord), with an annuity of £2000 a year. A legacy of £1000 has been left to each of the trustees, who are also nominated executors. There are several minor legacies and annuities, and a bequest of one year's full wages to each of his Lordship's servants.

The will of Lieutenant-General Sir Samuel Burdon Ellis, K.C.B., R.N., late of Charlton, Kent, was proved in the London court last month. The executors are his relict, Lady Ellis, and Henry Edwin Drayton, Esq., of Maresfield Powderworks. The will is dated June 23, 1857, and is attested by Francis Seaman, of Catel, Guernsey, and Francis W. Ellis, Commander R.N. Sir Samuel died on the 10th of March last. He has bequeathed the whole of his property to his wife, Lady Ellis, for her Ladyship's own absolute use and benefit.

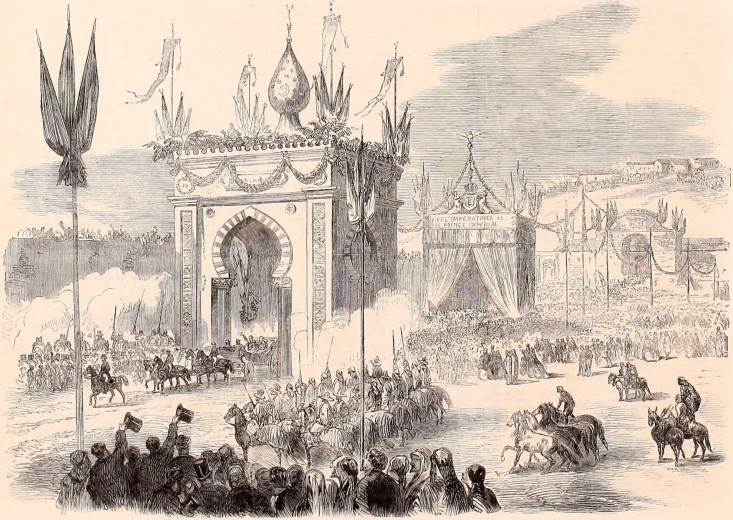
The will of Vice-Admiral Robert FitzRoy, R.N., F.R.S., was proved in the London court, on the 9th inst., by his relict. The personalty was sworn under £3000. The will is dated 1854: he was then a Captain R.N., having entered the Navy 1818, became Captain 1834, Rear-Admiral 1856, Vice-Admiral 1863. He had been M.P. for Durham, 1841-3; was Governor of New Zealand, 1843-6; and latterly, up to the time of his death, which occurred April 30, at the age of sixty, was chief of the Meteorological Department of the Board of Trade. This gallant and highly-gifted Admiral was the third son of the late Lord Charles FitzRoy and Frances Anne, daughter of the first Marquis of Londonderry, K.G., and was twice married—first, in 1836, to Mary Henrietta, second daughter of the late Major-General O'Brien (she died in 1852); and secondly, in 1854, to Maria Isabella (who survives him), daughter of the late J. H. Smyth, Esq., of Heath Hall, Wakefield. He executed his will on May 15 of the same year in which he last married: it is very brief, and is attested by John Parkinson, 66, Lincoln's-inn-fields, and F. C. Jarrett, his clerk. He has left the whole of his property to his wife and appointed her sole executrix, and also guardian of his infant children, together with his brother, George Fitzroy, Esq.; James G. Smyth, Esq., of Heath Hall; and Sir Walter C. James, Bart.

The will of Samuel Porter, of Bridge Hall, Bradwell, Essex, was proved in the London court under £10,000, the executors and trustees being his nephew, William Brown, and Joseph Lake, of Colchester. The will is dated Feb. 23, 1865. The testator died in March last, and has left many charitable bequests, viz.:—To the London Missionary Society, Wesleyan Missionary Society, General Baptist Missionary Society, and Church Missionary Society, each £400; to the Colchester or East Essex Idiot Asylum and the Naval and Military Bible Society, each £200; to the London Society for Promoting Christianity amongst the Jews, British and Foreign Sailors' Society, and Home Missionary Society, each £100; to the Essex Congregational Union, Colchester Hospital, Infant Asylum at Croydon, and the two schools at Walthamstow for sons and daughters of missionaries, each £50; to the poor of Bradwell, £40; to all adult men in his employ, £4 each; to all young men and boys under twenty-one, £2 each; to the oldest female domestic servant, £10; and to the younger servants, £5 each. He has bequeathed to his nephew and executor, William Brown, for life his estate and farm of Bridge Hall, with permission to convey the same to his great nephew William, the son of his nephew, on his attaining twenty-five. His three farms, called Viners, Horn, and Greenhouse, he leaves to his nephew and nieces, William and Elizabeth Brett, and Louisa Smith; and £700 to his niece, Louisa Fisk; and appoints his executors residuary legatees.

The ratifications of the postal treaty between Belgium and Holland have been exchanged at Brussels. The postage of letters between the two countries will, therefore, soon be reduced to one half of the present charge.

The Times publishes letters from Earls Abingdon and Grosvenor, the Rev. Henry Glynne, Mr. Henry Hoare, and others, warning persons against a systematic attempt at extortion from a person signing himself S. J. A. Stuart, formerly Wilson, claiming to have known them at Eton, and requesting £5 or £10 under the most distressing circumstances of privation.

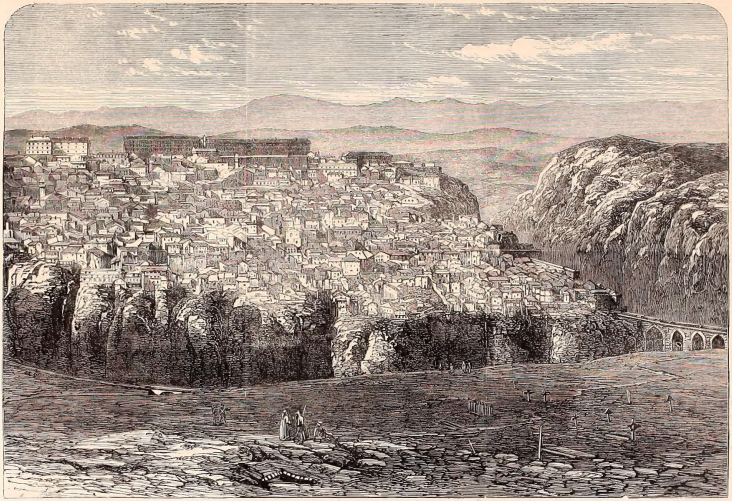
THE VISIT OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON TO ALGERIA.



A VIEW of Fort Napoleon, in the mountainous district of Djurjura, or Kabylia, rather more than one hundred miles to the south of the capital of Algiers, was given in our last week's Paper. We have now engraved another sketch taken at the same place by our special artist, M. Mariani, who has attended the journeys of the Emperor during his visit to these French provinces of Africa throughout the month of May. The first of his Illustrations, engraved this week, displays the triumphal arch erected in front of the gate by which his Majesty entered Fort Napoleon on the 21th ult., as we have already described. The natives of the country, who are Kabyles, not Arabs, have assembled in crowds upon the summit of the rocks overlooking the road to salute the Emperor on his approach. Their costume, as our readers will see, is very different from that of the other populations of Algiers. The men often go bare-headed, with their hair all shaved off, except one long tuft, by which it is believed the angel of the resurrection will take hold of them after death to hoist them up into heaven. They are likewise bare-footed, or wear only a sandal, tied on with a string; but they are an industrious race, and their lands are carefully tilled. The women, though Moslem, are not veiled, but show their faces, with the forehead, the chin, and the arms curiously tattooed. Their head-dress, a dark-coloured piece of linen cloth, hangs down at the back of the head; they carry their naked children upon their shoulders, or else a pitcher of water, the bottom part of which is shaped so that it may be stuck into the wide girdle, and supported thereby. The dress of men and women is a sort of tunic, without sleeves, made of a whity-brown cloth. They are fond of music, playing a rustic clarinet, which is held by one of the figures our Artist has drawn.

The other three Illustrations we now give belong to the distant part of the Algerine territory—namely, the town or city of Constantine, in the eastern region, to which the Emperor proceeded by steamer along the coast, landing at the port of Philippeville, and thence going by the carriage-road to Constantine, on the 28th ult. Our Special Artist, who has contrived with some difficulty to keep up with these rapid movements of the Imperial party, was already at Constantine some hours before. The singular and romantic position of this town, which is perched on a platform of rock, almost detached, except by a narrow isthmus, from the neighbouring hills, and looking down into precipitous ravines on each side, will not fail to command notice. It is divided into two separate portions, one occupied by the Arabs and the other by the French. The Emperor, arriving here about four o'clock in the afternoon, was greeted with immense acclamations by a greater multitude of the Arabs than he had met at any other place in his dominions. Followed by a numerous troop of horsemen, amongst whom were the irregular native soldiery lifting their muskets as high as they could reach with one hand and firing them off in the air as a token of festivity, the Emperor rode into the town beneath three triumphal arches, which were erected in succession, at short intervals, above the road. These three arches are shown together in our Illustration. The one farthest in the background was built up entirely of sacks of corn (both wheat and barley) and bales of wool, to the value of about £80,000; which novel sort of edifice was intended to give an idea of the agricultural riches and commercial importance of the district. The market-house or Halle of Constantine adjoins this triumphal arch. The next arch is that under which the Emperor stopped to receive the loyal addresses of the Mayor and the District Governor, to which he made a suitable reply. The third arch, distinguished by its Moorish style of architecture, was provided by the Mohammedan population, and here the Emperor arrives close to the walls of the town, where he finds the greatest demonstrations of welcome. The whole spectacle was arranged in order to have a certain political significance, and so as to betoken the popularity of Napoleon III. amongst all classes of his subjects, as well as the prosperity of this country under his rule. Our last Illustration is a View of the Interior of the court of the Governor's Palace at Constantine, where the Emperor took up his abode for a day or two, the windows of his apartment, overlooking the secluded terrace, being shown in this Engraving. The garden of this palace was always an object of especial solicitude to Marshal MacMahon during his residence here, and it contains a marvellous profusion of the most gorgeous flowers.

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON TO ALGERIA.



TRIUMPHAL ARCH ON THE ROAD TO FORT NAPOLEON.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

ARRIVAL OF THE EMPEROR AT CONSTANTINE.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

VISIT OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON TO ALGERIA.

THE TOWN OF CONSTANTINE.

INTERIOR COURT OF THE GOVERNMENT PALACE AT CONSTANTINE.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST, M. PAUL G.

BIRTHS.

At Lille, France, Margaret, wife of the Baron d'Oollembourg, Lieutenant 5th Regiment of Cuirassiers, of a son.

On the 11th inst., at 17, Cadogan-place, the wife of Major Alsdaigh, of a son.

On the 13th ult., Mrs. Edwin Palmer, The Larches, Moseley, Birmingham, of a daughter.

On the 1st inst., at Tramore, Ireland, the wife of Commander G. A. W. Wirth, R.N., of a son.

MARRIAGES.

At St. Michael's, Chester-square, the Hon. and Rev. E. Y. H. Powys, son of the late Lord Lilford, to Elizabeth, daughter of the late W. W. Wayne, Esq., of Flin-Scrivelsby, Lincolnshire, and Wilton.

On the 8th inst., at St. Peter's, Batley, Berks, by the Rev. George Harvey, M.A., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Gloucestershire, Major Lane Clarke, late Rifle Brigade, to Mary Russell, Esq., of Betton Abbotts, Shrewsbury, and Lucknow, India, and Ellen, only child of the late Charles Russell, Esq., of Batley, Clapham Park. No cards sent.

On the 2nd ult., at St. Paul's Cathedral, Calcutta, by the Rev. Cave Browne, Frederick Gordon, Esq., of H.M. 109th Regiment, to Clara, second daughter of T. Deacon Newton, Esq., of West Hoe-terrace, Plymouth. No cards.

DEATHS.

On the 14th inst., at 28, Clifton-road, St. John's-wood, Emma Elizabeth, the beloved wife of George Lovibond Hall.

Suddenly, at—, at Rest, Kingsway, after a few hours, Viscount Cranborne, aged 42.

On the 29th ult., at Beverley House, Toronto, Canada, Emma, widow of the late Sir J. B. Robinson, Bart., Chief Justice of Upper Canada.

At Pollock, Renfrewshire, Sir J. Maxwell, Bart., of Pollock.

* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 24.

SUNDAY, June 18.—First Sunday after Trinity. Battle of Waterloo, 1815. Opening of Waterloo Bridge, 1817.

MONDAY, 19.—Accession of Queen Victoria, 1837. Great Britain, born 1568. Death of Sir Joseph Banks, one of the founders of the Royal Institution of Great Britain, 1820. Incorporation of Society of London, 1839.

TUESDAY, 20.—Coronation of Edward, King of the Welsh Saxons. Accession of Queen Victoria, 1837. Counterslip commencement.

WEDNESDAY, 21.—Death of John Sheffield, Duke of Buckingham and Normanby, 1721; and of Inigo Jones, architect, 1653. Longest day; summer quarter begins.

THURSDAY, 22.—Great victory of the Swiss over Charles the Bold of Burgundy, at Morat, 1476. Opening of Waterloo Bridge, 1817. Battle of Marston, 1857.

FRIDAY, 23.—Clive's victory over the Nabob of Bengal, at Plassey, 1757. End of Cambridge Easter Term. New moon, 7h. 4m. morning.

SATURDAY, 24.—Nativity of St. John the Baptist. Midsummer Day. Battle of Steyn; the French fleet destroyed by Edward III., 1340. Newfoundland discovered by John Cabot, 1497.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 24.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. | A.	M. | A.	M. | A.	M. | A.	M. | A.	M. | A.	M. | A.
h. m. | h. m.	h. m. | h. m.	h. m. | h. m.	h. m. | h. m.	h. m. | h. m.	h. m. | h. m.	h. m. | h. m.
11 38 | 12 0	0 14 | 12 41	1 2 | 1 29	1 49 | 2 16	2 36 | 3 3	3 24 | 3 51	4 13 | 4 40

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF							THERMOMETER.			WIND.				Rain in 24 hours.	Sunshine.
	Barometer reduced to Sea-level and 32°.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Ozone.	Cloud.	Amount of Sky Clouded.	Movement in miles.	Max. in Sun's Rays.	Min. on Grass.	Queen's Thermometer.	Direction.	Noon.	Evening.	Mean for Day.
	Inches.	°	°	°	0-10	°	°	°	°	°					Inches.	Hours.
7	29·390	49·9	81	6	9	79·5	74·9	114·3	44·5	54·3	NE.	ENE.	Miln.	Miln.	·000	0·0
8	30·467	42·6	51°	°68	1	49·5	74·9			64·8		CALM.			·000	10·0
9	30·507	42·9	51°	°71	0	49·5	74·9			64·3		CALM.			·000	10·0
10	30·133	43·9	51°	°71	0	49·5	62·1			57·3		NNW.			·000	10·0
11	30·130				0	49·0	62·1								·270	·000
12	30·343	43·3	59	°72	0	49·0	62·1			57·3		NE.	ENE.		·000	10·0
13	30·296	43·1	47·6	°65	0	49·0	74·1			59·6		SW.	S.		130	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, taken at 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. respectively:

Barometer (in inches) corrected	30·305	30·565
Temperature of Air	52·6°	49·6°
Temperature of Evaporation	50·9°	51·0°
Direction of Wind	S.S.E.	CALM.

30·275	30·177
49·2°	49·0°
48·5°	48·5°
W.	W.N.W.

30·189	30·141
49·0°	48·8°
48·5°	48·4°
W.N.W.	W.N.W.

30·141	30·137
48·8°	45·3°
48·4°	45·3°
W.N.W.	N.E.

Queen's Thermometer.

Max.	57·3°
Min.	44·5°
Mean	50·9°

Rain, 0·270 in.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 17, 1865.

In spite of the wise men, sentiment is sometimes a safer guide than what is called reason. To the ordinary mind, daily trained by common-place and conventionality, nothing can seem more proper than such an announcement as that which has recently been made touching the proposed invasion of Oxford. How smoothly it reads in the regular march-of-intellect style! A great company, desirous of making new provision for the accommodation of the public, and for increasing the facilities of intercourse, so beneficial to all classes, is about to erect new and magnificent carriage factories at Oxford. This will be the means of creating a commercial colony of some five thousand persons, most of the males being skilled mechanics, and a new impetus will be given to the trade of the celebrated old city, while the increased resources of that venerable seat of learning will in return tend to the refinement of the classes in future to be brought under the shadow of St. Mary's. Can anything be more delightful?

Nevertheless, and admitting without the least hesitation that railways are very useful, and that five thousand persons will do much for trade, which is also a very useful thing, we do not like the idea of this railway invasion. It may be perfectly true, as stated by the member for Oxford, that the city is not at all considered to do his best for the commercial class which returns him, that Oxford did a good business before the University existed. But we must deal with facts as we find them, and the fact about Oxford is that the town is now merely the larder, workshop, wash-house, and stable of Alma Mater, and nobody thinks of it as anything else. It is a mere collection of houses which contain articles required by the colleges. If Oxford chooses to act so lubbly that it desires to set up for itself, to exercise the right of secession, and to try and be an important English town, without University patronage, well and good. Let the Jefferson Davis of Oxford throw down the gage of battle, and we will undertake for the Dean of Christ Church that when the rebel is captured he shall not be manacled, and shall have good rations from any battery he may prefer. But let us have plain dealing. Do not tell us that it will be a good thing for the colleges for the streets around them to be crowded at night with a population like that of the New-cut, or that those calm and glorious old gardens will be put to their right use when the students shall be elbowed from the walks by the mechanics from the Great Western. Let us call things by their right names. It may be desirable for the tradesmen of Oxford—the lower class of them, at least, for we do not see what accession of custom will be gained by the superior order—that a quiet and almost stagnant town should be converted into a place of brisk business—noisy, hot, and jostling. If Oxford is to be made as like a Birmingham suburb as possible, say this. But we are not to be persuaded that the interests of the University will be promoted by the addition of five thousand persons, of a class to be always spoken of with respect and with what admiration, to the undergrads of the class with which a rational man would desire to surround a school.

Business is business, of course, and if it could be shown that the continuation of Lollyford street to Cheapside, through St. Paul's, would assist traffic, and specially if it were proposed to send the railway vans through the cathedral, we make no doubt that a bill for effecting the object would soon be in Mr. Pitt Taylor's hands, supported by a huge commercial interest. Railway companies would offer to take St. Paul's at a valuation, and would in the most liberal manner remove the statues to South Kensington, and the contents of the vaults to any procurable cemetery. And they would be called spirited and generous by a certain part of the press and of society. But we are not all of us sufficiently converted to the doctrine that nothing but money-making is worth a thought. Some of us look to old associations, to the history of the past, to the intellectual glories of the old days, and we cannot consent to destroy all our memorials, even for the sake of a new street or a new iron road. We admit the weakness of this sentiment, and we admit the impossibility of resisting, in these days—the convenience of men of business and the desirability of making profits; but our case is very strong upon grounds of which mere money-grubbers know nothing. The proposal to run a railway through the nave of St. Paul's roadway bill induces us to protest against establishing factories and a factory population in the old University city.

We could defend our objections on the ground of sentiment, and we utterly refuse to call this a weak argument. Sentiment, in the highest sense of the word, means the reverence felt by the educated, not the superstitious, for things which, though intangible, are more important than the objects of mere utility or reverence. In that sense England has been the most sentimental of nations, as well as the greatest. In the universal expression of regret which has followed the announcement that Oxford is to be made a Birmingham suburb there is a proof that the reverence we speak of has still an abiding place. That expression has been uttered by those who, like ourselves, are proud of the manufacturing and mercantile successes of England; who are proud of the skill displayed in the marts of trade and the magnificent machinery which enables this little island to hold her own against the world. But they have a sense of the fitness of things, and they have respect for the works of old times. It is felt throughout England that Oxford ought not to be desecrated. The Vandalism is needless, for there are numerous places that would serve as well—some much better—for the purposes of trade. But there is a proof afforded by the reception of the scheme in the shops of certain tradesmen, and in Cambridge University.

We are bound to plead against this invasion of the grand school around whose noble towers and palaces cling a thousand memories, and whose name will ever be the best among us—not only those who have been educated by the University, but those who honour it as one of the great fountains of education. The most illustrious person in the realm (with one exception) is educated in Oxford or Cambridge. He cannot directly interfere, but an expression of his dislike of the scheme would be valuable, and it is certain that he cannot approve the projected barbarism. And where is Lord Derby, Chancellor!

THE COURT.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, drove in the vicinity of Balmoral Castle on Tuesday week. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Louisa and Prince Leopold and attended by the Duchess Dowager of Athole, went to Alt-na-Guithasach. Princess Helena and Prince Arthur, attended by the Hon. Mrs. A. Gordon and Miss Bowater, ascended Ben y Baund.

On Wednesday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in the neighbourhood of the castle. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Louisa and Prince Leopold, attended by the Hon. Mrs. A. Gordon, drove, via Invercauld House and Allanquoich, to the Falls of Quoich. The Queen and the Princesses then mounted hill ponies, and, attended by guides, rode up the winding vale of the Quoich, thence ascended the mountain to the right, and, after a ride from the hills, returned, via Old Mar Lodge, to Braemar, whence the Royal party drove to Balmoral.

On Thursday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by the Duchess Dowager of Athole, drove out twice.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, drove in the vicinity of the castle. Subsequently her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by the Hon. A. Gordon, went to Loch Builg, and returned by Invercauld.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, drove out. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Prince Arthur and Princess Beatrice and attended by the Duchess Dowager of Athole, drove in the neighbourhood of the castle. Dr. N. M'Leod, one of the Queen's Chaplains in Scotland, had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa attended Divine service in the private chapel at the castle. The Rev. N. M'Leod officiated. The Duke of Argyll and Dr. M'Leod had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, drove in the neighbourhood of the castle.

The Queen will hold a Court to-day (Saturday) at Buckingham Palace.

RETURN OF THE QUEEN FROM SCOTLAND.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, Prince Arthur, and Prince Leopold, and attended by her suite, was expected to leave Balmoral Castle, on Thursday, en route for Windsor Castle. Her Majesty was to travel post to Aboyne and thence proceed by special train, provided by the London and North-Western Railway, and under the charge of Mr. G. P. Neele, the outdoor superintendent of that line. The Queen and Princess Helena were to travel in the Royal saloon in the centre of the train, the Princess and Princesses occupying state saloons in the front and rear of the Royal saloon. The train was timed to leave Aboyne at half-past two o'clock, p.m., and to proceed along the Deeside Railway to Aberdeen, thence over the Scottish North-Eastern Railway to Perth, and thence by the Scottish Central Railway to Carlisle. The journey thence was to be continued upon the London and North-Western Railway to the Aynsbury junction, which was timed to be reached in ten minutes past five o'clock yesterday (Friday) morning. At this station the direct line was to be joined, and thence onwards by the line of the Great Western Railway, along which line the remainder of the journey was to be performed. Windsor was timed to be reached at twenty-five o'clock, the distance of about 600 miles occupying rather less than twenty-one hours.

The Queen, a short sojourn at Windsor Castle, is expected to proceed to Osborne.

INVESTITURE OF THE ORDER OF THE BATH.

The Queen, as Sovereign of the Order of the Bath, having been pleased by a special statute of the order to depute the Prince of Wales to act for her Majesty in carrying out the Majesty's behalf, as investiture of the most honourable order, the ceremony took place, on Thursday week, at St. James's Palace.

The Prince, escorted by a detachment of the Royal Horse Guards and attended by his gentlemen in waiting, arrived at the palace at three o'clock. The Duke of Cambridge was present at the ceremony. The Queen's body-guard of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms was on duty in the Presence Chamber, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Sir William Topham; the Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Colonel C. Patterson. The Knights Grand Cross assembled in the Retiring Room, wearing the collar and badge of the order, and having their insignia and collars, passed into the Presence Chamber, where their names were called over by the officer of arms in waiting. The Duke of Cambridge, Field Marshal the Duke of Cambridge, Field Marshal Viscount Gough, General Sir George Pollock, the Right Hon. Sir Thomas Seymour, the Right Hon. Sir George Grey, General Sir Alexander Woodford, General Sir John Fox Burgoyne, General Sir Richard Dacres, R.A., General Sir Maurice Berkeley, Lieutenant-General Sir Henry Ross, Admiral Sir Michael Seymour, the Right Hon. Sir John Somerset Pakington, Lieutenant-General Lord Combermere, Colonel Sir Augustus John Cockburn, General Sir John Bell, Lieutenant-General Sir Charles Ash Windham, Lieutenant-General Sir Patrick Grant, General Sir James Archibald Hope, Lieutenant-General Sir Harry Jones, Lord Lyons, and Viscount Hardinge.

The Prince, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge, was conducted to the Throne-room by the Earl of St. Germans and Viscount Sydney. In attendance were the Marquis of Ailesbury, Viscount Castlerosse, Viscount Bury, Lord Proby, Colonel Sir T. M. Biddulph, Field Marshal Wynyard, the Earl de Grey and Ripon, Lord George Manners, Colonel de Bathe, Captain Sussex Stephenson, Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Arthur Ellis, Colonel the Hon. A. Liddell, Major-General F. H. Seymour, Colonel H. Ponsonby, the Right Honourable Spencer Ponsonby, the Earl of Rosslyn, Captain Mr. C. L. Wood, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel.

The Prince was then invested with the collar of the order, as also did the Duke of Cambridge. The Prince having taken his place in front of the Throne, the Knights Grand Cross were called over in the Throne-room Chamber, and proceeded, according to seniority, into the Throne-room, and ranged themselves on each side.

The officers of the order, in attendance, wearing their mantles, chains, and badges, were the Dean of Westminster (Dean of the order); Albert W. Woods, Garter Herald (Registrar and Secretary of the order); Vice-Admiral the Hon. George Grey (Bath King-of-Arms); and Sir Augustus Frederick Walpole, Esq. (Gentleman Usher of the Red Rod).

The Knights Grand Cross being duly arranged, and the officers of the order having assumed their accustomed places, the special statute which delegated to the Prince of Wales power to invest in the name of my sovereign was read by the Dean of the order.

Admiral Sir Fairfax Moresby was then received at the door of the Throne-room by Lord Proby, and Sir Henry Jones, the two junior Knights Grand Cross present, and was conducted between them to the Prince, preceded by the Bath King-of-Arms (bearing the ensign of Knight Grand Cross) and by the Gentleman Usher.

Each king-of-arms, herald, and pursuivant and bedge to the Prince, who invested the Admiral with the same by placing the ribbon over his right shoulder and under his left arm, and hanging the ensign of dignity in the order, Sir Fairfax retired.

The following Knights Grand Cross of the order were afterwards severally introduced and invested by his Royal Highness, with the like ceremonies, with the collar, badge, and star of the military division of the first class of the order:—General Sir William Rowan, Admiral Sir Houston Stewart, General Sir George Augustus Wetherall, Admiral Sir Henry Eyre Coddrington, Sir James Frederick Love, General Sir James Jackson, Lieutenant-General Sir John Cheape, Lieutenant-General Sir Edward Whitby, Admiral the Hon. Sir Frederick William Grey, and Admiral Sir George Robert Lambert.

After Sir Lambert had retired the Grand Cross General Sir William Wood was received at the door of the Throne-room, and conducted to the Prince between the Bath King-of-Arms (bearing the ensign of the military division of the second class of the order) and by the gentleman usher.

Bath King-of-Arms then presented to his Royal Highness the ribbon and badge, who invested Sir William Wood with the same, by placing the ribbon round his neck, and, having been invested with the star, the General withdrew.

Lieutenant-General Sir Hope, Commander of the order were then severally introduced and invested by his Royal Highness, with the like ceremonies, with the collar, badge, ensign, and star of the military division of the second class of the order:—General Sir Thomas Kenah, Admiral Sir George Francis Seymour, General Sir Archibald Robertson, Lieutenant-General Sir William Cator, Lieutenant-General Sir Patrick Maxwell, Lieutenant-General Sir Thomas Arthur Scott, Lieutenant-General Sir John Scott, Lieutenant-General Sir William Wylde, Lieutenant-General Sir Charles Ash Windham, Vice-Admiral the Earl of Lauderdale, Vice-Admiral Sir John Vine Ommanney, Vice-Admiral Horatio Thomas Austin, Lieutenant-General Sir John Byerley Thomson, Lieutenant-General Sir Forrestere Graham, Rear-Admiral Sir Sydney Colpoys Dacres, Major-General Lord William Paulet, Lieutenant-General the Hon. Augustus Almeric Spencer, Colonel Sir J. William Gordon, Colonel Sir Edward Harris Greathed; and James Brown Boswell, Lieutenant-General of the Medical Department; Inspector-General of Hospitals, Sir William Linton; Commissary-General Sir Charles Trevelyan, Deputy Adjutant-General Sir Charles Maunies, Major-General Sir Charles Warren, Admiral Edward Collinson, and Vice-Admiral Paul Richards.

The ceremony being concluded, the Knights Grand Cross (companioning with the junior knights) withdrew, called over.

The Knights Grand Cross, with the officers of the order, then retired.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Princess of Wales is progressing most favourably. The convalescence of her Royal Highness being so far established, bulletins have not been issued since Monday.

On Saturday last the Prince visited Mr. Lear's studio in Stratford-place. In the evening his Royal Highness, attended by the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, Lieutenant-General Knollys, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, honoured the Fishmongers' Company with his presence at dinner at Fishmongers' Hall.

On Sunday the Prince attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Rev. J. C. Hedon and the Rev. C. F. Tarver were the officiating clergymen.

On Monday the Prince drove to Twickenham, and dined with the Count and Countess de Paris at York House.

On Tuesday the Prince, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, went to Ascot. In the evening his Royal Highness honoured Her Majesty's Theatre with his presence.

On Wednesday the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. His Royal Highness afterwards visited the Duke and Duchess of Brabant at Claridge's Hotel. In the evening the Prince, accompanied by the Duke of Brabant, went to the Adelphi Theatre.

On Thursday the Prince went to Ascot.

Mr. Moffat has the honour of showing a remarkable horse, from South Africa, to the Prince, on Monday, at Marlborough House.

Their Royal Highnesses the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary, attended by Lady Geraldine Somerset and Colonel Hood Purvis, left Cambridge House, Piccadilly, for Dover, en route for Dusbroek's chateau, near Frechnet. Their Royal Highnesses, upon their arrival at Dover, were received by a guard of honour of the 97th Regiment. The Duchess and the Princess, after dining at the Lord Warden Hotel, embarked for Ostend.

His Excellency the Bavarian Minister and Baroness de Cetto left the Bavarian Legation, on Wednesday, for Munich.

The Duke of Roxburghe and the Marquis of Bowmont left town, on Tuesday, for Leith, where they embarked on board the Osprey.

The Marchioness of Queensberry has arrived at the Portland Place, Southsea, from London.

The Earl and Countess of Coventry have left Thomas's Hotel, Berkeley-square, for Norway.

The Earl and Countess of Yarborough have arrived at their residence in Arlington-street, Piccadilly, from Brocklesby, Lincolnshire.

The Earl and Countess of Haddington and Lady Frances Hamilton have arrived at the Talbot Hotel, Ryde, Isle of Wight.

The Earl and Countess of Longford have arrived at their residence in Belgrave-road.

The Countess (Frances) Waldegrave and the Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, M.P., return to Carlton-gardens, on Monday, from Chewton Priory, Somersetshire.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

A marriage is arranged between Frederick Lygon, and Miss Edith Wal-sconed daughter of Mr. Arthur W. Wood, of Upper Grosvenor-street; and between Mr. Henry Bonsey, M.P., eldest son of the late Mr. Bonsey, of Foles, Herts, and Miss Eardley, eldest daughter of the late Sir Culling Eardley, Bart., of Belvidere Park, Herts.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Count and Countess de Paris received the Prince of Wales, Prince Montpeire Clarke, and a distinguished company at dinner, on Saturday, at the York House, Twickenham.

Countess Somers held an afternoon party, on Saturday last, at the Pension Embassy on Carlton House-terrace. Most of the visitors were accompanied by their evening dresses, as a ball followed the party.

The Duchess of Wellington gave a grand ball, yesterday (Friday) week, at Apsley House. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, the Duke of Cambridge and Princess Mary, the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale, the Count de Paris, and the Duke of Brabant were among the illustrious guests. A supper was served, and a large number of society were present.

The Duke and Duchess of Marlborough entertained a party at dinner, on Thursday evening, at their mansion in St. James's-square. A small party met after dinner.

The Marchioness of Waterford gave a ball, on Thursday week, at the family residence, in Chelsea-street, St. James's. Upwards of 200 persons of the aristocracy were present.

Countess Cowper received a select party at dinner, on Tuesday evening, at her residence in 25 Queen's-gate.

Lord and Lady Colchester entertained a large party at dinner, on Tuesday evening, at their residence in Berkeley-square.

Miss Burdett Coutts gave her third afternoon party, on Saturday last, at Holly Lodge, Highgate. Upwards of 200 members of the aristocracy were present. Miriam Syrett, Mustapha, and Sadi, the Turkish and Mahomedan All, sons of the Nawab Rajah of Bengal, were among the visitors.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The parish church of Eydon, near Banbury, was reopened, after restoration, on the 1st inst.

The anniversary festival of parish choirs in Hereford Cathedral will be held on Wednesday next.

The Bishop of London has accepted the office of Vice-President of the Queen's Jubilee.

A report which has been circulated that the Bishop of Exeter has been removed by the Queen from the Privy Council is untrue.

A bazaar will be held on the 28th inst. (by permission of the Marquis of Downshire), at 81, Belgrave-square, in aid of the funds for rebuilding the parish church of East Bergholt, Suffolk.

On Sunday morning the Bishop of London held a general ordination in St. Paul's Cathedral. There was a full choral service, the sermon being preached by the Rev. Edward Hayes Plumptre, M.A., of Brasenose College, Oxford, and Rector of Pluckley in Kent and Ivychurch.

After the celebration of holy communion at St. Alban's free and open church, Manchester, on Sunday, the congregation, at an effectory bags at the vestry, found an envelope containing four bank-notes of £100 each; to make sure given, it was left in a pew unobserved, and the offering was written, "I will not offer unto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothing." A thank-offering for great mercies received through St. Alban's Church.

The Bishop of London has made the following arrangements for a series of confirmations in metropolitan parishes for the present month :—Sunday, 13th, St. Matthew, Denmark-hill; Wednesday, 16th, St. Mary, Magdalen, Bermondsey; Friday, 18th, St. James's Church, Paddington; Sunday, 20th, All Saints', Margaret-street; Wednesday, 23rd, St. Peter's, Eaton-square; Friday, 25th, St. John's, Chelsea. Confirmations will be held by Lord Bishop on Wednesday, 30th inst., at St. Saviour's, Southwark (by the Archbishop); at St. George's, Hanover-square. In the course of the month of July the Lordship will hold confirmations at St. Mary's, Bryanston-square; St. Michael Church, Marylebone; St. Peter's Church, Notting-hill; West Hackney, Highgate, Islington, Kensington, Barking, and Stepney.

The Duke and Duchess of Argyll kindly threw open their beautiful grounds at Argyll Lodge, Kensington, on Saturday last, to a afternoon music, in aid of the completion fund of St. Andrew's Church, Kensington.

The annual meeting of the central committee of the Church Institution was held, on Tuesday evening, at the Mansion House, Queen in the chair. The report of the executive committee, after detailing the various measures that had been taken in Parliament relative to the Church, referred to the affairs of the Church, traced the progress of the institution, which has been established 20 years.

On Tuesday the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts held its annual fifth anniversary sermon. The usual choral communion was celebrated at St. Jonne's Church, Piccadilly, at which most of the chief dignitaries of the establishment were present, viz., the archbishop and archbishop, &c., afterwards proceeded to St. Paul's Cathedral; and in the afternoon the Rev. Dr. Hawkins was given, the sermon preached by the Bishop of Rochester. The Lord Mayor, the Sheriffs, Aldermen Dakin and Wilson, and a large number of the members of the corporation were also present. The collection at the doors of the cathedral was exceedingly large.

The Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of London, with a numerous party, who were invited on the occasion, visited the Bishop of Rochester's palace, Bromley, on Saturday last, to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the foundation of the society. The guests consisted principally of the clergy.

The following preferments and appointments have recently been made:—Rev. Frederick Bayley, Vicar of Dalbury, Derbyshire, to the rectory of St. Neots.—Rev. T. Ingel to be Canon and Prebendary of Lincoln's Residence: Rev. C. J. Evans to Orrington, Norfolk.—Rev. Edward Bowen, Fellow of Oriel, St. George, Hanover-square.—Rev. Edward Bowen, Fellow of Oriel, to be Oddfield to Minchinhampton.—Rev. W. Thorold, Incumbent of Middleton, Leeds, to Wesley, Bradford.—Rev. Tom Mortimer, Curate of Bradin, Essex, to Rev. J. T. Drake to Cottesbrook.—Rev. J. Monld to Oulham, Rutland.—Rev. J. Wilson to Ingleby Greenhow.—Rev. Thomas Hill, Curate of Ilkley, Aberystwith.—Rev. A. H. Hughes, Curate of St. Nicholas, Durham, to Trinity, Darlington.—Rev. A. S. Pearson to Christ Church, Postcriest, Chapelmeter.—Rev. P. A. Fothergill, Rector of Heighton and Ashwell, Rutland, to Ashwell.—Rev. J. Martineau, Rector of St. Hilary, Ivod-street, to the Rectory of London.—Rev. G. H. Scott, Vicar of Grimley-on-the-Hill, to the Earl of Dudley.—Rev. Thomas Hill, Curate of Witton, to the Earl of Pembroke.—Rev. William Holmes Orr to the Lectureship on the Bristol and North Somerset Railway.—Curacies: Rev. C. Bowen, Cottingham, Northamptonshire; Rev. R. G. T. Bree to Dorchman, Rev. Rev. A. H. Hodgson to Sansbury, Lancashire; Rev. R. Taylor to Worley.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—At Oxford, in a Convocation on Wednesday week, the expenditure of £400 for the twenty years was authorised towards purchasing and placing various specimens of trees in the new parks. The following were appointed curator of the arboreta for the year ensuing:—Rev. G. J. Hore, M.A., Student of Christ Church; W. W. Jackson, M.A., Fellow of Exeter; Rev. W. F. Short, M.A., Fellow of Oriel. A Congregation holden afterwards, the new form of statute relating to the foundation of a new professorship of Chemistry on the funds of Wadcliffe, founded by Regius Professor of Physic, was passed. A form of statute embodying some slight alterations in the Queen's Statutes was promulgated. The Ellerton Theological Essay, subject, "Every particular or national Church hath authority to ordain, change, and abolish ceremonies or rites of the Church, ordained only by man's authority, so that all things be done to edifying." It has been awarded to Alfred Barry, M.A., Fellow and Tutor of Queen's College. Subject for 1860:—"The duty of the Church in respect to Christian unity."

We understand from the Scotsman, that Mrs. Tytler Bruce, of Falkland, has bequeathed £5,000 for the purpose of endowing a chair of Natural History in the University of Edinburgh, and £3,000 for the college purposes in the New College, Edinburgh.

Monday last was the day appointed by the Court of Governors for the election from Merchant Taylors' School to St. John's College, Oxford, and there in the school-room were assembled during the day Mr. J. R. W. Vernon, Master of the Merchant Taylors' Company, and Mr. T. Sharp to the Stuart Exhibition at Cambridge; Mr. Hamilton Jones to the Hulme Exhibition at Brasenose College, Oxford; and that of Mr. R. S. Brown to the School Trevers. Many testimonials in favour of the candidates were produced, especially by a most brilliant assembly, were delivered in the presence of the Master and Wardens of the Company, by the respective candidates for the vacancies. On the conclusion of the speeches, were as follow:—Gilpin prize, for best conduct and diligence, Mr. Hall; Exhibitions, Mr. Hamilton Jones, Brasenose, C. T. Crawford, Christ church prizes—Latin verse, Mr. Stuttard, General Latin scholarship—R. S. Brown and H. W. Turner, equal; Latin prose, Mr. Stuttard; ship—C. T. Crawford; History, &c.—J. Shee, Chief mathematical prize for the year—A. F. Batty and G. Shattock. Chief French prize for the year—C. T. Crawford. Head Master's History prize—J. Shee. Mr. Sharp, on behalf of the Merchant Taylors that they say more attention to Hebrew than any other public school, and so encouraged the study of that language by the appointment of their masters, that for the last seventeen years nearly every University scholarship and exhibition that have been gained at Oxford and Cambridge by the Merchant Taylors' Company entertained a distinguished party at dinner at the Merchant Taylors' Hall.

The first annual meeting of the Kensington Collegiate School was commemorated, on Wednesday evening, at the Queen's Head, Acton, when the chair was taken by Mr. Sergeant Wrangham, Q.C., and there were present a prosperous scene. Dr. Aisby, Regius Professor of Law, Cambridge, occupied the vice-chair.

The old Pauline dinner, which was revived last year, is to be held at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate, on Wednesday, the 30th inst., at half-past six.

The second boat-race between the Shrewsbury School and Cheltenham College School was rowed on the Severn, on Saturday last, and, after a magnificent race, resulted in favour of Shrewsbury.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Mr. Serjeant Howley, the Prime Serjeant of Ireland, is, it is understood, about to retire from the bar, and will soon vacate his office.

The foundation-stone of the Hartlepool new reservoirs was laid, on Monday, by Mr. Ord.

Mr. Roebuck, M.P., presided at a meeting, on Thursday week, at the Cutlers' Hall, Sheffield, and distributed the prizes and certificates to the successful competitors at the Sheffield Mechanics' Institution in Sheffield.

The Sunderland Herald announces the death of Mr. William Carlton, the well-known author of "Traits and Stories," and a resident for many years in the fatal Hartley Colliery will probably be remembered.

The Bristol Mercury and Daily Post states that the amount of damage done by the bursting of the Bradfield reservoir is £327,000. Of this sum £175 is for the loss of life, £2,000 for damage to property, and £150 for injury to business and property.

On Monday a very large instalment of cotton-lands went to work, amid general rejoicing, at the Great Western cotton-works, Manchester, which have been closed for the last 18 months. It is expected that 2000 persons will now be in employment in the mill.

The apple crop in Devonshire will, it is stated, this year be a large one, the orchards generally being in full bloom. The cherry crop is also the orchards present a noticeable appearance, as instead of clustering on the branches, individual cherries have been sent here and there amidst

A handsome testimonial, in the shape of a silver tray or salver, has been presented to Mr. Edward Chatterton Middleton, for services years past in the peculiar county magistrate at Loughborough, in Leicestershire, and who has held the office of High Sheriff, besides many others of a public character. The presentation took place at a public dinner at the town and neighbourhood.

The Queen has appointed Mr. Robert Rawlinson, Mr. John Thornhill Harrison, and Mr. John Thomas Way, to be her Majesty's commissioners for the purpose of inquiring into the causes of accidents on the running waters in England for the purposes of carriage of the sewage of towns and factories and prevention of the pollution of rivers, and the injurious and noxious matters so carried, and of the effects thereof upon the health or serious injury to such process and manufactures, and how far such pollution may be prevented or mitigated, and to report whether any and what provisions for securing waters, or rendered harmless before reaching them; and also for the purpose of inquiring into the best means of the drainage of towns and populous places, of obstructions to the natural flow of rivers or streams caused by mills, dams, locks, and weirs, and to report whether any and what provisions are necessary to prevent any evils thence arising.

A London fog, having sold some goods to a Liverpool tradesman, sent a lawyer's letter for their money. A post-office order was forthwith transmitted to the lawyer, who returned it, declining to receive it, on the ground that an exchange to that amount had been made in the invoice. The post-office order was then sent to the tradesman himself, and the conveyance of the fog left amount in the Sheriffs' Court, Preston. It was subsequently admitted by the defendant that the fog had been sent, but that the post-office order was not in the legal tender. The defendants' counsel, however, contended that the fog was a message of business, and therefore was not as to the legality of the tender, but as to the amount represented by the fog. The jury, after a brief consultation, found a verdict for the plaintiff, damages, 1s. and costs. The defendant, at the same time, and a verdict was entered for the defendant. The solicitor for the plaintiff applied for a certificate for carrying the case into a superior court.

